Including Zeiss Tessar F, 3.5

Sent to any address on receipt of price, and money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory on inspection. Dealers who stock this camera will be fully protected.

ENSIGN CINEMA FILM

Negative and Positive have now been greatly improved and are receiving the endorsement of careful users. The negative has a longer scale of tones than any other and gives exceptional negatives.

Price per foot, Negative, 3c.; Positive, 2¾c. Perforating, ¼c. extra.
Special rates on large orders or contracts, on application.

DAYLIGHT LOADING SPOOLS 25-foot, including free developing at our works, $1.50; 100-foot spools, $5.00.

PHOTO CINES CO. 24-26 E. 13th St., New York

DID IT EVER STRIKE YOU?

BELIEVE THE EVIDENCE OF YOUR OWN EYES

Let Us Send You Our Large Free Samples. Make us show You.

That After You Have Bought, The Price is a Thing of the Past: Quality a Thing of the Future?

When You Buy, Buy Quality.

MIRROROIDE SCREENS AND CURTAINS

(PATENTS PENDING)

Are Sold at a Price None of our Competitors Dare Make, Because We Have the Factory Facilities To Make in Quantities and Know How. We Would Rather Make Small Profits and Large Sales Than Large Profits and Few Sales.

REGARDING QUALITY

Our Screens are made of Canvas. Coating is Metalized Glass. Sold Under A Positive 5-Year Guarantee. It Won't Crack, Peel or Turn Black. Tints Optional With You—Silver White, Silver Flesh, Silver Amber, or Pale Gold.

SURFACE FINISH

Medium Matte, A; Heavy Matte, B. Filling Your Requirements as to Width of Your House.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., Newburgh, N. Y.

---

Only Three Prints Left

IN THE TOILS OF THE DEVIL

Copyrighted 1913 BRAND NEW 2500 feet each

Made by the famous MILANO COMPANY of Italy.

To close out immediately, will give rights for several States not already sold with each copy. 1-3-6 sheets and photos.

A FEATURE BARGAIN

WRITE OR WIRE AT ONCE

International Film Traders
5 West 14th St. Film Importers and Dealers New York

---

Film Quality

Quality in the film—quality from a technical photographic standpoint is as important to the Exhibitor as is interest in the story that the film tells.

There's one film that's recognized the world over as the standard of quality—that is always used by those whose effort it is to give the Exhibitors the very best goods and the very best service—Eastman film.

And it is identifiable. Look for "Eastman" on the perforated margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

---

AUTOMATIC MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

SIMPLICITY · RELIABILITY · ENDURANCE
SEEBURG

PIANOS AND ORCHESTRIONS

FOR THE MOVING PICTURE THEATRE

The "Seeburg Idea" in connection with automatic pianos and orchestrions means "Simplicity," "Reliability" and "Endurance," giving maximum merit at a minimum price. For further particulars write .

J. P. Seeburg Piano Co.
MANUFACTURERS

900-902-904 Republic Bldg., Chicago

ORCHESTRA MUSIC
FOR MOVING PICTURES

The Orpheum Collection of dramatic and descriptive music for Piano and seven orchestra parts Piano can be used alone. In two series:

No. 1 and No. 2

Piano, 58 cts. each. Both series, $1.15. Violin, 40 cts. each; both 75 cts. Cello-&-Bass same price as violin. Flute 35 cts. each. Both series, 65 cts. Clarinet, Cornet and Trombone same price as Flute. Drums, 30 cts. each. Both series, 55 cts.

Send for free sample page and further discounts. 3d series ready for piano only; 58 cts.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 728 Mission St.

THE "STANDARDIZED" THEATRE CHAIRS

Do you want a life-saving chair?
Do you want a space-saving chair?
Do you want a sanitary chair?
Do you want a scientifically built, double standard chair?

We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio

OPERA CHAIRS
Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

We are an authority on

THEATRE SEATING

Information and seating plans free. You should have these two books—V2, Nickelode Chairs; V3, Opera Chairs.

American Seating Company
PUBLIC SEATING EXCLUSIVELY
218 S. Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO 15 East 32d Street, NEW YORK

Steel standards 'll not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

AGENCIES:
Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Newark, N. J.
California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave. Seattle, Wash.
Feldner-Wagner Co. 508 Marshall Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.
L-B Mfg. Co., S. E. Cor. 6th & Vine Sts., Phila., Pa.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

WE BUY, SELL and RENT
Moving Picture Machines and Films.
Theatre Brokerage Exchange,
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

WE CAN HURRY
YOUR ORDER OUT
STAFFORD Chairs excel all others.

Heavy Five Ply seats and backs.

The last-forever kind, that you are using long after you have forgotten the price.

STEEL CHAIRS TOO

We carry several kinds of good chairs in stock, all guaranteed.

ASK FOR CATALOG 635

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 818 Bissell Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Boston: 69 Pearl St.

ALL MAKES
POWERS SIMPLEX EDISON
MOTIOGRAPH EDENGRAPH
Cash or Time

Bargains in rebuilt machines
Send for new catalogue
Photo and poster frames

CURTAINS AND SCREENS

Write us today what you are interested in

Amusement Supply Co.
Everything from Screen to Booth
160A North Fifth Avenue, Chicago

The Los Angeles Tribune says

Florence Roberts' "Sapho"

Is a Big Triumph in Photo-Play Construction—

The Tribune states: "The Majestic theatre is given over this week to the initial showing of a big triumph in photo-play construction, the dramatization for the screen of Daudet's celebrated story of 'Sapho.' The scenario, which is recorded on more than 6000 feet of film and in about forty settings, was written by Elmer Harris, author of the comedy, 'Your Neighbor's Wife,' now playing at the Morosco Theater. Everything that the voice can express in the way of pathos, anger, hope, despair, etc., is so great a part of the stage version of 'Sapho' that Harris was daring in attempting his task. But he has succeeded, thanks chiefly to the great actress he secured for the name-part, Florence Roberts. She was brought here from New York, together with Shelley Hull of the Frohman forces."

A Glorious Gathering of New Majestic Favorites This Week
There Are Absolutely No Favorites Like Them!

"THE HOUSE IN THE TREE," a love story, out Sunday, Nov. 23rd, has Billy Garwood, Billie West, Vera Sisson, Victory Bateman and Howard Davies. "A WARM WELCOME," a comedy sensation, out Tuesday, Nov. 25th, has Lamar Johnstone, Francelia Billington, Dick Cummings, William Nigh and Sid DeGrey. "AN ACCIDENTAL CLUE," a story of a woman's wit, out Saturday, Nov. 29th, has Belle Bennett, Ernest Joy and Eugene Pallette. There are no favorites like these players; there are no favorites like New Majestic favorites.

"NEW MAJESTIC"

"There are absolutely no favorites like New Majestic favorites."

Business Offices:
New Rochelle, N. Y.

All-Year-Round Studios:
Brooklyn Heights, Los Angeles, Cal.

Selig

THE AIM AND END OF THIS PRACTICAL AGE IS RESULTS

The Virtues, Variants and Absorbing Interests Vested in the SELIG General Service Please Patrons and Profit Exhibitors, Always Giving Value Received.

"THE CYPHER MESSAGE"

The interest of the day in the fashionable crook plying his vocation as a guest in the home of aristocrats, is manifest in the drama, and this powerful picture play presents him alluringly and the keen detective unerringly. How the cleverest of London's most accomplished thieves is meshed in a net of evidence and convicted, makes a strong story very vivid.

In Two Reels --- Released December 1st

---

December 2nd "THE RUSTLER'S REFORMATION"

A bad man from the West has a beautiful daughter who wins the heart and hand of a wholesome cowboy and accomplishes the reformation of a wicked parent through the power of prayer.

December 3rd "WITHIN THE HOUR"

A mother goes shopping and cautions her little girl to remain home for an hour while she is absent. During this interim a burglar enters the house but experiences a change of heart that makes him a new man.

December 4th "GRANDDADDY'S BOY"

The power of childhood over age is strikingly and interestingly exemplified in this charming little domestic drama. It is finally the fortune of a little boy to intercede with his grandfather and bring happiness to the lives of youthful lovers he has repudiated.

December 5th "NORTHERN HEARTS"

One of the great remaining fields of rugged romance, is the e'er true tale of the Northwestern Mounted Police. No service requires more intrepidity and quick-wittedness than is found with these Red Riders. That they are as square in love as they are brave in performance of duty, is the drift of this story.

---

N. B.—Attention of Exhibitors is particularly called to SELIG'S new line of attractive paper. One sheets for every attraction, three sheets for the two-reel releases, and additionally six sheet stands for special releases. Make the lobby of your house attractive with this colorful illumination.

SELIG POYSCOPE CO.

TRADE S MARK

BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

TRADE S MARK

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6A

The Perfect Moving Picture Machine

IT SATISFIES

THE OPERATOR

Ease of operation. Accessibility of parts.

THE PUBLIC

Perfectly projected pictures. No possibility of eyestrain

THE EXHIBITOR

A satisfied audience. Steady patronage

THE MACHINE THAT DOES OVER 65% OF THE AMERICAN BUSINESS MUST SATISFY

THE TRADE

Write for Catalogue G with Full Details

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
88-90 Gold Street :: :: New York City
The Leading Makers of Motion Picture Machines

Vol. 18, No. 10 December 6, 1913 Price 10 Cents

H F HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Love's Sunset" (Vitagraph).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

THANHOUSER "BIG" PRODUCTIONS

MAUDE FEALY IN THE ## LEGEND OF PROVENCE

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Released Sunday, Nov. 30. "THE HENPECKED HODCARRIER"

He was the man of all work around the house; there was nothing to be done that he wouldn't do, but the final task that his wife inflicted was too much for even one of his obedient disposition. A Riley Chamberlin masterpiece.

Released Tuesday, Dec. 2. "THE PROBLEM LOVE SOLVED"

No ordinary power, seemingly, could extricate the young cashier from the tangle in which he found himself. Then a woman detective saved him, but through extraordinary effort and from an extraordinary motive—for she was in love with him!

Released Friday, Dec. 5. "WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN"

A wealthy broker is smitten with his pretty stenographer, only to lose her to a petty clerk in his own employ—who had "looks." The broker plans the couple's immediate discharge and all manners of revenge, the folly of which is summed up to him in a wondrous and enlightening dream.

SHOWMAN: Do you want THANHOUSER Protection? Can't We Send You YOUR Contract?

Or at least can't we TELL YOU how to get "THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS" for exclusive first-run use in your locality for a full year by iron-clad contract. Just think of getting four-part productions like "MOTHS," "ROBIN HOOD," "LEGEND OF PROVENCE" and "FROU FROU" that way! One a month on the first of the month.

Let's Send You Particulars, Anyway

"THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS"

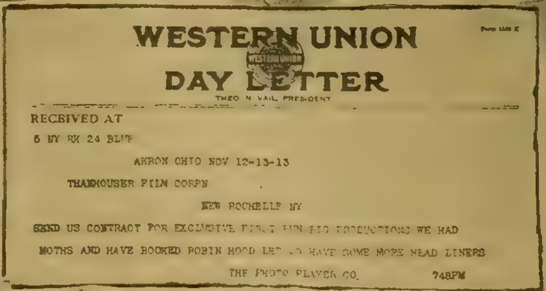
NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK



WESTERN UNION

DAY LETTER

THEO N VAIL, PRESIDENT

RECEIVED AT

5 NY RX 24 BLUE

AKRON OHIO NOV 12-13-13

THANHOUSER FILM CORPN

NEW ROCHELLE NY

SEND US CONTRACT FOR EXCLUSIVE FIRST RUN BIG PRODUCTIONS WE HAD MOTHS AND HAVE BOOKED ROBIN HOOD LET US HAVE SOME MORE HEAD LINERS

THE PHOTO PLAYER CO. 748PM

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

A Scene from The "Pay-As-You-Enter" Man

RELEASED FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5TH.

THE "PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER" MAN

(IN TWO PARTS)

A feature comedy-drama especially adapted for the holidays. Henry Rosser, a clerk in a department store, wants to please his family by giving them a turkey. The novel means by which he secures the fowl and the unexpected interference by the police, forms a novel plot for this photographic and dramatic success. Irene Warfield, Richard C. Travers and E. H. Calvert featured. Heralds and posters now ready.

Released Tuesday, December 2nd.

"AUTUMN LOVE"

A beautiful love drama of youth versus age. A feature attraction worthy of headline honors. The photography is magnificent.

Released Wednesday, December 3rd.

"KITTY'S KNIGHT"

A novel and eccentric comedy which will bring reams of laughter from your audiences. If you desire a picture with real comedy in it, book this one.

Released Thursday, December 4th.

"A ROMANCE OF THE HILLS"

A dramatic incident of a romance in the West. Beautiful photography prevails. Portrayal of the characters excellent

Released Saturday, December 6th.

"BRONCHO BILLY'S SQUARENESS"

An unusual and interesting Western drama featuring the world's most popular photoplayer, G. M. ANDERSON.

RELEASED FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12TH!

"THE THREE GAMBLERS"

(IN TWO PARTS)

A drama of blood curdling incidents intermingled with love, humor, pathos, exceedingly exciting and interesting situations. A positive FEATURE and box-office attraction. MR. G. M. ANDERSON AT YOUR SERVICE. Heralds and posters now ready.

A Scene from "The Three Gamblers."

OUR POSTERS ARE DISTINCTIVE. They will boom your business. Lithographs are in full four colors, 35c each. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY players, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the PLAYERS' PHOTO CO., 177 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

Universal

No. 1

TEN COMEDY REELS A WEEK

Our announcement that we intend to give ten reels of comedy per week is being hailed with delight by Universal exhibitors and exchanges. They tell us we have "hit the bull's-eye," and that "more comedies will exactly fill the bill." If you want to keep ahead of the procession all the time, all you have to do is to SWITCH TO THAT UNIVERSAL PROGRAM RIGHT AWAY!

No. 2

COMEDY DIRECTORS WANTED

The best comedy directors in the world are invited to communicate immediately with a view to joining the largest film manufacturing concern in the universe. Direct your letter or telegram to "Carl Laemmle, President, Universal Film Manufacturing Co., 1600 Broadway, New York," and mark it "PRIVATE."

No. 3

COMEDY SCENARIOS WANTED

Quickest possible action will be given playwrights who send their comedy scenarios to the "Comedy Scenario Dept., Universal Film Mfg. Co.," either 1600 Broadway, New York, or Hollywood, California. AND WE WILL PAY THE HIGHEST PRICE FOR REAL, GENUINE, BLOWN-IN-THE-BOTTLE COMEDIES! We want comedies of all classes, from rough stuff up to highest grade.

1600 Broadway

UNIVERSAL FILM MAN

CARL LAEMMLE

"The Largest Film Manufacturing

Bulletins

UNIVERSAL FILMS
TRADE MARK

No. 4

BEGIN DEMANDING "ABSINTHE"

This 3500-foot feature represents the combined talent of KING BAGGOT as leading man, LEAH BAIRD as leading woman, HERBERT BRENON as producer, and a great big company of other talented people gathered together in Paris. The whole picture was made in France. Over 6000 feet of negative was exposed, and it was ALL GOOD. But we have boiled it down to 3500 feet. We NEVER PAD!

No. 5

KEEP DEMANDING "ABSINTHE"

Your exchange will have to CHARGE YOU EXTRA MONEY for booking "Absinthe," but it will bring you extra returns several times over. SO DON'T QUIBBLE ABOUT THE BOOKING PRICE, but get this stunning feature regardless of cost. Then plaster your front with the splendid 1-, 3- and 6-sheet posters the Morgan Lithograph Co. has made. PREPARE TO DO A RECORD-SMASHING BUSINESS!

No. 6

IMPORTATION FORBIDDEN

The importation of absinthe (the drink, not the film) has been forbidden by the United States government. Our 3500-foot feature will show you the supreme wisdom of Uncle Sam in stopping the absinthe traffic in this country. It will not only drive home a powerful lesson, but it will GIVE YOUR PATRONS ONE OF THE MOST INTENSELY INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENTS EVER PRODUCED. Demand it!

UFACTURING COMPANY

PRESIDENT

oncern in the Universe"

New York, N. Y.

Ginger Up the Front of Your House

with the highest-class posters ever used for moving pictures. The above 6-sheet is a 5-color production of the sleep-walking scene in a coming "Rex" feature. Order this and the stunning 1 and 3-sheets for all our releases direct from any Universal exchange. Give a big and gingery display and pack your house. If the exchange can't supply you, order direct from the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, O., enclosing payment at the rate of 10 cents PER SHEET.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANU

Coming!

A 3-Reel Kerrigan Irish Play

Warren Kerrigan's wonderful popularity will be even more widespread than ever after we release his 3-reel Irish play, "Rory of the Bogs." Backed by a tremendous company, Mr. Kerrigan, assisted by Jessalyn Van Trump, has made a perfect gem of a feature!

Coming!

The American-Eclair's Best

In our opinion, "Over the Cliffs" (3 reels) is the best feature ever released under the American-Eclair brand. "Over the Cliffs" has the great Eclair all-star cast in a story that is packed with punches. See that you get it. The release date is December 10th.

Coming!

A 3-Reeler by the Smalleys

The Smalleys, who generally crowd several reels of action and plot into one reel, have found a story strong enough for 3 reels. They have called it "A Jew's Christmas," and it is a splendid piece of artistry. Released Dec. 18th. Totally different from any Christmas release you ever saw. BOOK IT.

Coming!

Grace Cunard & Francis Ford

have produced a 3-reel play of intrigue, mystery and excitement in "A Bride of Mystery." It will not be released until Dec. 23rd, but you should make immediate arrangements for advance posters and other advertising matter. Somewhere in every Ford-Cunard feature you'll find a terrific scrap. This one is no exception. The fight is a beauty, too!

Coming!

A Great Triple Exposure Film

In "The Twin's Double" (3 reels) Miss Cunard, under the direction of Mr. Ford, plays THREE DIFFERENT PARTS and appears on the screen IN ALL THREE PARTS SIMULTANEOUSLY. The triple exposure is perfect. It has been tried for years, but never so successfully accomplished as in "The Twin's Double." Watch for full particulars later.

FACTURING COMPANY

RAMO QUALITY LEADS THEM ALL

NOW AWAITING YOU

THE FANGS of HATE

IN THREE PARTS

REALISTIC THRILLING RAILROAD WRECK!

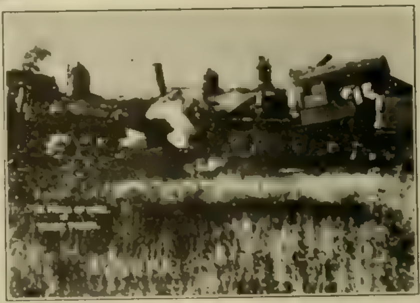
A DUEL TO DEATH!

DARE DEVIL DIVE ESCAPE FROM COURT ROOM!

Arrested for Murder

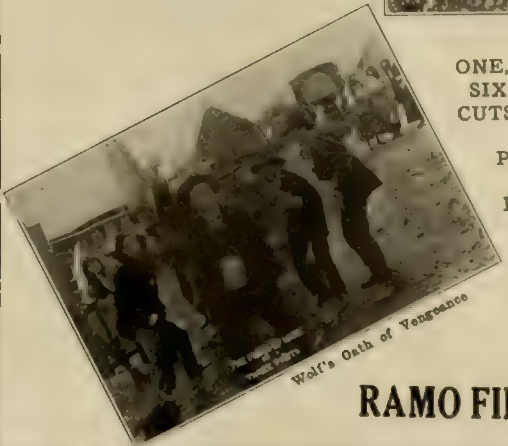
Insult and Challenge

REAL GYPSIES



The Wreck

REAL GYPSY CAMP

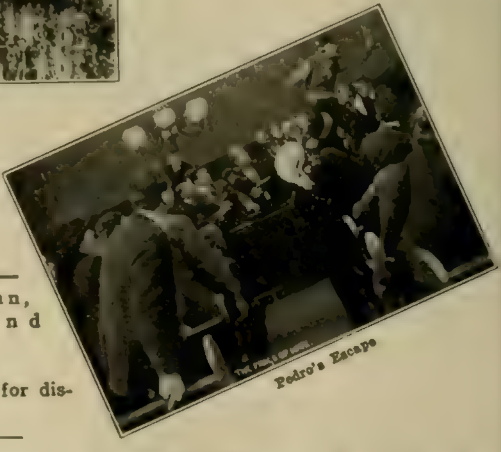


Wolf's Oath of Vengeance

ONE, THREE, SIX SHEETS, CUTS, HERALDS, SLIDES, PHOTOS 8 x 10.

Let's hear from—Ohio, Michigan, Missouri and Nebraska.

Now Ready for distribution.



Pedro's Escape

RAMO FILMS, Incorporated, Sales Offices Columbia Theatre Building New York

C. LANG COBB, Jr., Manager Sales and Publicity

The Turner Films, Ltd., Present

MISS

FLORENCE TURNER

LATE OF THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA IN

"The Harper Mystery"

Miss Turner, America's most popular Moving Picture Actress, assumes 4 entirely different disguises in this great 3-part production—a trained monkey is used to deliver a message—a well acted, clever detective story!

SPECIAL PUBLICITY MATTER

A 4-Part Hepworth Racing Melodrama—A SURE WINNER!

4 PARTS "KISSING CUP" HEPWORTH

Two Racing Automobiles, an Aeroplane, a Horse Race, a Love Story

CHARLES DICKENS'

"DAVID COPPERFIELD"

HEPWORTH Valuable Territory Still Unsold 7 PARTS

SEE THE MARVELOUS CURES IN

The First Irish National Pilgrimage to Lourdes

A 2-part Production by General Film Agency (London)

COMING! General Film Agency's (London)

3 Parts AFTER MANY YEARS 3 Parts

A. BLINKHORN

Sole American and Canadian Agent
110 West 40th Street,
NEW YORK CITY

A Full Line of Advertising Matter

I Help You Help the Exhibitor

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

The play was written by Fate on a woman's heart.

The Dramati

"LEAH K

The Triumph of a Woman's Soul Will Successes Eve

THE PACIFIC OCEAN is no broader than Leah Kleschna's appeal to humanity

Interpreted by the

CARLOTTA

"Leah
Will Profound
Impressio on the Screen

MEXICO
Intervention
at the right time will lead a criminal aright. This theory is advocated in "LEAH KLESCHNA."
In Four Reels.

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

C. M. S.
McClellan's greatest play.

able uccess

ESCHNA”

ne of the Greatest Motion Picture
ustrated in the

THE ATLANTIC OCEAN is no deeper than the human note in “LEAH KLESCHNA”

THE GULF
between transgression and virtue is clearly shown and eventually bridged in “LEAH KLESCHNA.”
Released December 10th.

“30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR”

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.
DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

“30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR”

ACES, FOUR OF THEM

Keystone Comedies

NOVEMBER 27
Cohen Saves the Flag

DECEMBER 1
The Woman Haters

DECEMBER 4
Rogues Galleries--San Francisco Celebration

DECEMBER 8
Ride for a Bride

DECEMBER 11
The Horse Thief

DECEMBER 15
The Gusher

DECEMBER 18
Fatty's Flirtation---Protecting San Francisco from Fire.

DECEMBER 20
His Sister's Kids

Broncho Headliners

NOVEMBER 26
The Reformation

DECEMBER 3
Buried Past

DECEMBER 10
The Frame Up

DECEMBER 17
The Open Door

DECEMBER 24
Her Father's Story

DECEMBER 31
The Woman

Domino Winners

NOVEMBER 27
Belle of Yorktown (3 reels)

DECEMBER 4
The Filly

DECEMBER 11
Devotion

DECEMBER 18
The Curse

DECEMBER 25
True Irish Hearts

Kay-Bee Features

NOVEMBER 28
The Sign of the Snake

DECEMBER 2
The Revelation

DECEMBER 5
The Long Portage

DECEMBER 9
Her Legacy

DECEMBER 12
Soul of the South

DECEMBER 19
The Pitfall

MUTUAL PROGRAM EXCLUSIVELY

New York Motion Picture Corporation
Longacre Bldg.
42d Street and B'way
New York

CHAINED TO THE PAST

RELEASED NOV. 22nd

2 Reels
Splendid Drama

Heralds
Photos
1, 3, 6 Sheet Posters

THE SILENCE OF THE DEAD

4 Reels of the Finest and Most Interesting Drama Ever Staged.

Released Nov. 29th

Gaumont Co

110 W. 40th Street, New York City

DEPENDABLE FEATURE SERVICE

TWO GOOD ONES EVERY WEEK

FEATURE TALKS.

A THREE REEL MASTERPIECE

"THE LOTUS DANCER."

TALK No. 2

EVERY man or woman engaged in the business of exhibiting motion pictures will go forward or backward in proportion to the quality of the features on his program. Audiences to-day want sustained high quality. When the family gathers at the home after the show the question is: "How were the pictures to-night?" If the verdict is: "They were bad to-night, but sometimes they are good," you are not doing your level best. You must make your features justify a verdict of: "They are always good." It can be done, but you must be an expert in choosing.

Do you know what influences your audiences in their judgment upon your feature? They will allow 75% for variety. If you give them the same plots and the same people they see in single reels they will begin to stay away. The multiple reel feature was successful from the beginning because it was an escape from the horrible monotony which began to oppress and distress audiences, overdosed and surfeited with stereotyped single reels. When you pay for features you are entitled to variety. True Features contain this variety in most generous proportions. The actors and actresses who appear in True Features are selected by expert directors who have the pick of the finest talent in the world. Their object is to fit every man and every woman to his or her part whether that part is big or little and to make the fit perfect in every detail. Good photography, fine settings, realistic accidents and charming landscapes are all good in their way, but they are like broken strands if the strong dramatic story is not there to connect them and make them strong. Directing and acting are the next important factors in the production of money making features. Unless you have such program builders as the True Features you will be apt to shift from one thing to another, like an ill-guided vessel in a laboring sea. True Features will give you the steady supply of high class features that you need for a solid and lasting foundation in your business. True Features Are the Best Program Builders of To-Day.

The True Feature Co.
110-112 West 40th St., WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING
Telephone 578 Bryant New York City
Sole American Agents for Continental Art Film Society
Get on our mailing list.

A Remarkably
Powerful Story of the Submarine
Gardens of the Sea—A Story of Adventure!

KLEINE-CINES

In Two Parts

"THE SUNKEN TREASURE"

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)

For Release Tuesday, December 16, 1913

George and Peter, fellow-divers, are in love with the pretty Louise, daughter of the salvage contractor, Michel. Spurned by Louise, Peter plots to steal a sunken treasure (which Michel has contracted to bring from the sea-bottom) and at the same time destroy his rival, George.

How George, working on the remains of a sunken ship, is saved after Peter cuts the air tube, is a thrilling and unusual situation in pictures. You should see the great chase by motor boat, when Peter, with the treasure, flies from the scene of the theft—the exciting race between a passenger train and an automobile, and how cleverly the pursuers stopped the train—the battle in the hold of an ocean liner—and, finally, the death of Peter when a stray bullet ignites vast stores of dynamite, blowing the ship to atoms before your very eyes.

"The superb Cines photography brings to us foreign scenes of impressive beauty, masterly portrayals of fishing life and the humble folk who make their living thereby, surprising views underneath the sea, in which divers are seen at work on the ocean bottom, exciting trips aboard speeding motor boats, flying trains, and recklessly driven automobiles."

From Motography, November 29th.

Book "The Sunken Treasure"—You will want it!

Released through General Film Company

One, three and six-sheets with all Kleine subjects

GEORGE KLEINE

166 N. State
Street
Chicago, Ill.

KLEINE

Why

Any film service that is unreliable—uneven and low grade—is an expensive service. Sometimes it costs an exhibitor all he has before he tumbles to the reason.

Any film service that is absolutely reliable—delivered on time—well balanced programs—uniformly high in quality and pleasing to the fans is a cheap service.

Shown under proper conditions Motion Pictures are the quickest and surest means to honest wealth now open to man. But showmen must be guided by demonstrated proofs—not mere high sounding claims.

Here are the reasons why the companies which make up General Film service have been the acknowledged leaders of the industry since the first Motion Picture was made.

They were the first to manufacture films and, while developing with their art, they were developing the art itself.

They made it and grew up with it. They guided every inch of progress it has made.

Their knowledge of the making of motion pictures is the knowledge that made motion pictures what they are.

Their equipments for manufacture are the perfected cunning of the men who invented and improved the equipments with which pictures are made.

Their department chiefs are the experts who have been a part of the great art since its creation.

Their actors have been trained for years, and exploited till their names have become household words in the homes of every civilized community.

Their plants represent a total investment of over twenty-five million dollars.

Their "brands" have been advertised so long and so extensively that they are known and called for in every city and town on earth.

Proprietors of motion picture shows are now enabled to procure all of these brands—the cream of the American and European Film product—on one program. One program of matchless merit and absolute reliability. General Film Service insures success from the very start.

General Film Company (Inc.)
200 Fifth Avenue New York

WHY?

The Master of the Garden

(The Penalty of Love)

Selig. Two Reels. Released December 8th.

Bessie Harrington, a sweet, innocent young girl, was born and raised in the country. She spends all her leisure hours under an immense oak tree. She grew to be a young lady, and learned to love Herbert Gray, the son of a neighboring estate owner, and still had the tendency to linger under this oak.

But little did she think that there could be any harm in the love, which she soon learned to be ashamed of, and Herbert soon tired of her and sought a new toy.

Bessie's parents, upon learning her shameful secret, sent her from home and she was ostracized from society, while Herbert became a progressive young barrister.

She traveled the road which most unfortunate girls do; but there are many unfortunates who are good at heart.

Bessie had a chance to make retribution, and she did. A young girl who had been inveigled into the same gorgeous resort was found by Bessie, in the room next to hers, and she decided to help her.

It was found that the young girl was brought to the house by a millionaire, but when suit was brought against him, he tried to prove that it was a case of blackmailing by a mysterious "Woman in Black."

The case was brought to the court over which Herbert Gray, by this time a renowned lawyer, presided, and things looked very bright for the millionaire until the "Woman in Black" was called to the stand as witness. She is ordered to raise her veil, and Gray swoons upon beholding the countenance of Bessie Harrington, the girl whose downfall he has caused.

Bessie, to save his reputation denies even an acquaintance with him. She has to be led out of the court; but she has triumphed, as the case goes against the millionaire.

Shattered and despondent from her experience, now isolated even from her scarlet associates, she wanders into a church, where she ends her life by taking an overdose of laudanum.

Her death dream is shown, in which the scarred soul of the erring one is seen flying from the cohorts of sin back again to the garden of innocence, and the old oak tree in her home of earthly Paradise.

The Master of the Garden appears and welcomes her and she flies to receive His blessing and then fades into the depths of the garden.

A Stolen Legacy

Kleine-Cines. Two Reels. Released December 9th.

Alarmed by threats of his laborers, Mauarez leaves his little daughter, Carmen, in the keeping of his faithful friend, Roberts, together with papers relating to the whereabouts of a hidden fortune.

He is shot by the rioters as he tries to escape. Roberts is also shot, and having taken refuge in the hut of two foresters, Juan and Manuel, dying, he consigns little Carmen and the fortune to their care.

Later Juan shoots Manuel and, leaving him for dead, obtains the hidden treasure. In later years he marries a good woman and is living in fashion and splendor.

Carmen meanwhile has been picked up by gypsies and grows up with them. One day Juan's wife sees Carmen and, taking a fancy to her, takes her to her home for one day

The gypsies' plan to rob Juan's home is thwarted by Carmen, as Juan recognizes her. Manuel, his old partner arrives at this time. The fortune is turned over to Carmen, and Juan goes to prison.

The Chinese Death Thorn

Kalem. Two Reels. Released December 10th.

Martin Avery, a victim of the underworld and member of Moi Ling's "gang," saves Mildred, daughter of Dearborn, a banker, from the clutches of the Chinaman.

In gratitude the banker gives him a new start, and he is later made cashier of the bank.

Learning of Avery's promotion, Moi Ling, through strategy, captures him and engineers a robbery of the bank. Martin's brother rescues him just as he is about to be put to death with the terrible Chinese Death Thorn. As the police enter the den, Moi Ling kills himself. Martin Avery and his brother return to the bank with the stolen funds just in time to avert a crash.

A Modern Portia

Pathé. Two Reels. Released December 11th.

Isabel Vincent, a successful and charming woman lawyer, meets Dr. Carpel at the house of her client, Mrs. Norman, whose will she is drawing.

Injured in a motor car accident, Isabel is attended by Dr. Carpel, and not long after her recovery she promises to become his wife.

Dr. Carpel, unable to pay his gambling debts, steals some money and valuable papers from Mrs. Norman, who detects his action in a mirror. On her death bed she writes a note, declaring that she saw Dr. Carpel appropriate the money.

Mrs. Norman's daughter Helen hurries to Isabel for advice; an investigation is commenced, and the young woman lawyer is forced to recognize the guilt of her intended husband.

Bravely sinking personal feeling in a larger sense of duty to her client, Isabel presses the case in court and suffers the agony of being the means of securing her lover's conviction.

His Best Friend

Lubin. Two Reels. Released December 11th.

A strong and very human story of the great sacrifice of a friend for the sake of Doris, the girl who married his chum.

Through his sacrifice, he is unjustly convicted of his friend's murder and spends years in jail before he manages to escape.

Doris, who has cultivated a hatred for him, believing him the murderer of her husband, discovers proof of his innocence in a note left years before by her dead husband.

Hearing of her efforts to obtain for him a new trial, he returns and explains that the great sacrifice was made for her. That he has always loved her.

The Three Gamblers

Essanay. Two Reels. Released December 12th.

Broncho Billy, a professional gambler, in love with Marguerite Corrington, whose father he had saved from disgrace, has promised her that he will never gamble again.

Her brother Bob, a would-be gambler, calls on Broncho Billy to help him out of a difficulty. Bob has succeeded his father as agent for the Express Company and has lost the company's funds at roulette.

Broncho Billy is compelled to break his promise and try his luck at roulette again in order to raise the money for Bob.

James Spaulding, also in love with Marguerite, tells her of the broken promise and she hastily returns the ring.

Robert confesses his folly to his sister. Marguerite apologizes to the man she loves and all ends splendidly.

Peg o' the Movies

Edison. Two Reels. Released December 12th.

Peg, who was as good as she was pretty, was wooed by Stephen; but she would not consent to leave her family, who were much in need of her help.

Her father, who had never amounted to very much, lost his position through drink and made it necessary for Peg to get a job.

This was not very difficult, for Peg's good looks and charming manner secured her a position in a Motion Picture Studio, much to the annoyance of Steve, who became so peeved at the idea of Peg not respecting his wishes that he left town to take a position with a bridge-building company in the far West, leaving but a short farewell note.

It was not long before Peg became a favorite, and when the management sent a company to take Western pictures, Peg went as the leading lady.

Meanwhile Steve became lonely, and dropped into a Movie Palace the night that a picture is shown in which Peg is saved by the handsome hero. He learned that the company was in town, and was fortunate enough to be given a minor part.

One day, during the rehearsal of a play in which he was obliged to rescue Peg from the Indians, he forgot his part and rode far away with the heroine of the movies clasped tightly in his arms.

Love's Sunset

Vitagraph. Two Reels. Released December 13th.

Nita, once a cabaret singer, had gone down the steep grade until she had been rescued by a Salvation Army Woman and given a position as nursemaid.

Towne, an artist, never before attracted by woman, falls in love with her.

When Towne proposes to Nita, she feels that she should tell him of her past life, but she longs so much for his love that she has not the courage to do so and becomes his wife without letting him know. Her married life is blissfully happy, filled with the love of her husband and of a dear little golden-haired boy with which she is blessed.

Three years after Heath's departure for Europe, he returns home. He hears of Towne's marriage and goes to see him at his country villa. When Nita recognizes him she almost collapses with terror and reveals all to her husband. He is furious and drives her from the house. She wanders away and soon loses her mind. Days afterward she strays back to the villa, only to die in the arms of her husband, not knowing that he has forgiven her. Their little boy stands near by, looking on with big, wondrous eyes.

General Film Company (Inc.)

200 Fifth Avenue, New York

PATHÉPLAY

IN TWO PARTS

Released Thursday, December 18th

¶ A STORY WITH A MORAL. A YOUNG DOCTOR PAUSES JUST IN TIME TO ESCAPE COMMITTING A GREAT WRONG. REFLECTION BRINGS HIS BETTER SELF TO THE FORE, AND THUS HE FINDS HAPPINESS WHERE HE WOULD HAVE FOUND REMORSE. A STRONG AND ABLY ACTED FILM.

"THE FINGER OF FATE"

EDISON

Peg o' the Movies

In Two Parts Released Friday, December 12th

A dramatization of James Oppenheim's story, which throws many good sidelights on the making of motion pictures. When Peg becomes a photo-player, Stephen, her lover, goes West in disgust. She develops into a star and is sent West to lead a large company. Stephen, tiring of the monotony of construction camp life, goes to a moving picture show and there sees Peg in the arms of the leading man. He is jealous, but fascinated and follows the film to the next town thirty miles away. While returning he encounters Peg and her company making an Indian picture. Because of his excellent horsemanship, they beg him to take part and he reluctantly consents for Peg's sake. But when he gets her up on his saddle he forgets her "cruelty" and rides out on the long trail with her.

COMING EDISON SINGLE REELS

*The Stolen Plans

Concerning the British Army's biplane plans.

Released Tuesday, December 9th.

Greedy George

(On the Same Reel.)

The Joining of the Oceans

The Panama Canal, October, 1913.

Released Wednesday, December 10th.

*The First Christmas

A magnificent presentation of the greatest event in Christian history.

Released Saturday, December 13th.

A Pious Undertaking

"Exhausted Eddie" steals the pies and saves the policeman's life.

Released Monday, December 15th.

*The Actress

She learns the depth of true love.

Released Tuesday, December 16th.

Falling in Love With Inez

It is strenuous work.

Released Wednesday, December 17th.

* One sheet.  One and three sheets.  One, three and six sheet posters by the Morgan Lithograph Co.

TRADE MARK
Thomas A. Edison
Makers of the Edison Kinetoscope
Type "D"

THOMAS A. EDISON, Inc.

239 Lakeside Avenue Orange, N. J.

LUBIN·FILMS

LOOK FOR OUR MULTIPLE PICTURES EVERY THURSDAY

"HYDRAULIC WORKS ON THE ADDA" 400 feet Thursday, December 11th
A demonstration of marvelous engineering.

---

"HIS BEST FRIEND" 1600 feet Thursday, December 11th
A beautiful comedy drama with a story of loyal friendship.

---

"A Son of His Father"

Two Reel

Released Thursday, December 18th

This is a very powerful melodramatic story of the Gambler's life. The taint of the father's profession develops in the son and comes near to wrecking the lives of both. Manhood, however, asserts itself, and an unworthy career is changed to honest endeavor which reunites a family and eventuates in domestic happiness. The beautifully constructed photoplay is a lesson which will be appreciated by those who enjoy the simple life.

"A SON OF HIS FATHER"

---

Five Releases Each Week

"THE HAZARD OF YOUTH" 1000 feet Tuesday, December 2nd
A pretty daughter rebels at her parents' meddling with her love affair.

---

"WHEN MOUNTAIN and VALLEY MEET" 2000 feet Thursday, Dec. 4th
A psychological romance, very intense and very beautiful.

---

"SOME ELOPERS" 400 feet Friday, December 5th
An elopement episode, which is an awful joke on the couple.

---

"AN INTERRUPTED COURTSHIP" 600 feet Friday, December 5th
Romance of an old couple who eventually win out.

---

"HER FATHER" 1000 feet Saturday, December 6th
A worthy love match comes near being wrecked by a drunken father.

---

"THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER" 1000 feet Monday, December 8th
A very dramatic French-Canadian Smugglers' tale with a beautiful love interest.

LUBIN Five-Color Posters, One, Three and Six Sheets.
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN

LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A

LUBIN

VITAGRAPH

"A GAME OF CARDS" Drama Monday, December 1st

A game of love decided by a game of cards. The winner is deserving of the prize, who makes him the happiest man on earth. S. Rankin Drew, Zena Keefe, Ned Finley, Rose Tapley, Mary Maurice and Kate Price are the all-star cast.

---

"THE WRECK" Drama, Special feature in 3 parts Tuesday, December 2d

Most powerful and Dramatic. In a Fearful Railroad Wreck, Carlyle expiates his terrible vengeance and jealousy. Harry Morey, E. K. Lincoln, Gladden James, Anita Stewart and Donald Hall, make up the Dramatis Personae.

---

"A PAIR OF PRODIGALS"
"THE COLISEUM OF ROME" Comedy and Topical Wednesday, December 3d

1. Sandy and Shorty dig for bait. Like the early birds, they catch the worm and get an automobile. They break all speed records. Robert Thornby and George Stanley are the pair. 2. The greatest Athletic Arena in the world.

---

"THE SWAN GIRL" Comedy-Drama Thursday, December 4th

She presents an attractive and pretty picture to her young admirer. He offends her pride and it brings him to a realization of her true character. Anita Stewart, E. K. Lincoln and Charles Kent constitute the cast.

---

"A LESSON IN JEALOUSY" Comedy-Drama Friday, December 5th

It is well taught and teems with fun. It looks serious to Mabel, but mighty funny to everybody else. SIDNEY DREW is the teacher, Harry Morey his assistant and Clara Kimball Young, the jealous wife.

---

"BEAUTY UNADORNED" Comedy, Special feature in 2 parts. Saturday, Dec. 6th

They are wonderfully and fearfully made up. Without wigs, false teeth and the rest of their falseness, they are a sorry sight. The revelation brings two loving souls together. SIDNEY DREW uncovers the plot, Clara Kimball Young and James Young are made happy. Ethel Lloyd and Temple Saxe are unmasked.

SIX A WEEK

| | |
|---|---|
| "'MID KENTUCKY HILLS"—Drama— | MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th. |
| "DECEPTION"—Comedy-Drama— | TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th. |
| "THAT SUIT AT TEN""PERFORMING LIONS" —Comedy and Topical— | WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th. |
| "SACRIFICE"—Drama— | THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th. |
| "THE LIFE-SAVER"—Comedy— | FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th. |
| "LOVE'S SUNSET"—Drama, Special Feature in two Parts— | SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th. |

The Vitagraph Company releases a special feature in two parts every Saturday, and a comedy every Wednesday and Friday.

---

Vitagraph one, three and six sheet posters — 7 x 9 photos of Vitagraph players.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA East 15th St. and Locust Ave.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

The Hunchback

Featuring ALICE JOYCE and TOM MOORE
in a powerful two part drama

The degenerate's diabolical cunning causes an heiress to consent to be his wife. His theft of another man's identity and, later, his desperate duel with the police brings this to a climax of tremendous interest.

Released Monday, December 15th. Special 1, 3 and 6-Sheet Posters.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

A Two Part Adaptation of Harriet Beecher Stowe's Immortal Story.

This superb adaptation of America's most popular play will coin money for shrewd exhibitors who book it. Eliza's escape across the ice; the death of little Eva; Topsy's impish pranks; Legree's brutality to Uncle Tom, will go straight to your patron's hearts.

Book this feature now.

Released Wednesday, December 17th.
Two Special 1-Sheet Posters, Also Special 3 and 6-Sheet Posters.

FRAYED FAGIN'S ADVENTURES

John E. Brennan as "Frayed Fagin," upsets a beehive as a joke. What happens when the bees and the angry farmer go after him creates laughs a-plenty.

on the same reel

ULSTER DAY AT BELFAST

The present agitation against Home Rule in Ulster, Ireland, makes this feature of timely interest. Other scenes show a thrilling lumber yard fire at London, exciting auto and horse races, etc.

Released Friday, December 19.

THE ELECTRICIAN'S HAZARD

The lawless mountaineer's desperate attempt to cause an electrician's death by electrocution, and the heroine's race to save the life of her lover make this feature tremendously exciting.

Released Saturday, December 20th.
Special 1 and 3-Sheet Posters.

NOTICE !

KALEM announces that its features for the regular program will always be of the same high standard as the releases for Exclusive Service.

TRADE KALEM MARK

Kalem Company
235-239 West 23d Street
NEW YORK

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr. .......... President
E. J. Chalmers .......... Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie .......... Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

Western Office—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .......... $3.00 per year
Canada .......... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (postpaid) .......... 4.00 per year

ADVERTISING RATES.
Display Advertising Rates made known on application.
Classified Advertising—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1218)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, December 6, 1913

Facts and Comments

THE tendency of the motion picture to diminish the patronage of the saloon is asserting itself with an ever-increasing ratio. There is a tone of surprise in some of the comments on this state of affairs. Our friends the moralists express their wonder, and our friends the editors mix curious observations with their praise. They find it difficult to believe that other men are very much like themselves and that the average man in town or country prefers an evening's rational entertainment to the sodden atmosphere of a saloon. People who work more than three hundred days out of three hundred and sixty-five crave relaxation, and if nothing else offers they will seek even the sorry change afforded by the saloon. Preaching to them is barren work, as a rule, but give them a better and cleaner plan of relaxation, something better suited to their dignity as human beings, and they will flock to it. Hence the retail selling of alcohol in varying mixtures and proportions is becoming less profitable every day. The community at large is the gainer. No one ever leaves a saloon with a refreshed and improved mind and with a higher range of thoughts, not to speak of the effect on the pocketbook. The man who looks at a few thousand feet of motion pictures carries away some pleasing recollection or perhaps a better opinion of the world. His vision may have been enlarged, his knowledge may have been widened. Perhaps he has caught a glimpse of himself as others see him which we are assured is a gift worth praying for. There is still a good deal of folly on the screen, but it is getting less, and a few grains of the precious sort are almost always present. Every dollar spent for motion pictures brings its returns to the commonwealth.

*

Let us hope, then, that the legislators of the country, prompted by an enlightened public sentiment, will realize this universal value of the motion picture and will legislate not against but in favor of it. Let us have the same privileges that are accorded to the press. The press even at its best can do no more for the public than the picture in motion, and the press just now is not always at its best. Any force that makes for sunnier homes and for empty jails and poorhouses is entitled to the attention of beneficent and constructive statesmanship. Above all things let there be an end of reckless and indiscriminate abuse and denunciation. We have one of the finest instruments for the promotion of humanizing influences; let us not condemn the instrument because it has at times been abused. Nor must we be satisfied with the negative virtue of stopping abuse; let us all turn to the task of making the pictures better and more interesting than ever.

* * *

THE acknowledged prestige of American-made films in the international market is due to two things, a cleaner and healthier tone and an ability to talk screen language. Screen language has the fastest grammar of any tongue. It tells more in one minute than a novel can unfold in an hour. The directors in the best American companies have solved the problem of transmitting ideas to the human mind through the medium of the screen. They waste no time. As soon as the spectator's mind has absorbed the salient point, they go on to the next scene. They work on the assumption that they are dealing with men, women and children of quick perception. The prejudice which exists against foreign-made films is largely due to the slower mental processes of the director. That is why so many foreign-made films seem padded to us. When we see a man angry or jealous or laboring under any strong emotion, we get the idea at once, and we do not have to see the angry or jealous man walking through two hundred-odd feet of scenery to be convinced of his state of mind. This lingering before the camera is fatal to that logical swiftness of action without which the average film drama becomes tiresome. This is by no means the opinion of experts alone. On the contrary, the average patron of the motion picture is able to detect padding without the slightest hesitation, and he is quite willing to let the exhibitor hear about it. Padding makes an American audience restless, impatient and often rebellious. A padded feature is born to die early. Padding kills interest and without interest the show is flat and stale to the spectator and unprofitable to the exhibitor.
unprofitable to the exhibitor. If an exhibitor is unfortunate enough to get four or five of these padded, long-drawn-out, so-called features, the injury to his reputation and the prestige of his theater is not easily calculated. Patrons will avoid a theater which seems to make a specialty of features which have only immoderate length to distinguish them from the old-fashioned single reel.

The Kinematographic Grocery.

By W. Stephen Bush

By the working of a curious law in economics, general prosperity often goes hand in hand with local decay. The moving picture art and industry is touching higher marks than ever before in its history; its moral tone is healthy, its artistic standards are high and the personnel of its exponents in all its manifold branches commands the respect of the community. It is natural that in this race toward nobler goals some are falling behind and are finally left on the roadside with nothing to remain of their former moving picture work but sad and unpleasant memories.

The exhibitor who wants to stay on top today must adjust himself to the changing conditions in the industry. He must develop his power of thinking. He must awaken his self-reliance into keen activity. The individual begins to count more than ever. The unthinking kind with no ability beyond the counting of small change and the hanging out of "good" paper is rapidly becoming extinct. These men feel the stress of new competition and find themselves unable to meet the new conditions. They thereupon give a most pathetic imitation of the well-known drowning man who overestimates the supporting power of a straw. Their straw is the premium.

The premium is the forerunner of the sheriff. Some years ago when taking a survey of moving picture conditions in an Eastern city I saw this cheering sign in the lobby of a motion picture theater: "Ice-cream given away free to the patrons of our show." It was a hot day and I went in and looked at the pictures and bravely tasted the ice-cream. When I came out I was willing to make an affidavit that the proprietor was selling ice-cream under false pretenses.

Recently there have been sporadic outbreaks of the premium exhibitor. Our Chicago correspondent relates an incident in a Western city, where patrons were lured into the theaters by offers of cheap premiums. A sad state of affairs seems to prevail just now in Atlantic City, and as the trouble is symptomatic, an examination of the status of the various patients may be of general interest.

We quote from a local paper:

> Twenty baskets of vegetables, as usual, will be awarded tonight, each basket containing the choicest fruit, chicken, meat, provisions, canned goods, vegetables, etc., making an ideal Sunday dinner. The unusually attractive display of these articles in the lobby of the theater is worthy of mention, particularly the great pyramid arrangement of canned goods.

This is not a reading notice setting forth the attractions of an establishment dealing in provisions; nor is it, on the other hand, an advertisement explaining the merits of a motion picture theater. It is the regular announcement of the kinematographic grocery.

What do the patrons care about the quality of the pictures? They come, of course, to invest a nickel for the privilege of drawing lots for one of these baskets. The "great pyramid arrangement of canned goods" is a triumph of progressive kinematography. In addition to a chance at one of the baskets the patrons of this theater are regaled with ten reels of motion pictures. Scarcely have the patrons recovered from the pleasant surprises prepared for them in Sunday dinner baskets when another ten-reel program is offered to them with this extra inducement: "Everybody Receives a Gift of Value." In addition, "Twenty Canary Birds in Wicker Cages" will be distributed, and there will be "a new way of making the awards—a real surprise." Now listen to this wonderful advertisement:

> In Addition to Our Regular > PROGRAM OF HIGH-CLASS PHOTOPLAYS
>
> MARKET NIGHT TONIGHT
> The Unique and Original Feature Attraction
>
> 20 BASKETS OF VEGETABLES GIVEN AWAY

Another moribund theater in the city by the sea followed suit and began to distribute gold pieces, whereupon the original Premium John felt himself put upon his mettle and made the following counter offer: "Come to the —— Theater and get 10 Hams, 10 lbs. Mocha Coffee, 10 Bags of ——'s Best Flour."

The decent exhibitors of Atlantic City, laudably zealous for the good name of their profession, have retained attorneys to prosecute the prize-distributing theater owners under the New Jersey law which makes the holding of a lottery a misdemeanor. As the kinematographic grocers issue coupons with every ticket, and as the awarding of the prizes takes place by lot, there is little doubt that the end of this ridiculous nuisance is in sight.

It makes, however, very little difference what the courts will do or will not do in this matter. A law much stronger than any statute on the Jersey books has decreed the failure of the kinematographic grocer. The law we are speaking of is as old as Nature herself, and has been christened by the late Charles Darwin "the survival of the fittest." A man may be a successful grocer or butcher or bird dealer or restaurant keeper and a successful moving picture man at the same time. Such a thing is possible if not probable, but unless there is a complete and sweeping revolution in the amusement world it will be impossible in the future as it has always been impossible in the past, to conduct a theater and a grocery in the same place and at the same time. A man who cannot see this invites the ridicule of the community and that is more deadly than the most drastic law could be to all such cheap John schemes. If an exhibitor cannot meet the competition in brains, no amount of groceries and canary birds will help him.

If he has not ability enough to select a good program, he cannot beat his abler competitor by offering to give away mutton chops to the holders of the lucky tickets. If his music is poor and his projection bad, the public will not forgive him because he distributes two dollars' worth of fruit after the show. If he pays fifteen dollars for fifteen reels, presents of a plate of soup and a dish of beans will not save him from membership in the D. and O. Club. The exhibition of motion pictures is not a charity or a semi-eleemosynary institution, but an honorable, legitimate calling resting on a solid business basis.

The Moving Picture World is indebted to the correspondent who sent us the information, which is of such great interest to moving picture men everywhere. Our correspondent says: "It make me feel sad to see a business like ours is today dragged into the mire and held up to ridicule. . . . Of course, the outcome will be as it always is in cases of this kind. This man confesses he is a failure and will eventually pack up his grip and disappear from town."

We and all other friends of the motion picture agree with him most heartily. There is no room in the exhibiting ranks for the kinematographic groceryman.

Realism.

By Louis Reeves Harrison

"MY TRUTH is the truth," declares the radical egoist, and so each individual creates his own picture of the world.

The screen story resembles the novel more than the stage performance in structure and treatment. It starts from a definite point and presents a natural progress from one division of the subject to another, and on account of peculiarities of technic the transformation of stage version to that of the screen is attended, in reverse order, with the difficulties met with in making over a novel into a play. The web must be disentangled in the latter. In the photodrama, as in the work of fiction, everything begins with the anterior causes and proceeds straight through a series of events to the consequences.

We are not, therefore, dealing with the medium that is hampered by theatric conventions, where an appearance of reality may be attempted by settings and character drawing, no matter how improbable the plot. It takes skilled craftsmen to formulate an aspect of existence for stage presentation, yet, with all their skill and the broad view that comes from its employment, noted playwrights often fail to grasp the method of screen presentation, just as distinguished novelists have that of the stage. The dramatist may even be hampered by the methods he has followed, so widely divergent are the two kinds of production known as drama and photoplay. The same situation and characters may be suitable for both, but the readjustment presents such vital differences that no one of intelligence and experience in both doubts today that the two are radically distinct, each having a series of laws unto itself. Each is a distinct art.

One of the natural endowments of motion-picture production is that of utilizing all that is in actual motion on earth for settings. Backgrounds may be of the waving trees, the sparkling streams, the rolling waves, the floating clouds, the restless ebb and flow of humanity. The presentment of what is inherent, and not acquired, is a gift at the birth of the art. It has a world of scenic beauty already arranged by a master painter to select from, yet the direct appeal of all this realism is often impaired by the injection of what is theatrical and inappropriate.

Some of adaptations from stage plays that were intended to make a big splash this year exhibit characters decked out in tawdry extravagances of the wardrobe-room performing in the open. Gypsies are arrayed in silks and satins while encamped by the roadside, with a rail fence in evidence; the village maiden steps forth from a shack in lace cap, embroidered panniers, silk stockings and satin slippers with cut steel buckles at five dollars per; the bandits carry tin firearms with funnel-shaped muzzles, the stage blunderbuss kind. Less amusing, though quite as inexcusable, is the daubing of human integument for outdoor scenes.

One fine photoplay concerned a native woodcutter and his daughter. He sat at the door of their mountain cabin with a half pound of grease paint on his face and two great patches of black under his brows. She came out in a tattered one-piece garment of bathing suit proportions and carried a bucket to the spring for water. Was she a nut-brown mountain maid? The conspicuous portions of her anatomy, bare feet, legs, arms, neck and face, all gave the impression that she had just taken a bath in a tub full of whitewash, or had made up for a statue of Galatea. Small wonder the hero started when he laid eyes on her.

These instances are quoted to illustrate a tendency both directors and actors have brought into the new art from the older one. Not so clearly visible in other instances is this lack of sensing what is appropriate and in harmony with the subject. In converting novels and stage plays to screen uses it would seem, in a large number of cases, as though no very careful thought had been given to the suitability of one form of production for the other. The author may hold us by his brilliant style until his narrative is under way; the actor may engage our attention by his voice or his personality until the plot unfolds; there must be interesting characterization or pertinent incident very early in the screen portrayal to satisfy the audience. Some strong note in the controlling theme must be sounded at the opening.

The dramatist is sometimes careful not to do this very thing at the outset, and for the best of reasons; the novelist must of necessity merely glimpse the surface flow before the deep undercurrents are penetrated; the mixed audience at the picture show is in darkness enough and must be enlightened as to the line of dramatic interest at the earliest possible moment. The song or strain of melody that is given its fullest expression at an intense moment of grand opera must be indicated in the overture. The great art of doing this is the one thing least considered by a great many studio managers who are sincerely desirous, and even anxious to turn out great photodramas.

Realism of "atmosphere" in moving pictures is already provided. It is only a matter of good sense and good taste to preserve it. Realism is easily grasped by the interpreters, the actors, soon after they cast away their footlight habits. Almost enough is provided when the characters and the backgrounds are what the swaddling critic calls "true to life." There realism may cease if it fails to stir the imagination, if it does not give us thoughts and emotions worth entertaining. Poorly constructed adaptations may be realistic enough in their fidelity to their original form and yet be flat, stale and unprofitable. Realism or romanticism—who shall indicate the dividing line?—we must be made to see promptly and clearly, to feel deeply and to think over what has been presented to our minds.

The photodrama's indispensable quality is that it shall grip interest at the outset and hold it to the end.

Reasoning from experiences both bitter and pleasant, from watching many ambitious products without acquiring acute mental indigestion, it seems to me that the rules of other arts can not be arbitrarily applied to this one. Its realism is entirely its own. No other art so exactly portrays what is real, and this one does it without effort. With this tremendous advantage added to that of direct appeal and facility of distribution to all parts of the world, it would appear that its proper development is all that stands between it and success beyond our fondest dreams.

It will be the greatest of all arts if it gives enduring happiness to the largest number of people.

Some aspects of realism, more or less of a myth so far as the art of telling stories of human experiences are concerned, may well be eliminated in this new art, but all that will be decided in the terrific competition promised for 1914.

"My truth is the truth," declares the radical egoist, and so each individual creates his own picture of the world.

"Thor, Lord of the Jungle" (Selig)

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

IN "Thor, Lord of the Jungle," the Selig wild animal series have reached an eminence not hitherto attained. Indeed, the term "wild animal" is not truly expressive of the range and values of this remarkable three-reel film subject, in which a mighty lion figures prominently and thrillingly. Close analysis will reveal that the story does not depend on the lord of the jungle as its mainstay. The animal is only a factor in the equation, in which love, jealousy, rascality and adventure are strongly and intimately combined.

James Oliver Curwood is the author of the scenario. He has written the story so that the human element holds the prevailing interest, while here and there the brute element forms big exclamation points during the story's unraveling, and also appeals to us with that peculiar pathos born of the instinct which teaches us that all forms of life are related to our own.

The contrasting of the fate of Thor, imprisoned for the first time in an iron cage, with that of Jan Karl—the young African farmhand, suffering for the first time from despairing love—under the subtitle "Two strong hearts are broken," really startles one by the sympathy aroused. And this sympathy for wild animal life grows stronger as the story advances. Gene Brant, friendless in far off America, to which she has been lured by the promise of being a circus queen, finds consolation beside the cage of Thor, like herself consumed by a longing for the veldts and jungles of Central Africa.

The climax of this strange feeling comes when Gene returns home, bringing back Thor on the same ship and transporting him across the plains to his native haunts. What a feeling of elation and satisfaction fills our hearts when Gene, brimful of happiness, as she stands beside Jan on her wedding day, opens the door of the cage and Thor bounds forth into freedom and his own! Surely there is education of the right kind in these three reels—the creation of a sympathy for the wild beasts of the forest, which are fulfilling their destiny as we are fulfilling ours. The killing instinct, merely for the sake of killing, must have been considered disgraceful by our ancestors of the stone age!

Miss Kathlyn Williams, who is gifted in a rare way with the art of gaining the friendship of wild animals, is an attractive and striking personality in this fine subject. She has given us, in Gene Brant, one of her best characterizations. She has succeeded in getting outside of civilization and in giving us a girl of the African wilds—unsophisticated, with fitful temper and seeming artificiality, but always true to the core when the occasion calls for all that is best in her latent make-up. Miss Williams looks younger and more sylph-like than ever; and, still better, is so in the part of winsome Gene Brant.

Charles Clary gives a virile impersonation of Henry Barlum, the young American circus owner and hunter. One of the best evidences of his strength in the part is suggested by the hostility unconsiously created in the mind of the spectator. Thomas Santschi, as Jan Karl; Lafayette McKee, as John Brant (father of Gene), and William Holland, as "Billie," the hunchback of the circus, all merit praise that space forbids expressing.

John Brant, his only daughter, Gene, and Jan Karl, a farmhand, live on a farm in Central Africa, near the border of the jungle. The monotony of their lives is stirred by the arrival in the neighborhood of a hunting party, about to enter the jungle to secure wild animals for an American circus. Henry Barlum, the young circus owner, heads the party. He prevails on old John Brant to accompany him on the trip, and, in turn, agrees that Gene and Jan Karl shall join the expedition.

Jan and Gene are "as good as engaged," as the saying goes. Young Barlum pays marked attention to Gene as they journey, and Jan grows jealous. One day he comes on the young people when Barlum is trying to force a kiss from Gene. In the trial of strength that follows, Barlum is worsted. Gene, who loves Jan, does not show that worthy due appreciation of his interference, with the result that he leaves the expedition for the Transvaal mines.

Next day a noble, shaggy-maned lion is caught. He is of such dignified mien and enormous size that he is named Thor, lord of the jungle. Other wild animals are secured and the party starts on the return journey. When the Brant farm is reached, Barlum gains the consent of Gene to accompany him to America, where he promises to make her queen of the circus. John Brant strongly opposes Gene's departure; but in vain.

On the voyage to America, Gene discovers the true character of Barlum. He is both gambler and drunkard, and attempts to take liberties with her. On her arrival in America, she is penniless, and is forced to work in the Barlum circus, where she learns still more of the owner's vicious nature. Her mail is secretly destroyed by Barlum and she believes herself forgotten and forlorn.

Scene from "Thor, Lord of the Jungle" (Selig).

Barlum hatches a plot for her undoing, but "Billie," the hunchback, who is devoted to Gene, discovers it and saves her. He is aware that Gene spends much of her spare time near Thor's cage, and he plans so that Barlum will join her there on a certain night. In the meantime, he files the bars of the big lion's cage, shortly before the meeting. Gene is ignorant of "Billie's" plans, and is shocked when Barlum appears in a drunken state and attempts to attack her. She screams, and Thor breaks through the half severed bars and kills his master.

The circus authorities decide on killing Thor; but Gene begs for his life. After much wrangling they consent and Thor accompanies Gene back to Africa and freedom.

This subject has been listed for Exclusive Service, and the release date will be announced by the General Film Co.

"Love's Sunset."

Two-Reel Vitagraph Feature.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

ONE of the finest Vitagraph "Life Portrayals" shown in a long time. The sum of its merits and the fact that it is beautifully rounded out without a foot of padding gives this photodrama very high rank. The motive, that of a vexed social problem—by motive I mean the prevailing idea—is given powerful expression. That women are really the great and heroic lovers is just beginning to dawn on the average man's comprehension. That the depth and strength of woman's love nature is her greatest weakness, has long been known by those who have abused and ill-treated her, but with the broader generosity of enlightenment, men are becoming more tender, they are actually beginning to realize that the errors of inexperience may operate for good just as well in one sex as in the other. "Love's Sunset" puts the situation so strongly that the play is bound to become a civilizing factor.

Scene from "Love's Sunset" (Vitagraph).

The play itself and the able way in which its course is directed are largely the results of Clara Kimball Young's refined interpretation of the leading part. That refinement might seem to be almost a fault at times, especially in the earlier scenes, when she impersonates a cabaret dancer—her mind is so obviously free from what is coarse or debasing—but it is the young girl's essence of purity that completely wins sympathy for her. She is as much a creature of circumstances as most of us are—we only acclaim full responsibility for our acts when accidents of birth and surroundings have placed us upon one or another pinnacle of success. We then become self-appointed examples for others.

All the sweetness in human nature is stirred when this girl, having been deserted by the man who should have protected the flower he plucked, marries and passes over the line that makes womanhood sacred for all time, motherhood. She is in the midst of her struggle when she attracts and weds a man of high ideals, an artist who loves her well but with the exactions of primitive husbands. She and her child bring perfect joy into his sombre existence—they round out and complete it—she is a devoted mother and fond wife, but your old-fashioned gentleman never knew when he was well off. He was merely happy in his supreme egotism.

Now your old-fashioned gentleman regarded his wife as his possession. Praise her, you flatter his good taste. The artist is so enchanted with the selection he has made that he paints a masterpiece of mother and child at play in the garden.

Enter "The Other Man." He means well, but his conduct is that of a rank outsider, for he stumbles into a betrayal that wrecks the lives of father, mother and child. The infuriated artist, mad with self-righteous rage, turns his wife into the street, and she loses her mental balance when deprived of her child. No nobler mother, no sweeter wife than she, yet the keenest agony a woman's mind can suffer is inflicted upon her because she has tried to be all God intended her to be. The lesson involved is one of today and one that will not be soon forgotten, so strongly is it put in this exquisite photodrama.

Given a story of such intense sympathetic motive, well framed, admirably directed, with such a cast as Clara Kimball Young, Earle Williams, Darwin Karr and a delightful baby boy, the only possible result is unqualified success.

ETHEL GRANDIN.

Petite Ethel Grandin! I confess that I fell a victim to her charms the first time my eye fastened upon her in a screen play, and that was a long time ago. But I should worry! Thousands and then some have and are doing the same thing every day. The little lady is referred to as an "Imp." She stars in Imp productions, and there is a paradox for you.

Ethel Grandin.

"You must have started pretty young," I ventured when introduced to her recently.

"If you call 'seven years' young, I did," she responded with that bewitching smile of hers. "Joseph Jefferson was my first tutor. I played a child's part, not much to be sure, in his 'Rip Van Winkle.' That was ——well you don't wish me to confess how many years ago that was, do you."

No, I did not. I could make a pretty good guess, however, I know she has not yet slipped past the twenty mark. "Pretty young for a film star" do I hear you say? What difference does it make whether a person is a star at seven or seventy, so long as she is worthy of it? And Miss Grandin is. Besides the capacity for heart-breaking work, Miss Grandin has a wonderful talent for acting. It's largely natural, too.

"I played a child's part with Andrew Mack," she said, "and then I spent a season with Edna May. Later I was with Richard Golden in vaudeville. Then came three years with Chauncey Olcott and another with Cecille Spooner. Of course, I adore screen work, else I would not be in it."

Miss Grandin was one of the original Imp girls, following Mary Pickford with King Baggot. Those who have seen her on the screen will realize that she must be realizing ambition. Her work in "Traffic In Souls," the tremendous six reel feature put on by the Universal, was a revelation to many. X. Y. Z.

GEORGE GOULD BUYS A "MIRROR SCREEN."

George Gould, the railroad man of Lakewood, N. J., through a New York agent of the Mirror Screen Company, J. H. Hallberg, has purchased a "Mirror Screen" for his private theater in his fine residence at Lakewood, N. J. The screen is one of the new snow-white prismed surfaces which gives perfect distribution of the light in every direction for the seats close up as well as those on the side.

"The Price of Human Lives."

An Edison One-Reel Subject—The Red Cross Seal Story for 1913.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THIS is a photodrama that will bring new people to any moving picture theater where it is shown and materially increase box office receipts. It strikes straight at an evil which is entering millions of homes in the guise of a blessing. There are no meaner men on earth than many who are directly interested in the manufacture and sale of patent medicines. They are so crooked at heart and so criminal of intent that they commit more murders than all the gunmen, Mexicans, paranoiacs and infanticides put together, and they are far more dangerous because they are incurables.

Scene from "The Price of Human Lives" (Edison).

A noble organization, The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, has a marvelously vigorous publicity department, with tendrils reaching out into nearly all the towns where such pictures as "The Price of Human Lives" will be shown, and their agents create an advance interest in such releases that is very profitable to the exhibitor. Part of this active campaign is directed against fake consumption cures that fall into the hands of the weak and helpless, those who are drudging their sad lives away and so incapacitated by weakness and bitter struggle that they are among the first victims of the patent-medicine crook.

Scene from "The Price of Human Lives" (Edison).

For the sake of extracting money from some of the weakest and most unhappy human beings on earth, these makers of fake remedies for tuberculosis and throat troubles misdirect their victims until the latter are too far gone for legitimate treatment. It is obtaining money under false pretences; it is an insidious and atrocious method of destroying human life, yet this criminal form of degeneracy is permitted to flourish in our midst unmolested.

Epes Winthrop Sargent has so constructed this photodrama that it drives straight at the question of foisting on the people a lot of cheap and wretched compounds through druggists and by other means, fraudulent remedies that cheat those, who can least afford it, out of millions annually, but he might as well have gone on with two or more reels and contrasted these methods with those of intelligent men and women engaged in fighting the Great White Plague. There is not enough of play. The subject is a tremendous one, and it is to be hoped that Sargent will handle it again in much larger form.

The association co-operating in the production is supported in anti-tuberculosis work all over the United States by the sale of Red Cross Seals for use on the reverse side of domestic mail matter, on the backs of letters and packages, on the face of checks, bills and legal documents, and the receipts from sales of the seals amounted to over $400,000, last year, a marvelous charity, telling of deep-seated sympathy in the generous American heart for those the patent-medicine vendors help to destroy. This is a very remarkable expression of opinion.

What is the deep significance of this utter disregard of human life on the part of unscrupulous vendors of medicine and the gentle opposition of those whose time and attention are given largely to the alleviation of suffering and to race betterment? There are two elements of evil action and noble reaction that seem to furnish almost unlimited material for intense drama of today. The clash of two forces, that established and that to come, is indicated. It is up to Mr. Sargent and other skilled dramatists to give further enlightenment on a question about which there exists great confusion of mind.

---

NEW ENGLAND PICTURE PERSONALITIES.

It is most fitting that the subject of this sketch, Winfield H. Bradley, should form one of the series of "New England Picture Personalities," as he is known to the trade in every city, town and hamlet in that territory, in his capacity as general manager of the Mutual Film Corporation of Massachusetts, with offices in Boston, Springfield and Waterville, Maine.

Winfield H. Bradley.

It was in 1906 that Mr. Bradley turned to the picture as his life business, when he became associated with Miles Brothers. After spending considerable time in the New York offices of this concern, Mr. Bradley was sent to Washington, D. C., to open an exchange for Miles Brothers, which he managed until 1909. Immediately after this, Mr. Bradley opened the Paramount Film Exchange, in Washington, afterwards called the Washington Film Exchange. This, by the way, was the first "really and truly" Independent exchange opened in that city. In 1910, Mr. Bradley was forced to temporarily leave the industry, due to the pressure of personal affairs. However, he soon returned to the fold, and, in 1912, was at his desk as manager of the Mutual's Washington, D. C., office. In June, 1913, he was transferred to his present position which he "holds down" with ease, grace and precision. Mr. Bradley has earned a truly enviable reputation for himself in New England, not only as an astute business man, with his full share of the available trade, but as a fair-dealing, courteous gentleman. Mr. Bradley's intelligent understanding of the needs of exhibitors, plus his undoubted willingness to lend full co-operation, have been much appreciated. But he sees the exhibiting end from the "inside looking out," as he owned the Idle Hour Theater, on 14th Street, Washington, in 1908, now called the Angelo theater, and also managed the Alexandria, Virginia, opera House, as well as being receiver for the Gem Theater, Washington, in 1907. He also had an interest in the Masonic Auditorium, one of the finest picture theaters in Washington, and the only one charging 10 cents admission for straight photoplays. He later sold out to his partner, Ned Stein. This education of Mr. Bradley's stands him in very good stead, as he is often able to give helpful suggestions and hints to his customers. With him, as always, an on-the-level policy wins out, and the Mutual Film Corporation of Massachusetts is a bee hive of activity. "W. H." richly deserves his success.

"Photography Poor."

By Epes Winthrop Sargent.

EVERY week those two words are seen, not once but several times, in the criticisms of this and other papers, and each time it "gets the goat" of the camera man who made the negative. "Photography poor," naturally suggests a poor photographer, but it does not, in a majority of the cases, mean the man who exposed the negative film, though it cannot be doubted that many believe that this is what is meant.

A critic is selected because of his ability to judge the various factors that go to make a film production successful or a failure. He must know plot values, be able to judge acting and direction and be able to tell whether the photographic quality is good or bad, but he cannot be expected to go back of what is on the screen. He cannot, for example, say that the poorness of the story is due to the quality of the script, the inability of the director to "get it over," or poor judgment shown in the cutting-room. He can only see—and say—that the story is poor without placing the blame.

It is the same way with the photography. The picture on the screen is bad. If it is out of focus he can tell from the leaders whether it is the projection machine or the film itself. If the leaders are sharp the film is out of focus. If the leaders, too, are blurred, the trouble is with the projection operator. Back of this is it difficult to go. It may be that the camera was out of focus, or, more likely, that the printing machine needed attention. The critic can only say that the picture was out of focus—and the cameraman may get the undeserved blame.

In the same way the critic can only see that the photographic quality is poor. It may be the fault of the cameraman, the developing room, the director, or even the scene painter, but the one demonstrable fact is that the photography is poor. A properly exposed film may have been under or over-developed, the film may have been under or over-exposed, the director may have selected a poor viewpoint or the scenic artist may have erred with his colors. It would take a mighty expert photographer to locate the exact trouble on the screen, and the probability is that he would be a mighty poor critic of plot and action. He would see only the photography.

One great trouble seems to be the unwillingness of the studio heads to accept suggestion. The scene painter, the cameraman, the property man are all subordinates of the directing staff, and their suggestions are resented, and, in turn, these, among themselves, resent the suggestions of each other. The matter is plainly put in this extract from a letter from one of the star cameramen:

> Are there any cameramen who can agree with the scenic artist? If there is one, I should like to shake his hand and tell him he has a jewel to work with and to stick to him. I have failed to find the artist who will draw away a moment from his so-called school of fixed colors and listen to a few wise words from the cameraman who knows just a few tricks in regard to painting interiors from a photographic viewpoint; those color tricks that give soft detail to the shadows, make columns white that are not painted white, tones that will give depth to sets and keep down the contrasts that pack up the high lights and make faces nothing but pieces of chalk.

We are mercifully past the day of drop white and lampblack, bue we are still a long way from the school of photographic scene painting. Most studio painters have come from the theater and have brought with them fixed ideas. These they have to modify in deference to the actinic laws, but there is scarcely a studio where the scenic artists and the cameramen work together to obtain the best effect, and many studios where there is actual and open warfare between the two. The artist proclaims his knowledge of the business and he sets out to obtain in black and white and the half tones the effect he aims at. Few of them know the little tricks that are possessed by those who paint backgrounds for portrait photographers to get just these effects.

In one studio some years ago a background painter was put on. His first set was a wretched thing to look at. It was a couple of weeks before any director had the courage to use it, but on the screen it was a revelation and a thing of joy. The painter lasted long enough to paint about three sets before he went back to the alcoholic ward and his lead was dropped, never to be picked up again by those who had worked with him, yet any good photographer can tell any artist who can be taught just what these tricks are. Of course, there are cameramen and cameramen, but each studio employs some who know.

Take it from another point of view, that of the director. Another cameraman writes:

> Directors who have some artistic taste will select their outdoor locations without consulting their cameraman. If the pictures are pretty all credit should be theirs. On the other hand, if the director has but small idea of light value, he could greatly improve many pictures by consulting with his cameraman as to the placement of the camera. Often a slight shift in foreground would give a better result while retaining the beautiful background, but the cameraman has been snubbed into not making suggestions. When the day comes that the director regards his cameraman as an artistic aide and not a crank turner, there will be better pictures.

If the focus is sharp and the exposure correctly timed, the cameraman has no further responsibility. His exposed film is sent to the factory for development and this and all subsequent processes are in the hands of the factory workers. "Photography poor" seldom means that the cameraman has failed in his work.

The many letters received from cameramen in this respect simply take up the question of the apportionment and correct placing of the blame where censure is due, but it raises a most important question—one that is vitally important to the manufacturer and all concerned, from the maker down to the man who pays his money to see the film. If co-operation will vastly better the product, why is it that there is not more co-operation?

The answer probably will be that there is co-operation, but this is not the fact. The director is jealous of any invasion of his authority, even from his employer. The subordinates, in turn, show the same trait. There is no real team work, no combination of forces and intelligences toward the common good. The director will not be advised by his cameraman; his scenic artist resents the suggestion as to his department; the property man declares he knows his business and will not be taught, and so through all the departments of a business that is founded on photography, the photographer has the smallest voice—the least to say. Why?

---

Hardin In New Job.

Old Edison Sales Agent Becomes Manager of Sales Department for the American Ambrosio Company.

One of the most conspicuous objects about the offices of the American Ambrosio Company, at 15 East 26th Street, New York City, last week was the stalwart form of Mr John Hardin, newly appointed sales manager for that concern. As noted in last weeks issue of the Moving Picture World, Mr. Hardin comes to the Ambrosio after nine years service in the sales department of the Edison Company, and is therefore well equipped for the task before him.

John Hardin.

It may not be generally known to the trade that Mr. Hardin got his first experience in the picture business as manager of the motion picture department of the big mail order house of Montgomery Ward & Co., of Chicago, back as far as 1898. In those days projection machines and small lengths of film were sold promiscuously to traveling exhibitors, who went from town to town giving entertainments in tents and town halls. In this position he became acquainted with George Kleine, then the largest importer of pictures in America, and when Mr. Kleine gave up the Chicago agency of the Edison in 1905, Mr. Hardin was recommended for the position of manager of the Chicago office of that company. He continued in that position until about two years ago when the office was discontinued, and came to Orange where he was engaged in the sales department. About a year ago he was appointed assistant to Mr. H. G. Plimpton, manager of negative productions at the studio in the Bronx, New York City.

Few men in the motion picture trade are better posted on the possibilities of the American market than Mr. Hardin. He enjoys a wide acquaintance among exhibitors and buyers of pictures and his ability as a salesman is a known quantity. Those who have become closely acquainted with him have found a warm hearted friend, generous to a fault and a keen and capable business man with an unbroken record for square dealing.

While Mr. Hardin's relations with the Edison Company were of the pleasantest and his going was accompanied with the best wishes of his associates, he looks forward to a broader field for his efforts in his new position.

Trans-Atlantic Housewarming.

Headquarters of the Universal Company's European Sales Agency Is Opened with Great Eclat.

LITTLE inklings of the doings of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in Europe have trickled through the mails for several weeks, but we had to wait till the indefatigable Joe Brandt got on the job to get the whole story of the transaction Joe sailed for Europe about two months ago, and all along the route he stopped long enough to drop postal cards telling us that he would be here in the good, old U. S. A. in time to eat Thanksgiving turkey, but the men who are running the business end of the Universal figured that Joe's peculiar abilities could be better utilized in England and the Continent, so they ordered otherwise. This made it necessary for him to get down to real business. Result: We have a letter from him telling all about the establishing of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, by which name the selling organization of the Universal is to be known in Europe, and its successful installation in sumptuous offices and the launching of a very creditable house organ to be known as the Trans-Atlantic Review.

Universal Office, London.

It has taken some time to get the home of the Trans-Atlantic in proper shape for occupancy, for such things have to be done right in London, but when all was ready Joe Brandt got on the job and arranged to exhibit all its luxurious appointments to a score of London pressmen. First, he gave his guests a view of some first-run pictures, and then he took them across the street to Frascati's Restaurant, the last word in that line in London, and regaled them with a fine dinner. The result was more than pleasing, as will presently appear.

Regarding the Trans-Atlantic headquarters, Mr. Brandt confides that it is the finest of the kind in London; that "every attention has been paid to matters affecting the ease of viewers, to methods for the speedy transaction of business and general facilities for patrons."

The reception to the press was held on November 5th. About fifty London newspapermen were invited and attended the opening of the new headquarters on Oxford Street, W. C., one of the busiest thoroughfares in the great metropolis. They were met in the lounge room, and welcomed by John D. Tippet, the managing director, and his staff, including Mr. Jack Avery, London manager; Mr. Joe Brandt, chief publicity manager; Mr. J. M. Downie, assistant manager; Mr. Lewis Roach, editor, and publicity manager; Mr. J. E. Pryde-Hughes, assistant editor; Mr. A. Henderson, sales manager, etc.

From the lounge, the party went through the offices to the magnificent private theater where they were shown several pictures, and thence across the road to Frascati's Restaurant, where a splendid dinner was prepared by London's foremost chef.

The lounge at the Trans-Atlantic Film Company's premises has no equal in the trade. It is a very large room, having more the appearance of a well-appointed club with its oak paneling, occasional tables, leather upholstered easy chairs and literature. The floor is thickly carpeted and the room is illuminated by subdued electric lights. Leading out of the lounge are Mr. Tippet's and Mr. Avery's offices, and at the back is the counting house.

The Lounge.

The theater on the first floor is, without doubt, the finest private theater in London, with seating accommodation for thirty buyers. Oak paneling extends half way up the walls, the upper part being covered with tapestries. Buyers regard it as the most comfortable viewing theater in town. The seats are large, leather, easy chairs, each provided with a writing pad and independent electric lamp. A pianist plays while the pictures are being shown.

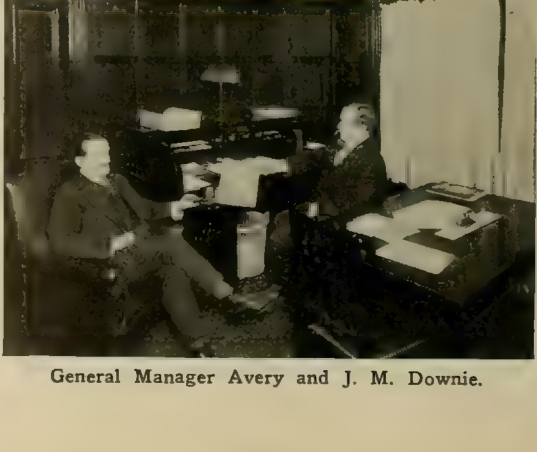
Among the pictures the pressmen saw was the famous Rex play, "Robinson Crusoe," from Defoe's narrative, and they were free with their compliments to the excellent projection secured with the two Simplex machines.

On either side of the main showing-room are two smaller theaters, one where films are edited, the other for buyers who may wish to view a special picture while the week's program is being shown. The sales offices are on this floor, while the publicity department and poster rooms are on the third floor.

It was about 7:30 P. M. when the guests filed across to Frascati's to the dinner, at which Mr. Tippet presided, supported by Mr. Low Warren, of the Kinematograph and Lantern Weekly, in the vice-chair.

The dinner was well served and the function generally was of the happiest nature. A hearty welcome was extended to the guests by the chairman and other members of the firm, and they were toasted with sincere remarks concerning the integrity and power of the British press. There were further toasts, that of "The Trans-Atlantic Film Company" being accorded musical honors.

Publicity Department—Joe Brandt, Mgr. and Lewis Roach.



General Manager Avery and J. M. Downie.

Reception by the Press.

The whole press dealt with the housewarming and general features of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company at some length, and in warm terms. The following are a few extracts:

"There is a luxuriously appointed theater . . . where film buyers may come and select from 20,000 feet of different film subjects weekly."—Daily Telegraph.

"An idea of the vast growth of the cinema in this country and of the immense organization and equipment . . . was explained by Mr. John D. Tippet . . . at a dinner given last night to celebrate the openinf of the Trans-Atlantic Film Co.—Westminster Gasette.

"A new era in the history of the cinematography was marked yesterday by the inauguration of the Universal House."—Daily Express.

"The advance of the cinematograph business is illustrated by the opening today of a new six-story building in Oxford Street."—Evening News.

The Projection Theater.

"British customers will find at Universal House that business can be carried on in the pleasantest surroundings."—Referee.

"The large establishment opened last night by the Trans-Atlantic Film Co. . . . is a striking demonstration of the steady growth of this industry."—Pall Mall Gazette.

"The Company have determined to study the interest and comfort of their patrons in every possible way."—Evening Standard.

"How immense an organization is necessary . . . is evidenced by the advent in England of the Trans-Atlantic Film Co."—Daily Citizen.

"A magnificently appointed theater . . . was opened in Oxford Street last evening."—The Standard.

"A visit to Universal House, 37-39 Oxford Street, which the Trans-Atlantic Film Co. have just opened, is confidently recommended."—Sunday times.

"The premises are of imposing character in one of London's busiest thoroughfares . . . commanding instant attention . . . Admiration was expressed generally at the excellent arrangements."—Kineamatograph & Lantern Weekly.

"Welcome."—Cinema.

"The fine new home of the Trans-Atlantic Film Co."—Bioscope.

"The guests being eventually shown into a projection room which is one of the most complete of its kind to be seen anywhere."—Brixton & Lambeth Gazette.

LACLEDE WESTERN FEATURES.

Charles (Feature) Abrams is acting as general manager of the Lloyds Films Inc., who are releasing Laclede Western Features. The first subject of this company is "The Pale Faced Squaw," in three reels. The first print of this subject recently arrived and its presentation in the projection room of the Exclusive Supply Corporation brought many favorable comments. It will be followed semi-monthly by other three reel western features. The office of the Films Lloyds is on the tenth floor of the Candler Building, 220 W. 42d Street.

SNOW FALLS FOR FIELDING.

Romaine Fielding, known in film circles as "Four in One" actor, author, director and manager, demonstrated his resourcefulness last week when a snowstorm struck the Mexican village where he now hangs his hat. Fielding was in the midst of a three reel picture when the storm broke. Keyed to his highest pitch, the idea came to Fielding to use the storm that had threatened to postpone his work. Calling his cameramen and company together, they set out for the mountains a few miles away. On the way over Fielding mapped out an entirely new and original two-part drama and started the players to work in their roles. The next day, as is the rule in this land of sunshine and flowers, the snow was gone and the wild flowers bloomed as before. The play was finished with this beautiful background, and will soon be released as "When Mountain and Valley Meet."

"THANHOUSER KID" NO LONGER.

Marie Eline, known since the inception of the Thanhouser Company as "The Thanhouser Kid," has grown out of the freak-name class. C. J. Hite has transferred her to his Princess Films and requested that she use her real name like a regular grown-up. So it's Marie Eline now for the first of the "kids." The little lady was about six when she joined the Thanhouser forces and is nearly eleven now, an age wherein she feels the dignity of her years. She is a featured player in the Princess, with Muriel Ostriche and Boyd Marshall. Miss Ostriche was likewise a "child wonder" in her time, but Mr. Marshall never acted in his youth, having been an office boy, which is real work.

LIFE ISN'T ALL SUNSHINE.

Miss Jean Darnell, of the Thanhouser Company, is sick in the German Hospital at 77th St. between Park and Lexington Aves., and would be pleased to hear from anyone in the business. Any courtesy that may be shown will be greatly appreciated by her.

EDWARD COXEN.

"A good looking, virile young man, a manly lover, and thoroughly at home on horseback" as James McQuade writes of him. He was born in London and as an infant made the voyage to America in company with his parents. They journeyed on to San Francisco, California, where he secured his education.

He spent some time at Berkeley College and then launched out on a commercial career. From this he drifted into prospecting and took up civil engineering, and determined finally to follow the bent of his heart and seek the footlights. In 1906 he spoke his first line at the Majestic Theater, San Francisco. After the big fire there he played in "Ye Liberty," at Oakland, California, and then played in stock.

During the past two years Mr. Coxen has appeared in quite a number of American releases. He has distinguished himself in quite a number of "Flying A" feature subjects such as: "The Ghost of the Hacienda," "Crooks and Credulous," "In Three Hours," "The Drummer's Honeymoon," and in "The Trail of the Lost Chord" he carries the lead with honors.

"The Jew's Christmas."

The Smalleys Produce a Three-Part Rex, Unusual in Conception and Bold in Execution.

By George Blaisdell.

A TITLE that is descriptive and also striking is the aim of writers and producers of plays. It will be conceded by those who see this unusual and interesting three-reel production that the Smalleys have been happy in the selection of "The Jew's Christmas" as the name for this drama. It describes and it strikes. It requires more than boldness on the part of an author to select as a theme for a film production the intermarriage of Jew and Gentile. There is necessary a sure and a skilled touch, the ability to prove to the satisfaction of the average man and woman that the human heart cannot always be restrained from the attainment of its chief desire by the stone walls of religion, formidable even though they be. If in this picture there be offense it should not be for the Christian. Undoubtedly there will be Jews who will look upon it with coldness, and some with reprobation, but they will be cold indeed if they do not find their interest held, their emotions stirred. It may be noted in passing that recently a large delegation of rabbis witnessed the projection of the picture. They were pleased with the story, with its treatment and with the fidelity with which the producers had followed Jewish ceremonies and customs, but were inclined to look with disfavor on the title.

Scene from "The Jews Christmas" (Rex).

Lois Weber writes the story and she co-operates with Mr. Smalley in its production. She plays the part of Leah, the daughter of Isaac, a rabbi, portrayed by Mr. Smalley. The rabbi regrets that in his new home in the Western World his son and daughter have to work on the Jewish Sabbath. The children do not feel for all the ideas of their parent the regard that should be entertained by an orthodox Jew. The daughter is in love with a Christian, a floorwalker in a store where she is employed. Her father forbids her to bring him into the home. For a Jewish suitor whom she cares nothing about there is a warm welcome by the rabbi. As Isaac opens the pay envelope of Leah he discovers that there has been deducted from her wages a half-day's pay. Sam bursts into the room and informs his father that he has seen in the possession of the floorwalker the marriage certificate of the daughter. The father orders Leah out of his home. Later Sam, at a Jewish wedding, overcelebrates and comes home drunk. The stern rabbi upbraids him and Sam departs in anger, saying that he will return when the rabbi celebrates the Christians' Christmas.

Two years later Julian, the husband, falls before a car. His legs are taken off at the knees. It is the beginning of adversity that pursues the young couple and their little girl. Ten years later we find the crippled husband and wife earning a scanty living as makers of artificial flowers. Their rooms are in the same humble building where live the rabbi and Rachel, his wife. Eleanor, the daughter of Julian and Leah, does many little favors for the old rabbi, and he begins to melt toward the young Gentile. The growing affection is shown in a series of incidents filled with interest and pathos. The turning point comes when Eleanor complains to the kindly bearded old man that she never had a Christmas tree. Isaac hesitates. Then he takes his treasured Book and sells it for a dollar. He buys a tree and gives it to Eleanor. He does not know that it is his granddaughter or that Rachel and Leah have met and are looking to the child to reunite the family. The reconciliation comes around the tree. Sam has succeeded in business, and, with an armful of presents, comes to the home of his parents, transforming into a prophecy what he had intended a curse as he left the parental roof. When Isaac meets the mother of Eleanor and finds in her his daughter he stands aloof. But he clutches to his heart the granddaughter. The appeal in the eyes of all his family, now for the first time in a dozen years about him, is too strong. The tie of blood overbears the pride and prejudice of religion. Isaac goes to his daughter.

"The Jew's Christmas" is an intensely human story. It is a serious story. Insofar as it deals with Jewish manners and customs, it is educational in its scope. The acting is of the best, and this applies to the entire cast. Little Ella Hall, who plays Eleanor, is charming. She carries her role with a sympathy and intelligence that would do credit to an adult. Lule Warrenton is a motherly Rachel, in whom the maternal instinct is always uppermost. The part of Julian is well sustained, especially so in the scenes representing him as the crippled flowermaker. The production, which will be first exhibited December 18th, will make an especially good holiday release; and its interest will not be confined to the period of merrymaking.

---

"For the Family Honor."

The World Special Films Corporation Shows a Two-Reel Picture Filled with Strong Situations Finely Acted.

By George Blaisdell.

THE sub-title of this splendid two-part picture is "The Heart's Highway." It is a story of the heart—of several hearts, in fact. It is the old theme of a patrician mother refusing to recognize as the wife of her son the daughter of a professor, whose only claim to respect are the clear records of himself and his daughters, their share of the world's ordinary comforts and more than their allotment of brains. We see in this production what actors of the highest quality may do with a good story, one containing situations that stir the heart. There are four players in this cast who would stand out in any company. Miss Rose Sylvaire has the role of the young woman who leaves home in the country to follow to Paris a young man whom she has casually met—and with whom she has fallen in love. She leaves clandestinely. Charles Krauss is Jean, the young man. American picturegoers are seeing much of Mr. Krauss, and they are sure to be well served if they see even more of him. He is a player whose work grows on you. Miss Josette Andriot takes the part of Marie, the faithful sister of Blanche, whom she follows to the city at the behest of the father. Mr. Liabel is the professor, the father of the two girls. There is another player who is to be mentioned—Mr. Basseuil, who has the role of Pierre, the brother of the two girls, and who is the first to leave home for his studies in Paris.

Scene from "For the Family Honor" (World Special).

The opening scenes are in a snow-covered countryside. They are of the home of Professor Suger, his son and two daughters. The son goes to Paris, but his studies seem to take him more into the cafe life than into the universities. It is shortly after the going away of the young man that the daughter follows to Paris the man who has won her heart. She leaves a note to her father. Later Professor Suger directs Blanche to go to the metropolis in search of her sister. He fears the worst. Blanche finds her brother, but he has no knowledge of the sister. Pierre is set upon by thugs in revenge for an occurrence in the cafe. To the assistance of Pierre comes a pedestrian, who hands the younger man his card. Later Pierre and Blanche call on his benefactor. It proves to be Jean. Marie is in the room. It is a situation of unusual power. There is or has been nothing to indicate to the spectator that the two are man and wife. The presumption is that they are not. Such is the belief of Pierre and Blanche. The two men retire and leave the girls to themselves. Then Marie tells Blanche the two have been secretly wedded, and that they are waiting to overcome the opposition of Jean's mother. In the happiness of the moment it is decided that Jean shall immediately go to his mother and that Marie shall, with the two others, visit her father.

It is a happy meeting back in the country. Marie receives a letter from Jean that he is ill and for her to come to him. The proud professor angrily declares she shall not. Then he relents. Jean meanwhile has been having his disputes with his mother. The father follows Marie. At the bedside of the sick man all the conflicting elements meet. The mother is divided between maternal love and pride, but the bond of affection between the daughter-in-law and her son decide the cause. The stern old professor also melts.

"For the Family Honor" is a picture that will please any house. What the story will do when presented in a theater with all the accessories of music and surroundings to enhance the charm of the story and acting and setting it is not difficult to foresee. The photography is the Eclair's best. Not only is the picture, under review, one that may be praised without hesitation. The writer saw at the same time two other two-part pictures that are practically in the same category, both to be marketed by the World Special Films Corporation. They are "The Nihilist's Daughter," made by the Savoia Films, and "In the Fangs of Jealousy," by the Paris Eclair. The title of these are sensational; the pictures are not. The latter is played by many of the same actors as appear in "For the Family Honor," which fact is of itself a recommendation. One frequently sees a good two-reel subject; but to witness the consecutive projection of three unusually fine pictures is a rare pleasure.

POWERFUL ARGUMENT FOR CENSORSHIP.

The Motion Drama Company, of New York, has produced a six part subject entitled "The Stranglers of Paris," adapted, it is said, from the dramatization of Belot's famous novel of that title by David Belasco, which was presented on the dramatic stage some years ago by Charles Frohman. While the photography, scenic effects and acting in this production are praiseworthy, the picture presents one of the strongest arguments for censorship that we have yet witnessed. Reeking with the depiction of crime it will probably be thrown out in its entirety by every known board of censorship, official or otherwise. As a production it has not one redeeming feature and the exhibitor who will have the hardihood to offer it to his patrons will merit all the condemnation that its exhibition will certainly draw upon him.

Why a producer of motion pictures will, in these days of adverse criticism of pictures, fly in the face of public opinion is past understanding. Notwithstanding whatever sum the production of "The Stranglers of Paris" may have cost the Motion Drama Company, the best disposition that concern can make of it will be to destroy the negative and charge the whole transaction off to profit and loss. More than this we dare not trust ourselves to say.

A THREE REEL AMERICAN COMING.

Lorimer Johnston, one of the directors of the American Film Mfg. Co., at the Santa Barbara, California studios, has just started a three reel feature production.

The story is laid in America, and embraces the periods of 1860, 1880, 1900 and 1913. The parts are all played by the same people. The picture starts in 1900 and goes back to 1860, showing the cast in their younger days and then bringing all the characters up to the present day. It is a great psychological study, and gives great opportunity for wonderful characterizations.

Sydney Ayres, Harry Von Meter, Jack Richardson, Vivian Rich and Louise Lester all have parts that register with great strength.

This marks an epoch with the American Co., as it is the first big three reel yet done by the company, and its being entrusted to Director Lorimer Johnston for the initial venture, is a proof of the confidence the company has in his careful consideration of "picture values." The scenario is by Marc Edmund Jones and the title and release date will be announced shortly. This is a forerunner of the greater feature productions soon to follow.

"The Star of India."

An Interesting Feature in Four Parts Produced by Herbert Blache of the Solax Company.

MANY a story has been told of the theft of a sacred gem from some shrine of Buddha in India and the trail of death which has followed it to its restoration in the idol's eye. This theme has been seized by Mr. Herbert Blache and worked into an interesting motion picture story under the title "The Star of India," a four-part feature now ready for release. Lovers of melodrama can make no complaint, for there is no lack of thrills and sensations, and, we regret to record, certain scenes of violence that would better be omitted at this particular time when the question of censorship is being unduly agitated.

In point of photography and acting there is much in this subject to commend. The settings, interior and exterior, are good. The story is consistently told, though a bit overdrawn in spots. There are times when the situations appear to be forced, but these do not constitute glaring defects and may be passed without severe criticism.

Scene from "The Star of India" (Solax).

A brief resume of the story will be of interest: Captain Kenneth a British military attache, is invited to the palace of the rajah, some where in India and shown the priceless diamond, The Star of India, which reposes in the forehead of the statue of Buddha in the temple. He is told that it has been said of this jewel that whoever sees it conceives an insane desire to possess it. This proves true in the case of Captain Kenneth, for with much toil he tunnels his way to the temple, kills the guardian priest and makes way with the jewel, but in doing so he is bitten by a serpent and dies. Before he expires, however, he passes the gem on to an American engineer, Richard Dare, who brings it to America.

The engineer is followed by his hindoo servant who has seen the gem and is bitten by that fabled desire to own it. Dare shows it to his sweetheart, who quarrels with him because of that fatal desire. Dare's rival is also smitten by the power of the gem and a struggle for its possession is started.

Both the hindoo and Dare's rival employ the same gang of gunmen to help them gain possession of the jewel and the strife is furious and sanguine before the gang is finally disposed of and the gem returned to the British consul to be restored to its rightful place in the temple.

KALEM RE-ISSUES.

The Kalem Company contemplates re-issuing several of their pictures that were pronounced successes two and three years ago, notably "The Colleen Bawn," "Arrah Na-Pogue," "Rory O'Moore," etc., but before doing so would like to have an expression of opinion from exhibitors. Drop the Kalem Company a line and tell them whether or not you would like to run these pictures again.

"The Chinese Death Thorn."

The Kalem Company Produces a Two-Part Melodrama That Has Many Thrills and Is Well Staged.

By George Blaisdell.

IF THERE be a fear on the part of any exhibitor that the story behind this title is a tale of the Orient such as those of which we have surely had a plenty recently he may be reassured. It is a story of to-day and right here at home. It deals with the efforts of a young man under the blight of opium and evil companions to leave behind him his bad habits and associates and to travel the straight road. We are taken behind the scenes of an opium den, which is conducted in the interests of Moi Ling, who, among other activities, includes that of the headship of the Chinese crime syndicate. This may not possess precisely an alluring sound or prepossess one in favor of the picture, but the manner in which the story is presented, the way in which it is staged and acted, is so skillful that the observer is concerned not with the settings but over the human elements of the drama.

Scene from "The Chinese Death Thorn" (Kalem).

The honors of the production will go to William Herman West, the veteran actor who plays Moi Ling. It is a consummate portrayal he gives us of the villainous Oriental, with his "ways that are dark." The head of the crime syndicate is a masterful personality. George H. Melford, who produces the picture, has the role of Martin Avery, a man who causes his mother and sister much worry. His is a strong characterization. Jane Wolfe is the mother. Marin Sais is the daughter of the banker who, as a member of a slumming party, attracts the admiration of Moi and who is helped out of a dangerous situation by Martin, one of the victims of the Chinaman. Both women are at their best; more than this need not be said. There is an unusually large supplementary cast.

Martin Avery is in the power of Moi. Not only is he a habitue of his opium den, but as a member of the Chinaman's band he has committed a robbery and is sought by the police. Mildred, the daughter of a banker, out of gratitude for the assistance Martin has given her when she was threatened by Moi, has obtained for him a position in her father's bank. Moi discovers the young man and sends him word to call on him that night, or he will permit the police to share his information. Martin decides to call. There he refuses to have any part in a proposed plan to rob the bank. Through a trap-door he is dropped into the cellar. The bank is robbed. Martin's brother, who is the watchman of the institution, has found the remnants of the note written by Moi. With his sister on watch, he goes to find his brother. He enters the place of Moi as the Chinaman is counting the loot, but is trapped and bound. The news of the bank robbery has become public, and crowds of depositors are clamoring for their money. The sister, at the expiration of the stipulated half hour, summons the police and they raid Moi's place. The Chinaman has been threatening the watchman, holding in front of him what he describes as the Chinese death thorn, and telling him that if it but prick the skin instant death follows. As the police enter, Moi punctures his own skin with the thorn and falls dead. Martin is rescued from the cellar; there is a hurried ride to the bank; the depositors are satisfied with the sight of the bundles of currency which Martin has brought from the home of Moi, and all ends happily. The spectator is permitted to make his own guess as to the outcome of the strong friendship between Martin and Mildred.

Some of the more striking scenes are the unsuccessful pursuit of Martin by the police following his second-story robbery; the encounter between Martin and Moi when the opium fiend steps between the Chinaman and the girl; the mental struggle of Martin, as shown in double exposure, between the lure of the layout and the influence of the banker's daughter; the overpowering of the bank watchman and the robbery, and the running pistol fight between the thieves and the police; the run on the bank, showing the crowds in the street and the excitement behind the counter; the raid on the thieves, the recovery of the money and the liberation of the imprisoned men, the suicide of the Chinaman, and the congratulations showered on Martin and the watchman by the police and the grateful bank officials. What became of the police charge against Martin we are not shown, although it is not difficult to imagine that it would be an easy matter to have it wiped from the slate in view of his subsequent straightforwardness and general behavior. "The Chinese Death Thorn" is a powerful melodrama, and it will hold tight any house fortunate enough to see it.

---

MARC MacDERMOTT HAS BAD MISHAP.

The many friends and admirers of Marc MacDermott will be concerned to hear that the close call that comes to so many screen players has been encountered by him. They will be pleased to hear of his complete recovery. In a letter just received by a friend of Miss Miriam Nesbitt, the Edison leading woman tells of an accident that befell her fellow-player.

The Edison Company was doing a rural scene outside of London, and it was decided that Mr. MacDermott should appear on horseback. A bystander volunteered to get a saddle horse and soon led forth a big black, ulgy-tempered animal. When Mr. MacDermott mounted the horse it bolted, then began whirling, kicking, and finally reared, falling backward on his rider, who struck the footboard of an automobile. The horse scrambled to his feet and galloped down the road, leaving his victim bleeding and unconscious, half under the machine. The Edison leading man was placed in the car and rushed to the city, reviving en route and suffering great agony until given morphine by the surgeon, to whose office he was taken. It was thought at first that he had sustained internal injuries, but a more thorough examination showed that the most serious hurt was to his shoulder, in which several ligaments had been badly torn. He was a mass of bruises from head to foot and was confined to his bed for several days, but is now completely recovered.

Marc MacDermott and Miss Nesbitt.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

"ARE women partly to blame?" is an aptly put question by a correspondent to one of the newspapers. In one of the later issues of the same newspaper we find an article of some length referring to the arrest of annoyers of girls at moving picture shows. Sifting all the circumstances, one is led to the conclusion that women are more than "partly" to blame.

* * *

The correspondent asking the question referred to above, discusses the subject of "mashers." He commends the activity of the police and other agencies against the male mashers, but at the same time askes "How about the female masher?" The correspondent also said that his question does not refer to the depraved young woman, but to those who like masculine attention and adulation; for instance, the young woman who simpers and smiles when a likely looking young fellow is nearby.

* * *

The case in which an arrest was made, came up before the night court in Manhattan. It was charged that the culprit had insulted three young women sitting in front of him in a moving picture theater. The magistrate very properly sentenced the offender to ten days in the workhouse. In passing sentence, the magistrate said, "This moving picture mashing, done under cover of the darkness in such places, cannot be tolerated for an instant."

* * *

But one exception to the ruling of the magistrate can be taken, and that is the inference that the moving picture theaters, under the present regulations, afford such opportunities "under cover of darkness." That condition of house arrangements has been removed and it is a mistake to shoulder the motion picture house with any more tendency to evil than that which attaches to the regular theater. The state and local regulations have become so stringent with reference to motion picture houses that it is next to impossible for the evil, so often complained of in the past, to continue "under cover of darkness." If this is not the fact, then it is the duty of the authorities to hold responsible and prosecute any exhibitor who is not complying with the laws. It is unfair to class the picture houses as places permitting acts covered by darkness, because it unwarrantably alarms patronage that is secure under the present regulations.

* * *

The blame of the woman comes in where undue modesty and lack of nerve fits. In the case of the fellow who got ten days it appears he had three companions. One of the young women complained of the actions to the proprietor and he ordered the quartette out. The one convicted showed fight and got his ten days, the proprietor of the place being obliged to appear as prosecutor. The young women were not in evidence. It would seem that, had the proprietor of the place not held his ground, all the culprits would have escaped. If the same young women had been insulted upon the street at night and an arrest had occured they would naturally have been the prosecutors, but in this case the whole burden of responsibility was thrown upon the exhibitor.

* * *

Heretofore the hue and cry of the reformers has been that the picture houses have been the agencies of contamination. The exhibitor has been under the blanket charge of either directly or indirectly operating a theater for one low purpose. Here we find an exhibitor, single handed, trying to maintain the reputation of his house by protecting its patrons against insult, and were it not for two men in the audience the exhibitor might have lost his case and rendered himself liable for false imprisonment.

* * *

It is well said that in these days of equal rights a woman should assume her share of responsibility in the correction of social evils.

* * *

The trouble with most of the reform movements is that they wait until something has happened before they find there is something for them to do. The motion picture theater is the family amusement place and should be given every attention to safeguard it as such. It is not the place of the reformer to wait until the expiration of a certain period and then come forward with tabulated statistics showing that during that period a certain number of arrests were made at so many picture theaters for certain offenses "and a comparison of statistics for the year just closed show that a certain number of girls and young women owe their ruin to patronizing such places." Such tactics display a prospectus stamp. The true reformer should be on the job and put every place under surveillance. If a small percentage of the reformers would do but a minimum of the real good work they represent, the legitimate patrons of the family theaters of today would benefit to a large extent and the proprietors would be relieved of much odium that now rests upon their shoulders.

* * *

Chief Magistrate McAdoo has suggested that the finger prints be taken of all convicted mashers, so that a police record can be kept of them and second offenders properly dealt with. In making the suggestion the magistrate included pickpockets, jostlers and gangsters. It is hoped that if the suggestion is adopted it will embrace the moving picture pest, male and female, for it frequently happens that the apparent security enjoyed by the latter serves as encouragement for the men.

* * *

Let the reformers get to work and take one place at a time, if necessary. A clean-up will soon be the result. There can be no better seat of usefulness than one in a theater where the innocent are in danger. It is foolish to wait for an opportunity to get a case against an exhibitor and prove that he knowingly harbored people of evil design. Exhibitors are not infallible. They cannot always tell a masher, and the question as to how far an amusement house manager or proprietor may go in refusing admission to a person is one that still awaits legal determination. The women can settle the question without difficulty. The offenders do not fear their presence as much as they do men and a few determined women who are willing to appear in court, with the aid of the ten-day rule and the finger print suggestion thrown in, will soon rid the picture theater of the masher.

* * *

The rapid growth in the number of small moving picture houses in the city has conveyed the impression to many of the patrons that a few hundred dollars is sufficient to equip and put in operation one of them. The average estimate of valuation was strikingly exemplified during the trial of a case in Brooklyn a few days ago. Two boys were arrested for breaking into a picture theater and destroying and stealing property. The father of one of the boys, an Italian, offered to make restitution from the stock in his small store, pleading that he could not do so with money. The court said, "wouldn't you be willing to give vegetables or dry stuff sufficient to offset the loss?" To this the Italian replied, as his face brightened up, "Sure! me giva him two-a box da macceroni."

* * *

A local newspaper editorially criticises the Anti-Saloon League of America because it prefers the famous Lieutenant Hobson for United States Senator from Alabama over a candidate for the honor who is not pledged on the liquor question and asks what prohibition sentiments have to do with statesmanship. The question will probably remain tabled in the anti-saloon headquarters with the question as to the bearing of the motion picture theater as an aid to the temperance cause. In the town of Tamaqua, Pa., a successful fight was made for some time against the opening of a picture theater. A few months after a saloonkeeper closed his place, claiming the picture house had put him out of business. The Town Council decided the good business the theater was doing entitled the town to more revenue, and up went the license; but the anti-saloon people remained silent.

* * *

And still another of the regular theaters falls into the motion picture line—Joe Weber's. The theme of the opening attraction is said to be based upon the report of the Rockefeller committee on white slavery. A professional actor hearing this report the other night said: "It is certainly a bloomin' cheery outlook for us. With the last show I rehearsed with in storage, and the landlady asking me every morning how much I am going to give towards the Thanksgiving turkey, I am seriously considering applying for a job to run one of the blarsted picture machines."

Moving Picture Educator

SOME NEW EDUCATIONAL FILMS (Gaumont).

Excursions in Old Paris.

We have long been accustomed to views of Paris in its modern beauties, but its mere ancient dress is by far the most interesting. It is a commendable thought to introduce this particular series, for truly old Paris contains some wonderfully historical structures, preserving some of the most beautiful specimens of noble architecture in Europe. Modern lectures with their modern pictures were perhaps justified in bringing before their audiences the present day attractions of "Paris the Beautiful" but modern Paris can very profitably be set aside for a study of "Old Paris" which will more than repay the student who follows this series. Of course, many of the best specimens of architecture are to be found in the churches, such as that of St. Eustace, classed as one of the most beautiful in Paris and dated from 1532. The Church of St. Julian the Peer, the oldest in Paris, which was re-built in the 12th century. The Church of St. Nicholas in-the-Fields, re-built in 1420. The Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, and, of course, the Church of Notre Dame of Paris, which is always included in any series of Parisian pictures, and which is a marvel of Gothic architecture dating from 1163.

Other important structures are the ancient Palace of Thermes, inhabited by the Roman Emperors, and by many French Kings of the first race. The Palace of Sens, built by Tristan de Salazar for the Archbishop of Sens in the 15tn century. Other parts more scenic are Montmartre Hill, which, owing to the rustic style of its houses and gardens has always been the rendezvous for artists. St. Vincent Street with the famous Inn of the "Jumping Rabbit."

Of secular buildings, the Palace of Justice, the Conciergerie, the Treasure Tower and Ceasre's Tower. The Court of the Vesges comprising 26 pavilions of brick and stone with vaulted galleries. The colonnade of the Louvre (Louis XIV Period); the St. Denis Gate (1671); St. Martin's Gate, erected in honor of Louis XIV; the Dragons Court of the XVIII century and the Pantheon begun in 1757.

This film cannot be too highly praised because of the thoroughness of its interest, and the lessons conveyed of one of the most intense periods of French history; may it be the beginning of many similar pictures of the ancient side of modern cities.

Fan Making.

An article of common interest yet unknown in its method of construction because it is essentially of foreign make. This film shows the entire process from the simplest geisha fan to the elaborate creations made for the theater. The delicate skeleton frame work, the "corrugating" of the material used, the subtle fingers of the expert girls making rapid progress in adjusting them is closely followed. Artists are seen at work painting the more elaborate ones; also those of embroidered work, and those delicately mounted in gold. Although an industrial picture, it will not be out of place in any program because of its universal feminine interest.

River Banks.

"Where willows hang and murmuring waters run" aptly describes the poetic suggestion of these pretty scenes. Until seen in pictures of this kind one fails to réalize the charm and beauty of the banks of the rambling brook and stretching river. The variety of quaint hidden nooks, the reed covered banks, the tree shaded inviting spots which we find in following the alluring caprices of the stream, are pleasing beyond description. Again the wider stretches with the cultivated embankments form a welcome contrast to the wilder and more natural parts; from narrow stream to wider pools, and on to swift flowing rivers and again to rushing torrents, the picture is full of detailed interest and pleasure all the way through.

The Charcoal Industry.

This is a picture of an essentially French industry which bids fair to challenge modern progress to improve its methods; without doubt, as long as charcoal is used this simple and primitive custom will prevail. Wood charcoal is the residue of the incomplete combustion of wood, and is obtained from the oak, beech and birch. In the middle of a clearing, the charcoal-burners erect their huts and take their families and settle there so that the whole family may help in the work, for even the youngest can carry his little bundle of wood.

The method of procedure is to first place a strong stake in the ground and build the gathered branches of trees around it until a mound of some ten or fifteen feet in diameter, and three or four feet high is finished; this is then covered with leaves or grasses, with an outer layer of dirt. The center stake is now withdrawn and fire lowered in the hole so made and combustion begins. In two days the wood has become charcoal and is left to cool. Forty-eight hours later the charcoal is taken out and put in sacks for transport.

A distinctly rural industry; it reveals an interesting side of French peasant life as well as a singular occupation which is of a family character, and one calculated to remind us of a link with the past which perhaps before long will pass away at least from its present extensive uses.

---

"WILD WALES" (Edison).

A timely scenic is this of Wales, the beauty spot of England, too long neglected; apparently our scenic photographers have been going far afield for many most welcome pictures, forgetful of the garden spots at home. Hitherto, Wales has been spoken of as "Picturesque Wales" or "The Switzerland of England." Never before has the writer seen it referred to as "Wild Wales," the title does not do justice to this most picturesque, quaint, and ancient little country, with a language, customs, a history and beauty all its own; peculiarly and especially distinct. Nowhere in Great Britain is the historically romantic more instructive and charming than here. True these people ante-late the English themselves. Although showing some Roman beginnings and Welsh roads and castles, the picture does not go far enough to do credit and justice to the country it portrays, may we hope that it is only the first of a series. To the stranger to the country, only enough is shown to give an index of the whole, while to one who is familiar with its every beauty a longing for more, comes as a natural yearning; for sweet is the remembrance of many long (yet too short), holidays amid the most attractive features of the British Isles. Anticipating more, we advise every lover of ancient, historical, and scenic beauty to make a knowledge of Wales, through the aid of the moving picture, a part of his travel education.

---

PICTURES TEACH ILLITERATE VOTERS.

(Consul Alexander W. Weddell, Catania, Italy.)

As a result of the new suffrage law, the number of electors in this district, and presumably throughout Italy, has been enormously increased. In the Province of Catania, for example, there were under the old law some 41,000 qualified voters; under the new statute the number leaps to over 140,000. (The electorate in all Italy is stated to have been thus increased from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 or 9,000,000.)

The task of educating the new voters to cast their ballots properly is a heavy one. As a means to this end the moving picture theaters throughout this district have exhibited films showing graphically the procedure to be followed; in addition the representatives of one of the political parties have exposed similar films in local assembly rooms. This means of educating the public has been so favorably received that similar methods for teaching the elements of domestic and personal hygiene and similar subjects are beginning to be discussed by physicians and others.

Among the Picture Theaters.

News and Views of Houses Here and There.

NOVELTY THEATER, EVANSVILLE, IND.

The accompanying views are illustrative of the Novelty Theater, located in Main Street near Seventh, Evansville, Ind. Philip Holzman, the manager and proprietor, opened the house in the early part of this year to the biggest crowd of people that ever gathered at a picture house in Evansville. The structure represents an expenditure of $30,000. The auditorium can seat 600 persons, 100 of which are seated in boxes in the rear of the house. These boxes are conveniently arranged and give an unobstructed view of the picture.

The name of the theater has been spelled out in the tile in the lobby. The posters of the pictures constituting a performance are placed in neat frames in the lobby and are lighted. The entrance and lobby are beautifully illuminated, the indirect lighting system being used. The box office is said to be the largest in the city, and its decorations are hand panted. The color scheme in the lobby is in varying shades of green.

Novelty Theater, Evansville, Ind.

The walls of the interior are decorated with paintings. Each of the ten panels bear a different picture, which is a joy to the lovers of art. The lower part of the interior walls are of marble for a space of seven feet six inches. Then there is a shelf upon which are placed plants and other greenery and electric lights. The walls of the interior of the building are finished in light drab, with a border of pink and light brown. The ceiling, which is painted in a lighter shade than the walls, has thirty-six panels. Hanging from the ceilings are ten brass basins, each containing four powerful lights. These basins are thirty-seven inches in diameter. Situated on each side of the screen is a curtained window used by singers. There is a stage 22 feet by 16 feet, with the regulation proscenium arch. The dressing rooms, of which there are four, are commodious and nicely furnished. A mirror screen measuring 13 feet by 17 feet is used. The projectors are two Simplex machines. In addition to the fine orchestra piano the management has provided a three-piece orchestra. The proper music is another feature of the house.

Operating Room of Novelty Theater, Evansville, Ind.

In the rear of the house there are two large exits, and these were made two feet wider than the law requires. There are also two exits in the front of the building. The two aisles of the house are very wide, allowing plenty of room for those coming in and going out. The air in the auditorium is changed every minute. The building is heated by its own plant—a hot water system.

COLONIAL THEATER, GREEN BAY, WIS.

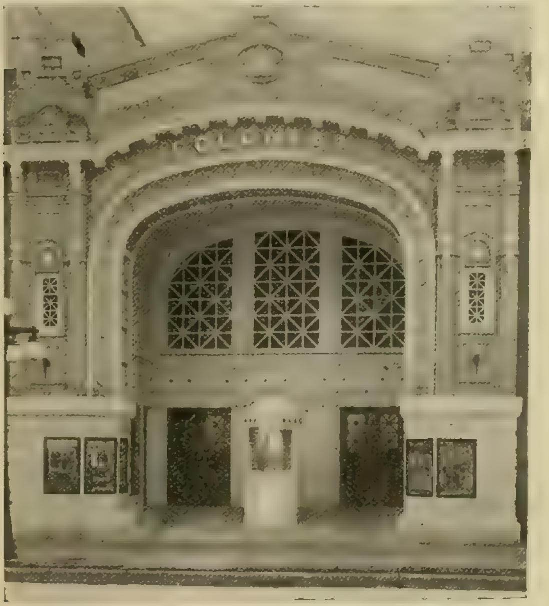
The Colonial Theater, Green Bay, Wis., was given the name it bears because all its appointments are distinctly characteristic of the old Colonial period. According to the description given in a little booklet that the management issued at the opening, the Colonial is the largest theater in the State, exclusive of Milwaukee, which is being used for the exploitation of moving pictures. It is exactly 160 feet long and 33 feet wide. Two complete crews of employees alternate the hours of the day, each crew working six hours per day. On Sundays and holidays two different shows are given. The entertainment begins at the regular opening time, 11 a.m., and will run until 6 p.m. At that hour the change is made and the new show runs until closing time, 11 p.m. The price of admission is only five cents.



Colonial Theater, Green Bay, Wis.

The Colonial is strictly sanitary in every way, and the management ventures to proclaim it the most sanitary building in the city. The walls and ceilings of the structure are smoothly and heavily painted, and there are no draperies of any kind in the auditorium. The seats are smooth, plain opera chairs, not upholstered with any dust absorbing material. The wood work is plain and void of carving or anything where dust may accumulate. The ventilating system changes the air in the entire auditorium every minute. The floors are of cement, and instead of being swept with brooms, they are flushed with water each morning. Although the auditorium could have easily accommodated 800 seats, the seats were placed much farther apart than is usual, with a result that there are only 650 seats in the theater. The chief of the Green Bay fire department praised the manager, Henry Goldman, upon the width of the aisles, the large exits and the room between the rows of seats. The house was also praised by many other public servants.

NEW ALTA THEATER, PENDLETON, ORE.

The accompanying illustration is a view of the New Alta Theater, Pendleton, Ore. It was opened on Saturday, September 6, to a large and enthusiastic audience of Pendleton notables, and has been playing to capacity business since that date. The house is of the Mission type and is modern in every detail. Including the thirty-two loge box seats it has a seating capacity of 550. The auditorium is unusually attractive, the color scheme being in four shades of green—ceiling cream, upper part of walls a shade lighter than the lower part, which is of a deep green, while the woodwork is of a still darker green. One of the many features of the house is its indirect lighting system. The light, coming from the ten boxes, is thrown onto the cream ceiling, causing an effect which must be seen to be appreciated. The house is steam heated, and fresh air is constantly coming into the auditorium through the two massive ventilators in the ceiling. There are four wide aisles with thick matting as a covering.

In the operating room, which is entirely fireproof and up to date in every respect, a Simplex machine is used which throws a picture 12 feet by 16 feet at a distance of 73 feet. In addition to the Simplex there is a spotlight, a stereopticon and a mercury arc rectifier. A mirroroid screen is used. Although the theater gives only moving pictures and vaudeville, a stage large enough to accommodate any theatrical performance requiring a big amount of space has been provided, as well as a number of commodious dressing rooms and a lot of scenery.

Alta Theater, Pendleton, Ore.

The front of the theater is a reproduction of the California Missions in stucco. The two flaming arc lamps and the big electric sign light up the front considerably. There are two exits and an entrance in the lobby which are divided by two box offices. There are also two emergency exits in the rear. The Alta is a marvel of architectural skill and has been pronounced the finest house in Eastern Oregon. It represents an investment of $10,000. C. E. Oliphant, who is the architect of the house, is also the manager. Mrs. Oliphant is the singer. According to reports, credit should be accorded Woodley A. Stevenson, operator at the Alta, and the pianist, T. Connel, who always plays a suitable accompaniment to the pictures.

ORIENT THEATER, AMERICAN FORK, UTAH.

The Orient Theater, American Fork, Utah, was opened on November 1 and erected and furnished at a cost of $13,000. It is a handsomely furnished place and everything is up-to-date. It can seat four hundred persons. It has practically all aisle seats. By this we mean that a row has only three seats. The aisles are wide. The Orient has the most comfortable, upholstered opera chairs of any other picture theater in the city.

The operating room is fireproof, being built of cement, metal lath and plaster, the wooden frame being plastered with asbestos and covered with sheet iron. The aperture for the arc rays is covered with automatic sheet iron shutters. The film chest is also of cement, asbestos and sheet iron. The boiler room and floors are of cement. In case of fire there is fifty feet of underwriters' fire hose within easy reach in the lobby. All the lights in the house can be instantly thrown on from either the operating room or the box office, although the auditorium is never in complete darkness. The theater is steam heated.

There are two boxes which may be reserved a week in advance. Each box seats eight persons at twenty cents per person. The regular admission is ten cents for adults and children twelve years or over; under twelve, five cents. The pictures are changed every other day. Two shows are given nightly, one at 7:30 and the other at 8:45. The house closes at 10 p.m. Clifton Pierce is the manager. An eight-page program, giving the reels for the week, is issued. The program is a neat affair with a nicely colored front cover and is patronized by the local merchants.

Orient Theater, American Fork Utah.

SUGG THEATER, CHICKASHA, OKLA.

We publish herewith a photograph of the Sugg Theater, Chickasha, Okla. The house was opened a couple of months ago under the management of J. L. Olive. The men who built the theater are B. F. Johnson, president of the First National Bank of Chickasha, and Mr. Sugg, a cattle man. The former gentleman is worth about half a million dollars, while the latter has accumulated the vast amount of four or five million dollars. Mr. Olive says that it is one of the best picture theaters in the State of Oklahoma. It is absolutely sanitary, and is equipped with the best cooling, heating and ventilating systems. The structure is built entirely of fireproof material. Besides the orchestra floor, there is a first and a second balcony. The second balcony has been set aside for negroes. A separate box office has also been provided for the negroes. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 925. There is a four-piece orchestra. A show consists of three reels of pictures and a number of high-class vaudeville acts.

Sugg Theater, Chickasha, Okla.

VAUDETTE THEATER, ATLANTA, GA.

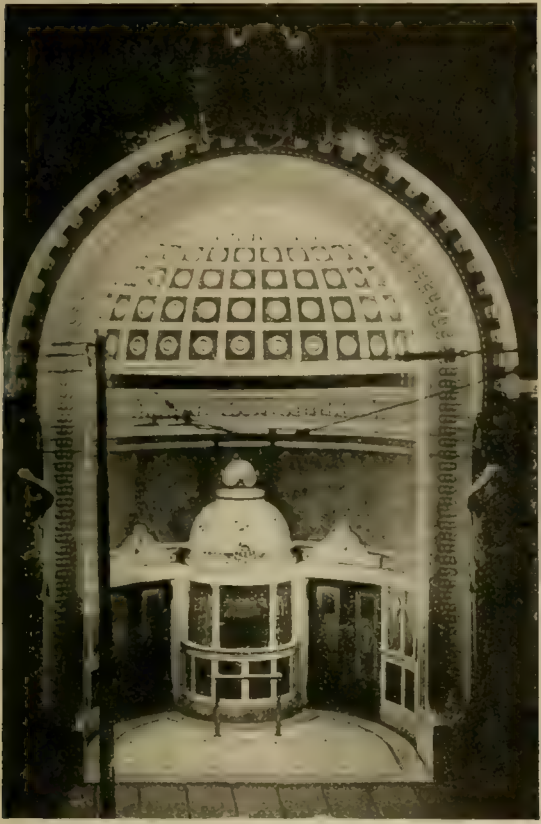
The accompany illustration is a view of the Vaudette Theater, Atlanta, Ga. The dimensions of the structure are 40 feet by 147 feet. The auditorium has a seating capacity of five hundred, and the rows of seats are thirty-seven inches apart, giving ample room to the patrons coming in or going out without inconveniencing those seated. The program is changed daily and consists of three first-run pictures. No vaudeville is used, but two singers help to vary the entertainment. The admission price is five cents.



Vaudette Theater, Atlanta, Ga.

PHOENIX THEATER, NEOLA, IOWA.

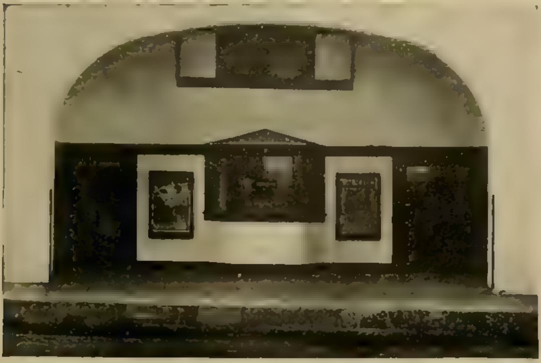
The Phoenix Theater, Neola, Iowa, was opened on June 14, this year, by Mrs. S. J. Brown and son. It has been playing to good business since that date, showing licensed pictures. The building, which is 28½ feet by 72 feet, is constructed entirely of cement blocks, and the auditorium has a seating capacity of 193.



Phoenix Theater, Neola, Iowa.

IDEAL THEATER, PONCHATOULA, LA.

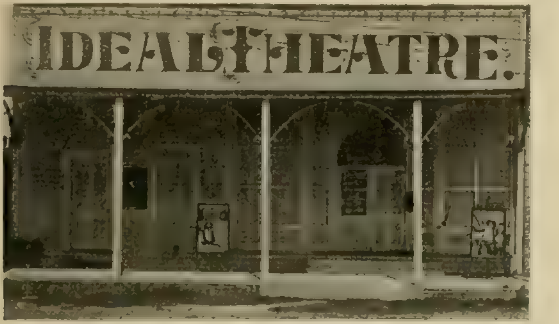
According to the report of the manager of the Ideal Theater, Ponchatoula, La., there is no other house in the United States situated in a town the size of Ponchatoula that can be compared with his theater in point of size. The Ideal has a seating capacity of 250 and the population of Ponchatoula is about 1,050. Should this item come to the attention of a picture manager or proprietor whose house has a bigger seating capacity and the population of the town smaller than those of the Ideal and Ponchatoula, he would be pleased to hear from him. The Ideal has been in existence for three years, and has been playing but five days in the week. Licensed films are used; the admission is ten cents. Business very good.



The Ideal Theater, Ponchatoula, La.

GEM THEATER, SHERMAN, TEXAS.

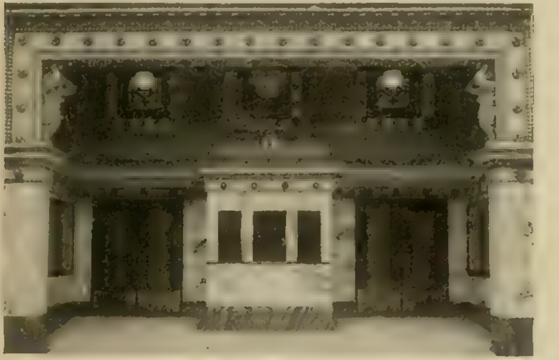
The Gem Theater, Sherman, Texas, a photo-engraving of which is herewith published, was opened on August 18, this year, by J. B. Wilson, who is also the owner of the Jewel theater in the same city. The house is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. The seating capacity is 350. The ventilating system at the Gem is one of its many features. In the operating room, which is built entirely of fireproof material, there are two Power's No. 6A machines, which project pictures 10 feet by 14 feet at a distance of 85 feet. Direct current is used. The pictures are thrown upon a Radium Gold Fiber screen, and the manager says that he is getting the best projection results in town. The house has been doing an excellent business since it opened. Three reels of first-run General Film Company pictures, changed daily, constitute a show for which an admission fee of ten cents is charged.



Gem Theater, Sherman, Texas.

P. G. LYNCH JOINS "AMERICAN" FORCES.

P. G. Lynch, formerly of the Pacific Mutual Film Corporation at Los Angeles, has been engaged by Pres. S. S. Hutchinson, of the American Film Mfg. Co., as his assistant at Santa Barbara, California. Mr. Lynch has been identified in various branches of the business on the coast and has been recognized as an efficient and capable man. In his new capacity he will be in charge of business matters at the Santa Barbara studios, part of which work has temporarily been in charge of Julius Frankenburg, who will in future be identified as a comedy character in "Flying A" productions.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Some Clippings.

We promised the other week to give more clippings from the Academian, the local organ of the Academy of Music, Selma, Ala. It is full of helpful material and we think that much of it can be passed along. Here, for instance, is a comment of requests for special selections:

> Requests? We like to get them, for it shows an interest in the work we are doing, but it is not always possible to play them, for the simple reason that they do not fit in. Why try to keep up with new music, but with about thirty publishers going at the rate of fifteen a month, it is evidently impossible. And some of it is never played more than once before the janitor falls heir to it. We get about fifteen or twenty new pieces a month, and keep around three hundred on hand all the time.

There are two classes of persons who make requests, those who really wish to hear a certain selection and those who want to show that they know music. A sidestep is sometimes necessary in both cases. This will help.

Here is another "request" line that may help:

> If you read or hear about a licensed picture you want to see, tell us. We may not be able to get it for you, but we will make one mighty good effort at it, and the odds favor us.

Even if you cannot get the film in question, you can get a line on the style that some patron prefers, and a number of these will help you to pick the style of program that will pull the most money if you have the right sort of an exchange.

And here is a scheme that all might copy with profit, and here it is even to the announcement:

> Not very long ago we were in a picture theater in another city when a Vitagraph film was shown in which an actor—it was really an actress, of course—played a part in a manner so appealed to us that we became really anxious to know her name. Of course the cast had been given on the front of the film, but we had overlooked the name desired. So through another show we sat waiting for that cast to be shown again. And when it was, a lady just in front decided to leave, and we saw a hat instead. Then it struck us that the same thing might happen in our house, and so——
>
> On the left side of the left doors and on the right side of the right doors leaving this theater, you will find small frames in which will be placed each day typewritten copies of the casts of all pictures shown here, in so far as these casts are available. And every one except Pathe are furnishing them now, we believe.
>
> We trust that they will be as welcome to you as one would have been to us in the house written of.

Dating the Day.

We are strong for day and date instead of merely the day. Some managements contend that the date takes up too much space. How about this scheme?

Wednesday

NOV. 5

The date is not too prominent and it takes little space, but it is there when you want to see it.

On the other hand, we think that this item might have been phrased differently. It runs:

> Vitagraph has completed "The Life of Daniel," in three reels. More of it in due time.

"More about it in due time" would have avoided the doubt as to whether or not the Vitagraph would run it up to six or eight reels later on.

One thing we cannot reproduce here is the chatty tone of the publication as a whole. There is a suggestion of intimate friendliness about the sheet that is its chief charm. It is not impertinent or overfamiliar, but there is the suggestion of "us" that makes the paper a friend getter. It is not sufficient that you print a house program. Give it a real personality, a pleasing personality and it will make friends for you. We have seen house organs that were written with a pair of scissors and others that were written with a pen and a wholeheartedness that gave the sheet life. It is easy to figure which of the two is the greater power for good.

Booming Tigris.

The Arcade Theater, Tientsin, sends in four different English bills for Tigris and one in Chinese. That is going pretty strong for a subject that runs but two days, for the Arcade is changing three times a week now, with a feature of from 2,500 to 4,000 in each change, building this up with some comedies and a news weekly. Even in China they are turning to the multiple reel. One of the pieces of literature is our own Louis Reeves Harrison's comment.

Got His Program.

E. R. Hardwick, of the Lyceum Theater, Clovis, N. M., is one of those who recently asked for specimen programs. Now he sends his own first issue, a twelve-page folder-fashion, each page three by six. Opened up, one side gives a page a day to the program, and when opened full the reader has the full list of six days under his eye at once. Closed, the cover and five pages of general matter are the more prominent. It is a good scheme and one that other small houses could copy with profit. We think that Mr. Hardwick will be glad to send a sample to any exhibitor, inclosing a return cover. A catchline top and bottom of every page helps a lot by giving a brief argument smartly. Mr. Hardwick asks for suggestions, but we think that he is doing very well as it is. The program is clean looking through the absence of type too heavy for the small page, and about all the suggestion we can offer is that he give the date as well as the day on each program section instead of merely naming the days and forcing the reader to hunt up the front page to see what week is referred to. Don't say merely "Monday," but "Monday, November 17th." Then it is all there.

Mr. Hardwick adds a scalp to our belt when he says:

> Your department has been a great aid to me, and was instrumental in starting an advertising campaign which has brought the business.

That's what we like to hear; that we have helped the readers of this department to make money.

Mr. Hardwick sends some of his "dope sheets" which he uses in the preparation of matter. This is merely the cheap yellow paper generally known as "carbon seconds" and selling from twenty-five to forty cents for five hundred sheets. Each sheet is divided between two films and carries the company's advertisement, the synopsis and comment on the film from this paper as well as a reference to the page and any special matter supplied by the manufacturer such as the press paragraphs supplied by Edison, Vitagraph and Kalem in their bulletins. The matter is not clipped until Mr. Hardwick knows his program, then it is assembled by days to be worked up quickly when he gets started.

One paragraph in his letter stands out. He writes:

> I am sending you a copy of my first program, which is off the press today. It is my first attempt, and is not as good as it should be, nor as good as I am going to have it. My aim is to get out a program which the public will demand, not one that you have to push on them, and when they do get it, it is destroyed and not read.

That's the right idea. Don't make them merely take it. Make them want it. He carries all the expense himself, and mails a copy to those who ask that it be sent.

Earlier advertising by dodger is not so good, but probably had a pull. He gets in Bert Williams' class by coining "Filmatization." The error in his earlier work lies in a too lavish use of heavy type, making the bill too uniformly black, which an overlavish use of capitals leaves it hard to read. These errors are avoided in the new program. We hope we are on the list for the new issue.

From a Small Town.

H. W. Kerr, of the Kerr Opera House, Little Sioux, Iowa, will interest. He writes:

> Possibly a line from the man in the town of less than 500 seems immaterial, but I feel like expressing appreciation for the good things from time to time that appear in THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD. It takes a little hustle in a small place to make a showing, but the business can be made profitable two or more nights a week if it is "gone after." We get it, and we bill it as strong as we can. Every rural route patron is mailed a postal with the program and such comments as we are able to make, each morning, and it gets the business—we skipped a few times and endeavored to make the newspaper do the work, but it cost us more than treble the price of the postal "To-Niters." In connection with this advertising, want to say that we rely on the World story and especially the Comment Department for information, and find it a big help. We note the Edison people are offering a big help to the man who "goes after business" in publishing brief "Advertising Synopses" of their releases and believe if the other concerns would do the same, it would be appreciated and commended by the fellows who Advertise and Get the Business. We operate a Power's 5, private light plant, throw 90 feet, booth on outside of building and so well ventilated the operator never sweats a drop all summer. We claim to put the pictures on the screen equal to the best produced in Omaha, if the exchange gives us the stuff in the same condition.

The Edison readers are a real help, but it is apparent that Mr. Kerr does not know that Vitagraph and Kalem also issue bulletins with similar matter. We think we were the first to do this in the old Lubin Bulletin, but they now use bulletin sheets. Stanley Twist's old Selig special envelopes are missed these days.

A Penny House.

The catchline does not refer to the price of admission to a photoplay theater, but T. C. Penny is manager of the Orpheum Theater, Havre, Montana, and he has been celebrating his third anniversary with a souvenir program, a brown card carrying a landscape on the cover and just the necessary printing, the week's program being inside (and undated). A ready printed card is used, giving perfect press work on the cut, and it makes a really handsome souvenir. We think that many front pages have been pinned up to serve as a more lasting advertisement for the house.

A lot of managers do not seem to know that they can get this ready printed stuff as cheaply as they can have a local job done, and get infinitely better work. Any live printer can obtain samples of high-grade work at the price of inferior local stuff. It is the making ready that counts and the lithographic houses with a half million run make ready but once and distribute that cost among several hundred purchasers.

Mr. Penny also sends a half tone of his new house, opened September of this year. By suiting the screen to the stock an excellent impression is had.

More Bull.

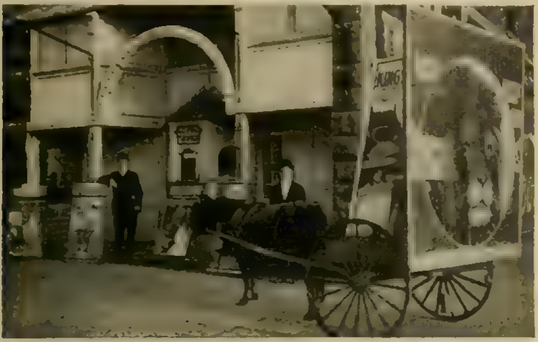
H. T. Gardner, of Lyric Theater, Holdenville, Okla., sends a cut of an advertising scheme he worked in connection with Selig's "Kings of the Forest." The bullock cart is much like the one used in that production and attracted no little attention on the streets. Anything of this sort is worth a hundred three-sheets hung in front of the house, for the moving display goes after the people instead of waiting for them to come.



The release is something more than a year old, but the cut may give a hint to others for some more recent subject.

Watch Out.

The prevalence of the multiple reel drama is causing some confusion in wording the advertising. A bill just to hand advertises

SAPHO With Florence Roberts
In Six Beautiful Parts.

It sounds more like a murder mystery than a photoplay. Watch for the tricky sentences and instead of the above say:

SAPHO In Six Stirring Acts.
With Florence Roberts

and the effect of the announcement will not be lost through the laughter raised.

Because He Advertises.

Philip Reich, of the Auditorium, Meyersdale, Pa., writes that with a town of 3.500 they had three photoplay theaters in June. One gave way to the hot weather and the other lasted until November, but he still keeps on. He adds that one of his main features is his advertising, which explains why he lasted and the others didn't. He also says that the first thing he looks for when the paper comes on Monday is this department with the helpful suggestions from other managers.

Mr. Reich sends in one of his four-page folders, 5½ by 9 inches, with each page carrying one to three subjects. He doesn't seem to crowd the page in spite of the heavy type he uses, for he has the knack of saying something in very few words, not the whole story of the film, but just a hint as to what each is. He's a born advertiser who has built up his natural aptitude and he gets out paper that looks like big town stuff.

Two Years, Now.

L. V. Bridges, of the Best Theater, San Leandro, California, sends a weekly program that he has been using for two years and says that he finds it the best advertising he can get. He discontinued it for one week as a test and the number of persons who asked for a copy, supposing that they had missed theirs, convinced him that that was what was wanted. The first page carries the cut of the house at the top and gives the lower half of the page to the big feature of the week. Inside the four changes of bill divide the two pages with the story and cast of the feature reel, a cut of one of the players in the film, and one to five lines for the other reels of that program. It is an orderly arrangement and one that interests the prospective as well as the regular patron. The back page is given to a local grocer. The lines are snappy and pulling.

Wise At Last.

Clifton Pierce, manager of the Orient Theater, American Fork, Utah, writes:

> This is my first letter to you, although I have been in the motion picture business for six years. I apologize for not having been more friendly when I realize what your valuable paper has been to me.

We hope that Mr. Pierce does not become a stranger again. We are all Brothers of the Screen. Let's be clubby.

The Orient is a new house, seating 400, with ramps instead of steps, a concrete projection room (which we think will interest Mr. Richardson, if they have a photograph of it) and with not more than six seats in any row.

They use a lithographed cover for their four page program, taking but a single page for the house program and a page and a half of the cover for house advertisement. The titles are set in twelve-point full face with a lighter body type of the same point, and though the page is rather crowded it stands up well because there is an orderly arrangement and not a different face for every title. Right off the reel they start with the outside advertising all taken and it is representative stuff, too.

Didn't "Get" Us.

Wesley writes that he knows he is overworking his portrait cut, but pleads that his wife won't let him get a new photograph taken. It was not the use of the same picture that we had reference to, but he has used the same cut for so long that the grain of the wood on the bottom of the block is beginning to show through and what we wanted him to do was to get a cut that printed something else than a black blotch.

He enters a plea of "Guilty" on the charge of using vaudeville, but adds in extenuation that they are not real actors but amateurs, which makes his crime all the worse. He further pleads that the other fellow does it, so he has to.

That's no excuse at all. Just because the other fellow does do it is the cue to go after the business of the many who do not care to mix vaudeville of the photoplay theater variety with their pictures. Wesley doesn't run pictures every night, but only when there is no road show booked, and averages about five photoplay shows a week, but he pays his people by the week, whether he uses them every night or not, which is much to his credit, though it does not condone his vaudeville—not a bit of it.

And we would like to remind the man who says so that he said he was going to come and see us last summer and he never did nor has he offered any explanation. We are all attention.

De Subers Lines.

Here are some more catch lines from H. de Subers' famous factory:

The busy big show.
Everything good to see.
Go where the wise ones go.
A feature worthy the name.
Avoid regret by coming to-day.
Quality as a pleasure-maker.
Come now—that's the main thing.
We please those who want the best.
Your judgment would select these.
Every day is a good day at the ———.
Just make the start—the rest will be easy.
A 10c. expenditure that gives a dollar pleasure.
The way of the wise lies toward the ——— theater.
When you want to see the best pictures, you want to see ours.
It takes little money to buy a lot of cheer at the ——— theater.
The goodness knows the goodness shows at the ——— theater.
The quality of our pictures will make you remember the name———
A miss-guided man is a lucky man when she guides him to the ———.
Blue Monday will be a thing of the past, if you'll make it a point to look over our program.
A "fault finder" can't find very much to his liking at the———.
There are no faults in our shows.

Multiple Reels.

Several exhibitors have asked what is to become of the single-reel story now that the multiple-part story has arrived. Frankly, we do not know and know no one who does, but it does not seem possible that the one-part story will be permanently done away with, though for the present the longer story seems to have all the best of it.

Perhaps the logical solution will be found in two styles of houses, one running the long subjects and the others the short lengths, just as we have the three-act play and the vaudeville program which includes one or more twenty-minute dramatic sketches. Under this arrangement the man who likes a long story seeks the dramatic house, and the man who does not care to concentrate all the evening on one subject turns to vaudeville.

Vaudeville has one advantage over the longer form in that it presents so many attractions that some of them are almost certain to find favor, and the man who decides that the juggling act was poor entertainment indeed remembers also that the dancing act was unusually good and feels that he has struck a balance.

It is much the same with the short-length story. Some of the subjects may be poor, but with a varied list, something is bound to win regard and no one turns from the house feeling that an hour or an evening has been utterly wasted. On the other hand, in a house running a three-part story and one other reel to fill out with, a patron may get a poor long subject and forget all about the less important one-part story or the split-reel of comedy. He has gone, not to see a mixed bill, but one particular title and if that is not good the performance as a whole is not good.

Another thing to be remembered is the potency of the "come any time" idea. If a man has half an hour to waste he drops into a theater. He may lose a part of the reel running, but he gets a full reel story in his half hour, but if he happens in at the end of the second part of a four-section story, he must watch two thousand feet of action not wholly clear because he has no knowledge of what has gone before and must either leave with the story still in a jumble or wait for the early reels to follow the climax and try to get interested in the start of a story the climax of which he already knows.

The properly done story builds up the action and the suspense reel by reel and the early reels coming after the climax seem still more weak through comparison and the lack of suspense.

In the smaller towns where the audience is in before the first reel is started, the multiple reel does very nicely as it will in some of the residential sections of the city, but there are many houses that will suffer if a turn is made to the long stories, and yet practically all houses are turning to the features and scorning the short lengths.

Study the Situation.

The matter is one that is deserving of greater thought than has been given it. It is taken for granted that the two-part story is better than one and that the four-reel feature is better than the two-part subject, but is it? Everyone who has studied the situation at all knows that many of the two-part stories are far from possessing two-part plots. Too large a percentage are stories that should properly run more than one reel, yet not more than 1,500 feet, but if they are not in one thousand feet they must be in two, because the thousand-foot reel is the standard unit, yet audiences can detect this lack of story, the padding sticks out almost painfully and the patron feels that he has been defrauded. Until there is a proper supply of long subjects every foot of which is needed to tell the story, it is not well to trust too much to the big story that is a feature only by courtesy of title.

Lately the two-part story as a regular thing became a novelty and it drew patronage. At once all decided that they must have the two-part stories on their programs because the others did. Is this true in your case?

Lately the Kraus Company ran an advertisement, "Be a manager" instead of merely an exhibitor, arguing that a manager did things while the exhibitor merely followed the general leads. Of course their line of argument was that if you bought Kraus postcards and made business you were acting like a manager, but the catchline is capable of a wider interpretation.

A few years ago there were exhibitors but no managers. Now there are both, the men who do things, who set the pace and the others who blindly follow the pace. In a way this is the general rule of life, but even the exhibitor should not copy too closely and should not follow the practice of another unless he knows that this is the proper procedure for his own house, for one man's meat is another's poison as surely in photoplay as in any other connection, and where one house may double its profits with the long subjects, another house may cut its profit in two and not know why business drops.

"Be a manager" and find out for yourself precisely what your patrons want. It may be that they do not even want the same offering as is desired by the patrons of a house even a few blocks away. Keep posted on what the other man is doing, but do not do it yourself unless you are certain that it is best for your own interests.

Coming Soon.

"Bunny" pictures are due to blossom on the boards of the Bunny Theater about the time this comes into print, and we have the promise of the artist that we can show some of his bulletin sketches. Watch for them.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No questions can be replied to by mail. Look for your answers here. A list of addresses to which photoplays may be sent will be mailed on receipt of a STAMPED AND ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. No question can be replied to that necessitates the handling of a script.

SCRIPT.—Miss Lillian Gish was the wife in "So Runs the Way." Let the script hang on a few weeks longer. Not much of a general market yet for four reels, as most of these are done by staff writers. We question your statement that your batting average is five hundred per cent. Do you mean you sell five times as much as you write? If you do it is "not bad" as you suggest, but even fifty per cent. is good.

RICHARD ROE.—Miss Gertrude Bambrick was The Lady in Black. The Joker is not cast. The second Biograph will be answered later. We do not fancy running a correspondence club.

R. R.—We cannot name the author of the special you mention.

J. B.—Miss Betty Harte was Betty in "The Ironmaster." Miss Louise Glaum was Marion in "Old Mammy's Secret Code." The Identifier did not get the schoolmam. Mr. Taylor was Cobb in "Exoneration." George Osborn was Father Maloney in "The Heart of Kathleen." Miss Hazel Buckham was the leading woman in "Heart Throbs" and "The Crimson Stain." The "Black Sheep" was not cast. If the director fails to send in the cast it can't be done.

R. D. J.—We think that if you sit on a cake of ice while you read that letter over again you will find the director did not accuse you of stealing your idea, but merely said it had been used. He gave the date to enable you to prove the statement. If he called you a thief with no more proof than a story that read like another, you have our permission to shoot him up as your first impulse suggested.

PED.—Amurex is in and out of the market. A letter from San Francisco says the day after the last night of the "Barbary Coast" was much livelier than the "last" night, and the correspondent is a good little coaster, too.

Answering your postscript we admit that you make a "noise" that would attract any squirrel, but the Answers Man is no squirrel.

W. H. J.—We must politely but very positively decline to tell you what the director was driving at. Probably something was lost in the cutting room getting the film down to length.

FANNETTE.—In "A Highland Romance" Richard Stanton was Donald, Joe King was William and Miss Esther Allen was May. We have not heard of Miss Westbrooke lately.

B. B.—Miss Florence Hackett was Arthur Johnson's wife in "The Power of the Cross." Miss Lottie Briscoe was Faith in "The Benefactor." We have no Frontier casts.

C. A.—Your only redress seems to be to employ a lawyer to recover your script. If the story should be produced your copyist will be required to sign a release stating that she owns all rights, which should help you to recover, but if you think it worth while it would be better to claim your property before it is sent to the studios.

MAJESTIC.—Sorry we cannot place the player for you.

A HOUSE OF FEATURE IDEAS.

Announcement is made by the Ruby Feature Film Co., of 145 West 45th Street, New York, of a novel three-reel release. Leon J. Rubinstein, the head of the concern, has shown an aptitude for securing subjects of current interest, and has just completed a strong feature dealing with the persecution of the Jewish people in the Russian Empire, culminating in the recent trial at Kieff. Sidney Golden directed the production, which is entitled, "The Black 107." For this work Mr. Rubinstein has secured the services of a company of Russian actors with all the picturesque costumes of the peasantry. "The Black 107" is the name of an anti-Semitic organization which has been active in the persecution of the chosen people in Russia. It is a notorious fact that its members embrace some of the most powerful in the empire's government, and the picture is given a touch of fidelity by carefully filmed accounts from leading Russian revolutionist workers who collaborated with the producers. The Universal's "Bleeding Hearts" and "Sorrows of Israel" are by the same director, from which the trade may gain an idea of the class of his work.

MR. IKE SCHLANK.

Mr. Ike Schlank, of the Belmont Film Co., having recuperated completely, has returned from the West and is once again at his desk. His indisposition prevented his completing the Belmont's new release "The Child Detective" until this date. He reports great activity among the buyers in the territory he covered and more than satisfied with the sales on "The Inspector of Police." The Belmont will release a feature every two weeks, as previously outlined. There is always a cordial greeting at the Belmont office for all visitors. Mr. Schlank may be better known to a number of the exchange men and film purchasers throughout the middle west through his connection with the former Atlas Film Co., of St. Louis. He organized the Belmont Film Company in New York about six months ago and has since built up an excellent business.

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by Epes Winthrop Sargent

List of Wants.

THREE letters this week complain that we do not run a list of manufacturers' wants. The writers argue that this paper lacks enterprise in not running such a list when a Los Angeles sheet does.

The Moving Picture World is a complete directory to the wants of the manufacturers. Each week it publishes the synopses of the releases and gives the news of the intended movements of field companies. The other week, for example, it ran the advertisement of the Gold Seal Brand of the Universal, in which it was stated that under this brand would be given the specials lately released by Bison, adding that the public has come to associate Bison with a certain type of release and it needed another brand to cover the big specials of other lines. It should not be necessary to repeat in this department that Universal is making three-reel military and general subjects. This fact is known to our readers who read. The fact that the series started with Capt. Kidd will be released as Gold Seal instead of 101-Bison does not figure largely.

Given the synopses and the news, the deduction is easy. On the other hand, we have never yet seen any list that was 50 per cent. correct, even when this list was compiled from information supplied by the editors themselves, because the editor frequently makes a broad general statement that the qualifies privately to his correspondence. Only last month one company went out of the market for one-reel scripts and came back again. We knew when it went and when it returned, but we did not print either fact because we also knew that the editor would read one-reel stories for a possible two-reel plot. The editor would not make this statement for publication because it would lead all one-reel authors to suggest that they had a two-reel plot, but with the facts as they were, the absence of any statement kept the balance. When an editor has any real need he lets us know and we print it if the authors can benefit by the knowledge, but the lists as printed are almost farcical paragraphs to those in the know. Keep posted by reading the Moving Picture World, but read it all the way through, including the advertisements.

The Ed-Au Club.

The first regular meeting of the Ed-Au Club was held at the Tavern Louis, Saturday evening, November 15. Owing to the inclemency of the evening there was but a small attendance. About the only business of the meeting was the adoption of the by-laws and the elevation of Pop Hoadley as treasurer. In future the club will meet every first Saturday and membership may be gained only through application and vote. Application should be made through the secretary. Applications mailed to this department will be passed along.

Those present were President Phil Lang, First Vice-President F. Marion Brandon, Arthur Leeds, Monte Katterjohn (who has renounced Boonville and its school forever), Arthur Leeds of the Photoplay Author, Edward J. Montagne, James Cogan, Mark S. Reardon, III, B. P. Schulberg, George L. Sargent, E. M. Wickes, of the Writers' Magazine, and E. W. Sargent.

With the by-laws out of the way, the organization complete and officers installed, the club will get down to hard work at the next meeting.

California Circles.

Cole Burke, who was to found a photoplay circle in Oakland, has moved across the bay and will form a circle there instead. Arrangements are being made to have another writer form the Oakland circle and all applications already made to Mr. Burke will be turned over to him. Meantime, if you want to join a San Francisco circle, send a stamped and self-addressed envelope for Mr. Burke's address.

A Cines Contest Here.

George Kleine announces that he will shortly give the particulars of a purely American Cines manuscript contest. Particulars will be announced in due time. Do not write in and ask if we have forgotten to mention this again.

Don't Worry.

We have had all sorts of letters from writers urging that if all editors should follow Mrs. Brandon's example and refuse to read the scripts of those who have not had three produced scripts to their credit, the market would soon be tied up to the few.

There is not the slightest danger that any such condition will ever come to pass. Mrs. Brandon is at liberty to make her own rulings and finds that by requiring the author to show three produced scripts she is saved a lot of incompetent material. There are other editors who prefer the script of the novice. They can tell the impossible at a glance and they do find much that is good coming from authors with no produced plays to their credit.

Some companies and some editors resent the flood of rot that floats the few good ideas. Others are willing to go through the mass of incompetent stuff in search of ideas. Both schemes have their good points. We know of one company that is preparing to employ rewrite men to handle the good idea improperly treated. The name of the company will be announced as soon as the scheme is started.

Who Is It?

We've been asked who the author is who was referred to in a recent advertisement as having made $13,000 in one year on scripts. We did not see the advertisement, but we assuredly would like to know who it was. We do not know of anyone doing better than $5,000 a year on script writing.

It is possible that Mrs. Nell Shipman may have made some statement that leads to this announcement, for we think that she got a percentage on her Mormon big-reel story, but even at that we have our doubts. It certainly cannot be shown that any writer has made $13,000 in any twelve months on straight script work. This is even more misleading than the Emmet Campbell Hall letter that served the schools for so long.

With Kings and Things.

The London Sketch has a weekly page headed, "We take off our hat to———," and portraits of celebrities. One recent issue makes the Sketch take off its hat to Mrs. Breuil "for being the author of 261 film plays written for American picture theaters." With President Wilson, Lady Duff Gordon and the Earl and Countess of Drogheda on the same page she is in smart company. It's a strong compliment to a clever writer.

Don't Spot Good News.

A Montreal correspondent had an unusual experience lately. Her envelope came back very promptly and she put it aside unopened. Later on she started to send the script to its next port of call and fell off her chair when she found a letter and a release slip instead of the script. Almost anyone would be willing to sustain a mild shock of that sort, but it seldom happens.

Even Polite Ones.

Supplementing their advertisement of last week, Calder Johnston, head of the Universal Script Department, gives these enlightening facts. It is good news that Universal is in the market for polite comedy, the demand for which is alarmingly small at present.

> We are running a special advertisement in the "World" for comedy scenarios and we will appreciate it if you give us a note in the next issue, and state that we are putting on ten comedies a week and that we are in the market for all sorts of comedies, either split or whole reel, and from broad slap-stick to the higher vein of amusement.
>
> You might mention our Joker brand. These are our special comedy releases and in which we are featuring the German comedians, Max Ascher and Harry McCoy.
>
> I will also appreciate it if you will make it known that the Universal Company is buying scripts. We are not buying many, it is true, because there are not many worth while buying. At the same time with twenty-eight reels a week, we have been and will continue to purchase outside material—but it must be exceptionally good.

It Didn't Take.

Looking over a script for a friend the other day, he was much interested in a suggestion we made and recommended a paragraph in the department as he had never seen the point raised before. Then he sent in the revise of the script and he made precisely the same error a second time, or rather he did not correct the first.

No fact is yours until you mentally assimilate it. It does you no good merely to read a fact. Study it, memorize it, and then use it.

Knows How It Is.

Read this paragraph over twice and then think it over:

In his preamble the writer says that he wrote two scripts, one of which sold and then:

> In the past few months I have written five other scripts. Four were rejected and one is being held. But why should I rise up and proclaim my ignorance and poor sportsmanship by berating the editors is more than I can see.
>
> I am in my regular vocation required to each day return incompleted and careless work to men employed by my concern, and I can perhaps in some degree appreciate the position of the editor. Perhaps an editor in many instances rejects scripts that should be retained and paid for, but when he does this he is but doing his company an injustice, and he will not last very long.

Here, at least, is one who understands. He has to turn back the poor work of others. He does not complain if his own work is turned back as not being up to standard. He keeps on and tries to improve it, and the time he might otherwise spend in complaining is spent in improving his style. We have always contended that in the time we might spend fretting over a script that was held too long we could write another script. When you can keep of a string of fifty scripts you are less apt to worry about any particular one.

Handicaps.

We spoke recently of a woman who was cheered by the success of another housewife who did not find the cares of a family fatal to the success of her writing. Comes another who thinks that if she were like Miss Justice she could do good work. She could not know that Miss Justice has had to defer her trip East because she is waiting until the slow disease from which her father suffers shall have run its course to a forewritten end.

There are few who are so fortunate as to be utterly free from care. Some of the best work one writer has done was done between midnight and five o'clock, while he sat up with his father, whose cancerous affliction made staying in bed intolerable. Night after night the writer would lay down his pencil not once, but a dozen times or more, yet there was nothing in his work to show the interruption.

Don't fail because you are handicapped. Make a success in spite of the handicap. Win against obstacle and the triumph will be the greater, the fruits of victory the sweeter for the price the effort cost. Win anyway.

One Point on Leaders.

Here's a little matter that cropped up the other day during a discussion. A leader should not be used in front of a bust. Do not write:

6—Railroad station—Nellie discovered Bill brushes past—she notes a peculiar shape patch on his coat.
Leader—The triangular patch.
7—Bust of Bill's coat showing a triangular patch.
8—Back to No. 6—Nellie hurries after Bill.

Instead, raise the leader to before six. There attention is called to the triangular patch. The spectator is looking for it. When the bust flashes it is merely as though one leaned forward to take a close look and then leaned back again. The use of the leader would interrupt the action and jar the sensibilities. Write it with the leader first and the action seems natural and there is no interruption.

A script would sell that had the leader wrongly inserted, but the exactly proper handling of the script will mark you as a trained writer. It is such little things that count.

Another Lesson Learned.

Probably this letter is not wholly sincere, but this is what an author writes:

> Another day, and another lesson learned in photoplay writing. Just received a script back from the Kalem. It had been with them about five weeks, much longer than they usually take in passing on my scripts, when I thought I would write and find out if it had been received or not. The next mail brought my script with a cold rejection slip stating "that the offering was not suited to their present needs," but which I knew was returned for "butting in." Better tell the would-be-playwrights not to "butt in" on the editors, and wait patiently until their Royal Highnesses see fit to answer your offering.

It would be well if the lesson had been learned, but the allusion to the Royal Highnesses suggests that the correspondent has not yet become reconciled to the conditions.

Here is the way it looks from the other side: The editor in question is a sincere and intelligent reader; one of those who can see the good in a script no matter how obscurely it may be written. Something in this script attracted him. Instead of returning the script at once, as is done in the case of rejections, he held it for a consultation with the member of the firm, who insists that all scripts be shown him before they are purchased. For some reason there was a delay in reaching this man higher up, and the author, by showing his eagerness, got himself into the class with those who are first impatient and then abusive. Knowing the symptoms, the editor merely returned the script to head off further and more strenuous communications.

It is irritating in the extreme to have to wait and wonder, but it is no more pleasant for the editor and he cannot be blamed if he returns the script of the kicker, knowing that probably the first letter is merely the forerunner of others of more pronounced tone. He is doing the best he can, his position is not a happy one. You must wait on him, but he must wait the pleasure of his employer. Make it as easy as you can for him.

For Editors.

We do not place the company mentioned in this letter, but the writer of the following seems to have the best of the argument.

> I wish to take your time just long enough to protest against the policy of one of our film manufacturers. This company recently advertised in the "Editor" for scenarios on a special subject. The one submitted by me was fully as good as some I have sold (which is neither here nor there), but—it was returned without a slip of any kind, or even a plain "thank you." No one knows better than the editor that this scenario is practically valueless for submission to other companies, at least for a year or more to come, also that it was written in answer to their call and fulfilling their requirements—and so I ask, in justice to the effort and interest of the author, doesn't a company under these circumstances owe at least the courtesy of a polite "thank you?"

Where scripts are written on some special line in reply to an appeal to the writers, the courtesy of a mild regret is the least that can be extended those who have made no sale, but, on the other hand, we fail to see why any writer should answer such an appeal. Any regular company with a regular establishment knows where to go to get all these special scripts and does not have to appeal to writers in general. Such an appeal argues either that the company is not regular or, being regularly established, it does not, for some reason, dare to appeal to the experienced man.

William Lord Wright, for example, does a lot of industrial work. He is a specialist in this line and can turn out a story about anything from cradles to coffins and what comes in between. A regular company will turn to a man like him for any special order, but if it wants to get some stuff and not pay for it, naturally it picks on the unwary and not the experienced, so it advertises in some publication where the advertisement is not apt to be regarded with suspicion and—quien sabe?

Do not write on special subjects, except on special order and then only when you have a reasonable certainty that you will be paid for your work. There was a company in Chicago that wrote a number of authors that it would give a thousand dollars for the best special script, and from $25 to $100 for some others. We know of one or two sales at $25, but we have yet to hear of the winner of the big prize. Keep out of contests and do not gamble on the special subject. It rarely, if ever, pays.

More Experience.

It is a pleasure to print a letter like the following, not because it bears out our contention, but because, while doing that, it shows how one outsider became an insider:

> After reading last issue of the World I find it hard to keep from writing you, commending your article in a recent issue relative to "Ground Rules." The knocking against conditions as they now exist seems to me to be entirely uncalled for. There are, of course, things that we do not like, but in time these minor inconveniences will adjust themselves. I am going to relate some of my experiences for my first year writing scripts, and if there is any item you may care to use you are entirely at liberty to do so, though I respectfully request that you do not use my name, as I am adverse to "breaking into print."
>
> A little over a year ago I decided to write a photoplay. To my great surprise the crude effort was accepted and I received a check for the munificent sum of $10. (I might add that I have searched in vain for the produced film of that script, and I have been forced to come to the conclusion that it was one of the many destroyed after being paid for.) This $10 check left me undecided: Was it a cinch to write photoplays or was I a genius? Both ideas were soon knocked out of my head as I wrote twenty scripts (in as many days) and the speed with which they were returned certainly did not look like "three or four months in the studio." These twenty alleged scripts were, however, a very great help to me, for they opened my eyes to the fact that any old thing was not a photoplay. The next two scripts were different; they were the result of some good hard thinking and they both sold, one for $30 and one for $20. I had been studying and learning by using your department every week. At this point I received my first real help, aside from the ever helping columns of your department, in the shape of a letter from an editor, pointing out my faults and offering good advice, also encouraging me with the news that he thought I might be able to furnish plays to suit the requirements of his company. I then began in earnest and since that time I have been able to sell a little better than fifty per cent. This same editor has ever since tried to help me, taking his own valuable time to do so, writing me letters of advise and criticism or making notes on rejections. It is entirely due to this editor's kindness that I am still in the game, knowing a little more than I did a year ago and determined to make this year better than last. Therefore, I cannot take much stock in the knocks against editors. This may seem like basing a conclusion on one instance, but I must say that I have had dealings with a great number of companies and in all but one case I have found the editors uniformly kind and courteous. I have never had a script held over one month and then returned. As a rule, scripts that do sell are returned within two weeks, with the exception of one company, and, of course, everybody knows that company's system requires a longer time.
>
> Just one more thing: The company that buys a majority of my scripts has regularly increased the price they pay me for scripts, as the scripts, evidently, increase in quality. I must say I can find no kick, and my first year at the "photoplay school of experience" has not only not cost me anything but study and shows a little cash net.

Here is a man who started "from the ground." He has had the worst thing happen that possibly can happen to the average writer. He sold his first script. Like the rest, he concluded it was easy and he wrote twenty in the next month. Then, unlike the average, instead of becoming discouraged, he woke up. He realized that the trouble was not with the editors but with his scripts, and so he bettered his scripts instead of cursing the editors. He wrote a style of script that appealed particularly to one studio and so he sells most of his work to that one studio, shopping to the others when he does not sell there. He is not living near a studio; his address is a R. F. D. route, but he is making good because he was determined and because he had it in him. Not all editors are helpful, not all know enough to be helpful, for that matter, but if you write the sort of stuff that some editor wants, you'll find the helpful editor, but you won't find him by going around with a gun in one hand and a club in the other.

Introductions.

Too many authors neglect to clearly "establish" their characters. Just yesterday we saw a character bob up in the middle of a story with never a word of explanation. He was needed and he was brought in, but whether he was a minister or a muffin man could not be told from the script. Pop Hoadley dillated on this point at a recent Inquest, and said it was one of the most common faults in the scripts he read. Almost any editor will tell you the same. Identify all of your leading characters in the first third of your first reel.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Question No. 9.

BEST answer will be published and names of others sending in replies of excellence will be published in the "Roll of Honor."

* * *

Show by drawings or sketches how you would connect the field rheostat, the voltmeter and the ammeter of a motor generator set your employer purchased. What I mean by this is: supposing the device came to you without any instructions whatever accompanying it, to what and how would you connect the field rheostat, the ammeter and the voltmeter?

Reply to Question No. 3.

This question seems to have been a poser; it reads as follows:

> What is the essential difference, both mechanically and electrically, in a shunt-wound and a compound-wound dynamo, and which is the best for use in an isolated plant supplying current for house lighting and projection, and why is it the best? (I guess this will hold you for a minute.)

And it certainly did hold them for a minute. There were a good many replies, but only three which were worthy of any consideration at all. One from Fort Worth, Texas, was very good, but entirely too technical.

Mr. L. C. La Graw, Albany, N. Y., is on the Roll of Honor all by his lonesome this week, although his answer is not sufficiently complete for publication.

Mr. W. Johnston, Toronto, Canada, sent in a good reply, so far as it went, but he side-stepped a very important part of the question, viz: which machine is best for an isolated plant. In view of these circumstances I have asked Mr. J. H. Hallberg to answer Question No. 3, and that gentleman has very kindly complied as follows:

> In reply to yours of the 31st ult., requesting that I answer Question No. 3 reading:
>
> "What is the essential difference both electrically and mechanically in a shunt and a compound-wound dynamo, and which is the best to use in an isolated plant supplying current for house lighting and projection, and why is it the best?"
>
> I submit the following:
>
> An electric dynamo is composed of two essential parts:
>
> 1. The rotating armature, which is generally driven by a belt on a pulley from some primary source of power, such as an engine of some sort. The armature windings are connected to a number of copper bars set in cylindrical form, each one insulated from the other, making up what is called the commutator. Carbon brushes are held at fixed position, but under spring tension, against these copper commutator bars for the purpose of collecting current generated in the armature windings when the armature is being rotated.
>
> 2. The magnetic field circuit having two or more iron pole pieces extending toward the armature, each one of the pole pieces surrounded by many turns of comparatively fine copper wire, called shunt field winding.
>
> These shunt coils, or windings, are connected in series with each other and one of the ends is connected to one of the brush holder armature terminals. The other end is usually connected to a field rheostat, which is, in turn, connected to the other brush holder armature lead. There is always a certain amount of magnetism in the iron of the pole pieces. This small permanent magnetism, or as it is called, residual magnetism, induces a current in the armature windings when the armature is rotated within the pole piece at high speed, which is collected from the commutator by the carbon brushes. This current, of very low voltage to begin with, goes through the field rheostat, then through the shunt field windings and back again to the opposite side to the brush holder lead, and induces increased magnetism in the pole pieces, which in turn increases the magnetic lines of force cut by the armature, and this keeps on increasing the current, and consequently the voltage, generated by the armature until a balance is reached, which is pre-determined by the designer, at which time the armature, rotating at a given speed, will deliver a certain voltage which we will say, in this instance, is 110. By means of the field rheostat in series with the field winding, the resistance in series with the field can be increased which will decrease the magnetic lines of force in the pole pieces, and this lowers the voltage generated by the armature. Then the resistance may be cut out, which will increase the magnetic flux and, as a result, the voltage at the armature terminals will increase proportionately at the will of the operator.
>
> The above is a description of a plain shunt-wound dynamo. As long as the armature is rotated at a fixed speed, it will deliver a fixed voltage, or potential.
>
> If the brush holder leads are now connected to a load of some sort, current will flow, not only through the shunt field, but also through the load, and the dynamo will then begin to do work. The application of load to a dynamo affects several of its component elements:
>
> 1. The engine may slow down a little.
> 2. The belt may slip.
> 3. The resistance of the armature, becoming warm, will increase.
> 4. The resistance between the commutator and the carbon brushes and the brush connections in general will increase.
> 5. The tendency of an increased load is to demagnetize the field. In other words, to oppose the magnetic lines of force excited by the field winding.
> 6. The shunt winding in service will become heated, naturally increasing its resistance.
>
> All of the above changes in shunt-wound dynamo when the load is applied, tend to lower its voltage, and the greater the load or the number of amperes taken from the armature leads, the greater this tendency. In view of this fact, a shunt-wound dynamo is not the best type for use where a constant voltage is required, such as is the case where a complete moving picture theater is to be lighted and operated.
>
> In order to prevent the drop in voltage usually present in shunt-wound dynamos, the compound-wound dynamo has been developed. The compound wound dynamo is exactly like the shunt-wound type, except that in addition to the armature and the shunt field windings, there is applied a few turns of very heavy wire around each one of the pole pieces on top of, or at the side of the shunt winding. This extra coil on each pole piece is called a "compound winding," and the size of the wire is large enough to carry the total ampere output of the dynamo, and there are just enough turns of this large wire on each pole piece, connected in series with one of the armature leads, so that when the current coming from the armature passes through these large windings around the pole pieces, the amperes flowing through this winding will assist the shunt winding in generating more magnetic lines of force and of just the amount required to compensate for the drop in the voltage in the various parts of the shunt generator, already mentioned. In other words, if you have a machine which can deliver 100 amperes, there might be five turns of this coarse wire on each pole piece, therefore when ten amperes are flowing in the coarse winding, as would be the case if you have a load of ten amperes on the line, there would be 10 times 5, or 50 ampere turns more to excite the pole pieces, which means an increase in the magentic lines of force. Suppose we increase the load to 100 amperes, then we still have the same five turns on each pole piece, but the magnetism would be further increased, because we now have 5 times 100 amperes, or 500 ampere turns over and above the shunt field to excite the pole pieces, which still further increases the magnetic lines of force, and there would be a consequent voltage increase at the armature terminals. These compound windings can be so nicely arranged and designed that the machine will deliver at the terminal block an absolutely constant voltage, irrespective of the number of amperes delivered by the generator from no load to full load, providing, of course, the armature is kept rotating at a fixed speed. This is, in most instances, impossible because there will always be a little slippage of belt, etc., and that is one reason why the field controller has to be manipulated by hand. The field controller must also be manipulated, as the generator windings become heated from constant load, as it is necessary to compensate for the increased resistance in the windings.
>
> In view of the foregoing, there can be no question about which type of dynamo is most suitable for general lighting where a constant voltage has to be applied. The compound wound generator is the only one to use for satisfactory results, and in some instances the dynamos are even over-compound as may be required to make up for line losses, but this is not necessary with generators for isolated plants. I believe the above to be a clear and comprehensive answer to your question.

Can't Get a Spot Large Enough.

Mr. B. P. Walker, Palatka, Fla., orders a Handbook and says he has just installed a Power's Six A machine. He cannot get a spot large enough and asks what is the trouble and how he can remedy this condition.

Evidently, brother Walker, you are using short focal length condensing lenses, and are unable to get the lamp far enough forward to make the spot of sufficient size. You understand the size of the spot depends upon the distance of the arc from the condensers. Your remedy is to tilt your carbons slightly ahead by loosening the jaws and dropping the lower and raising the upper one. This will give you a condition somewhat similar to that shown on page 210, figure 99 of the Handbook, though it will not be necessary to tilt them that much. The Power's lamp is faulty in this respect. When using very short focal length lenses which won't allow the lamp to come far enough ahead so that the carbon set shown in figure 101, page 211 of the Handbook, which is the correct set, can be used when the lamp is set at the proper angle. You might also try giving the lamp less angle and see how that works.

Artistically Rotten.

From the far West comes the following:

> I would like to see more discussion regarding the article in October 25th issue, dealing with magnification. The cuts showed the pin, needle, stinger and thorn magnified 500 times, and you then ask us to consider that we were magnifying blemishes in our pictures many thousands of times. I accept, without attempting to verify, your figures regarding the aperture and screen, but let me ask: Was the negative of these points their actual size or is the negative or picture, or impression (suit yourself), 500 times the actual size of the points? Or, again, is the point in the negative as small as compared to the actual point, as a man in a moving picture is to an actual man? Allowing that a man on a film is not probably 1/200 of his actual size (he is only about, at a guess, 1/40,000 of his actual area dimension.—Ed.), and when projected on a screen is seldom over twice normal size, it seems to me the comparison is erroneous, not a fair one. You know that a person magnified 500 times would show some blemishes, and we would also have to save some screen to show him. And what amperage and what size carbons would you have to use? Am working double shift, that is to say, four hours relief and three hours elsewhere at night, with two hours between. Have rectifier and Power's machines in both places. The downtown house uses not over 20 amperes on a gold fibre screen, and I get what I call an artistically rotten picture, but it is the best the boss will stand for. The chief, downtown, is a good man to care for a machine, as he has kept the Power's running eighteen months, eleven hours a day, seven days a week, without repairs. In the suburban house I have a 30-ampere mercury arc rectifier with Power's Six machine, a 12-foot picture at 70 feet, clear cut and distinct. Two vent flues, one 24 x 24 inches, and the other good size, with one fan in either. Only have 24 inches of drop in the projection. Have a Kimble variable speed motor with the handle convenient, so that speed may be quickly changed. Everyone complains of the Kimble running hot in the bearings on the commutator end, have to watch mine closely. (Manufacturers of Kimble motors take notice. Ed.)

That "artistically rotten" expression of yours made a hit with me. As to the magnification, why, I see what you are driving at all right, but your point is not, in my judgment, well taken. The original object in one case is the point of a pin, or the life size negative of the point of a pin (as you will) magnified 500 times; in the other case it is the negative of a man magnified several thousand times, not the man but the negative. Of course, if you magnified the man all those thousands of times that would be truly a marvelous performance, and he would pretty well blot out the landscape. The point I make is that you first reduce the man several thousand times (area dimensions) and then you magnify that reduction to its original, or perhaps twice its original bulk. You must bear in mind that I was calling attention to the wonders accomplished by photography. It is nothing short of marvelous that you can magnify a photograph all those thousands of times and still have it so perfect that it is a presentable object on a screen. My whole idea was not the showing of the defects of the photograph itself, and there you are. I may add to this by saying that it is an astounding thing that even cheap lenses can be made so perfect that this infinitesimal object in a tiny photograph can be projected more than one hundred feet and placed on the screen with every line apparently perfect. To me it is a marvelous thing indeed. As to your remarks concerning union matters, while I agree with you, still it is better not to publish, especially under the circumstances, and you being a member. If I published all the letters received from unions and individual members since the convention there would be a near riot in the I. A. T. S. E.

Information Wanted.

Mr. A. E. Dickey, Buhl, Idaho, contributes the following:

> Is there any reason why I could not turn the intermittent sprocket of a Power's Six switch end for end, thereby obtaining twice the wear I would otherwise get? With reference to the article on light qualities, I have, myself, obtained all the light values mentioned from a lamp at different times, due, I think, to the different conditions of the line and various shapes of the crater, caused by slight difference in the set, and a variance of the voltage across the arc. I cannot get satisfactory results from hydrofluric acid on slide glass. How do you use it? I am enclosing sample of lubricant which I compounded for use on projector gears. Will you please try it out and advise me as to having it patented? In closing, I wish to heartily recommend the Handbook and the Moving Picture World to anyone interested in the business of projection.

As to the sprocket, it can be reversed, but the pin holes would most likely not fit, and it is a job which I cannot recommend you to tackle; it might turn out all right and then again it might not. You see, Brother Dickey, an error of even as much as 2 or 3 one-thousandths of an inch will show appreciably on the screen. The better way in my judgment is to have two complete framing carriages, and when anything is to be done to one of them just install the other, and send the worn one in to the factory. In these days of parcels post it only costs a few cents to send a whole framing carriage to New York City (removing the fly wheel, of course), and then you know the article is right when you get it back. Of course, in large cities there are machine shops where a new sprocket can be installed and the job done as it should be, but even so if the distance be not excessive I would prefer the factory, and I think you would be taking a decided charce with the average small town machinist.

It is quite true that very simple things will change the light tone, and sometimes change it considerably, too. I am not sure about the hydrofluric acid, but if it is the kind that eats into glass, as I think it is, you simply coat the glass with some wax, such as paraffine, draw the design you wish etched into the wax and pour on the acid, which does not effect the wax, but eats into the surface of the glass. I am not sure I am correct about this, but my recollection is that there is an acid that will eat glass, and that hydrofluric is the stuff. As to the lubricant, it is a good gear compound, but I would not take out a patent if I were you. A patent is only of real value where you can cover what is called a "basic principle," so that no one else can use that particular principle without paying you a royalty. Make the compound and market it if you think that you can clear up some money on it, but a patent would not do you any good whatever on that kind of a proposition. Someone would just change the proportions of your compound a little and—what are you going to do about it? A patent is of little account unless you can patent a basic principle and back the patent up with a huge war fund. It cost one of our leading projection machine manufacturers many, many thousands of dollars to fight one of their patent claims through the courts to victory, and even then the "victory," as far as I can see, had quite a number of pretty good size strings tied to it. I do not think much of the patent game myself. You asked for my advice; you have it. Now use your own judgment.

Ashland, Wisconsin, Answered.

Mr. Charles J. Siler, New York City, answers Ashland as follows:

> With regard to brother Lubiens, Ashland, Wis., November 1 issue, if he will take his rheostat apart, removing every coil, and clean the connections thoroughly, also his lamp terminals, he will find the trouble will disappear. You know the heat oxidizes the iron in the coils and the scale thus formed offers high resistance. Under these conditions you might light a test lamp from the jaws of the lamp, but at the same time get no arc. Sometimes, however, a sharp jarring of the rheostat will break the scale sufficient to allow current to flow. I have a letter from a friend of mine in Omaha, and he says that conditions in that city are very bad indeed. Says he worked for one house for four years and was getting $12.00 when he left to take a job on the Union Pacific Railroad as section hand at $1.90 a day for eight hours. States he now at least eats three times a day, which was more than he could do, and do decently, when operating a machine in Omaha.

From these reports it would seem that Omaha needs considerable fixing. If Omaha operators prefer the job of section hand to a position as operator, certainly conditions in that city must be pretty close to the limit. As to the rheostat matter, brother Siler is perfectly correct. I have time and again pointed out the importance of keeping all connections perfectly clean and have called the attention of operators to the fact that when a copper connection is exposed to heat it oxidizes and that the scale thus formed has high resistance—very high resistance—although it is quite thin. The same action takes place to some extent, though much more slowly, in the rheostat where the iron coil is clamped against iron or against brass. Brother Siler, as I stated before, is perfectly correct and Ashland will probably be helped by following his directions.

A Brain-Storm.

Mr. A. C. Stewart, Rossland, British Columbia, Canada, says:

> If you think the idea of sufficient importance for the consideration of the brothers, I submit the following brain-storm. Flicker is caused by alternations of light and darkness on the screen. If the darkness could be replaced with about the same degree of light that goes through the average film, it seems to me that flicker would be minimized. Now, with an auxiliary source of light, say of 10 amperes, projected to register in the same place on the screen through an aperture of the same size as the projector aperture, controlled by the same kind of a shutter, but with exactly opposite setting, would replace the darkness with a light of about the same intensity as the picture. There would, therefore, be no time when the screen would be dark, consequently, no transition from light to darkness; therefore, no flicker. The additional expense of burning two arcs instead of one would be compensated for by the fact that flicker blades could be eliminated.

I am not quite sure about your brain-storm, Brother Stewart, but I am inclined to think the idea might prove effective. However, I am also inclined to believe that it might be possible to do something along this line without using two arcs. I do not know what experiments have been made, but the idea appeals to me at first glance as being worthy of consideration, at least.

Must Be Union.

From Arapahoe, Neb., comes a letter which says:

> Regarding the trouble Mr. Lyman H. Howe has in securing the right kind of operators, I have studied the matter very thoroughly, and have come to the conclusion that I can, if given the opportunity and first class equipment, put high class projection on the screen—projection such as Mr. Howe demands. I am not a union operator, but have eight years of hard, actual experience in road shows, carnivals, theaters, and state right feature shows. I have operated under almost every condition, I think, in existence, and I have my first failure to make. My slogan has been and always will be—high class projection all the times.

I have given this letter space because it comes from a man who seems to mean business. I have also referred the matter to Mr. Walkenshaw, Mr. Howe's general manager, although the party in question is ineligible by reason of the fact that Mr. Howe must have union operators, since his shows go, for the most part, into large opera houses where the advent of a non-union man would cause trouble immediately. I will be glad to supply the name of this operator should any manager wish to correspond with him, but in writing mention the fact that it is the operator in Arapahoe, Neb., so that I can locate this address in my files.

Well Looked After.

When San Francisco Local. No. 162 gave their ball Saturday evening, August 30th, the reception committee consisted of a mere trifle of eighty-six men. Surely the visitors must have been received with warm welcome and eclat. Query: Did local No. 162 run out of men or did the program page just hold eighty-six names?

Stand By My Guns.

Mr. W. I. Emily, Sequin, Washington, writes:

> Was much interested in your article on magnification, page 326, October 25th issue. Now when you say that a 16-foot picture has a magnification of 37,440 times, you are in error. The magnification is only 180 times, or diameters. When we speak of magnifying an object we speak of it in "diameters," thus. magnifying anything twice its size is reproducing it two diameters. You will see, by looking at the pictures of the pin and needle points, the thorn and sting of the wasp, that only a very small piece of them has been used, which would be necessary in order to enlarge them 500 times. Another thing, I am quite sure that this was originally a much larger picture, at least a cabinet, but probably an 8 x 10 in size, which has been cut up in order to get in the columns of the paper. Now your 16-inch picture, of course, occupies a space 37,440 times the original size of the picture at the machine aperture, but it is only magnified 180 diameters. My brother-in-law, who runs the Olympic Theater in Seattle, is inclined to accept your opinion, instead of mine, in this matter, therefore, I hope this will appear in print.

It strikes me that you are industriously engaged in splitting hairs. I believe I was very careful to say that I was dealing with area magnification, and not diameters, or linear. I hold that if it requires 37,440 of an original object to cover the same area as the magnification, then by the great horn spoon of the prophet, that particular thing has been magnified 37,440 times, though you may call it anything you like. At least that is the way I look as it. Maybe I am wrong, if so point out to me the why and wherefore of my error. You are mistaken. The picture was reproduced exactly, or very nearly exactly, its original size. You may tell that distinguished brother-in-law of yours that he is a friend of mine, and a man of surpassing wisdom.

A Progressive Union.

Local Union No. 75, I. A. T. S. E., of Peoria and Pekin, Ill., organized September 9, 1913, encloses a money order for $37.50 for fifteen copies of the Handbook for its members, and writes as follows:

> At last we come forth out of darkness into the light. We organized six weeks ago. It was rather a stiff proposition, but we finally formed Local 75, with every operator in Peoria and Pekin a member. Our boys are all readers of the Department, and in it we find many useful hints from time to time. Projection here is A-1, as there is much friendly rivalry among the men as to who can obtain the best screen results. The current is 220 a. c. and most of the houses use Fort Wayne compensarcs, and last, but not least, there are several of your old Handbooks here, but none of the new, therefore, find enclosed money order for $37.50, for which kindly send us fifteen copies of the new edition for our members. Two years ago, when the convention was held here, the delegates tried very hard to get the operators together, but as there were only three legs to the table and as two of these fell out, the whole thing tumbled. However, the picture business here is to-day on an altogether different basis than it was then. There are now seventeen houses in Peoria and four in Pekin, and at present there are four more exclusively picture houses in course of construction in the city. Enclosed find roster of our officers and picture of some of the boys. The picture shows just half our boys. Photo of remainder will be forwarded later.

My compliments to Local Union No. 75. May it live long and prosper. Now here is a union which does not propose to sit back on its haunches and howl about the tremendous "damage" the circulation of books does. On the contrary, it gets busy and orders books for a large majority of its members. That is what I call horse sense. The Peoria boys don't propose to let the non-union men lead them. In fact, they intend to be several jumps ahead of their non-union competitors. The secretary of No. 75 says that projection is A-1 in Peoria, and I'll bet it is, too, because it is in the hands of progressive men who are willing to expend as much money for the purchase of knowledge, and for the improvement of themselves in their chosen calling, as several rounds of drinks would amount to. The last time I was in Chicago I was in a thirst emporium in company with some friends when I met a member of Local Union No. 2 whom I had known in days gone by. There were several in the party and this operator insisted upon treating. The round of drinks cost him $1.20. I winked to myself as I said to him, "bye-the-way, have you got a copy of the new Handbook?" "No, I have not," was his reply, "I intend to get one, but it is pretty expensive—$2.50 all in one bunch." It is to laugh! Now mind you this is not a fable, but an incident which actually occurred. Evidently the Peoria boys value knowledge at least as highly as they do things which might do them a whole lot less good. So highly do I regard the action of the new union that I have personally autographed every one of the fifteen books as follows: "Compliments of the author to ———, who is a member of the progressive organization—Local Union No. 75, I. A. T. S. E." The name will, of course be filled in by the secretary of the union.

A Few Questions.

From Chicago comes the following:

> Am operating a Power's Six A, using 50 amperes, 110 volt a. c., getting a good light, but when I boost the amperage up to 60 my 5/8 cored carbons won't stand the load—that is to say, they pencil badly. I do not think the Bell & Howell transformer I am using will deliver more than its rated capacity of 60 amperes.

The brother then goes on to tell of one or two stunts he has pulled off with certain tools. However, I will not publish this part of it, because the Chicago union is opposed to operators who commit the heinous crime of trying to tell a brother operator how to do something. He also sends a sample of some very nice announcement slide pen work. As to the carbons, possibly your transformer does deliver above its rated amperage. Anyhow, if the needling is detrimental to your light you must use a larger carbon, but find out first for sure that the contact between your carbon and the carbon arm is good.

Chillicothe, Missouri, Answered.

Mr. Ben Whitson, Oklahoma City, Okla., says he had the same trouble that Chillicothe, complained of in November 1st issue, viz.: wire burning off inside the lamphouse. He remedied it as follows: Took two pieces of 00 copper wire, each twelve inches long, hammered them flat at the ends, and connected the wire terminals to one end and the other to the lamp, first having drilled a hole. He also removed the heavy piece of asbestos from the top of the lamphouse, so that the lamp would keep as cool as possible. All of which is respectfully referred to Chillicothe's attention.

Group of Some of the Members of Peoria and Pekin, Ill., Local No. 75.

Top Row (left to right).—R. Spoots, George Pape, W. Renegar, E. Abel. Second Row. H. Mills, Ed. Buck, D. C. Adams, F. Ayers, Chauncey Motter, F. Langenburg and H. Dittmer. First Row (sitting).—H. Birren, Wm. McLinden, P. W. Woodrow, Chas. Dummler, Ray Beers, C. Todhunter and F. Manson. Bottom Row.—H. Woodrow, C. Robertson and F. Sands.

New York City Has Trouble.

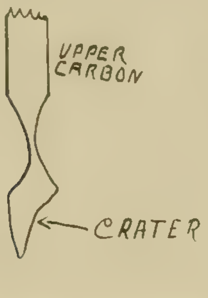
New York City puts up the following wail:

> Two hundred and twenty volt 60 cycle a.c., two Power's Six A motor-driven machines, Power's inductors, 5¼ e.f. objective; 90 foot throw and a 16 foot picture. This is the condition, and now to the question: I cannot use ⅝ cored carbons, either Bio or Electra, by reason of the fact that they needle and the top carbons burn in half between the end and the carbon jaws, as per illustration. No matter whether I run the inductor on medium, high or low this condition obtains. Carbons are set as described on page 211, figure 101 of the Handbook, which is my Bible, and, by the way, that set is the one that gets results with a.c.



> As using ¾ cored Electras, but cannot get a clear field, and when I first trim they smoke for about ten minutes. Connections are all tight. And now, I will explain something else: the fire underwriters compel me to put my inductors on a shelf out of my reach and I am obliged to stand on my stool to reach them, the lead wires being about 14 feet long. What effect will this have on the light? I do not like to trouble you thus, but know of no other source of reliable help.

This is exactly what the department is for, brother, and you are not "troubling" me by asking me to do what I am paid to do. The 14-foot leads would have no appreciably bad effect if they are number six wire, since number six asbestos covered wire is rated to carry 65 amperes of current—46 rubber covered. But in any event it would only serve to reduce the current flow. I think probably you have carbons which have in some way become oily and that possibly, also, the inside of your carbon jaws are dirty or rough, or both. Clean and smooth up inside of the jaws and buy some fresh carbons.

New York and Jersey City Managers, Attention!

Now comes the Sheffield Engine Company with a most decidedly interesting proposition, signed by their Mr. D. M. Sachter, manager, which reads:

> The undersigned is the sales manager of Sheffield light plants, as well as an exhibitor, and realizing the advantages in every way of such a light plant for moving picture houses, in places, with or without central light plants, we inserted a page ad on October 25, in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, and I wish to state that this one insertion literally swamped us with inquiries.
>
> We have received quite a number of orders and are working day and night to catch up, but all of these orders came from places having natural gas. Now our engine can be operated with either gas, gasoline, or kerosene, and knowing the value of an approval of your department, providing we can make our claims good, I am writing this with a request for you to see if arrangements can be made with some exhibitor in your vicinity to install a plant, say for a month or two, or as long a time as you specify, we to install, operate, and furnish him with electric current at our expense, and at the end of the period we will remove the plant, and leave the place in as good order as when we went in.
>
> Should we get this opportunity to demonstrate our outfit, we know that the Sheffield Light Plant will get your approval. We will operate the plant with artificial gas, gasoline and kerosene oil. Will it be asking you too much to locate an exhibitor who will allow us to put in our plant for a demonstration?

At last here is an engine company that not only claims excellency for its product, but is willing to thoroughly demonstrate that excellency to this department. Comment is unnecessary. I now want to hear from theater managers who are willing to have this test made in their theaters, remembering that it will give one of them one month's light practically free of cost, though I think the manager ought to volunteer to pay a nominal sum per k.w. for the current. It will be noted that they will operate the plant not only with one fuel but with three, thus demonstrating its efficiency when using artificial gas, gasoline, and kerosene.

I would much prefer that this test be made in a theater using two machines and having a well lighted front and auditorium, in other words, a thoroughly up-to-date moving picture theater of good size, and if possible one centrally located, since, unquestionably a great many theater managers and operators will desire to see this plant in operation. Theater managers who wish to take advantage of this offer should communicate with the editor without delay. In this connection it may be said that the MOVING PICTURE WORLD is always glad to take notice of demonstrations of any kind that promise a saving to the exhibitor in the purchase of equipment; not only as to isolated plants, but of any mechanical article.

An Arc Concentrator.

Mr. J. W. Desbecker, of the Boylite Concentrator Company, writes:

> A few remarks may be pertinent to the interesting discussion of arc lens, and general machine efficiency, as outlined on page 491 of the November 4th issue. Attention has been called, by Mr. Martin, to the new high c.p. nitrogen-tungsten incandescents, which will be offered for sale in a few months. Where or how Mr. Martin received the idea that these lamps would obviate the necessity for condensing lenses, I cannot say, because no matter what the source of light may be, a condenser of some kind is certainly a necessity, because the light itself throws out diverging and not converging rays. The reflector to which you refer on page 492, you will be interested to learn, is now in the final stage of development. As you say, it does away with, or rather takes the place of condensing lenses, therefore, there can be no condenser breakage. The current saving made possible by this device is well worthy of careful consideration, and the light projected is exceedingly clear, even, brilliant and white. There are no streaks, colors, or shadows. This device, known as the Boylite Concentrator, will soon be ready for general trade use. The idea of using incandescents instead of arcs for projection is not new, but it necessitates an intense and concentrated light considerably beyond the power of anything so far developed. For stereopticon work there is now sometimes used a concentrated filament tungsten lamp of 81 m.h.c.p. With the nitrogen lamp it is quite possible to get six or eight times this c.p. with a fairly small filament, but, however, the difficulty lies here: As the c.p. increases, the volume of space occupied by the filament also of necessity increases, and for high power, such as 1,500 or 5,000 c.p., the front surface area of the filament is so great that by no stretch of the imagination can it be considered an ideal "point of light." The difficulty of attempting to rival the arc lamp is seen when one compares the much lower temperature of the tungsten-nitrogen lamp with the more than 3,000 centigrade of the carbon crater; hence, it is safe to say that, for a considerable time to come, at least, the arc, with its high temperature and consequently high light intensity will maintain its supremacy for motion picture work which requires a powerful light source.
>
> To turn to the subject of lenses: It will probably surprise most readers to learn that in passing through an ordinary pane of glass there is a loss of more than 15 per cent. in the light efficiency. It is, therefore, quite reasonable to expect a much greater light efficiency when it passes through two thicknesses of condenser lenses, averaging a total of probably one inch of glass. Mr. Martin's quotation of 70 per cent. light loss between the back surface of the back lens and front surface of the forward lens, is extremely interesting. With the increasing attention which is being turned toward to the development of the moving picture, we may justly anticipate great improvement in the mechanical and optical features to keep pace with the daily march toward perfection of the film and photography.

This letter is interestingly written by a man who plainly has knowledge of his subject. Mr. Desbecker, however, overlooks or deliberately sidesteps the really important point of the whole proposition as relates to the nitrogen lamp. If the Boylite Light Concentrator, which I examined and saw demonstrated, with most astounding results, more than a year ago, can be so developed that it is practical for the average operator to handle it in conjunction with the moving picture arc lamp, it would mark an enormous step in advance in projection, but for one thing, which might or might not be, but seems to me to be insurmountable objection, viz.: The fact that it apparently of necessity leaves the front of the projector, or, in other words, the film at the aperture, exposed to the direct rays of the arc, without anything whatever intervening. Now, I very much doubt if the authorities will ever stand for that particular proposition. Of course, as long as everything was operating smoothly there would be little or no danger of sparks from the arc setting the film on fire, since in the modern projector it is entirely enclosed, except at the immediate aperture. However, when things go wrong that is something else again, and there would be nothing to prevent the film striking a hot carbon or the arc itself. But to revert to the filament lamp, it strikes me that inasmuch as I saw the Boylite Concentrator project a splendid 12-foot picture with 12 amperes of current, it might be possible that it would work perfectly and produce a practical projection light with the new high power incandescent spoken of. I do not say that this is the fact by any means, but it seems to me that it is within the possibilities and the new light might be the one thing that would remove the objection named, and render the Boylite Concentrator a commercially practical proposition. At any rate we are indebted to friend Desbecker for contributing his views in such excellent form. Such discussion is of extreme value and we shall be glad to have the views of others on this important subject.

Condenser Breakage.

Defiance, Ohio, tells us that as soon as he puts a new condenser in it will crack, and before the end of the evening it will be cracked all over. He also says, "I wish you would tell me what makes them get so hazy?"

Now, look here, Defiance, this matter has been treated over and over and over and over and over again in the department. The whole dope on that matter is fully, completely and exhaustively set forth in the Handbook. This department wants to help you, but each week I have far more matter than I have space for, and I cannot crowd out other letters to go back over ground that has been covered fifty times already, when the matter is set forth fully in the Handbook, a copy of which you certainly ought to have. Briefly, you probably have excessive heat in your lamp-house, due possibly to the ventilation being clogged up. Clean out the inside of your lamp-house hood thoroughly then separate the lens from the metal with an asbestos mat. You have not told me what kind of a lamp-house you use, and you will have to inform me what you mean by "hazy." If you mean that the lenses discolor, then you had better get another brand.

The Right Idea.

Mr. S. S. Holt, Marshalltown, Iowa, orders a Handbook and says:

> My first experience in operating was eight years ago, using an Edison exhibition model. Since that time have had considerable experience with different projectors. Have also used gas. Now have a Power's Six A, with a 30 ampere G. E. rectifier. I project a 17-foot picture at 104 feet with 25 amperes, and at normal speed have very little flicker, but the light requires careful attention. Our theater was opened February 27 last, and seats 730. The operating room is of concrete. We run three reels of pictures and three vaudeville acts. I believe in being a member of a union, but I do not believe in thinking that just because a man is a member he has reached the place where further improvement is unnecessary. Moreover the man at the top, as well as the one at the bottom of the ladder, can always learn. From my own experience I think you are about correct as to carbon sizes for different amperage. Enclosed you will find answer to Questions No. 1 and 2.

That is the whole proposition, brother Holt. There are too many men who actually get the idea that as soon as they get inside of the organization they have no further reason to try to improve themselves, or learn anything. It is an idea to which I and all other right thinking men strenuously object. It is the idea which seeks to substitute the "strong arm" for brains. Brother Holt's answers to questions 1 and 2 are in the main correct, but do not go sufficiently into detail. He understands the thing broadly, but, I think, lacks detail knowledge of the subject matter of question No. 1. By this I mean he seems to understand what takes place when the field rheostat lever is moved, but is probably not entirely posted as to the details, therefore, I recommend that he study the published answer to question 1. Question 2 he seems to understand very well, and while his reply was brief, he was entitled to be on the Roll of Honor on that question. In this connection I will say that answers to the various questions should be sent in as early as possible. I am still receiving replies to question No. 1, though it is too late now to use them.

Something Else Again.

Chet. Todd writes from Nebraska, and says:

> I cannot agree with the recently published statements as to conditions in Omaha. I know of that city, having operated there, and the writer is probably working in one of the few places that is positively no good. When I worked in that city I had no trouble in securing a fair salary; received $18.00 per week for four reels in the afternoon, and eight reels in the evening at the Hippodrome, which is a vaudeville and picture house. There are about six first-class houses in the downtown district, and the rest are managed by foreigners, who run cheap pictures and some "cheap" vaudeville. A good man cannot get good wages from them, for they do not want good work. The operators in the better class theaters are getting from $18.00 to $25.00 per week, and all the first-class houses employ two men. Things in Omaha could, of course, be a whole lot better, and again they could be worse. We tried to organize the boys there last summer, and it was the $8.00 and $10.00 a week ones who caused us to lose out. Their bosses told them if they joined they would be fired, and, therefore, they are still working for what one might call almost nothing. If Omaha wants to better herself those boys for whom I nearly worked my fool head off will have to stick when the others, higher class men, try to do something.

Not knowing the right and wrong of this matter, I do not care to comment further on the Omaha situation at this time.

A Slide Rack.

Mr. L. McMillen, Peabody, Kansas, submits model of a slide rack made of tin, which would be very effective, though not more so, I think, than the one recently illustrated. It would also be very much harder to make, therefore, I trust Brother McMillen will not feel offended if I do not go to the expense of illustrating its construction. Briefly, it is made somewhat as follows: Suppose you cut out a section of a deeply corrugated washboard—something like eight inches long—that is, lengthwise of the corrugations. Now suppose these corrugations instead of being V-shaped to be square and that after cutting through their sides across the center you fold the two halves up at right angles and then with suitable cross bars connect the ends of the corrugations, thus making a triangular shaped arrangement with about ¼ of an inch between the transverse bars. Now suppose you cover these bars with chamois, or other soft substance, you will then have a slot into which you can slip the slides, and the bottom will rest on one of the corrugations, and its end will also butt into one of them while the slide will be held upright by the transverse bars. I do not know whether you can understand this or not, but I guess you can. It is as clear as I can make it without the photograph and the expense of a cut. As I said in the beginning, the holder is an excellent one, but no better than the device already illustrated, and much more troublesome to make.

The Wagner Film Holder.

Mr. Jesse P. McBride has at last got his metal film holder, or shipping pail, perfected and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. He is having a big order made up and will send one in for examination and approval soon. The old form of pail was examined and illustrated by the department several months ago. It was an excellent shipping package. If the improved pail is better it must be very good indeed.

Answer This If You Can.

Take a clear, perfect piece of glass and hold it over your machine aperture in the full strength of the light for one fourth of a minute. Then remove it and tell me why it is no hotter than it is. Now let's see some of you wise ones supply the answer. There are going to be some surprised operators, too, when they find the glass is only warm.

A Poser.

From Columbus, Ohio, comes the following puzzle:

> Machines, two Model 4 Standards, set in line with each other. One picture larger than the other, although two 5-inch lenses are used. One picture is 13 feet 6 inches—the size of the other one not given. We bought a new aperture plate; thought this might be the fault, but the new one gives exactly the same result. We also switched lenses, but when the lens from the machine throwing the big picture was placed in the other machine, instead of increasing the size of the smaller picture it decreased it. We have tried in every possible way to remedy this trouble, but nothing doing. What would you advise?

The answer to this question should be easy. It would ordinarily be that the two lenses were not matched, but two things enter. In the first place the aperture which gives the 10 foot 3 inch by 13 foot 6 inch picture is not true. It should give a picture 13 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 1 inch. But here is the funny and seemingly unanswerable proposition. One machine gives a small picture and the other a large one, but when the lens giving the large picture is switched over to the other machine giving the smaller picture it gives a still smaller one—Good night! Either Columbus is trying to kid us or else the trouble lies in the machine apertures, one of which is smaller than the other, and this does not seem possible, they both being Standard machine aperture plates, and, therefore, presumably, both punched with the same die. Also, if it were the aperture, the switching of the lens ought not to give the result named, I think.

In the Old Days.

From Albany comes the following:

> Enclosed find money order for another Handbook. This is my second order for this edition. I have read and studied everything I can find pertaining to projection, and I think that by close application I may in a few years be able to consider myself a real operator. I broke in on projection machines in the fall of 1899. I had had previous experience with pantagraph, pantoscope and panoramagraph, so I already had a fair idea of light action as you will see. My first moving picture experience was with a road show, and in those days a man had to know his juice; also his gas. It was not so much a question of "how good a picture," but "will I get any picture at all?" Voltage ranged from 52 to 500 a. c. and d. c., with overloaded outside and inside circuits, commercial arcs and street arcs, outside and inside incandescents and trolley circuits, together with every known cycle and phase, and some very weird wiring systems, therefore, you see a road operator was real busy when making his set. To this must also be added the pardonable suspicion of the local fire marshall, and the in-growing hatred of the superintendent of the local "'lectric light plant," the curiosity of the rube for "flikerin' picters," late trains, and a few other minor troubles.
>
> I talk study and the Handbook to every operator I meet, and, as a rule, find that the man who is indifferent to the Handbook has an indifferent picture also. Local 285, I. A. T. S. E., is strong and healthy, thanks to the efficient officers in charge and to its progressive membership. Projection here is far beyond the average, except in one or two isolated cases, where retrogressive managers prefer the $10-a-week kind and get it.

This letter comes from a progressive, up-to-date operator. I have omitted his name because of the I. A. T. S. E. "law." I am glad indeed to know that the Albany boys are progressive, and that they are putting on the right kind of projection. I am going to ride my two-wheeled gasoline choo-choo up there some of these days, but perhaps it will not be until spring, on account of the weather. I projected the Paul J. Rainey films in the Governor's mansion in your city a couple of years ago.

Russell Pastil.

Mr. Harry Bowman, Jr., Greensboro, N. C., writes:

> Noticed brother Russell's letter regarding his new pastil. If it does what he claims it will be far superior to anything previously put on the market. We would consider it a great favor if you would forward one of those pastils to us for test as soon as you receive them. We use gas almost exclusively. Have been using the Lindall pastil, which was brought to our attention by the Department, and it is great. However, if brother Russell can, and has eliminated the fragility, and lowered the cost his pastil would, of course, be superior, provided it is equal to Lindall's in other ways.

Yes, neighbor Bowman, "provided" and "if." However, friend Russell has not forwarded the pastils for test as yet, therefore we still have only his own individual statement as against an actual test of the Lindall goods.

To Washington Locals.

Mr. C. O. Rutledge, Gem Theater, Wenatchee, Washington, desires to join the I. A. T. S. E. Seattle and Spokane are the nearest locals. Will the secretary of one of these communicate with Mr. Rutledge?

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS

420 Pages Illustrated

By F. H. Richardson

$2.50 Each Postage Paid

will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years

Address all orders and remittances to

MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"FOR LOVE OF A TOREADOR" (Cines), November 18.—First class as an offering to the public. It gives us a bit of real Spain, so far as one who has never been there can see, and we are shown a real bull fight as the setting for the climax of a love story. The actuality of all these things and the natural acting of the players who, being of Seville, are to the manner born, make it tremendously effective. There are elements of excitement that heighten the impression it makes. The marked enthusiasm of the throngs on bull fight day is one of these, and especially of the spectators during the fight. We can't deny that a bull fight is a brutal form of sport, but this picture of one didn't offend us at all. There is a horse killed, but it is not done brutally to make a picture. In this story, its brutality was not noticed by us, we were too deeply stirred.

"A CAUSE FOR THANKFULNESS" (Edison), November 18.—An emotional picture with an effective Thanksgiving lesson. Good, well-thought-out letters help the story's impression—letters that are much better than usual. Markedly histrionic acting, especially of Elizabeth Miller as the detestable wife, but also of William Bechtel, as the worried business man, and of the two children, give noticeable punch to the early scenes and again in the later scenes, where the qualities here noted compel our emotion. As a whole, the story gets over and easily makes us believe in it, though there are some scenes that are decidedly weak. The servant should not have needed to show the children where to wash up at their grandma's; then that scene where the parents see the children after the accident also failed to convince.

"HIS LAST FIGHT" (Vitagraph), November 18.—A sea story that makes a good offering. In it there are three or four tremendously effective scenes which show just the close of a long struggle on a schooner in which an ex-prize fighter has taken the part of a castaway girl of great beauty, whom they have picked up in mid-ocean and has whipped the whole crew to save her honor. As a whole, it interests strongly, but fails to make us believe in it, except the big scenes. Ralph Ince, as the prize fighter, draws his personage vigorously, but there are weaknesses in the acting of the other characters, except the crew, which is most convincing.

"SHADOWS" (Lubin), November 18.—A story with a truly pertinent and tremendously tragic situation (the plight of a sweetheart with a taint ot madness in her blood), but the author, Emmett Campbell Hall, has side-stepped its logical development for the sake of making a popular offering. The acting is not better than fair, as the heroine is not at present up to the demands of such a role, which is all that counts in it. L. B. Carlton produced it.

"THE PORT OF MISSING WOMEN" (Selig), November 18.—We never saw a shallower picture. This sort of work is far below the standard set by Selig offerings. The audience ridiculed it. Gibson Willets is the author.

"THE LOST CHORD" (Essanay), November 18.—The [illegible] of the name has suggested to the author of this photoplay a love story, but it was not necessarily implied by it. The quotations from it used as subtitles help to keep the picture in a poetic mood. There is some pretty posing in it, but the story is not life-like or strong. The way the audience receives any offering tells very little; this was, in part, ridiculed here by an early morning audience.

"MR. GASTON OF PARIS" (Patheplay), November 18.—A hotel kitchen farcical love story with much rough business, some broken china and many queer characters. Half of the audience laughed loudly over it and laughed often.

"FLOWERS OF JAPAN" (Patheplay), November 18.—On the same reel with the foregoing it this which gives some not perfectly photographed views of a garden in the Flowery Kingdom, showing wistaria and iris blossoms.

"THE GIRL IN THE HOUSEBOAT" (Edison), November 18.—The fun of this picture lies almost wholly in the character of the unhesitating "Spud," played by Harry Gripp. The setting is in and around a summer lake, for "Spud" is a good swimmer. It gets over pretty well and the audience seemed to enjoy it. The script, taken from "Mr. Leander," was written by James S. Dwyer, and the producer is Ashley Miller.

"THE USUAL WAY" (Essanay), November 19.—A tooth-pulling comedy that interested and made some laughter, but is more naturally a gentle amusement giver. The story is built on a slight modification of an old plot, but is acted in a sprightly way and makes a very fair offering.

"BY IMPULSE" (Patheplay), November 19.—The personality of the leading woman is the chief asset of this very acceptable offering. The impulsive heroine takes a position as housemaid in the home of one of her father's best friends, but that is not known to her. A burglar breaks in the first night and she proves quite a heroine, then there's a good laughable ending. It makes a very pleasing picture.

"THE TOUCH OF A CHILD" (Selig), November 19.—An old situation very slightly changed makes a picture that has pleased so many times that it ought to go again and seemed to be liked by the audience here. Except its sentiment, there is little to commend in it, for it does not convince as life and is built on the not strictly true opinion that success as an opera singer is incompatible with the duties of a wife and a mother. That the charming little Selig player, Lillian Wade, plays the child whose need of a mother's care recalls the great singer from her longing for fame adds much to the picture's value.

"WHY I AM HERE" (Vitagraph), November 19.—A picture that mixes serious tragedy and farce and has as much fun with the audience as the audience has with it. Perhaps most of the spectators enjoyed it thoroughly, for it is unlike other pictures; is sprightly acted with Sidney Drew in the leading role, and is full of sharp turns, jolts and contrasts. We are left wondering what the minister thought when he heard that tale of why the prisoner was "here."

"FARMING IN ANCIENT THEBES" (Vitagraph), November 19.—Very short. It shows harvesting and thrashing the grain in Egyptian Thebes. The photography is clear.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 69" (November 20).—The topical this Thursday is fair and strikes a good average among topicals that we have had.

"PARTNERS IN CRIME" (Lubin), November 20.—This three-part melodrama can safely be termed big, not because the author, George Terwilliger has shown much originality or art, but because of the ingenuity with which he has spread old stuff over a big canvas in a new way, that is, to give a new impression. It was produced by Harry Myers, who has made us see a rather large area of action, mostly out-of-doors, and has given a feeling of loneliness to his scenes at the "old mill" or at the "ruin." Such a story demands no depth in acting and has been fairly played. A pretty fair offering of the sensational detective adventure kind.

"THE DETECTIVE'S STRATAGEM" (Biograph), November 20.—The story is rather weak on probability, but is well acted and has its measure of suspense. Its great short-coming is that the hero is made weak enough to be a thief when his parents need money and yet the picture's development tries to make us deem him innocent. The police and detective scenes are snappy, but we have seen plenty like them as good.

"THE COWBOY SAMARITAN" (Essanay), November 20.—This offering appealed to the audience and will appeal to every audience as a whole. It is one of those pictures of sentiment that one is apt to like without admiring wholly as a great work of art. It is very well acted by all in the cast and has a child in whom the interest centers.

"SHOOTING THE FAMOUS HAZU RAPIDS" (Melies), November 20.—A picture of boats and rafts of logs shooting swiftly flowing rapids in Japan. It is very hard on the eyes, but is thrilling. On the same reel is a fine series of views taken in a Japanese lemon orchard that is most instructive.

"AN ACTOR'S ROMANCE" (Selig), November 20.—A dandy little farce comedy that is brisk and full of excellent and very laughable situations. The author deserves credit; we wish we knew his name, so that we could tell him so. It makes a most desirable release, for it will surely tickle every audience to which it is shown. It is good enough to stand by itself and no bill with it on will be counted poor.

"THE SALE OF A HEART" (Vitagraph), November 20.—A melodramatic story of people of wealth and others. Its heroine is the daughter of a French count and its hero is an American painter. They fall in love, but the girl must marry a rich man. In the end the painter saves her from marrying a bigamist and they are happy ever after. It has been richly staged and in most of the scenes has been intelligently handled. The acting is very fair.

"BRONCHO BILLY'S FIRST ARREST" (Essanay), November 22.—A nicely presented Western story, following in the line of its predecessors in the matter of setting, development, etc. Broncho Billy is elected sheriff and his first arrest is that of a fellow who elopes with the girl. Billy saves the weeping girl, shows her his star and she very agreeably transfers her affections to him. A pleasing number.

"A PROPOSAL DEFERRED" (Edison), November 22.—The fifth of the "Who Will Marry Mary" series. This is sufficiently detached from the foregoing pictures to tell a good story of its own. Bradford withdraws his suit against the Silver Star people, when he learns that he is in reality suing Mary. The scenes are interesting and picturesque. At this writing it looks like Bradford, unless Mary is a very hard-hearted girl indeed!

"PRIMITIVE MAN" (Kalem), November 22.—A rather simple story, following in the line of others, depicting the wooings of rough men of the woods. The love affairs of Dan, portrayed by Tom Moore, were brief and spirited. He watches Betty, played by Alice Hollister, wading in the stream. He falls in love with her and fights off her rival. They are married and he proves a brute until the baby comes, when he experiences a change of heart. This is well presented and gets up quite a strong interest as it progresses.

"THE HARMLESS ONE" (Lubin), November 22.—Another film with a mission, which is set forth at the beginning. This is to show the danger of allowing supposedly harmless lunatics run at large. The one featured in this reel develops into a maniac. The street car scene was very exciting. The story is so unpleasant as to be almost repulsive, yet it is very strongly presented, and the part of the lunatic was well played by Romaine Fielding.

"KENTON'S HEIR" (Patheplay), November 22.—An admirable drama, well acted and telling a story of strong interest. To save the life of the sick millionaire a young man poses as his long lost son. Later the real son appears, a hobo without money or health. Some dramatic scenes occur and the son is restored to his rightful place. Smooth photography is another good feature of this film.

"OUTWITTED BY BILLY" (Selig), November 21.—A story showing the evils flowing from the negligence of a woman in failing to inform her new husband of the existence of a former. The question will occur to many who see this film as to the manner of the horse's getting home. He is driven to the station by the owner, accompanied by his wife. The two get out, the animal walks out of the picture. Why should such great importance have been attached to the marriage certificate? Were there no witnesses to the ceremony, no clergymen, no record anywhere? The ending of the picture is pleasant.

"THE LAUNDRESS AND THE LADY" (Kalem), November 21.—There is fun in this picture when John Brennan, attired as a domineering skirted cook, stands with uplifted rolling pin over Ruth Roland and compels her to operate the washtub. The mixing up of the destination of the notes was not new, but it was funny in its working out.

"THE DUBLIN HORSE SHOW" (Kalem), November 21.—On the same reel are pictures taken in Ireland, England and France. They will interest.

"HIS CHORUS GIRL WIFE" (Lubin), November 21.—It hardly seemed necessity to kill the wife, separated from her minister husband, so that he might marry the woman he loved. A little ingenuity should have cleared up the situation, without making it so artificial. The picture will mildly interest. Miss Morley was pleasing, and the character work of George Nicholls was good.

"THE SCHEMERS" (Vitagraph), November 21.—A real old-time Bunnyfinch. Bunny, condemned to remain in his home instead of joining the "boys," outwits the wife, who insists on keeping him in view. A little later, after he has escaped, leaving in his bed a dressmaking form and a bronze bust, the wife surreptitiously accepts an invitation to play cards. The denouement makes good comedy, and, as a matter of fact, so does all of the picture.

"NATIVES OF AUSTRALIA" (Patheplay), November 21.—Short picture, one of the best bits being of an old citizen making and throwing a boomerang.

"THE POND SNAIL" (Patheplay), November 21.—On the same reel is this subject in the science and nature series, which will have interest for many. Much use is made of the microscope.

"IN THE SPANISH PYRENEES" (Patheplay), November 21.—On the same reel also are these good views of mountain and stream, one of the pictures being taken at an altitude of 7,200 feet.

"THE LEADING LADY" (Vitagraph), November 24.—A commercial offering that shows that its author, Ned Finley, who is also its leading man and producer, knows how to make a picture rather than what to put into one. The opening is both lacking in originality and in snap and the plot, although a good vehicle for Edith Story, has one or two scenes where pistols are flourished or something else as unconvincing happens. Miss Story is charming in some of its scenes.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 70" (November 24).—Keeps a rather high average of interest all through, but there is no one item of striking quality in it.

"FROM DURBAN TO ZULULAND" (Edison), November 24.—With all the pictures of foreign countries we have had, South Africa seems to have been largely overlooked and this short series of views will be the more welcome. Durban is the capital of Natal and many of its beauties have been photographed for us, including a few glimpses of the surf along its beaches.

"ENOCH AND EZERA'S FIRST SMOKE" (Edison), November 24.—A farce without much quality or convincing truth. The audience showed a marked lack of serious attention to it. It is by William B. Pearson and was produced by Charles France.

"ALL FOR SCIENCE" (Biograph), November 24.—The story told by this picture is weak both in the sentimentality of its ethics and in the lack of convincing humanity in its action. There are two or three vigorously acted scenes in it, due mostly to the work of Claire McDowell, the lady detective. A poor chemist is about to shoot himself because he lacks the money to go on with his investigations, so his uncle, a butler, steals from his employers to finance him, "for science, not for personal gain"; yet the youth is now so prosperous that the detective who sees him on the street is made suspicious. That shows the quality of it all. It permits us to point out that Miss McDowell can act strongly even when the situation is ridiculous, which is a pretty good comment on her powers.

"AN INDIAN MAID'S STRATEGY" (Kalem), November 24.—This is the most interesting picture among the regular releases today, but the day is not a very strong one. The story is good, though like others that we have seen, but it has been written skillfully and produced in interesting backgrounds and is also well acted. Princess Darkfeather and Arthur Ortiga play the leads as two Indian lovers and give a convincing red-man atmosphere to it. It will entertain.

"JUST CISSY'S LITTLE WAY" (Lubin), November 24.—The trouble with this comedy is that there have been too many serious dramas that have been very like it. That the audience laughed is true, but there seemed to be some who wholly missed the fun, which comes from the ridiculousness of its situations. But, as we said, too many people don't count such situations ridiculous. Perhaps its author ought to have made it a bit more outrageous or, perhaps its producer, Arthur Johnson, ought to have put in it a bit more impossibilities. Its one really impossible scene was made suggestive and that fact did a lot to kill its fun.

"MOUNTED OFFICER FLYNN" (Selig), November 25.—This is a story of an attempt to get stolen government plans across a border. There is no particular interest or suspense at any time, except perhaps when Officer Flynn is struggling with one of the thieves.

"THE VANISHING CRACKSMAN" (Edison), November 25.—This is the first of a series to be shown in conjunction with the printing of a story in a magazine. The subject would make an interesting first reel in a multiple production. It is a question as to its value as entertainment, except to those who follow one theater and are in a position to know when the next picture in a series is to appear. Benjamin Wilson has the part of the cracksman and Robert Brower is the police superintendent. The cracksman gives notice that he is going to get away with wedding gifts and then proceeds to do it. It does not appear how he gains entrance to the house.

"THE SHADOW OF SHAME" (Patheplay), November 25.—A story which seems to have been thrown together around a location in a rough country. Crane Wilbur, as the sheriff, overacts his part, especially in the first interview with his father, just released from prison. The escape of the convict was none too convincing; likewise was it remarkable that he should find on a clothesline a suit of men's clothes right to his hand. It was a coincidence that the escaped convict should meet the released man. Again, why should an attorney-general send out an order to a sheriff to look for an escaped prisoner? The ending of the story is the best. The sheriff has been afraid to recognize his father and has been trying to get him away from the neighborhood, but when the father aids him in the capture of a prisoner and also saves his life he relents.

"HER SICK FATHER" (Lubin), November 25.—Rather weak comedy, even for those who feel disposed to laugh.

"THE LOST SWITCH" (Lubin), November 25.—On the same reel is this bit of near rough stuff that will amuse.

"LITTLE KAINTUCK" (Vitagraph), November 25.—Simple indeed is this story, yet it holds the attention all the way by reason of the human interest in it. Paul Willis, as Little Kaintuck, does excellent work; he is a real boy, yet showing in his face the resolution of a man. Karl Formes is good as the mountain storekeeper. Margaret Montague writes the script and Robert Thornby produces it.

"THE LITTLE SUBSTITUTE" (Essanay), November 25.—This story is based on the supposition that it is possible for a father not to know his own baby after an absence of several months. A baby was several months old when its father went abroad. It died during his absence, and the aunt in whose care it had been left substituted for it a foundling. The mother who deserted the little one became a nurse. When she had tried to claim the child she had been told by the aunt it was dead. Later, when the surviving child is taken ill it is the mother who responds to a call for a nurse—a doctor was not sent for. It is at this time that the aunt decides to confess to the father her deception. The mother is present. Both love the child. There is only one thing that can happen, and it happens, making a pretty finish to an artificial picture. The photography was unsatisfactory. By the way, in the print seen the father was made to board the steamer two times—in succession. It looked like a retake being tangled somewhere. Mr. Bushman and Miss Dunbar make the most of their parts.

Licensed Specials.

"THE EXPRESS CAR MYSTERY" (Kalem), November 19.—Another Kalem railroad picture, perhaps better than the last. It is so interesting that one will not notice that it is in two reels. There is more substance to it than was in "The Runaway Freight," and it has no story of distinctly minor interest; all its parts are equally absorbing and all have been handled to make a dramatic whole, effective and eminently worth while. Good photography is of primary importance in such an offering and is present in this picture. Fair character drawing and intelligent acting are also found. A desirable release.

"THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER OF JEALOUSY" (Patheplay), November 20.—A gem of a picture. It was made in France and tells a story of French family life that will certainly make a very strong appeal, because it is so sympathetic in its humanity and so delightful in its humor. The acting is simple and full of naturally expressed feeling for subtle qualities in the situation that needed to be touched only with a fairy's wing or spoiled. Perhaps not all of it convinces absolutely, but most of it seems like real life. There is no one in the cast without his or her indispensable share, so it seems, in the picture's pleasing effect, but, of course, the little girl is the center of interest and a wonderful little girl she is. We certainly hope the author who wrote this will make others for us, for he or she is a human being.

"THE END OF THE CIRCLE" (Essanay), November 21.—There is little that is entertaining in these two reels. The story is an unpleasant one. It contains practically no light colors to relieve the gloom created by a revengeful female on one side and a hasty fool woman on the other. At the end what is left to the only cool-brained and level-headed person in the quartet is the privilege of becoming the protector of the child left by the worthless human killed in a drunken fall and the sweetheart of whom he had by trick got away from a good man and then slowly killed her. The story contains two flashes—where five years after the loss of his sweetheart the prospector learns from the Mexican girl how she had been responsible for his unhappiness, and the concluding scene, where the prospector and the little one start out in a big wagon to begin anew. Frederick Church has the lead and True Boardman is his rival; Eleanor Blevins is the sweetheart and Evelyn Selbie the Mexican girl. All do good work, but they were hopelessly handicapped in their story.

"A GOOD SPORT" (Edison), November 21.—Herbert Prior, in the role of a monocled polo-playing Englishman, makes a distinct hit in this two-part comedy, by Charles E. Van Loan, who was perhaps the first important writer to use as a background for his stories the studio and the camera. The Honorable Reginald Devenham is visiting in the West and is temporarily embarrassed. He accepts a position as a polo player for a few days in a picture company. The last scene is taken first, as sometimes happens. Devenham, the hero, is told he must kiss the heroine. Now it seems that back in England there is a little girl who will take serious exceptions to this action, and Devenham thinks of her. It is only after considerable urging that he rehearses the part to the satisfaction of Director Cooper—who had shown him how—and incidentally of himself. There is a hearty laugh in the house when the hero says in an aside, as the screen tells us: "Just fancy, they pay me five dollars a day for doing this!" Mabel Trunnelle is charming as the leading woman who looks, with serious eyes, on the new player. C. Jay Williams is the producer. The picture makes good entertainment.

"THE WHIMSICAL THREADS OF DESTINY" (Vitagraph), November 22.—A two-reel number of absorbing interest, featuring a troupe of bareback riders. The plot is unique. An eccentric millionaire pretends to be dead in order to test his only two living relatives. He makes them his heirs in case they marry. The man falls in love with the circus girl and passes up the fortune; the niece conspires with the ringmaster to drug the girl and possibly kill her. All comes out right in the end and the fortune goes to the nephew. The situations are new and full of interest throughout.

"BY MAN'S LAW" (Biograph), November 22.—A two-reel number, following in the wake of numerous theatrical productions dealing with the white slave traffic. The story is strong and well pictured; it shows how the oil trust grinds down a family of independent producers, so that the girl eventually is forced to look for work on the street. She is followed by white slavers and dies at the close of the picture. This is rather sordid and pessimistic in type and cannot be called a pleasant story. At the same time it is well constructed and powerful in the emotions it excites.

"THE QUALITY OF MERCY" (Selig), November 24.—One's attention is quickly captured by the situation developed by the first scenes of this picture; it is a situation unusually strong in the possibilities of convincing tragedy that are suggested in connection with its title. Stated briefly, the picture's whole story is of two weddings, both performed by the same minister, but the girl who, in the first instance, makes a runaway match is afterward led to suppose the marriage an illegal one. Some years later, when she is a widow, the same minister comes to marry her again and thus she learns that he was really a minister when the first ceremony was performed. This is a more commonplace development than the opening, with its harsh uncle in the background, seemed to promise, but just as it is it will make a picture that will hold the many. The author is Wallace Clifton; the producer, N. McGregor.

Independent

"RED MARGARET, MOONSHINER" (Universal) (Gold Seal), December 9.—Pauline Bush gives a good portrayal in this story of moonshiners. It is a disagreeable part and a hard one, but she makes much of it. There are good mountain backgrounds. There are many fights between the outlaws and the deputies. Allan Dwan is the producer.

"THE HOUSE IN THE TREE" (Majestic), November 23.—The exceedingly unique setting, indicated by the title, makes this a pleasing offering from the very start. The children pledge themselves to marry in later life, leaving the agreement in the house in the branches. Years later they return, after both have had other affairs of the heart, and live up to their promise. An attractive cast of people and good photography help make this a very desirable reel.

"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER" (Crystal), November 30.—Pearl White and Chester Barnett, the former in the title role and the other as the father falsely convicted of murder, appear to very good advantage in this rather thrilling drama. The convict's daughter, falling in love with the son of the woman who was largely responsible for convicting the prisoner, affords a strong situation out of which springs the story.

"THAT AWFUL MAID" (Crystal), December 2.—The maid to whom we are herein introduced gets her employer, a Mr. Smooth, into all sorts of trouble, which forms the basis of this entertaining little comedy.

"THE INSTALLMENT PLAN MARRIAGE" (Crystaal), December 2.—Some laughable incidents grow out of a young suitor's efforts to appear well-to-do in this farce, which shares the reel with the above. The method which the young man employs to gain his end is to fit out the home-to-be in a very sumptuous manner, with the help of the installment plan. Out of this grows the humor.

"MIKE AND JAKE IN THE WILD WEST" (Joker), December 3.—Max Asher and Mary MacCoy are very laughably entertaining in these burlesqued adventures of two Dinkelspiels who determine to try their luck in the wild and woolly West.

"MIKE AND JAKE IN MEXICO" (Joker), December 10.—The two familiar characters impersonated by the two principal actors in this burlesque attempt to rescue a very pretty Mexican girl who has been stolen by a gang of bandits. The result is fun galore.

"TROUBLE ON THE STAGE" (Eclair), December 7.—This is an amusing burlesque of life around a motion picture studio and deals principally with a stage manager's difficulties in getting his production through to a successful finish.

"MAGNETISM AND MAGNETS" (Eclair), December 7.—On the same reel as the above is this scientific subject which illustrates the powers and fundamental laws of magnets and magnetism.

"PEARL'S HERO" (Crystal), December 9.—Pearl White and Chester Barnett swing this comedy in which a hobo manages, by accident and by stealth, to acquire a bright, new uniform and a sword, and with these to masquerade as a hero until he is exposed.

"BALDY IS A WISE OLD BIRD" (Crystal), December 9.—Sharing the reel with the above is this brief humorous skit in which the uncle of a young couple, who expect a big inheritance from him some day, marries the cook of the expectant ones, thereby disappointing them greatly.

"THE BARRIER OF BARS" (Victor), December 1.—Warren Kerrigan is not so well supplied with a good story to interpret in this drama of innocence wrongly accused as he might be. The rascal attempts to rob a safe; the hero interrupts and is accused of the crime for his pains, but it is exceedingly improbable that any court would convict a man who is mentally deranged, as was the accused here, and this, together with an unconvincing prison escape, mar what would otherwise be a fair offering.

"THE ROGUE'S GALLERY" (Keystone), December 4.—A little comedy plot put together for the purpose of showing how Bertillion measurements are taken in the rogue's gallery. Quite interesting and instructive.

"THE SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATION" (Keystone), December 4.—On same reel with above. Views of the manner in which the Golden Gate city celebrated the anniversary of Balboa's discovery. Views of a characteristic West Coast parade are shown. A pleasing half reel.

"A ROUGH DIAMOND" (Reliance), November 26.—In which Thos. R. Mills appears as a man seeking work and Louise Vale and Stanley Walpole as a young married couple. The husband employs Mills, who later proves himself a friend in need. A clear-cut story, not particularly new in plot, but well photographed and presented with spirit.

"THE OTHER WOMAN" (Reliance), November 24.—This is quite an absorbing story, written by Irene Hunt, who plays the young girl. Madeline Traverse does good work as the fast woman who has a strong hold upon the hero. The shooting scene was unsatisfactory and the baby scene at the last could have been spared. The story, however, has dramatic moments which make up for these defects, and is generally pleasing.

"THE REPORTER'S SCOOP" (Reliance), November 29.—A typical newspaper story, written by George Morgan, who plays the role of the reporter hero. George Siegman and Irene Hunt also appear. The plot situations are all familiar, combining business and politics, with, of course, the love story included. Not new, but lively and quite entertaining.

"METHOD IN HIS ILLNESS" (Komic), November 27.—A breezily presented half reel, in which a very gay married man plays sick. His wife takes him at his word and puts him to bed. Later he escapes and joins his friends, but his wife follows. Fairly amusing.

"A MAN WITH A RAZOR" (Komic), November 27.—On same reel with above. The half-shaved customer objects when the barbers begin dancing about the shop to hand organ music. The chase was very well done and the close of the film is laughable. An entertaining split reel.

"THEIR GREAT BIG BEAUTIFUL DOLL" (Thanhouser), November 23.—In which the Twins adopt the Thanhouser Kidlet after losing their doll. Of course, they have to give up the child and are accordingly sorry. A very light subject, depending chiefly for its interest on the three attractive child players.

"CURFEW SHALL NOT RING TONIGHT" (Thanhouser), November 28.—A brief dramatic episode, based on the famous poem of Cromwell's time, showing how the girl swings on the bell and saves her lover from death. Florence La Badie and William Russell are the lovers; the part of the sexton was well handled. A first-class one-reel offering, free from padding and in good proportion all through.

"THE MEXICAN SLEEP PRODUCER" (Apollo), November 23.—A burlesque on the Mexican revolution, in which Fred Mace rescues three American girls from General Youhurter. He puts the entire army to sleep with his medicated bombs. This is well photographed, and while not hilariously funny, is different enough to be entertaining.

"A WARM WELCOME" (Majestic), November 25.—A unique idea is contained in this story. The millionaire travels in the garb of a tramp to the town he has presented with a library. He is thrown into jail, while Rubber Shoe Mike, a real hobo, is entertained by the citizens. This is worked up with a fair degree of amusement.

"A SHOTGUN CUPID" (Princess), November 21.—About as improbable a story as one could wish; so improbable, in fact, that it is rather interesting on that account. The old man hides $500 in the barrel of his shotgun and then thoughtlessly fires it at a chicken thief. But the girl and her lover have already rescued the money. Good photography is the strongest feature of this reel.

"FIRST LOVE" (Crystal), December 14.—The title suggests the theme in this comedy drama. It is neatly presented and the young sweethearts will meet with many smiles and much sympathy. As usual, jealousy plays a conspicuous part in their affairs and the drama is nicely rounded in that they who cause the jealousy marry in the end.

"BY FATE'S DECREE" (Rex), December 11.—A rather unfinished film story, featuring Robert Leonard and Helen Case. This tells a story within a story, which occupies a large part of the reel, leaving the climax somewhat weak. A release of only ordinary interest.

"HE LIKES THINGS UPSIDE DOWN" (Eclair), December 14.—More of George McManus' fantastic drawings, depicting the adventures of Snookums and the Newlyweds. Freakish effects which prove quite amusing.

"NUTTY HAS A ROMANCE" (Eclair), December 14.—On same reel with above. A grotesque story, in which Nutty goes to rescue a girl in a boat made from a bathtub. The photography is very good, but the story rather trivial in plot.

"JAMES LEE'S WIFE" (Rex), December 7.—This drama, based on the poem by Robert Browning, of the same title, is neatly and prettily presented and is very commendable in its settings and its acting. Lois Webber plays the lead. The story is very simple and the charm of the play lies in the manner of its telling. A young artist neglects his wife for a pretty fisher maiden, whose picture he is painting, but in the end admits his mistake.

"HER FRIEND THE BUTLER" (Nestor), December 12.—An exceptionally good little comedy, enacted by a competent, good-looking cast, which includes Eddie Lyons, Ramona Langley, Stella Adams and Lee Moran. The pictures are clear and the plot, while not extremely original, is handled with a proper degree of farcical humor. A pleasing release.

"A WOMAN'S REVENGE" (Crystal), December 7.—Pearl White and Chester Barnett have the leads in this dramatic offering. The suicide was too realistic and unpleasant in its portrayal. The latter part of the story is quite interesting, but none too convincing. Good photography is a strong feature of this film.

"PLAIN JANE" (Imp), December 4.—Jane Gail gives a good characterization in the title role of this comedy drama concerning the love of a drudge, "plain Jane," for an artist who does not pay any attention to her and has not the least idea that she is in love with him. Mr. Welsh, as the Count von Stromberg, the suitor for a wealthy society girl with whom the artist is infatuated, handles his part in good shape. The story is pleasant and ought to be well received.

"THE WOMAN HATERS" (Keystone), December 1.—Two old salts, baching it together, become acquainted with their lady neighbors. Gossip ensues and a row follows, in which the women pull hair and there is a general mixup. This is fairly amusing.

"LOCKED OUT AT TWELVE" (Nestor), December 5.—Al Christie produces this comedy, which at times makes hearty laughter. Lee Moran, as the janitor, had an opportunity to cause amusement; he did not seem to get out of his part all there was to be had. The ending was lacking in strength; the fall seemed too sharp, after the hilarity caused by the scenes in the hall.

"HOW FRECKLES WON HIS BRIDE" (Powers), December 8.—Harry Pollard plays the lead to very good effect in this amusing little comedy in which Freckles, a country boy, wins the hand of a city girl who comes to the country and turns village belle, by licking all of his rivals and in the end forcing the preacher to marry him to her. A good idea well presented and likely to win its laugh.

"THE MASK" (Rex), December 14.—This is a very commendable film. Its theme is essentially dramatic, being that in which a man leads a double life and possesses, like Jekyll and Hyde, a double personality by virtue, however, not of transforming his entire body, but only the muscles of his face. This is carried away with first-rate effect by the actor playing the rascal. At the denoument, as he is about to marry the heroine, he loses control of the muscles of his face and his real character is revealed. The film will carry wherever it is shown.

Independent Specials

"THE LEAP OF DESPAIR" (Itala).—A well photographed and well staged romance in the life of people well to do. We have pictures showing the boxes at an opera, palaces and a stock exchange. Two persons are happily married. The husband gets word that a gold mine in which is invested his entire fortune has given out and that he consequently is impoverished. Lated the wife accepts a place in a circus as a rider. The husband, humiliated at the prospect of being supported by his wife, takes advantage of the attentions of another circus woman to make his wife believe they are welcome and that he is leaving her on that account. In her despair she jumps from a high platform with her horse to the ground. Regardless of the manner in which the leap is contrived it is convincing and thrilling, which is sufficient. The woman is badly hurt, but not killed. She recovers, and later, when a new vein is discovered in the mine, all ends happily. The action may drag a bit in the third reel, but the sensational feature of the jump in the fourth reel and the horsewoman's leap to the parapet of the bridge in the first part offset this.

"OUTLAWED" (Film Releases of America).—A two-reel picture produced on the other side of the water. The story is primitive and is made in primitive surroundings. It will not arouse any great degree of interest either through the plot or the backgrounds. The titles do not indicate care in preparation and are extremely melodramatic. The photography is good.

"A DAUGHTER OF EVE" (Great Northern).—In this four-reel story the first half is of deep interest. Later through the introduction of episodic actions that run to too great a length, the holding quality flags. While we are in doubt as to whether the divorced woman is in love with her first husband or whether she is only fooling him and really cares for her present mate we are entertained and held. The photography is charming, and so likewise are the backgrounds. The acting is of high quality. One of the best scenes is that in the court room after the jury has retired to consider its verdict and the wife tries to console her husband.

"NIGHT SHADOWS OF NEW YORK" (Imp), November 27.—This three-reel drama seems to have for its object a true-to-life portrayal of New York's underworld and as such, with one or two slight inaccuracies, it will pass muster; but there is no drama inherent in mere descriptions of the comings and goings, the fortunes and misfortunes of crooks and their sweethearts. Something seems to be lacking in this picture, otherwise of exceptional merit. Perhaps it is the absence of a genuine struggle between the good and the bad.

"THE HEART OF A POLICE OFFICER" (World Special Films).—A four-part picture made by the Pasquali Company. It is an adaptation of the drama of Enrico Gemelli. The production will carry on its photography alone. The outcome of the story is apparent too early. As soon as the poacher is fined 300 francs there is no doubt that the similar amount representing the policeman's savings will go to pay the fine. The denouement is skillfully handled, there being a distinct punch.

"OVER THE CLIFFS" (Eclair), December 10.—The photography and the settings, particularly those at the cliffs which play a prominent part, are very commendable in this three-reel story of hot-headed Mexicans and a faithful Indian boy. The heroine, whose parents are murdered when she is a child and who grows up to meet and finally expose their murderer, is well rendered, and she will win much sympathy. The whole play has been carefully staged and acted and ought to be well received.

"THE WOMAN" (Broncho), December 10.—A two-reel Western offering, written by William C. Clifford. The part featuring the rush of homesteaders to locate claims on the newly-opened reservation was picturesque and true to Western conditions. The subsequent story, where the wife becomes a bigamist in a misguided effort to help her first husband, who is ill, does not make a very strong appeal. The ending was weak and disappointing.

"THE BLIGHT OF WEALTH" (Thanhouser), November 25.—A two-reel film story, rather below the Thanhouser average in some respects. Important action was omitted at interesting moments, such as the duel scene, and the continental atmosphere was not well suggested. A good full-length view of the Carmania is shown. The performers did not seem to get strongly enough into the feeling of the story, which in itself lacked any great pulling power.

"THIEVES AND THE CROSS" (Rex), December 4.—We meet with Rupert Julian again in this two-reel production; he, with Lois Weber, plays a leading part, and he does it with good effect. He always makes an admirable rascal, appearing here as one of two thieves; the other, a woman who throws over her dishonest career and begins a new and better one. The story is good and the final scenes, at a fashionable hotel, show some pretty good judgment in selecting settings.

"THE INFLUENCE OF SYMPATHY" (Victor), December 5.—A two-reel offering featuring Florence Lawrence as a young mother. The happy home is invaded by death and she mourns for her lost baby. A strong young orphan child is brought to her, but she finds no happiness until her heart goes out to a little lame girl. This story is nicely pictured and strongly presented. The theme has been handled before in a different way, so this will not strike many observers as entirely new, but it is in line with the better grade of pictures, which tell powerfully moving stories.

"THE WEREWOLF" (Bison), December 13.—Director McRae produces this story of Indians and white men of a hundred years ago. For those who care for much shooting and massacre the picture will have appeal. Good photography and interesting backgrounds go far to hold the attention. The spectacle of a large body of Indians standing in a compact mass and shooting at a party of white men is hardly in accord with Indian tradition.

"HIS OWN BLOOD" (Powers), December 12.—The entire first reel of this two-reel subject was beautifully pictured, well acted and generally pleasing, but the second reel was marred by overacting and a badly strained plot situation. Edwin August plays the lead and is surrounded by a pleasing cast. The light thrown upon the drugging of soft drinks gives the story a motive of more than average consequence and if the story had been worked out more naturally this would have been an exceptional release. All of that part of the story centering about the operation seemed ridiculous and beside the point. The photography is very good, but, as a whole, the release is disappointing.

"UNDER THE BLACK FLAG" (Gold Seal), December 2.—Here is a praiseworthy three-reel production concerning the career of Sir Henry Morgan, celebrated in history as a pirate, one of the worst who ever sailed the Spanish Main, although he was also governor of Jamaica at one time. In the story set forth in this film we see him deposed from his governorship by King James the Second, and after a desperate attempt to resume his piracy, practiced before he was made governor, we see him killed. Into this part of his career is woven a delightful romance and many interesting characters appear. The settings, on the pirate ship, in Caracas and along the beaches, are well chosen and the atmosphere throughout is charming. The production is rather elaborate, many soldiers and pirates of a romantic age appear and the action is well sustained. A first-rate film. Boys in particular will appreciate it.

"WHEN PIERROT MET PIERRETTE" (Eclair), December 3.—A two-reel offering with some highly improbable spots in it, but which, nevertheless, is quite appealing. The scenes in the first reel were vague in their development and it seemed some of the sub-titls were misplaced. Barbara Tennant, J. W. Johnson, Alec Francis and other members of the Eclair company appear. A double love affair occupies the interest throughout. One of the girls is kidnapped and the chief action centers in the masked ball in the second reel. This production is faulty, but has a number of meritorious points.

"THE WHITE SQUAW" (Bison), December 6.—A two-reel drama full of aboriginal Americans, soldiers, hard riding and fighting. The story tells of a white child stolen by the Indians to grow up among them and cause trouble between them and the whites when she turns out a very beautiful young lady.

"THE FRAME-UP" (Broncho), December 3.—A brisk two-reel political story, by Richard V. Spencer. Rather obscure in its development in the first reel, but works up entertainingly. The woman of the underworld aids the gang politicians in putting up a fake story on the young candidate. The plot is exposed in the second reel and there is a thrilling scene where an automobile dashes over a steep embankment. This latter feature does much to strengthen the offering. The photography is good.

"FOR THE FAMILY HONOR" (World Special Films Corporation).—An extended review of this excellent picture will be found in another column.

"THE NIHILIST'S DAUGHTER" (World Special Films Corporation).—In this fine two-part picture, made by Savoia Films, there are many beautiful backgrounds, splendid photography, and, best of all, artistic acting. The story is of absorbing interest; there are many strong scenes, some of suspense, some of pathos.

"IN THE FANGS OF JEALOUSY" (World Special Films Corporation).—Made by the Paris Eclair Company, this two-part subject will hold from beginning to end. Charles Krauss has the role of a playwright, rather fascinated by the woman who is to interpret the leading role in this new drama. Of the player his wife is jealous. Hers is a fine characterization. She shows by her manner that she is a beaten woman; she realizes she is losing her hold upon her husband, but lacks the art, the finesse, the ability to play a bold hand or to adopt opposition tactics. She inspires pity if not necessarily respect. That she should resort to strategy, to attempt to remove her rival through the hand of another, was perfectly natural. The near tragedy makes a strong situation and it is finely treated. Another splendidly staged scene is where the playwright reads his work to the assembled players and the manager. Mr. Liabel gives a thoroughly workmanlike portrayal of the leading man. Miss Andriot has the role of the leading woman.

"LOVE VS. LAW" (Imp), December 1.—King Baggot plays the lead in this light and entertaining three-reel comedy. It does not exactly develop any very strong situation, calling for unusual acting, yet has the merit of presenting a number of clearly defined and likable characters. There is no question at any time what the various people are doing and what part it is they are playing. The story is simple and straightforward, telling of a young man's difficulties in winning a girl whose father objects to the match. A court room scene at the close is well set and altogether logical and convincing.

"THE BAPTISM OF FIRE" (Great Northern Features).—This military melodrama, though it is released under the trade mark of the Great Northern Features Company, was not made by the Nordisk studio; one will notice this most in the quality of the photography. Its photography is clear, but lacks the Nordisk toning and atmosphere. It is a picture of battle smoke and adventure, with a love story, and is in three parts. In the first is shown the opening of the love story and the beginning of the war. The enemy approaches and captures the castle of the heroine's father in which plans of the patriotic army are hidden. Then the hero, lover of the heroine, volunteers to get them. The girl, seeing him, mistakes him for an intruder and screams for help, so that he is captured. How she rescues him and how he gets the papers back to the patriot army make the rest of the picture. There is much freshness in it; it is all well handled, except at unimportant times, and holds interest as strongly as the average feature of this kind. A very fair offering.

"THE SECRET OF ADRIANOPLE" (Film Releases of America).—A thrilling, three-part military melodrama showing the capture and escape of a spy from a fortress which will pass with the uninstructed as Adrianople. Others will know that the city of Adrianople is on the Maritza River, not on the sea, and some in one scene may catch a glimpse of a flag through the trees that is not Turkish. But we must quickly add that the characters and costumes and many other things are so skillfully chosen that they continually suggest Adrianople to us. Then the work of the leading man, who takes the role of the spy, is marvelous and makes the picture breathless with the suspense of his situation, first as a spy, then as a captive and finally as a fugitive chased from pillar to post over the snowy parapets of the great fortress. He swims across a moat filled with broken ice blocks. It is a realistic picture and it could hardly have been acted and produced more realistically. A commendable feature offering, that seems a bit better than the usual film.

"THE FANGS OF FATE" (Ramo).—A three-part feature picture with a melodramatic story. It ought to make an excellent offering to the public; for care and thought have clearly been expended on the plot. It has an elaborate but clearly unfolded love story of a white man and woman. In the early scenes the hero saves a gypsy girl from the clutches of a brutal gypsy who wants to beat her and wins the hatred of the man, called "the Wolf." Later the white heroine's brother catches the same gypsy poaching and beats him, winning his deadly hatred. The plotting of the gypsies for vengeance is the first complication in the love story. On top of this, the fact that the gypsy girl's trying to warn the hero of danger makes the white girl's brother thinks that he is not true which comes as a second complication. The weaving threads of these counter-plots are handled so that we are not confused by them and expectation and interest are kept awake until the end. It is not a great picture; but it is a very entertaining one. The acting is good throughout; but especially in the hero and that gypsy called the "Wolf."

"THE PALE-FACED SQUAW" (Lloyd Films Corporation).—This three-reel Western-Indian story is the first release of this make. It furnishes scenes of wild life, hard riding, Indian attack, capture and rescue, etc. In one reel it might have been more acceptable; but the padding in the three thousand feet makes it a bit dreary. There are some pretty backgrounds in it.

FILM SEIZED FOR JUMPING TERRITORY.

A copy of the five-reel Eclectic feature, "The Mysteries of Paris," was seized last week at Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, by Frame, Secort & Turnbull, attorneys for the Eclectic Film Company of New York. The film was being exhibited at the Princess Theater, Regina, and the seizure was made while the show was in progress.

This is the result of the warning published by the Eclectic Company in this paper two weeks ago. Word was given at that time that one Herman Brown, conducting the Famous Film Service at Seattle, Wash., has bought the Washington exhibiting rights for this picture, but was known to have gone outside his territory in booking it for exhibition. The other day a friend telegraphed to Mr. Linn, of the Eclectic Company, that the film was being shown in Regina. Within 72 hours from the receipt of this telegram the films were in the custody of the sheriff, the entire proceeding being conducted by telegraph.

The owner of the entire Canadian exhibiting rights for "The Mysteries of Paris" is the Consolidated Film Company, Limited, Quebec. The co-defendant, Mark Horowitz, manager of the Princess Theater, it is understood, made overtures to compromise on a cash basis, which proposals were refused. The case will be settled in the Canadian courts. Incidentally this is the third seizure that has been made of "The Mysteries of Paris" for unlawful exhibition.

DONALD MacDONALD, NEW POWERS DIRECTOR.

The newest director to be added to the already large staff of the Pacific Coast Studios is Donald MacDonald, for two years leading man with director A. E. Christie. Previous to joining the Universal, Mr. MacDonald had had one year's experience with Selig. Before that, however, he was on the stage for seven years. He has attained success with Frohman, Belasco, the Lieblers, and other well-known producers.

His work will be released under the Powers' brand. He is now working on his third picture, "The Tail of a Dog, Wagged by Himself." Mr. MacDonald's first story was "The Germ in the Kiss," a clever farce comedy. His second story is entitled "Too Many Cooks," in which he played the leading role as well as directing the piece.

"Peter Makaroff"

A Four Part Apex Feature.

THE production of artificial gold is a vision that has led many a fanciful chemist into intricate paths in the same manner that perpetual motion has always been but a fickle will-o-the-wisp to inventors. While there are many who have attempted to solve the problem of manufacturing gold, there are few of them or of the great mass of people who have ever stopped to ponder on what the consequences might be if gold could ever be produced artificially.

To some it would mean ruin; particularly to vast gold mining enterprises. It would also have its effect upon the whole banking and currency systems, as well as upon the value of gold bonds held by thousands of people. All this for the simple reason that such a product would bring down the value of gold almost over night.

It is upon this theory that Peter Makaroff is based; a hypothetical case, as it were. It is assumed at the outset that gold can be chemically produced. This is established early in the first reel when Makaroff, a poor chemist, realizes his dream. From that point on the picture deals with the consequences arising from his discovery. The scenes are laid in Russia, which location serves to emphasize the treatment which might be extended to a poor man who should unexpectedly disturb the financial status of the nation.

Scene from "Peter Markaroff" (Apex).

The first ones to feel the effects of the discovery are the bankers. Bankers in Russia no doubt have sufficient influence with the government to thwart any poor chemist in upsetting their institutions. Those who find artificial gold to be a menace to their private fortunes become suddenly active in persecuting the peasant Makaroff, invoking the aid of the police in summarily throwing the old fellow into prison on a charge of tampering with the currency system. With the aid of his brave daughter he succeeds in making his escape, but not without first exhibiting the power of gold for bribing purposes. Meanwhile the bankers arouse the nation against Makaroff as a dangerous disturber to be well kept under lock and key.

Under an assumed name and by more circumspect methods, Makaroff manufactures gold and becomes a millionaire, with a strong disposition for helping the poor. Through the inquisitiveness of his secretary the secret of his identity is found out. The secretary to get a reward, informs the police, the house is raided and, to end a mythical story logically, Makaroff and his daughter perish in an explosion of his tanks.

It is an interesting study in social economics and yet one that is interspersed with thrilling moments, including two or three of the best mob scenes that anyone could ever expect to see. The part of Peter Makaroff is splendidly acted by a highly capable man. There is none of the usual theatrical clap-trap in the picture to appeal to the low-brow. It is one that will start men to thinking what would really be the result if the world were to be suddenly flooded with artificial gold.

W. H. IRVINE WITH WORLD SPECIAL.

William H. Irvine who is well-known in the feature film field, has arranged with the World Special Films Corporation to manage their branch located at 811 E. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"The Guerrillas of Algiers"

The "Ideal Features" Company Offers a Thriller In Which Arabs Fight French Soldiers.

Reviewed by H. C. Judson.

A NOVEL called "Jean de Poudre," by de Brisays, and which has delighted lovers of adventure in France, serves as the basis for this three-part picture, called "The Guerrillas of Algiers." It is a story of adventure in Northern Africa before the French army had completely subjugated the wilder tribes on or around the great desert of Sahara, and it deals with both a father and his son, descendants of a Frenchman, General Soumeiges, who once had helped the Arabs, and to whom had been given a great treasure in gems and gold still carefully guarded in a mosque against the time some heir of his shall demand it. This mosque is far out in the desert. At the time the picture opens the treasure is known to a descendant of the original owner, and this man is a colonel in service in Algiers with the French army. He determines to secure it; but is captured by a sheik, Ben Thama, a hater of the invader, and who has determined that no one shall get the hoard.

Scene from "The Guerrillas of Algiers" (Ideal Features).

At this point is introduced the character which gave to the original book its title. He is a young French zouave, and the picture calls him "Firey John." He is shown as seasick on a ship bound from France to Africa, and is helped by the colonel's son, Philip, who, with a commission in the zouaves, is going to seek for his father and for the treasure. In the adventure that follows, these two and another soldier make a "three musketeers" combination, and help in the search and share the difficulties. Ben Thama, "The Terrible," gets quick warning that Soumeiges' son is on the job, for Philip overhears him talking with some ragged Arabs and catches his father's name. So the three, after a risky encounter in the native quarter of the city, capture the brigand and bring him to the commanding officer who recognizes him as the terrible sheik of the desert who has been making so much trouble, and has him put in the guard-house. At this point the girl, Aicha by name, who is to be the heroine of the story, is introduced. She is the slave of the sheik, and, at his command, makes love to "Firey John," the sentry before the prison, and this lets the old rascal escape. The scenes that follow are particularly interesting, showing the method of warfare against desert fighters. It seems as though a large part of the French forces at some army post in the great desert have been used and the scenes are fine, big in every way. There are many graceful Arab horses in a few stirring pictures of the sheik starting out to fight the French once more; of his band attacking a small part of the French army. This shows the hollow square formation that Napoleon used in Egypt when he was attacked by the famous Bedouin cavalry. The desert riders attack it from horseback. The little square is rescued by a troop of French horsemen who sent the wild tribesmen flying away across the sands.

There are a number of scenes following these that will excite admiration. They show the attack of the French upon the walled city of Constantine; its bombardment; its fall, and a very well presented hand-to-hand struggle when the outer defences have been battered down and the defenders are retreating from house to house. In the old streets of the actual town, in the dilapidated walls and crooked alleys and blind ways of it, the producer had just the backgrounds he wanted, and he used them well. It is at this point that the hero and his two friends are separated from the rest of their countrymen and fall into the hands of the terrible sheik to be rescued by Aicha, the slave girl who helped her master escape in the opening reel. This escape and the chase that follows are the means of revealing to the young man where the treasure is kept. These scenes are full of new interest and are very natural. The story, including his recapture, his finding his father and final rescue by the French army, makes a tale smoothly told, exciting and filled with good things, such as unexpected humor, desert scenes, and perfectly-made settings. It is an offering that we can commend wholly as excellent entertainment and one that we feel safe in calling a very desirable feature. It is a picture that gives a great chance for vigorous, attractive posters.

---

In a Post of Danger

Victor Miller, Hustling Pathe Cameraman, Under Fire in Miners' Fight at Ludlow, Colorado.

From all indications, Victor Miller, one of the traveling cameramen doing special work for Pathe's Weekly, is making good in his particular field of endeavor. Assigned to cover the strike of miners in Colorado recently, he got into the thick of the fray at Ludlow and his cool daring on that occasion, when the bullets were buzzing about him like bees, made him the feature of the fight in the eyes of the Denver newspapermen who gave him considerable space in their story of the event. Here is a bit of their story:

> The bullets came so fast and thick about the newspapermen at the depot that the telephone and telegraph wires overhead were repeatedly struck, as if from hailstones. The zip-zip of the dying lead continued unabated all about the station for twenty minutes, but not a person was scratched.
>
> But what was even more remarkable, and what will explain at least in a large measure just why it is that so many shots are wasted in a gun fight of this character, was the escape from injury of Victor Miller, cameraman for Pathe's Weekly. He stood out in the open, grinding away at his camera as calmly as though he was taking moving pictures of one of those "actor" battles.

Victor Miller, Pathe Weekly Cameraman.

> All about him, kneeling, lying flat or crawling across the ground almost beneath his feet, the strikers were empying their rifles at the approaching guards. Over on a hillock came the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun that was belching 250 steel-jacketed bullets a minute in the direction of the miners.
>
> These bullets sang a song of promised death as they whirred just over Miller's head. Watching him closely, and noting from the freight cars on adjacent sidetracks to his rear the course of the bullets, it was seen that he was directly in the path of the big gun's hail of lead. It seemed that he must be struck. But still he continued to grind away, and even after the guards had retreated to their train it had pulled out around the distant curve, Miller remained on the job, taking "movies" of the returning miners, who had started in the futile pursuit of the guards.
>
> "I didn't have time to get scared," said Miller. packing up his camera. "It was too rare a chance for a real battle picture for me to think of anything else but the work ahead of me. Occasionally I involuntarily dodged and ducked my head as a bullet whistled closer than usual, but aside from these incidents I took little if any note of my danger. After it was all over I began to think of the many narrow escapes I must have had, but it was all over then, so why worry?
>
> "Being out among the men who were doing the shooting on the side of the strikers, I can now understand," he said, "how it is that so many shots are wasted in a big fight. I have heard people say that if they were in a battle they would pick out their men in the opposing line. Maybe they would. But if the bullets were tearing all about them, over their heads, almost under their feet, this way and that, I rather believe these people would forget all about their plan of picking out individuals in the opposing lines."

This is the first instance that has come to our notice of a cameraman getting so close to a real battle as to be under fire. Nothing like it has happened in any of the recent wars, not even in Mexico.

A postal card just received from Mr. Miller advises us that he has been commissioned to accompany the Giants and White Sox on their trip around the world. He left with the globe trotting ball players for Japan on November 19.

Screen Club Has Housewarming.

Many Hundreds of the Members and Friends of the Popular Organization Make Merry in the New Home.

THE new home of the Screen Club was duly warmed on Saturday, November 22. The cards of invitation announced that the steam would be turned on at noontime. It was prompt to the hour when members and guests began to arrive, and from then until midnight there was a steady stream. During the evening the Edison Quartet entertained most acceptably, and these singers were supplemented by others furnished through the courtesy of music publishing houses, among them being the firms of Harry Williams, Morris Abrams, Ted Snyder and Von Tilzer. There was also an orchestra, for the services of which the club was indebted to Dr. Ivory. The greatest crush came around 9 or 10 o'clock in the evening. On the lower floor was spread out for the hungry ones a most artistic and alluring luncheon, there being among good things, turkey, young pig, chicken, roast and corned beef, and about every kind of salad.

There was a notable attendance of players, nearly all of the well-known screen actors at present in New York and Philadelphia being present. From Lubinville there came a large delegation. The trade in general was also well represented. Among those seen were: Marshall P. Wilder, L. Rogers Lytton, Harry T. Morey, Jack J. Clark, Peter M. Lang, Robert M. Frazer, George Terwilliger, J. G. Terwilliger, Wilfred North, Frank E. Woods, Hugh Hoffman, Frank Carroll, Arthur Johnson, James Morrison, James Slevin, Ned Finley, William E. Shay, William Shea, William L. Roubert, William A. Williams, Augustus Phillips, Darwin Karr, Charles Sutton, Mark M. Dintenfass, William Robert Daly, Glen White, Stanley H. Twist, E. M. Mandelbaum, Tefft Johnson, Richard Neill, Harry Beaumont, Charles Brandt, Harry Raver, Lee Beggs, Nathan Machat, King Baggot, Moe Streimer, Bert Angeles, William Jefferson, Dave Wall, George Lessey, James Gordon, J. B. Clymer, Stewart Holmes, J. B. Rubinstein, C. Lang Cobb, Jr., Joseph Le Brandt, Lawrence S. McCloskey, Sam Spedon, Hector Dion, Arthur Smallwood, Alex Lorimore, Arthur Leslie, Edward M. Roskam, Philip M. Mindil, A. J. Lang, Billy Barry, William Holcomb, Guy Hedlund, Herman Beyer, J. W. Farnham, George Proctor, Hopp Hadley, L. M. Noto, C. A. Willat, Billy Quirk, William E. Blaisdell, Roland E. Blaisdell, Owen Moore, Ben Wilson, "Al" Mayo, Earl Metcalf, Charles Simone, E. H. Ball, John Hardin, Jack Noble, Fred Beecroft, J. H. Gerhardt, J. E. Moreland, J. E. Robin, Edward Wynard, H. B. Coles, Charles F. Fisher, Walter K. Hill, Alexander Gaden, George D. Baker, Alexander Levy, Wendell Milligan, Edgar Lewis, Harry Eyetinge, Jack Hopkins, Howard Crampton, Fred Truesdell, James Kirkwood, Charles H. Mailes, R. U. Smallwood, Jack Johnson, Charles M. Seay, Thomas Harding, J. W. Johnston, Paul Scardon, Cortland J. Van Deusen, Oscar C. Apfel, William F. Haddock, Maurice Costello, F. W. Swett, Carl L. Gregory, John Bunny, Jack Standing, F. E. Holliday, Dan Mason, Alec B. Francis, Irving Cummings, George Fitzmaurice, Jack Cohen, O. J. Giegerich, Jules Bernstein, Charles Eldridge, Jack Brammall, Eugene Gaudio and Leo Delaney.

There were hundreds of others, but many of them neglected to register; others did, but what they tried to say was not at a late hour to the writer quite clear. What was clear, however, was that every one had a good time, and that there was no doubt in the mind of any man present that the Screen Club was now thoroughly on its way to grow up.

WARNER'S FEATURES' WESTERN ACTIVITIES.

G. P. Hamilton, president and general manager of the Albuquerque Film Company, and Buck Connors, Mr. Hamilton's assistant, a noted Western character man, late of the Frontier Company, have arrived in Los Angeles and are at present busily engaged in producing features for the program of Warner's Features, Inc.

Milton Fahrney has also joined the camp, and with his force of assistants is very busy starting the first production.

Arrangements have been completed for the field offices to be located in the Crosby Film Plant. From there Mr. Hamilton will direct all operations in connection with productions, laboratory and business while in Los Angeles.

"COMMERCIAL" TO TAKE ARMY-NAVY GAME.

Edward Roskam, president of the Commercial Motion Pictures Company, of 102 West 101st Street, New York, has secured the exclusive rights to record in motion pictures the much heralded football game between the Army and Navy cadets which will take place at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Saturday November 29. Unquestionably the one big game of the football season will be that of the West Point boys and the Annapolis Naval Cadets. As a society event it is pre-eminently the society athletic event of the year. Boxes have been taken by New York's Four Hundred and by many of equal social prominence in other cities. President Wilson, with his family and his entire cabinet, will be at the game. As an interesting preliminary to the game, Mr. Roskam and his staff of cameramen will be quite busy photographing and labeling the occupants of the boxes for later inspection by the world at large. When the game begins there will be cameras stationed at eight different points on the field. New York theaters will exhibit the pictures during the evening of the day upon which they are taken. It is impossible, of course, to state at this time what the length will be.

As an evidence of the probable demand for this film, Mr. Roskam informs us that W. E. Geibig, of Houston, Texas, has already closed for the exclusive rights for the following states: Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama.

MILTON E. HOFFMAN.

One of the younger generation of theatrical managers to join the ranks of motion picture men is Milton E. Hoffman, advertising and publicity manager of the World Special Films Corporation. He is a Cleveland boy who came East four years ago after a successful training in his home city. He began in Cleveland in the capacity of press agent for the Coliseum Garden and Luna Park, and later served in a managerial capacity for both. He then joined the Vaughn Glaser stock company as manager, and to supply incidental press matter. After a successful tour he came to New York and did press work for Felix Isman. Later he became treasurer of William Morris, Inc. Two seasons ago he was manager for William Faversham, after which he turned his attention to the current theatrical success, "The Blindness of Virtue," which he built and staged in Chicago last winter. That finished he went to Syracuse and managed a stock company until he heard the call of the movies telling him to come to New York and act as spokesman for the World Special.

Milton E. Hoffman.

That is a pretty fair record for a man in the early thirties, but it is not surprising when you know him. With his personality there is no telling how much higher he will yet rise in his profession. He has an easy, imperturbable way and a capacity for getting through a lot of work without any fuss. He is a bear for system, and his chief delight is in bringing order out of chaos. As a press agent he has the right perspective, knowing full well that he is employed to advertise the production he is with and not himself. Perhaps the most surprised man on earth will be Milton Hoffman when he reads this sketch. He may even be a little angry because the space is used for him instead of for his company, but that's a little matter over which he had no previous knowledge or control. The picture was stolen and the facts wheedled out of him with much subtlety.

The present advertising campaign for the Pasquali version of "The Last Days of Pompeii" is being handled by Mr. Hoffman, as well as that for the numerous other feature productions now being booked by the World Special Films Corporation.

INVITED TO EXHIBITORS' BALL.

An invitation has been extended to all the city officials, including Mayor Kleine and Mayor-elect Mitchel, to be present at the Third Annual Entertainment and Ball of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Greater New York, to be held at Terrace Garden on December 15th.

Concerning Florence Turner.

Larry Trimble of Turner Films Writes an Interesting Letter on Matters and Things in England.

IT is always of interest that news of the progress of American picture makers working in other lands is received by readers of the Moving Picture World, so when Harry Trimble, who is the managing director of the Turner Films, Limited, writes the World a long and interesting letter regarding his work and that of that particular favorite of the American motion picture "fan," Miss Florence Turner, we would be making a great mistake if we did not pass it on to World readers. Here it is without further comment:

Miss Turner In Character.

Church Street,
Walton-on-Thames.

Surrey, Nov. 1, 1913.

To the Editor of the Moving Picture World,
New York City, U. S. A.

Greetings from the land of warm friends and cold weather! Speaking of the weather, I may say that it is as different from the common report as the stage Englishman in New York is from the real thing and perhaps we (Miss Turner and myself) are somewhat prejudiced, for certainly both weather and folks here have been wonderfully kind to us and particularly so in the encouragement given to the Turner Films, Limited.

We are shortly beginning our releases in old U. S. A. through little "Blinkie" Blinkhorn in connection with the Hepworth Company's productions, as "Blinkie" will run a joint agency for the two firms. The first release of the Turner Films will be a three-reel drama in which Miss Turner, of course, plays the heroine detective, and the way in which she unravels the mystery is only equalled by the way in which she succeeds in tying up the criminals. Incidentally, I, as producer, have a confession to make in connection with this picture. I could not resist the temptation of training an animal by way of keeping my hand in, and to that end acquired a monkey fresh from the jungle. I spoke to him in American entirely and we were very soon sufficiently acquainted for him to act as confidential messenger to the kidnapped. Like all beginners in picture acting, however, he was inclined to work a little too fast, but with a firm kindness, also administered in plain American, he not only acquired the proper "tempo," but was very careful to "register" the important points in his part.

I am not goinng to talk a lot about what we are going to do except to say that the Turner Films have in preparation several ambitious productions which have been written specially for Miss Turner by two of the biggest English authors, and as soon as we have actually begun these pictures I shall be pleased to give you further particulars.

As to our films, which you will soon see, I will leave it to the competent American critics to do the talking.

You may be interested in a word regarding the market conditions here generally.

The exclusive method of handling films has pretty well wrecked the so-called open market to such an extent that sales have fallen off in many cases more than 50 per cent. as compared with the records of twelve months previously. This has hit the American manufacturer particularly hard and it is generally believed by the wisest heads in the London market that we are on the verge of a tremendous crisis which it will not be possible in any case to entirely avert, but by making the change in the sales policy that is absolutely necessary the blow may be somewhat lessened. One of the reasons for the particular condition of the market is the sudden and tremendous influx of films of which a considerable portion is due to the filming of stage productions as stage productions, and not as proper picture dramas, with stars, many of whom have been famous for 40 to 70 years.

I recently made a tour of the North of England and interviewed all the principal film renters and buyers, also a large number of exhibitors, and they are, to use their own expression, getting pretty well fed up wit hthe 4,000 and 7,000 feet picture, which has for its principal recommendation the advertising value of the name of some star whose reputation is naturally of value in the larger cities only.

The craze for long films has greatly discouraged the manufacturer from putting out the ever-popular 1,000-foot picture for the present at least, but it is generally thought that the pendulum will on its next swing find the 1,000-foot picture necessary to the general popularity of the moving picture theater holding its own once more.

If I am not taking up too much time, it may be interesting to your readers to know that the lines upon which the burden of fighting will fall will be between two classes, viz.: the renting manufacturer, who will supply the exhibitors direct either as individual firms or in combinations, and the manufacturing renters, who in order to ensure a constant supply of such films as are needed to keep their customers will either manufacture for themselves or contract with as many of the manufacturers, particularly the small ones, as will be capable of producing the kind of pictures which are in demand. The manufacturer frequently looks upon the renter as a parasitic middle man whose elimination would give the manufacturer all of the profits which, in view of the tremendous competition, seem to be necessary for the production of films of merit, which naturally entail great expense. On the other hand, the renter is of the opinion that he has a legitimate place in the business by reason of the fact that he has at the expenditure of time and money perfected a distributing organization which there is little likelihood of the manufacturer being able to equal, and thus we may look forward to possible war between these two factions, which, if I am not entirely mistaken will not be without its humorous side, both from the American and the English point of view.

Miss Turner In an English Garden Scene.

I enclose you herewith photographs which you may be interested to use.

With best wishes from the Turner Films, Ltd, I am,

Yours very truly,
LARRY TRIMBLE.

---

"TRAFFIC IN SOULS" MAKES HIT.

Doing Capacity Business at Old Weber's Theater, Broadway, New York.

THE six-part Universal production, "Traffic in Souls," which was written by Walter MacNamara and directed by George L. Tucker, was given its first public showing on November 24th at Weber's Theater, Twenty-ninth Street and Broadway, New York City. It was intended to run the film but three times during the day, but an extra exhibition in the afternoon was necessitated by the demand to see the picture. William S. Martin, an active member of the New Jersey branch of the Exhibitors' League, is in charge of the theater. Mr. Martin is enthusiastic over the success of "Traffic in Souls," and says it is in for a long run right where it is. At the evening showing on the first day it was necessary to close the doors before the run was started, so great was the throng anxious to get inside the house. He estimates that more than a thousand people were turned away.

The writer for an hour Tuesday afternoon watched the house during the running of the last half of the picture. The tense atmosphere prevailing was the best indication of the holding quality of the stirring melodrama. There were no drooping heads. At times toward the end, as Justice was seen gradually to be overtaking those so thoroughly worthy of it, a buzz of excitement would be heard. In the next to the last scene, where Jane Gail accompanies Policeman Matt Moore to the police station, there was hearty applause for the two who had so well played the leads. The price of admission is 25 cents.

---

CHANGE IN FAMOUS PLAYERS OFFICES.

President Zukor, of the Famous Players, has changed his private offices from Forty-second Street to the studio in Twenty-sixth Street. The rapidly expanding business of the company, which has been hardly a year, requires centralization of the executive force. Mr. Zukor has decided he can work to better advantage right in the studio building. Carpenters have been busy the past week creating five private offices on the studio floor. These are placed just across the aisle from the present suite and in no way interfere with the stages. This move of the president of the company puts all departments under the one roof, the laboratory and artists' and carpenters' quarters being on the floor below the studio. There was quite a bit of news sizzling at the Twenty-sixth Street plant this week, some of which will be found on another page.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"CHAINED TO THE PAST" (Gaumont).

The subject is one that is bound to appeal to an American audience. It is crowded with incidents and has been carefully cut from four reels to two without losing the grip of the story. It is a strong drama portraying the difficulty of "Mars" and "Venus" trying to mate together in matrimony.

Colonel Vernon meets an old sweetheart whom he had not seen for 20 years, Madame Rosa Alba. Memories of old are revived and they are married. While they are on their honeymoon the Colonel's mother dies, having cursed in silence her who held her son away from her deathbed. When they returned the old lady had been buried and Rosa felt that she was in some measure to blame for the blow that had fallen on Colonel Vernon. Sergt. Michael, of the Colonel's regiment wishes to marry Mignon, a singer at a cafe. The Colonel forbids the marriage, and the lovers are terribly upset. Mignon interviews the Colonel but cannot change his decision. Madame Vernon comes into the room as the interview concludes. Mignon appeals to her but she can do nothing. Following the death of her husband's mother and the undeserved censure showered upon her, the interview had a serious effect upon Rosa, who left her husband and shortly afterwards died in Venice.

Scene from "Chained to the Past" (Gaumont).

ITALIAN COMEDIAN IN PICTURES.

Claude Seixas, the delineator of Italian types in vaudeville, has abandoned the vocation he spent so many years in for—the films. He is through with the stage for keeps. His film connection is as assistant to Director Gregory at the Princess Studio, New Rochelle. Seixas' ultimate is to direct. He became interested in picture work through watching films that were "on the bill" with him in theaters that included pictures in the entertainment. "Playing" New Rochelle lately, he ran into Mr. Gregory, told him of his ambition and—stopped telling vaudeville audiences of the virtues of his countryman, "Cristofo Colum."

KLEINE ADDS THOUSAND DOLLARS TO SCENARIO CONTEST.

George Kleine cables from Rome the announcement that he will add a cash prize of one thousand dollars for the best scenario written by an American. This is in addition to the prizes offered by the Cines Company, which range from the capital prize of five thousand dollars down to one hundred francs. Details of Mr. Kleine's offer will be published later.

"THE THREE GAMBLERS" (Essanay).

Mr. G. M. Anderson will again be seen in an Essanay two reel Western dramatic feature. The photography in "The Three Gamblers" is all that could be desired—acting is splendid.

Herbert Corrington and his son appropriate a large amount of money from the safe of the express company they are working for. Gambling is the cause. Afraid of an expose' the father commits suicide. The son is fast traveling in the footsteps of his father.

Broncho Billy, a professional gambler, has won the affections of Corrington's sister, Marguerite. He promises her that he will abandon gambling forever. His promise is not kept. Broncho Billy gambles to save young Corrington from the hands of the law, and wins all that this unguided son of the West had stolen and lost. James Spaulding, a rival for the hand of the fair Marguerite, loses little time in telling her that Broncho Billy has again returned to his old habits. The gambler is repulsed—his ring is returned to him. Corrington later explains to his sister that Broncho Billy had saved him from the hands of the law by gambling. Marguerite reinstates Broncho Billy and a new start in life is made. Corrington promises never to gamble again.

Scene from "The Three Gamblers" (Essanay).

Miss Marguerite Clayton is surprisingly wonderful in her dramatic portrayal of the character she assumes in this attraction. Her work is excellent. This production is booked for release Friday, December 12th.

McENNERY TO FORM CORPORATION.

James McEnnery, who came to New York from London with the feature "The Message from Mars," now proposes to form a new corporation to handle feature pictures. He will sail for London on December 4, for the purpose of interesting English capital in the venture, and expects to return about January 31, 1914.

MARGUERITE SNOW'S RETURN.

After a six month's vacation, Marguerite Snow is back at work at the Thanhouser studio. She has been a leading lady with Thanhouser for three consecutive years. Returning from the Thanhouser studio at Los Angeles, Cal., last spring, she decided she needed a rest. Miss Snow's first picture on the "return date" is "Peggy's Invitation," in which she was directed by Mr. James Durkin.

"WHEN MOUNTAIN AND VALLEY MEET" (Lubin).

This strange story may be termed an idyl of the Rockies; it is one of Romaine Fielding's romantic conceptions which has been so much admired for intensity. Bleak hill tops and the Cactus Valley strive for supremacy.

Beth, a mountain maid, tastes of the fruits of the valley, and like Eve of old, promised he of the valley she would return. A month later her longing and desires become so great for another nibble of the forbidden fruit of clandestine meetings, that she, in her mountain home, makes her loving mother believe she is seriously ill and thereby secured permission to return to the valley, leaving the snow and the big rough ones behind. The horse that was to carry her became sick and the mountain man (the big man), who loved quietly but no less fervently, determined to carry Beth through the drifts of the rockies to the flowers of the valley, there leaving her with an uncle who was hospital surgeon. The mountain man returned to his home leaving a friend to watch over the girl he loved. The valley man, learning of her arrival, dropped his other escapades and bent on one purpose of securing Beth for his own, little reckoned with God, who watches over those that are of the storm and the heights. The mountain man's instinct leads him straight and true and saves his God-given mate ere she enters the gate from whence there is no returning, and on the mesa (neither mountain nor valley), the mountain and the valley meet, and there a truth was told and an act was done that prohibited the flowers from overcoming the snow ever more.

Scene from "When Mountain and Valley Meet" (Lubin).

KING BAGGOT PRODUCES UNIQUE DETECTIVE STORY.

King Baggot, directing his own productions besides playing lead, has commenced a new series of detective dramas, a series that promises a big treat for picture patrons. "King, the Detective in the Jarvis Case," written by himself and just being completed at the New York Imp studio, is the first one.

Before proceeding on these plays, Mr. Baggot, usual to his manner, made extensive studies in crime and the latest discoveries of science that might be of use in detecting the criminal. Evidence of this is had in the present play. King, the detective, surrounds and fills his house with appliances of science. For instance, when a person calls at the front door he simply presses a button and immediately the figure waiting outside is shown in relief on a screen before him.

Ethel Grandin plays the opposite role, a girl whom circumstantial evidence points to as the murderer of an old recluse. As the story is finally unraveled by the detective, it appears that this old man was jilted years before by the girl's mother. In later years he conceives the fiendish plan of making his will out to the girl and then having it appear that she killed him. After many exciting adventures he defeats his own purposes. It is a mystery story of keen suspense.

"WHERE THE ROAD FORKS."

Some time ago it was announced that Director Ricketts would soon start work on a picture staging the jewel scene from Faust. Mr. Ricketts has completed the production and it does not require a vivid imagination to foresee its reception by the public, for it is a classic, and will be one of the film successes of the year.

Scene from "When the Road Forks" (American).

Miss Winifred Greenwood throws her whole soul into the production and every scene vibrates with the intensity of her action. She is ably supported by Ed Coxen and a complete cast of stars. The settings are immense and the photographic quality superb. The subject is scheduled for release December 15th, 1913. The synopsis will be found in the Stories of the Films.

"DEMONYTE" (Film Releases of America).

With war becoming less and less of a pastime and more and more of something to read about rather than be engaged in, the theme is opportune. It treats of a super-destructive explosive many times mightier than dynamite, and which, in the hands of a hostile government, would be a deadly thing with which to come in contact.

The story deals with the efforts of contending governments and the higher circle of Anarchists to gain control of this mighty destructive power. A woman Anarchist figures actively, and when she fails to buy the control of "Demonyte" she forthwith proceeds to adopt more violent measures. A resourceful and a stern-purposed woman, she knows only one end, and that is her own. She goes straight at it with determination worthy of the alleged stronger sex. The crux of her endeavors to wrest the "Demonyte" from the emissary of the successful government is the destruction of herself, the emissary and the train of cars on the roof of which she is standing, and the train of cars on to which the emissary has jumped.

The use of the X-ray is cleverly shown in the efforts of the scientist inventor of "Demonyte" in finding where the Anarchist has secreted the "Demonyte" cap. The powerful light pierces the human form and discloses the "Demonyte" in her mouth. It is interesting to say the least.

"THE SUNKEN TREASURE" SHOWS SUBMARINE GARDENS.

"The Sunken Treasure," Kleine-Cines release for Tuesday, December 16th, will prove conspicuous for many reasons. Aside from the fact that it is a story of many adventures, there are some very interesting photographs of the sea bottom that will thrill and amuse. "The superb Cines photography brings to us foreign scenes of impressive beauty," says a well known critic, "masterly portrayals of fishing life and the humble folk who make their living thereby, surprising views underneath the sea, in which divers are seen at work on the ocean bottom, exciting trips aboard speeding motor boats, flying trains, and wrecklessly driven automobiles."

COMING ECLECTIC FEATURES.

"Toils of Villainy," a three-part feature, and "His Fateful Passion," in five parts, will be released by the Eclectic Film Company on November 27 and December 11th, respectively. These two feature films are beautifully and realistically colored by the new Eclectic natural color process, producing an effect far exceeding anything yet attempted in colored photoplays. The latter release will set a new mark for color work in multiple-reel features. Other stupendous productions are now in course of completion and will be available to the trade in the near future.

"IN THE BONDS OF PASSION" (Gt. Northern).

All the elements of a modern feature photoplay are embodied in the latest Great Northern special production, "In the Bonds of Passion," which is presented in three reels. In the beginning the story is reminiscent somewhat of Tolstoy's novel of "Resurrection," but the resemblance is only fleeting and as the plot develops, it is found that the scenario has been handled with a view to avoiding the beaten tracks. Arnold, the son of Lady Dupont, is enjoying a vacation from his medical studies and in the home of his mother, meets Rose, the latter's secretary. When the time for parting arrives, Arnold pledges enternal love and the young woman is convinced that the dashing young medical student is her hero and a man of his word.

Scene from "In the Bonds of Passion" (Gt. Northern).

Time rolls on and the members of the family receive letters from Arnold, but there is never a one for Rose. It is then that she realizes that her affection has not been returned and after confessing to Lady Dupont, she is dismissed from service.

From this period in the drama, the action is highly dramatic and there are many compelling moments. Fate so ordains that Rose is being cared for in a hospital in which young Dr. Dupont is an interne. He is spurned and rejected when he appears professionally and when the young mother leaves the hospital it is with the firm determination that her life thence forth is to be devoted to her child. She becomes an actress and wins the sincere love of Count Gervais. In order to lend strength to the plot the child falls from a window and in this scene is shown an excellent bit of modern photography.

After Rose becomes the wife of the Count Gervais, young Arnold appears unexpectedly on the veranda of her home. He has swallowed dog poison in place of liquor in a wretched tavern in the neighborhood and his end is made as comfortable as possible by Rose and the Count Gervais. The story carries many unusual elements of strength and is splendidly acted.

NON FLAM FILM REGULATION IN PARIS.

On Thursday, November 13th, M. Hennion issued the following statement:

"The Prefect of Police considers that the employment of celluloid cinematograph film presents a grave danger of fire and that it is now possible to use films which are difficult to ignite called 'safe films.'

"But in order to allow exhibitors sufficient time to arrange for supplies of 'safe film,' the regulation prohibiting the use of celluloid film will not come into force until July 1st, 1915."

It will be recalled that manufacturers and renters demanded a delay of four years.

EDISON PLAYERS OFF TO FLORIDA.

C. Jay Williams and Richard Ridgely sailed for Florida recently at the head of a large company of Edison players, among whom are Mabel Trunnelle, Alice Washburn, Mrs. C. Jay Williams, Elsie MacLeod, Kathleen Coughlin, Herbert Prior, William Wadsworth, Bigelow Cooper, Yale Benner, Richard Tucker, Harry Gripp, Arthur Housman and Carlton King. Henry Bredeson and William Forsythe will spin the reels and a complete complement of scene painters, carpenters and property men was included in the party. Jacksonville will be the headquarters from which trips will be made to various points of interest. The company will remain in Florida all winter.

EDWIN AUGUST IN "HIS OWN BLOOD" (Powers).

You have heard considerable about the evils of some soft drinks. Mr. August has made this subject the theme of his play "His Own Blood." First, you see this remarkable actor, Mr. August, in a new role, away from what he is wont to enact—that of a father who is crushed with the unchangeable moral that "crime like chickens, come home to roost"; second, you are treated to a story gripping in its heart interest, and third, you are brought smack up against one of the great evils that has an insiduous hold upon society—the supposedly soft drink. You are shown, in a series of unusual scenes how it takes hold upon its victim and what it's effects are.

Dave Harding, as played by Mr. August, is a millionaire manufacturer of soft drinks. His son, Frank, is engaged to Eileen. Frank becomes addicted to liquors and wild company. Harding finally manages to wean the boy away from his habit and he reinstates him in his affections and his sweetheart's love.

Believing that the soft drink manufactured by his father is harmless, Frank makes a specialty, after a while, of drinking it. The drink contains an insidious drug and Frank becomes a slave to it before his father realizes. The father suffers the pangs of the damned when he finds his boy is in mortal danger as a result of his own concoction. An operation is necessary. It is one of the many unusual scenes in the play. Harding, in remorse, is made to close down his factory and give his ill-gotten gains to charity. This is only a bare outline of the story and can hardly give you its true importance and thrill.

"THE TERRORS OF RUSSIA" NOW SELLING.

The Italian-American Film Corporation is busy filling orders for State rights on "The Terrors of Russia," its production founded on the recent persecution of the Russian Jews at Kiev. The corporation also claims a record on the lithographs, which have never looked so well for the short time given to the lithograph company.

MORE MEXICAN WAR PICTURES.

H. H. Hood and E. J. Eichenlaub, of America's Feature Film Company, Inc., of Chicago, are at present in New York City in the interests of their Mexican War Pictures which are now being shown in the principal theaters throughout the country. While here they will arrange plans for the opening of an Eastern office due to their rapid advancement in the feature end of the moving picture business.

STATE RIGHT PURCHASES.

NOTE.—Exhibitors are requested to keep this list on file or copy from it the names of purchasers in their particular territories. These lists will not be republished and we cannot undertake to furnish back information by mail to those who have neglected to keep a record.

A GYPSY'S KISS (Itala), for New York City and State, by Exclusive Feature Film Company, 24 East 21st Street, New York City.

BRENNAN OF THE MOOR (Solax), New York State, excepting New York City, by Excel Feature Film Company, Palace Arcade Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

FANTOMAS (Gaumont), same purchaser and territory as "Brennan of the Moor."

IN TOUCH WITH DEATH (Union Feature), same purchaser and territory as "Brennan of the Moor."

ZUKON, THE SOCIAL PIRATE (Gaumont), New York State entire. Same purchaser as "Brennan of the Moor."

CURRENT (Ramo—three reels), for New York State, excepting Greater New York, by Manhattan Feature Film Company, Inc., 341 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

UNMASKED (Itala—three reels), same territory and purchaser as "Current."

GREEN GOD (Union Feature—three reels), same territory and purchaser as "Current."

THE BARRIER OF BLOOD (Ammex), for New York City, by Universal Film Exchange, New York. Also same territory described as "State Rights" by the Consolidated Film Company, Ltd., Montreal, Canada.

THE FATAL RECKONING (Ammex), same territory described as "State Rights," by the Consolidated Film Company, Ltd., Montreal, Canada.

HUMANITY (Apex—three reels), for Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky, by Empress Feature Film Company, Merchants' Bank Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

LONDON BY NIGHT (Apex—four reels), same as "Humanity."

THE WORKER (Apex—three reels), same as "Humanity."

ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG (Apex—four reels), same as "Humanity."

THROUGH THE CLOUDS (Apex—four reels), same as "Humanity."

THE BLACK 13 (Apex—three reels), same as "Humanity."

IN THE PYTHON'S DEN (Apex—three reels), same as "Humanity."

THE GREAT BULLION ROBBERY (Apex—three reels), same as "Humanity."

ARMY AND NAVY FOOTBALL GAME (Commercial M. P. Co.), for Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama, by W. E. Geibig, Houston, Texas.

JOHNS-MANVILLE CLEVELAND BRANCH.

The Cleveland (Sixth City), Branch of the H. W. Johns-Manville Co., has recently been obliged to provide larger quarters for several of its subsidiary offices. The Columbus Office and Contract Department are now located on the ground floor of the new seven story, fire proof Peters Power Building, 45 West Long Street, with large warehouse facilities half a block distant. The Toledo office and warehouse have been moved to 213 Water Street. Other Cleveland Branch sub-offices are located in Akron (717 Second National Bank Building), Dayton (259 Fourth Street Arcade), and Youngstown (502 Stambaugh Building).

LANDON GOES TO SIMPLEX.

Mr. G. W. Landon, who, for the past few years, has specialized in advertising along motion picture projection lines, has joined the staff of the Precision Machine Co., and will handle publicity and advertising of the Simplex projector.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

PAUL SCARDON will be seen twice in the same place at the same time, handing himself arguments and other things, in the next Reliance two-reel drama, entitled "For Another's Crime." A splendidly balanced cast will be seen in this picture, including, besides Anna Laughlin and Paul Scardon, Irene Hunt, Harry Spingler, and Sue Balfour.

* * *

Three factories are now busy making prints of Pasquali's "Last Days of Pompeii," in an effort to keep abreast with the enormous demand from the road companies and house management.

* * *

The World Special Films Corporation have added another department to their organization—a poster mounting and frame manufacturing plant, located at 213 West 40th Street, New York, in charge of Mr. Davis. This affords them an opportunity to put out advertising on a larger scale than ever before.

* * *

One of the most unusual stories of Indian life yet recorded is to be shown in the new 101 Bison production, now being staged at Universal Ranch by Director Henry Macrae. The film is entitled, "The Werewolf," and relates a story of the reaping of yesterday's sin.

* * *

Baseball fans will have an opportunity to follow the Giants and White Sox around the world by the means of moving pictures, as it has just been announced that a Pathe cameraman is to accompany the teams in their over-seas journeys.

* * *

Lois Weber, Phillips Smalley, and their entire company of Universal players, and many extra people, were recently at the Glenwood Mission Inn at Riverside, Cal., where the Smalleys were producing a two-reel psychological drama, entitled "The Inner Light."

* * *

"It Happened in June," written by Walter MacNamara and recently produced at the Imp Studio, breaks all records in construction. In one reel it is played in 139 scenes without one interior. This does not include subtitles. Mountain atmosphere abounds in the picture. Jane Gail, William Shay, Billy Welsh and Sturat Paton, the well-known Broadway actors, are seen in the lead parts.

* * *

Miss Edith Tyler, a former star in Vitagraph productions, more recently connected with Producer W. V. Ranous, is seen in the most wonderful and instructive production of adventure, "Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson, which will shortly be released by Warner's Features, Inc.

* * *

The growth of the Exclusive Supply Corporation's program has necessitated the enlargement of the Exclusive Program, their weekly publication from twelve to sixteen pages. This weekly makes no pretensions to being a newspaper or a trade journal, purposing only to convey sales facts and program notes to State right buyers and exchange men.

* * *

Mr. Alix F. Harmer has been engaged by S. S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Manufacturing Company as consulting director. Mr. Harmer has had an extended experience and is an authority on stage settings and costuming. He has already taken up his duties at the new Santa Barbara studios, where all facilities for the carrying out of the minutest details are available and where projects of greatest magnitude can be skillfully and expeditiously handled.

* * *

Mary Fuller received word from the Colonial Theater, Buffalo, that she had won the popularity contest conducted by that theater. The experience is by no means a new one to Mary, as she has won many of them.

* * *

Jacques Jensen, a popular member of the Selig staff, and an original dramatist, has been elected president of "The Seventy-five Club," a body of workers organized for the betterment of masonry and mankind.

* * *

Baseball's "peerless leader" will soon be seen in moving pictures. Frank Chance has the leading part in a baseball comedy which will soon be released by Pathe Freres.

* * *

The United States Government is using over fifty No. 6A Power's Cameragraph projection machines on many battleships, at West Point and in many army posts for instructions in military and naval tactics, as well as for the entertainment of the enlisted men.

* * *

Larry Trimble writes from England that everything is going lovely with the Turner Films. He not only committed the cardinal sin of writing on both sides of the paper, but what he wrote on the back showed through on the front. Some day when he comes back we will get him to read it for us.

Miss Louise Lester, who not only plays the part of "Calamity Anne," but has written the stories, is busy working on a new adventure for Calamity Anne. Lovers of Miss Lester in this clever character sketch will be given a treat when this picture is released.

* * *

A vigorous advertising campaign has been inaugurated by the Ramo Films, Inc., under the direction of C. Lang Cobb, Jr., manager sales and publicity of that company. This American feature producing company is turning out two strong dramatic three-reel features every month. No expense is being spared to produce the best.

* * *

Joseph Smiley, one of the Lubin directors, to get a realistic effect for his feature film, "The Windfall," by Norbert Lusk, purchased an old wooden house and burned it down to the ground. Clarence Elmer, Justina Huff and Carrol Halloway are playing the principal roles.

* * *

In the forthcoming release of "Jack," by the World Special Films Corporation, a four-reel Eclair film, dramatized from the novel by Alphonse Daudet, the title role will be played by a relative of Daudet's who, at the present time, is a member of the cast at the Theatre Francais.

* * *

King Baggot, leading man and director, and Frank Smith, his assistant, were partially buried recently when several tons of dirt from a bank, under which they were working during the taking of a scene in "King, the Detective," a detective drama soon to be released, caved in upon them. The accident, which occurred at Leonia Heights, N. J., resulted in Mr. Smith having to undergo treatment for a sprained back, and Mr. Baggot to nurse a lacerated hip.

* * *

Allen Curtis, of the Universal, has just completed the production of "Mike and Jake as Pugilists." The story does with the situation in which Mike and Jake impersonate two live-wire prize fighters.

TO ALL WHOM THIS MAY CONCERN.

Please take notice that on the 29th day of October, 1913, the co-partnership of James L. McIntire and Robert Richter, trading under the name and style of McIntire & Richter, at No. 23 East 14th Street, in the city of New York, was by mutual consent dissolved. Until further notice, beginning on the 20th day of November, 1913, the business will be conducted by Robert Richter individually. Adv.

ELEANOR WOODRUFF
The Ethel Barrymore of Motion Pictures
PATHEPLAY

Do You Want

A soft picture
A well lighted picture

bringing out all the details?
If so, look at the

Radium Gold Fibre Screen

Selling on its own merits.

Write for Catalog ☞ Ask for Demonstration

Daily demonstrations in our projection room

7th floor Heidelberg Building
Broadway and 42nd St., N. Y. C.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Company
105 N. Main Street, Sole Manufacturers, ST. LOUIS

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
DISTRIBUTOR

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League

CINCINNATI EXHIBITORS' BANQUET.

Big Time Enjoyed at a Big Feed at Sinton Hotel Thursday Night, November 20—Nearly 100 Present.

WHEN the exhibitors of Cincinnati, Ohio, undertake anything they usually do it right. A banquet was given by the Cincinnati branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League at the Sinton Hotel, in that city, on the evening of November 20 and, from all reports, it was some banquet. The price per plate was $5.00, which means some good eats, and there was plenty to drink on the side. The occasion was the second annual banquet of Local No. 2 and nearly every member was present, together with several guests present from other towns making a total of nearly one hundred.

Festivities commenced at 10 o'clock in the evening and there was not a dull moment from that time until the finish at 3 o'clock the next morning. The big banquet room of the Sinton was elaborately decorated and the menu was an epicurean dream. After the menu had been sufficiently discussed there was a season of after dinner oratory that was both interesting and instructive. Southern hospitality of the old fashioned sort prevailed at that festal board and everyone had a good time.

Among the guests present were: Dr. W. Rayner, president of the Dayton Local; Paul B. Elliott, Indianapolis, Ind.; P. A. Schmidt, Indianapolis, Ind.; George Nethers, Covington, Ky.; Orene Parker, National Vice-President for Kentucky, of Covington, Ky.; M. A. Vanderlip, of Toledo, Ohio; Harry Hilling, Ludlow, Ky.; J. J. Burkhart, Newport, Ky.

President M. A. Neff, of the National League, was toastmaster and remarks were made by A. C. Dingelstadt, president of the Cincinnati Local, Amos Foster, Dr. Peter Robertson, Thornton Snyder, P. B. Elliott, Orene Parker, J. H. Mayer, Otto Ludeking, Thomas Nolan, John J. Huss, J. C. Klob, W. Rayner, Lem S. Miller, F. L. Smith, Mr. Wurlitzer, and Mr. Newman.

WILLIAMSBURG EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE.

Motion picture theater exhibitors of the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, N. Y., met at Progress Theater, 116 Graham Avenue, on the evening of Thursday, November 20, and effected a branch of the New York City Exhibitors' Association. The meeting was called to order by Samuel Trigger, president of the New York Association and stated the object of the meeting. Officers were elected as follows: Chairman of the Williamsburg Branch, J. Teltenstein, of 450 Bushwick Avenue; secretary, Miss E. Disler of the Progress Theater. The next meeting will be held at the Leonard Theater, Leonard and Grand Streets, Thursday evening, November 27 at 11 P. M.

Among the theaters represented at the first meeting were the Broadway Lyceum, Graham Palace, Tompkins Amusement Co., Leonard Theater, Metropolitan Theater, Lewis Theater, Williamsburg Theater, Owl Theater, Sutter Theater, Bushwick Theater, Old Postoffice Theater, Greenpoint Theater, Bushwick Casino, Kensington Theater.

PHILADELPHIA M. P. MEN TAKE NOTICE.

Philadelphia exhibitors are again reminded of the big open meeting of the Philadelphia local branch, which is to take place the first Sunday in December in the Parkway Building on Broad Street, at 2:30 P. M. At this meeting matters of the greatest importance to every exhibitor in the city of Philadelphia will come up for discussion and for possible action. Exhibitors in the Quaker City have before now received the circular of invitation to this meeting and they are advised to read this circular very carefully. There is lots of food for reflection in it. It appeals directly to the business interest of every man engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures in Philadelphia. Prominent speakers will address the meeting and discussion is open to all. President Jeffries and the men with him, who have the welfare of the exhibitor at heart expect a large and rousing meeting, and, above all things, many accessions to the membership of the branch. The Philadelphia league was at one time one of the strongest in the country, and it is hoped that in view of the problems which will soon confront the industry in Pennsylvania, the old interest and spirit of co-operation will be revived. Do not forget the date—Sunday, December 7th.

OFFICERS OF DELAWARE LEAGUE.

J. N. Ginnes, National Vice-President; Charles I. Beckett, President; David R. Sablosky, 1st Vice-President; Harry E. Klund, Secretary; Nicholas A. Jones, Treasurer.

NEW CINCINNATI THEATERS.

In the last 10 months, there has been 22 beautiful new theaters built in Cincinnati. They are doing a splendid, profitable business. The new theater which opened in Norwood a few days ago, owned by Dr. G. C. Kolb and others, with a seating capacity of 1200, is managed by Mrs. F. J. Lotz. They are running vaudeville and pictures and report a splendid business. Mr. A. C. Dingelstedt, president of Cincinnati Local, who owns a large airdome and the big Plaza Theater in Norwood, is branching out into several other towns. He is one of the substantial business men in the picture industry.

NOTES FROM LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS.

Orene Parker, national vice-president of Kentucky, reports that his three large theaters are doing a splendid busness. Mr. L. J. Ditmeyer, of Louisville, Ky., was in Cincinnati this week. O. B. Weaver and Mr. Val Rayburg, of Dayton, Ohio, were callers at the exhibitors' league headquarters in the Mercantile Library. Mr. W. C. Casper, Fairyland Theater, Cleveland, Ohio, one of the reliable staunch members of Cleveland, Ohio, No. 1, called on President Neff, Thursday and reports that Cleveland local is in fine condition and will be at the big Cincinnati Convention, "with bells on."

NEW WISCONSIN LEAGUE BRANCH.

President Neff Issues Call for Convention of Motion Picture Men in that State.

A convention for the purpose of reorganizing the State of Wisconsin will be held in Oshkosh, at the Atheran Hotel on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 16th and 17th, 1913.

Every motion picture exhibitor in the State of Wisconsin is invited to attend the convention and is eligible to membership except those who bolted the National Convention in New York. As they have been suspended, they can be reinstated only by the National Executive Board or the National Convention. Geo. M. Westley is now in Wisconsin and is securing membership at the rate of five per day.

The convention at Oshkosh will be the largest ever held in Wisconsin. Officers will be elected for the entire State League, and a strong campaign outlined, and an organizer placed in the field to secure every bona fide eligible motion picture exhibitor in the State of Wisconsin as a member of the M. P. E. L. of A.

M. A. NEFF,
Pres. M. P. E. L. of A.

PRESIDENT WITTMAN AND THE CINEMA CLUB.

John J. Wittman.

Some time ago a representative of The Moving Picture World was invited to a meeting of exhibitors up in the Borough of the Bronx, New York City. It was held in the Eldorado Theater, 1297 Wilkins Avenue, and was fairly well attended. The presiding officer was John J. Wittman, owner of the theater in which the meeting was held. What struck The World man as most significant was the earnest businesslike atmosphere which pervaded the gathering. No time at all was spent in discussing motion picture politics, but each member had something to say regarding the betterment of the business in which he was engaged, and, at that particular meeting, a number of important measures affecting the operation of theaters were adopted unanimously. This illustrates the good that can be accomplished when a body of exhibitors get down to business.

There are more than a hundred exhibitors in the Bronx and about three-fourths of that number are members of the Bronx Cinema Club. Meetings are held every Tuesday morning and much good is thereby accomplished. Already such catchpenny devices as "country stores" and premiums have been abolished. The price of admission has been increased, and there is a general improvement all along the line.

While every exhibitor in the organization is entitled to credit for bringing about these conditions, a little extra commendation is due the president, Mr. John J. Wittman, for his untiring efforts in bringing the exhibitors together and keeping their minds centered on the important questions of the trade. His good judgment is responsible for keeping the Cinema Club out of politics of every kind and independent of all disturbing influences.

As a bit of news in this connection, announcement is made that the Cinema Club will give its first annual ball at Hunt's Point Palace, Southern Boulevard and 163rd Street, on Wednesday evening, January 14th.

WILL REORGANIZE MINNESOTA LEAGUE.

Commenting upon the action of the members of the Minnesota League of Exhibitors, published in the last issue of the Moving Picture World, President Neff, of the National League, announces that the work of reorganizing the league branch for that State will be taken up soon. Mr. Neff points out the fact that President Rath, of the Minnesota organization, would soon have forfeited his membership in the league by reason of being interested in the manufacturing of films, which is contrary to the league constitution.

EMPRESS THEATER OPENS.

One of the new type of theaters that are being built in New York is the Empress, at 181st Street and Audubon Avenue, which was opened on the evening of November 15. It is one of the most beautiful houses of its kind, fire-proof in construction throughout and seats 650 persons. The Empress is built in conformity with the regular theater code with a ten foot alley all around upon which numerous fire exits open. The decoration is in old rose with grey stenciled border. A small stage permits the use of vaudeville numbers on the program when desired and a beautiful old rose plush curtain covers the proscenium opening. The entrance is through a beautifully decorated lobby from 181st Street. A Power's 6-A and a Simplex machine geared for either Kinemacolor or black and white, with a General Electric mercury arc rectifier, constitute the projection equipment, installed in a roomy and well ventilated projection room. General Film Company Exclusive features and Kinemacolor pictures will be shown. The Empress is under the management of S. J. Saphier and Edward S. Keller, the latter a well known vaudeville agent.

BINGHAMTON STAR THEATER OPENED.

Mr. N. Kornblight, proprietor of the Star Theater, Binghamton, N. Y., was in New York a few days ago looking for features for his new house. The Star has been entirely remodeled and is now showing pictures to large audiences every day. Mr. Kornblight says that Binghamton will soon have several first-class houses, but he does not greatly fear competition.

HORACE BENNETT BRANCH MANAGER.

Horace Bennett, who is well and favorably known to the exhibitors of New Orleans and surrounding territory, has been engaged as local manager of the branch office of the World Special Films Corporation located in New Orleans.

PICTURE HOUSES PROJECTED.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Lam Building Company is estimating on plans and specifications for a moving picture theater to be erected at Columbia Avenue and Patton Street for Charles Sassler. The building will be one story, 53 by 144 feet, and constructed of brick, bluestone, terra cotta and ornamental stucco.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Karp & Loudon, 36 North Third Street, and Jacob Dubin, 2847 Frankford Avenue, will erect a moving picture theater that will seat 1,600 on property owned by them in Frankford Avenue. The building will be one story, 80 by 150 feet, of brick, concrete and steel. Cost about $30,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John Graham, 1409 Filbert Street, has plans and specification for a moving picture theater at 1411 Filbert Street. The present building has a frontage of 22 feet on Filbert Street and runs 144 feet on Cuthbert Street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Arthur Kaufman, 3210 Diamond Street, has plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater, 40 by 80 feet, to be erected at the northwest corner of 8th and Filbert Streets.

Philadelphia, Pa.—R. S. and J. Young are about to take bids on plans for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected by them at 61st and Greenway Streets. Building to be of brick, bluestone and ornamental terra cotta. The house will seat about 500 persons.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George Hogg is estimating on plans and specifications for alterations and additions to the People's Theater.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Mastbaum Bros. & Fleisher, Philadelphia, Pa., representing the Garden Pier Holding and Realty Company, have closed a lease for thirty years with B. F. Keith for the new theater which has been built on the Garden Pier at Atlantic City, 800 feet from the boardwalk. The theater is a concrete, fireproof structure, capable of seating 2,500 persons and built at a cost of $400,000. It will be operated as one of the chain of Keith theaters for forty weeks in the year.

Tamaqua, Pa.—A two-story hotel and theater building, 68 by 150 feet, will be erected from plans and specifications by C. E. Strausser, 234 East Seventh Street, Mt. Carmel, Pa.

Montgomery, Pa.—A. C. Everheart, Williamsport, Pa., has been awarded a contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater, 28 by 108 feet, in Main Street, this town. The owners are B. A. and H. B. Weaver.

Holmesburg, Pa.—Frederick B. Richert is taking bids on plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected at 7939 Frankford Avenue.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Peter Guthy, 926 Broadway, has obtained the contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theater, 45 by 113 feet, to cost $9,000, for Edward Butt, 792 New Lots Road, and Henry F. Wise. 1191 Broadway.

Newark, N. J.—Philip Herman, 800 Broad Street, has awarded the contract for a brick addition to his moving picture theater at 763 Springfield Avenue. The improvements are estimated to cost $10,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—M. J. Mann has obtained a permit to make alterations in the moving picture theater on the east side of Forty-ninth Street, south of Woodland Avenue, for Arthur Blackburn. The improvements will cost $460.

Philadelphia, Pa.—W. F. Miller has taken out a permit for increased interior exits, new fire tower and other alterations in the theater at 625 Girard Avenue for Kaufman and Miller. The cost will be $2,000.

Baltimore, Md.—Joseph Schamberger, 2122 East Baltimore Street, has been awarded the contract for alterations to cost $7,000 to the theater of the Broadway Theater Company, 509-13 South Broadway.

Wadena, Minn.—Calkins & Beaudeau are having plans prepared for a one-story theater, 33 by 98 feet, and to seat 500 persons.

Emporia, Kan.—R. Holmes is planning to build a two-story moving picture theater, 44 by 90 feet.

Memphis, Tenn.—E. P. McCallum, Florida and McKellas Avenue, is to build a one-story moving picture theater.

Alexandria, Va.—Speiden & Speiden, 1403 New York Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C., have about completed plans for a one story moving picture theater, 48 by 80 feet, to cost $4,000.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Myron Stratton Home for the Poor, Dr. D. H. Rice, trustee, is to make additions to the Odeon Moving Picture Theater to cost $3,000.

Los Angeles, Cal.—City of Angeles, donor Col. G. J. Griffith, has plans in preparation for a Greek Theater, 200 by 400 feet, to cost from $100,000 to $150,000, to be erected in Vermont Canyon, Griffith Park.

Export, Pa.—Edward Berlin is to build a two-story moving picture theater and apartment building, 26 by 80 feet, to cost $8,500. Two apartments will be provided for on the second floor.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Central Amusement Company, C. Olson, 135 North Illinois Street, are to remodel a store building on North Illinois Street into a moving picture theater to cost $15,000. The same company will also remodel another building at 16th and Alabama Streets into a picture theater, to cost $5,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Charles W. Somers, president of J. H. Somers Company, 520 Cuyahoga building, Cleveland, Ohio, contemplate erecting a sixteen-story theater, hotel and office building, to cost $10,000,000.

Minneapolis, Minn.—P. Larivelrie, 610 Emerson Avenue, is to build a theater, 36 by 60 feet, with a seating capacity of 300, to cost $6,000.

Chicago, Ill.—Albert Fricks, 823 Sheridan Road, is planning for a four-story theater and office building, to cost about $350,000.

CORRESPONDENCE

ILLINOIS.

MOVING pictures are the educators of the children of today," declared Charles Frederick Weller before the Rockford Woman's Club at Rockford. "From them a vast school of 23,000,000 are deriving their ideals and conceptions of conduct."

The Temple Theater at Ninth and State Streets in Quincy has been re-opened with a moving picture policy. Former attempts to run a photoplay house there have not been successful.

The Palms Theater at Harvard has been remodeled.

Zimperhoff Brothers, of Chicago, have been negotiating for a two-year lease on the Derthofk Opera House at Belvidere, with a view to conducting a picture show.

The question of securing a license fee from moving picture theaters has been brought before the city council at Macomb. The present ordinance calls for a fee of $10 a week and was not especially designed for the photoplay houses. The theater men declare that if this is enforced the city will be compelled to keep two uniformed firemen on duty at each place and there will be little revenue for the municipality

T. F. Miller has purchased the Grand Theater at Litchfield from Chris Giverson, who secured it some time ago in a trade. The plans of the new owner call for complete remodeling, re-decorating and the installation of one hundred new seats.

Fred Putoff has rented a building on State Street in Lockport, where he will conduct a moving picture show.

Members of the Civic Department of the Woman's Club at Moline have agreed to act as chaperones at moving picture performances given by the high school. Efforts are being made to show the young people reels which will explain work similar to that done by the civic department of the club.

Arthur R. Lewis, of Paxton, has rented the Coliseum in that city from R. B Coddington The intention is to book road shows and conduct a skating rink each Saturday evening, but it is not improbable that some pictures might be used.

Plans are under way, it is said, for a new moving picture theater in Peoria. The site selected is on Upper Main Street on the West Bluffs, marking the inauguration of photoplay houses for the residence districts.

The city council of Aurora has passed a rigid Sunday closing ordinance, but was careful to allow the moving picture and other theaters to remain open.

W. W. Snyder has re-opened his moving picture theater at Mt. Pulaski after several changes. A Shetland pony contest, which is being conducted by a number of business men of the city, has its headquarters at the theater. The house also gives coupons good in the voting contest

Father Berhold's parish hall at Johnsburg will be used for moving picture shows under the auspices of the church this winter.

J. Kimberly, of Aurora, has accepted a position as advertising manager for the Imperial Film Company, of London, England. He expects to commence his new work about December 1.

Regulation of moving picture machines and houses in which moving picture shows are given is the object of a new ordinance offered to the city council at Danville.

Biggin Brothers have opened a moving picture show at Pocahontas

"More people will be attracted to church by moving pictures than will be driven away," says the editor of the Aurora "Beacon-News."

Perryman & Stoddard, of Ramsey, have taken over the management of the New Opera House at Assumption for the winter

Bushnell may have a new moving picture show.

Louis Sand has purchased a half interest in the Palace Moving Picture Theater at Roanoke

The Majestic Theater at Rockdale has been remodeled.

Manager Stephens, of the Joy Theater at Paris, now has his show in a larger and better equipped building. The seating capacity has been doubled, a new curtain, indirect lighting system and new projecting apparatus have been installed.

The Gem Theater in the Bremer Building at Hillsboro has been sold by S. E Hurst to Walter R. Potter, of that city, an experienced man who has assumed charge. George Hill will remain as operator.

It is reported a moving picture show will be opened in the Boyle Building at Stonington.

Manager Ash, of the South Side Theater at Aledo, gave a benefit performance recently for a fund for the new reading-room in that city.

The license fee for moving picture theaters in South Wilmington has been decreased from $100 to $50 a year.

Residents of Benton do not want their favorite amusements taxed. The city council needed some revenue and passed an emergency ordinance calling for a license of $100 a year from picture houses. Business men signed petitions which were presented to the council, with the result that at an early meeting the fee measure was repealed.

Manager Schuchert, of Percy, has opened a picture show in Steeleville where he will give a show each Wednesday and Thursday night.

The new Park Theater has been opened at Champaign. The house, which is new throughout, gives Champaign a very desirable photoplay theater. The interior is done in white and gold, the seats are 32 inches apart, lavatories for both men and women have been furnished, the lobby has been finished in imported tile, a glass canopy extends over the walk, operating room is of reinforced concrete and steel and exits have been provided with panic bolts. A ten-cent admission will be secured for the place, which has a capacity of 600. Among the advertising features are a new pipe organ, which will be located near the ceiling, but played from the pit, and a fountain light.

Moving picture shows in Witt must pay. The new ordinance passed by the city council calls for $30 a year from houses charging five cents and $60 a year from ten cent theaters.

Manager Hite, of the Lyric at Centralia, was host to 400 business men at a special show following a banquet given by them when plans for promoting the commercial interests of the city were discussed.

William Sauvage will not give up the management of the Temple Theater at Alton as had been prophesied, but has signed a new lease with the association owning it. The lease expires August 1, 1914.

All the photoplay houses in Elgin passed the inspection by the state fire marshal's department.

The Litchfield Opera House at Litchfield has ended a twenty-four-year career and will see no more stock companies, as it is being dismantled. The more popular photoplay theaters are blamed for its demise.

J. Ira Thorpe, manager of the Gem Theater at Clinton, and Miss Ella Skinner, who has been ticket-seller recently, were married at Chicago. The theater was flooded with rice by their many friends on the night of their return.

Alvah L. Roger, Jr., of Waukegan, a few weeks old, is the first youngster in that city who will have a film biography to show his friends and relatives when he grows up. The youngster is a nephew of George K. Spoor, of the Essanay Company, and the taking of the first fifty feet was very carefully done.

T. F. Miller, of Litchfield, recently was a visitor in Rushville where it is said he was negotiating for the purchase of a theater.

The Palace Amusement Company has been organized by a number of young men living on the South Side in Peoria. They have opened a house at 1201 South Adams Street, seating 400 persons.

The Beach Theater Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $60,000. The incorporators are W. L. Porter, G. C. Gilfeather and G. W. Brown.

The Rattermann Opera House at Warsaw will cease to be an amusement place at the end of the season, as it will be remodeled for other purposes.

Moving pictures were endorsed in a sermon by Rev. W. E. Griffith at Griggsville.

Professor Ridgely, of the Illinois State Normal University at Normal, continues his good work of endorsing the educational film. He recently spoke before the Mothers' Club of the Franklin school at Normal, on "The Educational Value of the Moving Pictures."

John T Garm and John S Coleman have disposed of their stock in the Grand Opera House at Beardstown to the Deppes, who already controlled three-fifths of the stock. Announcement has been made that the building will be completely remodeled, tentative plans calling for the opening of a five-cent picture house. Some of the balcony seats have been sold to W. H. Pilcher, of Chandlerville, who is opening a picture house in that city.

Harry Finch has sold the Star Theater in the Hunt block at St. Charles to Paul Krause, who will operate it as a five-cent photoplay show. Finch will engage in business elsewhere.

The Murphy Opera House at Mt. Sterling, in a recent advertisement recently used the unusual paragraph: "Until further notice our pictures will all be good."

The East End picture show at Fairbury has been leased by Lough & Ellis, who have added vaudeville to the program of pictures. The Electric Theater has been sold by Ed Gavin, of Pontiac, to Amos Lower, of Williamsport, Ind.

Hippler & DeNune, of Belle Plaine, Iowa, have purchased the moving-picture theater in Rock Falls from LeGrille & Middleton, and have assumed charge. The new owners are interested in a number of Iowa houses.

Here's another stunt to the credit of Burr Swann, of Pittsfield. On Hallow 'een night his two little daughters, the Misses Maxine and Dorothy, entertained at a picture show in the Opera House, having as their guests the pupils of the first, second, third and fourth grades of the public schools. Included in the program was "Dick Whittington and His Cat." Swan certainly is one of the livest small city managers in the Middle West; more than that, he is a public benefactor.

L. A. Burnstine, of Springfield, opened his new Lyric at Lincoln November 11. The place was decorated with flowers and ferns and every woman visitor was given a carnation. Decorations, ventilation, lighting, interior and lobby are modern in every sense of the word. Except on feature dates five cents will be charged.

H. I. Clauer and Ambrose Huber have formed a partnership to conduct the Dreamland Theater at Galena.

There was very little to cut away on the pictures of the big coal mines made at Nokomis and DuQuoin by the Industrial Moving Picture Company, of Chicago, the completed subject running 3,500 feet.

Harry While, formerly of Kewanee, writes that he has purchased the Palace, a moving picture house at Plattsburgh, N. Y., seating 462.

The North End Y. M. C. A. at Evanston has purchased a picture machine, having decided that films are indispensable in effective work by the organization. Two performances a week will be given.

Room for a theater has been left in the town site at Kincaid, a new town near Springfield. The town is growing rapidly and the advent of the picture house is a question of but a short time. The big electric corporation, which has franchises in twenty-five or thirty of the largest cities in the state, is building a million-dollar plant there and a coal mine will employ several hundred men.

George Slothower has given up the management of the Family Theater at Dixon and resumed charge of the Princess. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plein are now conducting the Family.

Films of the annual fall celebration at Hannibal, Mo., have proved a good attraction in western Illinois towns, which are neighbors to Hannibal. They were exhibited to good crowds at the Opera House at Pittsfield.

Joaquin C. Wilson, of Clinton, is suing Noah Stivers and Clarence Tharp, of that city, for half the expense of a test case to determine if it was legal to operate moving picture shows on Sunday. He filed suit for $162.35 in a justice court, but an appeal was taken to the circuit court of DeWitt county.

D. C. McClellan, who occupied the center of the photoplay stage at Pekin for a long time, will have charge of a new house, to be erected in the 100 block, South Oakland Avenue, in Decatur. The place will be erected by Doctors Brown and Jack at a cost of $6,000. The location will bring a large business from students at James Milliken University.

Charles Conley, of Monmouth, has purchased a picture show in LaSalle.

H. A. Owlwin and J. G. Fredericks, of Belleville, have opened a picture show in the Opera House at Waterloo. Shows will be given each Saturday and Sunday evening.

A new Kimball pipe organ has been installed in the Bijou Theater at Decatur.

The Atlas Educational Film Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with capital stock of $15,000, to manufacture and sell moving picture machines, accessories, etc. The incorporators are I. R. Rehm, C. A. Rehm, R. McCormick and Albert C. Derr.

L. H. Burkart, of Rockford, has been negotiating for a lease on a building on the west side of State Street in that city, with a view to opening a new picture house.

The schools at Huntley have been giving a series of entertainments to raise a fund for a new picture machine.

A picture show has been opened in the Opera House at Petersburg by the management of the place. One of the features is the admission of two children for five cents. Mrs. Lawrence Watkins is musical director.

Manager Eppes has opened his new American Theater at 319-321 Missouri Avenue. Pictures will rule.

An ordinance has been introduced before the city council at Galena allowing the theaters to open on Sunday from 2 to 6 p. m., and from 7:30 to 10 p. m., providing no music or outside attractions are permitted.

W. H. Newton is now manager of the Broadway Theater at East St. Louis. Every child who attended a recent Sunday matinee was given a free ticket to the Wednesday evening show.

George H. Newsome has assumed charge of the management of the Yale Theater at Christopher. He still retains his interest in the Yale Theater in Carbondale, but the Carbondale Yale as well as the Opera House in that city will be personally managed by Newsome's partner, Mr. Atkinson.

The ninth moving picture show in Moline will be opened, it is reported, in a new brick building to be erected at Fourth Avenue and Third Street.

Following the death of Sol Litt, manager of the Majestic Theater at Waukegan, his widow has leased the house to Joe Bransky, treasurer of the company, which operates McVicker's Theater in Chicago. The house was formerly known as the Schwartz, but just before his death Mr. Litt had spent $9,000 in improvements and renamed it. He used a great many pictures, but the machine has been removed and vaudeville will play an important part in the policy of the new management.

The attitude of efficient church workers toward the moving picture is seen in the fact that the vote was 31 to 4 in favor of buying a machine for the New England Congregational church at Aurora.

C. J. Delbridge, a druggist, of Paxton, bought the Crystal Theater in that city for one Saturday afternoon and entertained all his patrons and prospective customers at a picture show.

The American Cinematograph Company of Chicago is said to be looking for a location, and towns along the Chicago & Alton Railway have their commercial clubs busy. The company wants 5,000 feet of floor space and promises to start with thirty men, but will be employing about seventy-five within six months. Dwight and Pontiac are anxious to secure the concern. St. Louis producers also have made overtures to the business men of Mt. Vernon to locate a plant there.

Construction of the new theater in Peru which will be operated by Forrest Fletcher, manager of the Princess Moving Picture house in that city, has begun. It will be used for vaudeville and pictures. The entrance is patterned after the Liberty in Chicago, the interior after Fairyland in Chicago and the upper half of the front after the Colonial in Wichita, Kan.

Charles Lamb, who resigned the management of the Grand Opera House at Rockford to assume the management of the new Palm Theater in that city, has contracted with the General Film Company for licensed service for the new house. Harry Grampp, for six years manager of the Joliet Theater, in Joliet, succeeds him. Fred Swanson, who has been identified with Grampp, will take his place as manager of the Joliet house. Swanson enjoys the distinction of being the youngest manager in that city, as he is but twenty-three years old. He will present a number of high class feature pictures in addition to road shows.

The Grand Theater at Joliet, that has been idle for two years, has been sold by Frank Thielen to Edward Sweet, of Chicago, George E. Powell and A. W. Roth and will be conducted as an "all-feature" picture house. Sweet will be manager. The main floor has been entirely changed, new decorations made and a $5,000 orchestrion installed. The Powell-Roth concern operates six theaters in the state, all operating as film free-lance.

Troubles of D. H. Sward and E. H. Corbin have ended and they have been granted a license to operate a picture house at Thirty-eighth Street and Fourteenth Avenue in Rock Island. Residents of the locality objected to a photoplay house in that vicinity, but the difficulty was overcome by changing the plan for the entrance and the members were unanimous in voting for the permit.

The new Yale Theater has been opened at Shelbyville by Manager F. S. Russell.

Louis Hassberg and A. J. Polycon, of Joliet have purchased the Grand Theater at Morris from Meyer and Sam Goldstein. The Goldsteins have returned to Pittsburgh, where they will assist their father in the operation of the Crystal.

Admire & Estell have assumed the management of the Opera House at Roodhouse.

F. E. Moore's "Hiawatha" has begun its entry into the Illinois field and has been played as a feature at several northern Illinois houses.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

THE Grand Circus Theater on Woodward Avenue in Detroit, Mich., has been leased by the Uplift Motion Drama League, which will show the highest class dramatic and educational films. The opening was made with "Les Miserables."

W. J. Raiche has purchased the Lyric Theater at Marinette, Wis.

The Dreamland Moving Picture Theater at De Pere, Wis., has been removed to the new Roffers building on Main Avenue.

Burton S. Leeds, manager of the Grand Theater in Middletown, Ohio, has filed suit in the court at Hamilton, asking an injunction against the city of Middletown, restraining it from collecting the license fee of $100 from his moving picture house. Leeds contended that the license was exorbitant and conflicts with the constitution of the state and of the nation.

John Halstead, formerly purser on the Goodrich steamers, and Mr. Borbes, formerly a steward on the same line, have purchased a moving picture house in Manitowoc, Wis.

Nicholas Schmitz has opened a moving picture show in Mt. Calvary, Wis.

The Colonial Theater at Fort Wayne, Ind., recently gave the Mothers' Club a percentage of the receipts at a school children's matinee when educational films were shown.

The Paragon Feature Film Company made arrangements to take a series of pictures in Independence, Mo. Continuity is added to the series of views by following five young Pilgrims selected in a contest.

Butterfield & Heineman will erect a new theater at Oshkosh, Wis.

Recent releases, independent and licensed, and of the Famous Players Company, have been selected for the year's program at the Michigan State Normal School at Ypsilanti, Mich.

The Empire Theater at Fort Atkinson, Wis., has been sold to Gurther Schoellkopf, who after making a number of changes, re-named it the Grand. Four reels of Universal pictures are being shown for five and ten cents.

Thirteen small houses in the state of Michigan were closed in the month of October by the state fire marshal's department because they failed to comply with the safety laws. Inspections were made of 170 theaters. Since the new law went into effect 336 theaters have been examined.

The new moving picture house which will be erected at Beloit, Wis., by McGavock Brothers will seat 800 persons.

The Colonial Theater Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $4,000 for the operation of moving picture and vaudeville theaters. The incorporators are Natham P., Anna M., and J. de Ruyter Winchell.

Claude Long, who recently reigned as road representative of the Allardt's vaudeville organization, has opened a moving picture show at Decatur, Ind. Howard Long, his brother, who has been at the head of the Long Carnival Company all summer, has returned to Fort Wayne, Ind., to manage the Gem Theater, which he owns.

After papers were read urging the use of moving pictures in connection with the instruction of eighth grade pupils, the Mothers' Club of the Washington school at Fond du Lac, Wis., made tentative plans for the purchase of a machine to be used for the schools.

The Merchants' & Manufacturers' Association of Milwaukee, Wis., has been contemplating a motion picture "Safety First" campaign.

E. G. Powell, superintendent of building at St. Joseph, Mo., had an ordinance introduced before the city council which will give him or his successors power to order any changes he or they deem necessary in motion picture theaters. The building superintendent and the fire chief have the power to close any photoplay houses they deem unsafe.

The Paragon Film Company made two reels of Sedalia, Mo., subjects.

A moving picture show has been opened in the Liebl building at Luxemberg, Wis.

Residents in the vicinity of Wealthy street and Union Avenue at Grand Rapids, Mich., presented a petition to the city council asking that Sunday exhibitions be prohibited at the Winchell Moving Picture Theater.

Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills, of Battle Creek, Mich., has announced that he will use moving pictures in his church.

F. S. Converse has opened a moving picture theater in Nikoosa, Wis.

Frank Kern has sold the Gem Theater at Milford, Ind., to Herbert Miller, agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in that city.

W. D. Lambert, former publisher of "The Tomahawk" at Tomahawk, Wis., who has engaged in the moving picture business, announces that it beats the newspaper business because the patrons must show the color of their money at the door and there are no delinquent subscribers.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

THE Albuquerque Film Manufacturing Company, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., has been formed with a capital stock of $50,000. G. P. Hamilton, formerly of the St. Louis Motion Picture Company, was elected president and general manager. Henry F. Connolly was chosen vice-president. Other incorporators are: C. O. Cushman, J. H. Mahboub, H. P. Wanner and W. R. Walton. It is said several persons connected with the old St. Louis company will be employed in the productions of the new concern.

Differences between the management of the Iris Theater and the Stage Employees' Union in Topeka, Kan., over the employment of a non-union picture operator have been settled. Manager H. Grady Montgomery will run the pictures of the Famous Players' Film Company at this house and also a number of other features.

Phil R. Isley, of Kansas City., Mo., has purchased the moving picture show of W. H. Royce & Sons at Wilburton, Okla.

Merriott & Merriott will open a picture show in the McConnell building at Wilburton, Okla.

J. N. Nesbitt has engaged in the photoplay business at Bokchito, Okla.

The Southern Feature Film Program Association, of San Antonio, Tex., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000 for the purpose of manufacturing motion picture films and the purchase and sale of goods used in connection with the business. The incorporators are W. I. Cherry, of New York, and William Epstein and Walter McComb, Jr., both of San Antonio.

W. B. Newton has sold the Cozy Theater at Kirbyville, Tex., to James Bailey and James Scott.

A pipe organ is only one of the many attractions of the new Tivoli Theater, opened at Beaumont, Tex., by Manager J. F. Goodhue. The house cost $30,000 and is thoroughly modern.

The Queen Theater at Fort Worth, Tex., has inaugurated a Sunday club which is attracting some attention. Only persons who visit the photoplay house in the course of the week are eligible. They are given cards of admission. No music is given with the films.

R. Holmes is erecting a new moving picture theater at Emporia, Kan.

The Southern Amusement Company, of Dallas, Tex., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $12,000. The incorporators are E. L. Lancaster, B. T. Lancaster, C. B. Harris, J. W. Shanks and W. H. Kirk, all of Dallas.

G. S. Clark has opened a moving picture show at Dallas, Tex.

Burford & Glamann, of Wellington, Kan., have purchased the Martin Theater at Hutchinson, Kan., from the E. Wayne Martin interests. J. R. Burford will be in direct charge of the house.

The Paragon Feature Film Company, of Denver, Colo., made a series of pictures at Kansas City, Kan.

F. M. Kay, of Beloit, Kan., has assumed charge of the Bonham Theater at Clay Center, Kan.

Church people of Beaumont, Tex., who are opposed to Sunday picture shows should take the initiative by filing charges against the violators of the law was the conclusion reached at a meeting of the Southeastern Texas Baptist Association.

Police and Fire Commissioner Blaylock, of Dallas, Tex., recently announced that he would have his department do its utmost to prevent the opening of the moving picture shows on Sunday. He scored the subterfuge of taking collections at the door instead of selling tickets for admission.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE NORTHWEST

THE City Association of Women's Clubs in Salt Lake City, Utah, sent a list of questions to candidates for city commissioners asking their stand on certain matters. One of the questions was "Will you favor the establishment of a board of censorship, composed of citizens, acting without pay for the purpose of regulating theaters, dance halls, picture shows and other places of amusement frequented by the youths of the city?" Several replied "yes;" others "yes, if necessary." One declared "I am not sure that I would favor such. I am inclined to believe that positions of this kind are usually sought by people of pronounced ideas who are sometimes intolerant of the ideas of others." Another replied "While I believe that the theaters and picture shows have no desire to present any plays of a demoralizing nature, should any occasion arise, I would favor any fair and reasonable arrangement to protect the boys and girls." The next answered "No." Still another believed that the commission could take care of any problem that would arise. "Bureaus and boards are not consistent with the business idea underlying the present form of city government," he added. The next was emphatic: "My answer is, 'No.' I believe the parents are the best guardians of the liberty and action of their children. What I am in favor of is as much liberty for citizens of Salt Lake City as is commensurate with good government and sound morals. Boards or individuals of censorship acting without pay are usually worth just what they cost." Direct control of the amusement places by the chief of police with a policewoman doing special duty, was the plan of another, but he decided that he would be of open mind on the question and if the women could convince him of the necessity of such a board it would have weight with him. Another agreed with him in the idea of the commission looking after the matter and appointing a policewoman. Only one saw this "as a crying need that needed serious attention." He agreed to favor a board.

The Schuster Realty Company, of Rochester, Minn., is said to be contemplating the erection of a new moving picture theater.

Walter Belter has opened a moving picture theater at Ceylon, Minn.

The city of Livingston, Mont., has filed a suit against E. P. White, proprietor of the Alcazar Theater, to collect his $30 license for the last quarter. He contends that the ordinance is illegal and the case probably will go to the Supreme Court for a test.

Bolman's Historical Film Features, Inc., New York, has been granted a charter in South Dakota, with a capital stock of $130,000. The incorporators are Ernest H. and Edward W. Mitchell, of New York, and P. M. Lawrence, of Huron.

Rev. Oswald W. Taylor, rector of Grace Memorial Parish at Portland, Ore., who has been using the moving picture for instruction in the Sunday school for two years, acceded to the request of parents and recently showed "From the Manger to the Cross" at a Sunday night church service.

A. J. Zuercher has engaged in the moving picture business at Melrose, Minn.

Chris Jensen is erecting a new building at Poplar, Mont., to be used as a photoplay theater

R. L. Noggle, cameraman of Ogden, Utah, filmed the South Fork dam near Ogden and the local fashion show.

The Orpheum Theater at Denver, Colo., which conducts a weekly "Society matinee," recently had the event filmed and after using it, started it over a circuit of nearby houses

David Newberg has bought the picture house at East Grand Forks, Minn.

Fred Ellwood and his partner, Mr. Bybee, have opened the Rex Theater at Lewiston, Mont.

Claude Wales, the Seattle, Wash., cameraman, has returned from the north with 16.000 feet of film taken in southeastern and southwestern Alaska and the Yukon. He was accompanied by William Hesse. They got some rare Alaskan scenics

City Attorney I. N. Stevens, of Denver, Colo., disagreed with the late Mayor Gaynor, of New York, and in an opinion to Mayor Perkins, of Denver, said that moving pictures are not designed for the instruction and education of the public, but for amusement. Therefore they come under the police powers and any inspection fees by a board of censorship would be proper. The proposed fee of $2 will have to be reduced, however, he added, as it would produce a revenue in excess of that needed for inspection.

I. J. Moyer has purchased the moving picture show at Amoby, Minn., from Willis Benton.

Charles E. Freshwater, proprietor of the Family Theater at Hamilton, Mont., has filed a suit in the district court against Frank H. Drinkenberg for specific performance of contract. Freshwater declares be made a lease for a building to be used for his theater and after he had expended $350 in equipping it, Drinkenberg refused to carry out his part of the agreement.

Rev. Paul Deltz, of Minneapolis, Minn., a missionary to the Philippine Islands for eleven years, who is at home for a vacation, says the Filipinos are enthusiastic over moving pictures. "Missionaries in the islands who used them got along a lot better than those who depended just on their preaching in the native dialects. Motion and stereopticon pictures of the work of Christ and the apostles make much more of an impression on their minds than chapters from the Bible, with no other explanation than the missionaries' sermons."

The Educational Film Company, of Seattle, Wash., has been awarded a contract by the Washington State Exposition Commission to have charge of the state's motion picture exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. The contract calls for at least 25,000 feet of film portraying the advantages of the state. The commission agreed to install a moving picture theater in the state building at San Francisco.

Superintendent Slutz, of Pueblo, Colo., who has installed the moving picture and the Victrola in the Centennial high school in that city, declares, "Placing educational topics before the children in this manner makes a more lasting impression than could be done in any other manner."

Managers of moving picture theaters in St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., are co-operating with the State Anti-Tuberculosis Association by running slides advertising the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals.

Hay & Nicholas, proprietors of the Haynic Theater at Fairmont, Minn., presented season tickets to the school teachers in that city.

The Doty, Wash., Y. M. C. A. has adopted the moving picture, refitting the gymnasium to accommodate large crowds.

A. Danielson has opened a moving picture show at Fairfax, Minn.

The Tuttle school is the first in Minneapolis, Minn., to use moving pictures, although the East high school already had installed a machine. One free show will be given each week to the pupils, and pay entertainments will be offered from time to time to aid various school funds.

Moving pictures every Wednesday and Saturday that the house is not otherwise engaged, is the new policy of the Spoonheim Opera House at Northwood, N. D.

J. H. Swail, proprietor of the Swail Hotel at Sumas, Wash., has announced that he will build a new theater near his hotel, which will be devoted to continuous vaudeville and moving pictures.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

PHILADELPHIA.

ONE of the finest moving picture theaters in South Jersey was recently opened at Williamstown by Patrick Carroll, the builder and owner. The house cost over $12.000 and is the only place of amusement in the town. A number of local exchange men and exhibitors from Philadelphia attended the opening night.

Moving picture exhibitors throughout Philadelphia are co-operating with the Consumers' League in a campaign for early Christmas shopping. The league will furnish all exhibitors with slides, which will be shown at the beginning and end of each show, calling upon the people to visit the stores early and not wait till the last minute to make their gift purchases.

Theater managers expressed approval of the action of the Bureau of Fire in removing city firemen from the theaters during performances, saying their own employees were capable at present to cope with any emergency. In each theater the employees have been drilled for the last few months in preparation for possible fire. One large theater in Chestnut Street has drilled its entire force of 65 men so thoroughly that each man has a distinct duty. The plan has the indorsement of the Fire Prevention Bureau. The theaters' employees are subject to seven inspectors, regular uniformed firemen, who visit at unexpected hours. Moving picture exhibitors are now working out a plan whereby they will greatly eliminate the inspection of the Fire Prevention Bureau, and in training their own men to cope with any situation that may arise from a fire.

The Motion Picture Corporation of America has been granted a charter under the laws of Delaware with a capital of $1,000,000. W. F. Cooke, of Dover, is the principal incorporator.

Director Porter, of the Department of Public Safety, has sent to the managers of the 212 moving picture theaters in this city instructions to display a "fire notice" during the course of each performance. Additional instructions were also sent to the captains of the various fire companies in the city ordering them to make a detailed investigation of all fires immediately upon their arrival. In the past this work has been the duty of the fire marshals. The order to the moving picture theaters went into effect on November 20. Director Porter in his letter requested that a slide be procured immediately, upon which is to be written "Fire notice—Look around Now—and choose the nearest exit to your seat. In case of fire Walk (not run) to that exit. Do not try to beat your neighbor to the street." This slide is to be displayed at the opening of each performance for at least one minute. A new set of rules were also issued for the operator by Fire Marshal J. S. Mallory.

Plans are under way for the erection of a new picture theater which will be built at Twenty-first Street and Columbia Avenue for a local syndicate.

Edward A. Jeffries, who now controls several theaters in the Quaker City, is having a new one built at 5236 Ridge Avenue. This theater will be one of the finest in the Manyunk section of the city and will cost over $10,000.

Jacob Kissler is building a picture house at Wyoming and A Streets, which will have a seating capacity of about 600, and will be most modern in its equipment.

CONGDON.

LOUISVILLE.

CHARLES BERGER, owner of the New Grang Theaters at Corydon, Ind., and at Twenty-seventh and Portland Streets, in Louisville, recently disposed of his Louisville house to Messrs. Goldberg & Levy, who are well known in the business, Mr. Goldberg managing the Hippodrome and Olympic Theaters in Louisville. It is understood that Mr. Berger would not be averse to selling his Corydon house if he could get anything like what it is worth, as his box business in Louisville takes too much of his time to enable him to devote much personal attention to the management of his moving picture interests.

The new "Joker" brand of film, introduced recently as a part of the Universal program, has made a hit with exhibitors in this section.

D. Levinson, of the Novelty Theater, who has the first run of the Universal program in Louisville, filled his house last week with the four-reel Hagenbeck & Wallace circus film, which proved a big drawing card to large numbers of people outside of the regular patrons of the Novelty. The recent period of rainy weather interfered with night business at the Novelty to some extent, but the afternoon business has been up to the mark, largely on account of the unusually good programs which have been shown.

David King, president of the National Theater Company, announced recently that the theater will be thrown open shortly, with continuous vaudeville and motion picture shows. The theater is said to represent an investment of $300,000, and is one of the finest in the South in every respect. It will seat 3,000 persons. Lee L. Goldberg is manager of the theater.

"The Anarchist," featuring King Baggot and Leah Baird, was an attraction at the Novelty Theater last week which made a hit with large audiences, as these players are both extremely popular in Louisville.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" is announced by George Kleine as a coming attraction at the Shubert Masonic Theater, which has become the mecca of those in Louisville who like to devote an afternoon or evening to a single photoplay. "Les Miserables" recently completed a three-weeks' run at this theater.

The Interstate Amusement Company was recently incorporated at Lexington, Ky., by J. Emmett Graves, H. P. Bartram and Nick Ryan, with a capital stock of $5,000. The company is planning to open a new moving picture house at Frankfort, Ky., to be called the Colonial, about Thanksgiving Day. The seating capacity of the house will be about 400.

Dr M. P. Hunt, pastor of a Louisville church, recently declared at a meeting of the State Ministers' Union, held in Lexington, Ky., that it seemed impossible to procure an enforcement of the Sunday closing law with reference to moving picture houses. This law seems to be one of the many which were enacted without due consideration, and it is meeting with the fate of most of those dealing with such matters, where the great majority of the people do not approve of the object of the statute.

The management of the new Princess Theater, in Henderson, Ky., has announced that the new house will be opened within a very short time, unless unavoidable delays occur. The house will use first-run pictures only, and its seating capacity, which is increased by a large and roomy balcony, is expected to prove ample for the city's demands.

A movement is on foot in Lexington, Ky., for the introduction of motion pictures in the schools, for the better demonstration of various matters connected with the course. The teachers themselves have started the movement, and contributions are being received toward the purchase of a machine to be used in exhibiting pictures.

The local picture idea has hit Paducah, Ky., and several of the houses in that city have already shown films depicting scenes in that vicinity, including the public library, the country club, a football game, congregations at the various churches, etc., which have proved extremely popular with the audiences.

Kinemacolor pictures, the newest addition to the program of the Princess, at Hopkinsville, Ky., were shown for the first time a few days ago, and created much interest. Fred Carter, an expert electrician and motion-picture operator connected with the Crescent Amusement Company, of Nashville, Tenn., was in Hopkinsville for several days installing the Kinemacolor machines used in showing the pictures, and assisted Manager Venable in handling some other electrical work around the theater during his stay.

The Pastime Theater at Maysville, Ky., recently opened its doors, after an interim of some weeks, under a new management. The town is a good one for a picture theater, and the management is meeting with considerable success, as people were eager to show their appreciation of the show after its absence.

The well known feature film, "Cleopatra," was the subject of a lively legal bout at Clarksville, Tenn., recently, between Joseph Goldberg, proprietor of the Lillian Theater, and a person claiming the exclusive state right to the film. This person attempted to obtain possession of the film by replevin, but failed, and in order to prevent further interference, Mr. Goldberg had him enjoined from taking any further steps. "Cleopatra" was therefore finally shown, and proved a great drawing card, as might have been expected after the liberal amount of free advertising which it had received.

The Lyric Theater, at Lebanon, Tenn., which has been conducted for the past year by L. B. Long as a motion picture and vaudeville house, bids fair to be dark for some time to come, as Mr. Long recently moved with his family to Dickson, Tenn., where he will operate a similar house. E. E. Adams, owner of the Lyric, does not care to operate it himself.

A diphtheria epidemic at Lafayette, Ind., has resulted in an order by the Board of Health for the closing of all the schools and the theaters, including the motion-picture houses. Three deaths have occurred, and there are a number of cases in the city.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A CONTRACT has been awarded to Mr. A. H. Wynkoop, producing manager of the Motograph Company, for the production of a three-reel feature film for Dr. Henry Boardman, an English lecturer and traveler, who is now touring America, investigating the conditions and the methods adopted by the United States for the physical betterment of Americans. The firm will deal with eugenics and show several phases of every-day life which will establish the fact that more stringent laws are necessary for the long life of the individual.

Washington, as a city, and its more prominent citizens, are to be well advertised if the plans of Mr. M. Bennett, of the Publicity Film & Exhibition Company, bear fruit, for he is at present negotiating with public officials of the district and federal governments and civic organizations to obtain views in which they will be posed. A parade of the city's police, and an exhibition run of the fire apparatus may be arranged for. Scenes about the Capitol, the Congressioial Library and the White House are also to be filmed.

Postponement of the blanket order making sweeping express rate reductions has been announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The order was to have become effective on December 1, but has been postponed until February 1, 1914, for the reason, so it is understood, that the express companies showed they did not have sufficient time in which to get ready for the new schedules of rates. The reductions, as a whole, amount to about sixteen per cent. from the rates in operation. This, of course, affects the film business.

The People's Amusement Company, Inc., 607 Woodward Building, is issuing a booklet entitled, "Fortunes Built on Nickels and Dimes," to prospective investors in the stock of the company. This concern will operate the Savoy Theater, now undergoing construction in Fourteenth Street, near Columbia Road, Northwest, and they state that this is but one of a proposed chain of high-class motion picture theaters to be acquired, built, and operated by them. The Savoy is to be one of the city's handsomest theaters and will accommodate 1,000 persons.

Arrangements have been made for the taking of a series of motion pictures of the Health Department, its personnel and the work accomplished by it, together with the sanitary means employed to prevent disease throughout the United States. These films are to be loaned to moving picture houses throughout the country with a view to bringing to the attention of their patrons the necessity of keeping the home and person free from contagion.

C. L. LINZ.

GLORIA-AMERICAN CO.

110-112 West 40th Street NEW YORK

LA FILM ARTISTICA

GLORIA
TORINO

Director General Mario Caserini

---

FEATURING

MARIO BONNARD
whose impersonation as SATAN thrilled the world

LIDIA BORELLI
▪▪ ITALY'S ▪▪ Leading Actress

---

Territorial Rights Now Selling

THE GHOST CLUB

With M. Bonnard. SIX PARTS. Send for Synopsis

---

Coming Soon!

LOVE EVERLASTING

With Mme. Borelli and M. Bonnard. Production In Six Parts

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—How the Day Was Saved (Comedy)....
BIOGRAPH—Bink's Vacation (Comedy) ..............
EDISON—South African Whaling Industry (Industrial).1000
KALEM—The Octoroon (Special—3 parts—Drama)....3000
LUBIN—Melita's Sacrifice (Drama) ...................1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 72 (News).......
SELIG—The Cipher Message (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
VITAGRAPH—A Game of Cards (Drama)............1000

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1913.

CELIO—Venomous Tongues (Special—2 parts—Drama)
EDISON—The Price of Human Lives (Drama)........1000
ESSANAY—Autumn Love (Drama) ...................1000
LUBIN—The Hazard of Youth (Drama)..............1000
PATHEPLAY—A Peasant Marriage in Hungary (Customs) ..............................................
PATHEPLAY—Edible Fish of the Mediterranean (Zoology) ............................................
PATHEPLAY—The Geysers of New Zealand (Scenic).
SELIG—The Rustler's Reformation (Drama)..........1000
VITAGRAPH—The Wreck (Special—3 parts—Drama).3000

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3rd, 1913.

EDISON—The Thrifty Janitor (Comedy)...............1000
ESSANAY—Kitty's Knight (Comedy) ................1000
KALEM—The Cave Men's War (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
PATHEPLAY—A Break for Freedom (Drama)........
SELIG—Within the Hour (Drama)......................1000
VITAGRAPH—A Pair of Prodigals (Comedy).........
VITAGRAPH—The Coliseum of Rome (Architectural).

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Birthday Ring (Drama)............
ESSANAY—A Romance of the Hills (Drama).........1000
LUBIN—When Mountain and Valley Meet (Special—2 parts—Drama) ...................................2000
MELIES—A Woman's Mission (Comedy-Drama) ...... 750
MELIES—A Trip to the Famous Picnic Grounds, Arashyama, Japan (Scenic) ............................. 250
PATHEPLAY—Baseball's Peerless Leader (Special—2 parts—Comedy) ...............................
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 73 (News).......
SELIG—Granddaddy's Boy (Drama) .................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Swan Girl (Drama) ...............

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5th, 1913.

EDISON—Alexia's Strategy (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
ESSANAY—The "Pay As You Enter" Man (Special—2 parts—Drama) ....................................2000
KALEM—While Father Telephones (Comedy).........
KALEM—Andrew Carnegie's Gift to the World (Top.)
LUBIN—Some Elopers (Comedy) ..................... 400
LUBIN—An Interrupted Courtship (Comedy).......... 600
PATHEPLAY—A Bear Escape (Comedy).............
SELIG—Northern Hearts (Drama) ...................1000
VITAGRAPH—A Lesson in Jealousy (Comedy).......1000

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—In the Elemental World (Drama).......
EDISON—What Shall It Profit a Man? (Drama)......1000
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy's Squareness (Drama)......1000
KALEM—The Foot Print Clue (Drama)...............1000
LUBIN—Her Father (Drama) ..........................1000
PATHEPLAY—Col. Heeza Liar in Africa (Novelty)...
PATHEPLAY—Glimpses of Pond Life (Zoology).....
VITAGRAPH—Beauty Unadorned (Special—2 parts—Comedy) .............................................2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Capturing of David Dunne (Drama)..
EDISON—The Manicure Girl (Comedy)..................1000
KALEM—The Strike (Drama) .............................1000
LUBIN—The Smuggler's Daughter (Drama).............1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 74 (News)..........
SELIG—The Master of the Garden (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
VITAGRAPH—'Mid Kentucky Hills (Drama)............1000

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

CINES—The Stolen Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama)...2000
EDISON—The Stolen Plans (Drama)......................1000
ESSANAY—The Heart of the Law (Drama)............1000
LUBIN—An Enemy's Aid (Drama).........................1000
PATHEPLAY—The Stolen Inheritance (Drama).........
SELIG—An Equal Chance (Drama).......................1000
VITAGRAPH—Deception (Comedy) ......................1000

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

EDISON—The Joining of the Oceans, the Panama Canal, October, 1913 (Topical) ............................ 500
EDISON—Greedy George (Comedy) ..................... 500
ESSANAY—Smithy's Grandma Party (Comedy).........1000
KALEM—The Chinese Death Thorn (Spec.—2 parts—Dr.).2000
PATHEPLAY—You've Got to Pay (Drama).............
SELIG—Hilda of Heron Cove (Drama)...................1000
VITAGRAPH—That Suit at Ten (Comedy).............. 700
VITAGRAPH—Performing Lions (Animal Picture)...... 300

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Troublesome Mole (Comedy) .........
BIOGRAPH—A Foul and Fearful Plot (Comedy) ........
ESSANAY—Children of the Forest (Drama).............1000
LUBIN—Hydraulic Works on the Adda (Industrial)......
LUBIN—His Best Friend (Special—2 parts—Drama)......
MELIES—At Phnom Penh, Cambodia (Scenic)......... 750
MELIES—Beautiful Angkor-Wat, Cambonia (Scenic)..... 250
PATHEPLAY—A Modern Portia (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 75 (News)..........
SELIG—Physical Culture on the Quarter Circle V Bar (Comedy) ...............................................1000
VITAGRAPH—Sacrifice (Drama) .......................

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

EDISON—Peg o' the Movies (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
ESSANAY—The Three Gamblers (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
KALEM—General Bunko's Victory (Comedy).............
KALEM—Piano Manufacturing (Industrial) .............
LUBIN—Life, Love and Liberty (Drama) ...............2000
PATHEPLAY—Birds of the Inland Marsh (Bird Life)...
PATHEPLAY—A Journey to the Environs of Naples (Scenic) ............................................
SELIG—The Mysterious Way (Drama)...................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Life Saver (Comedy) ...............1000

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The House of Discord (Drama) ..........
EDISON—The First Christmas (Drama)..................1000
ESSANAY—Sophie's New Foreman (Comedy)..........1000
KALEM—The Invisible Foe (Drama)....................1000
LUBIN—The Real Impostor (Drama)...................... 400
LUBIN—A Pill Box Cupid (Comedy)...................... 600
PATHEPLAY—Uncle John to the Rescue (Comedy) .....
VITAGRAPH—Love's Sunset (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000

EXHIBITORS THAT ARE PUTTING ON
Song slide service are improving their business. The Best Song Slide Service in America can be secured from the AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO. First National Bank Bldg. CHICAGO, ILL.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

DO you ever stop to consider how essential to the success of your house is GOOD ADVERTISING? In fact, it is just as important as the selection of your films. A clean, up-to-date OUTSIDE lobby display reflects the quality of the show INSIDE, and a discerning public quickly "catches on" to this fact. Offer the public the very best advertising to be had and display it attractively. The exhibitors who follow this rule will find big increases in box office receipts.

The General Film Company has spared neither brains nor expense in establishing Poster Departments in various parts of the country where a complete line of up-to-date advertising matter, such as posters, banners, frames, photoplayer photographs, feature announcement slides, date strips, etc.—in fact, everything to advertise a photoplay show is kept in stock.

WE HAVE WHAT YOU WANT WHEN YOU WANT IT

Send your orders to any of the following offices:

GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Poster Department

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial St., Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl St., Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.; 921 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 30th, 1913.

REX—The Boob's Dream Girl (Comedy-Drama)
CRYSTAL—The Convict's Daughter (Drama)
ECLAIR—Roaring Bill (Comedy)
ECLAIR—One On Tooty (Comedy)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1913.

VICTOR—The Barrier of Bars (Drama)
IMP—Love vs. Law (2 parts—Drama)
POWERS—When Joe Went West (Comedy)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—Under the Black Flag (3 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—That Awful Maid (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—The Installment Plan Marriage (Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3rd, 1913.

NESTOR—The Brothers (Drama)
JOKER—Mike and Jake in the Wild West (Comedy)
ECLAIR—When Pierrot Met Pierrette (2 parts—Drama)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 91 (News)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4th, 1913.

IMP—Plain Jane (Drama)
REX—Thieves and the Cross (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—Slim and the Boys at Breezy Beach (Com.)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5th, 1913.

NESTOR—Locked Out at Twelve (Comedy)
POWERS—Cross Purposes (Drama)
VICTOR—Influence of Sympathy (2 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1913.

JOKER—A Pair of Bears (Comedy)
JOKER—Views of Yellowstone Park (Scenic)
FRONTIER—The Circuit Rider of the Hills (Drama)
101 BISON—The White Squaw (2 parts—Drama)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7th, 1913.

REX—James Lee's Wife (Drama)
CRYSTAL—A Woman's Revenge (Drama)
ECLAIR—Trouble on the Stage (Comedy)
ECLAIR—Magnetism and Magnets (Scientific)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

VICTOR—The Dread Inheritance (2 parts—Drama)
IMP—Return of Tong (Drama)
POWERS—How Freckles Won His Bride (Comedy)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—"Red Margaret"—Moonshiner (2 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Pearl's Hero (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—Baldy Is a Wise, Old Bird (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

NESTOR—Retribution (Drama)
JOKER—Mike and Jake in Mexico (Comedy)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 92 (News)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

REX—By Fate's Decree (Drama)
IMP—Time Is Money (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage (Com.).

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

NESTOR—Her Friend, the Butler (Comedy)
POWERS—His Own Blood (2 parts—Drama)
VICTOR—Hydraulic Mining (Industrial)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

JOKER—The Joy Riders (Comedy)
JOKER—Waterfalls of Yosemite Valley (Scenic)
FRONTIER—Out of His Class (Drama)
101 BISON—The Werewolf (2 parts—Drama)

Mutual Film Corporation

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 30th, 1913.

APOLLO—Her Husband and My Wife (Comedy)
MAJESTIC—Hendrick's Divorce (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Henpecked Hod-Carrier (Comedy)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 1st, 1913.

AMERICAN—American Born (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—The Woman Hater (Comedy)
RELIANCE—Tony's Sacrifice (Drama)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1913.

MAJESTIC—The Padre's Sacrifice (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Problem Love Solved (Drama)
KAY-BEE—The Revelation (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3rd, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Frame-Up (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 49 (News)
RELIANCE—A Woman of Sin (Drama)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4th, 1913.

AMERICAN—No release this date.
DOMINO—The Filly (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—Rogues Gallery—Portola
KEYSTONE—San Francisco Celebration (Topical)
KOMIC—How He Won (Comedy)
KOMIC—The Actor-Book Agent (Comedy)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—The Long Portage (Drama)
PRINCESS—The Little Church Around the Corner Drama)
THANHOUSER—What Might Have Been (Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1913.

AMERICAN—A Divorce Scandal (Drama)
MAJESTIC—The Helping Hand (Drama)
RELIANCE—For Another's Crime (2 parts—Drama)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7th, 1913.

APOLLO—The Rube Detectors (Comedy)
MAJESTIC—Dick's Redemption (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Milkman's Revenge (Drama)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Trapped in a Forest Fire (Drama)........1000
KEYSTONE—A Ride for a Bride (Comedy)
RELIANCE—Title not reported.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—Title not reported.
THANHOUSER—A Beauty Parlor Graduate (Drama)
KAY-BEE—The Legacy (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Frame-Up (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 50 (News)
RELIANCE—Title not reported.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

AMERICAN—His First Case (Drama)........1000
DOMINO—Devotion (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—The Horse Thief (Comedy)
KOMIC—Title not reported.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—Soul of the South (Drama)
PRINCESS—His Imaginary Family (Drama)
THANHOUSER—Uncle's Namesake (Comedy)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Armed Intervention (Comedy)........1000
MAJESTIC—Title not reported.
RELIANCE—Title not reported.

Exclusive Supply Corporation

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1913.

GAUMONT—The Living Doll (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3rd, 1913.

GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 91 (News)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4th, 1913.

GAUMONT—Oscar, the Hermit (Comedy)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5th, 1913.

SOLAX—The Shadow of the Moulin Rouge (Special Feature—4 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1913.

GAUMONT—False News (Special Feature—4 parts—Drama)

Simplex

ASK YOURSELF

WHY—The Simplex has become so wonderfully popular in such a short time.

WHY—90% and more of the film manufacturers and importers selected this projector in preference to all others for the exhibition of their pictures in their studios and their offices.

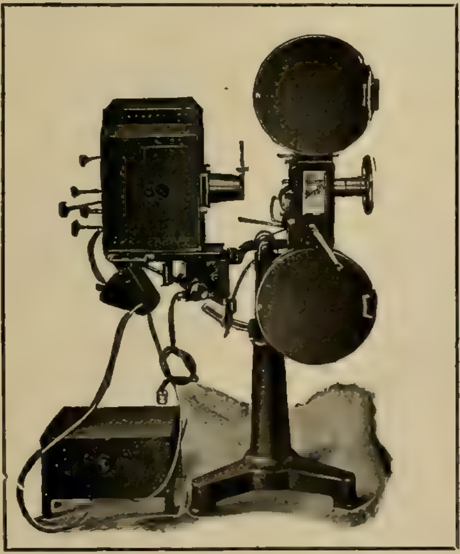
WHY—Simplex projectors are built so heavy, accurate and costly.

WHY—Simplex machines project such wonderfully steady, flickerless pictures.

WHY—Simplex projectors successfully compete with over forty different makes of American and European projectors.

WHY—Simplex machines were selected by the Regent Theatre, known as the best and largest moving picture theatre in the City of New York, after a competitive test with other makes.

WHY—You don't buy a Simplex at once and reap the benefits of its use.



INVESTIGATE TODAY
CATALOGUE A EXPLAINS MUCH

Made and Guaranteed by

PRECISION MACHINE CO.

317 East 34th Street, New York

D. W. GRIFFITH

Producer of all great Biograph successes, founding the modern

Included in the innovations which he introduced, and which are now generally followed by the most advanced producers, are: The large or close-up figures, distant views as represented first in Ramona, the "switchback," sustained suspense, the "fade out," and restraint in expression, raising motion picture acting to the higher plane which has won for it recognition as a genuine art.

Among the motion pictures which he produced productions famous the wo

Adventures of Dolly
The Redman and the Child
For Love of Gold
Behind the Scenes
After Many Years
Taming of the Shrew
The Song of the Shirt
Money Mad
The Reckoning
Edgar Allan Poe
The Curtain Pole
A Fool's Revenge
Mr. & Mrs. Jones Comedy Series
The Voice of the Violin
The Drunkard's Reformation
A Baby's Shoe
The Jilt
The Resurrection
The Cricket on the Hearth
What Drink Did
The Violin Maker of Cremona
The Lonely Villa
Was Justice Served
The Necklace
The Country Doctor
The Cardinal's Conspiracy
The Renunciation
Sweet & Twenty
The Slave
A Strange Meeting
The Mended Lute
With Her Card
The Indian Runner's Romance
The Mills of the Gods
The Sealed Room
1776 or the Hessian Renegade
Comata, the Sioux
The Broken Locket
In Old Kentucky
Leather Stocking
Pippa Passes
Fools of Fate
The Little Teacher
The Expiation
In the Watches of the Night
Lines of White on a Sullen Sea
The Light That Came
Two Women and a Man
The Open Gate
The Mountaineer's Honor
The Redman's View
A Corner in Wheat
To Save Her Soul
The Dancing Girl of Butte
On the Reef
The Honor of His Family
The Cloister's Touch
One Night and Then
His Last Burglary
The Newlyweds
The Thread of Destiny
In Old California
The Twisted Trail
Gold Is Not All
An Unchanging Sea
Love Among the Roses
The Two Brothers
Ramona
A Child of the Ghetto
On the Border States
The Face in the Window
A Call To Arms
The House with the Closed Shutters
The Sorrows of the Unfaithful
Wilful Peggy
Rose of Salem Town
Examination Day at School
The Broken Doll

Also two, three and four reel features not yet re

of Bethulia, The Massacre, The Battle of Eld

D. W. GRIFFITH

revolutionizing motion picture drama and technique of the art.

For two years from the Summer of 1908, Mr. Griffith personally directed all Biograph motion pictures. Thereafter as general director he superintended all Biograph productions and directed the more important features until October 1, 1913.

and which have contributed to make American rld over are the following:

- Waiter No. 5
- The Song of the Wildwood Flute
- The Golden Supper
- Greaser's Gauntlet
- The Muggsy Series
- The Two Paths
- His Trust
- His Trust Fulfilled
- Three Sisters
- Fisher Folks
- The Barbarian
- A Decree of Destiny
- Was He a Coward?
- The Lonedale Operator
- Madame Rex
- His Mother's Scarf
- The Sunbeam
- How She Triumphed
- The Smile of a Child
- Enoch Arden
- Fighting Blood
- Bobby, the Coward
- The Last Drop of Water
- The Sorrowful Example
- Swords and Hearts
- The Revenue Man and the Girl
- The Making of a Man
- The Long Road
- The Battle
- The Miser's Heart
- The Failure
- A Tale of the Wilderness
- The Eternal Mother
- A Blot in the 'Scutcheon
- Billy's Strategem
- The Mender of Nets
- Iola's Promise
- The Female of the Species
- One is Business, the Other Crime
- The Lesser Evil
- The Old Actor
- A Lodging for the Night
- A String of Pearls
- A Beast at Bay
- Home Folks
- Man's Genesis
- The Sands of Dee
- A Pueblo Legend
- Two Daughters of Eve
- So Near Yet So Far
- A Feud in the Kentucky Hills
- The One She Loved
- The Painted Lady
- The Musketeers of Pig Alley
- Brutality
- The New York Hat
- The God Within
- Three Friends
- The Telephone Lady and the Girl
- Oil and Water
- The Sheriff's Baby
- A Little Tease
- The House of Darkness
- The Yaqui Cur
- Death's Marathon
- The Mothering Heart
- The Reformers
- Two Men on the Desert

ALBERT H. T. BANZHAF

Counsellor-at-Law Personal Representative leased for exhibition in America, including Judith erbush Gulch, and Wars of the Primal Tribes

RANOUS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY

RANOUS

Motion Picture Co.

INCORPORATED

The Finished Product
of the Experienced Producer

The

New Private Secretary

In Three Reels of Constant Laughter

Featuring

LEONARD GROVER, JR.

Released by WARNE
Executive Offices, 130 West
Or Any of Their

Helen Gardner
in A Daughter of Pan

A STORY OF ANCIENT GREECE

Written and Directed by Charles L. Gaskill
Projecting Length, 45 minutes in 3 chapters
Copyrighted, 1913, by Helen Gardner

The circumstance that the Helen Gardner Picture Players have agreed to make twelve three-reel pictures in a year for the Helgar Corporation, and that these twelve pictures have been sold to the Warners' Features, in no way does or should be construed to mean or even indicate any further relations between the producing company and the ultimate purchasers—except such relations as usually obtain between producers and purchasers of territory rights. Miss Helen Gardner is not a Warner Features "star"—whatever that may mean—any more than she is an Edwards-Zettler "star," or the "star" of any other purchaser of territory rights to a picture in which she plays a part. Miss Gardner's productions are entirely independent of any extraneous influences; the studio in which she works is her own property, and she is handicapped by no contract which could possibly operate to embarrass the quality of her picture plays. Announcement will shortly be made of a new six or eight-reel picture—now in course of preparation.

This picture was produced in Miss Gardner's Studio at Tappan-on-the-Hudson for the Helgar Corporation. The world rights have been sold by the Helgar Corporation to the Warner's Features, Inc., 126 W. 46th Street, New York City, to whom Exhibitors should address their inquiries.

---

Holding the mirror, veiled with art, to Nature in her moods by tense wrought emotions formed.

MISS MARION LEONARD

Appearing Now In

A LEAF IN THE STORM

Ready A strong masterpiece
An acting delight

THE JOURNEY'S ENDING

One of the sweetest stories ever told with MISS LEONARD in one of her happiest roles.

All productions written and directed by Stanner E. V. Taylor at Miss Leonard's studio, 423 Classon Ave., Brooklyn, for the MAR-LEON CORPORATION, 472 Fulton St., Brooklyn.

R'S FEATURES, Inc.
46th Street, New York City
22 Exchanges

The MUTUAL Is Stampeding the Motion Picture Public.

Everybody Is Looking for the "Sign of the Winged Clock."

Mutual Movies Make Time Fly

This is the Mutual's Wonderful

SOLAR LIGHT

"The Sign of the Wing-éd Clock"
That Every Picture Show Lover
Is Looking for Today.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Big Advertising is Being Done to Make it the Most-Talked-About Sign in the World

"At the Sign of the Wing-éd Clock"
—Your Sign!

New York MUTUAL FILM

Mutual Movies Make Time Fly

The MUTUAL'S

Campaign to spend HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS in the most stirring advertising ever written to the theatre-going public, is driving hundreds of thousands of people into the Picture Shows that have the MUTUAL SERVICE and have the famous "Wing-éd Clock" prominently displayed.

"MUTUAL MOVIES"

on the big banner, above the clock and on the films, is THE BIGGEST DRAWING CARD that has ever been put over in the Moving Picture business. The greatest and highest-priced Directors in the production of Motion Pictures in the world, are working with the forty great MUTUAL organizations, bringing out films that are leaders today and which will out-rival the world during the coming season.

The Money-Bringing CROWDS are looking for "The Sign of the Wing-éd Clock" and the Big Mutual Banner.

If yours isn't out, ORDER IT TODAY, for MUTUAL MOVIES are now the BIG MONEY MAKERS.

Let the MUTUAL make money for YOU, and not for your competitor across the street.

Hook up with this greatest advertising campaign ever launched and let the BIG MONEY that the MUTUAL is spending start PACKING YOUR SHOW every day, rain or shine.

Order the MUTUAL SERVICE.

Hang up the Solar Light with the Wing-éd Clock.

Order the Big Banner and the Posters.

Get this BIG MUTUAL MONEY RIGHT NOW.

Mutual Movies Make Time Fly

CORPORATION

Branches
in 49 Cities

A Photo Dramatic Masterpiece

Will Thrill You as Long as Human Emotions Endure

Fanny
Davenport's
Greatest Success

The Sensation of Europe

FEDORA

Prologue and Five Parts

Advertising
1—6 Sheet
2—3 Sheets
2—1 Sheets
½ Engraved Block
10-8 x 10 Photos
6-20 x 24 Photos
Heralds, Cuts, Slides

SEE

The Dancers of the Cafe Chantant. The Exciting Racing Scene. The Raid on the Anarchist Den. The Sensational Battle with the Police. The Thrilling Duel, and the Climax in La Acala Theatre that will startle you.

READY DECEMBER 1st

WRITE
WIRE
PHONE

STATE RIGHTS. OUR THREE-REEL THRILLERS

| | |
|---|---|
| Gorki, the Demon Detective | Now Ready |
| Lieut. Danna and International Jewel Thieves | Nov. 28th |
| Bandits of Death Valley | Dec. 4th |
| Escape from Broadmoor | Dec. 20th |
| In Fate's Grip | Jan. 1st |

1-3-6 SHEET POSTERS. PHOTOS, HERALDS AND SLIDES

Exchangemen

Write us about our once a month 2 reel Exclusive Features.

First Release

TO SAVE HER DAD

December 15th.

TRANS-OCEANIC FILMS

145 WEST 45TH ST., N.Y.C.

"The audience feels an almost irresistible desire to stand up and shout. . . ."
Telegraph.

"Great enthusiasm reigned, and the audience applauded often."
Billboard.

"'Checkers' looks like a winner for many reasons."
M. P. World.

"'Checkers' proves big feature."
Boston Journal.

"The film goes through its entire 5 reels without a dull moment."
M. P. News.

"'Checkers' a triumph. Film staging of Blossom play perfect."
Dramatic Mirror.

Could More Be Said?

The press, with one accord, pronounce this a truly great motion picture production. Read what they said of

HENRY M. BLOSSOM, JR.'S, GREAT PLAY

CHECKERS

A FIVE PART MOTION PICTURE PRESENTATION

WITH THE ONLY THOMAS W. ROSS

IN PREPARATION

Dustin Farnum
IN
RICHARD HARDING DAVIS'
"SOLDIERS of FORTUNE"

Burr McIntosh
IN
AUGUSTUS THOMAS'
"IN MIZZOURA"

Tully Marshall
IN EUGENE WALTER'S
"PAID IN FULL"

All Star Feature Corporation

HARRY RAVER,
President.

220 W. 42d Street, N. Y. City

AUGUSTUS THOMAS,
Director General

NOT A DETAIL HAS BEEN OVERLOOKED NOR A WORTH-WHILE EFFECT OMITTED

EACH character is portrayed by a lady or gentleman of the stage, whose career is in the future and not in the past. Every artist was selected for his or her particular part because of fitness, ability and type. Such was the care and attention accorded the motion picture production of

THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST

Founded on William B. Gray's famous drama of the same title

Frank Sturgis carries Nathaniel Mansfield, his wounded pal, from the thick of the fight, to a place of safety

FROM the above simple incident the author of this popular old play has woven together one of the most remarkable and gripping stories of American literature. It has thrilled the English speaking world as song, novel and drama, and it will achieve a still greater success in its photo-play form. Nothing quite so pretentious has been done before in the world of cinematography. Keep your eyes open for future announcements,

AS THIS PICTURE IS GOING TO MAKE EVERYBODY WHO BECOMES CONNECTED WITH IT MODERATELY RICH

MARION LEONARD IN "A LEAF IN THE STORM"

HELEN GARDNER IN "A DAUGHTER OF PAN"

THANKSGIVING WEEK

You had much to be thankful for this week. So had every progressive, foresighted Exhibitor who offered his patrons a selected program of WARNER'S FEATURES this gala week just ended.

You ought to be thankful every day in the year for the privilege of showing WARNER'S FEATURES—pre-eminent and distinctly individual, towering head and shoulders above all three-part films by their unsurpassed Quality.

Good Things Coming in December:

The Accusing Skeleton

An Intensely Dramatic Story in Three Parts by the Producers of "Her Supreme Sacrifice" and "Back to Life."

A Prisoner of the Apaches

A Three Part Feature of Power Founded Upon the Vast Underworld of Paris.

The Hand of the Law

Featuring Thomas J. Tynan, Warden of the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., Showing his "Honor System" for Convicts.

The Vagabond's Conspiracy

A Three Part Feature Relating the Story of a Stolen Princess Returned after Fifteen Years.

A Leaf in the Storm Featuring the Rachael of the Screen Marion Leonard

An Ideal Emotional Drama in Three Gripping Parts.

Don't be fooled into taking features—so called—that cannot build up your business. WARNER'S FEATURES have shown positive results.

Now then—write, telegraph or call upon any one of the following branch offices we have opened for your convenience and you will be thankful as long as you are identified with motion pictures:

Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis, Seattle, Spokane, Washington, D. C. and Montreal, Canada.

WARNER'S FEATURES

INCORPORATED

130 WEST 46th STREET NEW YORK CITY

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

SITUATIONS WANTED.

A-1 OPERATOR & ELECTRICIAN.—Any machine, go any place outside Greater New York. Best references. OPERATOR, 43 4th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FACTORY MANAGER—Expert cameraman, printer, darkroom man wishes to make change. Competent to equip and operate commercial finishing house. Will locate anywhere. Address EXPERT, care of Moving Picture World, Chicago.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—Electrician. First Class. Address LOUGHLIN, 1264 Second Ave., New York City.

EXPERIENCED OPERATOR—Strictly temperate; highest reference as to character and ability. All machines; New York License; in or around New York. G. H. W., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR—Desires position; sober, reliable, first class. Now employed. Satisfaction guaranteed. State salary. Address G. H. C., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

MANAGER AT LIBERTY—10 years' experience in vaudeville and pictures. Strictly sober. Have Power's No. 5 machine. Address H. D. J., care of Moving Picture World.

A 1 OPERATOR—7 years' experience; Mass. and Conn. License. Strictly sober and reliable. ED. HALL, 50 Columbia St., Swampscott, Mass.

PHOTOGRAPHER—Twelve years' experience in "still" work; open for assistant cameraman or in laboratory. FLANDERS, 67 Second Ave., New York City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED, EXPERT—Effect man, Lyman Howe man preferred. State experience, reference, salary. GRAND CIRCUS THEATER, Detroit, Mich.

WANTED—Good booking agent; see my ad on page 1202. R. RICHTER, 23 E. 14th St., New York City.

FILMS FOR SALE.

300 COMMERCIAL REELS—With posters, $5 to $10. OMAHA FILM EXCHANGE, Omaha, Nebr.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—50 2, 3, 4-reel features; 500 commercials; write for lists; see ad on page 1202. R. RICHTER, 23 E. 14th St., New York City.

FOR SALE—Pathe Freres Passion Play in three reels, hand-colored, for $225. Address H. J. CALHONN, Capron, N. Y.

FOR SALE—New copy of Crusaders or Jerusalem, delivered; four reels with two hundred sheets new paper, three hundred dollars, with rights of West Virginia and Kentucky. Single reels slightly used with posters, as many as twelve reels weekly for one dollar per reel. Chance in a lifetime. Address BOX 394, Charleston, W. Va.

FEATURE FILM—New York State rights on Oliver Twist, with Nat. C. Goodwin. State not half worked. STAR THEATER, Cooperstown, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Empire Theater, New Brunswick, N. J., seats 630, six years' lease. Inquire Theater.

NICE LITTLE MONEY IN THIS—First-class thoroughly equipped moving picture theater in Alabama, city of fourteen thousand population. Weekly net profits $50.00 to $60.00. Price $3,300.00. Reasons for selling, owner going West. W. CARNOT HOLT, Moving Picture Show Broker, Montgomery, Ala.

NICKELODEON CLARION CO., PA.—Clearing $300 monthly, $4,000 Opera House, near Pittsburgh, seating 1,000, clearing $800 monthly; $8,000. TRI-STATE THEATER EXC., Schmulbach Bldg., Wheeling, W. Va.

FOR RENT—Fully equipped vaudeville and picture house. 306 seats; Powers 6a machine, beautiful stage, scenery, dressing-rooms and everything necessary for first-class house, including license, ready to go in and do business. Cheap rental; 17,000 population; 6½ miles from New York City. S. ROSENBERG, 251 Hudson St., Hackensack, N. J.

PICTURE THEATER—Located 90 miles from New York City in New York, for sale; 300 capacity, 6-day house, 10c admission, small stage, fully equipped, steam heated building, now doing good business. Owner wishes to go into another line. Price $2,000 for building and all. Will accept part payment. Address P. N. Y., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Seating capacity 300 to 1,200—some suitable for vaudeville—guaranteed O. K., with Chicago Ventilation ordinance. ROOM 513, 608 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

FOR SALE—Moving picture theater in a town of 3,200. No opposition, price reasonable. Address MOVING PICTURE THEATER, Palmyra, Pa.

FOR SALE—Motion picture theater, capacity 1,000 seats. Net profit from 250 to 300 dollars per week. No opposition. This theater is constructed with large stage, and is fully equipped with scenery. Further particulars will be given by HENRY M. FLATEAU, 51 Chambers St., 10th Floor, New York City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six-sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, O.

FOR SALE—Powers 6a Machine, used very little. Tlso Powers Indicator and asbestos booth. STAR THEATER, Cooperstown, N. Y.

FOR SALE—560 veneer seat and back opera chairs; 325 mahogany finish, 235 oak chairs can be seen at N. C. R. Co., or photographs will be forwarded to interested parties. Write PURCHASING DEPT., N. C. R. CO., Dayton, O.

FOR SALE—Ft. Wayne Compensarc, like new, $45; used only short time. Address FT. WAYNE, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—One complete set of scenery and electrical equipment, cheap, never been used. Guaranteed. Write for particulars and price. CROWN THEATER, Mobile, Ala.

THEATERS WANTED.

WANTED—Moving picture theater in Ohio, Indiana or Kentucky town over 15,000. Must show over 500 dollars a month profit. Have the money. BRADBURY BROS., 433 Park Ave., Louisville, Ky.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

ELECTRIC PIANOS—With keyboards, $80 to $125. Orchestrions, pianos with pipes, $240. All guaranteed to be in first-class condition. 44-note electric players, $60. Must be sold to close out business. Send for circular. J. E. HERMAN, 1420 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INFORMATION—Bright, interesting book on making, taking, finishing of moving pictures. The moving picture camera, its construction; by a cameraman of 20 years' experience, sent postpaid, 25c. FORDS, DENVER, Colo.

300 REELS—Fine condition, 3, 4 and 5 dollars. List for stamp. Portable asbestos booth, 35 dollars. Economizer, 35 dollars. Gas-making outfit, 20 dollars. Powers V, practically new, 95 dollars. CONDOR FILM EXC., 154 Third Ave., New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

WANTED—A young man with factory experience to fill position as assistant manager. An investment of $2,000.00 required. Address THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio.

OWNERS AND MANAGERS.—Ten ways to get the money with a picture show; ideas with a "kick," schemes with a "punch." If your competitor gets these you will be sorry; they're yours for a dollar. EGGLESTON & ANDERSON, 1215 S. Mirick Ave., Denison, Texas.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

PROFESSIONAL MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS—Two sizes. Tripods, Zeiss-Tessar 50M. lenses, $150, $225. Special cameras to order. Repairing all makes. R. W. PITTMAN, 246 Canal St., New

---

MOTION PICTURES---ARMY vs. NAVY FOOTBALL GAME

PRESIDENT WILSON and 40,000 world's most prominent personages—season's most sensational football plays—2000 ft. sensational scenes

A FEATURE OF FEATURES.

At an enormous price I have secured exclusive state rights on following territory: Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Mississippi and Alabama.

Every American citizen will patronize your theatre.

Southern exhibitors please wire direct to me for bookings.

Exhibitors in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana get in touch with me for 1913 World's Series Baseball Pictures.

W. E. GEIBIG - - - HOUSTON, TEXAS

KEYSTONE COMEDY SPECIAL

IN TWO PARTS

ZUZU, THE BAND LEADER

MABEL NORMAND
FORD STERLING
AND A HOST OF OTHER
KEYSTONE STARS

BOOKING CAN BE SECURED FROM ANY OFFICE OF THE MUTUAL FILM CORP.

MADE UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF MACK SENNETT
Managing Director of
KEYSTONE FILM CO.

MUTUAL FILM CORP.
71 WEST 23rd STREET
NEW YORK CITY

---

MÉLIÈS FILMS

Do not fail to book
"Exclusive Service" Release of Dec. 8th

The YELLOW SLAVE

THREE PART FEATURE

Copyrighted 1913 by G. Melies.

The greatest story of Japanese life ever offered. A subject of interest to all peoples. Advertise it now with our extraordinary one, three and six sheet posters.

December 4th

A WOMAN'S MISSION

In which Cupid comes out victorious, and

A Trip to the Famous Picnic Grounds at Arashyama, Japan

PRODUCED IN JAPAN.

LICENSED FILM STORIES

EDISON.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN WHALING INDUSTRY (Dec. 1).—The picture opens with views of all the interesting incidents of a modern whale hunt. The spouting whale is sighted, sometimes at a distance of five miles, and the trim steamer, with harpoon gun loaded and ready on the bow, quietly approaches its prey. Once within range, the gun is fired. The harpoon with its deadly charge of dynamite pierces the great beast and explodes, and, if the aim has been true, there is little else left to do except to haul in on the heavy rope, lash the whale securely to the side of the ship, and tow him back to port.

Once in the port of Durban, the whale is removed from the water as quickly as possible on account of the voracity of the sharks which infest these waters. Some splendid pictures of sharks attacking a moored whale are shown.

After the exciting whale hunt, we turn to the transportation of the whale to the factory. After being hauled out of the water by steam winches, the body is placed upon three or four flat cars, and a puffing locomotive drags the great sixty-ton beast to the rendering factory.

Here the several processes by which the whale oil, spermaceti and whalebone of commerce are produced, are carefully followed. Incidentally we are shown several views which effectually demonstrate the enormous size of these monsters of the deep—a whale's heart, for instance, which weighs four hundred pounds, and a modern Jonah standing in a whale's mouth.

WANTED, A BURGLAR (Dec. 1).—Thad Rowley was the printer in the office of the Corntown Clarion. From the heights of his literary dignity, Mr. Penrose, the editor, looked down on the menial who did nothing except get out the paper. The trouble started when Thad fell hopelessly in love with Helen Penrose, the editor's daughter. To make matters worse, Helen fell in love with Thad. The editor's rage was terrible.

The next morning, the editor discovered that some miscreant had entered his office during the night, and had stolen seven cigars and nineteen cents in cash. Wild with indignation, he sat down and wrote an advertisement, which he inserted in his paper. It mentioned the felony of the previous evening, called attention to the fact that there would be three hundred dollars in the safe on the coming night, and remarked that the editor would be glad to give this sum to anyone who was man enough to take it away.

That evening Mr. Penrose sat watchfully in his office chair with two ferocious pistols on the desk before him. At ten o'clock he became drowsy. He dozed. The office window opened softly, a slight boyish figure entered, ran off the combination of the safe with suspicious readiness, took out the money, and disappeared through the window.

The editor awoke without realizing he had been asleep, discovered his loss and telephoned the constable. Thad Rowley burst in and asked the editor if he might marry his daughter if he caught the thief. Half out of his wits with excitement, the editor agreed. Thad went out and reappeared dragging the slight boyish figure. The delighted editor bade the constable do his duty. Thad remarked that he had better look at the culprit. The editor did so and discovered—Helen.

THE PRICE OF HUMAN LIVES (Dec. 2).—Beth Cort, a wealthy young society girl, becomes interested in social service work among the poor, despite the opposition of her father. She becomes deeply interested in two young people, Nell Linn and Edward Grant, both of whom are suffering from the early stages of consumption. For some months, Nell and Edward have been taking "Concura," a supposedly infallible remedy which boasts of hundreds of commendatory letters from cured patients. Nell, who has been particularly hopeful of being cured by the marvelous medicine, suddenly gets a letter from her cousin telling her that her aunt has just died despite "Concura." Nell shows the letter to Miss Cort, and the latter in a fury of just indignation, rushes to the office of the "Concura" manufacturers to denounce them. To her horror she discovers that her lover is the advertising manager of the "Concura" company, and that her own father is the actual manufacturer. The scene in which the young girl confronts lover and father in their office is one of stirring intensity.

The story ends on a Christmas eve exactly a year after its commencement, and shows the wonderful difference effected in many lives by the work of this one courageous girl.

THE THRIFTY JANITOR (Dec. 3).—The whole trouble started when Mr. and Mrs. Blythe had a slight difference of opinion with regard to their vacation. Mr. Blythe wanted to go to the mountains while Mrs. Blythe insisted that the seashore was infinitely more attractive in every way. Mr. Blythe said that he would spend his vacation at his club in town, and Mrs. Blythe told him he was a brute, and went home to her mother. Now the janitor did not know that they had quarreled; he thought they had gone on their two months' vacation. And so he decided to rent the Blythe's apartment.

A young bride and groom coming to the city on their honeymoon had been highly shocked by the tremendous charges of the hotel to which they had gone at first. In their search of a more reasonable habitation, they chanced to see the sign which the janitor had placed in front of the apartment house. The young couple inspected the apartment, and, finding the price distinctly reasonable, decided to take it.

Meanwhile, the Blythes had been passing through periods of repentance. Mr. Blythe met an old friend at the club. The old friend told him he was making a fool of himself and Mr. Blythe was unwillingly forced to agree with him. Mrs. Blythe's mother and father effected the same result on Mrs. Blythe by their sensible, unbiased speech. The upshot of the whole affair was that the Blythes decided to go home and forgive each other.

Mrs. Blythe arrived first, and found a woman's hat on the table in the hall. Mr. Blythe arriving a moment later was confronted by a maddened spouse. In the midst of her tirade, Mr. Blythe made the startling discovery that there was another man in the house. He tried to get him. The groom barricaded the door, and shouted loudly from the window that criminal lunatics had broken into his dwelling-place. After the police had succeeded in calming the disturbance, the janitor was allowed to explain his part in the affair.

ALEXIA'S STRATEGY (Special—2 parts—Dec. 5).—Walter Young and John Osgood were both in love with Alexia Trexell, daughter of the president of the trust company in which both young men worked. Because Alexia preferred Young, Osgood stole four hundred thousand dollars' worth of securities out of the vault, and entering Young's room, left an incriminating handful of the bonds under a table. Young, apparently the only man who could possibly have taken the bonds, was arrested; the bonds were found under the table, and Young was sentenced to a long term in prison on the strength of the overwhelming mass of circumstantial evidence.

Osgood was now able to recommence his suit for Alexia with a reasonable prospect of success. But unfortunately his path was not yet free from difficulties. On his way to Young's house with the securities, Osgood had unwittingly dropped a cardcase which contained incriminating evidence. Usakoff, a Russian derelict, found this cardcase and, a few days after Young had been sentenced to jail, called on Osgood, and cooly demanded blackmail.

Osgood unable to protect himself, was forced to pay Usakoff's extravagant demands, and the Russian prepared himself for a life of easy affluence. Alexia's suspicions were aroused by Osgood's evident fear of the mysterious Russian, and she resolved to discover the reason for Usakoff's hold over her suitor. A telegram from Usakoff to Osgood, demanding money, which Alexia accidentally intercepted, aroused her suspicions to fever heat.

To accomplish her ends, Alexia brought all her charms to bear on the cheerful Usakoff. In a short time he was hopelessly in love with her. Then Alexia played on her vehement admirer's jealousy. She told him that she was going to marry Osgood. Usakoff, wild with anger, told her of the part Osgood had played in Young's conviction, and when Osgood came, he dared him to deny his remarks. Two detectives, whom Alexia had previously hidden in the room, seized the evidently guilty Osgood, and hurried him off to trial. Young was released, completely exonerated, and returned to Alexia, just in time to kick downstairs no less a person than the redoubtable Mr. Usakoff, who was unable to realize that Alexia was not madly devoted to him.

WHAT SHALL IT PROFIT A MAN? (Dec. 6).—Gilbert Storm and Robert Grimsby were partners in a piece of mining property of undetermined value. For Grimsby, who had invested his entire fortune in the enterprise the success or failure of the mine was almost a question of life and death. Storm, a stern, hard man, was not so heavily involved.

When the assayer engaged in an estimate of the mine's value brought his final report to Storm's office, Storm learned that the mine, instead of being the moderately good investment he had anticipated, was, in fact, a property of incredible richness. In the excitement of the moment, he found time to regret bitterly the fact that Grimsby's holdings in the mine were considerably larger than his own.

A statue of the Winged Victory stood in the room just above Storm's desk. Storm glanced at it, and immediately decided upon his course of action. Driven headlong by the idols that possessed his being, he gave the assayer five thousand dollars to prepare a false report which showed that the mine was practically worthless. Dazed and crushed by the terrible news, Grimsby accepted Storm's kind words of condolence, and the meagre check, which the generous Storm gave him for his worthless stock. Then Grimsby stumbled out of the house, and started downward along the road to utter ruin..

One day, Gilbert Storm's wife discovered the two assay reports in his desk, and confronting her husband, demanded that he make restitution. Storm, flushed with the pride of his growing power in politics, sternly refused. A moment later he went out on the balcony of their house to address the enthusiastic band of voters come to welcome their latest and most popular candidate for office.

In the midst of his speech, Mrs. Storm appeared on the balcony, and told the voters that Storm had robbed his partner. Storm, with his wonderful magnetism succeeded in convincing the crowd that it was all a mistake, after the hysterical woman had been removed. That is, all but one—Robert Grimsby.

That evening, Grimsby crept into Storm's study and tried to kill the man who had ruined him. He was interrupted by the appearance of Mrs. Storm and the family doctor. The badly beaten Storm was forced to give up the money that was Grimsby's by right, and with his wife's arms about him, resolved to renounce his unrighteous gods.

THE MANICURE GIRL (Dec. 8).—Jack Hardy was madly in love with Grace Cortland. Moreover, he had always thought that he stood a very fair chance indeed of marrying Grace, until a certain Mr. Passay appeared on the scene. Grace, herself, did not care a bit about Mr. Passay and did care for Jack. Her mother, however, thought that Mr. Passay was an eminently suitable person. In the first place, he had money. So Jack's suit grew more and more unpromising, and the young man's face gradually acquired a mournful and unnatural appearance. At length affairs became so desperate that even the manicure girl in the great hotel noticed it.

The whole business started when word came to the manicure gifirl that Miss Cortland wanted her to come upstairs. The manicure girl was doing Jack's hands at the time, and was rather surprised when the sorrowful young gentleman begged her to take a note to Miss Cortland. However, she willingly consented, and just as willingly brought Jack Miss Cortland's answer. Then, because there was no use doing anything else, Jack told the manicure all his troubles, and she promised to help him partly because she hated Mr. Passay, who bothered her with frequent invitations to dinner, and partly because she liked Jack's eyes.

It was really ridiculously easy to get Jack out of his predicament—granted that a girl was willing to put herself in a somewhat questionable situation. It is hardly probable that many girls would have taken the trouble, particularly when they knew that they couldn't possibly take any reward except a few words of thanks. But the manicure girl was not an ordinary girl by any manner of means. She accepted one of Mr. Passay's numerous invitations to supper in a restaurant, and saw to it that he was seated with his back toward a table, to which, by a prearranged plot, Jack brought Grace and her mother. Mr. Passay, who according to his custom had looked upon the wine when it was sparkling, began also according to his custom to make love to his pretty guest. His pretty guest, conscious that the eyes of Mrs. Cortland were fastened on the luckless Passay, lured him on. At last he kissed her. The manicure girl slapped him, and swept majestically out of the dining-room, leaving Passay to explain things to the frigid Mrs. Cortland.

THE STOLEN PLANS (Dec. 9).—Because Captain West had won his position in the army by virtue of his superior intelligence rather than because his uncle had been a lord or anything of that sort, Captain Ashmay considered West "something of a rotter." Ashmay's resentment at the fact that he must perforce remain in the same regiment with a man so markedly beneath him in social position was considerably heightened when West beat him in the aeroplane race at the Autumn maneuvers. When he discovered that his sister was actually in love with West, Ashmay's feelings rose to the boiling point, and he forbade her to have any more to do with the man.

Burgovitch, a mysterious individual, ostensibly a tourist, actually the secret agent of a foreign government, was in England for the single purpose of getting possession of the new biplane plans which were safely kept in Colonel Coldyke's safe. Burgovitch was a clever man. He studied men, and when he laid his plans, they were generally successful.

Captain Ashmay's father, in serious financial difficulties had been obliged to borrow large sums of money from a broker named Goldman. Burgovitch bought Mr. Ashmay's notes, and requested an interview with Captain Ashmay. In his talk with the captain, Burgovitch waived all thought of diplomacy or tact. He had the notes. Mr. Ashmay was unable to pay. If Captain Ashmay wished to save his father from certain disgrace, he must get the biplane plans for Burgovitch. Unfortunately for the complete success of Burgovitch's plan, Mary, the barmaid at the inn in which the interview was held, overheard the conversation, and hurried with the news to Captain West.

West received the news just after Ashmay had made his mind up, and had succeeded in extracting the papers from the colonel's safe. West pursued him in an automobile to the inn, and interrupted the proceedings just as Ashmay was about to hand the papers over. West seized the

"Vengeance Bequeathed"

"Thou Shalt Not Kill!"

Is a stern commandment, but to the two sisters of sorrow in "VENGEANCE BEQUEATHED" living to avenge their sister, dead to honor and to life, it did not apply.

For what wrong to yourself or to your beloved ones would you break the commandment?

THREE REELS STATE RIGHTS

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA
220 West 42nd Street, New York City

papers and hurried back just in time to slip them into the safe before the colonel had had time to miss them. Then West went over to the Ashmay's and told the threatening Burgovitch that he must either give Mr. Ashmay more time on his notes, or else submit to immediate arrest as a spy. The repentant Ashmay begged West's pardon for his snobbishness of the past, and the play ends with West's arm about Dora Ashmay's shoulders.

THE JOINING OF THE OCEANS—The Panama Canal, October, 1913 (Dec. 10).—The picture opens at Colon on the Atlantic side of the Panama Canal. Here we see the new government wharves and the good ship "Fram," patiently waiting to put the crowning touch on her life of splendid achievement, by being among the first vessels to pass through the completed canal.

From Colon we pass through the sea-level part of the canal to the series of locks at Gatun, that we may be in time to watch the first boats passing through these gigantic elevators. After we have seen the tugboats, filled with their distinguished guests, raised to a height of seventy feet above sea-level, we emerge into Lake Gatun, the great artificial pond which has been created by the Gatun Dam. We then get brief glimpses of the Pacific end of the canal—the fortified islands in Panama Bay, the shipyards at Balboa, and the completed locks at Miraflores.

Then we return to the narrow strip of earth which until October 9 held back the waters of Lake Gatun from the Culebra Cut—the Gamboa Dike. Nearly eighteen thousand pounds of dynamite were planted in this dam in the morning. At one minute after two in the afternoon, President Wilson pressed a telegraph key in Washington, and instantly a tremendous tower of mud, smoke and water lifted itself out of the soil of Panama. When the smoke cleared away, the waters of Lake Gatun could be seen rushing down into the great cut which had been prepared for them, and the last step in the cleaving of a continent was completed.

GREEDY GEORGE (Dec. 10.—George ate cake and jelly. Moreover he ate pies and jam and candies and cookies.. George never went to bed with a pain in his—er—head.

One evening, after he had vainly entreated his parents for a few more slices of pie at dinner, George determined to take matters in his own hands. Accordingly, he arose out of his bed in the dead of night, and, making his way to the pantry, stuffed himself with a wild and awful variety of sweets.

When George betook himself again to bed after his unlawful repast, he was not destined to enjoy unbroken repose. George had a nightmare. It seemed to him that he was wandering through a country which was like, and yet curiously unlike the surroundings to which he was accustomed. A large ginger ale bottle and a sugar bowl accompanied him on his trip. Whenever they happened upon the hills of pies, the mammoth puddings and the huge cakes with which this strange country was filled, the bottle and bowl insisted on George eating them. At length, George, in a violent attempt to escape fell through the crust of an enormous cake, and woke up—on the floor.

PEG O' THE MOVIES (Special—2 parts—Dec. 12).—Peg was a good girl, and a pretty girl. Stephen thought so, and Stephen knew, because he was a very clever young man. For a long while he had been very deeply in love with Peg, and he wanted her to marry him very much. But Peg refused. To begin with, she had to take care of her little sisters. Then again there was her father, who drank as no self-respecting fish would ever think of doing. Mrs. Martel, one of Peg's friends, was employed in a motion picture studio. At her suggestion Peg called at the studio and interviewed the manager. Her good looks and her manner impressed the manager, and he offered her an immediate engagement, which Peg accepted, despite the vehement protests of Stephen. Stephen angered at Peg's disregard of his wishes accepted a position with a bridge-building company in the far West, and left her with a bare note of farewell.

Peg's chance to make a success came very shortly after she joined the company. The leading lady flatly refused to act in a certain scene on account of the danger involved. Peg begged to be allowed to try, and made an immediate and remarkable success of the part. In a short time she was playing "leads" regularly, generally with George Mackey, the handsome young leading man of the company. So natural and spontaneous was her acting, that when the management sent a company into the West to take a few feature pictures, they had no hesitation in selecting Peg for leading woman. Meanwhile, Stephen had become very lonely. One night, he chanced to drop into a motion picture theater in the little Western town, and saw Peg in George Mackey's arms. The next night he went to see it again, and learned that the picture had been sent to the next town, thirty miles away. So Stephen rode over to the next town. On the way back he came upon Peg and the picture company in the act of taking a picture representing an Indian uprising. As it happened the company needed a man very badly who could ride well. For Peg's sake, Stephen consented to take the part. But when, during the rehearsal, he was obliged to save Peg from the Indians, Stephen forgot he was playing a part, and rode out on the long trail with the heroine of the pictures clasped tightly in his arms.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS (Dec. 13).—In the days when Herod was king in Judea, there lived in the city of David, which is Bethlehem, a rich young man who, wearying of the emptiness of life, passed his nights and days in idleness and vain carousing. And it came to pass one evening after that he had drunken deep, he left his companions at their feast and came forth upon the streets, meaning to go to his home. Now in those days, Bethlehem was filled with wickedness of divers sorts, and robbers prowled about the streets by night. One of these coming upon the young man, called his companions, and they set on him, and beat him, and after they had stripped him of his wealth, dragged him without the walls of the city, and left him. It chanced that shepherds, passing with their flocks, had compassion on him, and went to him, and bound up his wounds, and nursed him, saying, "Come with us, thou young man that the city hath cast forth. We be simple men without guile, and with us thou mayest find happiness, lying by night on the black fields beneath the quiet stars." And the heart of that young man was filled with bitterness and regret, and he answered them, saying, "Yea, oh my friends," and he shook the dust of that city from off his feet, and went with them.

It happened that one night as he watched beside the sleeping shepherds, there shone suddenly a star above the fields, and the angel of the Lord came, and stood before him, and he was sore afraid. And the angel said, "Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

Then that young man awakened his companions, and told them, saying, "Surely He that is born tonight shall be the Saviour of all men, since these tidings have been vouchsafed to me, who am least and lowliest of all." And they were filled with awe, and said one to another, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us." And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

VITAGRAPH.

THE SWAN GIRL (Dec. 4).—A wealthy young fellow during vacation becomes infatuated with a poor country girl. He is introduced to her father, whom he discovers is an inventor. For the sake of the girl he invests a large amount of money in one of her father's inventions, at the same time knowing it is of no commercial value.

In his room that night he writes in his diary about his doings of the day, and also writes down this foolish investment he has made through love for the Swan Girl.

He advises her father to send the daughter to the same boarding-school his sister is attending, and the old gentleman acts upon his suggestion. His sister and the Swan Girl become quite chummy, so much so they decide to spend their vacations at her brother's house. The Swan Girl and the young man meet again in his home, and they are mutually delighted.

One day while he is away, his sister shows the other girl his room, thinking it would be interesting to her to see a bachelor's room, and they come across the diary. The girl picks it up and finding the article about his foolish investment in her father's invention, she, feeling piqued and embarrassed, packs up and leaves hurriedly for her home, where she tries to forget the young man. He follows her and finds her occupied with the swans as she was when he first saw her. Here he urges her to reconsider her decision to forget him.

DECEPTION (Dec. 9).—When she overhears her employer, Banker Trent, tell that his son, Jack, has gone to Beverly Hills for the summer, Virginia Scott, the typist, is bitter with envy of the wealth and freedom that the young man enjoys. In her shabby room she is inspired with an idea to spend all her saving upon clothes, go to Beverly Hills, pose as a rich woman and win this most desirable young man for a husband. Her chum, Jane, agrees to go as her maid.

Arrived at the fashionable hotel, Virginia and Jane take possession of a splendid suite of rooms. Jack Trent, having invited as his guest, his cousin Jim, has already arrived. Jim is a lover of the good things of life, but is poor and too indolent to make a manly struggle for them. Jack, wishing to be free from social restrictions, so as to sketch and paint, suggests to Jim that he take his name and pose as a millionaire. This Jim is glad to do, and so the men exchange identities.

The story of Virginia's wealth, cleverly started by Jane, soon reaches Jim's ears and he makes a set for the millionairess. Virginia, believing Jim to be the son of her employer, is not slow in responding to his overtures. Jim flatters the girl by having his cousin Jack paint her portrait, which is the beginning of the end, for Virginia and the poor artist fall deeply in love with each other. When Jim finally proposes to Virginia she has lost all ambition to be the wife of a millionaire and she refuses him, telling him of the lie she has been living. Jim's interest in Virginia falls to zero.

At their forest trysting place the girl bids goodbye to Jack and tells him also of her folly, but he joyfully declares that they are quits now, for he, too, was deceiving in all but his love for her, which Virginia is happy to reciprocate.

THAT SUIT AT TEN (Dec. 10).—When the tailor bill arrives that morning at the breakfast table, John finds the bill too extravagant and decides to buy his clothes elsewhere, though his wife, Mary, tells him that good clothes cost money. John passes a ready-made clothing establishment on his way to his office and seeing a suit at ten dollars, goes in and purchases the suit. He returns home with it and puts it on. Though John is a very fat man, the suit seems to fit him very well and he is much admired in it. On his way back to his office, rain comes down and wets him good. He has not been at his office long when the suit begins to shrink and soon becomes so small for him he cannot even raise his arm to answer the telephone. He has great difficulty in getting up out of his chair, and is obliged to juggle his hat with his head from the rack to get it on, unable to reach up for it. His office clerks have great difficulty in suppressing their mirth as the "boss" stiffly walks from the office puffing and looking as though he were about to burst.

John calls a cab and drives home. By the time he reaches his house, the suit has become tighter, so that he cannot get out of the cab, and has to be carried indoors. His wife is mischievously glad that the suit has shrunk. In order to get him out of the suit, scissors, a saw and a chisel, are needed. His wife is happy that he has been taught a good lesson.

PERFORMING LIONS (Dec. 10).—With "That Suit at Ten," is also seen a spectacle of performing lions, showing admirably how a fragile woman can command the wildest animals of the primeval forests.

SACRIFICE (Dec. 11).—While visiting in Honolulu, Bessie Lane, a young American girl, meets Colonel Hale, of the U. S. Regulars, who is stationed there, and though she is twenty years his junior, they become engaged. Bessie then returns to San Francisco to her home.

In a nearby town lives Anne Vance. She is a sweet, middle-aged woman, attractive and charming of manner. She discovers that Bessie is the niece of a girlhood chum and invites her to visit her. Through a miniature of Col. Hale, Bessie discovers that Anne is a former sweetheart of the colonel. She discovers Anne comparing the miniature with a photograph of him in her possession and reading over some old love letters from him. She also sees a peculiar shaped ring upon Anne's finger which corresponds exactly with a ring which she has seen on the colonel.

Bessie telegraphs to Col. Hale to join her at once. Though she loves him, she decides to reunite Anne and him if they still care for each other. When the colonel arrives, Anne feigns illness so as to avoid meeting him, fearing to cast a shadow upon Bessie's life. Bessie, realizing this, contrives, by burning her arm purposely from some alcohol she was putting in the tea lamp, to bring Anne downstairs. The colonel recognizes her at once and shows in his looks that he loves her. Bessie places their hands together and looks away as they draw into each other's arms. Bessie is happy in the sacrifice she has made.

THE LIFE SAVER (Dec. 12).—Bored with the attentions that fond mammas and pretty girls shower upon him at the fashionable summer resort, Cutey is constantly obliged to evade their approaches. This time he is driven off the hotel veranda. Ethel, the belle of the resort, has many admirers, but she cares not a whit for any of them. She, too, seeks respite from their attentions in seclusion. She goes for a walk on the beach.

Jack, the life guard, has received a letter from his girl asking him to come to see her; he is bemoaning the fact that he cannot get away from his duties. Cutey comes toward him and offers to take his place while he goes to see his girl. Cutey rushes off and soon returns in a bathing suit. The guard leaves.

Ethel is ready to take a dip in the surf. Looking very trim and pretty in her silk bathing suit, she strolls near to where Cutey is standing. Several girls are with her. Ethel admires Cutey and is vexed when he refuses to show her any attention. She conceives a plan whereby she will arouse his interest. Running out into the water, she pretends she is drowning. Cutey goes to her aid and swims with her to shore. She enjoys his sympathy, as he rubs her hands to bring her back to consciousness. He is completely deceived, as are all of the others who gather around.

Cutey makes an appointment with Ethel for that afternoon on the beach. Ethel is on time, but Cutey is late. When he arrives, she refuses to speak. He goes down to the water's edge. Suddenly he rushes off and comes back in a bathing suit. He has planned with the life guard to fool Ethel. Out among the dashing waves, Cutey pretends he is drowning. Ethel sees this and when he is brought to the beach she helps to revive him. When he is dressed, Cutey and Ethel make up and she decides to marry. Cutey is allowed only fifteen minutes to get the ring. He creates a sensation as he runs through the town and is followed by a large

PETER MAKAROFF

THE GOLD MAKER

THE STORY OF A MODERN ALCHEMIST AND HIS LONG SEARCH FOR THE FORMULA OF MAKING ARTIFICIAL GOLD. A POWERFUL DRAMA IN FOUR PARTS, EMPHASIZING THE FUTILITY OF MERE WEALTH FOR ITS OWN SAKE. NOW BEING SOLD ON THE STATE RIGHT BASIS

WE HAVE OTHER FEATURES

A BARGAIN WITH SATAN—FIVE FANCIFUL PARTS
THE ENGINE OF DEATH—IN FOUR FINE PARTS
THROUGH THE CLOUDS—3 PARTS
THE FALL OF FRANCE—3 PARTS
HUMANITY —3 PARTS
THE BLACK 13—3 PARTS

APEX FILM COMPANY

145 WEST 45TH ST., NEW YORK - - - P. P. CRAFT, MANAGER

HUGH HOFFMAN

crowd on his way back. All cheer as he places the ring on Ethel's finger and kisses her lovingly.

LOVE'S SUNSET (Special—2 parts—Dec. 13).—Wrapped up in his art, women do not attract Wilton Towne. He shows this plainly at a dance and is glad when Harold Heath, an intimate friend, takes him away. He goes straight home, but Heath stops at a fashionable restaurant, where he becomes fascinated by a beautiful cabaret dancer, named Nita Travers. He persuades her to give up dancing and enjoy a life of ease with him. Her happiness is short-lived, however, for Heath soon tires of her and goes away to Europe. She is then forced to go out and earn her living. She falls rapidly in the scale of life, and finally becomes a dancer in a cheap, vulgar, dance hall. She is taken from there by a Salvation Army rescue woman and gotten a position as nurse maid with a wealthy family who have two dear little children. Towne, the artist, knows the family and vists them often. He becomes interested in Nita and eventually falls in love with her. A realization of this comes to him as he sits alone in his cozy den and sees her sweet beautiful face in a colud of cigarette smoke.

When Towne proposes to Nita, she feels that she should tell him of her past life, but she longs so much for his love that she has not the courage to do so and becomes his wife without letting him know. Her married life is blissfully happy, filled with the love of her husband and of a dear little golden-haired boy with which she is blessed. Three years after Heath's departure for Europe, he returns home. He hears of Towne's marriage and goes to see him at his country villa. When Nita recognizes him she almost collapses with terror and reveals all to her husband. He is furious and drives her from the house. She wanders away and soon loses her mind. Days afterward she strays back to the villa only to die in the arms of her husband, not knowing that he has forgiven her. Their little boy stands nearby looking on with big, wondrous eyes.

KALEM.

THE STRIKE (Dec. 8).—Harvey, manager of his father's mine, sees Anna struggling in the embrace of Sanders, a mine foreman. He knocks the man down. Later, the boy accompanies Anna to her home. The two fall in love with each other.

A number of men are discharged by Harvey's father, in an effort to cut down expenses. Sanders sees an opportunity for revenge. The man incites the miners to strike for the reinstatement of their comrades.

Davis, Anna's father, is one of the men who has lost his job. The family is thrown into dire want. Unable to pay their rent, they are dispossessed. Harvey comes to the rescue. Sanders later tells Davis that Harvey is a spy in the interests of the mine owner. The boy is ordered from the house.

Sanders plots to blow up the mine office while the young manager is at work inside. Anna overhears the man discuss his deadly scheme. The foreman makes his way to the office and plants a bomb in the vestibule. Anna arrives a moment later. Seizing the infernal machine she hurls it into the street. The girl faints as the result of the nervous strain.

The bomb explodes. Sanders, lurking outside, to witness the result of his scheme, is knocked unconscious. Harvey and his father rush out of the office. Anna recovers and reveals the foreman's dastardly plan. The man is led away under arrest.

Filled with admiration for his sweetheart's courage Harvey informs his father of his intention to marry Anna The mine owner gives the lovers his blessing and in gratitude for his son's narrow escape, reinstates the miners.

THE CHINESE DEATH THORN (Special—2 parts—Dec. 10).—Martin Avery, opium fiend and member of the Chinese crime syndicate, saves Mildred Dearborn, daughter of the banker, from the clutches of Moi Ling. The Chinaman is the head of the crime organization.

Mildred informs her father of her narrow escape. As a mark of gratitude, Dearborn gives Martin a new start by taking him into the bank. The boy reforms and wins rapid promotion. Shortly after Martin is made cashier, Mildred promises to be his wife Dick, Martin's brother, is night watchman at the bank He resolves to keep an eye on the boy, lest he return to former ways.

Moi Ling learns of Martin's rise He succeeds in entrapping the boy The head of the crime syndicate orders a raid to be made upon the bank. Dick is overpowered and the huge vault emptied of its contents after the doors have been blown open. Police discover the robbery and engage in a running fight with the thieves. The latter escape and turn the loot over to Moi Ling. Depositors learn of the burglary. They storm the bank in a wild demand for their money.

Dick learns of Martin's whereabouts He enters Moi Ling's den after making arrangements to have the police raid the place should he fail to reappear within a certain time. Moi Ling captures Dick. Holding a Chinese Death Thorn over the watchman's throat, the yellow fiend tells the helpless captive that the slightest scratch caused by the thorn means instant death.

Moi Ling is just about to pierce Dick's throat with the deadly thorn when the police break in. Foiled, the Chinaman inflicts the wound upon himself. Dick and Martin are released. The stolen funds are found. Both men return to the bank in time to avert a crash.

GENERAL BUNKO'S VICTORY (Dec. 12).—General Bunko returns from the war covered with medals and glory. To his great dismay, he finds that Helen, "the girl he left behind him," now loves Joe, his rival.

Joe plots to get the general out of the way. He hires a band of Indians to kidnap the gallant soldier. The savages come upon General Bunko while he is telling Helen of his exploits, and unceremoniously bundle him off.

While Joe watches his rival's plight, his landlord meets him and compels the man to pay his rent. This takes all of Joe's money. A committee of Indians call upon the man and demand their money, but Joe is compelled to put them off.

General Bunko's medals fill his captors with awe. The recital of his adventures brings them at his feet. They present him with an assortment of live stock. At the same time, the chief learns that Joe cannot pay his men. He orders the boy captured.

Helen sees Joe made prisoner, and follows the party. The Indians bring the man before General Bunko, who orders his rival ducked in the river. As Joe is dragged to punishment, Helen faints. Bunko makes a gallant attempt to catch her, but her weight is too much for him. Both topple to the ground.

PIANO MANUFACTURING (Dec. 12).—This interesting industrial picture was taken in the factory where one of the world's most famous pianos are made. The picture takes the observer through the entire plant and shows every detail of manufacture from the sawing of the rough boards that are to eventually be the exquisite casings, to the final testing of the assembled instrument.

THE INVISIBLE FOE (Dec. 13).—Mary and Billy are sweethearts. Mr. Stanley, the girl's father, suspects the boy of being a victim of the drug habit.

Billy, in an attempt to master his craving, abstains from the drug. He is invited to dinner at his sweetheart's home. Stanley notices the boy's nervousness. He resolves to call upon him at his office and learn the truth.

The next day, Billy's desire for the drug becomes so intense that the moment his employees leave the office, he brings out his hypodermic. Stanley and Mary arrive in time to see Billy about to take the drug. They discover his terrible habit.

Mary's love for Billy is so great that she resolves to help him win his fight. The boy is taken home. Mary and her father promise to call to see him that night.

Several hours later, Billy's desire for the drug is so great that he struggles desperately with his servant in an effort to get at the box lying on his dresser. Stanley and his daughter arrive and help subdue the boy. Mary pleads with Billy and once again implants within him the resolve to conquer the habit.

The following day, Mary sends her sweetheart a rose. When his craving causes him untold agony, Billy clutches the flower. It typifies the girl he loves and exerts a soothing influence over him

Several months pass by. Each day Mary sends the boy a fresh rose. His craving grows weaker and at last Billy knows he has conquered his invisible foe. With joy in his heart, Billy breaks the news to Mary and wins her for his wife.

LUBIN.

THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER (Dec. 8).—In a quaint French-Canadian village on the St. Lawrence, smuggling is an established occupation, and not regarded as criminal. The head of the smugglers is Girot, gruff, but kindhearted, devoted to his daughter, Jean, who is not aware of his business. She is loved by, but does not return the passion of Luca Marino, one of the smuggler band, who is madly jealous. Harry Carlton is appointed to the U. S. Customs Service and assigned to this district, under his father, who is the collector. Harry, unknown, volunteers to get information concerning the illicit trade, and takes up his residence in the village, where a love affair develops between him and Jean.

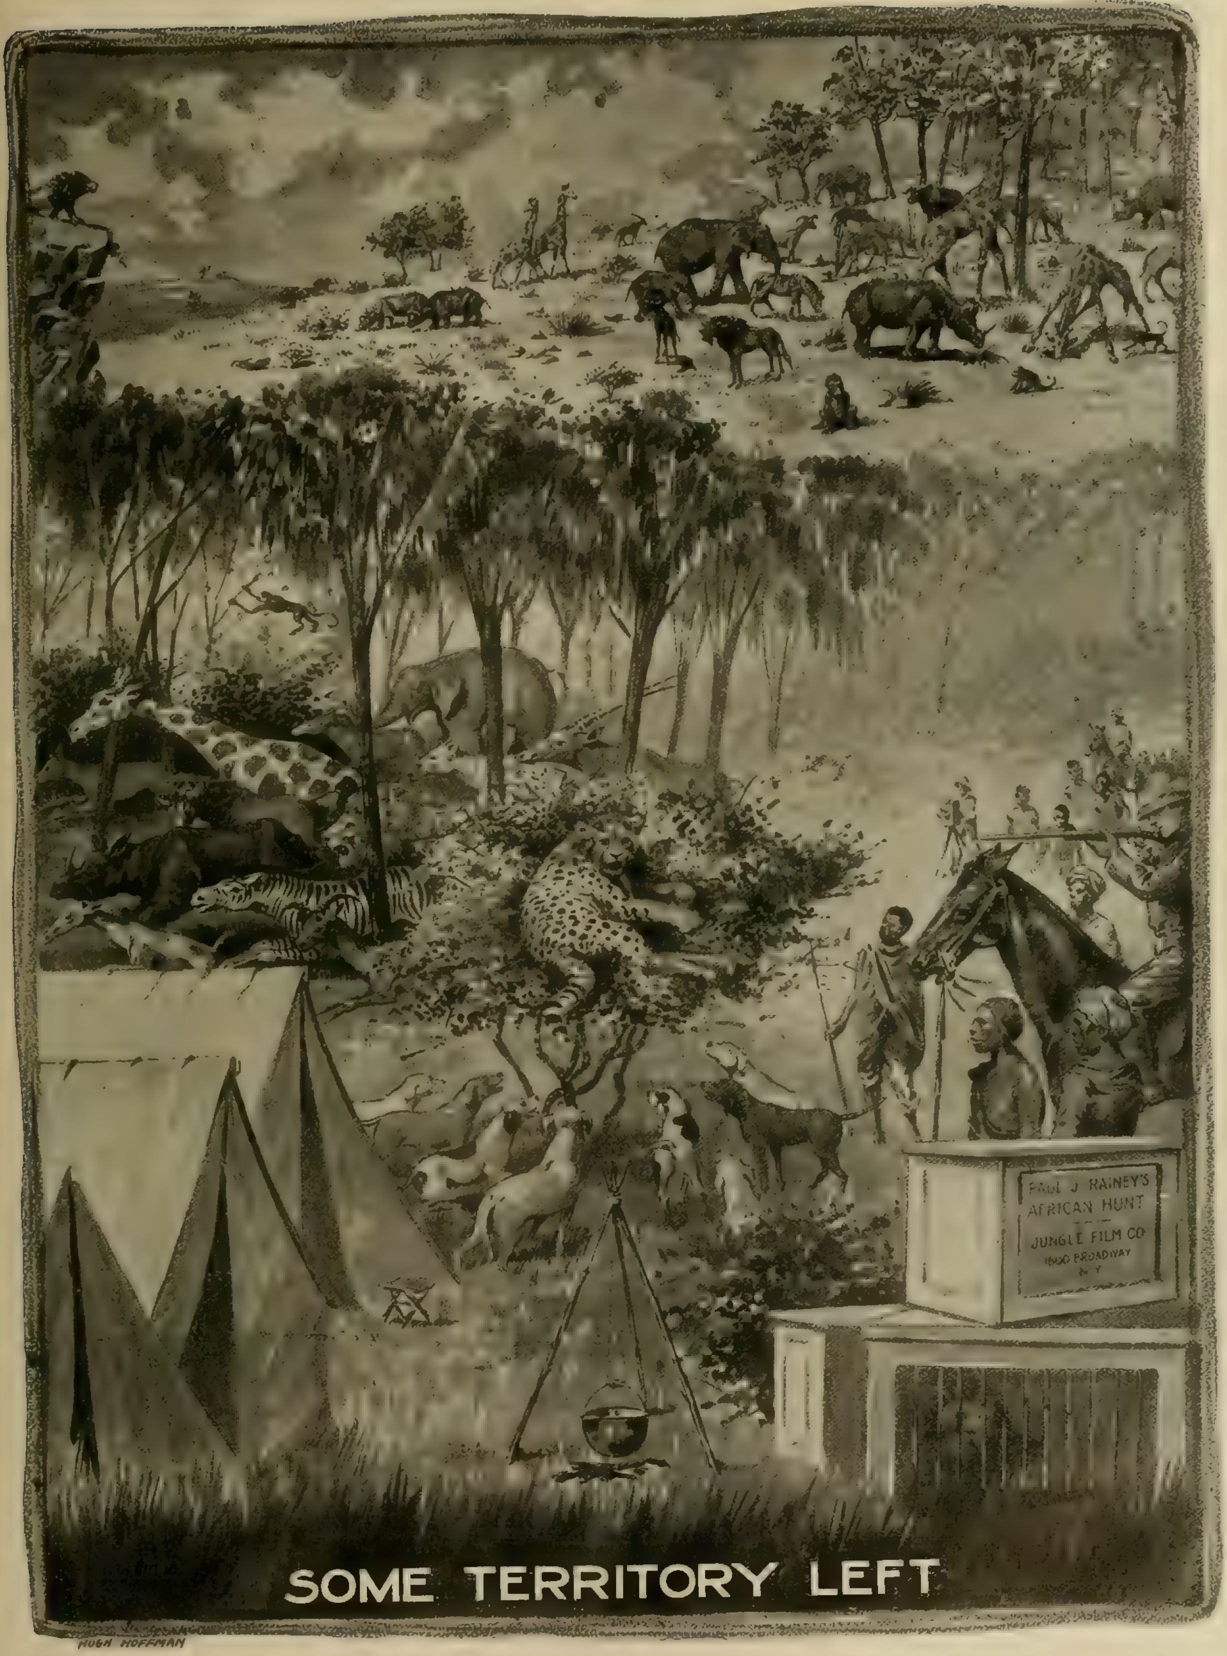
Luca, furious that Girot will not advocate his suit, determines to betray the smugglers and makes his way to Colonel Carlton's office. He gives information after Carlton has given his word of honor never to reveal the name of the traitor. Harry, meanwhile, has gained much information concerning the smuggling, and is keeping close watch on the band. A smuggler overhears a customs officer declare that there is a traitor in the band, and communicates this fact to Girot. Harry is captured and the smugglers propose to use him as a means of obtaining the name of the traitor who, according to their code, is doomed to death. The terms are laid before Carlton that if he will tell the name of the traitor, Harry will be released. The colonel cannot, even to save his son's life, break his word of honor. Luca urges that Harry be killed at once. But Girot protests against the murder, and a fight starts among the smugglers. In attempting to defend Harry, Girot is killed. Meanwhile, Jean has learned of her lover's plight, and in a fast motorboat has gone to secure aid. With a number of customs officers, she arrives just in time to save Harry. In resisting the officers, Luca is killed. For Jean's sake, the fact that Girot was of the smuggler band is kept secret, and in due time she forgets her grief in her love for Harry.

AN ENEMY'S AID (Dec. 9).—Tom Richards is a well-liked young miner, who is, however, the subject of much ridicule because of his patient and fruitless search for a "lost lode," believed by everyone to be a myth. Tom is shown favor by Jess King, the daughter of the local rich man, and thereby incurs the bitter enmity of Dan Larsen, a handsome and superficial rascal who has marked the girl for his own. Tom proves Larsen a cowardly bully, and Larsen determines to find some secret method of revenge. Previous to her meeting with Tom, Jess had been quite willing to listen to Larsen. Her father has no objection to Tom, except on the score of his poverty. By secretly watching, Larsen discovers that Tom is most regular in his habits, returning to his cabin exactly at noon each day. Larsen attaches a long fuse to Tom's store of blasting powder, which is in a shed built against the cabin, leads it to a concealed spot, and arranges a candle so that the fuse will be ignited at a carefully calculated moment. The candle, lighted at ten o'clock, will burn exactly two hours, and Larsen plans to prevent any suspicion attaching to himself by being at a public place miles away when the explosion occurs. Larsen lights his candle and rides rapidly away, but is thrown by his horse, his leg is broken and he is rendered unconscious. Tom finds him, carries him to his cabin, and goes for a doctor. When Larsen regains consciousness he realizes with horror that he is in Tom's cabin, that it is almost noon, and that he is unable to escape. Jess, passing along the cliff above the cabin, slips over the edge, but saves herself by clinging to a bush and finds a footing, though unable to climb up again. At this moment Tom returns with the doctor. Tom is attracted by the falling of stones dislodged by Jess, and goes to investigate, while the doctor enters the cabin. Jess, looking down at Tom, chances to see the fuse, which is now burning within a few inches of the powder shed. She perceives the peril to Tom and herself, sees that Tom could not reach the fuse in time to pinch it out, and realizes that their only hope rests in her ability to cut the fuse with a bullet. She opens fire, and after several shots cuts the fuse when but an inch is left exposed. The doctor finds Larsen dead from sheer terror. Tom and the doctor get a rope and prepare to rescue Jess. As they are about to draw her up, she observes the quartz exposed by the dislodgment of surface material occasioned by her struggles, and when she reaches the top of the cliff is able to tell Tom that his claim is the richest in the region, she has rediscovered the outcropping of the lost lode. As a rich man Tom is in no wise objected to by King, and the love affair ends happily.

HYDRAULIC WORKS ON THE ADDA (Dec. 11).—A very interesting and spectacular picture showing the enormous hydraulic works on the Adda, a river in Italy. The terrific water force is impressive and the dams and rapids extremely beautiful. A one-span bridge crossing the river, is three hundred and fifty feet above the water level. This is one of the finest examples of engineering in the world.

HIS BEST FRIEND (Dec. 11).—Phil Stewart, bank cashier, and Cal Boone, teller, are great friends. Cal was in love with Doris Stewart, but Phil married her, and Cal has been the best friend of the family ever since. Phil uses the bank's money to further personal schemes and loses. He gets a letter from Jackson telling him that all has been wiped out and that if he can't make good his thefts at the bank, he had better get out of town. Phil is compelled to tell Cal about it, and Cal in anger reminds him of Doris. A quarrel follows and Cal goes to the bank to try and fix up the shortage. Phil tells his wife nothing about the reasons of the quarrel, but Doris is worried. Phil prepares to decamp and writes a letter to Doris, explaining everything. The letter from Jackson he packs in the suitcase. Doris goes to Phil's room and he hides the suitcase in the closet, and the letter to her under a book, meaning to go to the bank to get more money and get out of town. Cal, meanwhile, has covered the shortage and just turned out the light as Phil enters. When he sees Phil rob the safe and realizes that he is going to run away he hurries in to him and tries to explain what he has done for his friend. Phil in his frenzied anger draws his revolver from the desk, threatening Cal if he tries to stop him he will shoot. Cal jumps for him; Phil trips as he falls and is shot accidentally. Cal gets the money and replaces it in the safe just as a policeman who has heard the shot enters. Cal is arrested for the murder and will not explain. Doris testifies against Cal by relating the quarrel, and Cal refuses to make a plea in his own behalf. He is sentenced to life imprisonment and Doris instils in her boy, Harry, a hatred of Cal.

Years elapse and the traits of his father's character become rampant in Harry. His mother lectures him about his drunkenness and Harry runs away. Cal, after years of his terrible life, escapes. Doris, in her sorrow goes to her husband's bedroom. It has been left intact. Dust lies thick everywhere. As she fondles the different articles lying about just as he left them, she finds the letter to her. The awful truth begins to dawn upon her. She hears of Cal's escape and goes to the Governor. He agrees to give Cal a new trial,



PAUL J RAINEY'S
AFRICAN HUNT
JUNGLE FILM CO
1600 BROADWAY
N Y
SOME TERRITORY LEFT
HUGH HOFFMAN

Ten Nights in a Bar Room in Five Parts
A Feature That Will Play to Packed Houses. PHOTO DRAMA CO.
15 Styles of Posters, Photos, Heralds and Slides. CANDLER BLDG., N.Y.

or pardon, if he can be found. Cal reads of it and decides to see Doris before taking any chances. Harry reads of the escape and goes home. He enters the parlor, sees Cal in the next room and he raises his revolver to kill. His mother enters the library and Cal finds out that the news is correct. She asks why he made the great sacrifice and he tells her because he loved her. Explanations follow and Harry learns that Cal is really a "best friend" and the intimation is that he will later be even more.

LIFE, LOVE, AND LIBERTY (Dec. 12).—Manuel Querto, federal governor of Puebla, Mexico, is secretly in sympathy with the struggle of the peon class for freedom. He dares not show this feeling, however. The governor is engaged to marry Isabella Morelos, daughter of Salvitor Morelos, a wealthy old Mexican, who openly befriends the downtrodden. Morelos has a son, Felix, who is a fiery supporter of the revolutionists. Querto's wedding day arrives. The guests gather in the church, the bride, Isabella, and her father arriving early. As Querto is about to leave the palace for the church the captain of police arrives with an important sealed message from the president of Mexico. Querto opens the envelope, which contains two enclosures, one a letter, the other a warrant of arrest. The letter, which the governor reads, instructs Querto to have the person whose name appears in the enclosed warrant arrested at once and executed. Querto, in a great hurry, does not open the warrant, but hands it to the captain, with instructions to serve at once. The captain opens the warrant and finds that it calls for the arrest of Morelos, Isabella's father. The captain attempts to tell Querto of the nature of the warrant, but the governor turns on the officer with a reprimand, telling him to carry out his orders without question. Morelos is arrested at the church and taken to prison.

A few minutes later Querto and his staff enter the church, to find his bride-to-be in tears and her brother in a storm of rebellious passion. Querto is astounded at the arrest of Morelos, but is in no position to do anything, as the old man is already in prison. Isabella scornfully turns from Querto and Felix tries to attack the governor. Returned to his palace, the governor is in a quandary. He dare not openly release Morelos. As a desperate stroke, Querto disguises himself as a prison guard and releases Morelos and conceals the old man in his palace. Next morning Felix incites a mob against Querto and also persuades Isabella to go to the palace and under guise of parley stab the governor. The girl goes to Querto's office and before the governor can tell her that her father is safe, the mob gathers at the front of the palace. Querto bravely makes for the balcony to face the mob. As Isabella starts to creep after Querto with her upraised dagger, she sees her father entering from another room. There is an affecting scene between father and daughter as the governor steps out on the balcony, not knowing that Morelos has entered the room behind him. A telegram announcing the success of the revolution and a new president in the chair arrives just in time to save Querto from the fury of the mob. Isabella and the governor are reconciled under the banner of liberty.

THE REAL IMPOSTOR (Dec. 13).—Dabble is a poverty stricken artist. He finds it impossible to market his paintings and is down to his last nickel. His clothes are threadbare and he is all in. Just at this time he is asked to be best man for his pal, Jack Newsome, a newspaper man, whose affianced is Marie Tryon. Dabble's expostulations with Newsome come to naught and he is made to promise. He is taken to Marie's house, where he meets her mother and father, and sister Lillian, with whom he falls in love. Count de Blufo is courting Lillian, however, to her mother's great approval. Her mother has ambitions of seeing her daughter marry a title. Lillian has nothing but disgust for the Count, but shows a decided interest in Dabble and visits him at his studio in company with her mother. Dabble becomes desperate, finding that he must absolutely secure a suit of clothes. He sees a sandwich man advertising a tailor, and, acting on an idea, he proposes a scheme to the tailor whereby he will earn a suit of clothes, and the tailor agrees. With the aid of Newsome, Dabble attracts business and attention for the tailor, appearing disguised as the Duke de Breton on the street before the tailor's place of business. In this disguise he is introduced to Lillian and her mother. As a Duke, the mother is favored to Dabble and ignores the Count, until the latter, discovering the deception, tells them all. Then Newsome, in order to save his pal from ignominy, tells the public in an article that Dabble was disguised on a bet, and at the same time boosts his paintings. Lillian's father considers Dabble a good sport and gives him a big order to paint his horses. This starts Dabble on the road to fame. Later, at a dinner given in his honor at the cafe, the party is waited upon by the Count De Blufo, who is then discovered to be a waiter, and Dabble easily gains the consent of the mother to marry Lillian.

A PILL BOX CUPID (Dec. 13).—Major Lodge, fat and fifty, loves Miss Smith, thin and forty. The Major is very bashful. His nephew, Tom, is the sweetheart of Nancy, a niece of Miss Smith They discover that the older folks are smitten with each other. Thinking it a great joke, they tell the fat Major that Auntie likes thin men, and in turn they tell Auntie that the Major only likes a fat woman. Both despair as to what to do. Once they see an advertisement saying Knoxall Pills will make you thin, the other was Knoxall Pills will make you fat. Major sends at once for a box of pills to get thin, while Auntie post haste sends for pills to make her fat. On arrival of the pills Tom gets them first and changes the wrappers, so that each one gets just the opposite to the pills desired. The Major takes the pills as per direction, but continues to gain in weight. He orders a suit, which comes a week later. Upon trying it on, he rips it, as he has gained ten pounds since taking the pills. In the meantime. Auntie keeps getting thinner, losing weight. Accidentally the Major sees Auntie admiring an album with fat men's pictures in it. He tells Tom that he is sure she likes a fat man. Auntie overhears the Major tell Tom he admires a thin woman. After some interesting troubles, Tom confesses. Auntie and the Major understand each other, and all ends happily.

GEORGE KLEINE.

THE SUNKEN TREASURE (Cines—2 parts—Dec. 16).—George and Peter are two divers engaged by the same firm, under Mr. Barry, the contractor, to seek for buried treasure underneath the sea. They are both in love with Mr. Barry's daughter, Louise, but she openly prefers George, and thus rouses the bitterest feelings in the heart of Peter, who swears that if he cannot have Louise he will remove George from his path.

One day he watches George out of the way and then enters the cottage where Louise is alone and declares his love. She is terrified, and refusing him, declares her preference for George. Maddened by her rejection, he attempts to seize her in his arms, when George returns, rescues his girl, and attempts to chastise Peter. In the midst of the tumult Mr. Barry enters, orders Peter from his house, and discharges him from his staff. This rouses all that is bad in Peter and he now lives only for revenge. He hears that Mr. Barry has contracted to recover a quantity of bullion known to have gone down in a vessel, and that George has been chosen for the work. He secures a confederate and when George goes down under the sea in his diving dress, Peter swims out and cuts the air tube, thus leaving George helpless at the bottom of the sea. Some fine scenes show George's rescue from his perilous position by a companion diver, and his being taken ashore in a helpless condition by Mr. Barry. As soon as the

EXHIBITORS!
There Is More Than One
Song Slide Exchange
in the United States—THAT'S ALL
SONG SLIDE SERVICE
12 Union Square NEW YORK

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.
We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.
Distributors for Eastman Raw Film
Send for Catalogues
American Cinematograph Co.
617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

VISCO
PICTURE MACHINE OIL
If your dealer will not supply you send us $1.50 and we will send you a 128-ounce can of Visco Picture Machine Oil direct. 6-oz. bottles, 25 cents at your dealer's.
THE VISCO MOTOR OIL CO., Cleveland, O.

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US!
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176. N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

FULTON'S A-to-Z LIST
Pocket Edition 120 Pages
Illustrates, describes and prices everything used in or about the Motion Picture Theatre and in the allied industries. Costs you nothing. Worth its weight in gold.
E. E. FULTON —152— W. LAKE STREET CHICAGO

In Answering Advertisers
Kindly Mention
MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Going Fast Ten Nights in a Bar Room
GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR 5 REELS OF GOOD ACTING A STORY WITH A MORAL
PHOTO DRAMA CO.
CANDLER BLDG., N.Y.

READY FOR BOOKING
DECEMBER—1

"JACK"

DRAMATIZED FROM ALPHONSE DAUDET'S NOVEL BY ECLAIR CO., PARIS, IN WHICH ONE IS REMINDED OF THE SENTIMENTAL CHARM AND OF THE PAINFUL AND EMOTIONAL COMPASSION OF THE NOVEL ITSELF. IT IS A FOUR PART FEATURE WITH A FINE LINE OF ADVERTISING MATTER.

SOME OF OUR FEATURES
ALL FOR BOOKINGS IN THEATRES

PROTEA—BY ECLAIR—IN 5 PARTS
THE GOLDEN CROSS—IN 3 PARTS
THE BLIND SCULPTOR—IN 3 PARTS
THE TWO SERGEANTS—IN 6 PARTS
SAPHO—BY ECLAIR CO.—IN 4 PARTS
FATHER JOHN—IN 3 PARTS

OPEN FOR BOOKINGS—RENTAL OR PERCENTAGE
THE GREAT ORIGINAL PASQUALI PRODUCTION

THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII

AN EXAMPLE OF THE HIGHEST DEVELOPMENT OF THE MANUFACTURERS' ART. NOW BEING PLAYED FROM COAST TO COAST TO CAPACITY AUDIENCES. CARRYING A LINE OF ADVERTISING THAT WILL RIVAL THE LARGEST THEATRICAL PRODUCTION

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORP.

110 WEST 40TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

BRANCH OFFICES IN—PHILADELPHIA, CLEVELAND, BOSTON, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, CINCINNATI, WASHINGTON, INDIANAPOLIS, PITTSBURGH, NEW ORLEANS, SAINT LOUIS, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, DETROIT, CHICAGO, AND DALLAS.

HUGH HOFFMAN

TEN NIGHTS IN A BAR ROOM
IN 5 REELS LIVE WIRES Wire in Your Bids
PHOTO DRAMA COMPANY
Candler Bldg., New York

coast is clear, Peter makes his way to the vessel over the buried bullion and, representing that he is sent by Mr. Barry, is allowed to go down in search of the treasure. He finds it and with the aid of his confederate, manages to make off with it in a motor boat. George recovers and with Mr. Barry is returning to resume his diving operations as Peter is making off. Quickly divining that he has secured the treasure, they go after him and a stern chase in motor boats ends in Peter escaping and hiding with his treasure in a little cottage buried in the wood. A woodsman sees Peter enter and watches him place the treasure into bags, assisted by an old woman. He at once hurries off and tells George, who with a posse of police is soon on the spot, but Peter has flown. The old woman is frightened into telling that Peter has gone by train.

The pursuers arrive at the station as the train is leaving, and follow it by motor, both arriving at the destination together. Again Peter manages to elude his pursuers and board a vessel. George and the police once more get on his track, and Peter for safety goes down into the hold of the vessel, where gunpowder is stored, and in firing a revolver ignites the gunpowder and the vessel is blown up, showing a terrific scene of a shipwreck at sea. The treasure has been previously recovered and conveyed to a place of safety. Peter loses his life in the explosion. Mr. Barry receives his reward in the recovery of the treasure, and George and Louise are made happy.

ESSANAY.

THE HEART OF THE LAW (Dec. 9).—Detective William Burke is assigned to capture George Watson, an escaped criminal. Six years of sleuthing discovers nothing, and Burke reports to the chief that he is unable to capture the fugitive from justice. During the six years Watson has prospered, and with his wife and family settles in a quiet dignified neighborhood. The chief gives Burke another chance, telling him it is his last one. A clue leads the detective to the home of Watson, where he secures a position as butler. After months of service the detective becomes deeply infatuated with his employer's five-year-old daughter. His duty, however, takes an upper hand, and he is about to arrest Watson, when the young child pleads for her father. Burke removes the handcuffs and returns to his hotel, where he finds a telegram stating that Watson is innocent of the charge. Burke informs Watson and a happy ending is brought about.

SMITHY'S GRANDMA PARTY (Dec. 10).—Professor Smithy, a physical culture expert, and his assistant, Swifty Sam, prepare to give a blowout for some chorus girls of the Gaiety Theater The professor's wife being away, gives them an opportunity for having a grand old time. The girls, however, refuse to go to the Smithy home unless some female member of the family be present as chaperon. Smithy bribes the butler to wear his wife's clothes, and they make him up as a grandmother. The party is in the height of its sereneness, when wifey returns unexpectedly, demands that the butler return her clothes, dons them, and enters the gymnasium, where the party is indulging in a hilarious repast. Smithy recognizes his wife immediately and makes a break for the door, but she gets him, and gently but firmly thrusts him into the bathtub filled with cold water. The whole affair being cold, the guests leave in an unexpected manner.

CHILDREN OF THE FOREST (Dec. 11).—Wanah-to-mah, a son of the forest, is in love with Mah to mee. George Bradford, a stranger and prospector, sets camp in the forset and, by his carelessness, sets the firest afire. Mah-to-mee makes a great impression on the stranger and he tries to work his Eastern tactics on her. He is rebuked. The gigantic forest is aflame. The son of the forest rescues his sweetheart and fate plays a hand with her opponent, Bradford

SOPHIE'S NEW FOREMAN (Dec. 13).—Alkali Ike, a cowpuncher, is given his walking papers for neglect of duty. He has little trouble, however, in securing a position on Sophie Clutt's ranch. His trial is a hard and tedious one, the gladiatoress standing over him with a powerful six-shooter, and every time he drops his work, a bullet from the aforementioned piece of artillery hastily reminds him of his necessary toil. Sophie is an old hen, and Alkali Ike is not very much stuck on her. Sophie's niece visits her, a young, sweet girl of twenty, and Alkali makes haste to win the fair one. He is abruptly interrupted in his love making and Sophie puts the finishing touches on Dan Cupid's wings by making the son of the alkali dust marry her.

THINKING EXHIBITORS
will find a good sized meal for thought in the fact that the business of my offices has INCREASED two hundred thousand dollars over last year! If the improvement in Universal films is so great that it will accomplish such wonders for me, IT WILL DO PROPORTIONATELY WELL FOR YOU AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT. The least you can do is to TRY. You have no chance of losing and every chance of gaining.
CARL LAEMMLE, President
The Laemmle Film Service
204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa
Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories
"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

ALL MAKES
POWERS SIMPLEX EDISON
MOTIOGRAPH EDENGRAPH
Cash or Time
Bargains in rebuilt machines
Send for new catalogue
Photo and poster frames
CURTAINS AND SCREENS
Write us today what you are interested in
Amusement Supply Co.
Everything from Screen to Booth
160A North Fifth Avenue, Chicago

THE THREE GAMBLERS (Special—2 parts—Dec. 12).—Herbert Corrington, a would-be gambler and agent for an express company, not satisfied with the necessities of life, tries his luck at roulette, appropriating the express company's money. Robert, the son, is fast traveling in the footsteps of his father. The Sheriff in the next county is sent for a large package of money in Corrington's possession to be delivered to the Blue Ledge Mine for the payroll. Corrington gambles a thousand dollars of this money and loses. Broncho Billy, a professional gambler, loans Corrington the money necessary to replace the funds he had maliciously taken. Corrington gives the gambler a note payable in thirty days or his home as collateral in case of default. A month later Corrington unable to meet the note ends his life. His daughter, Marguerite, and his son, Bob, are heartbroken. Broncho Billy calls to collect the money and finds Corrington's family in a terrible state. He leaves a bag of gold on the kitchen table with a note attached stating that the money enclosed is what he owed their father.

Later, Marguerite and her brother are given complete charge of the express office. Like father, like son. Bob is an easy martyr to the influential gambler and loses heavily. He also appropriates money from the express office safe, and on two occasions calls on Broncho Billy for assistance. Marguerite has learned to love Broncho Billy, a professional gambler, and she promises to marry him if he will forever give up gambling. He promises. Again Bob gambles the money of his firm and loses. This time Broncho Billy is forced to try his luck at roulette in order to get the money back Bob had lost. James Spaulding, an express rider, is very fond of Marguerite and when he proposes to her, she tells him she is engaged to Broncho Billy, and unless he breaks his promise she will marry him. The express rider sees Broncho Billy gambling and he informs Marguerite, who hastily returns the ring. Broncho Billy wins and turns over the money to Bob, making him promise never to gamble again. Robert confesses his folly to his sister and tells her that Broncho Billy had gambled for him, to keep him from the penitentiary. Marguerite apologizes to the man she loves and all ends splendidly.

PATHEPLAY.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 70, (Nov. 24).—Texas City, Texas.—The Sixth U. S. Cavalry, stationed here, is kept in readiness for active service. The sabre drill is illustrated in following pictures.

New York, N. Y.—Colonel Arthur Yager, the recently appointed Governor of Porto Rico, sails for his new home with his family. Before sailing, Colonel Yager expressed himself as being in favor of conferring Amerisan citizenship on all persons in Porto Rico desiring it.

Nogales, Ariz.—William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's personal representative, is here treating with Carranza, the Constitutionalist leader, in an effort to find a solution of the Mexican situation.

St. Louis, Mo.—Five firemen narrowly escape death under a falling wall when the warehouse of the H. W. Beck Hay and Grain Company is consumed in a spectacular fire. The property loss is about $10,000.

Austin, Texas.—Governor Colquitt and other prominent men of this city, leave the State Capitol to take part in the "Good Roads Day" activities.

New York, N. Y.—The crafty Carlisle Indians smother the hitherto unbeaten Dartmouth team under a 35 to 10 score and eliminate the men in green from the battle for the football championship.

Frederick, Md.—Pythians of this place gather

Not in a Regular Program—A SPECIAL
Ten Nights in a Bar Room 5 Reels

TOILS OF VILLAINY

(Copyrighted)

Three Parts Natural Coloring Now Ready

A circus owner, insanely jealous, imprisons one of the performers, a tight-rope walker, in her apartment to prevent her warning her lover, whose death is planned. She escapes by walking a telegraph wire, and arrives just in time to prevent her sweetheart from being murdered. A sensational horse-race offers an added thrill.

GET IN LINE!!

The new Eclectic Natural Color Process films are far ahead of anything that you have ever seen, and totally eclipse the ordinary colored films. We are setting a new mark with this stupendous feature film, which is the first of a new line of "something-new" multiple reel photoplays in preparation for future release. All other records for colored features are surpassed by this colossal and extraordinary production, which sets a new mark in the world of filmry:

His Fateful Passion

(Copyrighted)

Five Parts Natural Coloring Ready Dec. 11th

This remarkable photoplay is replete with exciting events, tense situations, and thrilling action, but has a strong moral tone throughout. It pictures the desperation to which a man is driven by the cravings of a ruling passion, the sorrows and heart-aches of those dependent on him, and the fatal summing-up of his misdeeds. A mighty dynamite explosion, destroying an entire mountain side, presents a tremendous and awe-inspiring spectacle that will send the chills along your spine.

These territories are still open on a contract basis:—

OHIO INDIANA and KENTUCKY

Write for our attractive contract

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA"

for the dedication of the new Pythian Castle, built at a cost of nearly $40,000. The local lodge has 600 members, and is the largest fraternal organization in Western Maryland.

Editorial Section.—The campaign to raise $4,000,000 for new Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Association buildings in New York City, is arousing public interest as has no previous social movement of the kind. The growth of the fund is marked on mammoth clocks, the one shown here, being located at Broad and Wall Streets.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 71 (Nov. 27).—Tottenville, N. Y.—The blocks are knocked from under the sixth and last section of the drydock built at the Harry Cossey Shipyard for the Robins Drydock and Repair Company.

New York, N. Y.—The Cunard Liner "Pannonia" arrives with 103 passengers, who were rescued from the steamship "Balmes" in midocean when their lives were threatened by a fire in the cargo of cotton and rum. The wireless operator on the "Pannonia" received the call for help when 287 miles separated the two ships.

McAfee, N. J.—Water is pumped out of the holes drilled in the limestone quarry of the Bethlehem Steel Company at McAfee Mountains, preparatory to the explosion of dynamite, which tears away a wall of limestone 600 feet long, 110 feet high and 35 feet deep.

Mt. Issaquah, Wash.—The most modern mine in the world, in which it is estimated 60 million tons of coal are available, is opened with much ceremony by Issaquah & Superior Mining Co. Working at the rate of 1,500 tons per day it would take 100 years to remove all the coal from this mountain.

Gulfport, Miss.—Lumber shippers, fearing the possible blockade of Mexican ports, are bending every effort to get their orders for Mexican delivery shipped immediately and this, the greatest shipping point in the world for lumber, presents scenes of great activity.

New York, N. Y.—Friends of Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover, who disappeared on October 15, and has not been heard from since, are making every effort to locate him. Mr. Stover went into office four years ago and prior to his mysterious disappearance had taken no vacation.

Comic Section.—If you want an expert skipper ask Mutt what he thinks of his friend. Drawn by Bud Fisher.

THE STOLEN INHERITANCE (Dec. 9).—Dr. Alverez deserts his wife and moves to another locality. Attending Carl Anson, a prosperous miner, in his last illness he so manages it that Anson makes a will, leaving his property to the doctor in the event of the death of Beth, his only daughter. After Anson's death the unscrupulous Alverez hires a Mexican to kidnap Beth and an old crone to keep her captive in the mountains. Beth escapes and seeks refuge in the cabin of Frank Roberts, cousin of Mrs. Alverez, who has already taken shelter there. By Anson's death Alverez has gotten possession of a mortgage on Robert's property and seeks to foreclose it. Coming to Robert's cabin he is dumbfounded to be confronted not only by Beth, whom he has supposed was put out of the way, but by his own wife as well. His villainy is exposed and Beth marrying Roberts enriches him with the property the doctor coveted.

YOU'VE GOT TO PAY (Dec. 10).—John Dudley leaves jail, where he has been serving a term for embezzlement, at the same time as Bill McCoy. Dudley, at heart a worthy man, determines to live down his past. He gets a position, but McCoy trails him and blackmails him for a portion of his earnings. Desperate at the turn of affairs, Dudley moves to another town. Here he finally secures another position, in which he makes good and is promoted. He becomes engaged to the daughter of the company's president, but his past will not down. McCoy again crosses his path and threatens to tell all if he is not given $5,000. Dudley determines to give up the unequal fight and goes to his fiancee, telling her of the blot on his past, and offers to release her from the engagement. She, however, refuses to do so, in which she is supported by her father, who tells Dudley that he trusts him in spite of all.

A MODERN PORTIO (Special—2 parts—Dec. 11).—Isabel Vincent, a successful and charming woman lawyer, is called by her client, Mrs. Norman, to draw up a will, leaving her fortune to her niece, Helen. That there may be no question about Mrs. Norman's soundness of mind at the time of the drawing of the will, Dr. Carpel is called to testify to her mental fitness. After the document has been duly signed, Isabel starts for her home in a motor car and is injured in an accident. When taken to the hospital she is attended by Dr. Carpel, who soon falls in love with her. Not long after her recovery they are engaged to be married. But Isabel sees only one side of the doctor's character. He is a gambler and so heavily in debt that he is threatened with disgrace at his club. At this critical time he receives an urgent message, calling him to the home of Mrs. Norman, who is dying. He goes to a desk to write a prescription and his eye falls on the box in which valuable papers and money are kept. Unable to resist the temptation, he steals the contents of the box, but in so doing his actions are reflected in a mirror and Mrs. Norman sees the theft. The last moments of her life are spent in writing a note declaring that she saw Dr. Carpel appropriate the money.

In searching for the money Helen finds a flower in the desk similar to the one worn by the doctor on the day of his last visit. She hurries to Isabel for advice; an investigation is commenced and the young woman lawyer is forced to recognize the guilt of the man she has intended to marry within a few weeks. Bravely sinking personal feeling in a larger sense of duty to her client, Isabel presses the case in court and suffers the agony of being the means of securing her lover's conviction.

BIRDS OF THE INLAND MARSH (Dec. 12).—Splendid and intimate views of birds which nest and dwell in watery homes. It shows the tern, ibis, grebe, stilt and coot in flight, swimming and on their nests, and even the downy little chicks paddling around for dear life.

A JOURNEY TO THE ENVIRONS OF NAPLES (Dec. 12).—These beautiful colored views were taken near one of the cities of Europe most famed for the beauty of its surroundings, bay and mountain, olive tree and vine combine to make perfect pictures.

UNCLE JOHN TO THE RESCUE (Dec. 13).—When unreasonable jealousy threatens to spoil the lives of two young married people, Uncle John comes to the rescue and the method by which he effects a joyful reconciliation provides comedy of the highest order. The trouble between Paul and Lillian reaches a climax at a dance given by Uncle John. Admiring young women surround the handsome Paul Bret much to the dismay of his wife. The husband is equally disturbed when his attention is attracted by the circle of men paying homage to Lillian. The evening ends in an open rupture and the wife's decision to return to her mother. Then it is that Uncle John plans to mend matters. To each of the pair he sends a telegram expressing sympathy and suggesting a cruise on his yacht. Each accepts the invitation, not knowing that the other is to be among the guests. The friends of both are in the plot with Uncle John and after a clever arrangement of events, in which both of the estranged lovers lower themselves from the yacht in rowboats, we see them in the same boat and contentedly clasped in each other's arms.

MELIES.

A WOMAN'S MISSION (Dec. 4).—Madge returns her engagement ring to Dick with a note saying that a woman's true mission in life is to be of service to her fellow beings and that, therefore, though she still loves him, she is going to be a nurse at a sanitarium. A month later, Dick plays golf with the sanitarium's doctor and tells him of his plight, and together they hatch a plot for Dick to become a patient at the sanitarium. It is a clever plot, and plays havoc with Madge's determination to give her life to others.

A TRIP TO THE FAMOUS PICNIC GROUNDS AT ARASHYAMA, JAPAN (Dec. 4).—Interesting scenic of these well known grounds.

Changeable Illuminated
PROGRAM SIGN
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE
ZENITH MFG. CO.
Box 252 Cincinnati, Ohio

WE BUY, SELL and RENT
Moving Picture Machines and Films.
Theatre Brokerage Exchange,
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

A G-E Rectifier
will make your pictures more brilliant and at the same time reduce the cost of electric current.
General Electric Company
General Office Schenectady, N. Y.
4488

In Eight Months
352 Motion Picture Theatres
both in the largest cities and in the smallest towns, installed Wurlitzer Motion Picture Orchestras. Why don't you? It pays.
20 BRANCHES WURLITZER 20 BRANCHES
CINCINNATI

Ten Nights in a Bar Room in 5 Parts
Not in a Regular Program—A Special Feature
Advertising Matter Galore. Live Wires. Wire Your Bids
PHOTO-DRAMA CO.
Candler Bldg., N. Y.

ARMY vs. NAVY

The most fiercely fought football contest of the year.

PRESIDENT WILSON will be amongst the 40,000 prominent, wealthy and famous personages who will attend, making this the greatest social event of the season.

WE HAVE THE SOLE AND EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGE to take motion pictures of this wonderful national event.

Every American citizen will patronize your theatres when this feature is shown.

Prints measuring approximately 2,000 feet—12 cents per foot.

Price Includes Exclusive Territory.

Beautiful, appropriate one and three sheet lithos, 10c per sheet.

Wire Order, Deposit and Territory Desired.

Prints ready for delivery November 30th.

COMMERCIAL
MOTION PICTURES CO., Inc.
102 West 101st Street, New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY'S EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

ESSANAY.

THE CAST OF THE DIE (2 parts).—Fred Church, a young chap in a small Western town, secures a position in the grocery store of Harry Todd. Todd is somewhat miserly and keeps close watch of Fred when alone in the store. A few days later Todd misses sums of money from the cash drawer and feels certain Fred is the thief. In reality the thefts are caused by rats, who had made a nest lined with bills taken from the cash drawer. Discovering Fred lurking suspiciously near the drawer one day, Todd summons a detective, who attempts to arrest Fred. Enraged by the accusation, Fred knocks the detective down and hurries to his home, where he breathlessly explains his predicament to his old father and mother. Receiving little encouragement from them, he packs up his things and beats his way out of town on a freight train that night. Meanwhile, the rats in Todd's store nibble around the shelf of matches, setting them off, and the grocery, together with several adjoining buildings, are destroyed by the flames.

Five years later we find Fred a prospector in the heart of the West, with a wife and little child. One day, while in town, Fred receives a letter from his father stating the authorities have discovered his whereabouts and have detectives on his trail with a warrant charging him with robbery and arson. Fearful of discovery, Fred starts for his shack, but is seen by two detectives, who have traced him and immediately start in pursuit. Meanwhile, True Boardman, a notorious outlaw, is wounded by the sheriff's posse and falls unconscious beside the trail as Fred drives along. Fred takes the wounded man to his shack, where it is found the outlaw's wound is mortal. Fearing for his own safety, Fred shows his wife the letter and reveals to her the story of his past. The letter left lying on the table is found by Fred's little girl, who toddles into the bedroom and playfully shows it to the wounded man, together with her dolly. A few minutes later Mrs. Church discovers the two detectives drive up outside the shack, secretes Fred and resolutely determines to try and throw them off the track. Meanwhile, in the next room, the outlaw, realizing death is near, reads the letter and determines on a noble sacrifice—the last he will ever make. A moment later the detectives enter, question Mrs. Church, notice she is barring the way to an adjoining bedroom, thrust her aside and enter—to find the outlaw dead with the letter in his pocket. Thinking the outlaw is Church, and that their mission is ended, they depart quietly from the room and drive away. Later Church and his wife discover how the dead outlaw had saved him from certain capture and kneel beside the bed in a prayer of thanksgiving.

HAVING A GOOD TIME.—Johnson, after having worked at a small salary for many years, inherits a fortune. He joyously ventures forth in search of companionship and friends on whom to spend his money, first having given up the job he has grown to hate.

Much to his discomfiture, everyone he meets is suffering from severe ailment which will not permit them to accompany him on his journey to hilarity. Disgusted, he leaves for home. On his way he stumbles and sprains his ankle; having sent for a doctor he goes to his room. The doctor on his way to visit Johnson, is met by the village gossip, who inquires his destination. Hearing that he is about to visit Johnson, and not being able to learn his ailment, she arrives at the conclusion that Johnson is dying. This report she spreads, with the result that all the would-be good fellows adjourn to the florist, where they gather a unique collection of funeral flowers. One after the other they visit Johnson, present him with the flowers, which drives him into distraction. In a moment of anger he dons his overcoat and hat and returns to ask for his job. The boss, thinking he is crazy, has him arrested. This affords his friends an opportunity for a great deal of unwonted sympathy, ending when the village boob brings his gift to the presumably dying man—a large wreath reading "Rest in Peace."

PATHEPLAY.

THE BLACK COUNTESS (Released Week of Dec. 1).—Professor Montbel, an eminent bacteriologist, has a daughter, Germaine, to whom his favorite pupil, Raymond Roycroft, is engaged. The professor has a neighbor, the brilliant and charming Countess Reinber, who is an adventuress at heart. She invites the Montbels and Roycroft to the birthday party of her little daughter. Raymond is warned against the Countess by a friend, who tells him that she has ruined the happiness of many. While at the party Raymond overhears an altercation between the Countess and the Duke de Mora and rushes in to prevent the Countess from being struck by the Duke. The young man's attractiveness makes a deep impression upon the woman, who from that moment plots to win his love.

Two days later she sees in a newspaper the announcement of Raymond's engagement to Germaine Montbel. She determines to break the engagement and writes to the young man that she is ill and desires him to treat her. She writes at the same time to the Professor and asks him to call upon her at a time a few minutes later than the time she has set for Raymond. Raymond falls into the trap and the Professor being admitted to the Countess' room as planned, finds Raymond bending over the woman in what is apparently a loving position. He breaks his daughter's engagement with the young man and will listen to no explanation.

Raymond learns that the Countess has been endeavoring to blackmail the Duke de Mora and will have nothing more to do with her. The Countess gives a superb Persian fete in order to forget Raymond. Her little daughter becomes suddenly ill and in desperation at the child's condition she implores the Professor to treat the child. Impelled by a sense of duty the Professor does so and finds the child has diphtheria. Needing Raymond's assistance he sends for him and he putting his private injury to one side lends his aid. Together they pull the child through. The Countess in gratitude for the noble way in which the injured men come to her assistance confesses all, reunites the lovers and determines upon a better life.

A MIDNIGHT CALL (Released Week of Dec. 8).—Will Harvey and Jack Fielding are roommates at college and in love with the same girl, Katherine. She is in doubt as to which one she prefers. Spending a day at the beach Jack refuses to go in bathing with the others, as he was nearly drowned when a boy and has dreaded the ocean ever since. Katherine while rowing in a boat alone is upset and nearly drowned. Harvey is the man who rushes to her assistance and because he came to the front when Jack held back, Katherine gives her love to him. Jack is considered a coward not only by his roommate and Katherine, but by the college boys as well.

Ten years later Katherine and Harvey are married and have a little daughter. One night when the parents are spending the evening at the theater the little girl, who is not feeling well, is left in charge of the maid. The maid deserts the child in order to flirt with a policeman. Later in the night Fielding, who has become a physician and a specialist of note while going by the house hears the wailing of a child in apparent agony. He enters the house, finds no one at home, and tracing the source of the cries sees that the child is sick with smallpox. The health officers are telephoned for and the house put under quarantine. Only the frantic mother is permitted to enter the house. Dr. Fielding has had a struggle with himself when he has learned whose child it is, but he buries his personal feelings under the influence of duty. He brings the little girl through her illness, but falls a victim to the disease himself, and pays for his self-sacrifice with his life.

THE MYSTERY OF THE THOROUGHBRED (3 parts—Released Week of Dec. 8).—Fred and his companions plan to steal Whirlwind, Baron Rothburg's famous thoroughbred, on the eve of the Grand Prize race. To assist in their scheme they secure a man, who in appearance is the double of the renowned detective, Nick Winter. The confederate is called Tattooed Jim, because an ace of spades is tattooed on the palm of each hand. A blackmailing letter is sent to the baron, threatening the theft of the filly unless a large sum of money is forthcoming. The fake detective, assuming the name of Nick Winter, tells the baron that he is aware of the plot to steal Whirlwind and offers his services as a safeguard. With four subordinates, Tattooed Jim is left to guard the horse during the night and the next morning all five men are found bound with ropes, and no sign of Whirlwind. Reports of the affair reach Nick Winter and he hurries to see the baron. While they are together a card bearing the name of Nick Winter is brought in by a servant, also a note stating that the detective has discovered that the thieves are demanding a ransom of $2,000 for the return of Whirlwind. Nick suggests that the man using his name be admitted, and concealed behind a curtain he listens to the interview. The detective follows his double from the house and eventually gains access to the thieves by impersonating Tattooed Jim. He learns where the horse is kept and

For Better Pictures

It is a well-known fact that direct-current arc lamps are steadier and produce less flicker than alternating-current lamps. They are easier to focus, waste less light, and use less current. They can be run on an alternating-current circuit by aid of a

Westinghouse - Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

Just connect the outfit to the A. C. lighting circuit and use a D. C. arc in the usual way. No moving machinery—no adjustments.

Send for folder 4205.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities.

For $6.50

You can get a One-Sheet Easel Poster Frame

Solid oak body covered with 2½-in. wide angle Brass — turned edge, glass front, detachable compoboard back, solid brass tilting easel and legs.

Prices on all of our other styles and sizes of Frames in proportion.

All prices F. O. B. our only factory, Cleveland, Ohio

(We are originators of this type of frame.)

We are producers of Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of any description.

THEATRE SPECIALTY MFG. CO.
INC.
1232 EAST THIRD ST., CLEVELAND, OHIO

New York Agents, Yerkes Sound Effect Co., 42nd St. & Broadway.

Virginia and W. Va. Agents, Theatre Supply Co., Roanoke, Va.

Ten Nights in a Bar Room in 5 Parts

Don't Fail to See this Picture.
Those who turn their glass down are always respected.

PHOTO DRAMA CO.
Candler Bldg. New York

MOTION PICTURE CLASSICS PORTRAYING THE WEALTH OF MIND, THE DEPTH AND BREADTH OF EXPERIENCE OF AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR AUTHOR

JACK LONDON

JACK LONDON.

First of the Series Now Ready for Delivery

THE SEA WOLF

IN SEVEN REELS

SOME CHOICE TERRITORY STILL OPEN

Wire or write us for particulars of our exclusive territory contract for the first twelve Jack London productions.

BOSWORTH INC.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
648 South Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

SALES DEPARTMENT
110 West 40th St., New York City

Announcement for Early Production

MARTIN EDEN
THE VALLEY OF THE MOON
SOUTH SEA TALES
THE IRON HEEL
JOHN BARLEYCORN
SMOKE BELLEW SERIES
BURNING DAYLIGHT
SON OF THE WOLF
TALES OF THE FISH PATROL

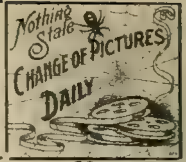
And all other stories by Mr. London, past, present and to come.

83

THE MOTION PICTURE CENTER OF THE WEST

WHERE YOU WILL FIND A COMPLETE LINE OF ALL PROJECTION MACHINES, PARTS, SLIDES, SUPPLIES, STAGE LIGHTING APPARATUS, AND IN FACT, EVERYTHING THE THEATER MANAGER HAS ANY NEED FOR. OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE IS VALUABLE. GET ONE TODAY. WE HAVE THE LATEST IN STOCK SLIDES, THOSE ILLUSTRATED, 40c EACH. HUNDREDS OF OTHERS IN STOCK. SEND IN YOUR NAME AND ADDRESS FOR SLIDE AND SUPPLY CATALOGUES.

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO., 608 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.



89

when there is danger of his identity being discovered, Nick dogs the bandits in the disguise of an old woman. Finally he climbs to the top of a telephone pole and by means of a portable transmitter, concealed in the folds of his dress, telephones to police headquarters for aid. The horse is recovered, but the thieves escape.

Nick is engaged by the baron to remain on his estate to guard against further designs on Whirlwind. The baron receives an urgent wire stating that his sister is ill, and requesting him to come to Paris at once. At the same time Nick receives a telegram from the head of police ordering him to return to Paris. The detective is suspicious and explains to the baron that they must not both be away at the same time. The feign departure and alight from the train at the first stopping-place. Both are followed, as Nick anticipated, but after many difficulties they escape. On the day of the race the baron's jockey has disappeared and Nick rides Whirlwind to victory. Fearing trouble on the return journey, Nick conceals himself in the van occupied by Whirlwind. When the thieves take advantage of a lonely road to hold up the van, Nick and his assistants, disguised as stable boys and drivers, capture the entire band and the fake detective is brought to justice.

A THOUSAND DOLLARS SHORT (Released Week of Nov. 24).—Mrs. Hawtry appeals to her husband to help her brother, who is in financial difficulties. Mr. Hawtry gives the brother a check for $100, which the boy raises to $1,000 and cashes. The bank returns it to Hawtrey, who tells his brother-in-law that if he doesn't make the loss good he will have him locked up. Margaret finding her pleas with her husband unavailing, calls at the house of a friend of his to implore his help. She is found there accidentally by Hawtry, who is immediately angry and suspicious. Explanations follow, Hawtry helps the boy out and he leaves home to try and make good.

---

KALEM.

GOOD FOR THE GOUT (Exclusive Service Program).—Pillsbury, a hypochondriac, imagines he has the gout. The man makes a pest of himself at home and at the club. Jack is in love with Maud, Pillsbury's daughter. Maud promises to marry her sweetheart upon one condition—that he cure her father of his imaginary ills. Jack cheerfully undertakes the task. The boy secures the aid of several club mates. When Pillsbury arrives at the club that day and tells his tale of woe, he is introduced to "Dr. Slashem," a famous surgeon. Upon the "doctor's" assurance that curing the gout is his specialty, Pillsbury gladly accompanies the man to the "operating room." The hypochondriac is placed upon the table. Pillsbury glances about the room and sees several ghastly skeletons. He is terror-stricken. The "surgeon" advances upon Pillsbury with a murderous-looking saw. The victim quakes in fear. The operation is about to commence, when a male nurse enters the room and cheerfully announces the death of several gout patients. This is more than Pillsbury can stand. He makes a flying leap out of the window and runs home in record time. His gout is forgotten. Later, the man learns that "Dr. Slashem" was Jack in disguise. He has been jolted out of his imaginary ills, however, and readily consents to the boy's marriage with Maud.

FAT AND FATE.—Jimmy is madly in love with Madge. He yearns to throw his two hundred-and-fifty pounds at her feet. Madge refuses to marry him, however, unless he reduces his weight by at least fifty pounds. The amorous fat man immediately takes up a course of gymnastics. At the end of the first day he has lost three pounds. The unwonted exertion makes him hungry. When Jimmy mounts the scale after his dinner, the pointer on the dial jumps to 260 pounds. Jimmy hears of an anti-fat remedy which is said to produce marvelous results. He purchases several bottles. The remedy has a wonderful effect—Jimmy has never gained weight so rapidly in all his life. In disgust, he throws the bottles of Anti-Fat through the window. They strike a sailor and the fat lover receives a beating which sends him to the hospital. Jimmy conceives the idea of informing Madge that he has been taken to the hospital to have an arm amputated in an effort to reduce weight. Madge hastens to the hospital where Jimmy makes her believe he is minus his left arm. Madge's friends are taken to the beach by their beaus and the girl is left behind, a rather forlorn figure. Jimmy, released from the hospital, marches up and Madge greets him delightedly. She throws herself upon his chest after sorrowfully patting her sweetheart's empty sleeve—and finds herself encircled by two fat arms.

---

MELIES.

THE YELLOW SLAVE (Released Week of Dec. 8—3 parts).—Ichimatsu, a reservist of the Japanese army, is engaged to Hatsu, the pretty daughter of a widowed restaurant keeper. On the eve of the wedding, war is declared with Russia and Ichimatsu is summoned to the front. He has a premonition of impending death and on the battlefield writes a letter extolling his parents to always take care of his little Hatsu. He intrusts it to his comrade-in-arms to mail in case he is killed. The Russian outposts fire. Ichimatsu falls and his comrade mails the letter.

Hatsu's mother's restaurant is wiped out by fire. They are forced to take lodgings in a garret and to make matches for a living. They cannot earn enough to pay the rent and the landlord makes an offer. Hatsu sternly refuses, but when news comes of the death of her lover, she sacrifices herself to save her mother. The war over, Ichimatsu returns and learns of Hatsu's plight. He scorns his parents for not having looked after his fiancee, and rushes from them in anger, determined to locate her. Finding the tea-house where she is confined, Ichimatsu is shown the sad proof of Hatsu's sacrifice. He determines to save her at any cost. Hurrying home he gets enough money to buy her release. She is freed. They now seek that higher union, the binding of the souls beyond. "The hour has come," says Ichimatsu, and together and willingly they fill the sleeves of their kimonos with stones and walk into the water. When Hatsu can barely keep her head above water the lovers indulge in a last embrace, and then, quickly stepping forward, are swallowed up.

---

VITAGRAPH.

ACCORDING TO SENIORITY (Exclusive Service Program).—When the troops bivouac at Elkton for the night, the ladies decide that it would be appropriate to entertain the officers at a dance. Miss Winters, head of the entertainment committee, accompanied by a charming group of ladies, goes to the camping ground and tells the tall, handsome captain that a dance will be given that evening. Miss Winters asks the captain for a list of the officers and he directs her to Sergeant-Major Brainerd, saying that he will give her a list. Not being familiar with the etiquette of the army, Miss Winters demands a list of all the officers, non-commissioned as well as commissioned, and invites them all.

That evening the tents of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers are scenes of lively primping. The officers make themselves as hand-

The SUPERB FEATURE of the YEAR
ILLINOIS, WISCONSIN
"A Bargain with Satan"

Five Reels made by one of Europe's most talented directors. A splendid modern allegory crowded with meaning and mysticism. Containing every requirement of a winning feature.

BOOK NOW
Evermore and Better Features

General Feature Film Co., (Inc.)
Power's Bldg., Wabash and Monroe Street, Chicago

FEATURE FILMS FOR SALE
G. W. BRADENBURGH, Importer

Four Dare Devils (new copy)
2800.......Cosmo. 6-3-1 photos, $280
Fall of Pompeii (Genuine)
2000..Ambrosio 12-6-3-1 photos, 200
By Whose Hand (Exclusive)
3000......Monopol 6-3-1 photos, 300
Three Drops of Poison
3400..........Luna 6-2-1 photos. 300
Spanish Blood (Asta Nielsen)
4000....Monopol 6-4-3-1 photos, 200
Dance to Death (Asta Nielsen)
3000......Monopol 6-3-1 photos, 175
The Black Viper
3200....Pyramid 6-3-2-1 photos, 175
Hero Among Men
2000........Lubin 6-3-1 photos, 100
Treasure of Devil's Valley
2700..........Eclair 6-1 photos, 100
The Minister's Daughter
2600. Messter 6-2 kds of l's pho's, 125
Sappho
2800.........Attas 6-3-1 photos, 125
The Scapegrace (Sensational)
1900........C. & M. 3-1 Banner, 100
Faust (colored)
2000....Pathe Art 8-6-3-1 photos, 100
The White Veil
3000........Vienna 6-3-1 photos, 100
Torch of War
3000....Continental 6-3-1 photos, 100

Over 1000 good films from $5.00 per reel up. All with posters, every film examined and sent in good condition. Prices net cash with order or C. O. D. with privilege of examination on receipt of 25% in advance.

G. W. BRADENBURGH
802 Vine Street :: Philadelphia, Pa.

Poster Mounting Cloth
Headquarters.
Our 42-inch poster cloth is recognized as the standard fabric for poster mounting. It is used by the LEADERS.
TURNER-HALSEY COMPANY, 62 LEONARD STREET, NEW YORK

TEN NIGHTS IN A BAR ROOM
Playing to Packed Houses
DON'T WRITE—WIRE
IN 5 PARTS
ADVERTISING MATTER GALORE
Photo Drama Co., Candler Bldg., New York

Is There a Fool Born Every Minute?

MANY features, carelessly, cheaply produced, are made upon this false assumption. Knowing that the exhibitor must have features because audiences want and insist upon having them, some manufacturers take the chance of "getting by" with rankly inferior subjects.

Nowadays, with every exchange-man and state rights buyers swamped with glowing sales-letters and meretricious advertisements extolling the praises of the unpraiseworthy, we, the Films Lloyds Inc., know and act upon the realized fact that we have to deliver, first, last and all the time.

Remember — we are not in business to sell one feature or two features. We are not content to take your money in exchange for the worthless. We want your confidence — confidence in us and in our features. If we earn it, and earn it we will — you can't keep your business and your money away from us!

Here are big type facts expressed in small type manner.

"THE PALE FACE SQUAW" (3 reels, release date, December 10th) is the first proof. Will you meet the wholly right people half way?

Films Lloyds Inc.

220 West 42nd Street New York City

some as they can. The captain is less prompt than the others and when they come to get him they find him, face covered with lather, in the act of shaving. The commissioned officers decide that they will be in better form if they arrive at the dance a half hour late. But the non-commissioned officers believe in being prompt and are there on time. They are enthusiastically treated by the maids of Elkton, with whom they make a great hit; and when, a half hour later, the proud and haughty commissioned officers arrive, all of the girls are engaged and the tardy seniors have no one to entertain them. The captain orders all the non-commissioned officers to return to the camping grounds. But the ladies are true to their first admirers and insist on accompanying the banished juniors from the room.

Gathered together in a little group in the deserted ballroom, the commissioned officers are sore-vexed over the turn of affairs. Suddenly the captain spies a woman in an adjoining room. She is sitting with her back to him. "Ah! we will dance," says the gallant captain, "according to Seniority." But Oh! what a disappointment when he finds that she is ugly. The captain and his staff pass out as quickly as they can, no longer enthusiastic about dancing.

A STUDY IN BOTANY.—An attractive American girl wins a handsome Englishman by disguising as a pretty Chinese maid and teaching him botany.

BACK TO EDEN (Exclusive Service Program).—Feeling that the cost of living in the city is exorbitant, Miss Constance and her pretty niece, Grace, move to a small town to rent a little farm. They call at the local real estate agent's office and mistake Mr. Scott, a millionaire, and his son, Dick, for the agents. They question them regarding desirable property in the town. Miss Constance is a spinster about forty years of age, refined, lovable, and attractive. Mr. Scott is impressed with her charms. No more impressed, however, than Dick, who is won by the beauty of the pretty niece. Father and son pretend they are real estate agents and show the two new arrivals a lovely little cottage which they own. Miss Constance and Grace are delighted with the cottage and decide to move in at once. Mr. Scott makes many pretenses for calling upon Miss Constance. He pretends he will insist upon the rent being payed weekly, he to do the collecting. He takes flowers to her, which he himself plants in the garden. Dick loses no time either in ingratiating himself. Knowing that Grace likes chickens, he buys her some prize-winners. Neither father nor son know of each other's courting. Mr. Scott would not have Dick know for the world. He tells Miss Constance not to tell. Dick tells Grace the same thing. Mr. Scott buys a cow and drives it to the new "Eden." Miss Constance and Grace are delighted. When evening falls and twilight encompasses the little fire-lit cottage, the two Adamless Eves sit thinking of a very kind "real estate agent." And as they detect each other looking wistfully into the fire, they smile confidingly. While this is going on, two Eveless Adams sit in an elegant library playing checkers. They are so abstracted in thought they forget to make the moves. They too get to dreaming.

Mr. Scott takes Miss Constance a fine Shepherd dog. He also takes the butter churner from her hand and gets to work making butter. Dick arrives with an Angora kitten for Grace. Dick sees the dog, which has run around the corner of the cottage. He runs after it and comes full upon his father. Both men laugh at each other. Invited to stay to supper. Mr. Scott's butler, waiting in the luxurious Scott dining-room, thinks "It takes 'em an awful long time to collect their rents." At this time, a joyful party of four are pledging each other's health and happiness in four glasses of rich milk. After supper Mr. Scott and Miss Constance play chess. Dick and Grace look on. A misplay brings about a complication of hands. Dick reaches out to stop Grace. Mr. Scott somehow stops Miss Constance. A complete understanding results. Happily they decide that "Eden" was not meant to be Adamless."

GEORGE KLEINE.

THE TELL-TALE HANDKERCHIEF (2 parts)—John Delmar, a wealthy and unscrupulous business man, falls violently in love with Florette, a beautiful actress. His repeated attempts to see her meet with no success; so he resorts to extremes and has her bodily kidnapped, hoping that time will make her love him. Meanwhile her fiance hires Detective Morse, who captures the confidential secretary of Delmar, and learns from her where Florette is being kept. In the interim, Florette steadfastly refuses to permit the caresses of Delmar. Finally, Delmar mixes a powerful sleeping potion, which he attempts to induce Florette to drink. Florette, however, has watched through the curtains and, when Delmar seizes her, cleverly changes the cups. Later, when Delmar has fallen into a drugged sleep, she takes his handkerchief as evidence and flees. Overtaken by peasants, Florette is again returned to Delmar, who pays the rascals handsomely for the return of his handkerchief and possession of Florette. And then, when her last expedient has failed, Detective Fox at the head of a band of trusty police, effects the rescue of Florette and the arrest of Delmar.

A DOG DETECTIVE.—Madame admired an intelligent dog at the dog show, so father bought it. Then Madame sent the dog to bring home vagrant hubby. He arrived in tow of the faithful hound, much the worse for wear, after passing through many miraculous adventures to escape his persistent guardian.

A STUDY IN ASTRONOMY (On same reels as foregoing).—You see Venus through the eye of a powerful telescope, at distances varying from 25 to 90 million miles. Neptune, the most distant planet, is viewed at 2,796 million miles and can be plainly seen. By the aid of a hand telescope, the moon is observed with its many peculiar formations. Through the great lens of an observatory telescope you easily discern the craters of extinct volcanoes and mountain tops.

A QUIET PLACE TO READ (On same reel as foregoing).—Dupin wanted to read and sought a quiet place. But there was no rest for Dupin. The love-making of a fat couple was not conducive to peace: woodchoppers took a sudden fancy to cut down a tree into the branches of which he perched; amateur musicians destroyed his chances in the bleak hills; marathon runners had no mercy on him in the campus grounds; at the wharves a dredge spread its mud on him. This was the last straw. Dupin met two policemen and asked to be arrested. Refused this favor, Dupin knocked the policemen down. Ten minutes later, by the light of a cell window, Dupin found the peace he craved.

LUBIN.

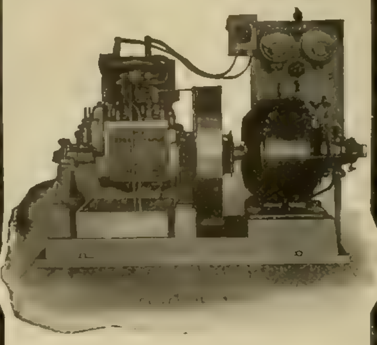
A DISASTROUS BET.—Silas Folk, Henry Sperrin and a bunch of boys enter into a poker game for the championship of Hudson Corners. At last all have dropped out except Silas and Henry, and they play on until Henry is broke. They then play for their whiskers, the loser to have them cut off. Henry loses and is dragged to the barber shop. He goes home and slips into bed. His wife thinks it is a burglar. She jumps out of bed and shouts for the police, who arrive, and lassoing Henry, drag him out of the window. Then his wife recognizes him and administers a thrashing, much to the amusement of the crowd.

LOVE AND TROUBLE.—The love affair between Martha Culper and Zeke Hollis causes much friction between the two families. Old man Culper smashes a board over Zeke's head and Mother Hollis swats Martha with a wet rag. Then the two papas have a battle, one with a pitchfork and the other with an axe. While the families fight, Martha and Zeke are on their way to the minister. Luke Knutt, a lunatic, gets into the game and cuts off the county cop's goatee. After all, the happy couple come back, and as the excitement cools down, they receive the blessings of their parents.

THE CRY OF THE BLOOD (3 parts).—Andrew Jamison, wealthy and aristocratic, longs for an heir to his name and fortune. It is also the greatest sorrow of his wife, and when he departs for a long business trip to Europe, she adopts a baby and so arranges matters that he will not know but that it is his own. The deception is successful and Jamison is overjoyed. The baby was the child of a Mrs. Ambrose, whose husband was a drunkard and had left his wife some weeks before. Mrs. Ambrose, however, tells Mrs. Jamison that the father is dead. Twenty years pass and Bob, the boy, was at college, but the taint of his real father begins to show itself in his wild living, drinking and gambling.

What's the Use?



4 Kilowatt Direct-Connected Outfit

What's the use, Mr. Traveling Showman, in carting around several tons of antique engine and electric apparatus for making electric current, when you can buy a

Brush Electric Lighting Set

Just sit down and write for our Catalogue. It tells the whole story, and what it tells is SO.

The Chas. A. Strelinger Co.
Box MP-2
Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

FILMS FOR SALE
$3.00 per Reel Up
Send for our new revised list. 50 features for sale, low prices. Second-hand machines, all makes.
ECONOMY FILM CO., 105 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa

JUST PLAIN COMMON SENSE tells you—When you want to SEE yourself you use a Mirror. Because you SEE yourself better with a Mirror than any other means in the world. Now the same thing applies. When you want to SEE motion pictures, use a MIRROR SCREEN. Because you SEE the pictures so much plainer, better and clearer on a Mirror Screen than on any other surface under the sun. Besides it tickles your patrons and makes picture fans. It's a fact. The difference between a motion picture on a MIRROR SCREEN and any other screen of any other kind is the same comparison between seeing your own reflection in a fine French plate glass mirror and in a mud puddle. The "MIRROR SCREEN" is a Mirror. A magnificent mirror made from the finest polished plate glass that the world can produce. Get Right and Write to us to-day for our new Snow White Prismized Finished Surface. Eastern Representative, Frank Manning, 121 W. 48th Street, New York City; 160 Irving Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.
F. J. REMBUSCH President
MIRROR SCREEN COMPANY
SHELBYVILLE, INDIANA

Greatest Temperance Story Ever Known
Ten Nights in a Bar Room
IN 5 PARTS
Wire in Your Bids
Territory Going Fast
Photo Drama Co.
Candler Bldg. New York, N.Y.

THE BELLS OF DEATH

A Thrilling Feature in Three Reels

EXCHANGEMEN! STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

We invite you to come and see this beautiful picture, or

Write :: Wire :: Phone

for particulars regarding same NOW—TODAY

GIVE the Exhibitor something NEW. Surprise the Theatregoer with this extremely original feature. Be the exclusive owner in your territory for this Marvel.

Splendid one, three and eight sheet posters, heralds, cuts, photos and slides

OUR TWO-REEL WEEKLY RELEASES

Nov. 22d. GRIFFARD'S CLAW. (Copyrighted 1913)

This sensational detective drama will keep you on edge from the very start to the finish. See the famous detective in a flying aeroplane follow the movements of the fleeing kidnapper, and the capture at the villain's moment of triumph.

Nov. 29th. THE GOOSE A LA "COLBERT." (Copyrighted 1913)

Yes—it was only the dressing of a goose, but it decided the fate of two young lovers. How the scheming young girl brought this about is the funniest comedy ever witnessed.

Dec. 13th. A TRAGIC EXPERIMENT.

A young aviator whose advances are repulsed by the woman with whom he is infatuated, seeks vengeance in ruining her husband's invention at a critical moment. His base action is discovered, and, fearing arrest, he resolves to attempt the experiment himself, which results in his death.

SPECIAL NOTICE. We sell but one exchange in each territory. Each purchaser has the exclusive for his territory.

Publicity—1, 3, 8 sheet posters, heralds, photos and slides.

Ambrosio
TORINO

Ambrosio American Co.

15 East 26th Street NEW YORK

Jamison, however, excuses the boy, saying that he was simply sowing his wild oats, but Bob is expelled from college. Mrs. Jamison then seeks for the boy's mother, who admits that the father is a political ward boss of low type. Jamison is induced to run for governor on the reform ticket, and to be the ticket. Ambrose decoys the boy to a gambling room, induces him to steal money from his supposed father, which he loses at the gaming table The joint is raided and Bob kills his own father. At the trial Mrs. Jamison tells the truth of the boy's parentage and the real mother also assists in getting a light sentence. Having served his time, Bob returns to his own mother and promises to lead a better life.

THE LITTLE HERO.—At the public house the sailors are drinking at the tables when one of them declares that he would like to hear a story. Old Ben, the story-teller, demurs, but finally assents and describes the following incident. In the forecastle, the boys are dancing when the mate, a big, black visaged sea dog, appears and tells them to cease their fun. He goes down the hatchway and returns dragging a little stowaway. Grasping the boy by the front of the shirt he fiercely demands how dared he be a stowaway. The boy had a face bright as sunshine and a pair of blue eyes. The mate interrogates him fiercely as to what his name was and who had stowed him away. He replied that his name was just Frank and his stepfather had brought him abroad. The mate was not convinced and still roughly demanded to know which of the seamen had brought him on board, threatening him with hanging. The rough sailors pleaded and one offered to work his passage out, but the boy declared he had spoken the truth and asking for a moment to pray, he knelt and prayed as the sea-dogs stood around with tears in their eyes. Pushing his way through, the mate grasped the boy in his arms and with a burst of emotion kisses him. He was satisfied that the boy had spoken the truth.

A HUSBAND'S AWAKENING.—John Graham is blind to the claims of his wife and little girl upon his affections. Alice is starving for love, so upon the little Inez she lavishes all her tenderness, hoping each day that John will awake to the need she feels for companionship. Graham never changes, and Alice realizes there has come the parting of the ways. She takes Inez and leaves a note: "John, you have forgotten us, so we are going back home." Graham is annoyed at his wife's action, but so dulled that he merely shrugs his heavy shoulders and settles down to work. But he cannot concentrate his thoughts. He lights a cigar and tosses the match into the grate. The flames flare up and he sees a vision of Alice and their child. He goes to bed only to toss, sleepless until finally drowsing he is again confronted by his lost ones. He awakens with a start to find his arms empty. Whereupon he gets out of bed and begins to search through drawers, closets, boxes, always ending by finding no result except at every turn he stumbles upon something which reminds him of his wife. An empty bottle of perfume, an old gown and with each article comes the recollection of a long forgotten past. His child's doll next and a worn-out pair of rompers. He knows now what is the precious thing he has lost. He orders his car and races to the home of his wife's parents, frantic to regain the lost love. He finds Alice and Inez and speedily convinces his wife that they are necessary for each other's happiness.

THE VOICE OF ANGELO (2 parts).—Tony and Maria Mullardi conduct a little Italian store on the same street containing the delicatessen shop of the Lillichs. The Italians have a son, Angelo, and their German friends a daughter, Gretchen. Angelo and Gretchen are sweethearts. Business goes against the grain with Angelo—he would rather sing. An impresario hears his voice and proposes to have it trained. Angelo goes home with the wonderful news and finds himself in the midst of a surprise party. The Mullardi's have invited the Lillichs to a supper, at which Tony will announce the engagement of their children and that Angelo will become a partner in the business firm of Mullardi & Son. Tony's heart is crushed when Angelo refuses the arrangement and declares to be an opera singer Angelo's debut is a great success and soon after the newspapers gossip of the engagement of the singer to a society belle. To celebrate his triumph Angelo gives a house-warming party, and his father and mother—not being invited, go of their own accord, thinking that an invitation has been miscarried. They are turned from the door as the great singer could not possibly introduce these simple people as his parents. Fast living rapidly proves Angelo's nemesis; his voice fails. His manager, the Society Lady and all of his swell friends turn their backs upon him. It is then that the mother comes and takes him back to the faithful Gretchen, and the sign "Mullardi & Son" is resurrected and nailed over the door.

G. & G. FEATURE FILM SERVICE CO.

NEW AND ATTRACTIVE FEATURES AT REASONABLE PRICES

Also a large number of single reels, all in good condition. $1.00 Per Day

Send for our list of features and single reels.

350 NORTH CLARK ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

SPECIAL RATES FOR DECEMBER

Richter's Features

Keep your ticket seller busy

Exclusive for New York State can be booked only from me

"MYSTERIES OF PARIS"
Eclectic—5 reels

"NERO AND BRITANNICUS"
Hand Colored—3 reels

"PALACE OF FLAMES"
Itala 4 reels

"TIGRIS"
Itala's Biggest—4 reels

"BALAOO"
Eclair—3 reels

"PHANTOM BANDIT"
Eclair—4 reels

"ZIGOMAR III"
Eclair—4 reels

"PARSIFAL"
Ambrosio—3 reels
Special for Holiday Weeks

"SIEGFRIED"
Ambrosio—3 reels

BIG DISPLAY POSTERS

Heralds, Photos, Slides for All

Write for Open Dates

50 2-3-4 REEL FEATURES

500 Commercials Sale or Rent

Write for Lists

ROBERT RICHTER

Successor to

McIntire & Richter

MOTION PICTURES

23-E-14th St. New York

Book from me

You will eventually, why not now?

FEATURES

For Rent in

OHIO, INDIANA, KENTUCKY

Every One a Winner

LOOK AT THIS LIST

From the Greatest Makers in the World!

| Title | Reels |
|---|---|
| Through the Clouds (Apex) | 4 |
| London by Night (Apex) | 4 |
| For High Treason | 4 |
| On the Steps of the Throne | 4 |
| On the Trail of the Spider Gang (Apex) | 4 |
| The Black 13 (Apex) A sequel to The Spider Gang | 3 |
| In the Python's Den (Apex) | 3 |
| Humanity (Apex) | 3 |
| The Power of Innocence | 3 |
| Nemesis (The Railroad Feature) | 3 |
| Wanted by the Police | 3 |
| The Worker (Ramo) | 3 |
| In Hand with Death | 3 |
| The Great Bullion Robbery (Apex) | 3 |
| Parsifal (Ambrosio) | 3 |
| In the Claws of the Vulture | 3 |
| Siegfried | 3 |
| Salome (Savoia) | 3 |

The Spectre of the Sea, 2; The Vice, 2; In the Hands of Conspirators 2; The Human Target, 2; The Airman's Secret, 2, and many, many others.

* Features marked thus we do not own Ohio territory, but can supply Indiana and Kentucky exhibitors. On all others we own the three states. We do not pirate.

ALSO BOOKING FOR INDIANA ONLY
KALEM'S MASTERPIECE

"From the Manger to the Cross"

Wonderful Advertising for All Subjects

Empress Feature Film Co.

1517 Merchants Bank Bldg.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
Long Distance-Bell Phone, Main 5951.

In Answering Advertisements Please Mention the Moving Picture World.

NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY EXHIBITORS

Is your theatre a paying proposition? I have made $25.00 to $40.00 a night for many exhibitors.

I have a legitimate and novel plan for influencing this increase.

Write for full information

Metropolitan Premium Co.

Woolworth Building
233 Broadway New York City

WANTED Bids on Ten Nights in a Bar Room

IN FIVE PARTS

15 Styles of Posters, Photos, Slides and Heralds

Live Wire—Get Busy PHOTO DRAMA CO. Candler Bldg., N. Y.

"A LEAP OF DESPAIR"

Thrilling Feature In Four Parts

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

SENSATIONAL ACTS

Never before seen, are shown in this wonderful film. An absorbing love story is startlingly intensified by deeds of daring to take the very breath away from the audience. From the dizzy heights, shown in the illustration herewith, the brave equestrienne makes her horse leap to the ground. This is but one of a series of thrilling incidents which make this film a fitting

SUCCESSOR TO "TIGRIS."

Territory Open:

Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, New York State exclusive of Greater New York, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

NEXT RELEASE, IN TWO PARTS

"Death's Door"

"The Queen's Jewel"

IN FOUR PARTS

Territory Open:

Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, New York State exclusive of Greater New York, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

ITALA FILM CO. OF AMERICA

HARRY R. RAVER, Director General

Candler Building New York City

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

VICTOR.

THE DREAD INHERITANCE (2 parts—Dec. 8).—The father is dying in his western cabin. There is something on his mind. He calls his son to him and tells him how as a young man and a weak one he was led into mischief in a dance hall, how his wife suffered the consequences and how his son might possibly suffer, too, through heredity. The father dies and the son is horrified, and with white face and dead heart he goes to the girl who is waiting for him and who trusts him so much and tells her that he is not fit for her. She trys to retain him, but he breaks away from her and the poor girl goes and pours out her sorrow to her mother, who tries to fathom the reason why.

There is a doctor who loves the girl and when he tells her lover to call on the doctor and see what he can do for him, he goes. The doctor learns the cause of his trouble and makes a test of his blood. It is pure and wholesome, but the doctor sees his chance and by dint of suggestion he lets the poor fellow go from his presence.

The mother cannot stand her daughter's grief and seeks out the lover who has just come out of a drinking saloon, where he sought to drown his troubles and from where he fled when a woman tried to tempt him. The mother of the girl speaks gently to him and as gently points out a passage in the Bible to him. "And Jesus put forth his hand and touched him, saying, 'I will. Be thou clean.' Immediately his leprosy was cleansed." The young fellow thinks it over and he reads further and the light comes and he knows he has nothing to fear. The lover again visits the doctor, who does all in his power to make him see that he should not go near the girl; but the girl and her mother are praying in their home and the influence is felt. Finally the young man throws down the test tube and laughingly goes to seek his girl. He finds her and her mother on their knees and clasps them both to him.

POWERS.

HOW FRECKLES WON HIS BRIDE (Dec. 8).—Against her parents' wishes Vera desires to become a moving picture actress. She even goes so far as to get a job, but is discovered by her father, taken home and later sent to her uncle in a small country town. Arriving at the town all the boys are impressed with her and particularly Freckles, who carries the grip. Vera determines to have a good time while in captivity and sets out to flirt with everyone wearing pants. Rev. Goode is among those seeking to ingratiate himself with her. Freckles proposes and she accepts laughing and takes his ring. Freckles secures his license immediately.

Another rube proposes and is accepted. He also leaves a ring. Freckles hidden by the porch overhears this and is enraged. Others propose and are accepted to the amazement of the hiding boy. He confronts the girl and drags her off. On the road to the village he meets and trounces her other admirers and forces the minister to marry him. Triumphantly he leads his bride away, who has become quite meek.

HIS OWN BLOOD (2 parts—Dec. 12).—David Harding, who is a millionaire manufacturer of a soft drink, ratifies the engagement of his son, Frank, and Eileen. However, the parental joy is short lived, for Frank becomes addicted to drink and wild company, and drifts away from his family and fiancee. Through his great father-love, Harding works upon his son to break away from his worthless associates and fight life. Frank does this and is reinstated in his father's affections and his sweetheart's love. But a greater danger than drink besets the boy. Believing that the drink manufactured by his father can be nothing but wholesome and good, Frank makes a specialty of drinking it. The drink contains an insidious drug, and Frank becomes a slave to the habit before the father realizes it. Frank becomes a fiend, and is on the point of a breakdown, when the attending doctors advise an operation as the only means of saving his life. Harding suffers terribly when he sees that his only child is in mortal danger as a result of his own concoction. The father consents to the operation.

In the meantime, the pure food authorities are investigating the father's product. They decide against it and prohibit its manufacture. Harding agrees to close down all his factories. The operation on his son is a success. He is cured of the habit and marries Eileen. Harding gives his ill-gotten fortune to charities.

NESTOR.

RETRIBUTION (Dec. 10).—Dorothy and her father have staked all their hopes on their mine. While they are awaiting the arrival of Mr. Reid, who is to report on the value of the mine, Pedro, a Mexican, makes familiar advances to Dorothy and is sternly repulsed. Reid arrives and a mutual attraction springs up between himself and Dorothy, to the chagrin of Pedro.

Reid goes to the mine with the father. Upon his arrival he discovers that he has left his instruments behind. He returns and finds Dorothy struggling in Pedro's arms. He drives the Mexican away. His examination of the mine shows that it is worth nothing. The girl begs him to return and make a more thorough investigation. He agrees to this.

Pedro, whose hate is now thoroughly aroused, has been listening at the window. The Mexican goes to the mine and prepares a large charge of dynamite for ignition. Reid returns to the mine, and while he is busy with his examination Pedro lights the fuse. There is a terrific explosion. Reid is buried alive, while Pedro is killed. Father and daughter feel the shock of the explosion and he goes to the rescue, while Dorothy rides to town for help.

HER FRIEND, THE BUTLER (Dec. 12).—Mr. Smith, jealous of his wife, discharges the new butler for smiling at her. That afternoon Smith picks up a chance acquaintance with the charming Mrs. Newlywed. Mr. Newlywed, likewise, is carrying on a flirtation with Mrs. Smith. Smith telephones his wife that he will not be home for dinner. The wife takes advantage of this, and sends for Newlywed. However, Smith returns home unexpectedly. To extract himself from an embarrassing predicament, Newlywed assumes the part of the new butler.

The deception goes smoothly until Mrs. Newlywed takes it into her head to visit her friend, Mrs. Smith. Smith is delighted to see her, but Newlywed, impersonating the butler, is panic-stricken. He decides on the only course of action possible. He pretends that he has never seen his wife before, and that he is not her husband. The bluff gets off until he drops a tray and is discharged by Smith. Newlywed goes into the hall with Mrs. Smith, who tries to console him. Smith and Mrs. Newlywed are seen kissing, and a four-cornered cross-fire of jealousy begins to rage. The identity of Newlywed is estadlished and mutual understandings are reached.

CRYSTAL.

PEARL'S HERO (Dec. 9).—Weary steals the major's uniform, dons it and in the woods, saves Pearl from a mad dog. Considering him her hero, she invites him home. Believing him a military officer, she wines and dines him to his heart's content. After leaving, under the influence of liquor, he falls asleep in the woods. Here he is found by some soldiers, who, reading the major's name in the hat, take him to the major's home. Told of the theft sometime previously, the major is out hunting for the tramp. Weary tries to flirt with his wife. When the major returns there is trouble—Weary refuses to give up his uniform. The police are called in and Weary's lark ends in jail.

BALDY IS A WISE OLD BIRD (Dec. 9).—Mr. and Mrs. Creighton are troubled with a bad cook. They insist on giving Mary arguments and finally discharge her. That same day Mrs. Creighton receives a letter from her rich uncle, Baldy, informing her that he is coming to visit them. She knows that his one weakness is a good meal, and also that Mary is superior to any cook they might employ. Mary is induced to stay.

Baldy arrives and sits down to the first meal. The family is afraid that he might kick, but instead he is immensely pleased. Later he tells Mary that her cooking is great—that he desired her to cook for him through life. She consents and they are married. They return home and the family, seeing his fortune in the hands of their deadly enemy, the cook, are thrown into a state of collapse.

FIRST LOVE (Dec. 14).—The simple country girl is happy in the love of her man until she discovers that a gypsy is replacing her in the boy's affections—her jealousy aroused, she determines to look elsewhere for happiness. When an artist enters the valley, she determines to pose for him. The yokel observes this and though entirely innocent of wrong-doing in talking to the gypsy girl, he realizes that his sweetheart had occasion to be jealous. He attempts to make up with her. She refuses.

But the girl's happiness with the artist is short lived—he finds another girl to take her place. She then turns her attentions to a soldier. After an embarrassing affair with him, in which her sweetheart interferes, she meets a rich man from the city. This fellow, though married, attempts to kiss her, and she struggles. The minister intrudes. He listens to her story, and observing the country youth, brings him to her. Repentant, the youth pleads for forgiveness, and finally convinced that his love is thorough after all, she returns to the first love and is married.

JOKER.

MIKE AND JAKE IN MEXICO (Dec. 10).—After stealing across the Mexican border, Mike and Jake learn that Chilita, daughter of the federal commandante, has been abducted by the wicked Bumbo, leader of the rebels. They get in bad with the federals by carelessly destroying the town arsenal. To regain their lost prestige, they go to the rescue of the beautiful Chilita.

Mike is captured by the rebels, while Jake finds Chilita in Bumbo's stronghold. When the rebels shoot Mike in the stomach with a cannon ball it bounces off harmlessly. After putting him to every manner of torture, Mike escapes and the rebel army return to Jake. When they approach, he throws red pepper into their ranks.

A battle of sneezing follows. Jake returns Chilita to her father. The federals, armed with red pepper, storm the rebel stronghold. However, every member of the rebel band, with the exception of Bumbo, has sneezed himself to death. Chilita is given in marriage to Bumbo, and Mike and Jake are sent on their way.

THE JOY RIDERS (Dec. 13).—Willie's auto is not stylish, but it is good enough for Mandy, who loves to go joy riding. Dusty and Sandy, two tramps, observe Willie and Mandy drive up and stop through some trouble. Willie goes for assistance and Mandy waits. The two tramps, finding Mandy asleep, jump in and drive off. Willie and the man, the blacksmith, see the auto move off and while the blacksmith goes for the police Willie gets the bicycles ready and they go in pursuit. The police mount their cycles and a mad chase ensues, in which many bicycles and tempers are ruined.

Eventually, after some hair-raising adventures, the police throw bombs in the car. A terrific explosion follows. The girl and the tramps climb to the roof. When the police follow they are thrown down the ladder. Eventually Killie gets up and they all fall off the roof. The tramps are captured after a hard tussle, and are taken off to the pen, and Willie and the girl signify their pleasure in the usual manner.

FRONTIER.

WHEN ROARING GULCH GOT SUFFRAGE (Dec. 11).—When Roaring Gulch got suffrage, numerous things took place. The battle for supremacy was clearly a battle of wits between Bat Hara, the bully of the burg, and Mrs. Bill Punkley, who had aspirations of her own.

Despite the well laid plans of both leaders, the vote seemed destined to result in a tie, which would have defeated the cause of the woman had not Mrs. Bill foreseen the result and locked her hubby up in the spare bedroom. When counting shows a "tie vote," Mrs. Bill hikes to her home, and hauls the objecting but necessary voter to the polls. The women win. The male contingent are turned out of office, and the suffragettes take over the reins of government. Mrs. Bill steps into the office of the chief of police and friend husband is relegated to the kitchen and the ironing board. Things happen to Bill's biscuits, and he leaves by the nearest window without even saying good-bye. The Roaring Gulch Petticoat Fire Department, responds. The house burns down. Finding nothing else to do, the ladies turn the hose on Bill, and at least quench all his desire for future suffrage, Roaring Gulch brand or otherwise.

OUT OF HIS CLASS (Dec. 13).—Richard's sister arrives at his ranch in the West, where she hopes to regain her health. In preparation of this the town committee has commanded the constable to close all saloons and drive the gamblers from the community. On the day following her arrival she takes a walk. Unfamiliar with the village, she wanders into a questionable part and is insulted by some toughs. Joe Fraser, the gambler king, befriends her by knocking the insulter down and then offers to show her home, an offer which she gladly accepts. When Richard tells her of the gambler's character, she refuses to believe him until taken past the notice which commands all gamblers, particularly Joe Frazer, to leave town by the 25th.

Several days later, Lucille and her father, riding in the mountains, are left stranded when the horses bolt. Back in the village, the gamblers are leaving. Frazer comes upon them, weak from thirst and offers them his horse. They accept and Frazer pushes ahead afoot. He finds a bag, lost by the girl, containing jewels.

Several days later the father is persuaded to go in search of her lost jewels. After hours of search they come upon the body of the gambler lying in the sands—dead, the mesh bag on his breast and a revolver in his hand. Gently removing the jewel bag from the man's grasp, all notice a card, the duce of spades, upon which is written: "It was best—I was out of my class."

REX.

BY FATE'S DECREE (Dec. 11).—A gambler who has plucked a goodly share of other people's money, is about to leave for Europe with his woman. In his attorney's hands he places money and a note to another woman, saying that his secret marriage to her was illegal, and that he will provide for her and the child if she will accept his terms. The attorney delivers the note, but the woman refuses the money. A yeggman is is what every user of the famous

A BIO BOOSTER

BIO CARBONS

invariably becomes. This is but natural since the admirable results obtained therewith of

MOVING PICTURE PROJECTIONS

are so vastly superior to the use of the common carbons—no matter under what brand.

JUST BECAUSE

They
BURN STEADIER
BURN CLEARER
BURN BRIGHTER
BURN LONGER
AND WITH LESS CURRENT

BIO CARBONS

THEY ARE WHAT YOU WANT.

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK 165 Greenwich St.
MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St.
SAN FRANCISCO 143 Second St.

Moving Picture Publicity

Will Revolutionize Advertising Within A Few Years Time

The best advertisement will never be written.

Already many hundreds of advertisers in a hundred different lines of business have utilized Film advertising to their profit.

Learn more of this new industry.

MOVING PICTURE PUBLICITY
A Monthly Periodical for Twentieth Century Advertisers

will show you how others are mak ing money in this field.

If you are an exhibitor, it will show you new ways of increasing your receipts.

If you are a film manufacturer, it is worth one hundred times its cost to you.

Fifty cents (stamps will do) will pay for one year's subscription. A dollar bill will bring the publication to you for three years. Fill out and mail coupon to-day.

Sample copy sent upon request accompanied by 2c stamp.

T & C Corporation

949 Broadway
NEW YORK

USE COUPON.

T & C Corporation
949 Broadway
New York

Please send me MOVING PICTURE PUBLICITY for one/three years, for which I enclose $............

Name..........................
Street..........................
City..........................
..........................

watching the scene through the window, and he sees the attorney slip the money under the table cloth. The crook determines to come that night and steal it. When he steals into the room that night he finds the woman dead of sorrow and worry and poverty. He recognizes her as his first sweetheart. He takes the little girl into his arms and his mind wanders into the past. His memories are shown as they recur to him.

He is young, clean-cut, and is proposing marriage to his sweetheart. He is refused. He enters a saloon and watches a gambler lose all his money to a stranger. The stranger leaves the saloon and the gambler decides to get his money back. He follows the stranger. There is a scuffle and the stranger is killed and robbed by the gambler. The young Westerner sees the crime committed and rushes up to see if he cannot be of some use to the dying man. The gambler returns to the saloon and accuses the Westerner of the murder. He is captured, tried and sentenced to a long term in prison. The gambler proposes to the girl and she accepts him. The yeggman's memories fade away and he draws the child closer to him. He takes her to his rooms. He becomes an honest man and labors for the child. One morning he picks up a paper and reads that the gambler and his woman have lost their lives in a wreck at sea.

THE MASK (Dec. 14).—There is a daring and noted thief at large. His picture is printed in the paper. At the club Phil shows this to Julian, who laughs, for the picture is of himself. Julian can alter his face at will. He assumes the evil face when he needs money, and becomes the society man and breaker of hearts in his leisure time. Phil is enamoured of a girl who virtually supports her father, an inventor and dreamer, a mother and her little invalid sister. Phil would marry her. Though she loves him, she tells him that she must marry Julian, the rich man, as Phil is unable to support the whole family.

Out walking one day, Julian sees Phil approaching, and, in a moment of sport, he changes his features and with the aid of cloak and cap, he holds Phil up. He is pursued, but Phil merely comes upon the suave Julian, and is deceived. Friends of Phil's and the girl are robbed in the same manner. Phil receives news that his father's mine contains traces of radium. He hastens to tell Lois, who is preparing her wedding invitations. He pleads with her, but her mother insists upon her keeping her word for the sake of the family. As Julian dresses on the day of the wedding, he is horrified to find that he cannot control the muscles of his face. The ceremony starts. Phil and other guests are horrified to see the face of the man who robbed them. Lois understands and falls into Phil's arms. Julian is taken into custody and the ceremony continues with Phil as bridegroom.

GOLD SEAL.

RED MARGARET, MOONSHINER (2 parts—Dec. 9).—Red Margaret's sagacity and commanding personality outwits the agents of the law who attempt to capture a band of moonshiners until she comes to know the secret of love. Then it is that she sacrifices her people and herself.

The play opens in the wild mountains, where a band of moonshiners bid defiance to the officials. Margaret is the soul of the gang and the authorities realize that if they could capture her the rest would be easy. However, they fail in every attempt and a government agent is sent to assist them. Margaret, unaware of his identity, meets and falls in love with this agent. He is different from the rest of her people and his presence causes a moral awakening. Lon, Margaret's suitor, discovers the identity and the purpose of the agent, and the girl is forced to write a letter which brings him, unsuspectingly, to her cabin. Now, fully repentant, for the first time in her life, the girl notifies the deputies of their leader's danger. There is a sharp battle that ends in the defeat and capture of the moonshiners. Margaret's father is killed and the agent is left behind wounded. A deputy, arriving with the prisoners, takes all the honor for their capture. Love points the way for the girl. Forcibly, she leads the wounded man to the sheriff's office and gives the impression that the agent arrested her. Suspicion is lifted from him and the girl goes to prison, a happy woman.

BISON.

THE WEREWOLF (2 parts—Dec. 13).—The play opens in pioneer days. Kee-On-Ee, an Indian maiden, is married to Ezra Vance, a trail blazer. When her child is five years old, Kee-On-Ee is driven back to her tribe by Ezra's brother, who scorns all squaws. Ezra is killed by an old enemy and Kee-On-Ee, thinking his failure to return to her to be indifference, brings up her child, Watuma, to hate all white men.

When the child is grown, Clifford and a party of prospectors appear. Kee-On-Ee, now a hag, sees her way to be revenged. She sends her daughter to Clifford's camp and he is driven nigh mad by her beauty. Clifford finds her in the arms of a young Indian. She taunts him. Enraged beyond control, Clifford shoots the buck. He flees to the Mission. Watuma leads the enraged Indians against the hunters. When one of them raises a cross, Watuma slowly dissolves into a slinking wolf.

A hundred years later Clifford, now reincarnated in the form of Jack Ford, a miner, receives a visit from his sweetheart, Margaret. Hunting with her he comes upon a wolf, but is unable to shoot it. The wolf dissolves into the Watuma of old, and there appears before his puzzled eyes the scene where he sley the brave. The Wolf wamon would caress him, but he throws her off. She returns again as the wolf and kills his sweetheart. Clifford's punishment for the deed of the past life is made complete at the death of one he loved.

IMP.

TIME IS MONEY (2 parts—Dec. 11).—Herbert, a distant relative of Billy's, learns that a will has been made in his favor on condition that Billy does not marry Leah within a certain period. For fear that Billy will marry the girl, Herbert endeavors to keep the will a secret. However, he fails in this. Billy hastens to Leah and unfolds the proposition; they arrange to marry at a nearby place. Herbert manages to have Billy leave on the steamer without the girl. The pleasure seekers, because of Billy's frantic efforts to find Leah, imagine him a dangerous crank. Herbert is also aboard and enjoys his enemy's discomfiture. In the meantime, Leah is speeding down the river in a motor boat to locate her sweetheart. Fearing that Billy will find the girl, Herbert gets aboard the steamer alone and starts it in motion. Her movements are erratic and extraordinary and she revolves in circles, then rushes ahead in full speed. The Dutch pioneers are filled with consternation when they learn they are marooned on the island. Herbert, unable to control the steamer, is panic stricken. The captain in a motorboat finally overtakes the steamer and hides in the engine room. The frantic German mob howl curses upon the plotter. Will, who has been left ashore, is found by Leah in the motor boat and together they hasten to the minister. The pioneers throw Herbert overboard and he swims to shore, a beaten man.

ECLAIR.

OVER THE CLIFFS (3 parts—Dec. 10).—The father and mother, during Barbara's early childhood, are murdered by two Mexican outlaws. Barbara is carried on the back of an Indian friend to safety. Barbara is cared for and raised by the Indian. Years later we find one of the Mexicans a governor of one of the countries. Now a grown girl, Barbara comes in contact with him. Her Indian guardian recognizes his enemy of yore, and makes it his business to fasten the guilt of murder upon him and bring about punishment. After Barbara has been kidnapped by the Mexican, the Indian pursues him to the mountain and fights a desperate duel with him on the cliffs. Justice is accomplished. Barbara returns to her own and to the love of a young doctor, whose mother has befriended her.

PARTNERS (2 parts—Nov. 19).—Two young men, David Donneley and James Burns, are partners in business. They fall in love with two charming girls, but business goes bad, reverses come unexpectedly and the firm is thrown into involuntary bankruptcy. Their fickle and faithless sweethearts, when they hear the news of this, break their marriage engagements with the boys. In the Northwest, where the boys have gone, their canoe is caught in a whirlpool and in a half dead condition they escape and make their way to the home of an old prospector. The old man's blind daughter welcomes them, as her father is absent, working night and day in his secret mine. He does not return that evening and the boys start out in search of him. To their horror they discover his mangled body in a lonely canyon. News of her father's death is broken gently to the blind girl. They plan to restore her eyesight.

A noted specialist, a friend of the boys, is called from the city. He examines the girl, and is performing the most delicate operation upon her eyes when an unfortunate interruption by an Indian girl, the servant, makes them believe her sight is gone forever, but the girl through her pluck and faith fights valiantly and in a week's time they find that her sight is restored. One day, looking through an old volume which she had formerly read by means of touch, she finds the map which her father had left, showing the secret location of his mine. She tells the boys of her discoverey and they immediately start to locate the gold.

A terrible trip, over perilous cliffs and deserted canyons follows, and after hairbreadth escapes, and many hardships they reach the mine. Coming back they attempt to scale a cliff which they had descended by means of ropes in the morning. When almost at the top, David loses his foothold and finds that the weight of James, who is hanging to the rope a few yards below, is pulling them both down to death. He calls to James, and his pal in the supreme test sticks by him. With a slash of a knife he cuts the rope above his own head, and goes tumbling down to eternity, while David climbs in safety to the top.

OH! YOU RUBBER! (Nov. 23).—I'ma Nutt's kindly disposed uncle picks out a beautiful rubber plant and sends it to his only nephew, with a note, telling them to expect him to dinner that night. The two Nutts are greatly pleased. They shower all sorts of attention upon the rubber plant, and the maid, who is also a "nut," places it on the window-sill to water it. The water quietly trickles down on the head of a gentleman reading a newspaper on the sidewalk below. He rushes in, and promptly knocks Mr. Nutt down. The latter gives him his card, and in return he sticks his pasteboard on Mrs. Nutt's face, from which they learn he is a fencing master. Fearful in the excitement that they have neglected that dear rubber plant, they rush in to find it has become frozen—the leaves are drooping, and it is withered. Candles are brought and lighted around it, but do no good. The maid rushes to the store, and, purchasing some Roman candles, returns, lights them, and places them about the plant. There is a beautiful display of fireworks, and three innocent people, who are eating above the Nutt's apartment, are blown from their chairs. I'ma Nutt now examines the rubber plant solicitously and declares he is afraid it needs some diversion. He brings his violin, the maid gets her trombone, and Mrs. Nutt gracefully plays the accordeon. The sweet music arouses an old grouch next door, and, after tremendously enlarging his muscles by the use of elastic exercises, he pokes a broom through the wall, knocking over the sideboard and bringing the concert to an abrupt close. Now, thoroughly disgusted with all rubber plants, I'ma Nutt casts it out the window, and it gracefully sails on the head of his dear uncle, producing thereon a beautiful bump. The uncle rushes in and proceeds to disinherit his ungrateful nephew.

MR. EXHIBITOR, READ THIS

"The Battle of Gettysburg" played Tuesday, October 14th, at La Ray Theatre, Salem, N. J. Mr. Ray, when asked how it took, said:

"We could not hold the crowds. The biggest mob that ever attempted to get into a theatre fought to see it. We turned away as many as we took in. This is all the more remarkable, when we are charging 10c., as it was the first time we have ever gone above a 5c. admission. In addition to this fact, on the same day there was a big launching at Salem and a free lecture at the City Hall. Naturally, we were more than delighted with the result."

EASY TERMS

Terms and Booking at any office of the Mutual Film Corporation

Our Files Are Overflowing With Letters of the Above's Ilk

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION, Longacre Bldg., 42nd St. and Broadway, NEW YORK

Start Something Yourself

do not wait for the other fellow to show you the way. YOU HEAD OFF—and let others follow. KEITH started something thirty years ago. He hired a store in Boston and exhibited a Midget. He started as an Exhibitor. But he had SHOWMAN qualities. He gave a picture of the Midget to every purchaser of a ticket. You can give a picture Post Card of all the POPULAR PHOTO-PLAYERS appearing in the Films you are showing.

Semi-Photo Post Cards, $3.00 per thousand: formerly sold for $4.00. Over 300 different players.

Hand Colored Post Cards

For the better class of Souvenirs, 30 of the most popular Association players, $10.00 per thousand.

Photo Post Cards

for hand coloring. NOTE: The public buy cards from stationers and color them. It's a new fad— 30 Association Players $5.00 per thousand

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, Association and Independent, 300 different names, 20 cents each.

LARGE PICTURE, semi-photo, glazed finish, size 11 x 14, $1 per doz.; 43 prominent players.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, Prominent Association players, $2.00 for set of 12.

Photographs for lobby display of the two and three reel features of Kalem, Lubin and Edison, and also all of the Mutual multiple reels—set of 6, $1.00. Set of 12, $2.00. Always ready 10 days ahead of release.

Lobby frames to hold 12 pictures with necessary cards—$6.00 each.

KRAUS MFG. CO. 14 East 17th St., New York

Send for Catalogue of over 300 players and samples free. All letters answered the same day as received.

---

Turn the Casual Visitor Into a Steady Patron

by producing realistic moving pictures—pictures that are clear, sharp and distinct, and absolutely true to life.

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

portray your film stories to the very best advantage. No detail of picturesque scenery nor expression of the actor escapes the audience.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers insure brilliantly clear, sharply defined pictures that give your house a reputation for the "best." Recognized as standard by the profession and always supplied with Edison and Nicholas Power Machines. Procurable through any film exchange.

Our interesting free booklet for owners and operators will prove of value to you. Write for it.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N. Y.

---

BARGAIN=MACHINES=BARGAIN

Order one for Emergency. Slightly used machines, in first-class running condition. Powers No. 6, $135.00; Edison Model B, $150.00; Edison Exhibition Models, $50.00, $60.00 and $75.00. All complete with lenses, rheostats. Ticket Choppers, Mirror Screens, Chairs, etc.

Order at once. First come, first served.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO., Inc.

1301 Race St., Philadelphia

---

Von Duprin SELF-RELEASING FIRE EXIT DEVICES

Simple in construction; unexcelled in workmanship; strong to withstand the severest handling; failure to operate is impossible Thousands of these devices in use on schools, churches theatres, auditoriums, factories, department stores, etc. Any hardware dealer can furnish them.

VONNEGUT HARDWARE CO.
General Distributors
Indianapolis, Ind.

Ask for catalogue No. 10D.

See Sweet's catalogue, pages 794 and 795

SAFE EXIT IS A UNIVERSAL DEMAND

---

PHONE: 7130 GRAMERCY

AT YOUR SERVICE

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

(INCORPORATED)

Salesroom and Supply Dept., 18th Floor

71 West 23d Street : : : New York

EVERYTHING for the Moving Picture Theatre from the Ticket Office to the Operating Room

SOLDIERS DRILLING IN TURKESTAN (Nov. 23).—The building of a pontoon bridge is shown, and the construction of a bridge on piles is shown in interesting scenes—camels being used to carry the necessary material. After the bridges are finished hundreds of troops are seen crossing them.

One of the most interesting parts of this film is the explosion of dynamite cartridges under water. The soldiers are shown placing them in position and then rapidly retreating. One after another tremendous explosions take place, and throw the water into the air in a tremendous geyser, in which is intermingled smoke and debris.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 90 (Nov. 26).—Marshall in Arizona.—The Vice-President visits Sacaton Reservation with Governor Hunt, to discuss Mexican policy.

On the Rio Grande.—Mimic warfare and field service occupy Uncle Sam's troops along the border.

Races on the Seine.—International motorboat races held at Paris, France.

Fire Consumes Haymarket.—Firemen risk lives in spectacular blaze when grain sheds burn, Williamsburg, New York.

Old — Football — New.—Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Berkeley, California, witness wide contrasts in football. Chicago 13—Minnesota 7. New Zealand 51—All America 3.

England's New Battleship. — Oil-burning ship "Arethusa" launched at Chatham, to make 29 knots.

The Weekly Fashion. — The season's smartest afternoon frocks are of silk and chiffon. (By courtesy of The Ladies' Home Journal.)

Dynamiting a Mountain.—Twenty tons of dynamite exploded to expose limestone deposits at McAfee, N. J.

New Mile Record.—James Powers, of Boston, runs mile in 4 minutes, 18⅘ seconds at San Francisco, Cal.

Samuel Gompers Opens Labor Convention.—2,000,000 members represented when Governor Lister welcomes A. F. L. president at Seattle, Wash.

Topical Cartoons by the World-Famous Cartoonist—Hy. Mayer.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

THANHOUSER.

THE HENPECKED HOD CARRIER (Nov. 30).—Mr. Henpeck was a hod carrier who could always be depended upon to put in his regular hours each day. His wife encouraged him to keep on working, but she herself spent most of her time looking up bargains and attending the meetings of various societies in which she was interested.

One day Mrs. Henpeck had a quarrel with the janitor and decided to move. She found a "perfectly darling flat" in another street, and that evening told her long-suffering husband that the following day he would have to stay home and pack. He obeyed because there was nothing else for him to do, and in the morning had several hours hard work arranging their belongings for shipment to the new house, while his wife gaily wandered out to attend a bargain sale. Mr. Henpeck moved into the new house all right, and found that the paperhangers had gone on a strike; so in addition to his regular work of setting things to rights he was compelled to paper the house. It was a good hard day's work he had and he was just resting up at night when his wife appeared, told him that he had made a mistake and had moved into the wrong flat, and that it was absolutely necessary that they get into the right apartment before dawn. It was tough on Mr. Henpeck, but then, of course, he should not have made the mistake.

THE PROBLEM LOVE SOLVED (Dec. 2).—A bookkeeper in the employ of a large manufacturing concern lived far beyond his means. He had evil associates and when his debts became very heavy he determined to pay them at the expense of a fellow worker, the cashier for the same concern.

One morning as the young cashier reached the office he received a telephone call, purporting to be from the head of the firm, instructing him to leave at once for a western city. He was told to take a certain envelope from the safe and deliver it to the firm's representative there. The young man opened the safe, took the envelope and hurried to his home, where he packed his valise and set out for the station. When he started to pass through the train gates he was seized by detectives and charged with robbing his employer. He was searched and the envelope was found to obtain part of the stolen funds. No one believed his story about the telephone call except the girl to whom he was engaged. The young woman was a detective on the New York police force. She determined to prove the cashier's innocence and secured a position as stenographer with her sweetheart's firm The bookkeeper aroused her suspicions. She watched him closely, and when he secretly met a shady character noted for his ability as a safe expert, the girl was sure that she was on the right track. She installed a dictagraph in an adjoining office and one evening when the bookkeeper was working late at the office he was confronted by the safe expert, to whom the girl had sent an anonymous letter intimating that the bookkeeper contemplated fleeing from town. In the quarrel which ensued the full details of the plot of which the cashier had been a victim was revealed. The bookkeeper and his accomplice were sent to prison, while the cashier's employer, repentant at having misjudged him, soon made him manager of his business and the girl detective resigned from the department to devote her life to keeping her eye on just one man.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN (Dec. 5).—The old broker was very wealthy, but he was very old and very homely. In his younger days he had been too mean and stingy to marry, and as the years passed he did not see any reason for giving up his liberty. Finally the time came when he fell in love with his stenographer. She was young and pretty, but they did not have one taste in common and had they married their life would undoubtedly have been decidedly unhappy. Just the same, the broker proposed and was mighty surprised when the girl rejected him. She did not tell him who his favorite rival was, but he speedily learned that the lucky man was one of his own clerks, a handsome chap drawing an extremely small salary.

The broker at first planned all sorts of things, such as discharging the young couple or intimidating them in some manner, and was still brooding over revenge that evening when he fell asleep at his own handsome fireplace. Naturally he dreamed of what he would like to do, and in his dreams he cleverly rid himself of his rival by proving him guilty of burglary; then there was no bar to his marriage with the girl, especially after (in his dreams) the young convict had been shot down while trying to escape from prison. If the dream had stopped there, perhaps the old broker would have tried something of that kind, for he was a man absolutely without conscience. Maybe a good angel took a hand in the development of the dream the broker imagined that after he had proposed to the girl, the spirit of the dead convict came between them, haunted him in a most unpleasant way, and finally choked him so vigorously that he was glad to wake up. Now although the broker was old and inclined to be foolish in some matters, he had lots of sense otherwise. He took the dream as a warning of what might have been, and quickly decided that no woman in the world was worth such torments as he had just gone through, so he called the young couple into his office, raised the bridegroom's pay, and bade them marry and be happy for ever afterwards.

PRINCESS.

THE LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER (Dec. 5).—Do you believe in love at first sight? Well, Boyd Marshall, who was a bachelor in comfortable quarters and circumstances, would have told you that it was impossible until it happened to him, and then it was only a photograph of the girl which he received through the mail. The photo should have gone to the girl's brother-in-law, but on account of a similarity in names, was delivered, through the mischievous machination of Dan Cupid, into the hands of the man who was to come to be the only man in the world for the girl. She was on her way to school by way of New York and expected her brother-in-law to show her some of the showplaces of the great city before she went on to put the finishing touches to her education. Under the circumstances, can you blame Boyd for assuming the role of brother-in-law and piloting a charming companion about the city? And then when he was compelled to confess and ask forgiveness and took the girl to the brother-in-law's house, and found him out, how do you suppose he avoided the horns of the dilemma? Why the only logical way out was "The Little Church Around the Corner."

MAJESTIC.

THE HENDRICK'S DIVORCE (Nov. 30).—George Hendricks, a wealthy young man, neglects his wife and child, and devotes his time to gay life. He meets Elinore White, a young society woman, and they agree to meet at a masquerade ball given by Mrs. Sparks. Mrs. Hendricks accidentally learns of the meeting, and decides to witness it. Dressing in a Spanish costume similar to that worn by Elinore, she attends the ball and jealously watches her rival.

Elinore has an admirer, Col. Gray, and the latter, knowing the costume that she is to wear, mistakes Mrs. Hendricks for Elinore, and kisses her. Hendricks comes upon the scene, believes that his wife is unfaithful to him and announces his determination to seek a divorce. Mrs. Hendricks, knowing of her husband's attentions to Miss White, adopts a similar course. The case comes to trial, husband and wife both desirous of freedom. Their little daughter, neglected by both parents since their separation, is taken dangerously ill. The nurse forces her way into the court room and tells the mother that the child is not expected to live. Terror stricken, she leaves the court room and hastens to her child's bedside followed by her husband. The suffering of the little girl brings the parents together and they resolve to forget their differences and devote their lives in future to their child.

THE PADRE'S SACRIFICE (Dec. 2).—Father Curry, the kindly old pastor of a little country church, was believed by the members of his congregation, all of them poor hard-working people. The priest was poor, also, but his home was always open to the needy, and when a human being in distress came to the little parsonage for aid, it was cheerfully given. The old priest's one ambition was that some day he could replace the little organ which had done service in the church for many years with a splendid new instrument, which would render wonderful musical tributes to the Lord. The congregation was poor, and the priest never had any money himself, for his little salary was soon expended upon the parsonage and the wayfarers who constantly appealed to him for help.

The family who stood the highest in the priest's esteem was that of Rafael, a young laborer. Rafael was a faithful attendant at the church with his wife, Maria, and their little son, Tony. He was a hard-working man and a devoted husband and father. Misfortune often comes to those who least deserve it, and soon it visited Rafael. His employer discharged him, he failed to get another situation, and, worst of all, his wife's sight began to fail her. "Only the great doctor in the city can save her, Rafael," the village physician said, sadly, "and it will take much money." Rafael, with a sinking heart, realized the truth of these words. He bought luxuries for his wife and did what he could, but her condition grew worse. The landlord, angry at Rafael's failure to pay his rent, threatened him with eviction. Then the afflicted man, half mad with desperation, cried out that there was no God, for if He really existed he would not let his innocent wife and child suffer. The priest, horrified, heard this terrible utterance, but could do nothing to aid him, as he was nearly as poor as Rafael himself. What little money he had he gladly gave to the family, but the amount that would restore Maria's sight could not be raised.

The good priest prayed for aid for the little family and it came in a most unexpected way. A letter came in the mail from a rich family who had visited the village many months before, enclosing a check to be devoted to his church or to any worthy purpose he might see fit. The priest thought of the organ, of the glorious music it would render, and his heart was filled with joy. Then he thought of Maria, who might never see again, and their little son, Tony. Trained to think of his flock, to place their interests above all else, he made one of his greatest sacrifices when he decided to devote the money to Rafael and his family. The little home was saved, Maria went to the city, where her sight was restored to her, and Rafael, his faith restored, humbly asked forgiveness for his blasphemous utterance. The little old organ still furnished discordant music for the worshipers in the village church, and the priest often thinks of the magnificent organ which might have taken its place, but a glance at the happy faces of the little family is payment enough for his sacrifice.

THE HELPING HAND (Dec. 6).—Embittered by his wife's death, caused by a fever she had contracted while working in the slums, Edmund Lortimer is opposed to all charity. When Ethel, his only daughter, marries the man she loves, Lortimer casts her out. A few years later, Ethel's husband dies and Ethel appeals to her father for aid. She sends her father a picture of herself and little baby girl, whom she has named Jessie. Lortimer refuses to aid her, and Ethel in despair, leaves the baby on the doorstep of an orphan home. Remorse comes to Lortimer when he reads an account in the newspaper that his daughter's body had been found in the river, and although he searches diligently, he cannot find her. All he has to remind him of his lost daughter is a picture of Ethel and her child.

At the Orphan's home Jessie has been cared for by Ellen, a child a few years older. Lortimer's health has declined, and at his physician's advice he consents to adopt a child. The doctor goes to the Orphan's home, where Ellen and Jessie are brought out for his inspection. He finally decides upon Ellen. During the days that follow, Ellen does not forget Jessie. Knowing Lortimer's objections against charity, she secretly sends Jessie to school. At college they both scrimp along on Jessie's allowance. Trouble comes when they find that Jessie must have a delicate operation performed on her eyes. Ellen sells her furs and jewels to procure the necessary funds. Later, Ellen secretes Jessie in her own room at Lortimer's house. A prying servant tells Lortimer of the presence of "the object of charity" in Ellen's room. Lortimer is about to order Jessie from the house, when he discovers that she is his granddaughter. When he hears the story of the two girls his faith in charity is restored.

AMERICAN.

TRAPPED IN A FOREST FIRE (Dec. 8).—Robert Newton, a young business man, and his mother give a house party at his shooting lodge in the Adirondack Mountains. Among the invited guests are Vera Stanton, with whom Robert is in love, and Inez Tremain, who in her turn, loves Robert. To complicate matters, Inez is loved by Tom Nevins, a friend of Robert. Nevin proposes to Inez and is refused laughingly. While sitting on the veranda later on, Inez sees Robert and Vera start for a walk and follows them, over-

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY
AND
BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE.

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
ESTABLISHED 1832

ELECTRA

CARBONS

Brilliant white light with steady, noiseless burning, has been the distinguishing quality that has made

"ELECTRA" Pink Label Carbons

the choice of well-informed operators. Their use insures a perfect arc, requiring least adjustment.

PINK ELECTRA LABEL

TRADE MARK

Hugo Reisinger, 11 Broadway, New York

hearing Robert propose, and being rejected, because he was too practical.

Trying then to win Robert by fair means, and failing because of his thoughts of Vera, Inez decides to remove Vera from his life, and to this end sends for Dick Graham, an adventurer friend of hers, to come and camp near them, thinking, because of his dashing ways and Vera's romantic turn of mind, he can win her. Graham is agreeable, as Vera is rich and he is looking for money. Seven days later he arrives and camps near the lodge Inez then takes Vera walking, and steers her to Graham's camp. Appearing surprised at seeing an old friend she introduces Vera, whispering to Dick in the meantime, that this is the girl. Graham makes the girls comfortable and they spend the afternoon.

Some time later Robert, who has been hunting, happens upon the scene and being introduced to Graham invites him to call. Graham does so one evening and progresses far enough in his suit to arrange a meeting with Vera alone. Inez, in the meantime, is making her advances to Robert and to all outward appearances her plan is working. On the evening of his engagement with Vera, while waiting until it is time to meet her, Graham passes the time away smoking, and as he leaves his camp for the meeting place, throws his half smoked cigarette in the dry leaves. Some time later as he is waiting for her, he smells smoke and sees the fire caused by his carelessness. Becoming panic stricken he rushes for the shooting lodge, leaving Vera to her fate. In the meantime all is chaos at the lodge. Graham has alarmed everyone, the cars come on and loaded to capacity start for safety, Graham and Inez in the first car.

Robert misses Vera; no one knows where she is but Graham, and he is too big a coward to tell. Failing to find her in the house, Robert, James Stauton, Vera's brother, and his friend, Tom Nevins, start out to find her, first knocking down the chauffeur of one car for trying to leave. Vera now is hemmed in by fire; every way she turns she is confronted by flames, and becoming exhausted faints away. The fire is raging on every side, great trees burning in a few seconds. But the boys after several narrow escapes, find her and in the last remaining car, carry her to safety.

Several months later Nevins, who has become interested in a girl who really loves him, Salle Weston, proposes and is accepted. Robert and Vera then one night after the opera have a little love scene and everything ends happily.

HIS FIRST CASE (Dec. 11).—Don McDonald, a young law graduate who lacks nothing but clients, looks ahead with more than professional interest to the securing of some business, since the father of his sweetheart, Clara Johnson, has decreed that the young folks shall not marry until Don wins his first case in court. How great his sense of responsibility, therefore, when it comes to pass that his very first case is the defense of Johnson himself against a charge of murder.

Johnson's trouble comes about through his playing poker all night with a couple of sharpers. At sunrise, fleeced of all his money and even his watch, he falls asleep in his chair. In a quarrel over a division of the spoils, one of the crooks shoots and kills the other. He throws the blame upon Johnson, and at the latter's trial swears Johnson did the deed to get even for the loss of his money. By a clever ruse, however, Don tears his story to pieces, frees Johnson, and according to the latter's word, gets the girl.

ARMED INTERVENTION (Dec. 13).—Bob, a cowboy, is noted for proposing to every new girl at the first meeting. When Betty comes to visit at the ranch the boys decide to at least delay the matter in her case, so Bob is locked up in the granary. He escapes, however, and proposes, and Betty accepts in fun Later, when Bob and Betty fall in love, they decide it is too serious a matter to be treated as a joke and release each other—then both are unhappy. Bob knows he couldn't support a wife even if Betty would have him.

When Tom Fischer and Betty's cousin, Dora, learn of the situation, they conspire to force matters with the aid of the other boys. Bob hears he has fallen heir to $50,000 just before the boys appear and compel him, at the point of a revolver, to confess his love for Betty, also to don a dress suit he possesses. Dora gets Betty to admit her love for Bob, also. Bob and Betty are confronted by a minister who has been secured. They hurriedly agree to let matters take their course—then Bob tells his good fortune to the astonishment of everyone. Tom and Dora decide to get married at the same time, as the minister is at hand.

KOMIC.

HOW HE WON (Dec. 4).—Hy and Cy, two country bumpkins, are rivals for the hand of Sue Higgins, whose father does not approve of their attentions. They both try to outdo each other to win Sue's affection. While they are wasting valuable time, Tom Tracey, a fine looking city chap, arrives in the village, and, meeting Sue one day on her way from the store with a heavily laden basket, offers his services. The chance acquaintance ripens into love, but his two rivals must be gotten rid of. Tom arranges for them to fight a duel for the hand of Sue. At first they object, but when Tom insists, and drags them off to the store to purchase the pistols, there is no other way out of it Tom loads the pistols with blank cartridges unknown to Hy and Cy. They fight the duel with no deadly results, but badly frightened, they take refuge behind a tree. Old man Higgins sees them, and mistaking them for hoboes, treats them to a load of shot and rock salt. While bemoaning their discomfort they have insult added to injury, by seeing Tom, the city fellow, become the accepted suitor of the girl they have been fighting for.

THE ACTOR BOOK AGENT (Dec. 4).—William Jones, an actor, being out of work and his room rent due, becomes desperate While walking along the street he sees a sign, "Book Agent Wanted." He applies, and is engaged. His first customer is a braker named John Dobson. This is supposed to be a sure sale. Jones calls upon Dobson and is promptly ejected. He disguises himself, and appears before Dobson in various characters, and at last persuades Dobson to buy a copy of the book, entitled "Hours at Home." Upon Dobson's returning home, he finds that his wife and daughter have also purchased the same book. Enraged, he nearly has a fit and to give him air they open the window, when, to their surprise, they see the agent-actor walking up the street. They call to a lady friend who happens to pass, and ask her to overtake the man and tell him that Dobson wants him. She overtakes the actor-agent, and he shrewdly tells her that he cannot return to see Dobson, as he has a train to catch, but that he is fully aware of what Mr. Dobson wants. It is the book. She says she will take it to him and gives the actor the money, and they separate. Upon her returning to the Dobson home with the book and explaining, Dobson falls into a fit and becomes so violent that he eats the books, covers and all.

RELIANCE.

TONY'S SACRIFICE (Dec. 1).—Tony, an Italian coal dealer, lives in the basement of an apartment house. Directly over him lives the Cross family. Mr. Cross is forever reading while Mrs. Cross is a very busy woman. Consequently, their little daughter, May, is left almost entirely to the care of Mary, the maid of all work, who is sometimes very busily engaged with a policeman. Mary takes her little charge out for a walk and while she is talking to her friend, the policeman, little May follows an organ grinder, Pedro and his wife. When they have passed out of sight of Mary and the policeman, Pedro attempts to take May's little purse. Tony comes along and interferes. Pedro stabs Tony, but the knife breaks. It has come in contact with Tony's money bag, which is about his waist. Tony brings May to her father and then goes to his own rooms.

Pedro returns to his shack and tells his confederates how Tony's money bag broke his knife. They plan to get the money. Tony, suspecting that they will attempt to take his money, puts the bag in the kettle. Pedro and his two pals enter Tony's apartment after he has gone out to serve a customer. They can find nothing and conceal themselves to await his return. Mary is entertaining the policeman in the kitchen and little May, having nothing else to do, decides to visit Tony. Tony has now returned and the two Italians jump on his back and knock him to the floor. Pedro remains outside to watch. Tony refuses to tell where the money is. At this point May enters. The Italians see that Tony is fearful for her safety and use her as a means of making Tony tell where his bag of silver is secreted. Tony is about to tell when Mary and the policeman, who have been attracted by the commotion, break into the room. Tony's money is saved and the thieves get their just deserts.

A WOMAN OF SIN (Dec. 3).—Madge, a woman of sin, occupies the first floor of a tenement. Jack Holt, his wife, Jane, and their small daughter, Ida, occupy rooms in the garret. Jack is a drunkard, and his wife is an invalid. The wife carefully hoards what little money she has for the rent. Jack gets drunk and in his irresponsible moments takes the money the wife has so carefully saved. He goes to the saloon to spend it with the boys. His wife, discovering the loss, hurries after him, but at the saloon Jack repulses her and tells her he is boss and will do as he likes. She goes home, only to find that Ida has wandered downstairs to the room of Madge. Jane indignantly snatches her child away from the woman's caresses—she is poor, but she is honest. She takes the child upstairs. A policeman arrives and tells her that her husband was shot in a brawl. She hastily goes to the saloon, but the excitement is too much for her, and she drops dead beside her husband's body. Ida being left alone, thinks she will go to see the nice lady downstairs, but Madge has gone out with one of her admirers. Ida wanders on the streets. She is repulsed by the society ladies, and at last takes refuge on the steps of a parsonage, but the parson is shocked to find such a ragged urchin sitting on his doorstep and hastily orders her away. Tired out, Ida sits on the curb. Madge, returning from the theater in an automobile, sees her and getting out takes her home with her. She refuses further attention from her admirers and enters the house with Ida. She searches for the child's parents, and not finding them, plays mother to the little waif. Ida's prayers affect her deeply and when two admirers call, she tells them she is going to live straight in the future for the kiddie's sake.

FOR ANOTHER'S CRIME (2 parts—Dec. 6).—Jim Bates, a factory employee, is loved by all who know him. On Saturday, after having received his pay envelope, he returns to his wife and his daughter, Dora. After dinner, he goes out for a stroll, and being tired, sits down on a park bench. He is approached by another man, Tom Morrow, who asks him for a match. They look at each other quizzically, for there is a marked resemblance between the two. Tom thanks Jim for the match and then leaves. Jim falls asleep. Tom returns to his rooms and is met by Flo Harley, a woman companion, who asks him for money. He sneeringly tells her he is tired of supporting her and reminds her that she is not his wife.

In an apartment across the court from Jim Bates' home lives an old curio collector, Mr. Witherstone, who has decided to dispose of his collection of coins. He advertises that he invites offers on his coins, the metal value of which is $1,000. Tom Morrow, seeing the ad, resolves to get the coins. Flo, observing that he is very interested in the ad, wants to see it, but, not wanting her to know of his plans, Tom snatches the paper from her and goes out, locking the door after him. She puts the pieces of paper together and is thus enabled to read the ad.

Mrs. Bates discovers that she has no coffee and goes out for it, leaving Dora in charge of the house. Dora is standing at the window, when she sees a man climbing the fire-escape opposite to their apartment. She is horrified, as she thinks it is her father. It is Tom Morrow. He enters old Witherstone's house through the window, and after having shot Witherstone, leaves the house with the bag of coins. Passing through a park he sees Jim Bates, and decides to destroy all evidence of his crime. He unlocks the satchel, takes out the bag of money, putting in its place his revolver, and "jimmy" and again locking the bag, puts the key in his pocket and places the bag on the bench beside Jim. Jim awakens, looks around, and as he can find no owner for the satchel, takes it home with him. On entering his house, Dora refuses to go near him and will not explain her reason for acting so strangely.

The death of old Witherstone is discovered by an old servant, who immediately gives the alarm. Policemen and detectives arrive and proceed to examine the place. One detective calls the attention of the other to the position of the apartment opposite. They go over to Bates' rooms and there find the satchel with Witherstone's initials on it. They ask Jim to account for it. He tells his story, but when they open the bag and find its contents, they doubt him. He is accused of the crime, and although he protests his innocence, is arrested.

Morrow returns to his room, where he is met by Flo, who jeers at him and, upon his showing her the coins, she hands him the advertisement and insists upon connecting the two. At last Morrow strikes her an she swears to be avenged.

At Jim's trial Dora is called to testify, but refuses to open her mouth. Jim is convicted, and sentenced to the chair. Flo, who has just learned of the trial, recognizes the connection between Jim's resemblance to Morrow, and Morrow's evident wealth at the present time. Little by little, she has been bettering herself, a change, no doubt, brought about through her acquaintance with Dic, the lawyer's clerk, and she has left Morrow entirely. She goes to the lawyer and sends her card to him, having first written on it "I have evidence that will save Jim Bates." She is admitted into the lawyer's office, and there shows him a picture of Morrow, which brings about his arrest and the freedom of Bates.

DOMINO.

THE FILLY (2 parts—Dec. 4).—Squire Verner, owner of the fastest horses in Kincraig County, is much opposed to his daughter, Dolly, receiving attentions from Dan Riley, son of the Widow Riley, on whose house he has a mortgage. The squire has two horses. He entered the best in the Donnybrook Steeplechase, and feels that he will win the five hundred pounds offered as a prize. The squire, angered by the continued attentions of Dan to Dolly, threatens to foreclose the mortgage and force Dan to go to America. Dolly and Dan, who are compelled to meet clandestinely, conceive a plan to beat father. Dolly, who is the only one who can do anything with Satan, the squire's best bet, takes the horse out and teaches him to walk lame. The squire is compelled to leave the horse behind, fearing he would not be able to go in the race. The day of the big steeplechase arrives and a "dark horse" is entered by Danny Riley, with a clever little jockey. Danny easily wins the prize. The old squire sends a note to Dan, offering him two thousand pounds for his horse if he can get the jockey to ride him. Dan calls on the squire, gives him a bill of sale for the horse, and tells him the jockey will call on him later. The surprise of the squire can be imagined when Dolly calls on him and tells him that she was the jockey. Another surprise comes to him when his stable boy calls him to come to the stable and see what peculiar spots the new horse has. Dolly neglected to use fast dye and Satan loses his title as Masquerader. Realizing

KINEMACOLOR MACHINES

(Which also Project Perfect Black and White Pictures)

ARE NOW SOLD

ENGLISH-KINEMACOLOR
KINEMACOLOR-SIMPLEX

SERVICE, TWENTY DOLLARS UPWARDS

INQUIRE NEAREST OFFICE

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

LOUISVILLE, KY.
Majestic Theatre Bldg.

---

DON'T BE HASTY

State Right Buyers in Purchasing

Mexican War Pictures

Until You Read Our Announcement Next Week

We Have The Only Pictures Showing Actual Warfare and Real Fighting of the Present Rebellion

Now Playing the Principal Cities and Theatres at $1.00 Prices

AMERICA'S FEATURE FILM CO., Inc. NEW YORK
CHICAGO

that he has been outdone by Danny and Dolly, the squire tells Danny that he's a great painter, but if he ever gives his filly cause for regret, he'll paint his eye a fast color.

BRONCHO.

THE BURIED PAST (2 parts—Dec. 3).—Jim Gross is a drunkard and neglects his wife, Myrtle and the baby. One night he comes home intoxicated and strikes Myrtle, who takes the baby and leaves. She finds a purse containing a ticket for Alaska; also some money, which has been lost by a young chap, Tom Winters. Myrtle makes use of the ticket and later we find her in an Alaskan village, where she obtains employment in a restaurant and is held in high regard by the miners. Winters and his friend Bob also come to the town, and Tom becomes very ill with fever and Myrtle is persuaded to nurse him. They fall in love and without telling him her past she marries him and they are very happy.

In the meantime, Jim has been arrested for drunkenness and is serving a sentence. Upon his release he visits his mother-in-law's home and intercepts a letter from Myrtle, which tells of her marriage to Tom. Jim goes to Alaska and hunts up Myrtle and tells her that she must leave with him or he will expose her. Much terrified she consents and he is helping her pack up when Tom, who has been informed that a stranger has been hanging around his home, comes upon the scene and shoots through the door, which Jim has locked, and kills Jim. So Myrtle's past remains buried.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 48 (Nov. 24).—Baby Show in Michigan.—A splendid collection of youngsters shown at Kalamazoo.

Santos Dumont Honored.—First aviator present at dedication of his own monument.

Shooting the Mail Through Tubes.—An experimental plant at Paterson, N. J., latest devised scheme for rapid mail transit.

Argentine President Attends a Fair.—Chief executive of South American Republic opens a big country exposition.

Macaroni Factory Burns.—Long Island City plant quickly destroyed by fire.

100 Years After Leipzig.—Germany celebrates anniversary of famous battle.

San Francisco Football Mad.—U. of C. and Stanford teams meet on Stanford field.

Funeral of the Zeppelin Victims.—28 German officers killed in balloon explosion buried in Berlin.

Off to the Border.—15th Regiment, U. S. Cavalry, leaves Fort Myer, Va., for Fort Bliss, Texas.

French Wreck Costs 39 Lives.—Military trains in collision, with appalling loss.

A 1,000 Ton Blast.—Bethlehem Iron Works shaves off side of a mountain at McAfee, N. J.

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

GAUMONT.

OSCAR THE HERMIT (Dec. 4).—Getting tired of Parisian life, Oscar becomes a hermit. He is discovered accidentally in his cove by some motoring friends, who are now able to account for his absence from familiar haunts. In spite of Oscar's protests the chauffeur was despatched to the nearest inn for a good square meal and plenty of champagne. At this alfresco meal they all ate and drank well. Oscar was careful not to overdo it and the lady who sat next to him took the wine sparingly. The result was that while the others slept soundly, Oscar and his companion commandered the car and returned to Paris, leaving the others with the donkey.

THE LIVING DOLL (Dec. 2).—Jack Tarrant, a doll-maker, has the misfortune to lose his daughter. He dresses up one of his dolls in the clothes in which his daughter was last arrayed and derives some consolation in regarding his doll preparatory to retiring every night. His little son, Harry, strikes up a friendship with a little flower girl and takes her home to see his father's dolls. She accidentally breaks the huge doll, and hearing his father coming, the boy conceives the idea of dressing the little girl in the doll's clothes and putting her to stand in the box. The doll-maker comes in and looks at the doll. An undefinable change seems to have occurred, and when the child walks out from the box, the doll-maker starts back in fear. When he learns what has happened, he lifts his arm in anger, but the children's appeal softens his wrath, and he welcomes her to his home as a child sent by Providence in place of the little girl who died.

FALSE NEWS (2 parts).—Two reporters, Miss Walker and Jack Morgan, receive exclusive information of the death of a famous financier. They are asked not to divulge the secret for three days and promise. Morgan, however, sees a chance of making a profit and suggests to Miss Walker that any financier of standing would pay handsomely for the information. The girl, however, refuses to break her promise and the two come into conflict, which ends in the death of Morgan. Miss Walker then hears that the news of the millionaire's death is false. He had been struck with a heart seizure that had kept him unconscious for several hours.

LUX.

BILL AND THE MISSUS (Nov. 28).—Bill leaves his charming wife and goes for a stroll on the promenade. He meets a friend who invites him to go for a ride in his car and also introduces him to a charming lady. Bill's missus becomes very jealous and disguises herself as a man. When Bill is confronted later in the day by an enraged gentleman he discreetly takes to his heels, thinking that he has encountered a raving lunatic. The adventures of Bill and the missus are highly amusing.

HOW BOB GOT MARRIED (Nov. 28).—Bob, the chiropodist, falls in love with the daughter of one of his clients and his affection is reciprocated. Mrs. Grabitall happens to read in the paper that Bob is to come into a large fortune. As Bob is ignorant of the fact, Mr. and Mrs. Grabitall get Bob to sign a paper promising to give them half of what he will inherit if they will give him their daughter's hand. As Bob knows his relatives much better than they are known to Mr. Grabitall and his good wife, he signs the paper and considers that he has made a good bargain. This proves to be correct, as is disclosed in the film, to the consternation of Mr. and Mrs. Grabitall, who find that half of his fortune amounts to about a hundred dollars.

FEATURE FILM STORIES

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORPORATION.

THE HEART OF A POLICE OFFICER (Feature—4 parts).—Frank Canti, a professional hunter, has had a very bad season. Winter is approaching, and with an old father and two sick children on his hands, he has no money to buy food or medicine. The proprietor of the only hotel in the village, meets him, and tells him that he must have a couple of wild ducks for a banquet, and offers him a large stipend for securing them for him. Canti realizes that the only place to get them is on the preserves, closed to the layman, and to get them he would have to trespass. He is sorely tempted, but refuses. He returns home and is confronted by the doctor, who insists that the child receive the medicine prescribed, so he returns to the proprietor of the hotel and accepts an advance from him, the balance to be paid on the delivery of the ducks. He goes to the Count's grounds, shoots a duck, and is immediately caught by the keeper of the grounds, who is in love with his wife. He is hailed to the police court, where the keeper swears to a charge of trespassing against him. The penalty for the offense is 300 francs, or one month in jail. Police Officer Moretti's term of three years is practically over. During this time he has saved 300 francs, which he has placed in an envelope, and intends using same as a wedding gift to his bride. The hunter's wife calls on him for advice, he having a reputation for big-heartedness, but he advises her that nothing can be done, and takes her to the lieutenant, thinking possibly that he might see a way out of the dilemma, but, instead, the lieutenant confirms what he has already said. He, too, is extremely warm-hearted and generous, and as soon as the hunter's wife departs, gives the policeman five francs to take to her. The hunter is allowed three days in which to decide whether he must serve his term in prison. The time having expired and the fine not paid, Moretti is given a warrant for the hunter's arrest. He goes to the house, and the children, on seeing him, embrace and kiss him. Touched by this show of affection, he hesitates about making the arrest. In the meantime, the lieutenant decides to go to the house himself to see if the policeman is carrying out his orders. As he approaches, Moretti realizes that he cannot carry out his duty, and pulling out his savings, hands it to the lieutenant in the envelope, and tells him that the hunter has decided to pay the fine. Moretti, having sent for his mother and fiancée, returns to the police headquarters and finds them awaiting his arrival. The hardest task of all is now in front of him—that of telling his beloved ones that he cannot go on with the marriage, as he has lost his savings. In the meantime, the lieutenant opens the envelope that has been given to him by Moretti and notices the inscription, "For My Wedding," written on it. The truth of the situation dawns upon him, and out of his own savings takes 300 francs, places it in another envelope, and writes the inscription, "The Hunter's Fine" on it. He goes into the room where Moretti, his fiancée and mother are, drops the original envelope on the floor and calls Moretti's attention to it. Moretti picks it up and at once realizes the generosity of his superior officer. The last scene shows everybody reunited.

IN THE FANGS OF JEALOUSY (2 parts—Feature).—In front of the mansion of Pierre Darcier, a dramatic author, a young woman, giving the name of Gilberte Daubier, has met with an accident, and when they are informed of it, orders are given that she be carried in. Here she remains until she is completely recovered and is overwhelmed with attention and the friendship of the household. While convalescing, she and Pierre take long walks in the country, with a result that Mrs. Darcier resents the intimacy which has grown up between the two, and when she sees the young woman offering a flower to her husband, she prays for her departure from the mansion. Shortly after this episode, Gilberte leaves, but the image of the woman still remains with Pierre. While looking over some illustrated papers, he sees on the front page of a theatrical paper, the photograph of she who was their guest, under the name of Therese Santenil, who has just made a great success of a play at the Theater des Vairetes Parisiennes. Desirous of meeting her again, and, also, perhaps, in the hope of having a play which he has written presented, he decides to go to Paris and invoke her aid. She promises to do all she can in his behalf, and introduces him to the manager, who reads his play and accepts it. The intimacy forcibly created between the author and Therese arouses the jealousy of Rene Tellier, the leading man of the company. While Pierre is working with Therese in the artist's room, they are surprised by Tellier, who concludes that the author is making love to her, and fired by jealousy, does not hesitate to send an anonymous letter to Mrs. Darcier, informing her of her husband's infidelity. On receiving the letter she comes to Paris and her husband, agreeably surprised, presents her to the manager all the more readily that his conscience is clear, there existing between Therese and himself only a sincere friendship. But Mrs. Darcier, recognizing Therese Santenil as Gilberte Daubier, resolves to put an end to the supposed infatuation for all times and replaces an unloaded pistol for a loaded one. Therese is dangerously wounded. Mrs. Darcier then acknowledges that she had changed the pistols and explains her reason. A dramatic scene follows, in which the clouds of suspicion and doubt are lifted, and happiness restored to all.

RAMO.

THE FANGS OF HATE (Feature—3 parts).—Tom Randolph, on the day of his engagement to Agnes Thorne, a beautiful Southern girl, stops his horse on the road near a gypsy camp, long enough to interfere with The Wolf, king of the gypsies, who is beating his daughter, Cynthia. Tom rides on to the Thorne mansion, little suspecting that he is being followed by a gypsy spy sent by The Wolf. While he is there a gypsy boy (not the spy), is caught by Major Thorne, poaching on his estate, and Tom comes to the boy's rescue in time to save him from a beating. That night The Wolf tries to waylay Tom and kill him, but Cynthia saves Tom by cutting the rope which the gypsies have tied across the road to throw Tom from his horse. Sometime later, at the engagement party given by Major Thorne in honor of his sister's engagement to Tom, Cynthia warns Tom of his danger from her father. Thorne partly overhears, and suspects an affair between his prospective brother-in-law and the gypsy. Thinking an insult has been placed on his family, he breaks the engagement, slaps Tom's face, and challenges him to a duel. The next morning during the duel Tom fires in the air, rather than kill the brother of the girl he loves, but Pedro, the gypsy boy, whom Tom has saved from a beating, hides near the spot, shoots from the underbrush, killing Thorne, the shots being simultaneous. Tom sees his opponent fall and is unable to account for it. Before he dies, Thorne accuses Tom of shooting him in the back, and Tom is arrested and accused of the murder. At the trial, when the case is going on against Tom, Pedro, in the gypsies' camp, basked by his guilty conscience, confesses to his sister that he killed Thorne. Cynthia overhears his confession, and drags him to court. The prosecuting attorney gets a confession from the frightened boy. Meanwhile Bess, the boy's sister, seeing affairs against her brother, hurries to the gypsy camp, gallops back with a horse that she leads under the court room window, rushes into the courtroom, throws her arms around the boy, whispers into his ear, quickly turns, engages the judge's attention, when suddenly the boy leaps to the jury rail, through the closed window below. Pandemonium reigns, the sheriff rushes to the window in time to see the boy disappear in the distance. Tom is acquitted and Agnes comes to his arms, while Cynthia, the martyr, goes back to her tribe, to bear the scorn of her own people for loving above her station.

TRUE FEATURES.

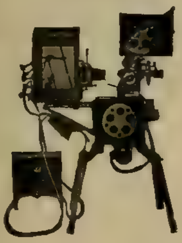
THE LOTUS DANCER (Feature Subject—3 parts).—The first scenes take us to a temple beside the shores of a sacred river where virgins, clad in white, directed by solemn gray-bearded priests, go through the ritual of the worship of the lotus flower. While the sweet rites of worship are being observed in the temple, a troop of English soldiers, led by Sir Percy Grenville, their commander, approaches the temple. The English party is in pursuit of native hostiles, who have taken a trail leading to the temple. The worship is rudely interrupted by the coming of the English soldiers. Their commander, attracted by a glittering sacred jewel in the head of Buddha, ignores the protests of the priestess and wails of the priest, tears the precious stone from the sockets

POWERS



SIMPLEX

The Public Go Where They See the Best

You can't show the best pictures unless your machine is up-to-date. When you purchase from us you are not confined to any one Make. We have them all. In stock and on display.

Come in and See Them

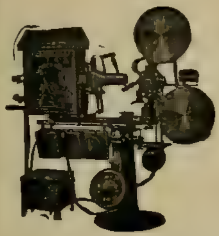
- Machines and Repair Parts
- Carbons
- Chairs
- Booths
- Lenses
- Spotlights
- Stereopticons
- Reels
- Rewinders
- Carrying Cases
- Tickets
- Ticket Hangers
- Ticket Choppers
- Slides
- Exit Signs
- Poster Frames
- Cement

And many other articles which we will gladly demonstrate.

MOTIOGRAPH



EDISON

Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

21 East 14th Street
New York City

---

Just a minute please, you will all come in. This is the cry of every exhibitor when he plays

THE LURE OF NEW YORK

IN FOUR PARTS

PICTURING LIFE IN CHINATOWN, BOWERY AND CONEY ISLAND

AMERICA'S EXTRAORDINARY PRODUCTION
THE MOST TALKED OF PLAY OF THE DAY
GREATEST MORAL DRAMA OF THE AGE

LARGE ARRAY OF POSTERS, LARGE PHOTOGRAPHS, HERALDS AND SLIDES

JERSEY EXHIBITORS, WAKE UP! Communicate with the Houses that Played to the Largest Box Office Receipts on record. WE HAVE JUST SECURED THE RIGHTS FOR JERSEY.

NOW READY FOR BOOKING

NEW YORK CITY AND STATE RIGHTS OWNED AND CONTROLLED BY

STANDARD FEATURE FILM COMPANY, INC.

Masonic Building
Phone 2658 Gramercy

71 West 23rd Street, New York
B. L. FEINBLATT, General Manager

Hallberg Talk No. 4

EFFICIENCY
IN
A. C.
TO
D. C.
MOTOR GENERATORS

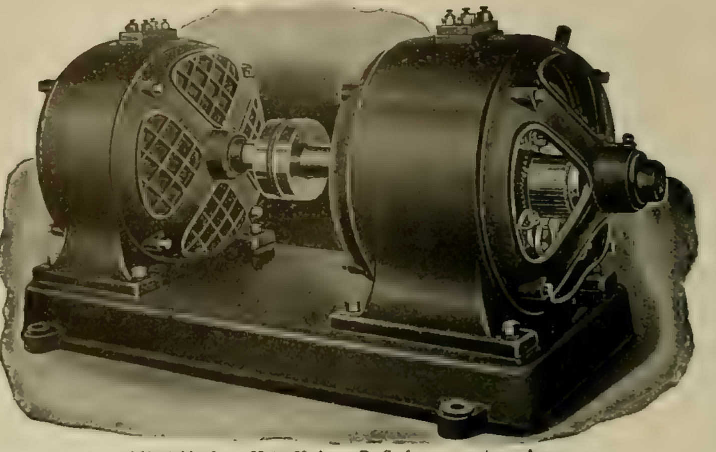
is a very important point because it affects the current consumption and, therefore, the continuous expense for current. The "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. ECONOMIZER is of the motor generator type, but is provided with an entirely special winding different from that used on all other motor generators, which enables me to produce 60 amperes direct current at the arc with no more power from the line than the other fellows do to produce from 35 to 50 amperes. In other words, the "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. ECONOMIZER is from 20 to 40% more efficient than any other A. C. to D. C. motor generator set of ordinary construction.



Adjustable from 25 to 60 Amp. D. C. for one or two Arcs.

These facts I have proven time and again during the past four years. Everybody who knows anything about this business demands the "HALLBERG" ECONOMIZER, because it is the best, and all well informed operators know this fact Read the following letter from MR. HARRY K. HECHT. He is one of the pioneer moving picture men in the State of New Jersey. He knows a good light and a good picture when he sees it. He uses the "HALLBERG" line of Economizers exclusively, and he buys his machines and supplies from HALLBERG. WHY? Because he wants "QUALITY" and not quantity, and that is what you want, Mr. Exhibitor, if you want to put one over on your competitor.

Passaic, N. J., Nov. 11, 1913.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg,
36 E. 23rd St., N. Y. City.

Dear Sir—My Garden Theatre, where you installed complete moving picture machine equipment, together with your "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer, has now been in operation for several months, and I want to express my appreciation of your "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer by stating that it gives the brightest light and the best picture I have ever seen, and it operates without trouble or care.

I think the best proof of my satisfaction is that I gave you a second order for my CITY Theatre for a similar M. P. Machine and "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer equipment last month.

The picture in this theatre is equally good, and I can fully recommend your "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer to anyone who wishes to project a perfect moving picture.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Harry K. Hecht.

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINES and FLAME ARC CARBONS. I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY.

Free Circular on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 Pages, Costs you 25c. by mail.

J. H. HALLBERG
"THE HOUSE OF QUALITY"
36 East 23rd St., N. Y.

of the eye ball. Metta, the priestess, and Kassapa, a rich Brahmin, resolve, before the altar of Buddha to recover the diamond of their God at all costs. Sir Perck is recalled to England, and Metta and Kassapa embark on the same vessel. A silent but determined struggle for the possession of the diamond ensues. Sir Percy keeps the sacred jewel in spite of all, and landing in England, promises to give it to his bride on their wedding day. Metta and Kassapa, in various disguises, try to get possession of the diamond, but the precious stone is safely stowed away in the safe of Sir Percy's fatherinlaw. Metta has now fallen in love with the handsome English officer, and opposes the plan of Kassapa to kill him in order to obtain the diamond. Just as the goblet is taken up by the British officer, and he is about to touch his lips to the rim of the cup. Metta dashes it from his hands. She still however, is determined to recover the diamond, and when on a sailing trip with Sir Percy and his fiancée, the former falls overboard and cannot swim. Forgetful of her love and devotion to the cause of Buddha and at the risk of her life, she jumps overboard and brings Sir Percy safely to the shore. The last attempt is made to get possession of the sacred jewel. Metta and Kassapa, in the dead of night, steal into the room of Sir Percy, and are about to open the safe when Ethel, fiancée of Sir Percy, surprises them. The whole truth now comes out. Metta and Kassapa declare that they have come to recover their god's jewel, and point to the ill-luck that it has so far brought to Sir Percy. Ethel and her father decide to restore the jewel to the possession of the priestess and her companion. Metta, however, bears back with her to far off India, not only the sacred jewel, but a deathly wound in her heart. She cannot forget Sir Percy, and when she is once more within the hollow shades of the temple, she dances with a devotion and fervor which she has never displayed before, for her beating heart tells her that this is to be her last dance before the altar of her God. As she completes the dance her heart fails and she dies.

AFTER DEATH (3 parts—Feature).—The story itself tells of an old nobleman who had four sons, three of whom were worthless wastrels, while the fourth, who managed his father's estate, was a loyal and honest son. The father, indulgent, and himself fond of life, favors the three worthless sons, with whom he is very generous with his money. He does not know their true character, but is warned by a friend, a prince, as to the profligate lives led by these sons. He at first makes light of the warning, but reading in the paper that the sons are gamblers, and resort with bad women his doubts are confirmed. He decides to put his sons to the test by feigning death. This ruse reveals their true character. The three worthless sons almost openly rejoice at their father's death, and burn their father's will. The youngest son, although his father had treated him harshly, refusing his consent to a marriage with a poor man's daughter, shows sincere and deep sorrow at his father's death. The result is that the scale falls from the father's eyes. He casts off the three renegades and reinstates his youngest son in his favor.

FAMOUS PLAYERS.

THE PORT OF DOOM (Feature—4 parts).—Fornton, a wealthy ship owner, tries to arrange a match between his secretary, Fuller, and Vera, his daughter, who, however, loves the first officer of one of her father's vessels, Giles. This ship arrives in port with its captain ill, who forwards a letter to Fornton by Giles advising his employer to place the bearer in charge of the ship during his illness. He also writes on a separate note the fact that the ship is in bad condition, with danger of wreck and loss of life unless it is at once repaired. Fuller receives the letter, and, eager to collect the insurance on the damaged vessel which through his marriage with the owner's daughter he will eventually obtain, he orders the ship out at once, with the first officer in command. The ship leaves, and the next morning Vera is found to be missing. The most thorough search fails to give any clue to her whereabouts, and in despair Fornton and Fuller call on Kate Kirby to place the case in her hands. In reaching into his pocket for a photograph of Vera requested by Kate, Fuller drops an envelope addressed to himself at another address than the one he had previously stated to Kate. Kate observes this discrepancy, and after the two leave rushes out and at once goes to the address on the envelope. Arrived there, she finds a woman and a child. As Kate is examining the woman to determine her relationship to Fuller, he enters, and realizing that Kate has learned of his dual life jumps through the window and escapes. By diligent application, Kate traces him to Boston, where he hovers about the wharves, destitute, hungry and exhausted. Kate here introduces the new scientific marvel and transmits Fuller's photograph by telephone to the Boston police, who secure him and hold him until Kate's arrival. In the meantime Kate has learned that Fuller is a dope fiend, and she tempts him to confess his plot with the promise of cocaine. Fuller, who has been without the drug for several days, is crazed by the sight of it, and promptly tells all. He surrenders the private letter from the captain describing the ship's condition. When he has bared the whole sinister plot, he holds out his hands for the longed-for drug, but Kate Kirby, knowing that further indulgence in the vice would cost his life, destroys it under her foot. In furious, insane rage, Fuller springs upon Kate, but after a tense moment, a thrilling rescue is accomplished. Kate now advances the theory that Vera eloped with Giles on the ship. It is necessary to reach the vessel and warn Giles of its perilous condition. Kate Kirby locates the ship off Norfolk, overtakes it, and tells Giles to sail for port at once, describing the vessel's dangerous weakness. Giles, believing Kate's story is a ruse actuated by Fornton to bring his daughter back and possibly arrest Giles, laughs at her tale, and tells her he will not return. Kate swears she is telling the truth, but Giles persists on continuing the trip. Kate is forced to remain on the ship in the knowledge that at any moment it might sink with all on board. A day later a storm breaks, the rotten ship gives way, and Giles learns, in sorrow and too late, that Kate spoke the truth. The vessel is completely unmanageable, and all on board abandon hope and resign themselves to death. But at the eleventh hour, when the ship is already partly submerged, a rescue is effected, all lives are saved, and a reconciliation follows between Vera and her father.

BOSWORTH.

THE SEA WOLF (Feature—7 parts).—Wolf Larsen, captain of the Ghost, a sealer bound for the waters north of Japan, is notorious for his cruelty. As Larsen is preparing to sail from San Francisco on what proves his last voyage, there is a collision in the fog between two ferry boats, the Martinez and the Sausalito, in which the former sinks, with nearly all its passengers lost. Among the few saved is Humphrey Van Weyden, a gentleman of leisure, who is borne out to sea by the tide. He is rescued by the Ghost, and is brought face to face with the Sea Wolf. To Van Weyden, Larsen's enormous physical strength and ruthless cruelty are appalling. Later he sees in him the strange paradox—the Sea Wolf who rends and tears, and Larsen, the eager student and embittered

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

THIS PICTURE HAS NO EQUAL

"THE TERRORS OF RUSSIA"

The Persecution and Freedom of the Russian Jew in Kiev. In Three Parts

Ready for Shipment

Wire, Write or Telephone for Open Territory

Get on Our Mailing List

A few State Rights still open for "THE MAGIC VEIL"

Italian-American Film Corp.

Columbia Theatre Bldg., Room 401-402 47th St. and 7th Ave., New York City

---

COMING! COMING! COMING!

FEATURES IDEAL

Two "Honest" Features A Month

Released the 5th and 25th of each month

MARK THIS DATE

Friday, December 5th

ON WHICH DAY WE PRESENT

The Guerrillas of Algiers OR The Mosque in the Desert

IN THREE ACTION PACKED REELS

A startling feature film with spectacular and sensational scenes of battle and carnage.

MR. BUYER:—If you want features that will increase your bank account and make a name for you, get in touch at once with

FEATURES IDEAL

227 West 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

dreamer. Between the two springs up an odd [illegible] partnership. They read poetry and philosophize together and Humphrey tends him whenever Larsen is stricken with the torturing headaches and temporary blindness which at times overwhelm him.

But his crew both fear and hate him. Leach, a green hand, tries to kill the Sea Wolf by throwing a knife at him, but misses. Desperate, Leach runs to Johnson, another sailor. They creep upon Larsen as he stands by the rail with Johansen. In the struggle Larsen and Johansen are thrown overboard. The latter is drowned, but Larsen seizes the log line and climbs aboard. With characteristic disregard of consequences he goes directly to the forecastle, to find who assisted Leach in the attack. Larsen tries "the pulse test for feigned sleep." As he bends over French Louis, Leach gives the signal and the entire crew obey. There is a terrific struggle in the dark, and it is only by superhuman effort that Larsen shakes himself free and makes his way up the ladder, from which he emerges, cut and bleeding profusely, but victor.

Nothing can save Leach and Johnson from him now but flight, and while Humphrey, promoted to first mate, dresses Larsen's wounds, the two make their escape in one of the ship's boats.

An open boat containing the survivors of the shipwrecked "City of Tokio" is picked up. One of them is a woman, Maud Brewster. Maud and Humphrey have much in common and are insensibly drawn the closer together because of their common fear of Larsen's power over them. Leach and Johnson are sighted and, to the surprise of all, signal to be taken on board. The "Ghost" approaches very near and the Wolf grimly promises Humphrey not to lay hands on them. Nor does he, the "Ghost" sails by and the men perish. Mugridge, the cook, is too slovenly to be longer endured, and with Larsen's permission, he is tied to a rope and thrown overboard for a ducking.

The men's enjoyment is changed to horror as a shark's fin cuts the wake of the ship. Wolf is first at the rope, hauling in, but in spite of their efforts Mugridge's foot is bitten off. Later the shark is caught and hung up in the rigging—to Maud's disgust.

Every day adds to her fear of Larsen, and she begs him to put her ashore at Yokohama. To her terror and Humphrey's rage, Larsen shows all too plainly his intention to keep her in his power. Soon after he seizes her in his arms. Humphrey tries to save her. Both are powerless against his great strength; but one of the blinding seizures to which Larsen is subject overcomes him, and he falls fainting. They are secure for the present. There is no real safety for them, however, on board and that night they escape in an open boat, trusting ultimately to reach Japan.

Shortly after, Larsen, in his cabin, hears unusual noises on deck and gropes his way forward, to find that his brother, Death Larsen, has come on board, and that the crew are deserting his ship. It is the first time they have seen him since the seizure and they stand amazed. He is blind. Wolf is left alone on the ship.

Meantime, Humphrey and Maud, on a desert island, have built two stone huts and watch anxiously for rescue. Coming out one morning, they see the "Ghost," completely dismantled, its masts and top-hamper afloat, alongside, but with sound hull, aground near their huts. They board her, to find the Wolf, though alone, blind and shorn of his power, still defiant and unafraid. He lays a trap for them, certain that if he can get his hands on Humphrey he can kill him. But the excitement brings on another seizure, and he lies at their feet, a helpless paralytic. Even at death's door, he tries once more to destroy them, though it means his own death in a terrible way. The effort extinguishes the last spark. Wolf Larsen has finished his last voyage.

Humphrey and Maud repair the old ship as best they can, and sail away. They are sighted by a revenue cutter. A new day dawns for the two brought so strangely together. Our last view of them is in the library of their new home, where Humphrey begins the book which will tell of their experiences and of Larsen, "The Sea Wolf."

A. BLINKHORN.

THE HARPER MYSTERY (Turner, Ltd.—3 parts—Dec. 8.—In Grubb's Alley a beggar girl finds a ring in a handkerchief, on which is embroidered the word "Help." She is arrested on the suspicion of having stolen the ring. At headquarters she begs the inspector to send for Miss Margaret Kent, a woman detective, who had befriended her. Miss Kent receives the message while glancing over the police report of one Steve Bright, forger, kidnapper and blackmailer. The only clue that the police have of him is a thumb print. This interests Miss Kent and upon leaving to go to aid the girl, she carries the thumb print with her. She succeeds in obtaining the girl's release and supecting something strange in the girl, disguises herself in the girl's clothing and vists Grubb's Alley. Here she sees two men enter a house in a suspicious manner. With the aid of Joe Miller, another detective, and disguised as Italians, with an organ and monkey, they await further developments. Shortly, the two men reappear and leave the house in charge of a nurse.

While Miller is engaging the nurse's attention, Miss Kent gives the monkey a pencil and note and sends him up the water pipe into the room above the spot where the handkerchief and note were found. An old lady receives the message that help is near and returns the following note, "Was drugged in New York. Don's know where I am. To get control of my fortune am being driven insane by my nephew and others. Ann Harper." Both Miss Kent and Miller leave the alley, but return disguised as two old beggars. They see a young man leave the house and rightly guess him to be the nephew of the old lady. Miller shadows him, but realizing that he is being followed, he rushes pell-mell into the house, where his fellow criminals are in concealment. Explaining the cause of his fear, one of the criminals formulates a plan by which they overpower Miller, drag him into the house, gag him and bind him with his own handcuffs. Then they send a note to the nurse instructing her to use the greatest precaution, and that at dusk they are going to remove the old lady. Miss Kent intercepts the note, and gives the messenger boy to deliver in place of it one that advises the nurse to follow the boy. She obeys and is led to a house that Miss Kent uses as her base of operations. Here she is overpowered and the key taken away from her. The old lady is released and instructed to await at police headquarters. Assuming the disguise of the old lady and simulating madness, Miss Kent is taken to the crook's rendezvous, where she releases her assistant. The criminals are rounded up and taken to headquarters. Miss Kent notices that the leader keeps his hands carefully gloved and requests the man's thumb print. This obtained, she compares it with the copy in her possession and her suspicion is confirmed. Thereupon she introduces to the officers the famous and elusive Steve Bright.

---

WARNER'S FEATURES.

THE HAND OF THE LAW (Three parts).—Joe Willard escapes from prison. Although pursued by bloodhounds, he stops to save little Miss Hunter from drowning and takes her home. Fay Hunter, her sister, becomes interested in Joe and begs her father to assist him in his escape by permitting him to use her father's horse. Her father really consents. Fay learns that Joe has been captured and returned to the prison and soon visits him. Joe tells her how he had been convicted on false testimony, and that "Butch" Holden could clear him of the charges if he wished, but "Butch" had grievances against him and refused to speak. At that time Thomas J. Tynan is appointed warden of the prison. He learns Joe's story and designates him as a trusty. "Butch" Holden is fatally injured in an explosion. He sends for Joe and on his deathbed signs a confession exonerating Joe of any complicity in the bank robbery, and tells him where the stolen money is hidden. Fay, who has just arrived, offers to go to the deserted shack to recover the hidden money, thus proving the statement made in the confession. Rastas Judd, a negro trusty, who overheard the dying confession, is determined to escape and get the money. The race is now between Rastas and Fay. The negro convict arrives first. Fay realizes the situation and having no weapons, lassoes the negro, ties him to a post and starts back with the stolen money. She reaches the prison, but is informed that the warden has gone to the Road Camp. A series of hair-raising incidents take place. Rastas is captured. Joe is pardoned and marries Fay Hunter, the girl he has learned to love.

THE ACCUSING SKELETON (Three parts).—Irene Latham, daughter of the cashier of the Newton Bank, is loved by Bob Emery, the receiving teller, and Ralph Benson, the paying teller. Irene favors Bob and they are engaged to be married. Maddened by jealous rage, Ralph's main thought is to ruin his successful rival. Bob receives a letter from an old friend, offering him half interest in a mine if he will invest $1,500. Having seen this letter, Ralph takes a package of the bank's money, places half of it on the sidewalk and conceals himself behind a ledge. He sees Bob pick it up. "Spike" Lacey, a burglar, steals Ralph's coat, in the pocket of which he has seen Ralph place the money. "Spike" is accidentally shot, falls in a cave, and dies. Part of the money is found in Bob's trunk and he is arrested and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. Time passes. Irene becomes the wife of Ralph Benson. Bob escapes from prison. Driven by hunger, he makes his way into the home of the Bensons. With a drapery he binds the arms of the woman in the chair, not knowing it is his former sweetheart, Irene. In her struggles to free herself Irene upsets the lamp. When Bob realizes the house is on fire, he dashes through the flames and carries the woman to safety. Bob and Irene recognize each other. Just then her husband and father arrive and Bob flees. Jenkins, the bank watchman, goes hunting and wanders into the cave, where he finds the skeleton of "Spike." In the pocket of Benson's coat he finds the stolen money with the Newton Bank wrapper still about it. Ralph confesses his guilt, is arrested and shoots himself with "Spike's" revolver. Bob is pardoned and marries Irene.

A PRISONER OF THE APACHES (Three parts).—Count Lorello and his beautiful wife hold a reception on their spacious lawns. The countess has laid out a wonderful yellow domino, which she is to wear. Her friend, Julia Murrato, sees Mr. Murrato, her husband, among the guests, and in a spirit of fun slips on the countess' domino and follows him down a path. The count sees Mrs. Murrato speak to her husband and mistakes her for his wife. A suspicion flashes to his mind: The child is sleeping so peacefully in its bed is not his son. His pride is deeply hurt. He takes the child away and abandons it. The count realizes his mistake, but the child has disappeared. Years pass by. Little Otto has been carried off by the Apaches, who have taught him to steal. His only friend is Elga, a fair-haired child who has likewise been kidnapped. Otto leaves the rendezvous of the thieves and sleeps under the arches of the Pont Neuf. Rogers, the chief of the Apaches, sees an advertisement relating to the disappearance of the count's son. He calls on the count and tells him that his son is with him. The father returns with Rogers, but the child has disappeared. Bent on getting the reward, the outlaws tie him to a beam and rob him of his money. Elga evades the old gypsy woman who has fallen asleep and hurries to Otto to tell what has happened. Together they go back, free the prisoner, and father and son find themselves in one another's arms. The thieves return, find their prey has gone. They set out to again kidnap the count's son. Elga succeeds in warning Otto of his danger. Having no suspicion, the Apaches enter the count's home and fall into the net prepared for them. Elsa is adopted in the Lorello family and peace and happiness reign ever after.

ROMAINE FIELDING--
The man who put the "real" in Realism

Current Releases
HIAWANDA'S CROSS -- 1 Reel -- Nov. 8th.
THE HARMLESS ONE -- 1 Reel -- Nov. 22d.
WHEN MOUNTAIN AND VALLEY MEET-- 2 Reels--Dec. 4th.
THE PENANCE OF BLIND POWER--3 Reels --Exclusive Service.

"The Belasco of the Photoplay" Playwright -- Player -- Director -- Manager
LUBIN NEW MEXICO CO., LAS VEGAS, NEW MEX.

Delays Are Fatal!!!

Unless you, Mr. Exchange Man and you Mr. Exhibitor want to "pass-up" a real live wire you must act at once. OPEN TERRITORY BECOMING LESS WITH EVERY PASSING DAY

"80 MILLION WOMEN WANT....?"

IN FOUR REELS

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST Great Militant Suffragist, the Leader of the English Forces

MRS. HARRIOT STANTON BLATCH President of the Women's Political Union, New York City

We are offering you an absorbing story of love, intrigue and clever detective work, in which the power of a modern Political Boss is challenged by the "Fair Suffragette," and after a hard fight, in which her lover is involved, she succeeds in defeating the political gang. What do "80 Million Women Want—?" See this picture and find out. The answer is there.

One, three and six sheet paper. Cuts, colored slides, photos, heralds, etc. Everything necessary to boost.

Wire or phone to-day—to-morrow may be too late.

UNIQUE FILM CO., Inc., 110 W. 40th St., New York City

---

WE HAVE MOVED

PHONES 6690 6691 BRYANT

THE SUPREME FEATURE FILM CO.

145 West 45th Street New York City

STATE RIGHT BUYERS ORDER NOW

The most spectacular photo play ever projected.

The Hero of a Nation

Bar-Cochba IN 6 REELS

Greatest assortment of paper, heralds, photos.

SPECIAL MUSIC WATCH OUR RELEASE DATE

THE SUPREME FEATURE FILM CO. 145 WEST 45th STREET NEW YORK CITY

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS ... 1140
AMONG THE PICTURE THEATERS ... 1137
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES ... 1168
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES ... 1170
"CHINESE DEATH THORN, THE" (Kalem) ... 1134
CINCINNATI EXHIBITORS' BANQUET ... 1162
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed) ... 1150
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent) ... 1152
CONCERNING FLORENCE TURNER ... 1157
CORRESPONDENCE ... 1164
FACTS AND COMMENTS ... 1123
FEATURE FILM STORIES ... 1212
"FOR THE FAMILY HONOR" (World Special) ... 1132
"GUERRILLAS OF ALGIERS, THE" (Ideal Features) ... 1155
HARDIN IN NEW JOB ... 1129
ILLINOIS ... 1164
IN A POST OF DANGER ... 1155
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES ... 1204
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES ... 1220
INQUIRIES ... 1142
IN THE MIDDLE WEST ... 1165
IN THE SOUTHWEST ... 1165
IN THE NORTHWEST ... 1165
"JEW'S CHRISTMAS, THE" (Rex) ... 1132
KINEMATOGRAPHIC GROCERY, THE ... 1124
LOUISVILLE ... 1166
LICENSED FILM STORIES ... 1184
LICENSED RELEASE DATES ... 1222
"LOVE'S SUNSET" (Vitagraph) ... 1127
MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES ... 1158
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE ... 1162
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR ... 1136
OBSERVATIONS BY MAN ABOUT TOWN ... 1135
"PETER MAKAROFF" (Apex) ... 1154
"PHOTOGRAPHY POOR" ... 1129
PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE ... 1143
PHILADELPHIA ... 1166
PICTURE HOUSES PROJECTED ... 1163
"PRICE OF HUMAN LIVES, THE" (Edison) ... 1128
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT ... 1145
REALISM ... 1125
SCREEN CLUB HAS HOUSEWARMING ... 1156
"STAR OF INDIA, THE" (Solax) ... 1133
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed) ... 1184
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent) ... 1204
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Features) ... 1212
"THOR, LORD OF THE JUNGLE" (Selig) ... 1126
TRANS-ATLANTIC HOUSEWARMING ... 1130
WASHINGTON, D. C. ... 1166

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.
KIEWERT, C. L. & CO ... 1205
REISINGER, HUGO ... 1209

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO. ... 1192
BELL & HOWELL ... 1228
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO ... 1207
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO ... 1225
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO ... 1227
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO ... 1194
HALLBERG, J. H. ... 1214
HOKE, GEO. M., SUPPLY CO ... 1190
PICTURE THEATER EQUIPMENT CO ... 1213
SMITH, L. C., & CO ... 1228
STRELINGER, CHAS. A., & CO ... 1200
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC MFG. CO ... 1196

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.
ALL STAR FEATURE CORP. ... 1179
AMBROSIO AMERICAN CO ... 1201
AMERICA'S F. F. CO. ... 1211
APEX FILM CO. ... 1187
BLINKHORN, ALBERT ... 1109
BOSWORTH, INC ... 1197
CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO ... 1229
ECLECTIC FILM CO ... 1193
EMPRESS THEATER FILM CO. ... 1202
FAMOUS PLAYERS ... 1110-11
FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO ... 1225
FEATURES IDEAL ... 1215
FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA ... 1185
FILMS LLOYD, INC. ... 1199
GENERAL FILM CO. ... 1116-17
GENERAL SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO., 1228-1198
HELGAR CORP. ... 1174-75
ITALA FILM CO. ... 1203
ITALIAN AMERICAN FILM CO. ... 1215-25
MAR-LEON FILM CORP. ... 1275
MANUFACTURTRS' FILM AGENCY ... 1219
NEW YORK FILM CO. ... 1206
RAINEY, PAUL, FILM CO. ... 1189
RAMO FILMS ... 1108
RANOUS MOTION PICTURE CO ... 1175
STANDARD F. F. CO. ... 1213
SUPERIOR FILM MFG. CO ... 1225
SUPREME F. F. CO. ... 1217
TRANS OCEANIC F. CO. ... 1178
TRUE FEATURES ... 1114
UNIQUE FEATURES ... 1217
VOLUNTEER ORGANIST CO ... 1180
WARNER'S FEATURES ... 1181
WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORP. ... 1191

FILM BROKERS.
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS ... 1225-28
WESTERN F. BROKERS ... 1229

FILM EXCHANGES.
BRADENBURG, G. W. ... 1198
ECONOMY FILM CO. ... 1200
FULTON, E. E. ... 1190
G. & G. FILM SERVICE ... 1202
GENERAL FILM CO. ... 1207
GREATER N. Y. FILM RENTAL CO. ... 1222
LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE ... 1192
MUTUAL FILM CORP. ... 1176-77
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM SERVICE ... 1229

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.
JOHNS-MANVILLE, H. W. CO. ... 1219

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN ... 1221
GAUMONT CO. ... 1113
KEYSTONE FILM CO. ... 1183
NEW MAJESTIC ... 1230
N. Y. M. P. CO. ... 1112
THANHOUSER ... 1102
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS ... 1104-5-6-7

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
EDISON ... 1119
ESSANAY ... 1103
KALEM ... 1122
KLEINE, GEO. ... 1115
LUBIN ... 1120
MELIES ... 1183
PATHE FRERES ... 1118
SELIG ... 1231
VITAGRAPH ... 1121

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
BAUSCH & LOMB OPTICAL CO. ... 1207

MISCELLANEOUS.
ADVANCE M. P. CO. ... 1229
BLOCH, P. A. ... 1228
BOBBS MERRILL CO. ... 1228
BURKE & JAMES ... 1219
CASEY, PAT ... 1223
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS ... 1182
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO. ... 1195
DEARBORN NOVELTY CO. ... 1228
EASTMAN KODAK CO. ... 1224
FIELDING, ROMAINE ... 1216
GEIBIG, W. E. ... 1182
GRIFFITH, D. W. ... 1172-73
GUNBY BROS. ... 1228
HORSLEY, D. ... 1224
KRAUS MFG. CO. ... 1207
MESTRUM, H. ... 1219
NATIONAL TICKET CO. ... 1220
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO. ... 1228
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO. ... 1229
PHANTOSCOPE MFG. CO. ... 1225
PHOTOPLAY CO., INC. ... 1228
RICHTER, R. ... 1202
SARGENT, E. W. ... 1194
STANGE, A. C. ... 1228
T. & C. CORP. ... 1205
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE ... 1194
TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO. ... 1228
TURNER HALSEY CO. ... 1198
VISCO MOTOR OIL CO. ... 1190
VONNEGUT HARDWARE CO. ... 1207
WHITE SPECIALTY CO. ... 1219
WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE CO. ... 1229
WOODRUFF, ELEANOR ... 1161
ZENITH MFG. CO. ... 1194

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS.
AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO. ... 1190
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA CO. ... 1228
SCHNEIDER, EBERHARD ... 1229

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO. ... 1229
DEAGAN, J. C. ... 1228
SEEBURG, J. P., PIANO CO. ... 1224
SINN, C. E. ... 1227
WELTE, M., & SON ... 1209
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH ... 1194

PROJECTION MACHINES.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO. ... 1225
KINEMACOLOR CO. ... 1211
POWERS ... 1232
PRECISION MACHINE CO. ... 1171

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
ANDREWS, A. H., CO. ... 1227
BENNETT SEATING CO. ... 1227
HARDESTY MFG. CO. ... 1227
STEL FURNITURE CO. ... 1227
WISCONSIN SEATING CO. ... 1227

POSTERS & FRAMES.
A. B. C. CO. ... 1218
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO. ... 1168
GENERAL FILM CO. ... 1169
NEWMAN MFG. CO. ... 1225
THEATRE SPECIALTY CO. ... 1198

PROJECTION SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN CO. ... 1161
GENTER, J. H. ... 1224
MIRROR SCREEN CO. ... 1200

SONG & ADVERTISING SLIDES.
CHICAGO SONG SLIDE CO. ... 1227
ERKER BROS. ... 1198
NIAGARA SLIDE CO. ... 1219
SONG SLIDE CO. ... 1190

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO. ... 1229

ONE, THREE and SIX SHEETS READY NOW

BIOGRAPH'S Two Part release of Dec. 13th, The House of Discord

KALEM'S Two Part release of Dec. 10th, 2-styles of one sheets The Chinese Death Thorn

LUBIN'S MULTIPLE SUBJECT, released Dec. 11th, His Best Friend

SPECIAL NOTICE Write for a List of Back Stock as well. We have a good supply of many past releases.

A. B. C. COMPANY CLEVELAND, OHIO

"GET IT FROM WHITE"

Everything for the Photo Play House. Machines, Parts, Tickets, Carbons, Brass Frames, Exit Boxes, Fire Extinguishers and Arc Flame Lamps. Piano Lamps, $2.00 each. OUR "MENISCO CONDENSERS" are a great success, increases the light 40%, and are less liable to break than any other Condenser on the market. Send for a sample pair. Guaranteed not to turn color, $3.00 per pair. Others, $1.50 & $2.00 per pair. Special discount to the trade.

White Specialty Company, 120 - 22 E. 14th Street New York

Branch 71 W. 23rd Street New York

---

J-M Transite Asbestos Wood Booths

Absolutely fireproof. Prevent noise of machine from disturbing audience. Cannot become electrically charged or grounded.

J-M Booths conform to all the requirements of state and municipal regulations, insurance authorities and inspection departments wherever ordinances compel the use of a fire-proof booth.

Furnished in portable and permanent types. Write our nearest Branch for "J-M Theatre Necessities" Booklet.

H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.

Albany
Baltimore
Boston
Buffalo
Chicago
Cincinnati
Cleveland
Dallas
Detroit
Indianapolis
Kansas City
Los Angeles
Louisville
Milwaukee
Minneapolis
New Orleans
New York
Omaha
Philadelphia
Pittsburgh
San Francisco
Seattle
St. Louis
Syracuse

---

STEREOPTICONS

Moving Picture Machines and Supplies

REBUILT MACHINES, REPAIRS, Electric and Calcium Burners

HENRY MESTRUM, Successor to C. B. KLEINE

385 Sixth Ave. between 23d and 24th Sts. New York

Send for Catalogue

---

Save Money on Moving Picture Outfits

Cameras, Lenses and Projectors of latest and most approved type—all of which have been subjected to rigid tests, in actual practice, and are fully guaranteed. We are also for the famous Urban, Bioscope Cameras, Dallmeyer and Voigtlander Lenses, and exclusive Central and Western States Agents for the celebrated Goerz Lenses.

Exclusive American Agents

Write for our new, descriptive money-saving catalog A, listing complete line of Moving Picture Goods.

BURKE & JAMES, INC. 242-254 East Ontario Street CHICAGO, ILL.

---

SLIDES

The world's best slides are made by us, announcement, player, release and advertising slides. It doesn't make any difference who you have been dealing with, it will pay you to write in for our catalogue and prices.

Niagara Slide Co., Lockport, N.Y.

---

EVERY EXHIBITOR WANTS

high class pictures, photoplays that will please his patrons, features that will prove Box Office Attractions.

We have the exclusive Greater New York Rights of two of the Winners you are looking for

"The Girl of the Sunny South"

IN FOUR PARTS

"Across the Continent"

IN FOUR PARTS

Come and see them in our new projecting room—Judge for yourself—then you will book. Exhibition daily at 10.30 a. m.

MANUFACTURERS' FILM AGENCY, Inc.

220 West 42nd Street New York City

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.

Nov. 24—The Occult (Drama) 1000
Nov. 27—A Spartan Girl of the West (Drama) 1000
Nov. 29—A Midnight (Drama) 1000
Dec. 1—American Born (2 parts—Drama) 2000
Dec. 4—No Release This Date.
Dec. 6—A Divorce Scandal (Drama) 1000
Dec. 8—Trapped In a Forest Fire (Drama) 1000
Dec. 11—His First Case (Drama) 1000
Dec. 13—Armed Intervention (Comedy) 1000

AMBROSIO.

Nov. 15—The Sculptor's Masterpiece (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 22—Griffard's Claw (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 29—Goose a la "Colbert" (2 parts—Comedy-Drama)
Dec. 6—A Tragic Experiment (2 parts—Dr.)

APOLLO.

Nov. 2—His Nobs the Plumber (Comedy)
Nov. 9—Freddy Loosebelt from Africa (Com.)
Nov. 16—Fred's Waterloo (Comedy)
Nov. 23 The Mexican Sleep Producer (Comedy)

BISON.

Dec 13—The Werewolf (2 parts—Drama)
Nov.22—Wynona's Vengeance (2 parts—Dr.)
Nov. 25—The White Vacquero (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 29—The War of the Cattle Range (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 6—The White Squaw (2 parts—Drama).

BRONCHO.

Nov. 12—The Impostor (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 19—The War Correspondent (2 parts—Dr.)
Nov. 26—The Reformation (Drama)
Dec. 3—The Buried Past (Drama)
Dec. 10—The Frame-Up (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 17—The Open Door (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 24—Her Father's Story (2 parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Woman (2 parts—Drama)

CRYSTAL.

Nov. 30—The Convict's Daughter (Drama)
Dec. 2—That Awful Maid (Comedy)
Dec. 2—The Installment Plan Marriage (Com.)
Dec. 7—A Woman's Revenge (Drama)
Dec. 9—Pearl's Hero (Comedy)
Dec. 9—Baldy Is a Wise Old Bird (Comedy)
Dec. 14—First Love (Drama)

DOMINO.

Nov. 13—The Ghost (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 20—The Witch of Salem (Drama)
Nov. 27—Belle of Yorktown (3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 4—The Filly (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 11—Devotion (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 18—The Curse (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 25—True Irish Hearts (2 parts—Drama)

ECLAIR.

Nov. 30—Roaring Bill (Comedy)
Nov. 30—One On Tooty (Comedy)
Dec. 3—When Pierrot Met Pierrette (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 7—Trouble on the Stage (Comedy)
Dec. 7—Magnetism and Magnets (Scientific).
Dec. 10—Over the Cliffs (3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 14—He Likes Things Upside Down (Com.)
Dec. 14—Mutty Has a Romance (Comedy)

FRONTIER.

Nov. 27—Slim Proposes—But (Comedy)
Nov. 29—The Secret of Balanced Rock (Dr.)
Dec. 4 Slim and the Boys at Breezy Beach (Comedy)
Dec. 6—The Circuit Rider of the Hills (Dr.)
Dec. 11—When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage (Comedy)
Dec. 13—Out of His Class (Drama)

GAUMONT.

Nov. 27—The Little Peacemaker (Drama)
Nov. 27—Gymnastics
Dec. 2 The Living Doll (Drama)
Dec. 3—Gaumont's Weekly No. 91 (News)
Dec. 4—Oscar, the Hermit (Comedy)
Dec. 9—Dolly Saves Her Grandfather (Drama)
Dec. 10—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 92 (News)
Dec. 11—Poupette's Mean Revenge (Comedy).

GOLD SEAL.

Dec. 2—Under the Black Flag (3 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 9—"Red Margaret," Moonshiner (2 parts—Drama)

GREAT NORTHERN.

Nov. 1—A Dilemma (Comedy)
Nov. 1—An Isle in the Baltic Sea (Scenic)
Nov. 8—A Bogus Hero (Comedy)

IMP.

Nov. 20—The Child Stealers of Paris (Drama)
Nov. 24—Jane's Brother the Paranoiac (Dr.)
Nov. 27—Night Shadows of New York (3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 1—Love vs. Law (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 4—Plain Jane (Drama)
Dec. 8—The Return of Tony (Drama)
Dec. 11—Time is Money (2 parts—Drama)

JOKER.

Nov. 29—Lazy Louis (Comedy)
Dec. 3—Mike and Jake in the Wild West (Comedy)
Dec. 6—A Pair of Bears (Comedy)
Dec. 6—Views of Yellowstone Park (Scenic)
Dec. 10—Mike and Jake in Mexico (Comedy)
Dec. 13—The Joy Riders (Comedy)
Dec. 13—Waterfalls of Yosemite Valley (Scen.)

KAY-BEE.

Nov. 18—The Claim Jumper (Drama)
Nov. 21—Days of '49 (Drama)
Nov. 25—The Maelstrom (Drama)
Nov. 28—The Sign of the Snake (Drama)
Dec. 2—The Revelation (Drama)
Dec. 5—The Long Portage (Drama)
Dec. 9—Her Legacy (Drama)
Dec. 12—Soul of the South (Drama)
Dec. 19—The Pitfall (Drama)

KEYSTONE.

Nov. 13—Wine (Comedy)
Nov. 17—Our Children (Comedy)
Nov. 20—A Muddy Romance (Comedy)
Nov. 24—Fatty Joins the Force (Comedy)
Nov. 27—Cohen Saves the Flag (Comedy)
Dec. 1—The Woman Haters (Comedy)
Dec. 4—Rogues' Gallery Portola
Dec. 4—San Francisco Celebration (Topical)
Dec. 8—A Ride for a Bride (Comedy)
Dec. 11—The Horse Thief (Comedy)
Dec. 15—The Gusher (Comedy)
Dec. 18—Fatty's Flirtation (Comedy)
Dec. 18—Protecting San Francisco from Fire
Dec. 20—His Sister's Kids (Comedy)

KOMIC.

Nov. 13—An Affair of Honor (Comedy)
Nov. 13—Biddy on Her Mettle (Comedy)
Nov. 20—Making Himself a Hero (Comedy)
Nov. 20—Murphy's New High Hat (Comedy)
Nov. 27—A Method In His Illness (Comedy)
Nov. 27—The Man With a Razor (Comedy)
Dec. 4—How He Won (Comedy)
Dec. 4—The Actor Book Agent (Comedy)

LUX.

Nov. 14—Tommy's Camera (Comedy)
Nov. 14—The Auvergne Mountains, Central France (Scenic)
Nov. 21—Mabel's Rival (Comedy) 590
Nov. 21 Gems of Brittany (Scenic) 390
Nov 28—Bill and the Missus (Comedy) 460
Nov. 28 How Bob Got Married (Comedy) 500

MAJESTIC.

Nov. 23—The House in the Tree (Drama)
Nov. 25—A Warm Welcome (Comedy)
Nov. 29—An Accidental Clue (Drama)
Nov. 30—The Hendricks' Divorce (Drama)
Dec. 2—The Padre's Sacrifice (Drama)
Dec. 6—The Helping Hand (Drama)

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Nov 3—Mutual Weekly, No. 45 (News)
Nov. 10—Mutual Weekly, No. 46 (News)
Nov. 17—Mutual Weekly, No. 47 (News)

NESTOR.

Nov. 28—When He Lost to Win (Comedy)
Dec. 3—The Brothers (Drama)
Dec. 5—Locked Out at Twelve (Comedy)
Dec. 10—Retribution (Drama)
Dec. 12—Her Friend the Butler (Comedy)

POWERS.

Nov. 28—A Seaside Samaritan (Drama)
Dec. 1—When Joe Went West (Comedy)
Dec. 5—Cross Purposes (Drama)
Dec. 8—How Freckles Won His Bride (Com.)
Dec. 12—His Own Blood (2 parts—Drama)

PRINCESS.

Nov. 14—Bread Upon the Waters (Drama)
Nov. 21—A Shot Gun Cupid (Comedy-Drama)
Nov. 28—Her Right to Happiness (Dr.)
Dec. 5—The Little Church Around The Corner (Comedy-Drama)

RELIANCE.

Nov. 24—The Other Woman (Drama)
Nov. 26—A Rough Diamond (Drama)
Nov. 29—The Reporter's Scoop (Drama)
Dec. 1—Tony's Sacrifice (Drama)
Dec. 3—A Woman of Sin (Drama)
Dec. 6—For Another's Crime (2 parts—Dr.).

RAMO.

Nov. 5—Wives (3 parts—Drama)
Nov. 26—The Fangs of Hate (3 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 10—The Devil Within (3 parts—Drama)

REX.

Nov. 27—The Tale of a Lonely Coast (Dr.)
Nov. 30—The Boob's Dream Girl (Com.-Dr.)
Dec. 4—Thieves and the Cross (2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 7—James Lee's Wife (Drama)
Dec. 11—By Fate's Decree (Drama)
Dec. 14—The Mask (Drama)

THANHOUSER.

Nov. 16—He Couldn't Lose (Comedy)
Nov. 18—Baby's Joy Ride (Comedy-Drama)
Nov. 21—The Clothes Line Quarrel (Drama)
Nov. 23—Their Great Big Beautiful Doll (Com.)
Nov. 25—The Blight of Wealth (2 parts—Dr.)
Nov. 28—Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight (Dr.)
Nov. 30—The Henpecked Hodcarrier (Com.)
Dec. 2—The Problem Love Solved (Drama)
Dec. 5—What Might Have Been (Drama)

VICTOR.

Nov. 24—Back to Life (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 28—Unto the Third Generation (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 1—The Barrier of Bars (Drama)
Dec. 5—Influence of Sympathy (2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 8—The Dread Inheritance (2 parts—Dr.).
Dec. 12—Hydraulic Mining (Industrial)

FEATURES.

(A. Blinkhorn)

Nov. 10—Kissing Cup (Hepworth—4 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 1—David Copperfield (Hepworth—7 parts)
Dec. 8—The Harper Mystery (Turner, Ltd.—3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 15 After Many Years (Gen. Film Ag.—3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 22—Jean's Evidence (Turner, Ltd.—2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 29—The Vicar of Wakefield (Hepworth—3 parts—Drama)

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand - - $1.25
Ten Thousand - - $2.50
Twenty Thousand - - $4.50
Twenty-five Thousand - $5.50
Fifty Thousand - - $6.50
One Hundred Thousand - $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

Trapped in a Forest Fire A Spectacular Drama Replete with thrilling scenes of the recent California Forest Fires. Featuring SYDNEY AYRES and large cast. Release, Monday, Dec. 8th, 1913

His First Case A Westerner of the first water with splendid action and excellent dramatization Release, Thursday, Dec. 11th, 1913

Armed Intervention A Comedy Drama Featuring ED. COXEN and WINIFRED GREENWOOD and an all-star cast. Release, Saturday, Dec. 13th, 1913

One and three sheet Handsome four color Lithographs. See your Exchange

Don't forget— WHERE THE ROAD FORKS

A Two-part Allegorical Gem. Release, Monday, December 15th, 1913

COMING A BIG HEADLINER

THE SHRINER'S DAUGHTER

A Two-part Feature. Monday, Dec. 22nd, 1913

AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. Chicago

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).
Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.
Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph, (Special).
Thursday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.
Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).
Saturday— Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph, (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Nov. 15—His Inspiration (Drama)............
Nov. 17—A Cure for Suffragettes (Comedy)...
Nov. 17—He's a Lawyer (Comedy)............
Nov. 20—The Detective's Stratagem (Drama)..
Nov. 22—By Man's Law (2 parts—Drama)....
Nov. 24—All for Science (Drama)............
Nov. 27—A Circumstantial Hero (Comedy)...
Nov. 27—The Somnambulists (Comedy)........
Nov. 29—The Blue or the Gray (Drama)......
Dec. 1—How the Day Was Saved (Comedy).
Dec. 1—Bink's Vacation (Comedy) ........
Dec. 4—The Birthday Ring (Drama).........
Dec. 6—In the Elemental World (Drama)..

EDISON.

Nov. 15—Getting a Patient (Comedy).........1000
Nov. 17—Nora's Boarders (Comedy)...........1000
Nov. 18—A Cause for Thankfulness (Drama)..1000
Nov. 19—The Girl in the House-Boat (Com.)..1000
Nov. 21—A Good Sport (Special—2 parts—Comedy)..........................2000
Nov. 22—A Proposal Deferred "Who Will Marry Mary"—No. 5 (Drama)....1000
Nov. 24—From Durban to Zululand (Scenic).. 500
Nov. 24—Enoch and Eyra's First Smoke (Com.) 500
Nov. 25—The Vanishing Cracksman (Drama)..1000
Nov. 26—A Sense of Humor (Comedy).......1000
Nov. 28—The Gunmaker of Moscow (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..................2000
Nov. 29—A Royal Romance (Drama).. .....1000
Dec. 1—South African Whaling Industry (Inudustrial)...................... 1000
Dec. 2—The Price of Human Lives (Dr.)..1000
Dec. 3—The Thrifty Janitor (Comedy)......1000
Dec. 5—Alexia's Strategy (Special—2 parts—Drama) ............................2000
Dec. 6—What Shall It Profit a Man? (Dr.)..1000
Dec. 8—The Manicure Girl (Comedy).. ..... 1000
Dec. 9—The Stolen Plans (Drama) . ... ... 1000
Dec. 10—The Joining of the Oceans, the Panama Canal, October, 1913 (Topical)..... 500
Dec. 10—Greedy George (Comedy) ............ 500
Dec 12—Peg O'the Movies (Special—2 parts—Drama).. ..... .... ........ ....2000
Dec. 13—The First Christmas (Drama). . .1000

ESSANAY.

Nov. 15—Alkali Ike's Auto (Comedy)..........1000
Nov. 18—The Lost Chord (Drama).............1000
Nov. 19—The Usual Way (Comedy)..........1000
Nov. 20—The Cowboy Samaritan (Drama)....1000
Nov. 21—The End of the Circle (Special—2 parts—Drama) .......................2000
Nov. 22—Broncho Billy's First Arrest (Drama).1000
Nov. 25—The Little Substitute (Drama).......1000
Nov. 26—Dollars—Pounds—Sense (Comedy)....1000
Nov. 27—The Naming of the Rawhide Queen (Drama)...............................1000
Nov. 28—The Brand of Evil (Special—2 parts Drama)......................... 2000
Dec. 2—Autumn Love (Drama)...............1000
Dec. 3—Kitty's Knight (Comedy) ...........1000
Dec. 4—A Romance of the Hills (Drama)...1000
Dec. 5—The Pay As You Enter Man (Special—2 parts -Drama .. . ...... 2000
Dec. 6—Broncho Billy's Squareness (Dr.) ... 1000
Dec. 9—The Heart of the Law (Drama)..... 1000
Dec. 10—Smithy's Grandma Party (Comedy)....1000
Dec. 11—Children of the Forest (Drama) . .. 1000
Dec. 12—The Three Gamblers (Special 2 parts—Drama) ...... . .. .... 2000
Dec. 13—Sophie's New Foreman (Comedy) ... 1000

KALEM.

Nov. 15—Against Desperate Odds (Drama)....1000
Nov. 17—The Stolen Tapestries (Drama).......1000
Nov. 19—The Express Car Mystery (Special—2 parts—Drama) .................2000
Nov. 21—The Laundress and the Lady (Com.)
Nov. 21—The Dublin Horse Show (Topical)...
Nov. 22—Primitive Man (Drama)..............1000
Nov. 24—An Indian Maid's Strategy (Dr.)....1000
Nov. 26—The Plot of India's Hillmen (Special—2 parts—Drama)....................2000
Nov. 28—The Good Old Summer Time (Comedy)
Nov. 28—England's King at Liverpool (Topical)
Nov. 29—On Peril of His Life (Drama)... ...1000
Dec. 1—The Octoroon (Special—3 parts—Dr.).3000
Dec. 3—The Cave Men's War (Special—2 parts Drama) . . .. ......... ...2000
Dec. 5—While Father Telephoned (Comedy).
Dec. 5—Andrew Carnegie's Gift to the World (Topical) ..............................
Dec 6—The Foot Print Clue (Drama)..... 1000
Dec. 8—The Strike (Drama)... ........ ... 1000
Dec. 10—The Chinese Death Thorn (Special—2 parts Drama)....... ...............2000
Dec. 12—General Bunko's Victory (Comedy)....
Dec. 12—Piano Manufacturing (Industrial)... .
Dec. 13—The Invisible Foe (Drama).... .... ..1000

GEORGE KLEINE.

Nov. 11—The Penalty (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................
Nov. 18—For the Love of a Toreador (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama) ..........
Nov. 25—The Subterranean City; or Trailing the Jewel Thieves (Eclipse—2 parts—Special—Drama) .................
Dec. 2—Venomous Tongues (Cello Special—2 parts—Drama)................... ..
Dec. 9—The Stolen Legacy (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ...... ...........
Dec. 16—The Sunken Treasure (Cines—special—2 parts Drama) ..................

LUBIN.

Nov. 17—The Two Fathers (Comedy)..........1000
Nov. 18—Shadows (Drama)......................1000
Nov. 20—Partners In Crime (Special—3 parts—Dr.)....................................3000
Nov. 21—His Chorus Girl Wife (Drama).......1000
Nov. 22—The Harmless One (Drama)..........1000
Nov. 24—Just Cissy's Little Way (Comedy)..1000
Nov. 25—Her Sick Father (Comedy).......... 400
Nov. 25—The Lost Switch (Comedy).......... 600
Nov. 27—A Waif of the Desert (Special—2 parts—Drama) ....................2000
Nov. 28—The Scapegrace (Drama)..............1000
Nov. 29—Turning the Table (Drama)........1000
Dec. 1—Melita's Sacrifice (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 2—The Hazard of Youth (Drama)......1000
Dec. 4—When Mountain and Valley Meet (Special—2 parts—Drama).........1000
Dec. 5—Some Elopers (Comedy)............. 400
Dec. 5—An Interrupted Courtship (Comedy).. 600
Dec. 6—Her Father (Drama)....... .......1000
Dec. 8—The Smuggler's Daughter (Drama)....1000
Dec. 9—An Enemy's Aid (Drama)...............1000
Dec. 11—Hydraulic Works on the Adda (Mining) 400
Dec. 11—His best Friend (Special—2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 12—Life, Love and Liberty (Drama).....2000
parts—Drama)................ ......2000
Dec. 13—The Real Impostor (Drama).......... 400
Dec. 13—A Pill Box Cupid (Comedy)......... 600

MELIES.

Oct. 9—Cast Amid Boomerang Throwers (Dr.).1000
Oct. 16—Scenes of Saigon, Cochin China (Sc.)..1000
Oct. 23—Old and New Tahiti (Drama)........ 650
Oct. 23—Grand Opening of the Schichijio Bridge, Kyoto, Japan (Scenic).............. 150
Oct. 30—A Japanese Wedding (Manners and Customs)...............................
Oct. 30—A Japanese Shoemaker at Work (Typical).................................
Nov. 6—Sidney and Its Harbor (Travel).....1000
Nov. 20—Shooting the Famous Hozu Rapids of Japan (Sports)....................
Nov. 20—A Lemon Plantation (Industrial).....
Nov. 27—Japanese "Judo," Commonly Known as Jiu Jitsu (Sports)...............1000
Dec. 4—A Woman's Mission (Drama)... .....
Dec. 4—A Trip to the Famous Picnic Grounds at Arashyama, Japan (Scenic).....

PATHEPLAY.

Nov. 14—Butterfly Preservation (Entomology).
Nov. 14—The Slate Industry (Industrial).....
Nov. 15—In the Same Boat (Comedy).........
Nov. 17—Pathe's Weekly, No. 68 (News) ....
Nov. 18—Mr. Gaston from Paris (Comedy).....
Nov. 18—Flowers of Japan (Horticulture)....
Nov. 19—By Impulse (Com.-Dr.)..............
Nov. 20—Pathe's Weekly, No. 69 (News)......
Nov. 20—The Green-Eyed Monster of Jealousy (Special—3 parts—Drama) ........
Nov. 21—Natives of Australia (Manners and customs) ............................
Nov. 21—The Pond Snail (Zoology)............
Nov. 21—In the Spanish Pyrenees (Travel)....
Nov. 22—Kenton's Heir (Drama)..............
Nov. 24—Pathe's Weekly, No. 70 (News).....
Nov. 25—The Shadow of Shame (Drama)......
Nov. 26—The Elusive Turkey (Comedy).......
Nov. 27—Pathe's Weekly, No. 71 (News).....
Nov. 27—The Faithless Friend (Special—2 parts—Drama).....................
Nov. 27—Old Nuremburg (Scenic)............
Nov. 28—Making Eight Too Ropes (Industrial)
Nov. 28—The Capital of the Malay States (Scenic)............................
Nov. 28—Fashion's Law in the Swiss Cantons (Sociological).......................
Nov. 29—The Blight (Drama)...............
Dec. 1—Pathe's Weekly No. 72 (News)....
Dec. 2—A Peasant Marriage in Hungary (Cus.)
Dec. 2—Edible Fish of the Mediterranean (Zoology) .......... ..........
Dec. 2—The Geysers of New Zealand (Scen.).
Dec. 3—A Break For Freedom (Drama).....
Dec. 4—Baseball's Peerless Leader (Special—2 parts—Comedy) ...............
Dec. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 73 (News)......
Dec. 5—A Bear Escape (Comedy)...........
Dec. 6—Col. Heeza Liar in Africa (Novelty)
Dec. 6—Glimpses of Pond Life (Zoology) ...
Dec. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 74 (News).......
Dec. 9—The Stolen Inheritance (Drama)......
Dec. 10—You've Got to Pay (Drama).........
Dec. 11—A Modern Portia (Special—2 parts—Drama). .............................
Dec. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 75 (News).....
Dec. 12—Birds of the Inland Marsh (Bird Life)
Dec. 12—A Journey to the Environs of Naples (Scenic)...............................
Dec. 13—Uncle John to the Rescue ...... ....

SELIG.

Nov. 14—A Cure for Carelessness (Comedy)..
Nov. 14—The Matterhorn, Switzerland (Travel)
Nov. 17—The Escape of Jim Dolan (Special—2 parts—Drama)..........................2000
Nov. 18—The Port of Missing Women (Drama)..1000
Nov. 19—The Touch of a Child (Drama)......1000
Nov. 20—An Actor's Romance (Drama).......1000
Nov. 21—Outwitted by Billy (Drama).........1000
Nov. 24—The Quality of Mercy (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..............................2000
Nov. 25—Mounted Officer Flynn (Comedy).....1000
Nov. 26—Cupid In the Cow Camp (Comedy)...1000
Nov. 27—A Message From Home (Drama).....1000
Nov. 28—The Supreme Moment (Drama).......1000
Dec. 1—The Cipher Message (Special—2 parts Drama) ...............................2000
Dec. 2—The Rustler's Reformation (Dr.)....1000
Dec. 3—Within the Hour (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 4—Granddaddy's Boy (Drama)..........1000
Dec. 5—Northern Hearts (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 8—The Master of the Garden (Special—2 parts—Drama)..... ...............2000
Dec. 9—An Equal Chance (Drama)............1000
Dec. 10—Hilda of Heron Cove (Drama)........1000
Dec. 11—Physical Culture on the Quarter Circle V Bar (Comedy)......................1000
Dec. 12—The Mysterious Way (Drama).........1000

VITAGRAPH.

Nov. 17—Tangled Threads (Drama)...........1000
Nov. 18—His Last Fight (Drama)............1000
Nov. 19—Why I Am Here (Comedy).........
Nov. 19—Farming In Ancient Thebes (Agricul.)
Nov. 20—The Sale of a Heart (Drama).......1000
Nov. 21—The Schemers (Comedy)............1000
Nov. 22—The Whimsical Threads of Destiny (Special—2 parts—Drama)..........2000
Nov. 24—The Leading Lady (Drama)........1000
Nov. 25—Little Kaintuck (Drama)............1000
Nov. 26—Fellow Voyagers (Comedy)..........
Nov. 26—Temples and Statues of Rome (Architecture) ..........................
Nov. 27—The Cure (Drama) ..................1000
Nov. 28—Betty In the Lion's Den (Comedy)..1000
Nov. 29—The Golden Pathway (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..........................2000
Dec. 1—A Game of Cards (Drama)..........1000
Dec. 2—The Wreck (Special—3 parts—Dr.)..3000
Dec. 3—A Pair of Prodigals (Comedy).......
Dec. 3—The Coliseum of Rome (Architecture)
Dec. 4—The Swan Girl (Drama)..............1000
Dec. 5—A Lesson in Jealousy (Comedy)....1000
Dec. 6—Beauty Unadorned (Special—2 parts—Comedy) ............................2000
Dec. 8—'Mid Kentucky Hills (Drama).........1000
Dec. 9—Deception (Comedy)...................1000
Dec 10—That Suit at Ten (Comedy).......... 700
Dec. 10—Performing Lions (Zoological)......... 300
Dec. 11—Sacrifice (Drama) ....................1000
Dec. 12—The Life Saver (Comedy)............1000
Dec. 13—Love's Sunset (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000

Greater New York Film Rental Company
116-118 East Fourteenth Street, New York
Licensed Film Supplied to Licensed Exhibitors :-: :-: :-: *Write or Call for Particulars

King Ludwig and Wagner

THE MOST DRAMATIC, HEART-THROBBING MOTION-PICTURE EVER SUBMITTED TO THE PUBLIC!

Now in for a Long Run at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, the World's Most Beautiful Theatre!

SUPREME OF ALL PHOTO-DRAMAS!

Thrilling and fascinating not only to that vast clientele of Wagner enthusiasts, but to all with red blood in their veins — the remarkable trials, struggles, romance, and adventure of a Great Genius!

NEW YORK'S PHOTO-PLAY SENSATION!

THE LIFE AND WORKS
OF THE IMMORTAL COMPOSER

RICHARD WAGNER

The marvelous triumph of the Messter-Film, Berlin. (Passed without a dissenting voice and enthusiastically approved by the National Board of Censors, the Press, and Countless Educational Bodies.)

STATE AND TERRITORIAL RIGHTS FOR SALE. WIRE OR WRITE.

SPECIAL POSTERS, LECTURE, MUSIC, ETC.

PAT CASEY

1493 Broadway New York

Liszt and Wagner

Better To Be Sure Than Sorry

The Real Assurity of a Square Deal is the Evidence of Your Own Eyes. What your Eyes See You Can Believe. Therefore let us send you our Large Free Samples of

MIRROROIDE Postage Prepaid.

Mirroroide is in use in over 6,000 Theatres the world over, and is universally known as The World's Greatest Projection Surface, Bar None.

We Give You A Square Deal

By giving you a Bona Fide 5-Year Guarantee we tell you exactly what our Screen will do. We put our Promise—our Guarantee—before you. We give you our Written Contract—which you can read first.

We deserve your Consideration, your Confidence, because we are Willing to Show You.

MIRROROIDE (Patents Pending)

is backed up by Thousands of Testimonials. Do you realize that 40 per cent. of our Orders are Repeats? Do you realize that Mirroroide is in use in the largest, the most costly photoplay theatres in the world?

If your Exchange or Dealer can't supply you, we will.

Mirroroide is the Only Rough or Matte Metalized Projection Surface in the World.

The J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., Newburgh, N. Y.

---

Photographic Quality and Durability Are What You Want

YOU are looking for a durable film—one that wears, one that has such a fine grain of silver that you get sharply defined images and good gradations. You can get all of these qualities in only one film.

Write for interesting facts and prices.

DAVID HORSLEY

1600 Broadway - - - Room 404

American Agent for Lumiere Film

---

Film Quality

Quality in the film—quality from a technical photographic standpoint is as important to the Exhibitor as is interest in the story that the film tells.

There's one film that's recognized the world over as the standard of quality—that is always used by those whose effort it is to give the Exhibitors the very best goods and the very best service—Eastman film.

And it is identifiable. Look for "Eastman" on the perforated margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

---

AUTOMATIC MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

SIMPLICITY · RELIABILITY · ENDURANCE · SEEBURG

PIANOS AND ORCHESTRIONS

FOR THE MOVING PICTURE THEATRE

The "Seeburg Idea" in connection with automatic pianos and orchestrions means "Simplicity," "Reliability" and "Endurance," giving maximum merit at a minimum price. For further particulars write

J. P. Seeburg Piano Co.
MANUFACTURERS

900-902-904 Republic Bldg., Chicago

THE FOOS

SPECIAL ELECTRIC, GAS, GASOLINE, AND KEROSENE ENGINES

furnish light equal to the best central station service at less than half the cost. Ask us how we can reduce your charges for current from 25 to 75 per cent. Bulletin S. E. 98.

FOOS GAS ENGINE CO.
809 Linden Ave. Springfield, Ohio

THE PHANTOSCOPE

A motion picture projecting machine using standard film, taking current from incandescent lamp socket, alternating or direct current. Can be stopped indefinitely and will not ignite the film. Also projects lantern slides. Remarkably simple and weighs but eighteen pounds. Designed especially for home, school, and salesmen. Price $75.00 complete.

The Phantoscope Mfg. Co.
Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

BOOK THESE NOW!

BOOK IT NOW!

"The Great Lure of Paris"

A Drama in 3 Parts.

BOOK IT NOW!

"SALVATION"

A Drama in 4 Parts.

BOOK IT NOW!

"JUSTICE or LOVE?"

A Drama in 3 Parts.

Paper, photos and heralds de Luxe. In every one of these "Hitters" you will find excellent photography, splendid acting, a highly dramatic plot and beautiful settings; everything to call forth the admiration of your patrons.

FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO.
220 W. 42d St. New York City
Candler Bldg. Bryant 8486 Room 903

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Don't fail to visit our complete Show Rooms at 101-103 FOURTH AVE.,
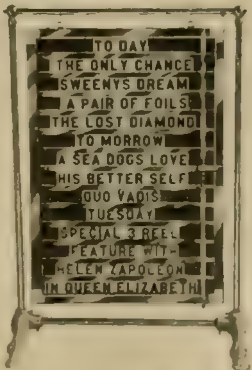
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Write for Catalog
Established 1882



BRASS RAILING
BRASS EASELS
BRASS FRAMES
BRASS WICKETS
PUSH AND KICK PLATES
DOOR GUARD RAILS
ELECTRIC SIGNS
ELECTRIC LAMPS
BRASS LETTERS
BRASS SIGNS
DISPLAY FIXTURES
PLATING OF ALL KINDS
BRASS GRILLES
BRASS CASTINGS
BRASS FITTINGS
SPECIAL BRASS WORK
TILE LETTER SIGNS

The Newman Mfg. Co., 715-721 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, Ohio

IT IS SAID BY MANY WHO KNOW

That the life of the Motion Picture Machine is two years. This may be so with most Machines, but NOT the MOTIOGRAPH.

We are receiving letters daily, telling us of the long life of the MOTIOGRAPH and with a small expense in the Up-Keep.

WHY? QUALITY

All our parts are made in our own factory, by expert mechanics, and with proper care, the MOTIOGRAPH will last ten years instead of two.

Write for Catalogue and Information.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CC.

Eastern Office: 21 E. 14th St., New York
564-572 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco

At Your Service

SUPERIOR Cameramen of wide experience.

A SUPERIOR Plant producing SUPERIOR Results.

Local Pictures at Half the Cost

Why not have a picture made of your City?

Write for the Superior Plans

Superior Film Mfg. Co.
Des Moines, Iowa

Only One Print Left

IN THE TOILS OF THE DEVIL

Copyrighted 1913 BRAND NEW 2500 feet each

Made by the famous MILANO COMPANY of Italy.
To close out immediately, will give rights for several States not already sold with each copy.
1-3-6 sheets and photos.

A FEATURE BARGAIN

WRITE OR WIRE AT ONCE

International Film Traders
5 West 14th St. Film Importers and Dealers New York

A MAGIC MONEY GETTER

The Magic Veil, or The Love of a Hindoo
IN FOUR PARTS

A SENSATIONAL DRAMATIZATION

Ready for Shipment Wire or write for territory

ITALIAN AMERICAN FILM CORP. 701 Seventh Avenue
Columbia Theatre Bldg. Room 401-2 NEW YORK

ORCHESTRA MUSIC
FOR MOVING PICTURES

The Orpheum Collection of dramatic and descriptive music for Piano and seven orchestra parts. Piano can be used alone. In two series:

No. 1 and No. 2

Piano, 58 cts. each. Both series, $1.15. Violin, 40 cts. each; both 75 cts. Cello-&-Bass same price as violin. Flute 35 cts. each. Both series, 65 cts. Clarinet, Cornet and Trombone same price as Flute. Drums, 30 cts. each. Both series, 55 cts.

Send for free sample page and further discounts. 3d series ready for piano only; 58 cts.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

---

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 728 Mission St.

---

THE "STANDARDIZED" THEATRE CHAIRS

Do you want a life-saving chair?
Do you want a space-saving chair?
Do you want a sanitary chair?
Do you want a scientifically built, double standard chair?

We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio

---

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest—Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

---

Our new Dissolving Slide Carrier makes our Song Slide Service indispensable. Operates from the right side only and eliminates reaching over the machine.

Write for 1914 catalogue and prices on carrier and service.

CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE, 37 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

---

Steel standards will not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

AGENCIES:

Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Newark, N. J.
California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave. Seattle, Wash.
Feldner-Wagner Co. 508 Marshall Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.
L-B Mfg. Co., S. E. Cor. 6th & Vine Sts., Phila., Pa.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

---

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE C O
Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 318 Bissell Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St Boston: 69 Pearl St

---

From the Patrons View Point

What Causes People

to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable.

This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a to step down your current you are not getting best results.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARC

With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films.

It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments.

But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc

Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill

and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it.

We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why If you want a better light at 1/3 your present cost, send for it today. It's free.

FT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Ind

WOOD SYSTEMS FWEW FORT WAYNE IND

C 5

$3.50 CRYSTAL WHITE
$4.00 SILVER FINISH

Curtain Coatings

PREPAID

ALFRED C. STANGE, 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ill.

DEAGAN MUSICAL ELECTRIC BELLS

Played from Piano Keyboard

WRITE FOR CATALOG "F"

J. C. DEAGAN
DEAGAN BUILDING
1776 Berteau Ave.
Chicago, Ill.

GO INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

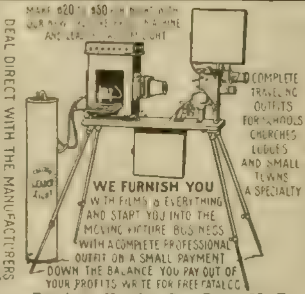
DEAL DIRECT WITH THE MANUFACTURERS

EVERY MACHINE GUARANTEED



MAKE $20 TO $50 [illegible]
[illegible]
COMPLETE TRAVELING OUTFITS FOR SCHOOLS CHURCHES LODGES AND SMALL TOWNS A SPECIALTY

WE FURNISH YOU WITH FILMS & EVERYTHING AND START YOU INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS WITH A COMPLETE PROFESSIONAL OUTFIT ON A SMALL PAYMENT DOWN THE BALANCE YOU PAY OUT OF YOUR PROFITS WRITE FOR FREE CATALOG

Dearborn Novelty Co., Dept. M. P.
537 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

4 GENERAL FEATURES ILL. AND WIS. 4
— EVERY WEEK —

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| WAR CORRESPONDENTS | Itala | 4 Reels |
| DR. NICHOLSON AND THE BLUE DIAMOND | F. R. A. | 4 Reels |
| THE FIRE FLY | F. R. A. | 4 Reels |
| THE CURRENT | Ramo | 3 Reels |
| WIVES | Ramo | 3 Reels |
| THE MISSING WOMAN | F. R. A. | 2 Reels |
| CARDS | Ramo | 3 Reels |
| SISTER TO CARMEN | (Helen Gardner) | 4 Reels |
| WIFE OF CAIN | (Helen Gardner) | 4 Reels |

A Postal Brings List of 200 Winners.

GENERAL FEATURE FILM CO.
5th Floor, 37 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

FOR SALE 50 FEATURES
First Class Condition
Elegant Advertising Matter. 1000 COMMERCIALS
VERY CHEAP
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS
WEST 14th STREET, NEW YORK

MAKE MOVING PICTURES
WITH
Our Ideal Moving Picture Camera

Excellently constructed, beautifully finished, simple to operate, fitted up with a B. & L. Zeiss Tessar Lens, I. C., F 3-5, one of the best and fastest lenses in the market; holds 200 feet stock.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue
PRICE COMPLETE $75.00

Motion Picture Camera Co., Inc.
Dept. A 5 West 14th Street, New York

LET US DO YOUR
Developing and Printing

WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE.
EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK.

FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
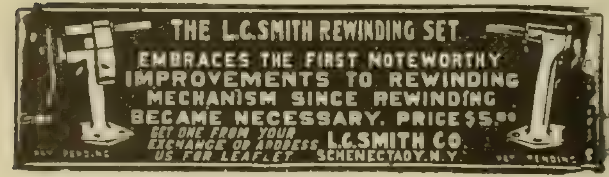
3 Feet for 25 Cents In Any Length

GUNBY BROS. Inc.
145 West 45th Street, New York City



THE L.C.SMITH REWINDING SET
EMBRACES THE FIRST NOTEWORTHY IMPROVEMENTS TO REWINDING MECHANISM SINCE REWINDING BECAME NECESSARY. PRICE $5.00
GET ONE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR ADDRESS US FOR LEAFLET
L.C.SMITH CO.
SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

FEATURE FILM BUYERS

I have bargains in Exclusive, Famous Features. What is your territory? Get in communication with me at once.

P. A. BLOCH, 560 West 165th Street, NEW YORK

Photoplay Company, Inc.
19 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

The headquarters for all standard projecting machines. Full line of accessories and supplies

Expert Repairing on All Machines

Write us for terms and catalogues.

THEATRICAL LAW By Judge J. A. Brackett

A BOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OWNERS

Treats of Contracts, Leases, Licenses, Legal Rights, Public Regulation

One Volume, 520 Pages, Law Buckram Binding, $4.00 Postpaid

The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Publishers, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR

An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps

Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service.
Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.

PRICE:

| | |
|---|---|
| 110 Volts, 60 Cycles | $50.00 |
| 220 Volts, 60 Cycles | 50.00 |

Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
217 West Illinois Street :: :: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.

This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium..............................
Ceiling Height..............................
Width of House..............................
Name..............................

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.

Chicago
220 W. Jackson Blvd.

New York
505 Fifth Ave.

Moving Picture Theatre Mailing Lists For Sale

20,192, covering United States and Canada, price $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such states as you want.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 670 | Film Exchanges, U. S. | $3.50 |
| 70 | Manufacturers and Studios, U. S. | 1.00 |
| 34 | Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. and Dealers | 1.00 |
| 231 | Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries | 3.00 |
| 520 | Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries | 3.00 |

Ask us for full particulars.

TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO.
166 West Adams Street, Chicago
Established 1880.

For FEATURE FILMS
address
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE
Suite 405 Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229
SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

---

Advance Motion Picture Co.
Commercial, Industrial and Educational Film Mfgrs.
Chicago.

General Offices.
547-549 Peoples Gas Bldg.

Factory and Studio.
950 Edgecomb Place.

---

MOTION PICTURE FILMS

Get our prices. Quick facilities. We print negatives, develop and print positive. Splendid results assured. Camera men supplied.

Parisian Manufacturing and Film Renovating Co.
940 Wentworth Avenue Chicago, Ill.

---

UNIVERSAL FILM POLISHER

POWER WINDER, REWINDER, EXAMINER, MENDER AND MEASURER ALL IN ONE.

HOW CAN YOU GET ALONG WITHOUT?

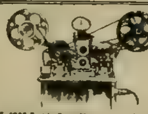
Sold Complete or in Sections.



¼ H.P. Motor
Well Made,
Beautiful Finish,
Noiseless.
60 Pound.

POLISHING CAPACITY: 1000 Feet ½ Hour. Measuring and Rewinding: 1000 Feet 1 Minute.

ALL FILM MAKERS OF IMPORTANCE ARE USING MY MACHINERY

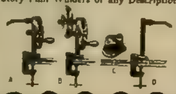
Laboratory Film Winders of any Description.

CAMERAS,
Perforators,
Printers,
Projectors,
Raw Film.



Write for CATALOGUES
Eberhard Schneider
219 Second Ave.
New York

---

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs.

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Ave. and Leo St. :: CHICAGO, ILL.

---

Ten Nights in a Bar Room in 5 Parts

Endorsed by the Censors, Press and Clergy as the Greatest Temperance Play in Motion Pictures.

ABUNDANCE OF ADVERTISING
PHOTO DRAMA CO. CANDLER BLDG. NEW YORK

---

We Buy and Sell Second Hand Films and Moving Picture Machines

WESTERN FILM BROKERS
538 S. Dearborn Street :: Chicago, Ill.

---

"FOTOPLAYER"
the instrument that supplies
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES
The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco, Cal.

---

Mr. Commercial Photographer, for best work and rates, send to
The Chicago Feature Film Co.
4108-22 Lincoln Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

---

Novelties in Moving Picture Apparatus

A list of moving picture apparatus which is new and will interest you. Kinetoscopes, Radiant Vellum for Screens, Condensers, Fire-Proof Film Rewinders, Electric Stereopticons, Edison Home Kinetoscopes and Educational Films.

We are prepared to furnish every kind of moving picture apparatus and supplies and will gladly give you information on any subject concerning moving picture apparatus.

It means a saving of both time and money. The Lantern Slide Outfit enables you to produce clear, clean-cut slides. An inquiry will bring you full details concerning this outfit.

We have for sale or rent forty thousand slides Around the World and all other subjects.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE, Inc.
MOVING PICTURE APPARATUS AND SUPPLIES
Dept. 61 916-918 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"PADRE'S SACRIFICE"

The Los Angeles Tribune's Fine FLORENCE ROBERTS' "SAPHO" Notice (Reprinted Last Week) is Followed by This "Crackerjack" in the Los Angeles EXAMINER !

Guy Price, dramatic critic of the Los Angeles "Examiner," says in that paper:—"The 'Sapho' revealed last night on the Majestic Motion Picture screen is not only a monument to the Mutual Film Corporation, but to its adapter, Mr. Harris. As previously related, it is a dramatization of Alphonse Daudet's famous book of the same name, and although the scenes are supposed to be laid in France, the pictures were taken right here in Los Angeles; yet, nevertheless, they have lost none of the Paris atmosphere which is so strikingly brought out in the pages of the novel. The picture is six reels in length and is perfect in every detail. It is a remarkable work and while portions of the story are not recorded by the camera, the love story has lost none of its potency. The characters are brilliantly played. Florence Roberts never was more convincing than she is in the role of Sapho. Shelly Hull as Jean, the lover, shows dramatic ability that is rare talent, indeed, and the other members of the tremendously large cast are equally as clever in the less important impersonations."

That "There Are No Favorites Like New Majestic Favorites" Is Conclusively Proven Again THIS WEEK !

"THE HENDRICKS' DIVORCE," an unusual kind of problem play, out Sunday, Nov. 30th, has Lamar Johnstone, Francella Billington, Billie West and Howard Davies. "THE PADRE'S SACRIFICE," an unusual kind of heart interest story, out Tuesday, Dec. 2nd, has Belle Bennett, W. H. Brown, Lamar Johnstone and little Theodore Bennett. "THE HELPING HAND," an unusual kind of uplift drama, out Saturday, Dec. 6th, has Billie West, Ernest Joy, Vera Sisson, Eugene Pallette and Frederick Vroom. If you don't know how supremely favorite New Majestic players are, get acquainted quick!

"NEW MAJESTIC"

"There Are No Favorites Like New Majestic Favorites!"

BUSINESS OFFICES:
NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

ALL-YEAR-ROUND STUDIOS,
BROOKLYN HEIGHTS, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Selig

The Master of the Garden

Thanksgiving is Here!
One Good Reason,
The Selig Regular
Service Secures
Results.

Go to it—Get the Money

"THE MASTER of the GARDEN"

A powerful play with a double purpose, showing the penalty of transgression and the reward of real repentance. An innocent girl who leaves her happy home in a pique, drinks the dregs of bitterness, but is redeemed by the saving of another. This play shows vivid traces of the scarlet, likewise the benignity of the higher power that saves the world from sin.

In Two Reels --- Released December 8th

---

December 9th "AN EQUAL CHANCE"

Practical philosophers hold that the possibilities of accomplishment depend largely upon each individual. In this instance, a rich and cultured girl brings into her home a poor and attractive one, who rises to her own standard and walks away with "the man."

December 10th "HILDA OF HERON COVE"

Hilda, the daughter of a fisherman, has two admirers—one she loves, and one loves her. The former goes to sea and presumably is lost. The latter then marries her and the first one returns like Enoch Arden, cast up by the sea to live a life in death.

December 11th. "PHYSICAL CULTURE on the QUARTER CIRCLE V BAR."

A bully comedy of ranch life, showing husky cowboys going into rigid training in response to an imaginary call from Cupid. As they grow stronger—they grow wiser, and finally burn the pesky muscle-makers.

December 12th. "THE MYSTERIOUS WAY."

A charming child play in which a tot follows the organ grinder and his monkey and is carried to a distant city asleep in a freight car. How she is re-united to her family in after years forms an interesting bit of romance.

---

N. B.—Attention of Exhibitors is particularly called to SELIG'S new line of attractive paper.—One sheets for every attraction, three sheets for the two-reel releases, and additionally six sheets stands for special releases. Make the lobby of your house attractive with this colorful illumination.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

TRADE S MARK
BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.
TRADE S MARK

Facts!

The Scenario Author Racks His Brains!
The Director Labors to Depict!
The Players Strive to Visualize!
The Camera Man Responds!
The Laboratory Co-operates!

Genius, Talent, Dramatic Ability, Mechanical Skill and Money Await Their Judgment

"THE PLAY IS THE THING"
BUT THE PROJECTION?

The desired goal in this entire field has been appreciated, studied, understood, accomplished and provided for in the perfection of

Power's Cameragraph No. 6A

Power's Perfect Projection

Write for Catalog G

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
88-90 Gold Street :: :: New York City

Vol. 18. No. 11 December 13, 1913 Price 10 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Four $100 Bills" (Reliance).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

THANHOUSER "BIG" PRODUCTIONS

MAUDE FEALY IN THE LEGEND OF PROVENCE

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

Released Sunday, Dec. 7th "THE MILKMAN'S REVENGE"

Cranky Mrs. Grump, who lives on a milk diet, discharges her maid because the latter is smitten with a milkman—the same who "serves" the "route" that includes Mrs. Grump's residence. The milkman doctors Mrs. Grump's milk with amusing, exhilarating and amazing results.

Released Tuesday, Dec. 9th "A BEAUTY PARLOR GRADUATE"

Hubby was peeved at wifey because she didn't dress, walk, talk and look like the fashionable matrons of the day. So wifey became "fashionable," via the beauty parlor and swell dressmaker route. Did she please hubby then? Nay, nay. See the film.

Released Friday, Dec 12th

"UNCLE'S NAMESAKES"

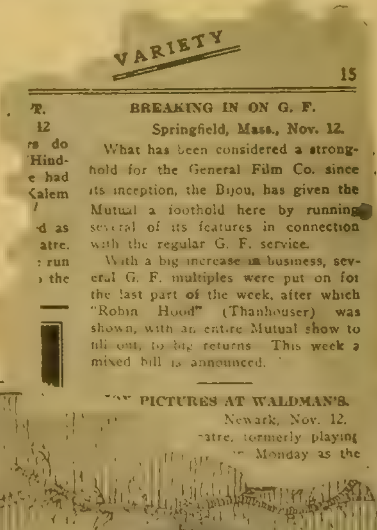
To win ten thousand dollars, the American brother wired the wealthy English brother that his newly-born girl twins were boys. You see, the bachelor brother in Britain wanted his relative's "first child" to bear his (Uncle's) name. Then Uncle visits America and learns of the deception.

CAN'T OUR "BIG" PRODUCTIONS "BREAK IN" ON YOUR THEATRE UNDER A CONTRACT THAT PROTECTS?

As the clipping shows, "THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS" are breaking into the biggest and best theatres without regard to the regular service furnished, be it Mutual, General or Universal. They headline any kind of show. Let us tell you how to get "THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS" for exclusive first-run use in your locality for a full year by iron-clad contract. Just think of getting four-part productions like "MOTHS," "ROBIN HOOD," "LEGEND OF PROVENCE," and "FROU FROU" that way! One a month on the first of the month.



VARIETY 15

T.
12
rs do
'Hind-
e had Kalem

d as atre.
: run
the

BREAKING IN ON G. F.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 12.

What has been considered a stronghold for the General Film Co. since its inception, the Bijou, has given the Mutual a foothold here by running several of its features in connection with the regular G. F. service.

With a big increase in business, several G. F. multiples were put on for the last part of the week, after which "Robin Hood" (Thanhouser) was shown, with an entire Mutual show to fill out, to big returns. This week a mixed bill is announced.

PICTURES AT WALDMAN'S.

Newark, Nov. 12.

atre, formerly playing
Monday as the

Let's send you PARTICULARS, anyway!

THANHOUSER
"BIG" PRODUCTIONS
NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

Thanhouser Stars!
Thanhouser Features!
Thanhouser Quality!

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

COMING FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th

"THE THREE GAMBLERS"

(IN TWO PARTS)

A Western drama with strong dramatic situations. A thriller from beginning to end. MR. G. M. ANDERSON featured. Heralds and posters now ready.

RELEASED TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th.

"THE HEART OF THE LAW"

A strong drama with plenty of action. E. H. Calvert, Ruth Stonehouse and Richard C. Travers featured.

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th.

"SMITHY'S GRANDMA PARTY"

A howling comedy that will keep your audiences in a continual uproar. Wallace Beery and "Smiling Billy" Mason featured.

RELEASED THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th.

"CHILDREN OF THE FOREST"

A drama of Indian love, taken amongst the forest fires of the Great Northwest.

RELEASED SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th.

"SOPHIE'S NEW FOREMAN"

This feature comedy is a sure cure for the blues. It teems with hilarious situations. Margaret Joslin and Augustus Carney featured.

COMING FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th.

"THE STIGMA"

(IN TWO PARTS)

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN FEATURED

A drama of love and sacrifice. Although Jane was a victim of leprosy, Clifford Harvey's love for her grew stronger each day. She loved him, too—so much that she sacrificed her life to save him from the terrible plague. He followed her to the beyond, where there are no ills. This is a feature heart interest story of pathos.

OUR POSTERS ARE DISTINCTIVE. They will boom your business. Lithographs are in full four colors, 35c each. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY players, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the PLAYERS' PHOTO CO., 177 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

Great Posters for

Note: The above 6-sheet is a sample of the fine art work to be found on all Universal posters, acknowledged the best in the business. The Morgan Lithograph Co. has turned all Universal work over to its theatrical department.
In other words, we are giving you REGULAR THEATRICAL POSTERS instead of the cheaper grade in common use for moving pictures. The result is that UNIVERSAL POSTERS ARE GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE CLASSIEST
THEATRES IN THE WORLD. You never need be afraid to plaster your front with Universal posters. You can't hurt the tone of your house by using the most artistic posters in the world—and that's what these are. TELL YOUR EXCHANGE TO RUSH
YOU THE POSTERS FOR "THE JEW'S CHRISTMAS," so you can do some advance boosting. If your exchange can't supply you, order direct from the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio (not from us), and enclose payment at the rate of TEN CENTS PER SHEET. "Ginger up your front."

UNIVERSAL FILM MAN

Great Features!

"The Jew's Christmas"

(Three great reels)

is a "Rex-Universal" release of Dec. 18th. The fact that it was "produced by the Smalleys" is proof enough that it is flawless. "Produced by the Smalleys" means the same on a moving picture as "Sterling" on silver, as every experienced moving picture exhibitor KNOWS! Book "The Jew's Christmas" for as early a date as possible and order your posters IMMEDIATELY! (6, 3 and 1 sheets.)

"Absinthe" Is Coming!

(Length 3500 feet)

Remember, this shows THE BEST PIECE OF WORK KING BAGGOT EVER DID. The picture was made in Paris, in the very home of the absinthe drinkers. It was produced by HERBERT BRENON (Producer of "Ivanhoe") and it has MISS LEAH BAIRD as the leading woman. Mr. Baggot and Miss Baird are supported by a great big cast in this great big feature. YOUR EXCHANGE WILL HAVE TO CHARGE YOU EXTRA MONEY FOR "ABSINTHE" so don't quibble about the price. Book it at any cost and BE GLAD OF THE OPPORTUNITY ! (6, 3 and 1 sheets.)

"The Bride of Mystery"

(Three reels of intrigue!)

Don't miss our masterly release of Dec. 23d. "The Bride of Mystery," a melodramatic masterpiece! Produced by FRANCIS FORD with GRACE CUNARD in the title role! The only criticism passed on this picture by those who have seen advance exhibitions of it is that "it should have been six reels long instead of three." (6,3 and 1 sheets.)

UFACTURING COMPANY

Get Ready Quick For KERRIGAN'S "Rory of the Bogs"

(3 Reels)

THE release date of this magnificent Irish feature has been moved forward to December 22nd, so you'll have to make immediate arrangements for booking and special advertising matter. No matter how hard you boost "Rory of the Bogs," the picture and Kerrigan will make good whatever you say. Mr. Kerrigan, supported by Miss Van Trump and a great big capable company under the direction of J. Farrell McDonald, has made a feature that will create a real furore. Wire to your exchange NOW for

- KERRIGAN Postcards!
- KERRIGAN Photographs (11x14)
- KERRIGAN Lobby Photos (22x28)
- KERRIGAN 1-Sheets (special design)
- KERRIGAN Slides

and buy enough 6 sheets, 3 sheets and 1 sheets of "Rory of the Bogs" to ginger up your front and paper your whole neighborhood. If your exchange cannot supply you with the 6 sheets, 3 sheets and two kinds of 1 sheets order direct from the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, (not from us) at ten cents per sheet. If your exchange cannot supply you with the photographs, slides, postal cards, etc., order direct from our own Supply Dept., 1600 Broadway, New York.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

CARL LAEMMLE, President "Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

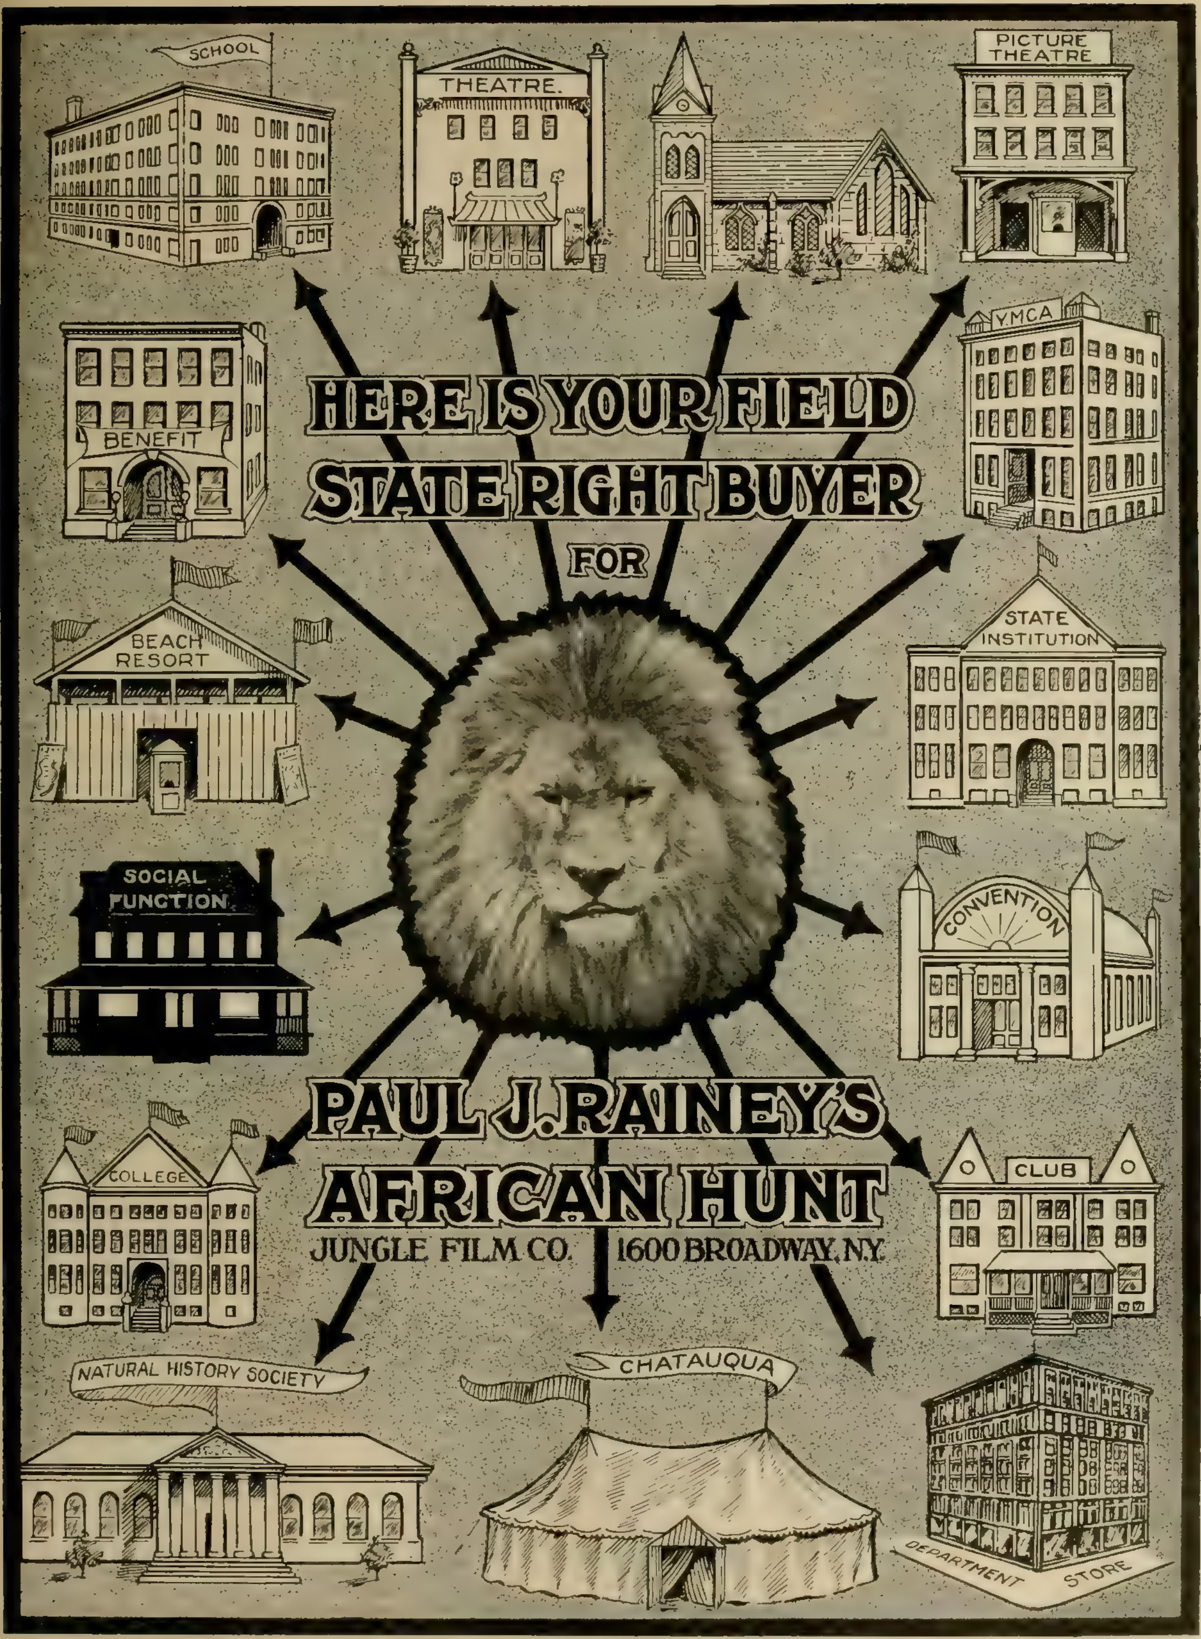
1600 BROADWAY - - - - NEW YORK, N. Y.



SCHOOL
THEATRE.
PICTURE THEATRE BENEFIT
Y.M.C.A.
HERE IS YOUR FIELD
STATE RIGHT BUYER
FOR BEACH RESORT
STATE INSTITUTION
SOCIAL FUNCTION CONVENTION
PAUL J. RAINEY'S
AFRICAN HUNT
JUNGLE FILM CO. 1600 BROADWAY, N.Y.
COLLEGE CLUB
NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY
CHATAUQUA
DEPARTMENT STORE

SOLAX and BLA

OUTPUT

Twenty-Four Attra
Twelve three-reel subjects
Big Productions — Bi

OPEN TO

BEN BOLT—FOR

THREE REELS (SOLAX) READY

AND SHADOWS OF

FOUR REEL

Usual Big Assortment of Elab

SOLAX and BLAC

FORT LEE

OFFICES: Buffalo - St. Louis -

WRITE FOR OUR DIRECT BOOKING PLAN

CHE Features!

FOR 1914

tions — Two-a-Month

nd twelve four-reel subjects

Ideas — Big People

OFFERS

TUNE HUNTERS

THREE AND ONE-HALF REELS (BLACHÉ) COMING

MOULIN ROUGE (THE RED RAT)

(SOLAX) COMING

rate One, Three and Six Sheets

HÉ FEATURES

NEW JERSEY

Indianapolis - Atlanta - Kansas City

——— MONEY - SAVING ARRANGEMENT

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

DANIEL FROHMAN PRESENTS

A Pastoral Drama of Ancient Rome

"THE DAUGHTER of THE HILLS"

with

Laura Sawyer

A Tale that Breathes the Christmas Atmosphere.

With a tranquil simplicity the story relates how a gentle shepherdess, all tenderness and sympathy, who wed a powerful, brutal gladiator, wrought a reversion in his primitive heart and spiritually conquered his savage impulses. A drama that will guide the imagination back to the hills of Bethlehem. Its spirit is Christmassy throughout.

IN THREE REELS, RELEASED DECEMBER 20th.

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

CIRCULATION
Whatever the "World's" is

FAMOUS WEEKLY

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

l. 1. No. 1. Saturday, Dec. 6, 1913. Price

DITORIAL

Great events, of what-er nature, are never lly appreciated just en they occur. Their fluence cannot be accu-tely measured until such period has elapsed when e total effect can be ewed and calculated.

Our recent happy an-uncement that Mary
ickford had, in the face
many flattering offers
om theatrical interests, andoned the stage infinitely to remain with e Famous Players, has en received with unprecented enthusiasm by e trade. The event is aturally one of unusual nportance to filmdom,
ut the exact significance
this continued connecon cannot fully be rasped until the trade
iews the great produc-
ons in which this fasciating little star will soon cintillate. Save some enhusiasm!

"Leah Kleschna" Will Thrill Humanity

"Leah Kleschna," the internationally famous play by the noted dramatist, C. M. S. McClellan, interpreted by the distinguished American actress, Carlotta Nillson, released in four reels December 10th, is certain to stir the civilized world with its plea for the criminal who has never been shown the right way to live. The situation of the woman burglar, reformed by the kindness of the man whose house she attempts to rob, is overpowering in its effective and unaffected portrayal. Leah, who has been taught to steal from early childhood, and who is suddenly brought into contact with this regenerating influence, realizes that all her life her soul had been struggling in darkness. From that moment she strives to liberate her spirit from the evil in which it had so long been submerged. She leaves her father, the master thief of France, and lives a secluded life far from Paris, where she finds the solitude good for her soul—until a great love enters into her life, and she weds the man who brought her into the light!

GOSSIP

J. Searle Dawley, who directed "The Daughter of the Hills," spent a week roamin' through the mountains of Virginia, seeking the Roman atmosphere. He got it so plentifully that now he calls Miss Sawyer Calpurnia every time he Caesar.

---

Through an error, "The Port of Doom" was announced in several trade papers to be in four reels instead of three. We hope this note may save any more inconvenience than has already been occasioned. The one responsible for the mistake has been duly hung.

---

The approach of Christmas seems to be noted even by the film men. Is this because Santa Claus really does fil'm?

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.
DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

JUST ARRIVED

GERM

B

EMILE

A SUPERB AND UNEQ

WITH HEN

THE SIR HENRY IRVING OF FR

6 REELS

IN AMERICA!

INAL

Y

ZOLA

UALLED PRODUCTION

RI KRAUSS

ANCE IN THE LEADING PART

6 REELS

THE ONLY WAY

Exhibitors who stand perplexed within the gate, who doubt the pointing of The Guide, take hope!
Here is the word of those who have traveled the straight road to success. No claim of ours merely, but plain statements of experience from big money-making exhibitors—just two or three samples from an uncounted heap of unsolicited testimonials:

TELEPHONE CONNECTION
GREELEY 6691-6692

CABLE ADDRESS BROWT

OFFICE OF
WALTER ROSENBERG
SAVOY THEATRE
112 WEST 34TH STREET
NEW YORK CITY

INTERESTED IN
New Broadway Theatre—Long Branch, N. J.
Savoy Theatre—Asbury Park, N. J.
Metropolis Theatre—New York City
Savoy Theatre—New York City
Mt. Vernon Theatre—Mt. Vernon, N. Y.
Hoyt's Theatre—So. Norwalk, Conn.

October
Twenty-eighth,
Nineteen-thirteen.

Gentlemen:-

I shall state unsolicited, and I hereby authorize you to use this letter for any advertising purposes, that you may care to, that.

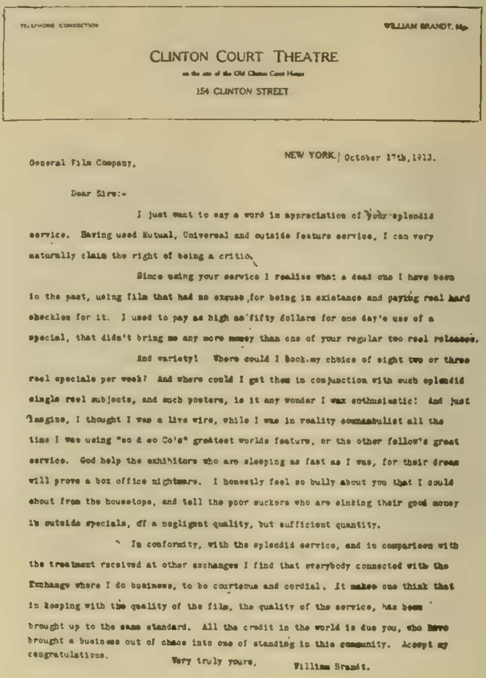
The writer is interested in all of the above theatres, in which I am using the General Film Service, and I wish to state most emphatically that this service is the best motion picture service that money can buy, and I believe that the success I have attained in the Motion Picture business is all a result of using the pictures manufactured by you, and I wish to thank you for your kind consideration in small matters that have come up, and in closing I want to call your attention to the fact that the forty-two first runs now being shown at the Savoy Theatre on 34th Street, have proved the most valuable acquisition that I have ever contracted for since I have been in the theatrical business.

Most respectfully yours,

(sg) Walter Rosenberg

Walter Rosenberg

General Film Co.,
00 Fifth Ave.,
New York City.



TELEPHONE CONNECTION

WILLIAM BRANDT, Mgr.

CLINTON COURT THEATRE
on the site of the Old Clinton Court House
154 CLINTON STREET

General Film Company,

NEW YORK. October 17th, 1913.

Dear Sirs:-

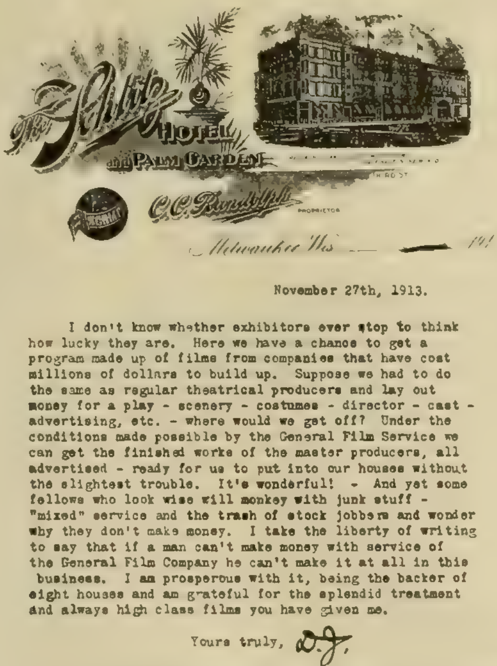
I just want to say a word in appreciation of your splendid service. Having used Mutual, Universal and outside feature service, I can very naturally claim the right of being a critic.

Since using your service I realise what a dead one I have been in the past, using film that had no excuse for being in existance and paying real hard sheckles for it. I used to pay as high as fifty dollars for one day's use of a special, that didn't bring me any more money than one of your regular two reel releases.

And variety! Where could I book my choice of eight two or three reel specials per week? And where could I get them in conjunction with such splendid single reel subjects, and such posters, is it any wonder I wax enthusiastic! And just imagine, I thought I was a live wire, while I was in reality somnambulist all the time I was using "so & so Co's" greatest worlds feature, or the other fellow's great service. God help the exhibitors who are sleeping as fast as I was, for their dream will prove a box office nightmare. I honestly feel so bully about you that I could shout from the housetops, and tell the poor suckers who are sinking their good money in outside specials, of a negligent quality, but sufficient quantity.

In conformity, with the splendid service, and in comparison with the treatment received at other exchanges I find that everybody connected with the Exchange where I do business, to be courteous and cordial. It makes one think that in keeping with the quality of the film, the quality of the service, has been brought up to the same standard. All the credit in the world is due you, who have brought a business out of chaos into one of standing in this community. Accept my congratulations.

Very truly yours,
William Brandt.



The Pfister HOTEL and PALM GARDEN

C. C. Rundolph PROPRIETOR

Milwaukee Wis 191

November 27th, 1913.

I don't know whether exhibitors ever stop to think how lucky they are. Here we have a chance to get a program made up of films from companies that have cost millions of dollars to build up. Suppose we had to do the same as regular theatrical producers and lay out money for a play - scenery - costumes - director - cast - advertising, etc. - where would we get off? Under the conditions made possible by the General Film Service we can get the finished works of the master producers, all advertised - ready for us to put into our houses without the slightest trouble. It's wonderful! - And yet some fellows who look wise will monkey with junk stuff - "mixed" service and the trash of stock jobbers and wonder why they don't make money. I take the liberty of writing to say that if a man can't make money with service of the General Film Company he can't make it at all in this business. I am prosperous with it, being the backer of eight houses and am grateful for the splendid treatment and always high class films you have given me.

Yours truly, D.J.

e. That's where you c ell us.

DON'T forget this is the cosiest, cleanist Photo-Play theatre in the city.

DON'T forget the fact that our program is select. The product of the foremost producers in the world, such as Vitagraph, Edison, Selig. Essanay, Lubin, Pathe, etc., supplied through the General Film Co., is the only program we can afford to run, because it is the BEST and our success depends on our showing only the best

DON'T forget to tell your friends, or better still, bring them with you.

are not already a patron

The Poster Department of the General Film Company can furnish the most artistic and up to the minute lobby displays and advertising matter on the market. Posters, frames, banners, photos of leading players—everything an exhibitor needs—and of a quality to match General Film Service. The appearance of the front of your house is like an index to the character of your show. It is your appeal for patronage. Write us and we will tell you all about the splendid articles we have, their superiority, their prices and power to pull the money to your window.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY (Inc.)

71 West 23d Street Poster Department NEW YORK

The Only Way

These are perilous times for the Exhibitor. One false step is likely to put him out of the running altogether, or to give his competitors a chance to gain a lead that can be made up again only by a wonderful rally or a shower of luck.

The exhibitor's field has changed to a wilderness. The entrance is "wide open." It never was so "wide" before. But the honest guide that points the one sure pathway is obscured by a hundred and one new sign posts of indirection to new and strange by-paths. Many of these by-paths start with tempting stretches of fine macadam and lead to a dismal swamp. Others wind and twist and end up close to where they start, while some are mere blind lanes, seemingly without end, coaxing the traveler on and on until he drops of sheer exhaustion.

Right down through the center of the woods, along a safe, dry ridge, is the straight, unfaltering pathway through to the palace of success. It is worn smooth and hard with the tramping of many feet. It is broad enough for all, and easy passing for those who keep their wits about them. Yet truly, these are perilous times.

The wide open gateway is the so-called "open market," the strange misleading by-paths are the over night "features," and harum-scarum programs of unskilled "manufacturers." The bewildering new sign posts are the extravagant promises of their advertisements. The dismal swamp is debt; the track that doubles back to where it starts is the show that works on for mere expenses, and the "blind lane" is the show that coaxes its stubborn owner on and on until he goes plum broke and stops for good and all.

The one safe, smooth, well beaten pathway direct to success, the first and last one through the wilderness is Licensed Service. It was laid by the pioneers—the giants of the Motion Picture game.

The first and ever the leading makers of high class films.

The grand army of successful exhibitors followed this path. The guide was General Film.

General Film Company (Inc.)
200 Fifth Avenue New York

EDISON

Within the Enemy's Lines

From "A Captured Santa Claus"
By Thomas Nelson Page

IN TWO PARTS RELEASED FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th

Colonel Stafford, C. S. A., determines to spend Christmas at home, despite the fact that his house is surrounded by a Union encampment. He disguises himself as a peddler, but is recognized by Colonel Denby, U. S. A. Though he knows and respects Stafford, it is Denby's duty to arrest him. He marches a file of men to the house and demands that Stafford come forth. Stafford's son, knowing that his father will be shot as a spy if captured in civilian clothes, makes his way to the Yankee camp and gets a uniform from a Confederate prisoner, returning in time to save his father's life. When Stafford appears in full uniform, Denby is so relieved at the happy turn of affairs that he accepts his surrender and an invitation to Christmas dinner.

COMING SINGLE REELS

*The Actress

She learns the depth of true love.

Released Tuesday, December 16th.

Falling in Love with Inez

It is strenuous work.

Released Wednesday, December 17th.

*The Haunted Bedroom

The ghost of a youth guards his sister's dowry.

Released Saturday, December 20th.

Teaching His Wife a Lesson

He lands in the Police Court.

(On the same reel)

Products of the Palm

Released Monday, December 22nd.

*The Upward Way

The rise of a convict.

Released Tuesday, December 23rd.

Mary's New Hat

She gets it despite hubby.

(On the same reel)

The Janitor's Quiet Life

Released Wednesday, December 24th.

* One sheets.  One and three sheets.  One, three and six sheet posters by the Morgan Lithograph Co.

TRADE MARK
Thomas A Edison
Makers of the Edison Kinetoscope Type "D"

THOMAS A. EDISON, Inc.

239 Lakeside Avenue Orange, N. J.

A Charming Comedy of a Society-Smitten Wife and a Home-Loving Duke

KLEINE-CINES

(In Two Parts)

"AT CROSS PURPOSES"

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)

For Release Tuesday, December 23, 1913

The Duke grew bored with society and so found himself a wife who scarcely knew the presence of an occasional friend, not to mention the grand state affairs that so nauseated the tired Duke.

But time and environment make momentous changes. The girl became a society "belle" —the Duke found his dreams of peace, pipe and slippers shattered almost over night and the wife cried herself to sleep until she hit upon a plan. So the Duke's meat mysteriously became as tough as the hide of a crocodile—frightful cheroots masqueraded as cigars—enchanting stories were all there but the climax!

Going out became a matter of self-preservation. And then the Duke found a malicious, exquisite and soul-satisfying revenge! How and why the pretty Duchess grew suddenly enamoured of embroidery and long evenings at home beside the glowing hearth, the picture tells. You should see it.

Book "At Cross Purposes"—You Will Want It

Released through General Film Company

One, three and six sheets with all Kleine subjects

GEORGE KLEINE

166 N. State Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

KLEINE

IN TWO PARTS

PATHEPLAY

RELEASED
THURSDAY
DEC. 25th

¶ A Comedy-Drama that is not only intensely interesting but really laughable as well. A girl in man's clothing meets with some funny experiences. ASTA NIELSEN has the leading part and is at her best.

LADY MADCAP'S WAY

LUBIN·FILMS

LOOK FOR OUR MULTIPLE PICTURES EVERY THURSDAY

"A SON OF HIS FATHER" Two Reel Thursday, December 18th
A dramatic western story of the gambling rooms.

"The Parasite"

Three Reel

Released Thursday, December 25th

A strange and dramatic Blackmailing story. A worthy society gentleman is caught in the meshes of a clever pair, man and wife, and fleeced immoderately. The woman falls in love with her victim, and is unable to continue her criminal practices. In the end she descends to the depths of degradation and, with her husband, verifies the adage that "The Wages of Sin is Death."

Five Releases Each Week

"AN ENEMY'S AID" 1,000 feet Tuesday, December 9th
A melodrama of the mines, treachery punished and love triumphant.

"HYDRAULIC WORKS ON THE ADDA" 400 feet Thursday, December 11th
A demonstration of marvelous engineering.

"HIS BEST FRIEND" 1600 feet Thursday, December 11th
A beautiful comedy-drama with a story of loyal friendship.

"LIFE, LOVE AND LIBERTY" 1000 feet Friday, December 12th
Excellent story of the Mexican War; very picturesque.

"THE REAL IMPOSTOR" 400 feet Saturday, December 13th
A good joke on a Mock Duke—he was only a waiter.

"A PILL-BOX CUPID" 600 feet Saturday, December 13th
Thin people and fat people get the pills mixed.

"WHEN THE WELL WENT DRY" 400 feet Monday, December 15th
A clever ruse by which Papa gets the well dug out.

"A MASKED MIX-UP" 600 feet Monday, December 15th
The loan of a masquerading costume causes a bad mix-up.

LUBIN Five-Color Posters, One, Three and Six Sheets.
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A LUBIN

VITAGRAPH

"'MID KENTUCKY HILLS" Drama Monday, December 8th

In search of evidence, a young Revenue Officer pretends love for a moonshiner's daughter. His plot is discovered, and the girl helps him escape. Edith Storey, Harry Northrup, Ned Finley and Arthur Ashley interpret the story.

"DECEPTION" Comedy-Drama Tuesday, December 9th

One pretends he is poor, the other that she is rich. They tell each other their reasons, and both are made happy by each other's love. Myrtle Gonzalez, Jane Novak, Thomas Colmesnil and George Holt take part in the deception.

"THAT SUIT AT TEN"
"PERFORMING LIONS"
Comedy & Entertaining
Wednesday, December 10th

1. It costs ten dollars, full size, perfect fit. After a rainstorm it shrinks, and everybody expands with laughter. James Lackaye wears the suit. 2. An entertaining exhibition of lion actors.

"SACRIFICE"
Drama Thursday, December 11th

Losing trace of his old love, he finds a new one. The new finds the old and reunites her with her old sweetheart, to the sacrifice of her own love. George Holt, Myrtle Gonzalez and Anne Schaefer sustain the Sacrifice.

"THE LIFE-SAVER"
Comedy
Friday, December 12th

Ethel fools "Cutey." He fools her. They are attractive in their bathing suits, fall in love with each other and decide to get married. Lillian Walker and Wallie Van are the two principals.

"LOVE'S SUNSET"
Drama, Special Feature in Two Parts
Saturday, December 13th

She finds hope in her faith and her husband's love. Her belated confession causes him to denounce her. She finds peace in his arms as the end draws near. It beams with dramatic fervor. Presenting Earle Williams, Clara Kimball Young and Darwin Karr.

SIX A WEEK

"THE UPRISING OF ANN"—Drama— MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th.
"UP IN A BALLOON" / "ELEPHANTS AT WORK" —Comedy & Educational TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th.
"ANY PORT IN A STORM"—Comedy— WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th.
"THE FACE OF FEAR"—Western Drama— THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th.
"THE GIRL AT THE LUNCHCOUNTER"—Comedy— FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th.
"THE ANCIENT ORDER OF GOODFELLOWS"—Christmas Drama Special in two Parts, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY RELEASES A SPECIAL FEATURE IN TWO PARTS EVERY SATURDAY, AND A COMEDY EVERY WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY.

VITAGRAPH ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS—7 x 9 PHOTOS OF VITAGRAPH PLAYERS.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA
East 15th St. and Locust Ave.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

VITAGRAPH

HELP!

YOURSELVES, BY BOOKING

"THE WRECK"

A SPECIAL FEATURE IN THREE PARTS

NOW RELEASED

The Picture that Press and Public have been Talking About for Months, and will Talk About for Years!

IT HAS THE PUNCH AND THE THRILL

A PROSPERITY PROMOTER

THE PICTURE THAT BRINGS THE PEOPLE AND THE MONEY
A SPECIAL FEATURE FOR A SPECIAL EXHIBIT

Strong and Attractive One, Three and Six Sheet Posters

"The Wreck" shows how a man paid the penalty of his crime by the death of his son, the sacrifice of many lives and the wrecking of his own. The railroad wreck, an incident in the drama, cost the Vitagraph Company $40,000.00 to produce. It is the head-on collision of a run-away locomotive with another engine drawing a train of cars filled with passengers; both engines running forty miles an hour.

---

The Vitagraph Company, East 15th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

"Gilt Edge" Stocks

This story of a swindler's attempt to rob a girl of her savings will go straight to your patrons' hearts. The punishment meted out to him by the heroine, and her sweetheart's noble attempt to sacrifice himself to save her, will hold your audiences spellbound.

Released Monday December 22nd. Special One and Three-Sheet Posters

THE BIG HORN MASSACRE

A Spectacular Two-Part Feature of the early West

Three hundred men and two hundred and fifty horses were used to make this production the last word in realism. The deadly duel on horseback; the ferocious battle between the emigrants and Indians; the massacre of the whites; the vengeance later exacted by the soldiers in desperate conflict with the red men are a few of the exciting incidents.

Released Wednesday, December 24th
Two Special 1-Sheet Posters, also Special 3 and 6-Sheet Posters

EMANCIPATED WOMEN

Three girls cast off the shackles of housework and determine to do the work of men. The result is sheer, unalloyed fun.

( On the same Reel )

TALCUM POWDER

Takes your patrons on a tour through mine and mills, and shows them how talcum powder is manufactured.

Released Friday, December 26th

HER INDIAN BROTHER

The villainy of the white man who victimizes an Indian maid, and the fate dealt out to him by her brother, make this a wonderfully interesting feature.

Released Saturday, December 27th
Special 1 and 3-Sheet Posters

OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE

Commencing January 5th, KALEM will issue a MULTIPLE-REEL PRODUCTION on MONDAY, in addition to its regular multiple-reel release on Wednesday. The one reel feature heretofore issued on Monday will be discontinued.

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr. .................................. President
E. J. Chalmers ....................... Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie .......... Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

Western Office—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands ............................ $3.00 per year
Canada ........................................ 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid) ........................ 4.00 a year

ADVERTISING RATES.
Display Advertising Rates made known on application.
Classified Advertising—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1350)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, December 13, 1913

Facts and Comments

ADVERTISERS in The Moving Picture World are receiving almost daily invitations from newspapers all over the country to buy space in their special motion picture Christmas editions. The number of newspapers who have added a motion picture section to their theatrical departments has increased more than fifty per cent. in the last year or so. That these motion picture sections have helped the industry no one will deny. While the editors on occasion still betray their patronizing tone, the motion picture section has stimulated interest, and at times imparted interesting information. The local motion picture exhibitors have responded to the editorial interest by advertising their programs. Otherwise the response has been conspicuous by its absence and nothing else could have been expected. A short time ago one of our New York dailies started a motion picture section. It was expected that all great motion picture interests would at once become extensive advertisers. No such event occurred, and the editor in his wrath declared he would give the benighted film men another month to come to their senses and upon their failure to come forward he threatened to discontinue the department. The department was actually discontinued thereafter, but no great harm seems to have come to the motion picture industry in consequence of this ruthless editorial action. Only a paper of national scope exclusively devoted to the motion picture interests is capable of giving the motion picture publicity which brings dividends to the advertiser. The local press is all right within its local and limited sphere, and we have no doubt of its increasing usefulness within its narrower jurisdiction.

* * *

ONE of our esteemed British contemporaries "doubts" the correctness of the report which states that the leading American producer is to receive a salary of five hundred pounds a week. It records its profound opinion that "five hundred pounds a week is a lot of money." This doubting and wondering attitude explains the strange fact that England is still in the rear end of the producer's ranks. England has the fairest and freest film market of the world, it has magnificent motion picture theaters conducted with great skill and taste and it has solved many of the problems which on this side of the water we have so far grappled with in vain. The halting, doubting, wondering attitude of the British mind in the producing end of the industry has become habitual if not historic in the annals of kinematography. Paying good salaries to good men is one of the short cuts to success in the producing field. Perhaps we go too far in our liberality to directors and pay extravagant salaries to men who ought to be driving milk wagons instead of directing screenplays, but it is better to err on the side of liberality.

* * *

THE premium war in Atlantic City rages with unabated fury. Motion picture lovers in the city by the sea are in danger of being killed or of having their digestion impaired by this everlasting distribution of vegetables, mutton chops, lobsters, canned goods, mince pies, etc., etc. On Thanksgiving day there was a perfect riot. It seemed like the millennium. Poultry was given away in large quantities, the turkeys being of course much in the lead. Programs are being increased to a dozen reels or more. The county prosecutor seems to have taken no action so far and, encouraged by his hesitation, one of the worst offenders is proposing the slaying and distribution of a cow. The animal is to be scientifically divided into soup meat, steak, tripe, etc., and the feast of eating will take place on the beach in strong electric light while the sad sea waves recite their eternal roundelay. The exhibitors of experience with old-fashioned notions of business prudence and business honor are looking on in disgust tempered with amusement at the possibilities of human folly.

* * *

IN attempting to advertise a new screen play a publicity agent remarks that "criminality is the most interesting trait in human nature." The sentence is somewhat obscure. Does he mean that human nature is criminally inclined and that human nature is most interesting when so inclined or does he mean that a man must be a criminal de facto to be the most interesting material for the reader of a novel or the spectator of a play? Dime-novel literature is based and built upon this latter hypothesis. Criminals are never interesting just as criminals. A burglar or a firebug carries no halo of romance. If the contention of our friend were correct the penal code of the country would form the finest raw material for new and successful scenarios.

The Triumph of the Gallery

By W. Stephen Bush

ONE of the many causes of the present popularity and the glorious future of the motion picture is to be found in the fact that it has practically abolished the numerous and envious distinctions of price and class in all the playhouses where it holds exclusive sway. It has brought the gallery as close to the "footlights" as the orchestra and the first balcony. It has wiped out forever the odium and ridicule that has from time immemorial been cast upon the gallery, where the poor and lowly were tolerantly permitted to delight their senses and feed their minds. From the "gens infima," "the lowest kind" of the Colosseum to the "groundlings" of Shakespeare the great masses were admitted grudgingly, for the theater was considered an expensive luxury and a fashion of intellectual sport which depended mainly upon the patronage of the wealthy and the noble. This constant appeal to the so-called higher classes has left its distinct traces on very much of the world's best literature. It accounts, for instance, for the distinctly anti-democratic vein in Shakespeare. Dramatic art in those days often languished or prospered as royalty frowned or smiled.

Nor were these sharp distinctions of class unknown to the later generations. In many theaters there are even at this day separate and less pretentious entrances to the gallery or second balcony, and while the distinctions may in some instances have been due to architectural necessity, it is a modern echo of the old belief that the poor must be herded and segregated in all fashionable places of amusement.

The motion picture has emancipated the gallery. I might say the gallery is having its revenge on the boxes and loges, but there is no question of revenge. The facts merely show that no single factor in our modern civilization has done more to emphasize the brotherhood of man than the motion picture. No single factor has done more to create that sympathetic understanding between individuals and nations which is really an asset of the whole race and which does more for the preservation of peace among the nations than The Hague Tribunal or the Peace Society.

Much of the hostility against the motion picture abroad is due to its enlightening and leveling influence. In autocratic countries like Russia and in the old feudal kingdoms like Prussia the ruling classes bitterly oppose the growth of the motion picture theater. In Austria, which disputes with Spain the distinction of being the most backward country in Europe, motion picture theaters are subjected to the most annoying regulations and their number is arbitrarily restricted by the authorities.

In our own country whatever hostility there has been is rapidly dying out, and, of course, it never had its origin in any conscious opposition to human progress and enlightenment. We are still prone to look upon all pleasure with a degree of suspicion, but have not been slow to recognize the great mission of the motion picture entertainment and prejudice is constantly disappearing. We are keenly responsive to every improvement in the motion picture entertainment, as witness the vast throngs that have besieged the Regent Theater in this city, where all may get a glimpse of the coming art of motion picture presentation.

What has been the effect of emancipating and ennobling the gallery? I think the effect has been the best possible. The motion picture, like a great public institution, is now committed to the care of the public. This means another triumph of American democracy. It means that the people of the country stand guard over the welfare of the motion picture. Just as the beautiful lawns and the pretty flowers of a public park are today protected from vandalism, not so much by the policeman's club as by the enlightened sentiment of the public, even so the motion picture is protected against the vandalism of men who for the sake of getting a few dollars in a great hurry are willing to bring disgrace and degradation upon the motion picture. The public will not tolerate obscene and criminal pictures. No need to invoke the undemocratic and un-American idea of censorship; the public are capable of protecting their own favorite amusement. The gallery and the orchestra and the balcony have been merged in one great audience, which is none other than the whole people without distinction of class.

It has been said that the character of our amusements is deteriorating. This statement does not apply to the motion picture. The motion picture is a sort of people's forum, and the men that go to the show with their wives and children are quite willing to speak out if anything comes upon the screen that calls for unfavorable comment.

It is, alas, possible at all times to debauch the public taste, but it is much harder to debauch the taste of the many than the taste of the few. We believe in all sincerity that the motion picture has a corrective and enlightening effect upon the speaking stage. We regard it as a bulwark against the abuses from which the speaking stage has been suffering lately, such as an overproduction of sex problems and "immorality" plays. To paraphrase a famous saying: "You can corrupt the taste of some of the people all of the time and you can corrupt the taste of all the people some of the time, but you cannot corrupt the taste of all of the people all of the time"—not in any event in these days of the triumphant gallery.

It is but a tribute to history to say that in modern days the morale of the play has improved with the importance of the gallery and with the democratizing of the stage entertainment. The nearer the art has been brought to the masses, the cleaner has it become in the course of the centuries. You cannot find any period in the history of the English-speaking races which in the tone of its public entertainments compares favorably with the present. This desire to keep the stage clean and to raise the tone of all public amusements will grow with the growth of the motion picture. The whilom despised gallery will lead where it was wont to follow. This is no longer the gallery of old, but the representative American audience. The motion picture has educated the old gallery out of existence. What little remains of the old-fashioned gallery is a negligible quantity and growing less day by day.

From all over the country we hear theatrical managers bewail the loss of the gallery, and we know that in many theaters the galleries have actually been out of use for years. It is true that the motion picture theater has absorbed most of them, but it has done more than merely absorb them. It has refined them, and today the gallery mingles before the screen on even terms with the occupants of boxes and loges.

No other lesson can be drawn from the foregoing than a great lesson of responsibility for the exhibitor, the producer and indeed every one associated with the industry. The public will be the final arbiter in all cases, but we can do much by working in harmony with the best public sentiment at all times.

Playing Favorites

By Louis Reeves Harrison

THERE was once a man who led a horse to water and made a remarkable discovery, one which set him to thinking. Just exactly how his experience applies to what I have in mind is not of very serious consequence, the main thing being to start with what promises to be a lucid comparison and escape from it at the first opportunity. It is quite possible that the Producer (curses!) is the horse, and the Good Critic (blessed be his name) is the one who leads him to the current of opinion and invites him to refresh the inner horse a little. That will do for a beginning.

Now it is the man's business to find the current of opinion, and he means well in leading the horse to it—the trouble is that the horse has ideas of his own—and then he may not be thirsty for knowledge. There is no evil intention in requesting the horse to swallow what seems to be good for him. The noble critic—here is where we get into muddy water—has rather a thankless task in what he does. Getting back to dry land and a more secure footing, the good critic wants the producer to put forth his best efforts. Why? Does the public demand high quality of production? The critic may not be sure on that point, but he holds the common-sense view that the public should be given a chance to see the best a producer can turn out and decide for itself.

"I like it" or "I don't like it" applies only to what is mediocre. The picture show audience is made up of many diverse opinions so far as the ordinary release is concerned, but it becomes almost unanimous when a well-constructed photodrama of powerful human interest is adequately presented. So far as mediocre productions are concerned, it is not fair to impose the standards of one group upon the others, especially when there is exhibited what is puerile, putrid or otherwise offensive to clean-minded and sensible people, whatever lessens respect for the art, hence the critic must have a conscience in order to command attention.

An impression seems to exist that the critic with a conscience is apt to be carping and severe, that he sits in front of the private screen exhibit and analyzes the intellectual, emotional and artistic qualities and boils them all in the caldron of his review. Now, he must be able to make certain technical conclusions—that is a matter of special fitness or training—but he is only human and liable to be affected by his own tastes. He becomes valuable when those tastes enable him to formulate correct estimate of what is worth while. What is worth while? In the first place, the intrinsic interest aroused by the play itself, its subject matter and structure. In the second place, though quite as essential, the way it is presented.

The structure and subject matter of photoplays has been treated in the columns from many points of view—they have even been given attention in the reviews—but the interpretation has come in for less criticism because actors as a class are ready and willing to put forth the best they have to offer and are rarely permitted to give self-expression to a role. The presentation has been so entirely a matter of directorial taste that responsibility for what is good or bad has been put, where it belongs, on the shoulders of those who publish what is written in the scenario, when they do not add variations of their own. On producers and directors blame should be placed for playing favorites.

Motion pictures reach the soul through the eye. Gesture, facial expression and significant action serve to entirely replace speech. To interpret in silence the full meaning of a play requires a special fitness, as many of those who have succeeded on the stage and failed in screen representation have occasion to know—they are very often completely lost without the customary verbal elucidation. Even in real life inarticulate emotion is often the keenest, and we are more interested in what is passing in the mind of an individual than in what he is saying.

The ability to make visible by action all that is passing between characters and, at the same time, make intelligible what they are thinking about, is not a branch of theatrical performance but a distinct art in itself. It is such a prime essential in the New Art, this telling of the message, that it is second in importance only to the message itself. The actor must possess certain specific qualities in order to show without rhetorical help what the playwright has to convey, and the sole reason for his being chosen to play this difficult part is his high ability to perform it. To select performers for any other reason is to belittle the average audience and the art itself.

It is almost as poor business to try to fool the public in the matter of types as it is to produce plays that excite only widespread ridicule or contempt. There was a time when it could be done, but today is not yesterday, and it is becoming costly to patronize in either quality of idea or medium of conveyance. It is injuring the business to play favorites in the cast, favorites of this or that producer or director. It may seem all right to give a part to some old friend who needs a lift, or put dear wifey on the salary list, or exploit the pretty face of a "best girl," but it is a poor way to achieve desirable results.

Only those who have played favorites in stage production have any idea of what it costs to force on the public an actor unsuited to a role, and, as moving pictures are high in popularity, it may seem to make little difference in screen presentation, but the same care and selective taste should be shown in securing the right performers as in attending to all other details combined. The essence of the interpretation is the interpreter.

The favorite is usually a lady—that is one reason why the horse cannot be induced to drink when he is led to the water. Not only is her vanity to be considered, but, if she is a cherished possession, the delicate sensibilities of her possessor are easily wounded. She is a wonder in his eyes—that is part of the game Dame Nature is playing—and nothing appeals so strongly to his vanity as to thrust her upon the wonder and envy of an unsophisticated public in the moving pictures. All the world shall know what a lucky man is he who basks unrestrained in the eternal sunshine of her smiles. He is tucking his "pants" in his boots that their red tops may not be lost to view.

That there may be no mistake as to the meaning of "playing favorites," it is poor business judgment on the part of producers, an injury to the exhibitor, and an insult to the audience to assign important roles in a photodrama for no other reason than merely personal preference to the neglect of those especially gifted or fitted by experience to perform the parts in question. Success means that intelligent directors must be unhampered and that they, in turn, shall demonstrate that they are unmoved by favoritism in making their own selections.

When A Woman Wills.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

A CINES-KLEINE photodrama, in two parts, under the title "When a Woman Wills," will commend itself generally by reason of an original and well filmed story, the talented acting of the principals in the cast, and its imposing interior views.

The scenario can claim originality in several respects, chiefly in the daring resourcefulness of an American widow, who is hampered by the singular terms of her husband's will, and by a still more difficult obstacle—the indifference of the man whom she has picked out for husband number two. The author has skillfully worked up to and out of a mirthful climax — one that will evoke loud guffaws from the profanum vulgus, but rather nicely suppressed gurgles of laughter from people of refined minds. The filmed story may, perhaps, be open to tender reproof for the suddenness of the changes of the locale of the principals from New York to Paris, and thence to Rome. There is just a slight haziness in the mind of the spectator during these hasty, quick-following jumps over sea and land: to use a colloquialism, that is quite open to the criticism of a purist in English, "One, sometimes, does not quite know where he is at."

The leading honors of the cast are shared by Signorina Marie Hesperia and Signor Lorenzo Lupi. Signor Lupi will be recognized by many as the Aulus Platius—the guardian of Lygia—of "Quo Vadis?". In the part of Daniel Sage, the young American cousin of husband number one in the case, Signor Lupi well simulates the plotting, unscrupulous, avaricious American man of the world. His impersonation bears the stamp of strength throughout.

Signorina Hesperia easily dominates the scenes in which she appears. A woman of sinuous, youthful grace and rare personal charms, her Jane Pierce, widow of the American millionaire, is attractive and entertaining at all times. Especially does she appear with stunning effect in riding habit and ball costume. The parts of Harry Osborne and Pietro—the former an angler for Jane Pierce and her fortune, and the latter the man whom she is trying to ensnare in the matrimonial net—are praiseworthily sustained.

Two notable scenes, which cannot fail to excite admiration for their splendid settings and life action, are the great gambling saloon and the bal masque. These fine spectacles serve to show the vast superiority, in this respect, of the photodrama when compared with the spoken drama; and they also impress us that Cines excels in the stage handling of a great number of people and in the appropriate, artistic settings which environ them.

Mrs. Jane Pierce—the surname being bestowed by her dead husband—is a dashing, young American widow, who has been left a fortune with a string to it. The will provides that, in case she remarries, the whole estate will pass to the cousin of the deceased, unless the newlywed husband can prove that he is a millionaire, "twice over." Daniel Sage is the cousin in the case, and he is a shrewd, cunning Yankee.

Mrs. Jane Pierce resolves to take a fling in Europe, where titles are plentiful and their buying prices high. Sage follows her to Paris and thence to Rome. In Paris he is introduced to a handsome young fellow, Harry Osborne, whom he selects as the future husband of Mrs. Pierce. Osborne is penniless, hence Sage's desire that he should wed Mrs. Pierce. Osborne is introduced to the rich widow, but fails to make an impression.

The widow has become infatuated with an Italian gentleman, whom she had encountered in the cafe of her Parisian hotel, and his indifference whets her desire to make him her willing slave. Pietro is the name of this bon vivant, who has just lost his last napoleon on the roulette table. After his losses at the gambling table, he buys several papers at a newsstand, and is induced by the girl to purchase a lottery ticket. Then he gets aid from a friend and starts for Rome, his native city.

Mrs. Pierce, strange to say, had resolved to go to Rome on the same train, with the result that she and her maid and Pietro arrive in the Eternal City, on the same day and hour. Also, strange to say, they select the same hotel.

In the meantime, Sage and Osborne, who had been watching closely the movements of Mrs. Pierce, also travel from Scene from "When a Woman Wills," a Cines-Kleine Two-Part Production.

Paris to Rome and renew association with the young widow. They place that lady under close espionage and note her every movement as well as that of Pietro. They also succeed in stealing her purse, which contains certain correspondence between Pietro and herself.

Pietro recovers this purse and the letters, after sustaining personal injuries. In the meantime, his forgotten lottery ticket wins the capital prize of two million francs, of which fact Mrs. Pierce informs him. Daniel Sage arrives on the scene just when Pietro has been acquainted with the glad news. Seeing that Mrs. Pierce is fond of Pietro, and that the said Pietro has not a centime, Sage is very willing to forego one-third of the fortune that will become his, when she marries a poor man. Mrs. Pierce, however, explains that Pietro has now become twice a millionaire, and that she can marry him without losing any of her fortune.

The release date is December 30.

Famous Players Reaching Out.

Company Adds to Its Staff Three Men Noted in Stageland Who Will Be Engaged in Mammoth Productions As Yet Unnamed.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by President Adolph Zukor, of the Famous Players Film Company, of an alliance with three men of international note among stage people. They are Hugh Ford, Frederick Stanhope and Edward S. Morange. Mr. Ford is a director. Mr. Stanhope is a master of ensemble effects. Mr. Morange is a scenic artist. The three men have for a long time worked together on stage productions, many of them of magnitude. Their present alignment with the Famous Players is for the purpose of taking up the production of subjects on a scale not heretofore considered by the officers of the company. It is the intention to make pictures in eight or more reels. The name of the affiliated organization under the auspices of which the productions will be made has not yet been decided upon.

Among the plays staged by this trio may be mentioned "The Squaw Man," "The Dawn of a To-morrow," "The Garden of Allah," "A Daughter of Heaven," "Joseph and His Brethren," "The Bluebird," "The Melting Pot," "Potash and Perlmutter," "The Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmie Valentine," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "The Fourth Estate" and "A Man from Home." There are many others, but these will give to those who follow the drama an idea of what these men have accomplished on the stage. That they have decided to take up the motion picture is bound to arouse as much and perhaps more interest among old-line theatrical men, who know them and their work, than in the picture industry, and this unquestionably is saying much. The first subject to be staged under their direction will be "The Silver King," by Sir Henry Arthur Jones.

Mr. Stanhope's training has been in the largest theaters of London and New York. In the pursuit of his work he has traveled in many countries. For instance, in gathering data for arranging "The Garden of Allah" and "Joseph and His Brethren" he went to the desert in Egypt. Like his associates, he has been connected with the most prominent stars in Europe and America. He is a master of detail. In planning a production he goes to great lengths in original research.

Mr. Morange has been the artistic guide of the two others in this unusual combination. He has traveled in Egypt, where he made sketches he later transferred to canvas for "The Garden of Allah." He has visited Alaska under a commission of the United States Government to secure material for use later in the government exhibit in the Alaskan Exposition in Seattle. He is thoroughly versed in architectural and decorative arts.

Mr. Stanhope was associated for a long time with George Edwardes in London in the production of great Shakespearean tragedies. On the costumes and manners of all periods he is one of the best versed men in the dramatic profession. He has had extensive training in the staging of spectacular pieces as well as Shakespearean subjects. To him, the handling of hundreds of men and women is a matter of no greater moment than of so many dozen. His knowledge of theatrical lighting is extensive — his work at the Century Theater is proof of this.

The remarkable theatrical experience of these three men — dramatic, pictorial, artistic, spectacular — means that the pictures will receive a distinct acquisition. The record of Mr. Ford's productions speaks for itself. Not only is he one of the great producers of the day, but he is also a great constructor. As soon as Messrs. Ford, Stanhope and Morange can close up their affairs here they will leave for the Los Angeles studios of the Famous Players, where they will be allied with Edwin S. Porter. There is none better qualified than Mr. Porter to point out to the trio the differences between stage work and screen work. It must not be supposed, however, that the three men are uninformed as to technical details in the making of pictures; Mr. Ford, especially, has made a close study of the kinematographic art and believes he sees great possibilities as yet uncovered.

FAMOUS PLAYERS AT WORK ON ROMAN SUBJECT.

The Famous Players now have in course of construction a play of Roman life under Nero that strikes an entirely unusual note in subjects of this kind. It depicts the love of a powerful gladiator, whose predominating instincts are those of the brute, for a gentle shepherdess who is made miserable by the illness of one of her lambs. Admiring the gladiator's strength, she marries him, and one day, following him to the arena, sees him kill an opponent in cold blood, to the satisfaction of the applauding multitude. A feeling of revulsion possesses her, and on the moment all her love dies. With a fine delicacy, the story goes on to show how the shepherdess wrought a reversion in the heart of the brute, and how her love conquers the primal savagery of the other.

American Flag in Canada.

Manager of Imperial Theater, St. John, N. B., Throws Light on Delicate Question.

REFERRING to the agitation in British Columbia and other parts of Canada against the use of the American flag in film stories, W. H. Golding, a Canadian manager for the Keith interests in the far eastern section of Canada, makes the following observations:

When the film story deals with a historic subject, something that actually happened, the people of Canada do not take any narrow view of the display of the Stars and Stripes. But there are so many flimsy fictions wrapped around exaggerated deeds of heroism in which the waving of gigantic flags is the central motif that subjects of the British King feel as if they were being over-fed with it.

The "Battle of Bunker Hill" and other historical pro-American films have been received heartily in Canadian theaters because of their historic value. The number of British historical subjects is so infinitely small, however, that the public of Canada feel they are being ignored in patriotic pictures, stories that would be acceptable to any audience and in which it would not be necessary to flaunt the Union Jack for heroic effect.

The Edison people have filmed "The Charge of the Light Brigade," "The Battle of Trafalgar," and other British deeds of valor. The Kalem people have produced some excellent Boer War pictures, and the Vitagraph Company has won many admirers in King George's domains because of faithful details in putting on English war stories—historical and fictitious. Yet, in spite of British patronage on this continent and across the oceans, American producers continue to foist upon outside customers many silly scenarios in which the Stars and Stripes are glorified to an exaggerated extent—stuff that must surely be put on in direct appeal to the gallery.

Mr. Golding thinks the most deeply-seated objection to the use of the American flag so frequently and so scream-eagle-like is that it inspires in the tender minds of Canadian children a misdirected idea nationally. Canada is devoid of film-producing companies, and it is a well-known fact that English films have been of inferior quality. Therefore, Canadian people, depending upon "foreign" films for their program, do not enjoy much of pictures dealing with their own nationality, or in which National emblems are displayed.

The idea is not a narrow one. It is in a measure really serious, and censoring boards in various provinces of the Dominion are taking steps to set aside some of the less worthy American films depending entirely upon vainglorious flag waving for their "punch." Canadians are a tolerant people, and are well satisfied to give support to American productions at all times, but in this matter of flags they feel they are being a little too well supplied.

French and Italian historical and war pictures seldom contain the colors of their respective nations. Evidently these producers consider it a bit au fait to force them upon people of other countries in a flamboyant manner. The story itself indicates clearly the nationality of the playlet, or its people.

There is one objection overtopping everything else in the line of films which Mr. Golding, of St. John, N. B., thinks should be remedied forthwith, and that is in connection with Pathe's Weekly. The Canadian writer complains that American subjects, especially Western boost stuff for the 'Frisco Exposition and the rival cities of Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Ore., (places willing to pay, if necessary, for any kind of advertising) are more frequent than pretty nearly all other subjects combined. The unveiling of innumerable monuments to local heroes in small towns, the opening of high schools, parks and other public institutions by obscure politicians in minor cities of the United States, hardly take on the element of universal news, although it may be very acceptable in the places pictured.

European subject-matter seems to hit the Weekly none too often and there are vast sections of territory represented in the leading newspapers every day by "big news" which never see the light on the moving picture screen. Canada is very infrequently pictured, although important events are occurring between Vancouver and Cape Breton daily.

The Eastern section of the Dominion—and Canada is really the only important neighbor the United States has—is yet to be visited by the Pathe Weekly correspondent, although no part of the whole continent has supplied more people to the growing United States than this particular spot on the map.

The Maritime Provinces of Canada—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island—is the motherland of tens of thousands of families in the most populous tracts of the United States, people who would follow with the keenest interest any photographic reproductions of happenings or achievements in places of their former abode.

I have been in the newspaper and advertising game for nearly twenty years, and my observations concerning Pathe Weekly, or any other photo-news feature, teach me that the producers are blissfully asleep concerning the possibilities of the section of Canada east of Montreal. Big things are happening down here. Just at the present time in this city of St. John alone the Canadian government is spending over $50,000,000 in creating the finest protected harbor on the Atlantic coast. The work is being done by a great firm of English nation-builders, and is designed to carry off the tremendous traffic originating in Canada because of the gigantic strides being made along transportation lines.

"Princess Elena's Prisoner"

Great Northern Subject in Four Parts Featuring Miss Betty Nansen, Tragedienne.

QUEEN of motion picture tragedy is the title that may be justly accorded to Miss Betty Nansen, now being featured in a series of important picture subjects by the Great Northern Film Company, of Copenhagen. The first of the series to be offered in America is entitled, "Princess Elena's Prisoner," a four-part feature of rare photographic and scenic beauty and strong dramatic appeal. A romantic story with a tragic finale gives ample scope for the power of Miss Nansen to depict intense human emotion. It is a probable story developed logically and evenly and holding interest throughout to the last heart-rending scene.

Miss Nansen portrays the part of Princess Elena who is in love with Captain Versin, an enemy of her own country, and a prisoner of war who has been wounded in battle and brought to the hospital at the capital. The princess takes a deep interest in the wounded captive and contrives to serve as his nurse. Her attentions arouse the jealousy of the Prime Minister, who is a suitor for the hand of the princess, and when the prisoner attempts to escape, with the assistance of the princess, he does not hesitate to condemn him to death upon recapture.

Scene from "Princess Elena's Prisoner" (Gt. Northern).

This terrifying result of her efforts to free her lover prostrates the princess, but her love nerves her to make another effort, and she appeals to the Prime Minister for her lover's life. He offers pardon upon condition that the princess shall become his wife. Proudly spurning the protestations of love by the Prime Minister the princess declares that she would rather see the captain dead, and leaves to plan some other escape from dire fate.

Out of the depth of her love, the princess conceives of but one solution—she will seek her lover and they will die together. Arming herself with a stiletto she gains entrance to the dungeon from which he is soon to go to his execution, but when she tells him of her purpose he refuses to die, declaring that his country needs him and he must escape. Stunned for the moment by this lack of appreciation of her love and sacrifice, the princess decides to make another attempt to free her lover. She secures the great coat and cap of the guard hanging just outside the cell door, and in that disguise the captain makes good his escape.

But what of the princess. She has proved a traitor to her king and country; her lover has failed to meet love's supreme test. Even his kiss, pressed upon her hand in parting, becomes repugnant to her and she endeavors to erase it from her memory. Disgrace and death are her portion, and, opening an artery in her arm with the dagger, she is found lying across the threshold of the dungeon by the Prime Minister when he comes to summon his rival to execution.

Miss Nansen's portrayal of the princess reveals a character given much to introspection and suppressed emotions. She has the bearing of a patrician and a reserve that is Spartan. While all this strengthens the tragic atmosphere which pervades the subject, it is just possible that the heart interest would be strengthened if Miss Betty indulged in more than one generous smile in each reel of pictures. Nevertheless, we must confess a strong liking for her methods, and believe that pictures in which she is featured will have a vogue.

It should be mentioned that the old castle shown in this subject is known as Frederiksborg, which was built by King Christian IV about 200 years ago and is now used as a public museum. It is a fine old structure and forms an appropriate setting for this picture.

Mutual Starts Things

Great Activity Marks Proceedings at the Masonic Building Headquarters and Large Results Are Promised.

WITH the acquisition of a galaxy of shining lights in almost every department the Mutual Film Corporation is almost the busiest concern in the picture industry in these parts. Through the Cheltenham Advertising Agency large and conspicuous copy is being placed in the daily papers of New York and other cities and in the Saturday Evening Post—a full page—announcing a Mutual Girl series of pictures, in which Norma Phillips, an actress with the Reliance Company, will be featured. These pictures will show a young country girl in her simple home and then in the midst of fashionable New York, whither her wealthy aunt has taken her to make of her a society belle. She will be shown with the most prominent people in New York, socially, financially, artistically, musically and politically, in the great showplaces of the great metropolis, in the smartest shops, hotels and theaters, at the horse show, the opera and in the stock exchange, meeting the biggest steamship in the world, the massive Imperator, at her dock. Her gowns, her hats, her furs, her hose, her boots, her gloves, her lingerie, her jewels, all will be the most beautiful, the smartest up-to-the-minute equipment, which the fashion experts can supply, and through the lighted screen she will be the first to carry this treasured information to every city and town where Mutual pictures are shown.

Under the direction of Lawrence Griffith it is quite certain that the Mutual Girl series will become an important feature in the Mutual program. Miss Phillips, though but little known to photoplay audiences, is said to possess ability and charm, and these qualifications, with able direction and the wide publicity that has been planned, will surely make the series popular with exhibitors, as well as with the public.

The new publicity department, in charge of Philip Mindil, widely known and experienced press agent, is turning out reams of perfectly good copy. S. H. ("Hopp") Hadley is assisting Mr. Mindil, and the pair make a strong team when it comes to putting the right sort of stuff over. Mr. Mindil is issuing a press sheet to newspaper editors to be known as "Film Fillers." This will carry brevities about the various features and players connected with the Mutual program, especially suited for the needs of the newspaper which caters to the motion picture public.

In the production department unusual activity has been displayed. Mr. Griffith has surrounded himself with experts in every line. Frank Woods is in charge of the scenario department, with Russell E. Smith as assistant. William Bitzer, formerly studio expert of the Biograph Company, joined Griffith, together with Edward Dillon, William C. Cabanne and James Kirkwood, former Biograph directors; Courtenay Foote, recently a leading man with the Vitagraph, not to mention a number of prominent players, already well known to the public. Sam Du Vall is the new property man and stage carpenter.

It is also announced that Miss Katherine Eggleston, newspaper and magazine writer of note, has been engaged as "picture editor," and will contribute to the excellence of Reliance subjects.

In addition to the large studio and factory on the Clara Morris estate, in Yonkers, a new studio has been installed at 29 Union Square, New York. In connection with this studio will be the headquarters of the production department with offices for Mr. Griffith and his staff of editors, directors and assistants.

Altogether, the plans are large and point to H. E. Aitkin, president of the Mutual, as a man capable of big achievement.

EAGER OPENS BIGGER HOUSE.

Not long after J. P. Eager, formerly of the Victoria theater, 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, Bronx, N. Y., took a lease on an old wooden church at 8 Lawrence Street, Yonkers, N. Y., which structure he converted into a picture house seating 260, his business began to grow to such an extent that he opened a new and bigger house on Broadway, near Lawrence Street, with a seating capacity of 500. The new house was opened on the 27th of October, and was built specially for Mr. Eager. The screen in this house measures 12 feet by 16 feet.

Mr. Eager had made a careful study of his patrons before he expended money on the new house, and perceived that they liked certain actors and actresses. With this point in mind, Mr. Eager devised that pictures with a certain actor or actress would be shown on a designated day of each week. Here is Mr. Eager's scheme, and, according to his version, it works well. On Monday it is Lubin day; Tuesday is set aside for Pathe; Wednesday, Edison; Thursday for Kalem; Friday is request day, and Saturday is announced as Broncho Billy day.

"The Big Horn Massacre"

Kalem Camera Shows "Stomach" in a Vigorous Two-Part Indian Picture.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THERE have been so many Indian pictures done in a weak and sloppy way that the mere announcement of another Indian picture is not likely, in itself, to excite much comment. But Indian pictures failed because they were tame; not because they were Indian pictures, and a new release by the Kalem Company, "The Big Horn Massacre," is a savage Indian picture, and is likely to excite comment where it is seen, because it is so savage, so vigorous in the quality of its acton; because the camera shows "stomach" in taking it.

It is strange how much life there is in a camera and how important it is in taking a picture; it is the picture director's only real spectator. This picture, unlike some others we have seen, seems as though the director had produced it from inside the camera. Then, too, it seems as though the camera had been permitted to come right in under wire, to be in the very midst of what was going on, so that it might not miss anything. It wasn't a "rough-neck" camera either. When there was a realistic and freshly exciting duel on, between two Indian lovers, for the hand of the daughter of Buffalo Face, the war chief; when there was hard riding in rough places, or battle smoke, or massacre, or burning, the camera enjoyed recording it; but when there was a war-party of redmen on a moonlit trail to watch, the camera now and then took a look at the mountains robed in pale blue shadows and it also enjoyed the faint dawn-light and the picture of the immigrant camp of wagons as seen through the reeds when the savages were creeping up to the attack, all unsuspected by the devoted men and women asleep under the canvas tops or quietly watching by the dying fires. The camera was there for the sake of the stirring action; but it was, at the same time, alive to the rough and grand beauty of the wild hills among which action took place. There is art as well as liveliness in the picture.

Scene from "The Big Horn Massacre" (Kalem)

It is a spectacular offering, and the story that it tells merely serves to give consecutive reasons for tremendous scenes which, for the most part, truly are made powerfully convincing. After the introduction of the characters, which is done in a fresh and clever way that promises a story in which both white men and red men shall play parts, we are shown a scene in an Indian camp among the hills and near a river. Two Indian bucks are rivals for the hand of Willowbud, daughter of the chief, Buffalo Face. The girl has her favorite, but the father decides that a duel shall determine which shall be the favored one. This duel has a quality that promises good things to come. It is fought on horseback and with short knives, and its outcome is not to Willowbud's liking, so she steals away, to be followed shortly by Hawk Eye, the victor, and this is the cause of plenty of trouble for both white and red.

Lieutenant Stevens is out with a troop of cavalry, and he rescues the maiden in distress from the brave, who goes back to the village and gets the whole band to attack the fort, where they are repulsed. They go into camp in an ugly mood, with watchers set on the hilltops to give warning of all that takes place in the neighborhood. One of these watchers sees a caravan coming into the country through a gap in the hills and brings the welcome news. The fires are stamped on, and the braves steal through the moonlight, and, at dawn, fall on the unsuspecting caravan and, after a stiff fight, massacre all but a white girl, whom Hawk Eye claims as compensation for losing Willowbud, and her lover who rode off to get help. This lover warns the soldiers; but they come too late—the wagons have been burned and the ruins are still smoking. So the dead are buried and the cavalry, dividing into two parties, attack the Indian village on both sides, rescue the girl after a fierce battle, and capture the chiefs.

Stories like this have been told before, but not often have been given such a punch as will be found in these scenes. The camera, as we have said, didn't seem to be afraid of what was going on; it got right up close and seemed, now and then, to be taking a hand itself. This, of course, puts the spectator in the same place, is likely to be interested. William H. West plays Buffalo Face; Marin Sais, Willowbud; Paul C. Hurst, Hawk Eye, and Jack Hoxie, the other red lover. They do well, and are helped by many real braves. Billy Rhodes plays the white girl; E. Clisbee, her lover, and A. Ernest Garcia, the lieutenant. There are plenty of soldiers.

The Engine of Death

A Four Part Apex Feature.

A real Japanese playing a leading part in an European film production is rather an unusual thing, but when the Jap turns out to be a good actor the picture begins to take on an aspect of international novelty that holds the attention. While Americans in general are accustomed to passing Japanese people on the streets every day, the private actions of the Mikado's subjects are obscure and therefore possess a curious interest for those of us who are curious, and that includes nearly all of us.

There are elements in this story that would produce exciting results under any kind of treatment. In this instance they are strong because they are strongly handled. There will never be any question as to the consistency or probability of the tale. It is acted with vigor at all times and contains some very fine bits of backgrounds. The real punch in the picture, however, is reserved for the last. When the Japanese spy is discovered he takes flight in an engine and is pursued by authorities in another engine. If this engine chase does not cause goose flesh to appear upon the backs of ninety percent of the spectators who see it, it will be because they are all paralyzed or something of the kind. For a real thriller this episode would be hard to beat. The engines fly like the wind, and take the curves in a way that makes it appear that they are going to topple over any instant. This chase ends in the collision and demolition of the two engines.

The story in brief concerns a Japanese secret government agent who endeavors to steal the formula of a recently invented high explosive to send to the war department of his own country. He is finally detected in his purpose, is pursued and meets his death in the collision of the engines. Of course, there are numerous moments of suspense and thrilling interest throughout the picture that all go to round out the bare skeleton of the story given here. As a feature it is what is termed in some sections as a "humdinger." There is some very spectacular advertising matter to go with it which ought to bring in the crowds.

FAMOUS AUTHORS TO WRITE FOR ECLAIR.

The Eclair Company announces that it will produce, for release through the Universal program, stories by many famous authors. Among the first will be a detective story. "The Case of Cherry Purcelle," by Arthur Stringer. These will be followed by a series of detective stories which have been published in magazines. Eleanor Gates will write a Mexican story. Harris Dickson will contribute a French refugee story and Eugene Manlove Rhodes will write for the Eclair a strong Western script. The company will also make a number of pictures from the stories of the late O. Henry, the famous short story writer.

LEAGUE TREASURER RIEDER RESIGNS.

J. J. Rieder, treasurer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, has been compelled to resign on account of ill-health. Mr. Rieder's home is at Jackson, Mich., where he has operated a picture theater for several years. At present he is at Roanoke, W. Va., where he is trying to recuperate. Mr. Rieder's resignation is to take effect January 26, at which time the National Executive Committee will meet in Cincinnati, Ohio, and name his successor for the remainder of the year.

COPYRIGHT NOTICE.

The portrait of Mme. Orloff, of the Great Northern Company, which appeared recently in these columns was copyrighted by Mme. D'Ora of Vienna.

"Zuzu the Band Leader"

The Keystone Company Produces Two Reels of Characteristic Farce Comedy Featuring Ford Sterling and Mabel Normand.

By George Blaisdell.

IT seems to be the mission in life of Mack Sennett to make not only the unskillful but also the skillful to laugh. If there be those who fail to see the humor of the situations he builds for us surely they are few in number. Mr. Sennett has done much to add to the gayety of nations, particularly this one. That he is a master of farce comedy or, phrasing it differently, of burlesquing melodrama, there can be no question. His peculiar talent of imparting to others the comedy spirit was finely illustrated in the most amusing Keystone release of "Children." In this picture there are a thousand feet of almost steady fun. Scant basis for it there may be, but everybody laughs at it just the same. When a man can highly entertain for a full reel with child actors we expect much from him in a two-reel subject played by adults. That "Zuzu the Band Leader" will in a measure disappoint the average house we are inclined to believe. This remark applies to the first half of this farce comedy, which also is lacking in the spontaneity of its humor.

Scene from "Zuzu the Band Leader" (Keystone).

The introduction is long-drawn-out. Much could be cut from the alternating views of the antic-performing bandmaster and the maid Mable (the spelling is the screen's), who is so openly smitten with him in utter disregard of the proximity and size of her ferociously-mustached companion Caesar.

Ford Sterling plays Zuzu. Into the interpretation of his part surely he puts all the extra-gingered animation for which he is noted. In his gymnastics he outdoes the wildest efforts of the longest-haired Latin that ever crossed the ocean at the head of a royal musical aggregation. Miss Normand, as Mable, is as nimble as always, time and again risking a session with a bonesetter. Mr. Haggerty is Caesar, he of the striped sweater and skin-tight trousers who essays on various occasions and in divers ways to exterminate the band leader whose efforts to avoid him and escape him are exceeded in strenuosity only by his unavailing and futile attempts to indicate to the lovesick girl that her affection is unreciprocated.

At the opening we see the idolized Zuzu in the center of his most industrious musicians. The band-stand is the roof of a single-story jewelry establishment. In front of him are hundreds of idolizers, among them Mable, who is accompanied by Caesar. The latter, we are told, is "peeved." That his irritation is not insubstantially founded we may easily judge from the condition of the spellbound, cross-eyed Mable as Zuzu leads his hard-working crew in a soulful interpretation of "The Chicken's Dream." It is a moving picture. We see the Dream, plainly. It is even possible the sophisticated may discover the Chicken—a whole brood, in fact, ranging in experience more or less plainly indicated from the squab to the uncertain stage.

Mable is fickle—being a woman, of course, that is her prerogative. While clandestinely attempting to pour her love into the ear of Zuzu even as she tries to jam down his throat the battered relic of a bouquet, she is adding fuel to the fires of jealousy raging in the bosom of Caesar. To this gun-toting bearer of martial visage and ancient name she cooingly suggests that she just knows he does not love her—the only way he can prove to the contrary is by killing Zuzu. History repeats itself. Caesar falls.

We will not follow the many incidents of the pursuit of the shorter by the longer jumpingjack. The two tear through crowds of idolizers and across a skating rink floor, followed always by the stumbling Mable. The end comes when Caesar and Zuzu are caught in an exploding powderhouse. We see the two going up, up, headfirst, and then coming down, down, also headfirst into a tall, soft tree, the flight followed by the eyes of the terror-stricken Mable.

"Zuzu the Band Leader" will go over.

---

TWIST GOES TO AUSTRALIA.

Has Been Engaged by Australasian Films, Limited, to Organize Producing Department—Sails Dec. 15.

STANLEY M. TWIST, who came into favorable notice through his connection with the Selig Polyscope Company, and who has more recently been connected with the World Special Films Company and other interests promoted by E. Mandelbaum, has accepted an offer from the Australasian Films, Limited, to organize a producing company for that concern at Sydney, Australia. Mr. Twist will sail from San Francisco on the S. S. Ventura on December 16th.

The Australasian Films, Limited, was formed a year or so ago by the consolidation of the several picture interests in Australia known as West's Pictures, Spencer's Pictures, J. D. Williams Moving Picture Company, Tate's, and Johnson & Gibson. Mr. Millard Johnson, of the latter concern, is now located in New York City as buyer of pictures for the big company, and it was through him that Mr. Twist was engaged. The Australasian company serves, through its exchanges, some five hundred picture theaters in Australia and New Zealand. Many of these houses are owned by that company, and it is the principal buyer of pictures for that market.

In acquiring the interests of Mr. Spencer, the new company secured a fully equipped motion picture studio, which was built by Spencer some three years ago at Rushcutter's Bay, near Sydney. On account of the negotiations pending for the consolidation of the Australian picture interests, Mr. Spencer, the prime mover in the project, permitted his studio to lie idle. Now that matters of organization have been completed and the machinery of the new concern is working smoothly, the Australasian Films is ready to turn its attention to the production of pictures. It is understood that an experienced London producer has been engaged to direct the pictures, but general work of organizing the production department will be undertaken by Mr. Twist.

The studio at Rushcutter's Bay is said to have cost twenty-five or thirty thousand pounds to build. It is constructed upon the most approved lines, Mr. Spencer having spent several weeks inspecting American studios before he let his contracts.

Undoubtedly the engagement of Mr. Twist will be a distinct advantage to the Australasian company on account of his knowledge of the needs of the world's market. The requirements of the Australian market is strictly limited, so that concern must look to America and Europe for its profits in the production department. It is a big undertaking, but American picture men have a way of doing big things.

---

KALEM TO RELEASE ANOTHER MULTIPLE REEL.

In response to the thousands of requests that it release another large feature every week in addition to its regular Wednesday multiple-reel production, Kalem will withdraw the one-reel photoplay issued on Monday and replace it with a multiple subject. The change goes into effect Monday, January 5th.

Before deciding to make this Monday multiple-reel production a permanent feature of its program of releases, Kalem tried the experiment of issuing these large photodramas at irregular intervals. The comments which poured in from exhibitors all over the country revealed that the demand for the extra multiple-reel feature was one that could not be ignored. The decision to have two large subjects on its weekly program of releases followed.

Such names as Alice Joyce, Tom Moore, Carlyle Blackwell, Guy Coombs, Alice Hollister, Billy Rhodes, Anna Nilsson, Marin Sais, William H. West, Jane Wolfe, Robert G. Vignola, Paul C. Hurst, etc., possess a dollars and cents value which the exhibitor cannot afford to overlook. Knowing that his patrons look forward to the pictures in which these stars appear, he feels that more than one multiple reel should be released every week.

BANS OPENS $12,000 PICTURE HOUSE.

A. F. Bans has opened a $12,000 moving picture theater at Collingswood, N. J. The house, which is known as the New Auditorium, was opened on November 18, and has been playing to good business ever since with a program of Universal pictures. The seating capacity is 600. In the operating booth there are two Power's 6-A machines and a Fort Wayne Compensarc.

John Hancock Collins

Young Edison Stage Director Who has Made Rapid Progress.

ONE of the most remarkable careers in the photoplay world is that of John Hancock Collins, stage manager for the Edison Company. For the past two years this young man has presided over all the settings used in the Edison studio. Every interior setting is designed by Mr. Collins and built under his personal direction. Upon his accurate knowledge of the minutest details of construction and design in every known period of architecture in every clime under the sun, from log cabin to royal palace, depends the correctness of detail for which Edison is famous. To the study of this subject Mr. Collins has devoted an enormous amount of energy, to the end that he is now considered to be an authority.

John H. Collins.

Among Mr. Collins' multifarious duties is the daily task of planning the work of eight directors. Not only must he keep in close touch with the work of these directors and provide a stage for each of them, just when it is needed, but he must also see that the stage is completely set at the moment it has been assigned to the director.

Mr. Collins has originated many wonderful effects in the studio, his genius enabling the Scenario Department to accept manuscripts that presented apparently insurmountable difficulties.

His ingenuity made possible the remarkable pirate battle in "Hard Cash," this great sea fight having been taken on the shores of Long Island Sound, upon two movable platforms, with the waters of the Sound as a background. This was Mr. Collins' solution of a proverb that seemed to require the wrecking of two large sailing ships. The blowing up of the "Maine," which was shown so realistically in a recent Edison release, was accomplished in the studio with a model ship about 6 feet long. The accompanying illustration shows how realistic was the effect obtained after the explosion, which was also pictured. Mr. Collins' skill was again illustrated by the settings of the nether world employed in "After the Welsh Rabbit." The grinning, blinking faces in the grotesque walls, the paving blocks of "good intentions," the table of fire upon which the demons shook white hot dice and which consumed the victim's money in one bright flash of flame, all found their origin in Mr. Collins' imagination. There are countless other examples of his remarkable fertility of ideas, but these will suffice.

Wreck of the Maine—a Studio Scene by Mr. Collins.

But while evolving settings for scenarios of others, Mr. Collins has found time to write an exceptional two reel railroad story which has already caused an unusual amount of favorable comment—"The Phantom Signal." Incredible as it may seem, the great wreck scenes in this film were made in the Edison studio. Miniature trains were employed in making the collisions, the effects being obtained after careful experimentation on the part of Mr. Collins. The striking scene at the side of the railroad embankment after the collision was also made upon the floor of the studio, the realism obtained being a great tribute to the genius of the author and designer.

Mr. Collins, as this film indicates, believes in the photoplay with a purpose. "Any number of articles might be written pointing out the grave danger to human lives which is the inevitable result of greed. Volumes could be published, pointing out the fact that railroad officials are morally, trustees for the lives of those who ride or work upon their roads. But," says Mr. Collins, "I do not believe that they would approach in effectiveness the influence of one photoplay embodying these same ideas."

Mr. Collins believes that many great questions of the present day can and should be presented to the public by means of the photoplay. Let us sincerely hope that he will find time in the future to devote to this problem in his own effective manner.

IRVING CUMMINGS JOINS UNIVERSAL.

Irving Cummings, well known as a leading man on the legitimate stage for years, and a screen star of great popularity, has accepted a flattering offer from the Universal Company to join them as a leading man. Three plays that have made Mr. Cummings famous throughout America and Europe are: "Success," "Ashes" and "The Man from Outside." Mr. Cummings is especially fond of doing these subtle plays, and he has an unusual power for suggesting the finer points of emotion. It is probable that he will do a series with a powerful psychological current running through them.

Irving Cummings.

Mr. Cummings, before entering filmdom, was for years a legitimate actor, having served his apprenticeship as a juvenile leading man with stock companies throughout the largest cities in the United States. His last stock engagement was at the Davidson Theater, Milwaukee, where all the David Belasco's productions were offered during the summer season. For two seasons he was leading man with William A. Brady's "Man of the Hour" company. Before that, for two seasons, he was with "Way Down East," with Broadhurst & Currie's Texas company. Mary Fuller, now of the Edison Company, was leading woman with him at the time he was with the Texas company. His last engagement on the stage was as juvenile leading man with Lillian Russell, both in "Wild Fire" and "In Search of the Sinner." He started in filmdom with Pathé Freres for one year, then went to the Reliance for two years, and in two weeks will be affiliated with the Universal.

BERST RESIGNS PATHE OFFICE.

Mr. J. A. Berst, vice-president of Pathe Freres, announces that he has resigned that office for the purpose of taking up other interests. The Pathe plant in Jersey City, it is said, will be under the direction of M. Bonvillain, recently arrived from Paris, to take charge on Monday, December 8.

At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs.

By George Blaisdell.

THE Great Northern Company is to be thanked for as well as congratulated on bringing to the screen Miss Betty Nansen, the justly famous Danish actress. In the first of the series of six pictures in which Miss Nansen will be seen her work is superb. It shows quality throughout. The title of the four-reel production is "Princess Elena's Prisoner." A princess Miss Nansen seems. Her characterization might with profit be studied by the remaining directors who show by their product a belief that the only way a player can portray strong emotion is by tearing a "passion to tatters." In one of the strongest scenes in this beautifully staged and finely acted drama Miss Nansen shows her power and her confidence in her ability to indicate mental distress in a most restrained manner. The man the princess loves, a foreign officer, captured in battle and allowed to remain a prisoner at the castle, has through her aid escaped. The princess, behind the curtain and in the light from the outside, sees the fleeing man captured and brought back, to his death as she knows. She slowly sinks on a couch. Later, when the man condemned to die in a few hours is enabled to escape through her aid he presses on her hand fervid kisses. The princess had just before offered to die with him, and she had brought with her a long dagger. The soldier had pleaded: "But I must get back to my country." The princess indicated her contempt for the man who had so tactlessly showed his lack of appreciation for her love by trying with the other hand to erase the impress of his lips. She was overdeliberate, but markedly effective. Miss Nansen's support is strong. Two of the players stand out. The portrayer of the role of Prime Minister Bouton as he signs the death warrant of Captain Versin takes up many feet of film in contemplation of the document in front of him. Not an inch of this is superfluous. It is all a marvelous piece of silent acting. The other player is the woman companion of the princess.

"Princess Elena's Prisoner" is a rare picture.

* * *

Another production in the same class as the Great Northern subject is Pathé's three-reel "The Black Countess." It was shown at the Broadway on Tuesday and held a big house. Beautifully staged and splendidly photographed and tinted, with high-class actors and unusual interiors, and, above all, a good story, it is not to be wondered at that George Fitzmaurice, of the Pathé scenario department, remarked at the recent Screen Club housewarming when asked what he knew that was good: "Well, over at the studio we think 'The Black Countess' is pretty good." It surely is.

* * *

It is said of Ellen Terry, when asked to sum up the qualities necessary for a great actor, that she gave these: "First, a good heart, and then three I's: Imagination, individuality and industry."

* * *

The record for attendance at Joe Weber's Theater, in Broadway, where the Universal's six-reel "Traffic in Souls" is being shown, was approximately 25,000 for the first seven days. The admission is 25 cents. The house seats 800. Manager Martin says the total for the second seven days will be in excess of the figures quoted.

* * *

Miss Mary Pickford has left New York, on her way to Los Angeles, stopping in Toronto, her old home, en route. She is expected at the Famous Players Studio by the middle of the month.

* * *

The Fox Amusement Company will open, on December 15th, offices in 146 West Forty-sixth Street, taking the entire fifth, sixth and seventh floors. As a branch of this company will be the Box Office Attraction Film Rental Company, under the direction of Abraham Carlos, which will book features for the houses of the Fox circuit. Mr. Carlos has already selected for his company such pictures as Bosworth's "Sea Wolf," all of the productions of the All Star Corporation, Barker's "East Lynne," "Humanity," Zenith's seven-reel "Ivanhoe," Ramo's "Wives" and Hepworth's seven-reel "David Copperfield."

* * *

J. J. Raymond, of Rochester, N. Y., representing Gordon Brothers' amusement enterprises, is back in town selecting pictures for his houses. Mr. Raymond has been away six or seven weeks, during which time the Gordon circuit tried out a stated program, which it has been decided to discontinue. We are glad to have Mr. Raymond with us.

* * *

Arrived in town just too late to get in on a Thanksgiving dinner—young "Hal" Gates. He weighed eight pounds, and was unusually husky. His first remark was interpreted to be an inquiry as to the latest news in the film world. "Hal's" father, Harvey H. Gates, who makes the Universal Weekly, and also photoplay scripts, makes no attempt to conceal his pride.

* * *

R. T. Lewis, manager of the Plaza Theater, of Akron, Ohio, writes to THE WORLD an appreciation of Paul W. Panzer, who lectured at the Plaza on November 21st and 22nd. Mr. Lewis states that although he had but little time for advertising the Pathé star's coming, his house was filled to capacity on both days. He says he has received innumerable compliments from his patrons as to the interesting and instructive nature of Mr. Panzer's talks. "The attendance and enthusiasm show Mr. Panzer's great popularity with the motion picture fans in this city," continues Mr. Lewis, "and the opportunity to make his acquaintance personally has added greatly to this popularity. The Pathé people should reap considerable benefit from his tour. Mr. Panzer is one of the rare men who make a good impression on first sight, and continue to improve on acquaintance. We feel highly honored at the opportunity given to our friends and ourselves to meet him."

Mr. Panzer is back at the Pathé Studio, after a tour of six weeks; he was obliged to cancel two weeks' bookings, owing to his recall to again take up his regular work. While away, Mr. Panzer addressed exhibitors' meetings in Pittsburgh and Cleveland, and was given hearty greetings. During his trip he has personally met thousands of picture followers, among them foremost citizens. He has been entertained at the family board of many of these, and comes back to his duties with a new understanding of the hold the picture player has on the regard of the great public. Mr. Panzer's last appearance was in Canton, Ohio, on December 1st.

* * *

Bert G. Ennis, publicity manager of the Eclair Company, was married on Thanksgiving evening to Miss Clara Muriel Pirung. The bride is an elocutionist, a musician and a dramatic reader, and in 1910 was one of the founders of the Kensington Players' Club, a dramatic organization of Brooklyn. Mr. Ennis comes from a family of actors and musicians. George Bunny, son of the Vitagraph star, and a boyhood friend of the bridegroom, took motion pictures of the wedding party entering and leaving the church, and also of the festivities following the ceremony. After a trip South, Mr. and Mrs. Ennis will make their home in Brooklyn.

* * *

W. J. Cherry, of the Southern Feature Film Program Association, of Dallas, Texas, has been in New York City arranging for an extension of the business of his company. Where formerly Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana were covered, there are now eleven states in the area of the concern's operations. Mr. Cherry said that offices would be opened in New Orleans and Atlanta. Among other features Mr. Cherry represents are those of the Famous Players for Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas and the All Star in many Southern States.

* * *

The Famous Players have printed and distributed up to date more than a million heralds of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

* * *

"Al" Mayo, formerly with Reliance, is now with Thanhouser, assisting Director Fred Sullivan.

* * *

It was a cold, gray 6 o'clock when the housewarming of the Screen Club came to an official finish. There were four survivors. Each consumed one large glass of clear, cold water, just because he was thirsty. It had been a great occasion. What a gathering there was of players! Probably never in the East had there been so many at one time under one roof. There were many greetings of old comrades. One of these meetings-up that interested the others in the party was between "Bill" Shea and "Marsh" Wilder, who had worked together in Vitagraph comedies. Some one reminded them of the time when Mr. Wilder had been locked in a room—it was an Irish comedy—and the only way the other could get a drink of mountain dew in to the imprisoned man was by means of a long clay "come all yer," into the bowl of which the liquid was poured. It developed about that time that Mr. Wilder did not drink. "I don't have to," he said; "I can get enough fun anywhere at any time watching other people." Mr. Wilder, by the way, had some of his stories with him, and certainly he kept the party in high humor.

* * *

Mrs. Baggot, mother of the Universal leading man, whose home is in St. Louis, has been visiting her son in this city.

* * *

Jack Cohen, of the negative department of the Imp studio, who had received a flattering offer from another company and who was announced as about to resign his present position, will not leave the Universal. Instead he will have added to his present responsibilities the editorship of the Universal Weekly.

Chicago Censorship

Censured and Commended by Differing Minds—Some People Hard to Please.

THE Chicago Censorship Board has been receiving a critical fusillade from various sections of the country on account of the barring of certain moving pictures. The volley from the Committee on Motion Pictures of the National Council of Women, New York, is the most withering. Here it is, as it appeared in the Chicago Examiner:

> "Chicago is a prudish old maid."
>
> That is the opinion of the Women's National Council after viewing in a theater in New York a series of films that Chicago had barred as improper.
>
> The activities of Second Deputy Superintendent of Police, M. L. C. Funkhouser, in putting in jail a woman who went bathing in bloomers without a skirt, in arresting and fining an art dealer for displaying the picture "September Morn" in his window, in barring various moving picture films which did not fit his idea of morality—all these are merely in answer to what Chicago people demand.
>
> But, in New York, an audience made up almost entirely of women sat through a long exhibition the other day at which were shown only pictures barred from Chicago.
>
> "What in the world is the matter with these pictures?" the women demanded when they had seen them. "It must be very easy to shock Chicago."
>
> Miss Kate Davis, chairman of the Committee on Motion Pictures of the National Council of Women, took the films which Chicago had condemned and had charge of the exhibition in New York. The women in the audience applauded many of the pictures which Chicago had rejected as impure.
>
> One picture showed a water fight among a score of little boys, and the women laughed delightedly. Chicago had refused it because the little fellows wore no bathing suits.
>
> Another showed the beautiful steps of a toe dancer.
>
> "Why in the world did Chicago object to that?" asked a woman.
>
> "Chicago doesn't permit toe dancing in pictures," explained Miss Davis.
>
> "I wonder what Chicago would do if any one put on a film showing a tango tea," murmured the woman.
>
> "It never would be seen," Miss Davis explained. "Out there they simply will not allow the modern dances shown."
>
> Another picture was a scene from an Igorrote village, where a cluster of huts stood in front of a grove of cocoanut trees. In the foreground was a dinner party. The father stirred a pot over a fire and the whole family reached in with fingers and took out bits of food and ate it.
>
> "What was the matter with that one?" demanded a woman. "They have on clothes and they're not dancing, and its most interesting. Why did Chicago bar that one?"
>
> "Because it is dog they are cooking in that pot," explained Miss Davis, while the entire audience laughed.
>
> One picture showed a grave-robbing scene, in which the body of a beautiful girl is taken from a coffin and carried away in a taxi. That was barred, Miss Davis explained, because Chicago was afraid it would teach Chicago boys to become grave robbers.
>
> Train holdups, safe blowings and all manner of happenings of everyday life, of which every one reads in the papers, were shown, but Chicago had barred them all on the ground that they "teach crime."
>
> The National Council of Women is working toward a full and sane censorship of all films, but it had to laugh at the attitude Chicago has assumed toward pictures which found only favor before the committee of women.

But there is another side to the question, as the following excerpt from a recent issue of the Chicago Record-Herald shows, and which was sent to that paper by Flo Jamison Miller, of Wilmington, Ill., who is secretary of the Women's National Council:

> "Knowing that the Record-Herald stands for 'a square deal' for all, I desire to correct a wrong done the National Council of Women of the United States through an article which appeared in your issue of today, falsely attributing to that body 'contempt for Chicago's prudishness.'
>
> "The National Council of Women has a department looking to the suppression of objectionable motion picture films. At its meeting in New York a crime cutout film, consisting of cutouts from films that had been presented to the police appointed to censor the same in Chicago, was under discussion. This film was horrid in ever particular and brought forth hearty condemnation from the council, while commendation of the police of Chicago for their action in making the cutouts.
>
> "The proprietor of the theater did say to some of the members, that he saw nothing objectionable in the two scenes mentioned in the article, the bathing and the Igorrote village, but even these did not receive the approval of the council. A resolution was adopted asking the mayor and council of the City of New York to enact legislation which would bring to their city the same security that the City of Chicago today enjoys through its police censorship of films.
>
> "As secretary of the council, and as one who was present when this film was shown, I can speak in the name of the Council of Women and with authority."

Resentment was aroused by the ridiculing article in various women's organizations in Chicago. Mrs. Harriet Vittum, president of the Woman's City Club, emphasized that if Chicago censors erred, it was because they were too lenient.

"I have seen some of the films in New York and it is no wonder to me that they have been suppressed," she said. "I believe every mother in Chicago would stand back of Major Funkhouser in his campaign against improper pictures."

Similar expressions were made by Mrs. Franklin E. Nellis, of the Chicago Woman's Club, Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and others.

---

WILLIAM RUSSELL GOES TO BIOGRAPH.

William Russell, well known in "hero" parts in the pictures, is with the Biograph. He made his debut in films with that company, but left to join the Thanhouser forces, with whom he has been for three years. Before he became a photoplayer, Russell appeared in vaudeville as the muscular star of a prize-fight sketch and is known in the world of the studios as one of the most athletic of its actors.

---

"Victory or Death"

Four-Reel Itala Feature of Highly Sensational Character with Good Story Well Acted.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THIS is a highly sensational melodrama, spiced with adventures in mid-air over land and sea, scenes aboard a burning ship, swift movement of plot and counterplot, all acted by principals of interesting personality, and there lies beneath the surface a mother lode of true interest, the conflict of wills, the clash of character upon character, in the daring attempts of a young girl to recover a valuable invention lost through her folly.

The attractive young simpleton becomes fascinated by a government spy masking as a titled gentlemen and consents to a secret meeting which enables him to overpower her and obtain entrance to the house of her father, a dignified old gentleman who has been entrusted with the custody of a bomb of new and remarkable properties. The emissary of a hostile government gets the device and escapes with it shortly before the girl recovers her senses. She sets off after him, and an exciting chase ensues.

Scene from "Victory or Death" (Itala).

We have ceased to expect that a story of this kind shall approximate the truth. So long as events are cunningly shaped into a story of progressive and intense action, so long as the settings, acting and general presentation are attractive, so long as the drama holds us, though its improbability may amuse us at moments, such recklessness as that exhibited by the heroine may be overlooked, but there is no need of forcing the obvious, as is sometimes done by Italian actors. They are often over-anxious to be understood and become artificial at moments when a little illusion of naturalness would be delightful.

There is a delightful element of truth in the flight of the aeroplane. The heroine mounts it and actually goes sailing off in the air, whereas there is usually a cut for a substitution to be made, a silly trick that deceives no one in front these days. The Itala heroine is not afraid to ride in an air ship—she, apparently, has no sense of fear—and she leaps from it into the water when the ship on which the villain is escaping is overtaken. She is hauled aboard a gig that is lowered and given dry clothes by the passengers.

Her search for the spy leads her to his cabin and he again wins out. He has overcome her and is engaged in tying her, when he discovers that the ship is afire. He escapes with the passengers who throw themselves in the water and are picked up by the boats. The boats have left when she squeezes out of the port-hole. She clings to a piece of driftwood and is rescued by a young American, who happens conveniently to be passing that way on his yacht. A romance begins aboard the yacht that grows very interesting. The yachtsman joins forces with the reckless young beauty in pursuit of the spy and passes her off as his wife at a critical moment.

The romantic relation of these two, compelled by force of circumstances to assume the intimate relations of man and wife, reads like one of those absorbing old-fashioned stories that used to strain mother's eyes and ours as well, and this romance relieves the latter portions of too much sensation. The pictures of the burning ship, the deck scenes of struggle for self-preservation, and the leap from the aeroplane to the sea furnish enough thrills for one play. The story is decidedly well constructed and finely acted.

For the Defense.

A Cloud of Testimony in the Suit of the United States vs. Motion Picture Patents Company.

THE hearings in the case of the United States Government against the Motion Picture Patents Company, and the General Film Company and others, were continued all through the week before Special Examiner Edward C. Hacker in the Manhattan Hotel.

A number of exhibitors, and exchange managers in charge of General Film branches, were called by the defense. Among the former was Mr. Abraham Greenberg, who owns the two biggest motion picture theaters in Camden, N. J., and who has been in the exhibiting business for the last seven years. Mr. Greenberg testified to the highly efficient management of the Philadelphia branch of the General Film Company. He said he was one of the many exhibitors who had patronized the Electric Theater Supply Company, of 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, one of the oldest and most successful exchanges in the country. When the Electric Theater Supply Company was absorbed by the General Film Company, Mr. Greenberg continued with the licensed producers. He declared that the service now furnished by the General Film Company was satisfactory. Among the advantages he enjoyed through the co-operation of the Philadelphia branch was an ability to select and advertise his program weeks ahead. He said that a rival exchange also conducted under a Patents Company license had sought to invade his territory, but that he had been able to beat his opposition through the intelligent aid given him by the General Film Company.

Mr. Greenberg was followed on the stand by Mr. Edward M. A. Super, an exhibitor at Bristol, Pa., and a well-known moving picture pioneer of Easton, Pa., and Southern New Jersey. Mr. Super's testimony was much the same as that of the preceding witness. He said in his seven years' connection with the motion pictures he had never found any service more satisfactory than that of the Philadelphia branch of the General Film Company.

Mr. Robert Etris, an old-time popular exchange manager, formerly in charge of Lubin's rental agency and now a branch manager of the General Film Company in New York City, and M. J. A. Schuchert, a Buffalo branch manager, gave interesting testimony touching the benefits which they said had come to the exhibitor and to the industry at large through the development of a safe, reliable and fair method of distribution. Mr. Harry Schwalbe, the general manager of the General Film Company branch in Philadelphia, was one of the most important and interesting witnesses who have so far testified for the defense. Mr. Schwalbe, who had been one of the owners of the Electric Theater Supply Company before he entered the service of the General Film Company, gave a history of the development of the industry from its earliest beginnings to its present status. He characterized the influence of the Motion Picture Patents Company and the General Film Company upon motion pictures as beneficial.

Change in General Film Service.

Exclusive Service Abandoned for a "Big Feature Service"—Other Minor Changes Planned.

To meet the demands from exhibitors for feature pictures of greater magnitude and to provide adequate means for the distribution of such pictures, the General Film Company announces the abandonment of its so-called Exclusive Service, which consisted of three multiple reel and six single reel subjects each week, and will supply in its stead, through the same organization a series of special features ranging from three to eight reels.

For some time there has been a demand for large features and exhibitors have been compelled to look to dealers in state right subjects to obtain such pictures. By means of the new service the General Film Company expects to enable its patrons to supply the demand without dealing with other concerns. It is claimed that a more reliable feature service will be thus provided to its patrons.

Other changes in the General Film Company's regular service is the substitution of multiple reel subjects for the Kalem Monday dramatic single reel subject and the Edison Tuesday dramatic single reel, each company issuing multiple reels on those dates. This will give theaters using regular licensed service a choice of ten multiple reels each week.

S. N. LICHTER JOINS LIBERTY EXCHANGE.

Mr. S. N. Lichter, of the Liberty Film Renting Co., of Pittsburgh, has been appointed manager of the Liberty Film Renting Co., of Cleveland. Mr. Lichter, is a man of considerable film experience having been with the Liberty Film Renting Co., of Pittsburgh, for a number of years.

New Reliance Studio.

Extensive Plant for the Taking and Making of Pictures Completed at Yonkers.

THE new motion picture studio and factory for the Reliance Company, which has been under construction for some time at the old home of Clara Morris, Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., has finally been completed and is now ready for occupancy. The studio itself was built by Edward B. Kinsila on scientific and practical lines. It is of skeleton steel construction set with ground glass, calculated to admit and diffuse every particle of light.

The entire roof, 100 feet by 50 feet, is supported by thread like trusses without supporting posts that seem hardly strong enough to support the weight. The three side walls facing the sun are composed of removable sash in very light frames, with glass doorways that may admit the entrance of a carriage and pair. These glass sides extend to within two feet of the floor thus admitting lateral light and eliminating all shadows. Along this base is arranged the steam heating coils.

Ample ventilation is provided by two rows of ventilators on either side of the roof ridge and a continuous row underneath the roof eaves, all of which may be regulated from the studio floor. Three light steel trolleys suspended from the roof extend the entire length of the studio, from which lamps for artificial light may be suspended and concentrated at any desired point.

Against the north wall, which is solid, are arranged the scene docks and a painter's frame, with a large door in the middle to give entrance to a building to be built later for the storage of properties and more dressing rooms.

Edward B. Kinsila constructed the beautiful Nollendorf Theater, in Berlin, Germany, in which A. H. Woods recently acquired a half interest. This theater is reputed to be the last word in theaters devoted to moving pictures. By an ingenious combination of showing the picture at the rear of the stage and lighting the auditorium indirectly by lamps concealed behind the wall cornice, the pictures may be shown in a brilliantly lit auditorium on much the same system as that employed in the well-known act, "Black Art."

ROMAINE FIELDING STAGES SPECTACLE.

Lubin Director, Leading Man and Writer, Makes Six-Reel Drama in New Mexico.

Romaine Fielding, the Lubin Director who writes and plays the leads in his productions, has been busy in Las Vegas, N. M., putting on "The Golden God," a six-reel spectacular drama. Its theme is capital and labor. Mr. Fielding was aided in the making of his picture by all the inhabitants of the town and surrounding country. On the day when the greater spectacles were filmed the railroads ran excursions to accommodate those anxious to witness and participate in the mob scenes. To take part in the battle on land and in the air Ralph G. McMillen, the aviator, led a fleet of aeroplanes. The National Guard, as well as a hundred or more of the local lodge of Elks, offered their services, which were accepted. Las Vegas practically declared a holiday, all banks, stores, schools and even law courts being closed.

One of the most picturesque scenes was a brilliant cavalry charge led by Mr. Fielding in a high-powered automobile equipped with a machine gun, operated by soldiers. Hundreds of pounds of dynamite and powder were burned in the battle. The period of the play is 1950, when, according to the screen portrayal, the giant Labor will strike its tyrant Gold. Picture lovers will await the appearance of Mr. Fielding's spectacle with lively interest. The Lubin Western director has the faculty of putting a sincerity and an earnestness into his work which, combined with his constructive skill, always make for human interest.

INNOVATION BY PRINCESS.

The Princess Brand of Mutual pictures is springing an innovation. On Friday, December 19th, they release "The Law of Humanity." The innovation lies in the nature of the picture—dramatic. Hitherto, Princess films have been farces without exception, indeed, the "leads" Muriel Ostriche, Boyd Marshall, Marie Eline, were recruited because of their abilities in the line of farce. Hence, it will be interesting to note their work in "The Law of Humanity," which is an emotional drama of pronounced type.

MEDAL FOR C. FRANCIS JENKINS.

Upon the recommendation of the Franklin Institute, of Philadelphia, the John Scott medal has been awarded to C. Francis Jenkins, of Washington, D. C., for his inventions of motion picture apparatus.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN

High Class and High Salaries.

Donald Grey, of Kent, Ohio, writes:

> For many years I have traveled as leader with dramatic companies, and only to-day my eye alighted on a page in your issue of 15th, entitled: "Music for the Picture." It has determined me to give up the drama for moving pictures. "E. T. C.'s" letter about the horrid jangle of rag-time artists is no less true than the remarks of "H. J. G." and "Friend Lane," who both hit the bull's eye in the disk of truth. The house managers do not offer sufficient salary inducement to tempt musicians, but, on the other hand, can they find any who are worth tempting? "Friend" Lane appealed to his "fellow pianists," but, alas, such a large percentage are, at best, only mechanics—some skillful—some mediocre—some worse, but they play all pictures, comic or tragic, without cessation until the ear is tired with monotonous continuity. Here lies one serious mistake. No picture, any more than does a drama, needs continuous musical accompaniment which not only tires the ear but robs really important points of their dramatic effect and beauty. It is this habit (probably insisted upon by the employer) which prevents real musicians entering the field of moving pictures. No musician could stand such a strain. Get that into your heads, managers. I once joined a show at short notice, arriving too late for rehearsal. I obtained a script of the drama, went through it making notes for use with my own "cue books," and at the drop of the curtain the stage director hurried down to congratulate me upon the success of the incidental music. Said he: "I have been in the business all my life, but never before realized the important part music plays to the drama."
>
> The main trouble with the average orchestra is that they play their music mechanically correct, but, for the most part, that is all; no soul—and, by pandering to the abominable popular taste (so-called) for clap-trap, lose what little they might have had. The moral is: Put in your house one fine instrument, one artist—one mind to control the whole orchestra—the pipe organ. Pay one artist's salary—give him a carte blanche and don't, Mr. Manager, presume to interfere with the exponent of that art of which you probably know nothing. Get that? Yes, and your coffers filled, too.

In commenting upon the foregoing, I want to say that as regards continuous music for the picture, this is a "habit" that has developed with the growth of picture music. Considering all conditions, I think the habit has its good features, and the fault—if it be a fault—lies as much with musicians as their employers.

I have seen many pictures which, in my opinion, were better with very little music, providing that little were applied intelligently. A few pictures are effective without music. Perhaps the day may come when picture music will be applied to certain scenes only, to enhance certain effects, as in stage productions, but conditions must be different from those now existing. Should an exhibitor tell his pianist or orchestra leader (in the average theater) to play music only in places where his own judgment deemed it necessary, I am afraid most of them would only play when they were ashamed to "stall" any longer—and they might not fit the pictures any better than they do now. The ordinary run of pictures are more interesting with continuous music as things stand now. The high-class "features" admit of high-class musical accompaniment, and presuming your manager, operator, musician and audience to be of the same class, many pictures could be treated as you say. The pauses should never be made abrupt or startling. It should not be asked by the hearers, "Why did he stop playing?" nor should it detract the attention when he resumed playing. Music for the picture should never be loud nor insistent; especially in cases like these under discussion should the music be kept down very soft (swelling to action), and dying out in a whisper; it should also be introduced in the same unostentatious manner. The exceptions are where tumultuous scenes are suddenly introduced or withdrawn. But this sort of thing need not necessarily be confined to the pipe-organ. Those who are so fortunate as to view some of Mr. Rothapfel's picture feasts (I see he has started one in New York City) may get a new grasp of musical accessories—organ and piano, orchestral and vocal—to the moving pictures.

More Concert Music.

Miss Bernice Thayer (name of city not given, postmark illegible) writes:

> In a recent issue of The Moving Picture World you take occasion to criticise orchestras playing what you are pleased to call "concert programs" for moving pictures. I am a member of a ladies' orchestra employed in the leading picture theater of this city. We show the best grade of pictures (Licensed) and play the best grade of music. Moreover, we play it just as it is written—just as the composer intended it should be played so far as lies in our power. I do not believe in cutting or slashing good music just because some parts of it do not happen to be in keeping with certain scenes on the screen. Of course, we try in a general way to choose music which will harmonize with the picture, but if the finale of an overture comes in the middle of a picture, we play it there. Our manager is making a feature of his orchestra, and the patrons of the theater come to hear the music as well as to see the pictures. In fact, the orchestra gets more applause than the pictures do. There are two sides to every question you know, and it might be as well that you look on both before condemning "concert music" in picture theaters.

Your music gets more applause than the pictures. Naturally. It gets the best chance. If your manager is satisfied and the audience is satisfied, and the orchestra as well, there is no argument. And I'm not condemning concert music in picture theaters. I merely say that it seldom or never enhances the value of the picture. I have visited such places at times and can say that I could shut my eyes and enjoy the show. It interfered with my pleasure somewhat during a beautiful rendition of "Pilgrim's Chorus" or "Evening Star," to open my eyes and see the bandits shooting up a train. But I do say that good standard music can be used intelligently and help the picture. And playing a standard overture in such a manner that you bring a heavy finale in a quiet passage of the story is not an intelligent way of accompanying the picture. In fact, I cannot see wherein a standard or any other kind of an overture played in its entirety "just as the composer wrote it" can fit a dramatic picture, unless by pure accident or the picture made to fit the overture. Here is my position. A moving picture theater is first of all a place in which to exhibit moving pictures. That is what it purports to be and that is what the average patron expects it to be. People come to see pictures. The pictures are the show. Now, anything in the way of accessories, musical or otherwise, which can add to the attractiveness of the show (the pictures) is legitimate; when the orchestra or anything else is made so prominent as to detract from the real show, the establishment loses its identity to that extent as a picture theater and becomes something else. Some managers put in vaudeville acts which get more applause than the pictures. If his patrons like vaudeville better than pictures, well and good; he is catering to their wishes. His house belongs to the vaudeville class, but he doesn't show acts and pictures at the same time. If his patrons like concert music better than pictures, they'll get it, but an orchestra that is good enough to be featured should be featured by itself on a stage fully set and lighted for the purpose, instead of making the show a two-ring affair. The manager is in business to make money, but if his good concert orchestra detracts from the pictures and gets the most applause he is running a concert theater. If your music predominates, the pictures must, of a necessity, become secondary in importance. If your pictures are the show and your music an accessory to the show, then you are "playing the pictures," and your work comes under this head. Otherwise, it doesn't need to interest you and that's all there is to that.

Foreign Trade Notes

BRITISH NOTES.

(Special Correspondence to THE WORLD.)

BY THE time this communication becomes cold type there will have reached New Zealand one of Mr. Charles Urban's right-hand cameramen, a young fellow named Horton, whose duty it will be to secure Kinemacolor records of anything scenically or socially interesting in that section of the Antipodes. A colleague of mine who had a few words with Horton immediately previous to his departure tells me that he is anticipating a little better luck than attended his recent tour in Japan. He was despatched to Nippon at a moment's notice by Mr. Urban with instructions to secure Kinemacolor pictures of the late Emperor's funeral for exhibition in England and America. He rushed posthaste overland, successfully convinced the Russian cossacks that his camera was not a concealed bomb for the Czar, only to find upon his arrival in Tokio that the ceremony would take place at midnight. Respecting moving picture conditions in Japan, Mr. Horton says that shows are as prolific as in the West. European travel and educational pictures and American sensational subjects are much in request, but there is no demand for comics. There are very few native pictures and he thinks there is a future for a producing company specializing in these. All films exhibited have to pass the State Education Department.

* * *

The topic of the week for discussion in trade circles has been the high-handed action of the government authorities across the Channel in announcing that after June next ordinary celluloid films will be prohibited in France from public exhibition. There does not seem to be any immediate possibility of a similar decree being issued to exhibitors in this country despite the persistent rumor that the Commission of Enquiry into celluloid storage and dangers, now in conference in London, are contemplating new restrictions. These, it is being whispered, will only demand the licensing of film stores in the city. A day or two ago the Middlesex County Council held its annual meeting, and, by a large majority, resolved to insist upon the Sunday closing of moving picture theaters. American readers unfamiliar with this country must not confuse this body, which, although controlling theaters in greater London, does not affect those under the jurisdiction of the London County Council.

* * *

A month or so ago I gave a few particulars of a sensational film handled by Messrs. Ruffells, entitled, "Through the Clouds." The production has been banned by the police at St. Helen's in Lancashire as tending to educate the young in methods of the criminal. The film under suspicion was produced in this country last summer.

* * *

The past few days have seen a large proportion of exhibitors selecting their Christmas features. I think the most in demand will be Thanhouser's "Little Dorrit," for the reason that it is a story comprehensible by children, and also by an author whose name alone is synonymous with the festive season. In my opinion, the Thanhouser Company have made a serious omission by not having this subject colored, for eight out of ten theaters exhibit colored subjects during Christmas week. Enquiries at the principal film renting houses in London elicited the information that the American films most in demand for Christmas include Kalem's "Manger to Cross," "Three Wise Men" (Selig), "Robinson Crusoe" (Bison 101), "Beauty and the Beast" (Rex), "Cinderella" (Thanhouser), "A Good Little Devil" (Famous Players Co.), "Madelaine's Christmas" (Lubin), "Old Folks' Christmas" (Imp), "Night Before Christmas" (Vitagraph), "A Christmas Accident" (Edison), and "A Counterfeit Santa Claus" (Selig). There is a similar number of seasonable releases by the home manufacturers, the two of most outstanding merit being "A Little Snow Waif" (British and Colonial), and "The Newsboy's Christmas Dream" (Cricks & Martin).

* * *

The British-Canadian Film Company has been registered to exploit film producing in the Dominion. The new concern is to specialize in educational subjects and dramas of a patriotic order. The capital has mostly been raised in Montreal and the Canadian head-office will be located in that city.

* * *

B. Nichols, the British agent for Kalem, A. B., and other American houses on this side has just returned from New York with yet another representation, that of the Solax Company.

* * *

Beginning December 1st, the London address of the Flying A Co. will be 193 Wardour Street, instead of 101 Wardour Street. Pressure of business has necessitated their removal to larger premises.

* * *

The Transatlantic Film Co. (in reality the "Universal") is now firmly established in its English home in Oxford Street. This week they are inviting the general public to inspect the showrooms and a complete miniature producing plant.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

PARIS LETTER.

(Special Correspondence to THE WORLD.)

THE Society of Authors and Composers has resolved to consider the picture theater as a "legitimate" theater and included the cinematograph in it's statutes of association. Although it has been decided that authors shall be remunerated in proportion to the receipts of the picture theaters, it is not known definitely how and when this measure will be put into practice. It is certain, however, that henceforth the Society will negotiate for the sale of scenarios direct with the manufacturers. Existing contracts between producers and authors will nevertheless remain valid.

These important decisions were voted unanimously at a historic meeting of the Society of Authors and Composers held on November 6th, at the Civil Engineers hall. Monsieur Robert de Flers read the report of the special commission which was delegated some time ago to enquire into the question of "authors rights" in respect to photoplays. He cited the colossal increased turnover of a moving picture firm and pointed out that the payment of authors had not increased proportionably. Briefly, he said the time had come for the cinematograph to be included in the rules of the society. Authors must combine. The picture theater must be placed on the same level as the theater and regulations framed whereby the latter would be in a more favorable position to fight its opponent. The illustrious president of the society explained at length that the authors bore no malice against the manufacturers. They would in the future as in the past continue to be on the best of terms with the manufacturers. They would not recourse to pernicious methods to obtain their goal. What they asked for was a modest but reasonable profit. Their scheme would help to strengthen the industry. In short, their proposals would be all for the benefit of the entire trade.

Monsieur de Flers was loudly applauded by the brilliant company present. Never in the annals of the society has any proposition been received with such enthusiasm and voted so unanimously. It remains to be seen how the levying of "authors rights" will affect the exhibitor. Showmen here, of course, pay a certain percentage of their receipts to the society of authors and composers for the privilege of playing music composed by members of the society.

* * *

Joseph Menchen's celebrated film "The Miracle," is to be presented at the Casino de Paris, next January.

* * *

A trade exhibition of a picture called "The Romance of Carpentier" was recently given at the Cinema. The film depicts the life story of the famous French boy boxer Carpentier. It contains such diverse scenes as a pit boy's work and the pas de l'ours danse at Maxim's night restaurant. Carpentier, of course, plays the principal role and is supported by Mlle. Berthe Bovy of the Comedie Francaise and M. Harry Baur of the Renaissance theater. The young pugilist was present at the special show and the trade men gave him an ovation. The producers are the "Grandes Films Populaires." Aubert is concessionaire.

* * *

Louis Aubert has been busy in Brussels organizing a branch from which he will rent his big exclusives in Belgium.

* * *

Miss Campton, an English actress, who is better known in France than in her native country, will appear for the first time in moving pictures in an Eclipse production.

* * *

One time member of the Paris Municipal Council, Monsieur Leopold Bellan is now devoting his time to the Societé d'Enseignement Moderne (Modern Teaching Society), of which he is the active president. In July, M. Bellan promulgated a scheme for educational moving picture classes. On October 23rd, the first Thursday matinee of instructive motion pictures was given at the Villiers hall before a large audience mainly composed of pupils from the primary and secondary schools of this city. Monsieur Armand Gauley, professor of diction at the Normale school lectured as the films were projected. The films included a fine geographical subject depicting the transit of a letter from Central Africa to Marseilles. Next will be the little Parisian's half holiday.

* * *

Commander Evans is to give a lecture at the Sorbonne illustrated with moving pictures taken on the Scott Antartic expedition. It is anticipated that President Poincaré will attend.

* * *

"To Win the Million," the Eclair cinematographic musical farce is to be presented to the public at the Empire music hall this month. It will subsequently go to England.

* * *

Louis Aubert, who is very much in the spotlight just now, has formed a producing company. Grounds have been leased near Paris. The firm proposes to make six important films per year. The photoplays will be selected from the works of the best authors. The first film "l'Abandonee," by Arthur Bernede, is about to be placed on the market. For this picture quite a constellation of star artists from Paris theaters were engaged, including Mlle. Delval of the Theater Sarah Bernhardt. The reel will measure approximately 3,600 feet. The same firm is now preparing a film version of Emile Zola's "La Curee."

* * *

It is pleasing to observe the progress of our industry in France. During September fifty-two new companies were formed, representing invested capital to the extent of over one million five hundred and forty thousand dollars. Since the commencement of the year no less than 401 new firms have come into existence.

* * *

The exclusive is now firmly established. E. Hembert, of "Big Artistic Successes Tours," will organize the presentation of features like "Quo Vadis?" throughout France.

* * *

The S. C. A. G. L. production of Jean Richepin's "La Glu" was issued by Pathe Freres on non-flam film. The Monat Film Company announces that all Hollandia subjects will in future be supplied on non-flam positive stock.

* * *

Parisiana must rank as one of the safest picture theaters in Paris. Paul Ruez, the proprietor, has installed a patent fire extinguishing apparatus of which he is the inventor. The device consists of a cylinder containing special fire extinguishing liquid. The cylinder hangs from the roof of the operating room. To set the machine in action, one has but to pull one of the cords placed in various parts of the house as well as outside and inside the room. Immediately a cord is pulled, the liquid floods the operating room. At the same time, and automatically, the lights in the hall are switched on and a powerful fan is set in motion for the purpose of driving the fumes out of the operating room. Once a week this device is tested.

* * *

Paul Ruez has just opened a great picturedrome outside Brussels. It has a seating capacity for three thousand. Prices are fixed for the pockets of the masses.

* * *

The A. B. feature "Battle of Elderbush Gulch," has scored heavily in Paris. The picture was starred at many cinemas.

* * *

It is announced that Pathe Freres will not guarantee to supply the films they are asked for to exhibitors booking less than three thousand feet of Pathe film per week.

* * *

Readers may be interested to learn how Paris showmen select their programs. Pathe and Gaumont, who rent direct, show their productions at their headquarters. The majority of other brands are displayed at the Consortium and Majestic picture theaters where managers gather weekly to make up their bills.

* * *

The well known composer Raoul Gunsbourg is going to make photoplays. He has taken a big Paris studio and engaged a troupe of Italian artistes. He will produce in motion pictures the most popular operas presented during the past seasons at Monte Carlo.

* * *

The apparatus manufacturer J. Debrie has just put on the market his 1914 new model printing machine.

* * *

Twenty thousand dollars is being offered to anyone who can prove that any incident in Robert Schwabthaler's film "With the Greeks in the Firing Line," was faked.

* * *

Gervais-Courtellement, the celebrated photographer and lecturer is giving a series of most interesting travel lectures at the Gaveau hall. His entertainment is described as "Art Visions" and the title has been well chosen. M. Gervais-Courtellement exhibits a remarkable collection of natural color stereopticon views illustrating his travels abroad. The lectures conclude in a striking way to the accompaniment of singing, beautiful, dissolving views that are thrown on the screen and the effect is quite indescribable.

JOHN CHER.

MISS FRANCESCA BERTINI.

The above is a splendid likeness of the beautiful and talented Italian actress, Miss Francesca Bertini, who plays the lead in "Venomous Tongues," the first Kleine-Celio release for Tuesday, December 2nd. Miss Bertini formerly was one of Cines leads.

FRANK DAYTON.

How fine it would be if all motion pictures were to be acted by men and women of such rare dramatic experience as that possessed by Frank Dayton, that sterling member of the Essanay Eastern Stock Company. In these days of much vaunted legitimate stars who are beginning to hear the call of the motion pictures it is doubtful if any company, composed of stars or otherwise, can show an actor whose work will surpass that of Frank Dayton, for understanding, style, force or finish. For absolutely sure-fire results, with no favors asked, he is without a peer on the motion picture screen. Anything he does in a picture stands out clean-cut like a cameo a finished gem; and it is high time that his work should be publicly recognized.

Frank Dayton.

While possessing a charming personality, Mr. Dayton is a man of serious thought, with a decidedly literary turn of mind. Many a poetic pearl has come from his gifted pen, brimful of sense and sentiment. We often wish that he would favor the readers of the World with an occasional timely verse, by which means it is certain that he would quickly take his place as the Poet Laureate of the movies.

However, like most professional men, Mr. Dayton has a hobby. His hobby is fire-fighting and most of his best efforts have appeared in firemen's publications, following some serious disaster that has cost firemen their lives. Among firemen the country over Frank Dayton is known as one of them, and is an honorary member of many of their societies. In his long traveling career he has been welcomed by the fire departments in nearly every city in the land as a friend and as an expert authority on fire fighting apparatus. He is not an ordinary "buffalo" of the kind that sits around the fire-house, but dons a helmet and goes in where danger lurks. And many are the genuine and thrilling rescues he has made in burning hotels, in a way that stamps him as a man of high personal bravery. He is honored by and made the companion of fire chiefs wherever he goes.

Mr. Dayton has been an actor for thirty-five years, beginning in 1879 at the National Theater in Philadelphia, playing "Corkett" in "The Silver King," which part he played for three years. He next put in four years with J. K. Emmet the elder, the time being split by a two year engagement with Miles & Barton's "Lost in New York." In 1890 he joined Charles Frohman's Empire Theater Stock Company appearing first in Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah," at the old Star Theater, at 13th and Broadway. Next followed long engagements in "The Lost Paradise" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me." He then left Frohman to play the part of Frank Layson, the hero in Jacob Litt's "Old Kentucky," which part he played for seven years, broken only by appearances in a big revival of M'liss.

In 1908 he left the stage and introduced talking moving pictures with a company of four people behind the screen at Lubin's Philadelphia theaters. In one year he talked 3800 exhibitions in this manner. He then took the stage direction of the 15th Street Theater, Philadelphia, in charge of the talking pictures. After that followed two more seasons with "Old Kentucky," followed by a year and one-half with Lyman Howe behind the screen. In 1910 he was engaged by the Essanay Company with which he has been ever since.

---

MUSICAL SCORE FOR "PROVENCE."

In tune with the theatrical billing that calls Miss Maude Fealy, leading lady of Thanhouser's "Legend of Provence," the "late star of" a film that went before, a composer for regular musical show productions, E. A. Price, of the Tams Music Library, has been engaged to do a score for the "Provence" picture. The latter is a release of the new "Big Productions" department of the Thanhouser concern, and exhibitor readers of this journal may obtain the music gratis by addressing a line on their letterhead to that department. C. J. Hite, the Thanhouser head, created the new branch in answer to the demand for special features that has arisen lately. Bert Adler has the business charge. A four-part picture featuring Miss Fealy or some other widely known player, is released on the first day of each month and "exclusive" service furnished exhibitors under contract.

Flickers

Jules Burnstein.

MY good looking friend this week is Jules Burnstein. Once in a while you catch him with a smile, but you know when a fellow is managing the film rental department of such a prosperous and growing concern as the World Special Films Corporation, he has to look serious occasionally, or you folks wouldn't think he belonged to the title of General Manager. Jules is a good fellow and one of the very best posted men in the trade today. He thinks and talks films and rental prices day and night until the figures stand in line, then lie down dead, and do all those funny stunts. He is a good asset to the company he represents, and can play the game right.

* * *

Evidently New York doesn't look so very good to Stan. Twist, as it might, if he continued his visit with us for a while longer. As it is Stanley H. Twist, as he is formally known, tired of Chicago and resigned his position with the Selig Co., to come to New York and help to increase the bank roll of E. Mandlebaum, president of the World Special Films Corporation. Having exhausted his best efforts here, while accomplishing his purpose, he intends to leave us now for a trip half around the world. His destination this time is Australia, and he will try to triple the profits of the Australasian Film Company. There is no doubt but what he will make a very strong effort, because it is an awful long walk back home if he doesn't. I met him Saturday night and he told me all this.

* * *

Richard Lembeck, formerly with the Solax Company in Fort Lee, New Jersey, has been booked for the season of 1913-1914 by Belasco, to appear with David Warfield in "The Auctioneer."

* * *

I visited Edisonville, a suburb of Orange, N. J., last week and found all the store windows and refreshment parlors, including the restaurant and other places displaying a one-half sheet poster announcing the big amusement event of the season, a three act drama to be enacted by members of the Edison dramatic club. Our good little friend L. W. McChesney, formerly advertising manager of the General Film Company and now sales manager of the Edison Company, since he got back to the simple life, has given up athletics for dramatics, and is now heading the cast as leading man. I'll bet the Oprey house was filled to capacity all right. You can say what you like about those amateur actors.

* * *

Leon J. Rubenstein, president of the Ruby Features Company, announces a brand new and attractive, single, juvenile subject. It is a bouncing ten pound baby boy, which made its appearance Thanksgiving Day.

* * *

Bill Kalem Wright has a new pet. It is a fifteen-inch alligator, a present from the director of the Florida company of the Kalem Company. Mr. Wright has christened the insect "Kalem," and at the mention of its name, it never even looks at you.

* * *

C. S. Edward, formerly assistant to manager Isner, in the Kansas City office of the General Film Company, has been promoted to fill the place left vacant by Mr. Isner, who has resigned.

MAC.

---

JEAN DARNELL ILL.

Jean Darnell, well-known as a Thanhouser leading woman, lies ill at the German Hospital, New York City. An intestinal trouble is the cause. She has been "out of pictures" for a couple of months and last week the doctors decided that the hospital was the best place for her. On leaving the German Hospital, Miss Darnell will "rest up" for some more weeks on the farm of Cecil Spooner, the New York "stock" star. In addition to her fame as a Thanhouser photoplayer, Miss Darnell is of note as the contributor of a monthly "gossip" department to a moving picture monthly.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Bert Williams Again.

BERTRAM I. WILLIAMS is again a publisher. Since the airdome at Ponca City was closed, following the death of its owner, Williams has done a lot of traveling, and from the wilds of Oklahoma he has found his way close to the Canada border, locating in Fairmount, Minn., where he is now with Hay and Nicholas at the Haynic, and editor of the Fairmount Photoplay Forum, the house organ of the Haynic.

Mr. Williams, it will be remembered, undertook to establish the league of program publishers. He has, we think, ideas rather too large for the start, but at least he is starting something, and to show what he knows about programs he is producing a program, sixteen pages and cover, for the Haynic with one "national" advertisement and some local stuff. The second issue of the sheet is to hand and it, physically, looks decidedly good, with plenty of chatty reading and crisp comment, a lengthy story of "From the Manger to the Cross," one of the coming attractions, and a program of the week with a page a day. It is not dated, which is a mistake, save one eight point line on the first page. There is nothing on the cover to show the date, though the current and volume number is given there, and this, we think, is a very grave mistake. Primarily the program is printed to draw trade and everything should be done to this end. One of the most important things is to give the reader every help in determining the date and it would have cost little time and less money to have dated each page of th program and the front cover.

We are strongly in favor of general comment instead of matter strictly confined to the films of the week, but something more should have been given the house, its advantages and general run of coming attractions. Mr. Williams writes cleverly, but this seems to advertise his cleverness at the expense of space that should properly go to the house.

Possibly the explanation is found in the statement that second-class mailing privilege has been asked for, but it is not possible to get this rating for a house organ, and if it were the advantage in mailing at the pound rate does not overcome the disadvantage of having to pretend to be a paper for general circulation.

Do Yourself Good.

The publication stuffed with copied press-work does little or no good. A certain amount of general matter is needed to carry along the house stuff, but the house stuff should be there and in such a shape that it will sink in. Give enough reading matter to make the sheet not only read but looked for, but at the same time do not try to turn your sheet into a weekly newspaper when you have films to be advertised and house notices to be given out.

The current issue, for example, covers Thanksgiving Day. At the bottom of the program page for that day is the bold type, "Matinee at 2:30." Just that, and nothing more. If you are anxious to find out whether or not they will have a matinee you can turn to the page for that day and learn that they will, but there is nothing else to show it. On every page of text there could have been something like: "After the Turkey see 'The Test,' a two-reel Vitagraph special—something to be thankful for. Thanksgiving matinee at 2:30, and the usual evening performances." "The Test of the turkey is the eating. The Test of the Vitagraph is a two-reel special that forms the feature of the Haynic's Thanksgiving bill. A matinee at 2:30 in addition to the usual evening performances."

That's the sort of stuff that makes the program pay. The "reading notice" scattered through the text is the very excuse for the text. Two pages are given the coming of "From the Manger to the Cross," but not a line in the other eighteen pages to drive home the announcement.

We have said a lot of nice things about Mr. Williams, but we'll take some of them back if he does not show a better advertising value for the expenditure he makes.

More care should be taken with the announcements of the reels. There is no pull in the paragraphs. A two-part Essanay, "Tony, the Fiddler," is announced:

> Here is another example of fine stage direction and acting, as well as a story of strength and worth to be credited to the Essanay producers. Natural expressive and unconscious acting, by all the principals and support was pleasingly conspicuous.

Lubin's "Going Home to Mother" is

> One of those comedies that always raise a smile. And it's a perfectly possible event, therefore its realism adds greatly to the humor.

A glance at the synopsis should have given something more like this:

> She started to go home to mother—but she passed a dry good's store window. She did not get very far past it and instead of going home to mother, she went back to Hubby because her money was all gone—but she had a lot to show for it.

Instead of studying the synopses, the announcements have been faked, and like all fake stuff, it is unconvincing and uninteresting.

Some Scrapper.

Lately in commenting on a booklet sent in by Henry Goldman, of Green Bay, Wis., we said we should like to see some of his advertising. He comes right back with a meaty collection of comment. It seems that the Green Bay teachers were quoted in a local editorial as advising the parents to keep their children away from the photoplay theaters on account of an excess of Western stories with gun play and similar trimmings. It was not unlike the recent Haynic trouble, and Mr. Goldman waded in with both feet and his trousers rolled up. This was the starter:

> THE COLONIAL THEATER CHALLENGES THE "SCHOOL PRINCIPALS' ASSOCIATION."
>
> And we ask every man, woman and child, who read the article on "Moving Pictures" in last night's Gazette, to read this letter:
>
> We cannot help but feel that by passing the resolution mentioned that the Green Bay School Principals' Association is doing a very great wrong and injustice to this theater. If such a condition of affairs as this paper persists in picturing exits, we do not know anything of it and absolutely refuse to be classed with the theaters exhibiting harmful pictures. We object most emphatically to this association or any other organization or individual taking moving pictures in general to condemn. Before passing or ever thinking of such a move, how much fairer it would have been for some one of said principals to visit the various theaters of the city and then criticize. Had this been done our theater would have to be excluded from the condemned list. Since we opened in May, we wager we can count on the fingers of one hand the number of times any of these principals visited our theater, but if, in any of these few times, any principal imagines he saw a harmful picture we openly defy him to name the picture and producers. We will go further, we will challenge the whole association to name one picture that has been exhibited in our theater since we opened that has had any moral weakness—any objectional parts.
>
> We can prove that our pictures are doing good. There is never a picture that we show that does not help someone. We will prove to any principals' association or any other association of public-spirited moralists that this same Colonial Theater is the only theater in the city today exhibiting a daily educational or instructive film, and we can prove further that the management has actually lost money on the same. All we need to do to keep the crowd down is to advertise an educational picture and still we do it, believing that the people will become educated to it. We've got proof for anything you want to charge us with. The management of the Colonial Theater cannot help but feel a gross injustice at being classed by all educators with theaters wherein unmoral pictures are seen, if any such there are in this city.
>
> Give credit where credit is due.
>
> Children are as safe in our care as they are in the care of their Sunday School teacher.
>
> We have doubly censored films and have invited and do invite again any member of any institution, organization, or principals' association to come to this theater at their convenience, free of charge, and censor our program again.
>
> This is not all. See Tomorrow's Adv.
>
> COLONIAL
>
> "With a reputation like a goddess."

Do you "get" those goddess reputation? We know some goddesses that were no better than they should have been, but still. Next came this:

> ### Is It Worth While?
>
> Where none admire 'tis useless to excel. Half of the best that is in the world came because men craved or expected appreciation. The management of this theater has always done its utmost to keep the programs of its theaters of the most moral and refined character. We were almost scrupulous in our choice of subjects for exhibition. We realize, perhaps better than most people, that the people who want and really demand pictures with highly sensational and suggestive scenes or daring and exciting tales of reckless Western life were the majority and still we continued to cater to the minority, trusting that our co-operation with them might help in their becoming the majority. When the teachers and clergy became interested and then when the Drama League established a center here our demands at the booking offices were actually hard to meet—we were so extremely careful. The natural result was a secession among our patrons. We LOST the element whom we refused to supply with cheaper productions and we LOST THE CHILDREN—by the hundred. We gained perhaps none, but we counted on retaining our better patronage. WAS THIS WORTH OUR WHILE? Did the better class voice their appreciation. Yes, they did so by condemning us—by classing us with any and all other shows—"by going on record as against" our offerings. Be honest, would such appreciation encourage you?

And as a third round came this:

> ### If There Is Any Appreciation In You,
>
> You will appreciate the efforts of this theater to give the people of this city a show that is—
>
> (a)—Big and metropolitan in every way;
> (b)—To the liking and tastes of the individual;

> (c)—Clean and moral in its entirety, even lacking as far as possible all highly sensational and exciting scenes.
>
> In defense of this last (c) we can simply refer you to the film exchanges who supply our programs, to the National Board of Censors, New York, who censor every film we rent, to the Green Bay Center Drama League of America, whom we have asked to censor and supervise our bookings; International Moving Picture Association, of which we are a member, or to the thousands of people who purchase tickets every week at our cash office. If they see insulting or objectionable pictures why do they come again and again? These are adults. Then, if we have pictures of an exciting kind—of "absurd Indian fights and Western stories," which "appeal so strongly to the impressionable minds of the little ones," where is the appeal? Is it all wasted? We have fewer children in our audiences than any other theater in the city. A conclusive argument that if children seek excitement and "hold-up" scenes, etc., that they go elsewhere because they cannot see these at the Colonial.
>
> ### "Great Growing Green Bay" (?)
>
> At the very same time that nearly all the great universities, colleges, high and elementary schools of not only America, but every other progressive nation, are praising and lauding moving pictures in superlatives, calling them "Edison's Greatest Invention"—"The Educator of the Masses," etc., old Green Bay instead of waking up turns over again and condemns them.
>
> The University of Syracuse has a professorship or chair in Moving Pictures and gives degrees quite as in any other subject. Another great polytechnic institute teaches the manufacturing and the projection of pictures. All the important universities own projection machines and rent films on regular service quite as we do. Here's an interesting point, too—they do not book exclusively such films as "Hydrogen"—"Oxygen"—"Life of a Plant" (all shown at the Colonial), but they book Western stories that are thrillers, and Indian stories of the most blood-curdling type to teach history effectively. How can the French and Indian wars or the stories of '49 and the early West be taught without Indians and Western scenes and guns, too?" Can anyone name a better way for teaching history? And then those "sickening love stories." They use them, too. They use "Romeo and Juliet"—"Pelleas and Melisande," and the other stories of the Hon. Mr. Shakespeare and the other boys, who really wrote love stories that were daring. The books are classics, the pictures are immoral. (Consistency.)
>
> Priests and ministers choose themes from the lift stories in moving pictures; doctors use them in clinics. Their educational value is beyond reckoning in its enormity. All the world strives for progress, children must be taught to progress. The Milwaukee schools have moving pictures—and even the country schools are installing them—"Great, Growing, Green Bay" condemns them.

About this time the teachers came around to make apology and to admit that most of their statements were based on hearsay. That's the way to stop this talk about the photoplays. Give argument for argument, and talk a little longer and a little louder than the other man, but give argument, not just talk. Have something to say before you start in and say it intelligently. Mr. Goldman favors the editorial style, which is all very well if one has a flow of language, but a weak, spineless argument is worse than none at all. There is nothing spineless about the Goldman brand. He promises more clippings. We are giving more than usual space to these because there is a lot of meat to this. Clip and keep it handy. It may help you out some time.

Mr. Goldman has been invited to address the Drama League. We believe that he will tell them a few things. He stands up for his business and people respect those who respect their business.

De Subers Catchlines.

Here are the last of the De Subers catchlines. Perhaps he will notice this item and send more. Let's all hope.

A picture picnic.
Every picture worthy.
A feast for picture seekers.
Pictures that cure the blues.
Always showing the latest and best.
The most and best for the money.
Compare your ideas with our shows.
Satisfaction given with every ticket.
Always something new and different.
Maximum pleasure at minimum cost.
Your regular patronage is what we want.
To buy a world of happy hours go to the————.
Thoughts of the best pictures will lead you to the————.
Drawing Materials—the pictures and music at the————.
If it's good enough for us to show, it's good as it can be.
Will give you more pleasure than the dime it costs.
Come in and be friendly. We'll make it pleasant for you.
If you have time, don't lose any of it, but go to the———— and see the pictures.
Lessons in the Art of Entertaining given at the————daily. Hours———to———.

Help Mr. Glaser, Please.

Will J. Glaser, of the Faribault Theater, Faribault, Minn., is getting ready to get out a twelve-page program and asks that brother exhibitors be good enough to send him samples. We hope that this request will receive the courteous attention that has been given similar requests, and we particularly hope that the Academian finds its way into the mails. The program is to be a twelve-pager, but it does not follow that only twelve-page programs are wanted as guides. There are some four-page programs that offer more real help than the larger ones.

The Hero Contest.

Are you getting your share of the publicity the Ladies' World is giving its Hero Contest? Probably you've seen the advertisement in this paper, but did you do anything about it? You can make it work for you as well as for them by working it up in your town. The other night in the elevated train, two girls in the seat in front of us called the seven names correctly from a car card, though the names were not visible across the aisle, and it was evident that they were vitally interested.

Of course this is a circulation scheme for the benefit of the Ladies' World, but it can be made to work for you just as well and a preliminary use of the slide, say for a week in advance of the night, will have all of the patrons wrought up over the chance to vote for their favorite and help him along. The present popularity of the photoplay is so largely founded on the personality of the players, that anything that appeals to this personal popularity will help make for business. If you run Licensed pictures you'll get your own crowd, of course, but you will also bring into the house the admirers of King Baggot and Warren Kerrigan. If you run Independent films you have an even bigger draught from the other side.

Under present conditions you can get the subject, no matter who makes it, so start booming now, since it costs nothing.

Studies the Wants.

The other day a correspondent commented on the fact that none of the women managers had contributed to this department lately, but her example has been followed by Helen Morrison-Lewis, who runs the Hippodrome Theater, Zanesville. She says:

> This is the first time I've written the "World" about anything, though I have wanted to write many times before.
>
> I saw a little news item for me in your Correspondence Department of November fifteenth and thought perhaps another bit of news could find its way to you. On this Sunday I have Edison's production of "Silas Marner," adapted from the novel by George Eliot, and because the book is studied in all schools I have invited as my guests, the teachers of our public schools. I think the Edison is doing wonders for the picture industry in producing works such as this of George Eliot.
>
> I have had this theater a little less than two years, but in that time I have tried to bring the picture theater to the highest point possible, though at times, it has been hard. I started Educational Day here, also Pathe's Weekly Day. On those days I see people in who never come at any other time and yet the number of those patrons is not great enough to support a theater. I must please the masses, which means much studying of human nature and much thought in selecting a program.
>
> I am not a real manager yet; that is, not a big one who controls a circuit, but I have been successful so far. In a way, I just drifted in, but the business is most fascinating and I think perhaps a woman sees the little points that a man doesn't think worth while, though he may be quicker to grasp the big ones.
>
> What a letter I have written, and most unconventional, too! I have read The World so much it really seems quite natural to write.

Only Half Paint.

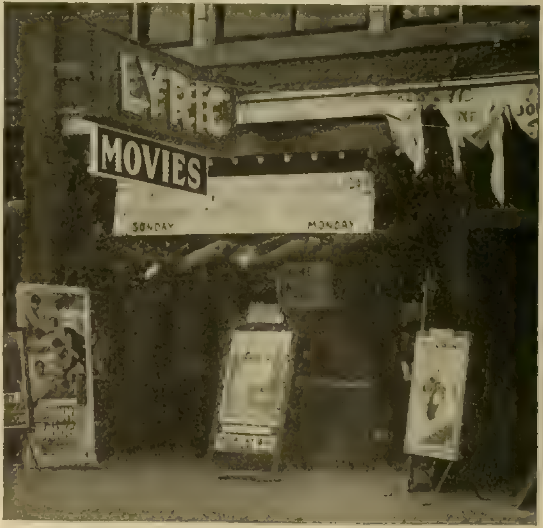
If the engraver can get the full value out of the cut, it will be seen that E. M. McCray, of the Lyric Theater, Oskaloosa, Iowa, is trying for a cycloramic effect. The subject is a recent Huban Bridge, using an old sensation from "The Span of Life," in which a woman walks across a bridge of men. In the sign the bridge is composed of dummies made of old clothes properly stuffed, while the woman is painted on the sign.



Mr. McCray tells of a patron who brought in an uncle who had never attended a photoplay theater before. He spent the entire afternoon in the house, while the program was run through several times and then complained that the pictures lacked variety, while there was "a little too much lovin'."

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by Epes Winthrop Sargent

The Ed-Au Club.

WILL those members of the Ed-Au Club who were not at the last meeting be good enough to send their addresses to the secretary? The failure of the Taverne Louis will necessitate another place of meeting, which will be communicated to them by mail.

Not Guilty.

This from B. P. Schulberg, of the Famous Players:

> One or two correspondents have gained the idea from you that we are not buying at present. While until now we have not sought scripts of any nature, we are now anxious to obtain three-reel scripts of a domestic nature and a broad, modern appeal. We will pay the highest prices on record for available material. The writer has an added advantage, in disposing of scripts to us, by having his name associated with Daniel Frohman, as we intend to follow our usual presentation with these original scenarios, i. e., "Daniel Frohman presents, etc."
>
> I would thank you to give this information to your correspondents whenever they query you regarding our needs.

We do not recall having stated that the Famous Players were not in the market, but here is the letter, anyhow. At the same time it is foolish to shoot into that company anything but the very best. There is no use wasting a lot of postage stamps and Mr. Schulberg's time, but if you have something that you feel is better than merely good, you might try it on, if you have the proper appreciation of what is good.

The Inquest Club.

At the last meeting of the Inquest Club there was no star witness, but the time was profitably spent in a discussion of the photoplays witnessed at the Savoy.

Biograph's "All for Science" brought out the suggestion that the big restaurant scenes were added by the director and that the script probably showed merely a restaurant without calling for the tremendous set used, the lesson being that small scenes should be written which the director could enlarge at his pleasure.

One of the members, following the statement that few, if any, one-reel stories were now being purchased, asked if it was still recommended that the one-reel be first mastered. It was pointed out that mastery of the one-reel was an essential to the proper handling of the longer subjects even if the practice work did not sell at present.

This brought another member to his feet who declared that he knew that most audiences preferred the one reel to the longer subjects, but he sat down when he was reminded that he was supposed to be writing to please the editor rather than to show the editor what was wanted.

The plan of writing a photoplay script was abandoned as the members declined to keep up their interest in the idea. The meeting was adjourned to meet again, at the Savoy, Monday, December 8.

What Universal Wants.

Supplanting the two-page advertisement in a recent issue of this paper, Calder Johnstone, chief of het Universal's Script Bureau, is good enough to supply these explicit details, anticipating the inevitable question as to just what Universal wants. Mr. Johnstone has reduced the Universal Script Bureau to a state of order and has completely overcome the chaotic conditions that in the past have resulted in the loss of many manuscripts. An old newspaper man, he is a good organizer as well as a competent editor, and it will pay to get after Universal if you have real stories to offer.

> As has already been announced in the "Moving Picture World," the Universal Film Manufacturing Company is in the market for good comedies. The Company is releasing ten comedies a week, including split, full and two-reel comedy-dramas. Everything from the so-called "slapstick," to the high-class comedy is described.
>
> At the Pacific Coast Studios, near Los Angeles, the Company is manufacturing this Joker brand, making two of these releases a week. In one of them, two well-known comedians, Max Ascher and Harry McCoy, are being featured under the series known as the "Mike and Jake comedies." These are of the broad travesty and burlesque variety, which permit a free scope on the part of the author and director.
>
> In writing slapstick comedies, it must be borne in mind by the author that the chase is so common and has been so greatly overdone, that stories of this type are no longer purchased. What is most desired in the so-called "slapstick" are new varieties of business. If the author can think of some novel and amusing action which must, of course, keep away from vulgarity or suggestiveness, such ideas will always be welcome. The author should never be afraid to write in detail any such essential business.
>
> Light comedies should contain a decided plot with a climax and no anti-climax, just the same as if the story were a drama. In other words, make a reason for the comedy before its action. It may be funny to see a man fall down a flight of stairs. It is not particularly funny, however, unless there is a comedy reason for the fall, or unless the actor doing the "stunt" does it in a comical manner.
>
> It is for the best interest of the author to keep in touch with what the Universal is manufacturing. In other words, to see as many Universal films as is possible. By inquiring of the Scenario Department, either by phone or letter, authors will be informed where they may see the program.
>
> The Scenario Department is at all times glad to assist the author and if he is in doubt as to the photographic or production possibilities of a story, the author will be cheerfully received at the office of the company and advised to the fullest extent.
>
> The Company is paying standard prices for stories. Payment is made on the acceptance of the story and not after it is produced, but the author must bear in mind that the Company will not purchase scripts to be hoarded up. So the outhor should not submit anything which is of the ordinary variety. Above all things, try to be a little different from the other fellow. Because the author has seen a comedy, he should not attempt to try to do the same comedy in just a little different way and expect to sell it.

A Circle of Two.

Reading from left to right, these are F. Howard Clark and E. W. Matlack, who form a private circle of the Inquest Club in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Matlack, who is a railroad man, is the author of many of the Kalem railroad stories, a type of play where his experience as a train dispatcher gives him the right of way.

Washington Is Open.

The Inquest Circle in Washington is extinct owing to the removal from that city of two of the active members. The franchise is open to anyone who wants to form a circle and who has disposed of a few scripts. We are afraid from the general apathy shown, that Washington is not particularly alive to hustle, though there are a lot of writers there.

Clearness.

Because you know your own story, it does not follow that you have told it in such a fashion that others can "get" it. Lately we were sent a plot. There was something wrong with it and we asked for more light. When it came it was not enlightening and we had to ask for a completely new synopsis. Then it developed that the author had used a pronoun for one person and we took it to apply to another. The author knew who "he" was, but we thought it meant the other fellow and with that reading the story was all askew.

This is an extreme case, but day after day from ten to fifty scripts are thrown out because the story is not clearly put. The author, having the full facts in mind, knows what is meant, but it may show in a different light to the editor and in his bewilderment he turns to other and more clearly stated stories.

Suppose you write "John meets Charlie—he runs." Which is meant? Does John or Charlie run? Perhaps the general sense of the story will give a clue and again it may not. "John meets Charlie—runs from him," or, "John meets Charlie—Charlie runs from scene," tells something definite.

That Overdue Script.

Since Mr. Blaisdell wrote of one of our scripts that brought back the check after many days, many inquiries have been received asking if we approve of the plan of letting a script lie with one company for a year and more.

We most assuredly do not approve any such course, and perhaps the history of this story will be the best explanation. On October 30, 1911 we sent Arthur Hotaling, of the Lubin Company, a script titled "How It Worked." After reading it, he said he thought it would hardly do, as the tendency was away from chase pictures. Jokingly we told him to hold on to it until the fashions again changed to chases. Later he reported that the script was lost and asked for a carbon. This was supplied, as was a second carbon later. On April 11 of this year the original script was found behind a desk in the Lubin studio and after being formally rejected by both Mr. Hotaling and Mr. McCloskey, was put into storage and forgotten. On October 25th we were notified that the story had been made as "A College Cupid" and that a slip would be sent. This arrived a few days later, but was lost and a second slip was issued, the story being paid for two years and twenty-four days after it had first been put in the mails. The check came in the same envelope that covered releases for two scripts mailed only twelve days before, so it will be seen that it does not usually take Lubin two years to pass through a script. We will let any reputable company keep a script four months and not kick if they then reject it, so that it is returned in good shape, but that should be the limit with any company, and the history of "A College Cupid" was originally given as a matter of interest and not as an example to be followed by authors in general.

Marked Scripts.

Here is a rather unusual complaint from a New York writer. Perhaps some editor or author can explain the mystery. The fact that four studios use similar markings makes the mystery more complicated. We will be glad to see some of these marked scripts with a list of the studios where the marking has been done. Perhaps they are merely various brands of the same concern and the marks may be the stenographer's notation of the reason for rejection. If this is not the right guess and we are supplied with scripts, we will look into the matter. This is the letter:

> During the past two weeks I have noticed that my scripts are being returned to me with tiny, almost invisible, penciled characters marked on the last sheet of the script. They resemble shorthand characters very much, but neither I nor any of my stenographic friends were able to decipher them. Can you tell me what their purpose is? I wonder if the editors are passing their criticism of the story to one another in this manner?
>
> These marks have appeared on scripts returned by four different companies, showing that whatever the idea of the thing may be, more than one company is guilty of practicing it.

Counts It a Gain.

Every little while some author tells how much he has spent for stamps and books and how much he has taken in. Here is a different sort of letter:

> Was much interested in the record of loss of photoplaywrights. Long ago I ceased to keep count of what I spent, because I do not consider one cent lost, even if I never succeed. I will not regret the money spent on subscriptions to the trade publications because they have been a source of great pleasure to me, and had I not taken them the money most likely would have gone some other way of less benefit to me.

If you sell shoes and write photoplays on the side, even though you never get beyond the stage of trying to write, the effort is going to make you better able to sell shoes or whatever your vocation may be, because it has exercised your brain, it has perhaps enlarged your vocabulary and developed your imagination. It takes imagination to sell shoes. Even though you may never sell you have not wasted your time—which may be cold comfort, but none the less it is true.

The only loss in photoplay writing is wasting stamps on everything written, regardless of its value.

The Newest.

The newest idea in reducing a two-reel to one has been discovered by a woman who sent a story to Phil Lang. He wrote it was too long for one reel and too thin for two, but that if she would cut it down to one reel he would like to see it again. When it was returned the only change was the elimination of the "Reel II." The length was still there, the only change being that it ran continuously instead of being divided into two parts. If you are told to cut a story down to one reel, cut out enough action to let the story be told within a thousand feet. It is not possible to tell just how much to cut—this is something that must be sensed—but at least take out half of the action of a two-reel if it is to go in one.

Sizing the Story.

"Either this is a very good story or else you can smell it through the envelope," is the inelegant but expressive fashion in which a writer confessed his inability to size up his story. And that was just how most stories are. If the editor likes it it is a good story. If he doesn't see it it's a bad story. More than once a story has brought top price that some other editor has declared to be exceptionally bad.

How It Worked.

The editor wrote that a script looked as though it might stick and the facetious author wrote and urged the use of rosin to prevent slipping. Four weeks later he wrote to explain that he said rosin and not glue, so axle grease was substituted and the story slipped back.

Moral. When you get a joke send it to the comic papers. Don't hand it to the photoplay editor.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No inquiries can be replied to by mail. Look for your answer here. No question can be replied to that necessitates the handling of the manuscript. Always give your name and address. It will not be published. A list of addresses, to which photoplays should be sent, will be supplied on receipt of a STAMPED AND SELF ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. The request should be made to the paper direct and not to this department, nor to the Answers Man.

LOIS—It is not longer unusual to see licensed and independent pictures in the same house. The old rulings of the Patents Company were reversed last spring, since when an exhibitor may use as many services as be cares to pay for. Arthur Hotaling, the Lubin comedy director, reformed his company last summer while at Atlantic City, replacing Reehm, Stull and Burns with more marked "types." Mutual gave them a brand all to themselves, and they have been working in New York since July. It has been possible to see them in Komics and Lubins in the same week's releases, even on the same bill, as Lubin makes far ahead and still has a few with the old trio. You do not bother the Answers Man by asking questions, because that is what an Answers Man is for. You don't want him to lose his job by having no questions to answer, do you?

H. E. S.—We do not recall King Baggot with Biograph. He has been with Imp two or three years. The Powers player you ask for was not cast. We're durned if we know whether the gentleman is blond or brunette.

C. D. M.—(1) We have every reason to believe them reliable. The paragraph refers to the trick of jumping a character into a scene without any explanation as to how he got there. It is not the physical fact of leaving him on the scene, but his unexplained reappearance in some place where you would not expect to see him. You are right in your understanding of the matter otherwise.

W. P. D.—Counting houses, exchanges, advertising firms and manufacturers, it is quite possible that the motion picture business engages as much capital as the Standard Oil and United Steel, but it is not possible to obtain accurate figures on either.

H. W. F.—Too long to reply here. See the Photoplaywright.

L. H. Van P.—Glad you've seen the light.

W. L.—Notify the company that you withdraw the script, copy the carbon and send the new script elsewhere. This was told you before.

LOIS—Mother G. writes that Fred Church, and not True Boardman, was the brother in "Broncho Billy's Brother." The official cast was our authority.

J. H. L.—The list sent you is practically a list of the companies buying. There is no accurate want list to be had, but you might try the Photoplay Author.

W. H. J.—Sorry, but Frontier seldom casts its players.

RUBEENA—We did not answer the first question two months ago because there is no cast for that play. Jack Standing is not with Lubin. That Biograph cast is not in yet. Perhaps later on.

CLYDE—Be more specific, please. There are several Keystone comedians who have played Hebrews. Possibly you mean Ford Sterling. Mention some particular part in some particular play.

AUSTINA—Only Ramo, of the list given, is in the market for films. Send for a list of addresses as above, and do not bother the importers.

ETHAN—Ten questions are almost too many at one time, but here goes: Antrim Short was Bobby in "Bobby's Baby." Miss Lois Weber was the rich woman in the same. Miss Winnie Baldwin was Helen in "For the Cause," and Ruth in "In the Ranks." Miss Dorothy Davenport was Kathleen in "The Heart of Kathleen." Miss Helen Case was the girl in "The Bandit's Gratitude." Hector Dion was the husband in "Drink's Lure." Martin Faust was the Husband in "The Scarfpin." Alan Hale was the Artist in "His Inspiration." We lack the answer to the ninth question.

E. D. B.—House Peters was Obermuller in "In the Bishop's Carriage." Mr. Moore did not play in this release.

PUZZLED—You cannot copyright an unproduced script. Production, or "publication," is the essential to copyright entry. How do you know your stories are original? You thought them up yourself, but dozens of others may have hit on the same idea before you. Keep at it, study the stories of the releases and you will swing in line in time.

RICHARD ROE—Eagle Eye was the Indian in "An Indian's Loyalty." Give the name of the Lubin character, please. Ditto for the Biograph.

L. I. M.—Kinemacolor is releasing, but does not supply dated releases. Write Universal about the script. We cannot name any particular market for a two-reel tramp story. Start with your best market and take it down the line.

ELIZABETH—It is better to have the story show the relationship of the characters. If you can't show that John is the village bully, there is something wrong with your action.

L. A. G.—Personally, we would want a certified check from that company before even starting work on the reels.

M. E. C.—Write the Frontier at Santa Paula, California.

MRS. B. C.—We do not place the player at present.

M. G. R.—We believe that Miss LaBadie pronounces her name as though spelled Lab-ardy, the accent on the first syllable. The Thanhouser twins do not "belong" to anyone. Slavery days are past. Their mother is Mrs. Fairbanks, if that is what you mean. Miss Hazel Buckham was Faith in "Exoneration." Several companies have produced Sapho, but you probably mean the Thanhouser Mutual production, with Miss Florence Roberts in the title role. Please try and state your question more clearly.

C. J. L.—Most companies can use summer stuff for their field staffs. Start the story where it starts if you want to sell it. Do not vision back. We do not favor "Steve Talbot titles" any more than he does. That was supposed to be travesty—that's how we took it.

READER—We do not advise advertising for a correspondent critic. Wait until you can get in touch with someone you know.

Technique of the Photoplay
(Second Edition)
By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE: Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local Union No. 75, Peoria & Pekin, Illinois.

John Moore, president; Charles Dummler, vice-president; William McLinden, treasurer; Paul W. Woodrow, secretary. Executive Board: D. C. Adams H. Mills, W. A. Renniger. Delegate: R. F. Beers. Meetings held third Sunday of each month at Trades' Assembly Hall.

Question No. 10.

Best answer will be published and names of others sending in replies of excellence will be published in the Roll of Honor.

What is the difference between the direct current generator commutator and the alternating current commutator? Explain the reasons for the difference.

Roll of Honor.

L. C. LaGraw, Albany, New York, occupies the Roll of Honor all by himself on Question No. 4. His reply is very good, and would have been the one published, except for the fact that he left out the very important matter of shaping the end of the brush to the commutator.

Later.

Clarence L. Dowsley, Winnipeg, Canada, sent in the most complete and best reply but it was too late to publish. However, brother Dowsley must be added to the Roll of Honor this week. Fort Worth, Texas, also sends in an excellent too-late-reply. Maybe I will have to discontinue the publication of answers for a couple of weeks in order to give more time for their preparation.

Reply to Question No. 4.

By W. L. Johnston, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Question No. 4:

How would you know when the brushes in your motor or generator required renewal and how would you go about installing the new ones? Also what care and attention would you give them and the commutator?

The answer:

> When the brushes are worn down so that you cannot adjust the tension springs, which you will usually find in one form or another, or when brush is too short to make proper contact with the commutator, they should be renewed. To accomplish this, obtain the proper shaped brush and, after placing them in the holders, and adjusting the tension spring, place a piece of fine sand paper (never use emery cloth, because if you do there will likely be a copper scratch under the brush which is not at all good for the commutator), and place it between the commutator and brush, with the paper side next the commutator and the sand side against the brush. Now pull the sand paper back and forth around the curve of the commutator until the end of the brush takes the curve of the commutator, after which remove the sand paper and with a piece of canvas (never use "waste") slightly moistened with vaseline, wipe the commutator off. As to the vaseline, however, some commutators do better when the vaseline is not used, whereas others will do somewhat better when their surface is given a little lubrication. If your brushes are not staggered, as they usually are, you should shift them so that they will not run in the same track with each other, else they will wear grooves in the commutator. Commutators should be kept perfectly clean, and at times should be given just a little bit of oil. Should the commutator become grooved it will be necessary to remove the same and have it turned down in a lathe.

Brother Johnston is weak in regard to caring for the commutator. That is such an important matter that, later, I shall ask a separate question dealing entirely with the care of commutators. A great deal of damage is done to motor generator sets by reason of lack of knowledge on the part of operators as to proper care of the commutator. Also I must add to brother Johnston's answer by saying that the tension springs which hold the brushes to the commutator should be so set that they will barely exert enough force to hold the brushes into good electrical contact with the commutator. Anything less than this will produce sparking; anything more will produce undue wear, with a tendency to groove the commutator.

Change of Address

Motion Picture Machine Operators' Protective Union No. 306, New York City, has removed its headquarters from 259 West 42nd Street, to 145 West 45th Street, where they are now installed in Room 1114. Telephone Bryant 6228. Interested parties please take notice of the change.

From Ogden, Utah.

Mr. W. C. Clay, of the It Theater, Ogden, Utah, exercises his typewriter thusly:

> We have been very much interested in several topics of discussion in the Department lately. With regard to multiple wiring of projector lamps, we use the system as described by you (seen in Seattle, Wash.—Ed.), and we wrote you describing the same nearly a year ago. We have two Power's Six projectors and a stereo dissolver, all on one 40 ampere G. E. rectifier. We "steal" light from one to another as required. The dissolver is connected in multiple series—that is to say, in multiple on the rectifier with the projectors and the lead from the negative carbon to the upper lamp goes to the positive carbon of the lower lamp (two lamps in series.—Ed.). The carbons of one lamp must be frozen all the time, of course. There seem to be several advantages to this arrangement. It reduces the amperage when using slides, because of the considerable extra resistance in the poor contact of the frozen carbons. Also it allows the burning of both lamps at the same time for dissolving effects. We use an average of 50 amperes from the rectifier and it sometimes runs to 60. This is an overload of from 20 per cent. to 33 per cent. on the 40 ampere tube, and we have thus overloaded the same tube eight hours per day for eighteen months without any signs of undue depreciation. The rectifier draws almost a constant of 15 amperes from a 220-volt feed line. Where operators find a choice between 110 and 220-volt feed for rectifying, we advise the 220. Among other things the arc seems to have greater tenacity for the same wattage consumption. The rectifier is made to couple up either way. The multiple wiring of lamps gives us the best of satisfaction. The higher-than-usual amperage tends to hasten the burning-in of the new carbons, and the process is hardly noticeable on the screen. In fact, it is altogether unnoticeable, except to any but a moving picture expert (I guess he means crank.—Ed.), like the editor, for instance, and for such an auspicious occasion as a visit from him we would just insert an upper carbon from our little pile of previously curned-in ones. An extra rectifier is not a necessity in putting on a first-class continuous show, although as a luxury it might be all right. We were thinking of presenting some interesting dope on the motor-drive question later. Spurred on, in part, by certain Department paragraphs relative to "real operators," we do here and now resolve to become one of them.

You are not the only one, brother Clay, whom the Department has stirred up and caused to make that kind of resolution. Your remarks, concerning multiple wiring are presented to our readers for their consideration. As to the overload on that tube, it is truly remarkable; but rectifier tubes perform funny stunts sometimes. The next one you got might not, and probably would not, stand up at all under that kind of treatment. Come across with that motor-drive dope when it is ready.

Union Qualification.

Rochester, N. Y., says he has been operating two years in small cities, but the only machine he has handled is the Power's Six. He wishes to join the Rochester Union, but failed in the examination because he had never had a machine apart, and could not tell where all the different parts went. Wants to know by what means he could learn this.

It is not necessary that you should learn to assemble a projector. I hope the union will pardon me when I say they are in error in making this one of their examination requirements. If I were to pull a Simplex machine entirely to pieces I don't know whether I could get it together again myself or not, without first consulting my own Handbook. I would even have to study some on an Edison, simple as it is in its construction. A Motiograph would have me going South if it were completely dissembled, though I guess I could get it together all right. And I have dissected Motiograph, Edison and Power's Six machines galore. It is not the ability to take a machine apart and put it together again, but the ability to make the necessary adjustments properly which counts. When it becomes necessary for an operator to take any part out, he will have his attention concentrated on that particular job and he will get it together again all right. Doubtless the examining committee of the Rochester Union means well, but I repeat they are in error in making this stunt one of their examination requirements. There are other unions committing the same error.

I know men who can assemble a Power's Six machine with their eyes shut, but who could not project a decent picture to save their immortal souls from purgatory—who would not even know how to thread a film in a machine after they got it assembled. They are factory assemblers—not operators. Ask the applicant how he would determine whether his tension springs exert too much, too little or exactly enough pressure and what the effect of too little or too much pressure will be and I will agree with you. Those are practical questions calculated to show whether the man really understands the action of his machine or not.

A Bunch of Questions.

Camden, New Jersey, comes across with the following modest demand for information:

> (1) What is the difference in the current supplied to the field coils of the generator and that put out by the armature? (2) If the motor is wound for 50 cycle a. c., would it be possible to run it on 120 cycle, a. c.? How would you do it, and if so, why? What would be the result? (Huh! Ed.) (3) What is the cause of the pounding in a motor-generator set? (4) If you decrease the current flow in the field coils, what effect does it have on the speed of the set? (5) What would I do if both field rheostats burned out during a show? (6) Suppose it happened that upon starting a motor generator set it failed to generate. Where would I look for the trouble? (7) If I were using a set in which the brushes of the motor were fixed, how would I increase the speed without the aid of a field rheostat? (8) Is there any advantage in using a differentially wound motor? (9) What is the cause of sparking at the commutator, and the best way to remove the trouble? (10) We are using 220 volts, a. c., and upon striking arc half the house lights lit up with 220 volts. My chief went to the switchboard and cleared the trouble. I asked him the cause of it, whereupon he told me to dig and I would find it. Well, I have been digging, but as yet have not met with success. I have searched through the Carnegie Library in Philadelphia, in an attempt to find an answer to the above questions, but nothing doing. Perhaps the answers are there, but if so, I have been unable to analyze them so as to make them apply to my particular case.

The brother then appends correct, but very brief answers to Questions No. 5 and 6. And now to his queries: (1) The current supplied to the field coils is taken from the brushes and is, therefore, direct, while the current within the armature itself is alternating, afterward being rectified by action of the commutator. (2) Never tried it. I presume the motor would run after a fashion, but would get very hot and, I believe, would soon burn out. (3) Usually lost motion in the connection between the two shafts, or end motion in the two shafts acting in opposite directions. Also the shafts of the motor and generator being out of line with each other causes pounding in the flexible connection. Possibly there are other reasons also. Let us hear from operators of motor-generator sets. (4) If the decrease be in the field coils of the motor, the speed would be increased; if in the generator, it would cause a heavier load and perhaps a decrease in speed. (5) I do not think of anything you could do unless it might be to hook in an ordinary rheostat, preferably an adjustable one, but that kind of stunt would involve much guess-work as to the result in the speed of the outfit. (6) First, I would see if the brushes were making good electrical contract with the commutator, and next, would see that the terminal and other wire connections were tight. Usually I think the trouble would be found to lie in the brushes. This is another question upon which operators of motor-generator sets might contribute something of value. (7) I do not know just what you are driving at. With the d. c. motor I suppose it could be done by compounding, or a little more compounding if there was already some. With the a. c. motor I don't, at the moment, think of any method of accomplishing the end indicated. Maybe there is one, if so, let some of the wise ones speak. (8) Don't know what you mean by "differentially-wound motor." The term might apply to either one of two very different things. (9) It would take too much space to give a complete reply to this question, particularly in view of the fact that that is, to all intents and purposes, Question No. 12 in the series now being published. (10) In order to answer this question I would have to have a complete wiring diagram of the house. You must have had a cross connection made in such a way that the bringing of the carbons together closed the circuit on which the lamps lighted up. In other words, your lamp carbons acted the same as a switch for one of the incandescent circuits. Such a condition could not be, I think, without rank carelessness on the part of some one.

Another Protest.

J. William Deffler, Johnstown, Pa., writes:

> Was very greatly interested in M. R. W. Case's kick regarding the Lubin splices. This particular howl was, in my judgment, fully justified. I, too, want to register a protest, and nail another fault to the mast. I project my picture on a mirror screen (which is "the goods") measuring 12 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches inside the frame. Our lenses were carefully selected so as to project a picture exactly covering the screen, and I was very proud of the results in having the picture extend just to the frame all around. But, alas, there appeared a cloud, which is spreading. One manufacturer, the Essanay (I do not like to mention names, but must to get at the trouble), started matting their pictures so that each individual picture is smaller than the aperture, and, worst of all, these mats are not evenly spaced lengthwise. Some pictures leave from eight to ten inches of the screen dark on one side and only four or five on the other, with two or three at top and bottom. This uneven spacing gives the audience, who do not know the real cause, the impression that the operator is at fault and that he doesn't keep his machine square with the screen. And now others are getting the habit, more or less. It is bad. It is very bad indeed, and ought to be stopped. Another thing; I desire to take the Vitagraph to task. Of late their films and sub-titles have been out of frame about one-half a sprocket hole. I believe some of their equipment must need adjusting. Please understand I am not kicking, for I am a pretty good Vitagraph fan myself, but the operator has other work for his left hand besides keeping it on the framing lever. Tried Lodi's receipt for newspaper cuts from paper to paper, with good results, but from paper to varnished glass I obtained merely a faint outline. What is printer's ink mixed with? Add a little of that dope and probably we can do business. Asbestos in condenser mounts may be all right, but there are three sets of lenses in my lamp-house which have been in service for a year and a half, and when the exhaust fan [illegible] my operating room is as airy as they make them.

I agree with your protest on the matting, brother Deffler, to the extent that the matting should always be centered. Very likely the manufacturers sought to give variety. Now if they would confine their efforts in this direction to some irregular mat of ornamental form, well and good, but if they make the mat the same shape as the machine aperture it should, in my judgment, always be placed perfectly central. As to the Vitagraph matter, I took it up with Messrs. Smith and Blackton, at the Vitagraph factory. They freely admitted the fault, which was due to the uneven shrinkage of the positive and negative films. The matter was being looked after and remedied at that time, and is, I presume, all right by now. As to Lodi's receipt, operators should be very careful and be sure their formulas will work before sending them in for publication. No doubt many hundreds of operators have been put to the trouble of trying Lodi's scheme, which, it seems, does not work out with any degree of satisfaction. I am not sure, but, as I understand it, the foundation of printer's ink is lamp-black and linseed oil. I am not positive about this, but I think it is right. There are other things contained therein of course. As to your condensers, there are strange and unexplainable things in the action of condensers sometimes. Put those lenses of yours in another lamp-house, apparently precisely the same as yours, under exactly similar conditions, and like as not they would snap in two minutes. Your answer to the "Puzzle" is correct.

An Excellent Device.

On another page of this issue will be found an advertisement of the Elbert Friction Speed Controller for moving picture machines. The writer has personally examined this device and can heartily commend it as being thoroughly practical, well built, and in every way an efficient device for controlling the speed of motor-driven projectors. I am personally acquainted with its manufacturers, and patrons may rest assured that they will get a square deal from the makers.

The action of this device is plainly shown by the cut set forth in their advertisement. The controller is designed to be used on any make of projector and with any kind of motor, either direct or alternating. The motor belt attaches to the grooved pulley on the shaft carrying the iron disc wheel. This iron disc drives a leather-faced friction wheel, which, in turn, is supported by a sliding shaft controlled by the quick action screw, as shown. On the outer end of this shaft is another grooved pulley, from which a belt passes to the machine. The speed is regulated by sliding the friction wheel to the right or left by turning the milled head of the thumb screw. The makers claim a range of speed of from 5 to 40 minutes to the 1,000 feet of film. The pulley wheel to which the machine is belted does not slide endwise with the shaft, but by an ingenious arrangement remains stationary, the shaft sliding through its hub. It may, therefore, be used with a very short belt.

From Carthage, New York.

Mr. C. E. Linstruth, Carthage, New York, answers the "Puzzle" correctly, and then makes conversation as follows:

> And now, Mr. Sherlocko, I am going to go you one better. That operator is a single man. I deduce this from the fact that only one benedict in a hundred is the proud possessor of a mirror so conveniently placed as that one was. I see you have asked Mr. Hallberg to help us out on motor windings for different voltages. I am sure his reply will be of much interest to us all. I am getting together a few text books and will be in on the answers to questions by the end of the month.

Yes, I "requested brother Hallberg," and while he promised me, with one hand in the region of his left, top vest pocket and the other raised toward the ceiling he would get busy, he has not done it—yet. However, Mr. Hallberg is a pretty busy man, and we will have to give him a little more time I guess, meanwhile possessing ourselves in patience.

That Little Puzzle.

The response on "That Little Puzzle," page 734, November 15th issue, was enthusiastic and spontaneous. I think the U. S. P. O. Department felt a boost in the postage stamp sale. The right words were mirror, light ray, and condenser. The only variation was that instead of light ray a great many used "various positions." One correspondent asked if it would not be more convenient to use the test lamp. Another remarked that a mirror was also convenient to use in examining the head of the machine. To the first I would say no, and to the second would remark that he could not do that unless he moved the lamp-house over to the stereopticon side or else moved the head. One genius added a little comedy by using a picture post card on which appeared a duck, a chicken, a man and a bill board. On the bill board he had printed Eureka (I have it), and in the chicken's mouth he had drawn a screw, which the aforesaid chicken was apparently bringing to the man. He also supplied the missing language.

Excellent Work.

Ted Lambert, Gem Theater, Thornold, Ontario, Canada, sends sample of announcement slides he makes with pen and ink on clear glass, the same being illustrated by sketch done in red and black ink. The work is indeed excellent, in fact very high class indeed. The lettering is done in black, red and yellow. Brother Lambert has every reason to be proud of his work. He uses an ordinary pen and show card ink. Owing to the colors, the slide would not make a good cut, therefore it is not illustrated.

Baltimore Ball.

Tickets are out already for the Baltimore Operators' Union Ball, which will take place Monday evening, January 26th, 1914. The Baltimore boys have the reputation of supplying a thoroughly good time to all and sundry who attend their annual ball. This reputation they will no doubt sustain, and even improve upon. They have the best wishes of the department and its editor for a complete social and financial success.

New York Operators Look Out.

Now that the editor has more time at his disposal he is going to lasso some of your goats if you don't watch out. He intends to visit theaters haphazard occasionally, and make note of faults in the projection. These notes will be published. The first is as follows:

Visited Bunny Theater, 316 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, Thursday evening, November 6th, at 8:30. At 8:40 a Vitagraph picture was projected, the speed of which was well handled; projector was in A1 condition, as was proven when a Selig was later thrown on and was rock steady. The following faults in the light were observed: 8:40 shadow at bottom for one minute; 8:43 shadow at bottom bad, one and one-half minutes; 8:45 shadow at bottom one-half minute; 8:47 shadow at bottom; 8:51 slight shadow on right. At 8:52 shadow at bottom which lasted one-half minute; 8:54 slight shadow at top, one-half minute; 9:00 slight shadow at the bottom one-half minute; 9:03½ flashes of shadow all over the screen; 9:05 a very bad shadow at the bottom, discoloring almost half of the picture. At 9:06 shadow at the top.

This performance was kept up as long as the editor remained. The Selig two-reel "Pendulum of Fate" came on later, and I must compliment the Selig Company on the almost mechanical perfection of their perforations. The picture was practically rock steady. This is to the credit both of the projector and the Selig film. I do not know what make of machine it was. The proprietor informed me later that an extra man was in the operating room. Let us hope the regular man pays better attention to his projection than the extra. The shadows noticed were, except in two or three instances, not bad, and the projection was as a whole, as projection goes in New York City, good, but the light was poorly handled.

A Deserved Roast.

From Baltimore comes the following:

> Can nothing be done with the man who is injuring the photoplay business by running the films at race horse speed? Money, of course (quick turn-outs of houses), is at the bottom of it. This evening I noticed "The Hour Before Dawn" posted at a certain theater. I have seen this release commented on favorably in your columns and went in. Over the heads of about four files of standees this is what I saw: Men and women leaping about on the screen, walking with absurd little jerks of the feet and posturing like silly mechanical dolls with mainsprings, running riot. Features were almost unrecognizable, unless the player happened to pause for an instant in his mad career. I spoke to the so-called manager, a youth with a vacant stare, and he "allowed that sometimes the machine done that funny jump," after which he took in half a dozen more tickets and looked somewhat more vacant than before. Several minutes passed without improvement and I remarked to him as I passed out: "It will be a long time before I come into this show shop again, after the way that film is being run." His jaw dropped a shade more—and that was all. Let me add, however, that neither anger or disgust is in any way responsible for this bald narrative. Two days ago, I am told, that in this same theater the childish ushers and the "manager" carried on such a loud conversation, with horseplay on the side, that the effect of a really gripping play was lost for the rear end of the house. Complain to the man who runs this and three other houses? Utterly useless! So long as the nickels flow in, "he should worry?" As a general proposition the Baltimore houses are run along excellent lines. I go to three a day on an average, and ought to know.

Inasmuch as this comes from a man not connected with the business at all, I give it space because such disgraceful performances as these are, as he said, detrimental to the business as a whole. There are altogether too many "managers" who wear that "vacant stare" and cannot see anything but the immediate nickels. They are not managers, but merely a rank imitation. The business would be far better off if their connection with it was severed. Performances such as the one cited are a disgrace; also they are a swindle on the audience, and this department has pointed out this fact many, many times.

From New Haven.

Mr. John Griffiths, New Haven, Conn., contributes the following:

> Replying to the puzzle question, November 15th issue, the mirror is a handy tool for lighting up dark corners, also for examining parts of the machine which are ordinarily out of sight. With regard to the questions, it is needless to say they are a fine proposition. Do not imagine for a minute that only those answering them are interested. I, myself, intend to make them the basis of study this winter. As for those opposed to the spread of knowledge on the subject of projection, why so much the worse for them. If they don't keep in line they will eliminate themselves. Managers are gradually ceasing to make their first question "How much per?" and are substituting therefor, "Can you deliver the goods," and this making of the salary to some extent a secondary consideration will continue to be more and more adopted by managers as time goes on. Quite true, they will not pay any more than necessary, but also it is true real managers are beginning not to want the incapable man at any price. I find the data submitted by Mr. Martin to be exceedingly interesting; particularly the curves relating to the performance of projecting arcs under different conditions. It is simply astonishing to note the enormous amount of light loss due to cheap condensers, as shown in diagram November 1st issue. I note your efforts in our behalf to find out the exact conditions under which the results were obtained, to the end that the diagrams be not misleading. Both Mr. Martin and yourself merit the sincere thanks of all operators for this valuable data. It seems to me the reflector system, of which you speak, is a step in the right direction. The exposed front of the lamp-house might be closed by a thin ray filter, or a thin sheet of high grade glass, without much danger of breakage, as there would be no uneven expansion in the glass and but a small loss of light. In closing, I wish both you and the Department all the success in the world.

Now, look here, brother Griffiths, if I have "all the success in the world," where are the editors of other departments going to get off at? Huh! Joke. Seriously, however, your letter is just good, sound, hard, common sense all the way through. I am writing to Mr. Martin inviting him to make further comment on the articles published, which I trust he will consent to do. Like yourself, I regard the matter as of great importance, the only trouble being that it does not go anywhere near far enough.

For First Run Films.

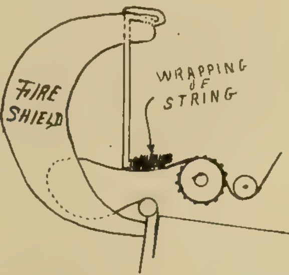
On one or two occasions I have spoken of the uniform excellence of projection at the little theater in Park Row, immediately opposite the main post office building, and now comes brother Hymen Rinsler, chief operator of this theater, with what seems to be an excellent scheme for stopping the trouble of emulsion deposit on the tension springs when handling first-run films.



The illustration does not convey the idea very clearly, I am afraid. I tried to get a photograph, but without success; the thing was so small that it absolutely refused to show clearly in a photograph. In the illustration we see brother Rinsler's device attached to a Power's Six A. It consists of a brass wire, bent as shown in the illustration, except that the drawing shows only one side, there being two shoes, one for either side of the film. Now the idea is this: the shoe is wrapped with any kind of soft, absorbent string, and this is saturated with oil. The film runs under the shoe and there is a sufficient deposit of oil thereon to prevent the emulsion depositing on the tension springs, and not enough to do any damage to the film.

Brother Rinsler says the device works perfectly, and I see no reason why it should not. Those wishing to correspond with him regarding the same may do so by addressing him, care of the Park Row Theater, 31 Park Row, New York City.

For Discussion.

W. L. Johnston, Toronto, Canada, submits the following, which is placed before our readers for consideration and discussion. I think very likely brother Russell, of the General Electric Company, will rise up on his hind legs and slap brother Johnston on the wrist. Mr. Johnston writes as follows:

> Twenty-five cycle current has 3,000 alternations per minute; 60 cycle has 7,200 alternations and 133 cycle 15,960. When you convert this current by means of the rectifier you get a pulsating current having 1,500, 3,600 and 7,980 periods per second respectively for 25, 60 and 133 cycle current. (I have not checked these figures —Ed.) Now with a revolving two-blade shutter, running at the rate of 16 pictures per second, the light is cut 1,920 times a minute, which is practically in step with the pulsations of rectifier current when using 25 cycle (don't see how you figure that out. See above—Ed.) or one and one-half times at 60 cycles, or every third time with 133 cycles. The three-blade shutter performs the same way, except that the proportion of cuts to the pulsation is different. If your shutter blades are of exactly the same width, and of equal width with the light space between them, and you have an absolutely steady source of light, you theoretically have a perfectly white screen, with no perceptible flicker, provided the shutter be rotated at a speed below the persistance of vision limit. (You mean above, don't you?—Ed.) Now there are two sources of continuous current, viz: primary battery and the storage cell or accumulator. A direct current dynamo in reality produces highly pulsating current, the pulsations being dependent on a number of coils in the armature (I don't understand it that way. My understanding is that the action of the commutator renders the current not only theoretically but actually continuous by reason of the fact that the brush laps over from one segment to the next.—Ed.) though for practical purposes it is a continuous current. Therefore, if you have a motor generator set with 12 segments on the commutator, each revolution of the armature gives six direct pulsations, or the speed of the commutator per minute multiplied by six per minute. My theory is that the shutter can and will get into step with these pulsations. The three-blade shutter, almost always used on d.c., cuts at the rate of between 2,880 or 3,000 times per minute and will get in step with about every fourth pulsation, which, although the arc seems to be absolutely steady, will still operate to give an objectionable flicker. These pulsations are themselves beyond the persistance of vision or visional inertia as it is sometimes called, but the shutter blocks them off into divisions and they are just as bad as if 25 cycle was used. If I am correct in my theory the only remedy is to employ storage batteries.

I do not care to comment on this proposition. Frankly, I do not believe there is anything in it, at least so far as d.c. is concerned, but I would not care to make that as a flat statement. Our readers may consider the matter, and if they think it worth while may set forth their views. Brother Russell willl doubtless feel inclined to answer as regards rectifier pulsations.

From St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., writes as follows:

> These few lines may be of interest to users of Power's Six A lamp houses. I had considerable trouble with breaking of condensers. Tried almost everything under the sun to stop this annoyance and expense. Finally I made some mats of ¼-inch sheet asbestos, the mat being square and as large as would go into the condenser holder. In the center I cut a round hole ¼ of an inch smaller in diameter than the condenser itself. I then put the lenses in the holder loose, letting them lie against the mat. This stopped the trouble. In a recent issue of the Department some St. Paul operator spoke about high amperage. I am projecting a 14-foot picture at 90 feet, using 55 to 60 amperes at the arc. I agree with the brother who recommended 9/16 carbons. I am using them myself. Mr. Charles Bell was the first to introduce this combination in St. Paul. He was chief operator over me for a long time, but is now the expert moving picture cameraman of this city and is turning out some splendid work. I hope I am welcome to the Department, and will close with best personal wishes.

You certainly are welcome, St. Paul. The latch-string of this department is always hanging out for operators and managers who have something of value or interest to say. Come again. Your mat idea is all right, and will no doubt prove effective in other cases. As to 9/16 carbons; the tendency all over the West seems to be towards larger carbon diameters, though I am not at all certain but that this matter can very easily be carried to excess.

Attention.

Chicago, Ill., makes the following inquiry:

> I notice you are roasting some of the officials of Local Union No. 2, of which I am a member, and I for one am thoroughly in accord with what you have said. It is coming to them. Can you give me a reliable method of setting the tension springs of a projector? That is to say, how may I know and determine positively when the springs have the right amount of tension?

Yes, Chicago, I have made some remarks about your officials. I have nothing whatever against the Chicago men as a whole; in fact, I have many friends in Local Union No. 2, and some very warm ones. The remarks I have made have been prompted by the fact that the officials of Local No. 2, whom I met in Seattle, gave it out point blank that they were opposed to progressiveness and to the dissemination of knowledge. Their idea, as gathered from their conversation, was that they did not believe there was any virtue in the improvement; that it made no difference to the organization whether the work of its members was high class or low class, and so long as they did take this position it was only natural that they would oppose all opportunity for the non-union man to avail himself of the knowledge they did not care for their own members to take advantage of. The time will come, however, when silly opposition such as this will cease. I say "silly" because that is the correct term. It is worse than merely foolish. As I have stated time and again, there is no good reason for the opposition because the members of the organization can make far greater use of the department and the Handbook then can an individual; this for several reasons. Therefore, regardless of how much the individual may improve, or how much he may learn, the union man can still keep far in advance if he really wants to and if he does not want to I have no sympathy with him. He is a detriment to the business and to the organization of which he is a member.

As to the tension spring matter, I quote General Instruction No. 9, page 216 of the Handbook, as follows:

> The tension may be considered as being approximately right when the picture is steady, and without movement on the screen, when run at any speed up to 90 per minute, but at 90 or thereabouts the picture begins to crawl up slightly on the screen. Another fairly accurate test is to set the tension so that you can just barely feel it when the crank is turned very, very slowly (and by "very, very slowly," I mean just what I say)—just barely moving. If you can feel the jerk of the tension appreciably when moving the crank thus, then the tension is too tight. In fact, it is not always necessary to have the tension tight enough so that you can feel it in the crank. The 90-feet-per-minute test is the best.

His Dream Shattered.

F. G. Cook, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, No. 163, New York City, who is one of our really progressive exhibitors, sends the editor an invitation to visit his new theater, which will soon be opened, and rids his mind of the following load:

> In October 25th issue, page 378, I find one of my pet delusions completely wrecked. I want the name of that other B. R. T. man. I thought I was the only member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen engaged in the moving picture business, but here comes another "Old Rail," smashing my pet record all to smithereens. The brother's comments on the new I. A. T. S. E. law are, to the best of my judgment, timely and proper, and I might add "them 'eres my senterments tew." To the B. R. T. brother, and to yourself, I extend a cordial invitation to visit our new theater at Columbus Avenue and 103rd Street, New York City. You will find it to be a regular photoplay house, seating four hundred, and right "on time" in every detail. It is owned and managed by B. R. T. men, who always honor a traveling card. I shall expect you both, and there is no doorman to bar you—just walk in, the house is yours.

The editor will be there with bells on—later. The B. R. T. man is Brother J. W. Kelley, 538 Wendover Avenue, Bronx. I have no doubt that Brother Kelley also will own the house for one evening. I can assure Mr. Kelley he will find neighbor Cook to be the real goods and one "ripping good feller," as well as a thoroughly good exhibitor. Sorry Brother Cook's pet record got a hole knocked into it, but I guess he will live through it all right.

Important Notice.

I have concluded that if there is sufficient demand I will compile the entire list of questions, which looks now as though they would extend over fully a year and a half (asking one question a week) and possibly more than two years, and have them printed by mimeograph, supplying them to all operators who desire them at 25 cents per set. Now this offer is not going to be made again, and whether I will do this will altogether depend upon how much response there is; so all of you who want this done, forward 25 cents immediately. If there is not sufficient call for the questions to justify the trouble and expense, I will return the money, of course.

Please understand that the questions will be published, and this merely gives you the advance sheet of the whole list, which may run up to more than one hundred—possibly considerably more than one hundred. Now bear in mind the fact that if this is done at all it will be necessary for you to get busy, without any delay, because I do not particularly care about doing it, though I feel it is my duty to make the offer; but do not give me a good excuse to sidestep it.

From Denison, Texas.

Mr. W. H. Russell, Denison, Texas, writes:

> This is my first letter to the Good Book, which I think every operator ought to subscribe for. Quite often an operator can learn more from one issue of the Projection Department than he could in a year of experience. The local here is young, but is getting along fine. I believe every operator should be a member of the union if it is possible for him to do so. Will you tell me whether I can use a mercury arc rectifier bulb with a compensarc? Projection is fine in this city. There are six picture houses and we have the best bunch of managers I have ever had experience with. They don't want boy operators in Denison. The pay is good—as high as I have received in cities of much larger size, and conditions all around are excellent.

It is indeed gratifying to know that conditions in Denison are so excellent. I am glad to hear that the local is prosperous, and trust it may continue to be so. As to using the mercury arc rectifier bulb in connection with a compensarc, I guess it is possible to perform that stunt all right, though I am not quite certain. Will the General Electric Company, or some operator who is posted in this matter, please answer brother Russell through the Department for the benefit of all. Personally while I think it could be done, I do not believe it is a very practical proposition.

Voltage.

Mr. C. H. Parker, Sea Bright, N. J., says he has a 25-ampere rheostat hooked up to his lamp using 45 or 48 amperes a. c., "because he does not get the voltage." He continues:

> I am quite sure that it is not coming to the operating room at 110 because we are getting it from a line in series with a number of incandescent lights on it. What can we do to get a good light outside of hooking to the main line ahead of these incondescents? I am the proud possessor of one of the Handbooks.

I think you have something in mind which you have not stated very clearly, brother Parker. You say you have a 25-ampere rheostat hooked in because you do not get the voltage, yet you are getting 45 to 48 amperes, presumably, at the arc. Now you could not pull that number of amperes through a 25-ampere rheostat without burning it up, and, moreover, the rheostat is to reduce voltage and bring it down to about 48, which is approximately the voltage of the arc. If your feeders are not heavy enough to supply the incandescents plus your projection lamp, you must have larger feeders installed, and it would make but little, if any difference, I think, whether you hooked on ahead or behind the incandescents. I believe, on the whole, you will have to make this matter a little clearer before I can give you a very intelligent answer.

Large Spot.

Sturgis, Mich., says:

> While on the road this summer my operator was unable to reduce his spot to a size which would give a good picture. He tried every way he knew, such as pulling the lamp-house back, pulling the lamp back from the condenser, etc., but still the spot was fully five inches across and would throw light past the machine aperture. Please advise me as to what was the difficulty. I am not a practical man myself, but my operator was supposed to be.

From what you say, Sturgis, I think that operator of yours must have been a pretty raw proposition. Your statement indicates that he only had in one condensing lens instead of two. Either that or else you had a very thin lens of abnormal focal length, which is not at all likely, as I do not know where you could get hold of that kind of lens. Taking it all round, it seems to me that one lens is the answer. You should have two, of course placed as per figure 140, page 352, of the Handbook.

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS

By F. H. Richardson

420 Pages Illustrated

$2.50 Each Postage Paid

will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years

Address all orders and remittances to

MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"A CIRCUMSTANTIAL HERO" (Biograph), November 27.—Just a bit of amusing nonsense. It's a bathing and fishing farce.

"THE SOMNAMBULISTS" (Biograph), November 27.—Sharing the reel is this midnight mix-up farce, played by three couples. The situation astonishes laughter from the audience, yet it has been carefully done to avoid anything really objectionable.

"THE NAMING OF THE RAWHIDE QUEEN" (Essanay), November 27.—The fresh situation in this picture interests at once and makes it a worthwhile offering. Then it is humanly acted by the far Western company and has well-managed human backgrounds to give it point. An interesting release.

"THE JAPANESE JUDO" (Melies), November 27.—An exceptional offering that is worth advertising beforehand and featuring strongly. It is a lesson in self-defense by the jiu-jitsu method and has been carefully produced to truly a valuable offering from which the spectator can really get something useful. A very desirable offering for men and it will also be of much interest to women.

"A MESSAGE FROM HOME" (Selig), November 27.—It tells a character and fate story and has a good, healthy lesson for the small boy. Such pictures as this makes parents willing to have sons and daughters come to the shows. Its hero is a lad whose home is not wholly happy, though he has a good mother. When he runs away with tramps, there's a good measure of realism in the way he is treated by them and his good fortune is in being arrested. The episode that gives it its name is a pleasing novelty.

"THE CURE" (Vitagraph), November 27.—The author of this one has not written a great or deeply truthful picture, but there are many things in it that go to make it acceptable as entertainment.

"THE SCAPEGRACE" (Lubin), November 28.—A somewhat ordinary film story, in which the younger brother ruins a young girl and casts her off. The elder brother hides the facts from his sweetheart for a time, but in the end the younger brother marries the girl, who has given birth to a child. The settings and photography are good, but the type of plot rather morbid in spite of the happy close.

"THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME" (Kalem), November 28.—This half-reel starts off by interesting the observer in an actress and later switches to the affairs of a married couple, portrayed by John E. Brennan and Ruth Roland. In spite of this break in movement quite a little humor is worked up over the difficulties gotten into by the flirtatious husband.

"ENGLAND'S KING AT LIVERPOOL" (Kalem), November 28.—Views of King George and Queen Mary; also President Poincaire, of France, and maneuvers of British troops. On same reel with above. Fairly interesting.

"THE SUPREME MOMENT" (Selig), November 28.—A film story written by W. E. Wing. This consists of a series of melodramatic scenes in the lives of Swifty Griggs and Slinkey Lewis, the latter now a respectable business man. The plot has hardly enough motive behind it to give it very much appeal, and until the latter scenes did not seem to have any very definite purpose. The roundup of the gang and several other situations were well pictured.

"MAKING EIGHT-TON ROPE" (Patheplay), November 28.—Very interesting and instructive views of the manner in which hemp, jute and coir are treated in the manufacture of rope. The whole process is worth seeing.

"CAPITAL OF THE MALAY STATES" (Patheplay), November 28.—On same reel with above. Pictures of Kwala Lampur, showing the beautiful gardens and luxuriant vegetation abounding there.

"FASHION'S LAW IN SWISS CANTONS" (Patheplay), November 28.—On same reel with above. These colored views of pretty girls in various Swiss provinces are very attractive. Each view illustrates the style of dress in that particular locality. An entertaining number.

"BETTY IN THE LIONS' DEN" (Vitagraph), November 28.—A lively comedy, written by James Oliver Curwood, somewhat farcical in type toward the last. Clara Kimball Young, a pretty country girl, goes to the city and has a lot of fun with her aunt's celebrated guests. The scene in which she rubs Brazilian nettles on everyone is very funny. Darwin Karr and Josie Sadler also appear. A pleasing number.

"THE ELUSIVE TURKEY" (Patheplay), November 26.—A farce that is kept going at a lively pace. It has some rough work, some good trick photography and brings out laughter. Its author, in thinking up unexpected incidents for it, sharp turns and twists to its action, has made good. It will bore no one much and the majority, we believe, will like it.

"DOLLARS—POUNDS—SENSE" (Essanay), November 26.—Getting one's wife by the pound is rather new as a farcical idea and it is not so bad as a maker of laughter either. One might meet a woman who weighed much and later meet another who weighed more. At the end, one, after choosing a fine, plump widow, might telephone for permission to bring the minister and then find the widow's midget daughter was the one he had proposed to, but this isn't quite so convincing, even in a farce. The final scene, where the sense comes in, is quite in keeping and the whole gave the audience a good deal of fun.

"CUPID IN THE COW CAMP" (Selig), November 26.—A bright little farce and a love story grow side by side in this picture and both show that freshness of mind in both author and producer that makes the offering furnish profitable entertainment. It not only amuses, but pleases the spectator. The author is J. A. Dunn, and it was produced by William Duncan. A desirable release.

"TEMPLES AND STATUES OF ROME" (Vitagraph), November 26.—There is no doubt of the value of such offerings as this. They are very good, but they need a lecturer and don't mean much to the average spectator without one. It has no descriptive matter or sub-titles at all.

"FELLOW VOYAGERS" (Vitagraph), November 26.—A clever bit of polite comedy taken on a Pacific Ocean steamer and giving us a little sketch of characters and a pretty deck flirtation. There is laughter in it and it is a picture that will be liked. The script was written by Eliza G. Harral; the director was Maurice Costello, and it was "picturized" by Eugene Mullin.

"A SENSE OF HUMOR" (Edison), November 26.—A farce that is played in first-class spirit and pretty sure to please. All the characters are young people and its healthy, jolly spirit of youth is the quality that keeps it alive. This is about all that the picture has to commend it, but it alone is plenty. Charles M. Seay produced it from a script by Sidney S. Booth, who has imagined a very decent sort of young Englishman for his hero.

"HOW THE DAY WAS SAVED" (Biograph), December 1.—A rather vulgar offering.

"BINK'S VACATION" (Biograph), December 1.—On the same reel is a slight farce with grotesque detectives and the adventures of a man who tries to run away from his shrew of a wife, but gets drunk.

"SOUTH AFRICAN WHALING INDUSTRY" (Edison), December 1.—There is excellent instruction here and first-class entertainment, too, except that the whale, innocent denizen of wide sea spaces, is helpless before the steamship and its gun harpoon-thrower. The picture has been intelligently produced and is amply worth while as an offering to the public. The photography is clear and good.

"WANTED, A BURGLAR" (Edison), December 1.—Sharing the same reel, is this freshly thought up little farce in the office of a one-man country newspaper. It is light and entertaining and was written by William H. Ketchel.

"MELITA'S SACRIFICE" (Lubin), December 1.—A conventional drama with a self-sacrificing senorita as its heroine. There is little that is fresh in it and it was made for those who have a rather narrow outlook on life, but it will please the spectators it was made for. There was a couple of young girls near us who watched it "with eyes glued to the screen." The author and producer is Wilbert Melville.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 72."—A good athletic number, especially for college men, and with many other acceptable items.

"A GAME OF CARDS" (Vitagraph), December 1.—The story lacks a strong human appeal and under the circumstances as shown, the card cutting scene seems especially weak. It doesn't convince; one fails to get wrapped up in the fates of the heroine and the progress of it is rather jerky. Not a strong offering. Ned Finley is the leading man and producer and he is certainly a good actor. Zena Keefe and S. Rankin Drew have the juvenile roles. Annabel Dwight is the author.

Licensed Specials.

"THE PLOT OF INDIA'S HILLMEN" (Kalem), November 26.—We have seen few or no pictures of life in India made at home that so astonishingly suggested that country as does this. In this quality it is truly marvelous and is a decided triumph for its producer. The picture also provides a story that does good service as entertainment. It is a melodrama of military life with battle smoke and adventure. Its hero is an English lieutenant and the story is somewhat weakened by the fact that, at one point, he shows himself a coward; yet, in a measure, he retrieves himself in the end and perhaps there were few in the audience that, in full wakeful consciousness, noticed the quality of his spirit. It has action and is fresh enough to pass muster as a good offering.

"THE FAITHLESS FRIEND" (Patheplay), November 27.—A Western melodrama with its hero abandoned on the desert by a false friend, whom he had just nursed back to health from smallpox. Indians find and take care of the sick hero and the villain marries the sweetheart, telling her that the other man is dead. In his bitterness, the hero then joins the Indians and a few months later incites them to attack a caravan in which, it happens, are the faithless friend and the deceived sweetheart, now a wife. The ending is sentimental. All this is fairly well done and where such a story will be liked, the picture will make a good release.

"A WAIF OF THE DESERT" (Lubin), November 27.—A melodrama of early days in the West with a very romantic love story. It impresses one as not strongly written; for now and then it is a bit incoherent and fails to get over with vigor. Some of the scenes are full of merit and the producer has resurrected an old-time saw-mill for which credit is due him. Clay Green is author and Edgar Jones produced it.

"THE GUNMAKER OF MOSCOW" (Edison), November 28.—This presentation of the story of Peter the Great abounds in the usual intrigue featured in the writings of Sylvanus Cobb, Jr. Anyone familiar with the devices of this master of Russian melodrama will recognize the type of incidents pictured here. The characterizations, particularly those of Ruric and Peter the Great, by Benj. F. Wilson and Charles Ogle, wer esatisfactory. The costuming is good and helps convey a proper atmosphere. The story carries the interest along very nicely and works up to the surprise scene at the last quite ingeniously. Bigelow Cooper and Edna Hamel also appear.

"THE BRAND OF EVIL" (Essanay), November 28.—This story in two reels presents the familiar plot wherein an adventurer steals the sacred stone from an Indian idol. Twenty years elapse and then follows the usual vengeance by the Hindus which, in this case, was not entirely successful. The theme is old and there is not much suspense, but the film is strong on settings and atmosphere. The final scenes materially help as they are exciting and splendidly acted.

"THE OCTOROON" (Kalem), December 1.—Dion Boucicault's well-remembered melodrama of passionate love and deep villainy, set in Louisiana before the war and filled with tremendous situations, is here picturized. It is in three reels and is very effectively done; will make a very acceptable offering. In many ways it goes ahead of the Vitagraph version, which was in two reels; it is more elaborate and the settings are much better, but further comparison would hardly be profitable. Both are excellent pictures; we happen to like the one we have just seen more and think it better. Those Southern home scenes in-doors are perfect, as are the out-door scenes in the Southern woods. Then the boat fire (for the villain, McCloskey, sets the steamboat on fire in order to escape) is vividly suggested. But the whole picture is filled with fine things; is not greatly acted, but makes a very commendable offering. The photography is well nigh perfect.

"THE CYPHER MESSAGE" (Selig), December 1.—Clever use of a cypher and its surprising solution is one of the bright spots in this two-part crook and detective story. The picture would have been helped by a bit more realism, especially in the costume in which the female crook applies for the job as maid to the rich young lady (would have been more convincing), but it gets over very well as a tale and makes a commendable offering. The script, by Wallace Clifton, was produced by F. J. Grandon.

Independent

"THE HORSE THIEF" (Keystone), December 11.—In which some children get a hobby horse and two of them make away with it. Ten cents is offered for the capture of the thief. The trial scene was amusing. Quite an entertaining little offering of the kind.

"THE LONG PORTAGE" (Kay-Bee), December 5.—A story of the Northwest by Richard V. Spencer. Jean and Pierre become rivals for the hand of the girl. The story is entertaining, the scenes picturesque, and altogether this makes a good film.

"THE GUSHER" (Keystone), December 15.—In which Ford Sterling goes into the oil business and gets hold of a planted proposition. A good burlesque offering, winding up with a big fire in the oil districts. A pleasing number.

"OUT OF HIS CLASS" (Frontier), December 13.—This presents an interesting episode out of the life of a gambler similar to Jack Oakhurst of Bret Harte's creation. In this instance, as in the other, the gambler is found dead at the finish, with a last message written on a playing card. The story is good and well presented.

"THE RETURN OF TONY" (Imp), December 8.—King Baggot as "Tony" in this excellent character sketch does not give quite the characterization for which his parts must have been designed by the scenario writer. The whole idea in the story is to indicate the overwhelming father-love of Tony for his two children and this finds its culmination in his stealing into a house where the children have been quarantined on account of diphtheria. Mr. Baggot does not quite get away with this scene and altogether he does not convince us that Tony would ever risk his life simply to hold one of his children in his arms. But the story is very good, altogether clear and logical and will not fail to hold the interest.

"THE FILLY" (Domino), December 4.—A dashing Irish story, written by William H. Clifford, with Bob Stanton and Anna Little in the leading roles. This is a racing story of the old-time sort and full of interest. The squire's white horse is taught by the girl to go lame; later she and the girl color it up and she rides it in jockey costume in the big Donnybrook event. The villain is foiled and the money won. A lively picture throughout.

"WHEN ROARING GULCH GOT SUFFRAGE" (Frontier), December 11.—Warfare at the polls between men and women candidates furnishes the basis of this burlesque comedy. Nothing very new about this and the situations were not particularly funny. The latter scenes were best, where the women's fire department was called out.

"ARMED INTERVENTION" (American), December 13.—A Western ranch story of about ordinary interest, in which the cowboy lover repents of his hasty engagement. He and the girl agree to call off the wedding, but their friends force them to marry at the point of guns. The idea in this is not very strong; the photography is good.

"HIS FIRST CASE" (American), December 11.—A story principally notable for some attractive outdoor scenes, picturing wide stretches of mountain country. The plot is old and not strongly handled. It was not clearly shown how the young attorney saved the girl's father from conviction. But the attorney won the case and the girl.

"TRAPPED IN A FOREST FIRE" (American), December 8.—The raging forest fire, photographed at close range, in the latter part of this film, makes it one of unusual interest. A love story has been devised to give additional entertainment and on the whole this proves an offering better than the ordinary.

"INCOGNITO" (Victor), December 15.—Good drama. Warren Kerrigan has the role of the son of a marquis, portrayed by George Periolat. The son refuses to marry the woman the father selects and goes to America. There, down and out, he seeks employment as a valet. He is engaged by a disappointed suitor for the hand of an artist to pose as a nobleman and to attempt to win the girl, with an offer of $5,000 if he wins. He succeeds, spurns the money and gets word from home that father has taken the girl himself and restored the son as heir. There is a fine vein of comedy in the picture. Jessalyn Van Trump is the artist. The acting and the production are good.

"RETRIBUTION" (Nestor), December 10.—Wallace Reid and Dorothy Davenport play the leads in this melodramatic offering. Good suspense was worked up over the explosion, which killed the villain and left the hero unharmed. There is a good deal of absurdity in this of a very patent variety, but it is enjoyable and for that reason probably excusable.

"THE LITTLE PEACEMAKER" (Gaumont), November 27.—Lovely scenes taken in some fine private park in blossom time and a gracefully acted love story of a married couple who have quarreled, all done in perfect taste, make this a very acceptable offering. It is a thing of beauty.

"A WOMAN OF SIN" (Reliance), December 3.—A film story by George Hennessy, illustrating the effect produced by a child on a woman of the underworld. The child's father is shot in a saloon brawl and the girl taken care of by the fast woman. Irene Hunt handles the part of the demimonde with considerable skill. The close of the film merely indicates her reformation.

"HOW HE WON" (Komic), December 4.— A half reel of the knockabout variety. The lover accidently throws a bucket of water on the girl's father and trouble naturally ensues. This is rather laughable.

"THE ACTOR BOOK AGENT" (Komic), December 4.—This, on same reel, is better. It shows an actor out of employment who decides to be a book agent. He rings in many changes of disguise upon his victims and the result is very funny. A good split reel.

"THE PROBLEM LOVE SOLVED" (Thanhouser), December 2.—This is an entertaining film story, in which a shrewd girl stenographer saves her lover from the trouble put up on him by his business associates, who are in reality crooks and embezzlers. The dictagraph is employed on one effective scene. The photography is somewhat dim in places, but the film holds the interest throughout.

"HER LEGACY" (Kay-Bee), December 9.—One of the old-fashioned type of stories, in which the half-starved daughter of the old miser is pursued by the unwelcome attentions of an aged lawyer. She refuses him and clings to her own lover. This is not new, but it is a successful offering of its kind and well pictured.

"HER RIGHT TO HAPPINESS" (Princess), November 28.—There is a pleasing idea in this story of the young wife who follows her husband on his camping trip. Both have concealed their love of the country from each other since marriage. Boyd Marshall and Muriel Ostriche play the leads. More strength could have been infused into the scenes, but the story is a pretty one as presented.

"THE HELPING HAND" (Majestic), December 6.—In which a wealthy man refuses his widowed daughter shelter for herself and child. The scenes are interesting, particularly where she leaves the child on the steps. Years pass and the grandchild goes to college with the adopted girl, both living on the same allowance. This did not seem to be a well-rounded story in spite of numerous points of merit.

"THE PADRE'S SACRIFICE" (Majestic), December 2.—This is quite a pleasing offering, in which the good padre sacrifices the money donated for a new organ to pay for an operation on the eyes of Rafael's wife. Rafael, who has denied God, is so affected that he becomes converted. A good offering, well pictured.

"TONY'S SACRIFICE" (Reliance), December 1.—Thos. R. Mills appears in the part of a young Italian in this reel. He is attacked by his enemies and the arrival of the child saves him. Brisk action and good photography characterize this production.

"WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN" (Thanhouser), December 5.—A dream story, in which Riley Chamberlin appears as a broker in love with his stenographer. The dream illustrates the things that might have happened to his young rival. This is an entertaining reel, but not very strong in plot or presentation.

Independent Specials

"AMERICAN BORN" (American), December 1.—A two-reel offering of quite decided interest, though the plot lacks proportion in places. The half-breed girl stepped too readily out of her native surroundings into the high society of England. The mystification of the lover at finding her there should have been more clearly shown. The story is a good one, but is not as forcefully presented as it might have been. Sydney Ayres and Vivian Rich make an appealing pair of lovers in this number.

"DEVOTION" (Domino), December 11.—A two-reel number by William H. Clifford, telling a clear-cut, though somewhat conventional, war story. The fighting scenes were unusually spirited and the story follows without interruption. The colonel is struck by a piece of shell and becomes an imbecile. His discovery by Pete was an effective scene. Later the Northern doctor operates on the colonel, who subsequently regains his property and, of course, turns over his daughter to the man she loves. A consistent story and well presented.

CHICAGO LETTER

By JAS. S. McQUADE

OWING to the absence in New York of several members of the building committee, of the city council, for the purpose of securing the best first hand information on modern subway systems, a further discussion of the ventilation ordinances was postponed until Friday, November 28. It is fully expected that the committee will have decided by that time what course to pursue. It is pretty certain that the ordinance will be amended so that the better modern class theaters will not be put in the same class with the old type of photoplay theaters which are destined for elimination.

A strange and deplorable side feature of the antagonism shown picture theater owners by the health department has been the bitterness and misrepresentations indulged in by the Chicago daily press. Deliberate perversion of facts has been resorted to, and council men who have had the courage to protest against the passage of the ordinance as it stood have been referred to as "gray wolves." Even such a tower of strength for right as the Chicago Tribune has written an editorial in favor of the passage of the unamended ordinance, the writer having evidently accepted his data on hearsay, without personal investigation of conditions.

Health Commissioner Young is so zealous for the welfare of his department that he is prone to err, through lack of discrimination, by classing some theaters that are really well ventilated with others that are poorly ventilated. Without doubt he has done so, and I am of the opinion that the committee of three from the building committee, appointed to make investigations, will report to that effect.

The case of the Washington Theater, at 43rd Street and Cottage Grove Ave., owned by C. C. Whelan, was heard in the Court of Chancery every day, except Saturday, during the week of November 16. Chancellor Ball has been listening chiefly to expert testimony on ventilation.

It will be remembered that the Washington was closed by Dr. Young and that an injunction was issued against his department by Judge McGoorty, of the Superior Court.

Essanay Builds New Studio.

The Essanay Film Manufacturing Company is building a new studio, immediately west of the present, on a foundation 80 by 100 feet. The new structure was begun early in October and will be completed about the first of the new year.

A lighting system similar to that now in use in the old studio will be installed, and the dynamos will be placed on separate concrete foundations. The lighting systems of both studios will be run by the same dynamos.

Adjoining the new studio, on the south, are a carpenter shop and dressing rooms, the latter being on the second story. An individual painting frame will also be on the second story.

The new studio will be used exclusively for multiple subjects and special features.

R. C. Seery Had "Not Even a Comeback."

R. C. Seery, formerly manager of the Majestic branch of the Mutual in this city, and now district manager for the Mutual in the Northwest, with headquarters in Seattle, had some "merry" times while here with one of his customers in Macomb, Ills. Seery took a delight in getting into friendly wrangles with this customer, H. B. Franks by name. Once he quoted Mr. Franks $100 over the mark for a certain film service, which so exasperated the theater man that he offered to pay Seery's fare to Macomb "just to have the opportunity to ride him around the square."

Seery wrote back that he was not in the pugilistic business; but advised Franks to go in training at once, as Jack Johnson, at the time, was looking vainly for a "white hope."

To this Frank replied: "Have taken your advice. When ready, will come to Chicago and lick you first, after which I will tackle the other nigger."

After reading this, Seery threw up both hands and said huskily to one of the boys around: "The h—l of it is, I have not even got a comeback."

Ben E. Drum a Happy Benedict.

It is not known to the many friends of Ben E. Drum, in this city, that he has been a happy benedict for nearly a year. Ben is now out in Denver, managing the General Film Company's branch there, and, from all accounts, is doing more than making good.

Mr. Drum was married to Miss Ivy Eleanor B. Nichols (of Chicago), in Omaha. The bride's wedding day was also the anniversary of her birthday, a happy omen.

Mr. Drum comes from a family of newspaper men. His father was known as the fighting editor of Platt County, Ills. One of his brothers is assistant editor of the Chicago Journal, while three others are engaged in various capacities on other papers in the United States.

U. S. World Leader in Film Making.

The United States leads the world in the manufacture of moving picture films, and if the films made in this country, in 1913, were placed together, a string twenty-five thousand miles long, enough to stretch around the world, would result, says a report issued recently by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

There was a total exportation of 65,500,000 feet of plain films in the nine months ending September, and 23,500,000 feet of exposed, or finished films. Their value was $3,500,000. England is our chief customer.

Moving Pictures as Salesmen.

A recent editorial in the Chicago American praises Germany for setting "an excellent example in government co-operation with individuals." and cites, as an instance, where the government "co-operates fearlessly and sanely with German industry and commerce" by utilizing the moving picture to boom German business in foreign lands.

"All kinds of work that Germans do for foreign consumption will be shown on films, and these films will be displayed and described by intelligent lecturers throughout the world to impress upon buyers subtly and agreeably the fact that the words 'Made in Germany' mean well made.

"The Germans intelligently reason that the people will believe what they can see. And they mean to make the world see just what Germany is doing."

New Talent for Film Field.

At the recent congress of "immortals," in this city, a playwright of national reputation stated his belief "that the most promising field of the dramatist today was the new one provided by the moving pictures" says the Chicago Record-Herald editorially.

"The film photographer will teach the stage manager lighting. The film stage manager will teach the actor gestures. The film actor will beckon still more people from the galleries and balconies of the regular theater. And the film magnates will become still more rich and powerful.

"Then they will engage real dramatists of rank and standing to devise their scenarios. Novelists who can produce books of lively action will participate in the same benefits. The scenario, like the ordinary play, or novel, needs only to be paid for on a royalty basis. Such arrangements are already in the making and will soon be a regular and recognized feature in theatrical and literary life. The gains to playwright, novelist, manager and public ought to be considerable."

Chicago Film Brevities.

The Chicago office of the World has been requested by a correspondent to warn Chicago exhibitors of a young man who sells candies and song books in Chicago picture theaters. This young man, named Sexton, claims that he represents a company. He called recently at the Kedzie Theater, 12th and Kedzie Ave., and asked permission to sell song books with candy, offering 25% for November 15th and 16th. He sold books until about 8:30 p. m., November 15th, and then disappeared, without paying any percentage. Chicago exhibitors are warned to be on the look-out for this young man.

* * *

G. A. Hutchinson, formerly manager of the H. & H. Film Service Co., has opened a feature film exchange in the Powers Building, 37 S. Wabash Ave., and is handling high class film under the title of the Acme Feature Film Co.

* * *

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., spent several days in the city last week, and left for New York Saturday, November 22nd. He was enthusiastic over the quality of the Universal programs at the present time.

* * *

Will A. Hopp is getting along finely, after his recent surgical operation at St. Joseph's Hospital. The operation was most successful and it is expected that Mr. Hopp will be removed to his home in a few days.

* * *

A. M. Eisner, at one time manager of the General Film Co.'s branch at 17-19 S. Wabash Ave. and later manager of that Company's branch in Kansas City, has been appointed manager of both Chicago branches of the Mutual, with headquarters in the new Mallers Building. The Mutual office, at 166 W. Washington St., has been discontinued. Its customers being divided between the H. & H. branch, 117 N. Dearborn St., and the Majestic branch in the new Mallers Building. Mr. Eisner reports excellent business in both offices. Mr. Eisner is a popular favorite with Chicago exhibitors and has quite a following. He informs me that the big advertisements of the Mutual in the Chicago daily papers and in other newspapers throughout the country is working great good, both for the Mutual and its customers.

* * *

J. W. Brickhouse, formerly traveling representative of the Mutual Film Corporation in the Middle West, has resigned his position and has been appointed traveling representative for the Universal, with headquarters at 172 W. Washington St.

* * *

A. S. Traub has resigned his position as general manager of the Amusement Supply Co., this city, P. Plumber has succeeded him.

* * *

Carl Harthill, who has acted as manager of the Standard Film branch of the Universal since Will A. Hopp's illness, has resigned that position to accept the general management of the Union Film Co., at 166 W. Washington St. Mr. Harthill has been with the Standard Film Exchange under Joseph Hopp for six years. During that time he has filled various positions from operator up to assistant manager and manager. He is one of the best known exchange men in Chicago, in the independent field. He is still a young man and is ambitious to rise still higher. He is a stockholder of the Union Film Co., an Illinois corporation recently formed. This company will handle the feature films released through the Exclusive Supply Corporation and also weekly selections from the best product of independent manufacturers. Commencing Monday, December 1st, the Union Film Co. will release a feature daily. Mr. Harthill has the best wishes for his success of a wide circle of friends in the business.

* * *

Municipal Judge Dolan recently sent Edward Curtz, a moving picture flirt, to the house of correction, on a fine of $50.00 and costs, for annoying Mrs. Lind Miller during a moving picture presentation at one of the theaters in this city. "It is a disgrace to our city to have the picture play houses unsafe for our women to enter," Judge Dolan said. More power to the Judge!

* * *

Mrs. Maud Murray Miller, of Columbus, a member of the Ohio State Board of Censorship, was in Chicago last week viewing films. She saw 200 films and rejected only three.

* * *

Safeblowers cracked the strong box of the Ellis Theater, Ellis Avenue and East 63rd Street, one day last week, and escaped with $2,000 of the receipts. The job evidently was planned with nicety, the criminals working between the visits of a neighborhood watchman. It is believed that they attended the last performance of the evening and secreted themselves in the building when the theater was closed. The Saturday night and Sunday receipts were in the safe according to the manager, Nat Wols. The Ellis is one of the theaters on the Hamburger circuit.

FRANK WOODS FRAMING UP.

Frank Woods, well known in the newspaper world, and formerly scenario editor for the Biograph Company, has succeeded in interesting a large number of prominent authors in writing photoplays. Mr. Woods is at present engaged in organizing a special scenario department for the Mutual Film Corporation, and his latest acquistion from the world of well known writers is Paul West, whose famous "Bill" stories will soon appear on the Mutual program.

WARNER'S FEATURES OPENS CANADIAN OFFICES.

Warner's Features, Inc, are permanently settled in their new branch quarters at 360 St. Catherine Street, West Montreal. Mr. E. A. Feston, formerly general manager of the Montreal branch of the General Film Company and the Kinetograph Co., will head this office. Mr. Holland, also well known to filmland there, will assist Mr. Fenton in his extensive work. Branch offices will soon be opened in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

SOLAX AND BLACHE COMPANIES' PLANS.

These two companies have announced the output for 1914 of 24 attractions to be released fortnightly, or two a month. It is their plan to schedule releases so that during the year they will put out 12 three-reel subjects and 12 four-reel subjects; all productions, it is promised, will be of the usual Solax and Blache quality. It is their intention to use especially big subjects and big people with big reputations. At the present time, they offer to the feature market the "Ben Bolt" production, in three reels; "The Fortune Hunters," in three and one-half reels, and "In the Shadow of the Moulin Rouge," in four reels. For all of these subjects they have an unusually large display of advertising matter as follows: three kinds of one-sheets, two kinds of three-sheets, a six-sheet, photo lobby displays, announcement slides, heralds, booklets and other miscellaneous material.

The Solax and Blache Companies will also offer soon a feature service from Buffalo, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City and Atlanta. They mean to arrange a sort of club booking scheme whereby exhibitors can get together and arrange a series of bookings for their territory; thus reducing materially the expense of dealing through an intermediate organization. Together with their own subjects, they will also book outside features. Their representatives; L. A. Zollner is now travelling in western New York; Burton Garrett in Indiana and Kentucky, and Mr. J. D. Bone in Missouri, booking "The Star of India," "A Fight for Millions," "The Rogues of Paris," "The Prisoner in the Harem," and other productions. Negotiations are now under way for the services of M. E. Williams, of Kansas City, formerly connected with the Morgan Film Company, as representative in western Missouri, Kansas and Colorado.

KIND WORDS CAN NEVER DIE.

Norwich, Conn., October 18, 1913.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir:—Please find enclosed a check for three ($3) dollars, which covers the price of your book from October 13, 1913, to October 13, 1914.

I want to give you a word of praise on this excellent book. It has pleased me for the last year very much, and many others. It is an excellent moving picture book.

Hoping that I shall receive this book regularly for months to come (that is until October 13, 1914) and a receipt by return mail, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
G. M. SPALDING.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find my check for nine dollars for three years' advance payment for subscription to "Moving Picture World." Please begin with No. 1 of Volume 18. Send to

W. C. TEMPLE, Winter Park, Florida.

Middletown, Del., October 20, 1913.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir: Herewith check in amount of three dollars ($3.00) for renewal of my subscription to "Moving Picture World." My employees and family call the "World" my Bible; guess they are right, as I would find it a hard proposition to run my theater intelligently without its aid. Here's hoping that the "World" may never prove to be of less interest and service to the exhibitor. Very truly,

H. S. NEWMAN, Middletown Opera House.

Murray, Ohio, October 14, 1913.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir:—Enclosed find P. O. M. O. for $1.50. Extend my subscription six months. Enjoy your paper very much. Wish you could publish a picture of Betty Gray (Pathe) and Jessie McAllister (Edison) sometime in the near future. Yours respectfully,

CHAS. E. CASTELL.

Lawrenceville, Ill., October 21, 1913.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir:—Enclosed find $3.00 for renewal of my subscription for one year. Kindly accept my best wishes in your behalf for the excellent work you are doing. I am a young exhibitor, only having been in business two years. In that time I have paid for my building, also contents, which stand me now at $2,000, and have at present $1,650 in the bank. I owe all of this to your paper and would not be without it if it cost four times the amount per year.

My only desire now is to get a Sunday show here, but I am afraid the town is too small, so I am leaving well enough alone. Hoping to see you prosper and good wishes with an excellent patronage, I beg to remain, yours truly,

GEO. H. BAUER, Bijou Theater.

Akron, Ohio, November 3, 1913.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir:—Please find enclosed my check for Three and no/100 ($3.00) Dollars, subscription for "Moving Picture World" for one year, as per statement rendered and returned herewith. I find the "Moving Picture World" a very valuable journal; in fact, almost indispensable to a person engaged in the moving picture business. Very truly yours,

C. W. KLINE, Arcade Theater.

Moving Picture Educator

OHIO CENSORS RESTRAINED.

Temporary Injunction Granted by U. S. District Court Pending Decision of Mutual Suit.

(Special to The Moving Picture World.)

THE Mutual Film Company, Ohio and West Virginia corporation, won first blood in its suit to test the constitutionality of Ohio's new film censorship law Saturday, November 29th, when a temporary restraining order was issued in federal court against the Industrial Commission and the Ohio Board of Censors.

Federal Judges John W. Warrington, of Cincinnati, of the United States Court of Appeals; John M. Killits, of Toledo, and William L. Day, of Cleveland, United States district judges, granted the injunction in favor of the Mutual Company.

Contending that the law passed April 16th, providing for a State Board of Censors, to be paid $1 per 1,000 feet of film inspected, is in direct violation of the federal constitution, W. N. Seligsberg, of New York, one of the complainant's attorneys, opened the case. Attorney R. M. Morgan, special counsel here for the attorney general who appeared for the state, called James A. Maddox, Columbus, chairman of the Board of Censors, to testify concerning the work of the censorship board. H. E. Vestel, another member of the board, was present, but Maddox was the only witness.

"The work of the board began September 22nd," said Mr. Maddox. "Since then it has passed judgment on between 7,000 and 8,000 films. We have censored all that has been offered. I have found approximately 700 to 800 films which were objectionable."

Mr. Maddox said three film companies control about 90 per cent. of the films placed on the market, and that the Mutual Company was the only one thus far to object to censorship. The Universal Film Company, he said was not offering its films for censorship at present, but he added that he had been advised it would do so at an early date.

Former Judge W. B. Sanders, of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland, counselors for the Mutual Film Company, closed the case early in the afternoon. Judge Sanders, in his argument to the court, contended the law was invalid on the ground that motion pictures should be free from censorship because the pictures are akin to the public press which the federal constitution exempts from censorship. "This business is a part of the press within the meaning of the constitution," said Judge Sanders.

Attorneys were instructed to submit briefs this week. A decision will not be handed down until after December 15th.

Judge Warrington explained the delay was necessary until he again could find time to meet with his colleagues. The restraining order then was granted and prevents censoring of films controlled by the Mutual Film Company, pending final outcome of the case.

TEXAS CONVENTION.

Ranch Foreman J. S. Phillips Rounds-Up a Most Enthusiastic Bunch of Texas Exhibitors.

Fifty of the most enthusiastic exhibitors answered roll-call during the two days' convention, November 24th and 25th, at Fort Worth, Texas, that ever graced a convention hall. The meeting was spirited and full of ginger throughout.

The General Film Company, Universal Film and Supply Company, Warners Feature Company, Southern Feature Film Company, All Star, Big Four Feature Company, U. S. Amusement Feature and Supply Company, and a score of other feature companies availed themselves of the open meeting for telling the exhibitors of the merit of their goods, wares and chattels. The Simplex machine man was on hand, expressing himself that he would be satisfied if the convention would run as smooth, and with that precision, as the machine he was demonstrating with that was on exhibition in the convention hall. All film companies above mentioned had exhibits in the hall.

Then came the business session, some film managers participating in this executive session relative to some minor grievances which were soon adjusted to the satisfaction of parties concerned. In the executive session the general "all-day sucker" program was condemned and a minimum three and four-reel program was recommended. The grievance committee had many little things referred to them to take up with the exchanges, not as grievances, but for the mutual benefit of exchanges and exhibitors. The treasurer's report found a neat little sum on hand that might be used for the furtherance of the best legislation.

Upon a report of the delegates sent to the National Convention, the following resolutions were passed with a unanimous vote:

Resolved, That the Motion Pictures Exhibitors' League No. 18 of the State of Texas remain true and loyal to, recognizing only the parent organization, The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America; that they hereby indorse the action of the national body in the expulsion of the bolters at the national convention at New York City last July: Further resolved that we indorse the entire finding of that convention.

Resolved, That with a unanimous vote of No. 18, of the State of Texas, we heartily indorse the action of our President, J. S. Phillips, National Vice-President Finnegan and our delegation at this National Convention. Further

Resolved, That we are proud to know that in J. S. Phillips we have a president that would, if necessary, sacrifice his opportunities of becoming the president of our national body, that he might remain true and loyal to his pledge to the instructions of his state league "to vote for Mr. M. A. Neff for president of the national body, so long as there was any chance of his (Neff's) election." Further

Resolved, That we heartily indorse our president in immediately taking the floor after the announcement of his opponent's election and personally moving that Mr. Neff's election be made unanimous, thereby fulfilling his only promise to any one at the National Convention "That he would stick in the race until the last vote was cast."—HE DID.

The following officers were elected for the new term: President, A. B. Remey, of the Hippodrome Theater, Fort Worth, Texas; first vice-president, W. R. Fairman, Bryan, Texas; second vice-president, H. G. Cotter, Blue Mouse Theater, Fort Worth, Texas; secretary, H. J. Gould, old secretary retained; P. G. Cameron, Lyric Theater, Dallas, Texas, re-elected to treasurership; national vice-president, J. S. Phillips, Odeon Theater, Fort Worth, Texas.

The following amusement and entertainment was furnished for the visiting exhibitors and families: Automobile ride over city; Majestic Theater of the Interstate Amusement Company extended the courtesies of the matinee performance. In fact, all theaters were open to the wearers of an exhibitors' badge, the exhibitors, in a body, attended the horse show at the Colliseum, Monday night, to a very enjoyable time. A noon banquet luncheon was set for seventy-five plates. At this banquet the Vultures and Vampires, a newly organized society of the film exchanges and different seating and supply houses, made such representation that in the afternoon session Dallas was selected for the next convention in May. It is our purpose to have a semi-annual convention for closer communion and betterment of the league and business. Officers to be elected once each year.

BOOSTING THE OHIO CONVENTION.

Good Advance Work Being Done for the Annual Meeting in Cincinnati in January—Big Gathering Assured.

Although the Ohio State Convention does not take place until January 27, 1914, the committees in charge of the arrangements are busy stirring up interest in the event and announce that the meeting will be the largest in the history of the organization. The sessions will be held in the Sinton Hotel, Cincinnati, the finest hotel in that city. To add to the importance of the convention there will be a meeting of the executive committee of the National organization on January 26th, at the same place. It is also certain that a large number of exhibitors from neighboring states will be present.

Ohio has the oldest branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, and that state is better organized than any other state in the Union. Its membership now numbers 635 active exhibitors, all of whom are enthusiastic for their organization, and most of whom will be present on this occasion.

To make things interesting for the visitors, a number of novel forms of entertainment have been planned, including a big banquet on the evening of the 28th, and a grand ball on the last day—the 29th. Manufacturers' exhibits will be given space in the hotel, and there will be ample accommodations for all who wish to make a display.

Every Ohio exhibitor is expected to keep his dates open for the convention, and all exhibitors from nearby states are cordially invited to be present at all meetings.

WISCONSIN CONVENTION.

Outlook for Big Meeting at Oshkosh Is Excellent—Committee of Arrangements Reports Great Interest.

According to the reports that come from the committee of arrangements which is getting things in shape for the meeting of exhibitors of the State of Wisconsin, to be held at Oshkosh on December 16th and 17th, that event will be of considerable importance to members of the trade in that state. The purpose of the meeting is to reorganize the Wisconsin branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, the old organization having lost its charter on account of the action of its delegates in bolting the meeting of the National body at New York last July. As the old Wisconsin organization was not very strong outside of Milwaukee the organizers of the National League have not had much trouble finding exhibitors who were ready and anxious to join a new state organization, so a large attendance at the meeting on December 16th is practically assured. Headquarters will be at the Athern Hotel.

George M. Westley.

It is announced that a number of manufacturers will make exhibits of their goods and that opportunity will be given for exhibitors to look over everything that is new in the way of supplies, machines and other devices.

The committee of arrangements consists of John R. Ek, chairman, of the Star Theater, Oshkosh; Jesse Hogan, of the Colonial Theater; Arthur Grey, of the Rex Theater; Noel Houze, of the Lyric Theater, and Charles Porter, of the Princess Theater, all of Oshkosh. The committee has been assisted, for the past few weeks, by George M. Westley, of Cleveland, Ohio, National organizer, who has made a canvass of the state, and reports great interest in the new organization. President Neff will be present to assist in the actual work of forming the new branch.

Wisconsin Convention Committee.

N. J. Houze, Charles Porter, John R. Ek, Jesse Hogan, Arthur Grey.

STATE ASSOCIATION FOR OREGON.

At a regular meeting of the motion picture exhibitors of Portland, held November 20th, it was decided to issue a call for a convention of state exhibitors, with the object of starting a state organization. The convention is to be held Monday and Tuesday, December 22nd and 23rd.

A committee of arrangements was appointed by President Melvin G. Winstock, consisting of Managers McGuire, of the Bakeronian, Duke of the Nickelodeon, and Fleishman of the Novelty, to arrange a program. This committee will also act as the reception committee.

The association placed itself on file, as emphatically on record, against all fake films, and a resolution was unanimously adopted, instructing Secretary Stevens to put all exhibitors—not only in Oregon, but in Washington, Montana and Idaho—on guard against several recent notorious cases of fake films.

NEW YORK ASSOCIATION NOTES.

The usual monthly meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, of Greater New York, will be held at the Imperial Hotel, Broadway and 31st Street, on Monday morning, December 8, at 11 A. M. Matters of importance will come up and a number of prominent speakers have promised to be present. Officials from the fire department have also been invited. The Law and Legislation Committee will report on the amendment to the Folks' Ordinance and other matters of great interest to all exhibitors. A representative of yours will be most welcome.

The entertainment and ball of the New York Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, to be held at Terrace Garden, on December 15, promises to be one of the largest social events ever held in that hall. A casual glance through the list of reserved box holders shows the following: Vitagraph Co., Kalem Co., Kinemacolor Co., Famous Players Co., Mutual Film Corporation, Universal Co., General Film Co., World's Special Feature Co., Thanhouser Co., Mayor Kline, Mayor-elect Mitchel, Supreme and Special Session Judges, United Electric Light and Power Co., Kalem Co., City Officials, Eclair Co., License Bureau Officials. These boxes will be filled by the officials, and actors and actresses of the various companies reserving the same. Chief among those who will be present are: John Bunny, Lillian Walker, King Baggot, Mary Fuller, Florence Roberts, Helen Gardner, Arthur Johnson, Florence Lawrence, Pearl White, Kenneth Casey, Alice Joyce, Barbara Tennant, Mae Marsh, Muriel Ostriche, Irene Hunt, Flo LaBadie, Lamar Johnstone and a great many others. The Famous Players, headed by Al. Kaufman, studio manager, will be present with their entire company. A large representation of exhibitors from all over the state will be present.

A meeting of the East New York Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, of Greater New York, was held Monday evening, December 1, at the Saratoga Theater, Brooklyn, with William Hollander in the chair. This meeting was attended by about fifty-two exhibitors in the surrounding territory. Reports of Committees were read and the ball committee assisting Mr. Coleman, stated that they had sold 320 tickets in that section and that great progress was being made. A committee was appointed to devise ways and means of putting a stop to the country stores in picture theaters, also that children over five years of age, accompanied by parents must be paid for. The next meeting of the East New York Branch will be held next Monday night at the Ronley Theater, 1980 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

NEW YORK ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING.

A meeting of the Executive Board of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Ass'n, of New York State, will be held at the Imperial Hotel, B'way and 31st Street, at 11 A. M., on Monday, December 15th. Representatives from the following Locals will be present: Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester, Utica, Troy, Oswego, Westchester County.

Questions of the utmost importance will be taken up, principally among which will be a bill to be presented to the legislature to prevent or stop the giving of prizes in theaters showing pictures. A few other bills which the counsellor for the state has drawn up will also be presented that will tend to up-lift our business. A lunch will be served after the meeting at the hotel, after which they will all prepare to pass a pleasant evening at the ball. A committee has been appointed to take the visitors around in automobiles on Tuesday to visit the different trade centers and other places where they may desire to visit.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Samuel Morrison, 3639 North Fifth Street, is estimating on a moving picture theater and hall building, to be erected at Eighth and Latona streets, for P. Pomero. The building is to be two-story, brick, 25 by 115 feet.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Stuckart & Sloan are preparing plans for the Felt Amusement Company, for a moving picture theater at Lehigh avenue and Richmond street. It will have a seating capacity of 1,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The property at the northeast corner of Marshall Street and Erie Avenue, has been conveyed, by the Erie Amusement Company, to May H. Powers, for a nominal consideration.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Graham Campion Company, is estimating on plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected at 21st and Columbia Avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The General Construction Company is estimating on plans and specifications for a one-story brick and terra cotta moving picture theater, 70 by 100 feet, to be erected at 25th and Allegheny Ave., for M. Seloman.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Samuel Morrison has been awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story brick moving picture theater, 49 by 100 feet, at the northeast corner of Second and Ontario streets, for William S. Crager, to cost $5,600.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George Hogg is estimating on the one-story brick moving picture theater to be erected at Wyoming and A streets for the Boulevard Amusement Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—E. Allen Wilson has completed plans and specifications for a moving picture theater to be erected at 55th and Spruce streets. The building will be one-story, 45 by 120 feet.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Thomas W. Lamb has completed plans for the improvements to the People's Theater, Cumberland street and Kensington avenue, for Margolin & Blocks.

Philadelphia, Pa.—H. P. Lanning is preparing tentative sketches for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected by the Sun Amusement Company, on Lansdowne avenue. The building is to be of brick, bluestone and ornamental terra cotta.

Philadelphia, Pa.—H. Zimmerman has completed plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater, 90 by 115 feet, to be erected on Kensington avenue, for H. Frank. The building to be of brick, bluestone and terra cotta, and cost about $20,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mark Haller has been awarded the contract for the erection of a one-story brick moving picture theater, 45 by 98 feet, at the northeast corner of Seventh and McClellan streets, to cost $20,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Richmond & Kemp have been awarded the contract for the erection of new fire escapes to the theater building at 1616 Market street for the Stanley Amusement Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Louis Hopins has had plans and specifications prepared for alterations at 526-28-30 North Third street. The building, when the new work is completed, will be 120 by 108 feet, and seat about 1,800 persons.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Luzerne Theater, at Old York road and Luzerne street, has been leased by Albert M. Greenfield for Edward Bonnem to the theatrical syndicate which already controls the Plaza, Park, Erie and Imperial theaters. The theater seats 500 persons.

Chelsea, N. J.—Bertram Ireland, Bartlett Building, Atlantic City, N. J., has completed plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater, 50 by 140 feet, to be erected for William J. Farley, of Atlantic City, to cost about $22,000.

Palmyra, N. J.—George Shaner is estimating on plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected for the Broadway Palace Theater Company.

Williamstown, N. J.—One of the finest vaudeville and moving picture theaters in South Jersey has been opened to the public here by its builder and proprietor, Patrick Carroll. The building cost over $12,000, and is the only place of amusement of that character in this large industrial center. Mr. Carroll had as his guests, a party of Philadelphians, to celebrate the formal opening.

Worcester, Mass.—Edwin P. Fitzgerald, State Mutual building, has prepared plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 30 by 90 feet.

Caldwell, N. J.—R. C. Dean is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater to cost $12,000. Metzger and Fitzgerald are the lessees.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Nicola Land Company, Farmers' Bank building, are planning to erect a two and one-half story theater building to cost $150,000

West New York, N. J.—William Walser, 400 Sixteenth Street, is to build a three-story theater building to cost $100,000. Plans call for seating capacity of 1,400.

Orange, N. J.—Lyric Amusement Company have plans in preparation for a one-story moving picture theater, 36 by 175 feet, to seat 1,000 persons and cost $20,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Charles Mandel, 193 Broadway, is having exterior alterations made to his moving picture theater to cost $8,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Rudolph Norek, 1546 Union Street, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 33 by 150 feet, to cost $15,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A. Goodman is having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater, 40 by 100 feet, with seating capacity of 600, to cost $25,000.

New York, N. Y.—L. Keller, 29 Broadway, has had plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater, 38 by 75 feet, to cost $7,000. Tiffany Operating Company, 145 West 45th Street, are the lessees.

New York, N. Y.—Brande, Papel Co., 3487 Broadway, are having an addition built to their moving picture theater and the seating capacity increased with 300 more seats.

Evanston, Ill.—Hatzfeld & Knox, 7 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, have prepared plans and specifications for a one-story moving picture theater, 53 by 125 feet.

Greenwich, Conn.—Holst & Hoolbeck, East Portchester, N. Y., have obtained the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, to cost $15,000, for C. M. Creamer, 231 Greenwich Avenue.

Sioux City, Ia.—Royal Amusement Company are having the work rushed so as to be completed by December 15 on the remodeling and addition to their theater building. Seating capacity will be 1,000. There will be two stores on the ground floor. Cost estimated at $20,000

Minneapolis, Minn.—John Carlson, 2909 Irving Avenue, has had plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, 42 by 100 feet, to cost $10,000.

Detroit, Mich.—Dinan Brothers, 318 Abbott Street, are planning to build a one-story moving picture theater building, 45 by 100 feet, with seating capacity of 400.

Columbus, O.—George J. Wahlermaier, 417 North High Street, has had plans prepared for a one and two-story moving picture theater, office and apartment building, 52 by 45 feet, to cost $12,000. Theater will have seating capacity of 450.

Fostoria, O.—McLaughlin & Hulsken, 11 and 16 Central building, Lima, O., has prepared plans for a two-story moving picture theater of modern type and equipment.

Cleveland, O.—Richardson & Yorst, 354 Rockefeller building, has prepared plans and specifications for two modern theater buildings The first is that of a two-story moving picture theater, store and office building, 130 by 148 feet, to comprise five stores and offices and cost $30,000 The theater will seat 650. The other plans call for a one-story moving picture theater and store structure, 150 by 47 feet, to cost $10,000. There will be one large store on the ground floor. The theater will have seating capacity for 500 persons.

Oberlin, O.—Stanton Hobbs has awarded the contract for his one and two-story moving picture theater and store building, 52 by 100 feet. The theater will seat 300.

Chicago, Ill.—S. Gold has had plans prepared for a one story moving picture theater, 50 by 167 feet, to cost $30,000. Seating capacity 500.

Chicago, Ill.—Adolph and Max Silver, 1208 South Jefferson Street, contemplate building a three-story theater, store and office building, 200 by 125 feet, to cost $100,000.

New York, N. Y.—Sophie Bolte, 665 East 225th Street, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 40 by 80 feet, to cost $15,000.

New York, N. Y.—R. Goelet, 9 West 17th Street, will alter a loft building into a modern moving picture building, to cost $7,000. S. Kotinsky, 5 Chatham Square, is the lessee

Rochester, N. Y.—Charles Staley, Clifford Street, is planning to erect a moving picture theater, 38 by 100 feet, to cost $9,000.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Samuel Goldstein, Donora, Pa., is having alterations made to the front of his moving picture theater, to cost $6,000

Brooklyn, N. Y.—John Manheimer, 261 Broadway, New York City, has had plans completed for a one and two-story moving picture theater, 71 by 138 feet, to cost $30,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Harde & Short, 3 West 29th Street, New York City, have completed plans for alterations of a store property into a modern moving picture theater, to cost $10,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—James B. Garrison, 1517 Rockaway Parkway, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater, 25 by 119 feet, to cost $5,000.

Amsterdam, N. Y.—N. C. Becker, Prospect Street, has had plans prepared for a one-story theater and store building, 51 by 80, to cost $8,000. The theater will seat 400.

Tacoma, Wash.—J. A. Wolbert is planning to erect a frame moving picture theater, 50 by 100 feet, on 6th Avenue, to cost $5,000. The building will be protected by a composition roof.

Los Angeles, Cal.—H. L. McAllister and J. M. Dobbins have had plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater and store building, 160 by 183 by 86 by 121 feet, to cost about $35,000.

San Diego, Cal.—Edwin F. James, Portland, Ore., will build a two-story theater building, 100 by 150 feet, to cost $100,000.

Chicago, Ill.—J W. Snyder Company, 122 South Michigan Avenue, have obtained the contract to erect a one and two-story theater building, containing offices and a dance hall, to cost $95,000, for H M. Ohrenstein

Syracuse, N. Y.—Joseph Mintz, 748 Jackson Street, has been awarded the contract to remodel a church into a moving picture theater for Schafer & Bergman, Westcott Street and Harvard Place, to cost $2,500.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—George J. Hollar, 16 Richey Street, North Side, has obtained the contract to erect a two story moving picture theater, 44 by 100 feet, to cost $50,000, for R. H. Boggs, Sewickley, Pa.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—William McCord, McKeesport, Pa., has been awarded the contract to erect a moving picture theater, 26 by 110 feet, to cost $10,000, for D. L. Clark. A. Berg, McKeesport, Pa., is the lessee.

Chicago, Ill.—Henry L. Newhouse, 4630 South Prairie Avenue, has prepared plans for the two-story Beach Theater, store and office building, 180.6 by 180.8 feet, triangular shape, containing fifteen stores, thirty-seven offices and billiard hall. Theater will have seating capacity for 1,000 persons.

Beloit, Wis.—Alexander McGavock, 624 Cross Street, will build a two-story theater building, 46 by 100 feet, and seating capacity for 800 persons.

St. Paul, Minn.—S. J. Bowler, 631 Boston building, has prepared sketches for a modern moving picture theater to cost $12,000.

Hartford, Conn.—W. A. True, 404 Farmington Avenue, is to build a one-story moving picture theater, 82 by 110 feet, to cost $40,000.

East Orange, N. J.—Henry G. Cobert, South Clinton Street, is planning to build a one-story moving picture theater with balcony, to cost $30,000. Seating capacity 900.

Tamaqua, Pa.—L. J. Chamberlain has had plans completed for a one-story moving picture theater, 42 by 150 feet, to cost $30,000.

Washington, D. C.—C. H. Beale, 2807 Fourteenth Street, Northwest, is to build a one-story moving picture theater, 30 by 90 feet, $2,500.

Dayton, O.—The Victoria Theater will be remodeled at the cost of $25,000.

Youngstown, O.—Stanley & Scheible, 1301 Wick building, have prepared plans for a two-story moving picture theater and store building, to cost $15,000.

St. Paul, Minn.—Sylvester Brothers, Endicott building, are planning to remodel a store building into a two-story moving picture theater, containing two apartments above.

Peru, Ill.—C. Nadler has had preliminary plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater and flat building, 30 by 100 feet. C. J. Fletcher is the lessee.

New York, N. Y.—Kellwood Realty Company, J. F. Meehan, president, 1029 East 16th Street, contemplate general alterations to the company's moving picture theater, roof garden and store building and the addition of 600 seats. The improvements, if carried to completion, will cost $15,000.

Dormont, Pa.—Brown Brothers, 1513 Potomac Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., have obtained the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 36 by 80 feet, to cost $10,000, for J. E. Fulton and F. D. Seidel.

Detroit, Mich.—Herman Winckler, 1023 Kirby Avenue, has been awarded the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater building, 25 by 100 feet, for F. Stevens and Richard Helms. The theater will seat 400 persons.

New York, N. Y.—S. S. Sugar, 140 West 42d Street, has prepared plans for a two-story moving picture theater, 19 by 100 and 75 by 100 feet, to cost $25,000. I. Cohen, 653 West 18th Street, lessee. Seating capacity 600.

New York, N. Y.—Christian Dages, 172 East 123d Street, has had plans completed for a modern moving picture theater, to cost $10,000. Seating capacity 500.

New York, N. Y.—Ridley estate are to make alterations to their moving picture theater and store building to the extent of $5,000. Nathan Hirsh, 199 West 23d Street, lessee.

New York, N. Y.—C. R. Hopkins has had preliminary plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater, 41 by 90 feet, to seat 300 persons.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Morris Goodman, 360 Knickerbocker Avenue, is to make alterations to his moving picture theater. The cost is estimated at $3,000.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Christian Hobb is to build a moving picture theater to cost $8,000. Seating capacity 300.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Mark Brock Amusement Company are negotiating for site and will erect a large fireproof moving picture theater.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Edward Howard, Bastable building, has prepared plans for a two-story moving picture and vaudeville theater, 78 by 182 feet, to cost $40,000. There will be two stores on the ground floor. Seating capacity of theater will be 1,200.

Suffern, N. Y.—Daniel Hines has had plans completed for a two-story theater, 60 by 160 feet, containing dance hall and lodge rooms, to cost $30,000.

Baltimore, Md.—Broadway Amusement Company, 30 West Lexington Street, are planning to build a one-story moving picture theater to cost $20,000.

Newark, N. J.—Aetna Realty Company, 788 Broad Street, are to build a one-story moving picture theater, 48 by 118 feet, to cost $18,000. Paddick & Zusi, 213 Clinton Avenue, are the lessees.

RAY SMALLWOOD BECOMES A DIRECTOR.

Ray C. Smallwood, photographic expert, with the Universal Film Mfg. Co., will take up his duties as a director with that company next week. Miss Ethel Grandin will be his leading woman. His company will specialize in comedy dramas.

Mr. Smallwood has been connected with the motion picture industry for about six years. Five years ago he was part owner in an independent concern manufacturing in Cincinnati. Later he was connected with Melies, Imp and the New York Motion Picture Co. Smallwood was a member of the original Bison 101 Company which left New York with Thomas Ince a few years ago to make western features at that company's western studio. His broad experience in all branches of motion picture work fits him for his new duties. In addition to directing, he will superintend his own camera work.

National and State Officers
of the # MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE OF AMERICA

PRESIDENT—Mr. A. Neff, 1003 Mercantile Library Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.
1st VICE-PRESIDENT—Robert L. Macnabb, 551 8th Ave., New York City.
2nd VICE-PRESIDENT—T. P. Finnegan, Hippodrome Theater, Dallas, Texas.
SECRETARY—George H. Wiley, World Theater, 8th & Highland, Kansas City, Mo.
TREASURER—J. J. Rieder, 146 West Main, Jackson, Michigan.
NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—M. A. Neff, Chairman; George H. Wiley, Secretary; J. J. Rieder, R. L. Macnabb, T. P. Finnegan, L. F. Blumenthal, M. E. Cory.

National Vice-Presidents for States

ALABAMA—Alex. A. Wall, Birmingham.
ARIZONA—Fred T. Green, Miami.
ARKANSAS—S. A. Arnold, Mena.
CALIFORNIA—C. Rothschild, San Francisco.
CANADA—Paul LeMarquand, Winnipeg.
COLORADO—O. T. Curtis, Pueblo.
CONNECTICUT—P. S. McMahon, New Britain.
DELAWARE—J. N. Ginnes, Wilmington.
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA—Fulton Brylawski, Washington.
FLORIDA—E. O. Griffith, Tampa.
GEORGIA—C. T. Koch, Atlanta.
ILLINOIS—Dee Robinson, Peoria.
INDIANA—Phil Gloeckner, Richmond.
IOWA—Thomas A. Brown, Iowa City.
KANSAS—C. E. Glamann, Wellington.
KENTUCKY—Orene Parker, Covington.
LOUISIANA—John Deplnet, New Orleans.
MAINE—Hiram Abrams, Portland.
MARYLAND—J. Howard Bennett, Baltimore.
MASSACHUSETTS—George F. Washburn, Boston.
MICHIGAN—Peter J. Jeup, Detroit.
MINNESOTA—George Osborne, St. Paul.
MISSISSIPPI—Fred Abley, Gulfport.
MISSOURI—George H. Wiley, Kansas City.
NEBRASKA—J. E. Schlank, Omaha.
NEW JERSEY—L. F. Blumenthal, Jersey City.
NEVADA—Glenn D. Hurst, Reno.
NEW YORK—Sidney Ascher, New York City.
OHIO—W. A. Pittis, Conneaut.
OKLAHOMA—Carl Gregg, Tulsa.
PENNSYLVANIA—Walter Steumpfig, Philadelphia.
RHODE ISLAND—S. Y. Merchant, Providence.
SOUTH CAROLINA—Julius Meyers, Charleston.
SOUTH DAKOTA—E. J. Hipple, Pierre.
TENNESSEE—W H. Wasserman, Nashville.
TEXAS—J. S. Phillips, Fort Worth.
VIRGINIA—H. C. Stradford, Richmond.
WASHINGTON—John Rantz, Bremerton.
WEST VIRGINIA—A. L. Cottrell, Point Pleasant.

Officers of the State Branches of the M. P. E. L. of A.

OHIO STATE BRANCH NO. 1.
M. A. Neff, Pres., 1003 Mercantile Library Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. H. Broomhall, Sec., Jewel Theater, Hamilton, Ohio.

ILLINOIS STATE BRANCH NO. 2.
F. L. Frank, Pres., 29 West Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
E. C. Bostick, Sec , Court Theater, Pekin, Ill.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE BRANCH NO. 3.
E. A. Jeffries, Pres., 5236 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.
Walter Stuempfig, N. V. P., Philadelphia, Pa.

MICHIGAN STATE BRANCH NO. 4.
Peter Jeup, Pres., Pastime Theater, Detroit Mich.
J. B. Caldwell, Secy , Battle Creek, Mich.

INDIANA STATE BRANCH NO. 5.
J. C. Lockwood, Pres., Frankfort, Ind.
J. W Cochram, Sec., Theatorium Theater, Washington, Ind.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE BRANCH NO. 6.
A. G. Frohme, Pres., 3521 Jacob St., Wheeling, W. Va.
M. A. Sybert, Sec., Moundsville, W. Va.

KENTUCKY STATE BRANCH NO. 7.
J. H. Stamper, Jr., Pres., Lexington, Ky.
F. J. Dolle, 810 E. Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

WISCONSIN STATE BRANCH NO. 8.
Address all communications to M. A. Neff, 1003 Mercantile Library Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

MISSOURI STATE BRANCH NO. 9.
Louis Herman, Pres., 1825 N. 9th St., St. Louis, Mo.
W. C. Smith, Sec., Lyric Theater, Mexico, Mo.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BRANCH NO. 10.
William P. Herbst, Pres., 2105 Pennsylvania Ave., S. E., Washington, D. C.
Fulton Brylawski, Sec., 911 Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C.

NEW YORK STATE BRANCH NO. 11.
A. N. Wolff, Pres., Rochester, N. Y.
Maurice L. Fleischman, Sec., 2755 Webster Ave., New York City.

CALIFORNIA STATE BRANCH NO. 12.
G. W. Goddard, Pres., Sacramento, Cal.
W. A. Cory, Sec., 722 Phelan Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.

NEW JERSEY STATE BRANCH No. 13.
G. A. Robinson, 734 DeMott St., W. Hoboken, N. J.
P. H. Kirchner, Sec., 328 Bergenline Ave., Union Hill, N. J.

ALABAMA STATE BRANCH NO. 14.
E. H. Colley, Pres., Vaudette Theater, Birmingham, Ala.
J. G Wells, Sec., Alamo Theater, Anniston, Ala.

LOUISIANA STATE BRANCH NO. 15.
A. G' Gurgel, Pres., Gretna, La.
F. H. Mayberry, Sec., Savoy Theater, New Orleans, La.

IOWA STATE BRANCH NO. 16.
E. G. Fargo, Pres., Magic Theater, Algona, Iowa.
W. G. Eddy, Sec., Marengo, Iowa.

MINNESOTA STATE BRANCH NO. 17.
Address all communications to M. A. Neff, 1003 Mercantile Library Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

TEXAS STATE BRANCH NO. 18.
A B Remey, Pres., Fort Worth, Texas.
Harry J. Gould, Sec., Forest Theater, Dallas, Texas.

NEBRASKA STATE BRANCH NO 19.
Frank Harris, Pres., Empress Theater, Omaha, Neb.
E C. Preston, Sec , Sterling Theater, Superior, Neb.

NEVADA STATE BRANCH NO. 20.
Address all communications to Glen D. Hurst, Grand Theater, Reno, Nev.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE BRANCH NO. 21.
Address all communications to George H. Washburn, 700 Washington Ave., Boston, Mass.

TENNESSEE STATE BRANCH NO. 22.
Address all communications to W. H. Wasserman, Nashville, Tenn.

OKLAHOMA STATE BRANCH NO. 23.
R. W. Wirt, Pres., Majestic Theater, Enid, Okla.
L. W. Brophy, Sec., Yale Theater, Muskogee, Okla.

ARKANSAS STATE BRANCH NO. 24.
O. A. Bandy, Pres , Argenta, Ark.
D. A. Hutchinson, Sec., Lonoke, Ark.

KANSAS STATE BRANCH NO. 25.
J. Brainard, Pres., Mulberry, Kansas.
Geo. McCrum, Sec., 957 Park Ave., Kansas City, Kan.

MISSISSIPPI STATE BRANCH NO. 26.
H. A. Carleton, Pres., Dixie Theater, Jackson, Miss.
R. H. Redus, Sec., Elite Theater, West Point. Miss.

SOUTH CAROLINA STATE BRANCH NO. 27.
Address all communications to Julius Meyers, Charlestown, S. C.

CANADA BRANCH NO. 28.
Address all communications to P. LeMarquand, Winnipeg, Can

MAINE STATE BRANCH NO. 29.
Moxley Blumenberg, Pres., Casco Theater, Portland, Me.
J. A. Emery, Sec., Bar Harbor, Me.

RHODE ISLAND STATE BRANCH NO. 30.
Address all communications to M. A. Neff, 1003 Mercantile Library Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

CONNECTICUT STATE BRANCH NO. 31.
Address all communications to M. A. Neff, 1003 Mercantile Library Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

COLORADO STATE BRANCH NO. 32.
Address all communications to O. T. Curtis, Pueblo, Colo.

SOUTH DAKOTA STATE BRANCH NO 34.
L. D. Milne, Pres., Maynard Theater, Mitchell, S. D.
M. B. Balsiger, Sec., Bijou Theater, Huron, S. D.

WASHINGTON STATE BRANCH NO. 35.
A. B. Campbell, Pres., Princess Theater, Sedro Wooley, Wash.
W. L. Schanks, Crown Theater, Seattle, Wash.

MARYLAND STATE BRANCH NO. 36.
J. Howard Bennett, Pres., 115 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.
F. H. Durkee, Sec., 1925 E. North Ave., Baltimore, Md.

DELAWARE STATE BRANCH NO. 37.
Chas. I. Beckett, Pres., Grand Opera House, Wilmington, Del.
H. E. Klume, Sec., Gem Theater, Wilmington, Del.

VIRGINIA STATE BRANCH NO. 38.
C. A. Turner, Pres., Portsmouth, Va.
E. J. Sparks, Sec., Richmond, Va.

GEORGIA STATE BRANCH NO. 39.
John Evans, Pres., Vaudette Theater, Atlanta, Ga.
P. E. Castlebury, Sec., Bonita Theater, Rome, Ga.

ARIZONA STATE BRANCH NO. 40.
Address all communications to F. T. Greene, Miami, Arizona.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"THE STIGMA" (Essanay).

In this drama of love and sacrifice, Francis X. Bushman portrays the character of Clifford Harvey, the fiance, in a most true-to-life manner. Betty Brown as Jane, his sweetheart, plays her role admirably, while Beverly Bayne as Alice Madden, an outcast, gives us a splendid interpretation of the character.

Clifford, a young man of a seacoast town, discovers evidence of a wreck, and later a girl clinging to the wreckage, a great distance from shore. She is rescued by him. He takes her to his home where his mother resuscitates her. He is greatly impressed with her beauty—she is the girl of his dreams. Day by day she regains more of her health and strength. He proposes to her.

His dad and a villager find a chest washed ashore from the wreck, and bring it at once to the little home. In spite of her protests, they open it, and the secret is out. The girl is found to be a leper, who was being transported to an isolated island when the wreck occurred. The father demands that the girl leave at once, and the village is up in anger, but Clifford, who is a real human man, tells of his love for her, and his determination to go with her.

Scene from "The Stigma" (Essanay).

The girl protests and pleads with him to remain with his father and mother, but he goes with her and they head for an island nearby, and poor Jane is left to sob out her heart for the man she loves.

After they reach the island the girl weighs in her mind the man's sacrifice for her and determines to go back to the remorseless sea that had yielded her up before. Clifford follows—to be her's in death as in life. This production is booked for release December 19th.

---

"LEAH KLESCHNA" (Famous Players).

"Leah Kleschna," the international dramatic success, interpreted by Carlotta Nillson, the distinguished American actress, to be released by the Famous Players Film Co., December 10th, has made an admirable motion picture character study. Miss Nillson gives Leah all the sympathy, sentiment and pathos of the character. Kleschna, the master thief of France, is faithfully portrayed and Paul Sylvain, the French Deputy, interpreted by House Peters, well defines the strength and kindness of that character. The theory advocated in "Leah Kleschna" is that if the right appeal is made to people who go astray, they can always be led back into the light. A synopsis of the story will be found in the department of Film Stories under the head of Features.

"HIS BEST FRIEND" (Lubin).

A powerful drama with a hero that is far beyond the average man. Love for a woman is the keynote of the story, and the suffering of the hero is eventually compensated. The cast embraces the pick of the Lubin home players who are noted for emotional work.

Phil Stewart, bank cashier, and Cal Boone, teller, are great friends. Cal was in love with Doris, but she married Phil, and Cal remained the best friend of the family. Phil speculated with bank funds and lost. He confides his trouble to Cal, and prepares to get away. He writes a letter to his wife and hides it under a book in his room, then he goes to the bank to get more funds for his trip. In the meantime Cal has also gone to the bank and made good the shortage. The two men meet; there is a quarrel, and Phil's revolver is fired in the struggle, and he is accidentally killed. Cal is arrested for the killing, and, refusing to make a plea in his own behalf, is sentenced to life imprisonment. Later he escapes. Years pass and Doris, who now has a grown-up son, goes for the first time to her dead husband's room, dust covers everything she touched. There, however, she finds the letter, which tells the story and suggests Cal's innocence. She applies to the governor for a new trial or pardon, which he grants. The situation is printed in the newspapers and Cal seeks Doris to find out if it is true. Stealthily he enters the house, and is confronted by the boy, Harry, who is about to kill him when Doris appears and explains all. They then realize that Cal was a best friend, and it is intimated that later he will be even more.

Scene from "His Best Friend" (Lubin).

---

MACHINE SHIPMENTS TO ODD CUSTOMERS.

Moving picture outfits have been leaving the Chicago offices of the Kleine Optical Company with great rapidity of late, and headed for some very odd destinations. Among recent purchasers have been the Second Presbyterian Church, of Massillon, Ohio; New England Congregational Church of Aurora, Illinois; The Aurora Y. M. C. A.; The Royal Tailors of Chicago, and the Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Company, of Brisbee, Arizona. The latter is buying an outfit to keep its employees in the Majavo Desert contented.

---

GRIFFIN WITH POWER COMPANY.

Mr. Herbert Griffin, one of the best projection machine men in the country, both from a mechanical as well as selling standpoint, has associated himself with the Nicholas Power Company, manufacturers of the Power's Cameragraph.

Army and Navy Football Game

The Most Distinguished Social-Athletic Event Pictured Under Bad Weather Conditions.

Reviewed by Hugh Hoffman.

FOOTBALL is football the country over. To some it is the cream of existence and to others it is the last thing in the world to worry about. I belong in the latter category, but I wouldn't have missed that Army and Navy game at the Polo Grounds last Saturday for a jugfull of Lethe water. All football games look alike to me, especially when both sides wear the same kind of uniforms so that even an expert cannot tell which is which. Not only in the picture, but on the field itself it was impossible to tell a West Point player from a Navy kicker.

But the crowd was the main attraction. The game is merely a side issue. It has been a long time, if ever, since New York has had the honor of having within its care such an array of distinguished persons as came to the city to witness the big event. On the invitation of Edward Roskam, president of the Commercial Motion Picture Company, which had the exclusive motion picture rights for the occasion, I packed myself in a box beside his camera, prepared to see what I should see. It was a damp, cloudy, raw day, fearfully bad for photography and to me it looked like a pure waste of good film, but you can't always tell what a camera will do by looking at it.

The prettiest sight of all was the Army and Navy cadets. The Army boys marched in first through the big gate headed by their own band. On the great lawn they did some or their renowned drilling to the sound of music and great roars of applause. The middies followed when the Army boys were in their seats and also did some beautiful drills, assisted by the United States Marine Band of Washington. It was a most inspiring sight and if it gets as much applause in picture theaters as it drew that day, the success of the picture is assured.

Later I saw the two reels of it at a Broadway theater. Football pictures are difficult subjects to make interesting, and when weather conditions are bad they are less interesting. Frankly the photography in certain spots of the play is not up to the mark, due to the distance and the weather. With the plays constantly shifting, it is impossible to follow the game at all. However, Mr. Roskam is offering just what he got with the understanding that if there is any part of it not wanted it can be cut out by the exhibitor. He cannot be held responsible for the weather.

The main part, the crowd and close views, however, are distinct and clear. Some excellent views of the President and cabinet officers were obtained. The West Point boys marching on the field is one of the most inspiring sights that anyone would care to witness. The pictures are full of interesting, close-range glimpses of famous people and the cadets, and these are really the things that count in a picture like this. As a feature I think it will go big, though if I were an exhibitor I would cut a little on the game itself.

KESSEL GETS LOVING CUP.

On Saturday night, November 29th, Adam Kessel, Jr., president of the New York Motion Picture Corp., received the surprise of his life, when he was invited into Healey's, 66th Street and 8th Avenue, by one of his friends to a quiet little meal as he supposed, and found himself surrounded by a host of his friends who carried him bodily upstairs to the Jungle Room, where a spread was all set in his honor. Here he was presented with an enormous loving cup by Mr. Harry Palmer, a prominent advertising man of New York, and a painting of the famous Kessel Yacht, Orson, by Ernest Warner, of the Otis Lithograph Co., and last but not least he was presented by Mr. George Cooke, of the Metro Lithograph Co., and the All Star Feature Film Co., with a beautiful painting of himself. Mr. Kessel declared he spent the most enjoyable evening of his life there and threatens to have the same crowd out on the Orson every week-end for the coming summer. The stately Miss Mae Kenny was conspicuous by her presence.

RICHARD WAGNER FILM CREATES INTEREST.

Inquiries from all over the country have been pouring into the New York offices of Pat Casey in regard to the portrayal of the life of the great composer. Made in Germany, by Messter Film Company, the production is of especial interest to music lovers from its evidently truthful unfolding of the struggles, disappointments and final success of an immortal genius. The films are now enjoying a successful run in the beautiful New Amsterdam Theater in this city.

"VENGEANCE BEQUEATHED" (Film Releases of America).

Vengeance, as being one of the most dire motives which sway human lives, causing forgetfulness of the commandments and of self, has been liberally treated in motion picture drama. In "Vengeance Bequeathed" we have two sisters keen on the trail in their hate, hunger for the man who has wronged their sister and which wrongs have brought her to her death.

Interestingly enough, the villain in the play is so careless as to not recognize his next intended victim as the sister of she whom he once promised marriage and which promise was tended by such a tragic ending. Naturally, this gives the avenging sisters an opportunity of striking home the fateful blow and strike it home they do when the opportunity is there.

No picture would be produced, it seems, without a chase. Of course, in such drama there is not the comedy pursuer, in which are knocked down, the painter with his paints, the apple woman with her cart, the fat policeman and such aids to hilarity. "Vengeance Bequeathed" has its own chase. Unlike some film stories, the story is not all in the chase, although it is an important factor. In these acrobatic days of screen art, the pursued as well as the pursuers must be long winded and daring folk. This chase suggests the thought that moving picture dramatic work, as it is now going on, will tend to make the actors very bad chances for life insurance companies.

"THE BLACK 107" (Ruby Feature).

Right on the heels of their sensational release featuring Governor Sulzer, the Ruby Feature Film Co. now announces the release of "The Black 107," a three-reel Russian drama written around the experience of Mendel Beiliss, the unfortunate Jew who has been acquitted by a Russian jury on the charge of ritual murder.

Mr. Rubinstein was aided in the work by the Russian Revolutionist Society leaders, who are familiar with the operations of the dreaded "Black 107." An anti-Semitic society including in it's membership some of the most powerful in Russia's government circles, the "Black 107" is conceded to contribute most of the thorns in the path of the Jewish people in the land of darkness. It was their activity which brought together the evidence on which Mendel Beiliss was tried, and the revolutionists even in America are subjected to their espionage, through paid secret agents.

The picture shows in detail and by specific authentic instances the political reasons for persecution. The story is produced under the stage direction of Sidney Golden, who has established a reputation for this class of pictures, his particular successes being "Bleeding Hearts" and "Sorrows of Israel," released by the Universal. He utilized in "The Black 107" the services of a company of Russian actors. The costumes are the original garb of the peasantry, and it is doubtful whether a more faithful portrayal of Russian life could be presented than that given by players who have actually witnessed the conditions of Russian life treated in the film.

Jan Smoelski, who plays one of the leading parts, was a revolutionist agent in St. Petersburg for two years, during which time he was in close contact with the councils of the "Black 107" but on being discovered as a spy he had to seek the aid of Nihilists and flee for his life to this country.

IS DALY VERSION OF "FROU FROU."

The "Frou Frou" dramatization from which Thanhouser have made a filmatization is the regular Augustin Daly one. A good price was paid for the version, which gave C. J. Hite the exclusive picture privileges to it and the right to advertise the fact. Lloyd Lonergan wrote the picture scenario and Maude Fealy was cast for the title role. It is the fourth of the monthly "Big Productions." Posters in sizes up to twenty-four sheets go along. Special musical accompaniment, prepared by the Tams Music Library, is furnished exhibitor readers of this journal free on request to the Thanhouser people.

BLINKHORN ISSUING FOXY POSTERS.

Albert Blinkhorn has gotten up an exceptionally beautiful three sheet poster of Florence Turner. A space is reserved for a one sheet poster of whatever Turner Film the exhibitor wishes to advertise. Five colors were used, and a very attractive poster is the result. For his "David Copperfield" feature, Mr. Blinkhorn has added a twenty sheet poster and this picture has now a large and attractive line of advertising matter.

ONLY WOMAN SENATOR IN PICTURES.

Mrs. Helen Robinson, state senator from Colorado, recently posed for the camera at the Reliance studio. As the first and only woman who was ever elected to the Senate, Mrs. Robinson is an interesting figure in public life and is pointed to with pride by the active suffragists as an example of the rapid strides made by the movement in the last few years.

Mrs. Senator Robinson in Mutual Girl Series.

The Mutual Film Corporation arranged with Mrs. Robinson through the well-known artist Miss Jean Parks to appear in a picture entitled "Our Mutual Girl," which will be presented on the Mutual program in serial form beginning at an early date. On the same reel with the senatress from Colorado will also appear a large number of women prominently identified with the suffrage movement.

"FALSE NEWS" (Gaumont).

Gaumont's "False News," a tale of Northern Quebec, has many things to recommend it. The photography is good and the acting fine, the leading part being taken by Miss Dagmar, the well known tamer of wild animals and the leading actress in all of Gaumont's wild animal pictures.

Two reporters, Miss Walker and Jack Morgan, receive exclusive information of the death of a famous financier. They are asked not to divulge the secret for three days, and promise. Morgan, however, sees a chance of making a profit, and suggests to Miss Walker that any financier of standing would pay handsomely for the information. The girl, however, refuses to break her promise, and the two come into conflict, which ends in the death of Morgan. Miss Walker then hears that the news of the millionaire's death is false. He had been struck with a heart seizure, which had kept him unconscious for several hours.

Scene from "False News" (Gaumont).

"THROUGH THE CLOUDS" IS IN FOUR PARTS.

Through an oversight in the advertising department of the Apex Film Co., "Through the Clouds," one of its main features has been advertised as a three reel subject when it should have been announced as a four part production. State right men are requested to make a note of this.

SANITARY INSPECTORS FOR THEATERS.

In further explanation of the item in our issue of November 29, relative to the adoption by the New York Exhibitors' League of the Laboratory of Industrial Hygiene and Sanitation; this sanitary inspection proposition is offered by a company which is headed by Dr. Frederic W. Longhram, of No. 3 East 29th Street. Owing to increasing activities on the part of health departments against the picture theater, this concern has sprung into existence to head off adverse ventilation legislation, such as has recently been imposed upon the exhibitors. The Laboratory of Industrial Hygiene and Sanitation consists of a corps of physicians who will regularly inspect theaters and will issue certificates of inspection for public display. They will also advise with exhibitors as to best methods of obtaining perfect sanitation and in meeting summary action of health departments. This service is to cost $18 per year.

"THE HAND OF THE LAW" (Warner's Features).

This three-part production was made by the Colorado Motion Picture Company in and around the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, with the permission of Thomas J. Tynan, noted Prison Warden, who is featured in more than twenty of the scenes.

"Tom" Tynan's honor system for convicts has been the subject of countless articles in such influential and widely read papers as Collier's, Harper's Weekly, Leslie's Weekly, New York World and the American Motorist.

Scene from "The Hand of the Law" (Warner's).

Over seven hundred convicts take part and their daily life in the prison and upon the highways, where they are working, a hundred miles away without armed guards, is shown as incidental to the plot.

This photoplay also features Josephine West and Joe Ryan, Jr., two splendid character artists who are responsible for many of its thrills.

NEW MAJESTIC "SAPHO" DRAWS BIG CROWDS.

The six part American production of "Sapho," starring Miss Florence Roberts, proved a most satisfactory attraction at the Empire, on H Street, Northeast, Washington, D. C. Manager Greenberg booked the production twice, two weeks elapsing between the exhibitions. The first night brought out a large crowd but the second proved to be a record breaker, not only for the house, according to Mr. Greenberg, but for the section in which the theater is located. It was found impossible on either occasion to accommodate the crowd and large numbers of people were turned away although the show period was continued one hour beyond the usual time of closing. The fact that the second show was held on a very cold evening and the people, who were forced to stand in the lobby until seats were available inside, were shivering, speaks well for this fine production.

MISS NORMAND, DIRECTOR.

Mabel Normand, leading woman of the Keystone Co. since its inception, is in the future to direct every picture she acts in. This will undoubtedly make Keystone more popular than ever, and this will give Miss Normand the opportunity of injecting some of her comedy, which she has never had an opportunity to put over before.

WHITE STALLION ARABIA WITH UNIVERSAL.

M[illegible] Manufacturing Company. Arabia has been described as "the horse w[illegible] the screen, having previously appeared in Selig pictures. Miss Fay has been with the Parker Carnival all summer and fall. She will begin work at the West Coast studios of the Universal December 8. It cost approximately a thousand dollars to get Arabia from Chicago to Hollywood, but the company believes he is worth the entailed expense. Besides being a marvelous trick horse, doing all kinds of stunts, he is absolutely fearless in the presence of wild animals. Consequently he will make a decided addition to the company's stock and will be used in the series of animal pictures the company is making at its West Coast ranch.

ECLECTIC OPENS SOUTHERN BRANCHES.

In certain states the Eclectic Film Company, of New York, has decided that it will maintain its own rental offices for the purpose of accommodating exhibitors who have been unable to get a sufficient number of Eclectic features. These offices will be known as Eclectic Feature Film Exchange. As a beginning, two offices will be opened; one at Atlanta, Ga., to supply the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi. The other office will be located at 202 Andrews Building, Dallas, Texas, to take care of Arkansas, Texas and part of Oklahoma. It is the intention of the Eclectic Co. to open additional exchanges as soon as the need becomes manifest.

EMPRESS FEATURE EXCHANGE, INDIANAPOLIS.

The Empress Feature Film Company, Merchants National Bank Building, Indianapolis, Indiana, is rapidly becoming one of the most important feature film exchanges in the Central States. Ben D. Crose, of that company, was in New York recently and purchased quite a number of features for the territory of the Empress Company, which includes, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky. On most of the subjects the Empress Company controls the three states, but on some of them it controls only Indiana and Kentucky, and it is a company that does not pirate.

MAJESTIC GAUGES POPULAR TASTE.

The New Majestic Company, out at Los Angeles, anxious for a "line" on the public photoplay taste, recently released a drama with some thrills in it called "L'Article Forty-Seven," founded on a thrilly novel. The film "took." So profiting by the lesson of the picture's popularity, the Majestic directors assembled that aggregation of clean thrills long known to a novel-reading nation as "Ruy Blas." Next week it goes out for picture theater approval. William Garwood, Fred Vroom and Francelia Billington, are the leads. Other novels with a maximum of clean thrills are now being sought by New Majestic in line with their "popular taste" discoveries.

STATE RIGHT PURCHASES.

NOTE.—Exhibitors are requested to keep this list on file [illegible] from the [illegible] parts [illegible] territories. These lists will not be [illegible] that we [illegible] undertake to furnish such information [illegible] expected to keep a record.

RED POWER [illegible] by General [illegible]

A BARGAIN WITH SATAN [illegible]

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF MORMONISM [illegible] New [illegible] Exchange, Boston, Mass.

FROM DUSK TO DAWN [illegible] Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia [illegible] Pa.

[illegible] New York [illegible] New York City.

THE [illegible] Feature [illegible]

WHEN PARIS [illegible] 3 reels [illegible]

FALL OF CONSTANTINOPLE [illegible] reels [illegible]

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

A NEW [illegible] Mutual [illegible] Reliance [illegible]

• • •

[illegible] at last report was [illegible]

• • •

[illegible] that came from [illegible]

[illegible] of the Vitagraph Company in Brooklyn. Mr. Bunny took part in [illegible] and it was a mark of appreciation [illegible] M. P. [illegible] committee to present him with a [illegible] C. Burrows, who [illegible] was elected chairman of the committee.

• • •

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Hollywood, Cal., Board of Trade, the Universal Pacific Coast Company's application for membership was presented and unanimously approved. Manager Bernstein's action in [illegible] in a better [illegible] of certain [illegible] roads leading from Universal City to Hollywood.

• • •

To get double pay for scenarios on more than one occasion has fallen to the lot of Nell Shipman, photoplay writer, who has transferred her [illegible] of activity from California to New York. "Outwitted by Billy," [illegible] Selig, "Sold to the Bears," "The House of Regrets" and the "Fugitive Law" are three others that have first won premium money before being purchased by the manufacturers.

• • •

With Anna Laughlin, Irene Hunt, Sue Balfour, Harry Spingler and Paul Scardon prominent in the cast, "The Mother's Crime" (Reliance), claims special attention, not only as a particularly strong two-part drama, but also as a clever story of mistaken identity especially adapted to screen production by virtue of the startling effects made possible by double exposure photography.

• • •

In the howdah on the back of a big Selig elephant sat Miss Kathlyn Williams, the heroine of the series of the "Adventures of Kathleen," and Thomas Santschi, who plays the lead opposite. They were carried out of the beaten path by a stampede and left like a pair of [illegible] hanging from the protruding limb of a big tree with the howdah like a ruined airship tangling them in its gorgeous trappings.

• • •

"The Finger of Fate," Pathe's multiple release for Thursday, December 18th, is the first play in which Irving Cummings took part after rejoining the Pathe Company.

• • •

O. R. Henkel, for several seasons business manager of the Chicago La Salle Opera House, and recently manager of the Fuller Opera House and the Orpheum Theater of Madison, Wis., is looking after the Coast States for George Kleine's "The Last Days of Pompeii."

• • •

Miss Maie B. Havey, who recently joined the Lubin scenario department, is having her initial Lubin photoplay produced. The story deals with the Northwest Mounted Police and is entitled "A Pack of Cards." It is being done in two reels, with special costumes and every advantage to give the picturesque realism of Northwest Canada. With doubtless a good story this picture should bring Miss Havey into prominence.

ELEANOR WOODRUFF
and
IRVING CUMMINGS
in
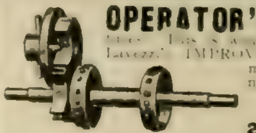
"A Finger of Fate"
PATHEPLAY
RELEASED DECEMBER 18th



OPERATOR'S PRIDE Clear, steady, flickerless [illegible] Lavezzi IMPROVED intermittent [illegible] your old machine. Prices a little higher; results much greater.
LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS
2940 Herndon St. Chicago

THE INDUCTOR-COMPENSATOR
An Alternating Current Transformer for Motion Picture Arc Lamps
Every claim made for superior merit, high efficiency and current saving qualities has been proven by over five years' constant service.
Nearly 3,000 INDUCTOR COMPENSATORS now in use.
PRICE:
110 Volts, 60 Cycles....................$50.00
220 Volts, 60 Cycles.................... 50.00
Prices for special transformers to control other voltages and cycles quoted on application. Order from your exchange or from
BELL & HOWELL COMPANY, Designers and Manufacturers
317 West Illinois Street :: :: :: :: Chicago, Illinois

CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO.

GUS SCHLÆSINGER, who recently became manager of the Academy Theater, Buffalo, is meeting with success in his new position. Vaudeville and moving pictures are featured in this house. Before coming to Buffalo he was manager of the Orpheum Theater, of Newark, N. J., and of a stock company at that house. He was formerly manager of the Yankee Princess Company, in which George Cohan and family starred, and at one time he was employed under George Lederer at the Colonial Theater, Chicago. On another occasion he was house and stock company manager of the St. James Theater, Boston. Louis Green, formerly of Boston, is assistant manager of the Academy. He has been connected with the theater for four years. Mr. Schlesinger has introduced some successful features, given in addition to the regular shows at the Academy. Monday night his special attraction is "A Country Fair." Patrons have a chance to win raincoats and other prizes, twenty-seven in all. On Tuesday night, $10, $5, and $3 prizes are given for the best tango dancing. Any patron can compete and the audience is the judge. The winners are selected according to the volume of applause. On Wednesday night professional try-outs and on Friday night "song revues" are the special features. As a result of these extra attractions the attendance of the Academy is heavy.

M. T. Middleton, who as former manager of the Garden Theater, Buffalo, featured burlesque during the week and moving pictures on Sunday, has accepted the general management of the Heuck's Opera House Company, of Cincinnati.

The Marlow Theater, a new motion picture house in Virginia Street, Buffalo, was opened recently. Special attention has been given to the ventilation, heating and seating arrangements of the building.

The new Peterson & Wood Theater, of Jamestown, N. Y., which has been under construction since July, is practically completed. It will be opened as a moving picture and vaudeville house probably in December.

Charles J. Roesser is manager of the Jubilee Moving Picture Theater, which opened recently in Niagara Street, near Amherst, Buffalo. The house is fireproof and prettily decorated and has an orchestra.

The Jackson home, a landmark, is being removed from Pine and Walnut Streets, Lockport, N. Y., to make room for a $60,000 vaudeville theater to be built by Henry F. Thurston next spring.

Captain Klaus Larson, of Detroit, has challenged any one in the world to a race in motorboats through the Whirlpool Rapids at Niagara Falls. The challenge is especially aimed at Peter Langard, of Detroit, who went through the rapids last October for a moving picture company, although he was held there for five hours. Larsen himself is the hero of two motorboat trips through the rapids. One of his trips was made in 31 minutes.

The Rev. T. O. Greives, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Lockport, N. Y., has adopted a good idea to attract people to Sunday evening services. A moving picture machine has been installed and the pictures will be given every Sunday night. The first film was "Pilgrim's Progress."

A case involving church property which was turned into a theater, where burlesque and moving pictures are featured, is being tried here. The action was brought by the Lafayette Presbyterian Church, of Buffalo, against Herbert J. Norton, of this city. The latest development is the dismissal of the complaint. The church sued to recover $26,000 as the result of the sale of the old Lafayette Church property in Lafayette Square to the Empire Amusement Co., which converted the property into the Lafayette Theater. The church, it was claimed, turned the property over to the Nortons, who in turn negotiated the sale to the theatrical company at a profit of $52,000.

McMahon & Dee, theatrical agents at 385 Washington Street, Buffalo, may add moving picture features in addition to their regular business. They have been in partnership for several years. Mr. McMahon was formerly manager of Shea's Garden Theater, Buffalo. Mr. Dee has had a wide experience in the show business.

Henry Marcus, manager of the New Lyric, a vaudeville and moving picture house, recently had as a special attraction Jim Corbett, former boxing champion, in a monologue. The following week he featured Arthur L. Funk, a Buffalo dancing master, who taught the tango dance from the stage at each matinee.

Harold Edel, manager of the Strand, recently used to advantage an attractive sign exploiting the many advantages derived from moving pictures.

The Buffalo Sunday Times recently ran a picture of Daniel J. Savage, manager of the Buffalo branch of the Mutual Film Corporation. A long tribute to Mr. Savage was used with the photograph. The point was emphasized that many Buffalo ministers were backing him in his efforts to place clean, wholesome programs before the moving picture devotees of this city. To meet the demands of his patrons Mr. Savage keeps his office open day and night. A complete machine repair department has been added to the local branch.

Manager Foster, of the New Family Theater, recently featured the Mutual film, "The Witch of Salem." Other attractions were Mme. Irene Greggjack, a woman baritone, and a $25,000 unit orchestra.

BILLY BISON.

LOUISVILLE.

THE Standard Film Exchange, which was recently purchased by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, will hereafter be known as the Universal Film Exchange, in order to indicate more specifically the fact that it handles the Universal program. There has been no definite announcement regarding the expected consolidation of that exchange with the Central Film Exchange, although it is understood that the two offices will be merged by the first of the year, as at present they are both handling the Universal program, and are to that extent doing the same work in this territory. R. L. Shrader is manager of the Central Exchange and H. D. Ticknor of the Universal.

Large audiences have attended the showing of the great Ambrosio drama, "The Last Days of Pompeii," under the direction of George Kleine, at the Shubert Masonic Theater. A magnificent Wurlitzer "one-man-orchestra" is being used in connection with the film, as was the case with "Quo Vadis?"

Carpenter & Johnson, the Louisville firm of motion-picture photographers, were in Bloomington, Ind., for several days last week, making pictures of the Indiana-Purdue football game for the Switow Amusement Company, which has several houses in Indiana, whose patrons are certain to be much interested in the film reproduction of the biggest game of the season between Indiana universities.

H. R. Hunter, manager of the Switow Amusement Company's Garrick Theater, at Madisonville, Ky., was in Kentucky early last week on business, and made a trip through Central Kentucky following his visit to Louisville, with a view to locating favorable openings for new houses for the company.

The Louisville Film & Supplies Company has been organized in Louisville to handle a general business of the nature indicated by its name. The company will carry everything for the motion-picture theater, from machines to tickets. At the outset the company will conduct no film service, although it may enter this branch of the business later on. Charles D. Sinai, formerly a salesman with Gast, Crafts & Company, is manager of the company.

R. L. Shrader, manager of the Central Film Exchange, visited the company's offices at Indianapolis on business last week.

C. E. C. Scobey, chief mechanician for the Central Film Service Company, was in Louisville recently, for the purpose of examining and testing all machines in this section using Universal programs. Mr. Scobe has been detailed on this work for some time, and has, in many cases, discovered slight defects, the correction of which has improved the service materially, saving the machine and the film, besides producing better pictures.

With two big feature films, each featuring a popular star, on its program for Sunday, November 23, the seating capacity of the Novelty Theater was strained to the limit. King Baggot, in the Imp drama, "The Child Stealers of Paris," and Warren Kerrigan in Victor's "Forgotten Women," were the drawing cards in question, and the house was packed both afternoon and evening, to see them.

"Du Barry," the Pathe Freres production of Leslie Carter's famous impersonation of the unfortunate mistress of the last Louis, drew splendidly at the Orpheum, in Louisville, last week, the beautiful coloring of the pictures attracting especial comment. Judge Allen Kinney is arranging for a complete orchestra for the Orpheum, which will consist of six pieces.

The Princess Amusement Company's Princess Theater, at Henderson, Ky., opened last week on schedule. A five-piece orchestra, of the standard of excellence usual with the company's theaters, has proved a great drawing card. A feature a day, with four reels on the program, is the rule at the Princess, and Henderson people are taking to the new house enthusiastically in consequence of this and its numerous other good points.

The recently-noted sale of the Columbia Theater, in Louisville, to Harry Bradbury, has fallen through on account of the fact that the present lease on the property occupied by the Columbia in Fourth street, between Market and Jefferson, will expire in July, and prospects are that there will be difficulty in getting a renewal for any length of time, on account of the fact that the owners of the property are contemplating a sale.

Another Louisville theater, following the lead of Father Ackermann at the church of St. Philip Neri, is considering the use of motion pictures during this winter. This is the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, at Third and Guthrie streets, the Rev. W. F. Wykoff, the pastor, having been much impressed with the educational possibilities of well-selected films. Bishop William F. Anderson, of Cincinnati, has approved the plan, and it will probably be placed in effect some time during the winter.

The Colonial Amusement Company, of Lexington, which owns and operates the Colonial Theater, on Main street, in that city, will shortly reopen the Star Theater, in the Kinkead Building, in Lexington. The new theater will be an exclusive picture house, and the company plans to use a good orchestra, which, with the repainting and decorating which is under way, will make the new house one of the most attractive in the city. The house was closed some months ago by reason of its location next to the site of the Fayette National Bank Building, the construction of which blocked the sidewalks to such an extent that the theater could not operate successfully.

The Louisville Anti-Tuberculosis Association has announced that it will shortly have in its hands an Edison film entitled "The Price of Human Lives," dealing with the treatment of tuberculosis, for the use of the various houses in the city, this plan having been adopted by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis as a good method of educating the masses in the prevention and cure of the white plague.

The Interstate Amusement Company, recently organized at Lexington, Ky., by J. Emmett Graves, H. P. Bartram and Nicholas Ryan, have perfected arrangements for the opening of their new Colonial Theater in Frankfort, Ky. The seating capacity of the house will be about 400, and the theater will be fireproof and otherwise up-to-date in every respect. Mr. Bartram will be manager. The company will establish other theaters in Kentucky after the Colonial is placed in operation.

The National Motion Picture Company, of Louisville, is negotiating with the members of the Baptist church at Bowling Green, Ky., for the purchase of its old building for use as a photoplay house, and the church has given the company an option on the property. If the purchase is effected, improvements to the amount of about $20,000 will be made, the plan of the company being to convert the structure into a theater with a seating capacity of not less than 1,000.

Ernest Paynter and Robert Fluty, of Winchester, Ky., who have acquired the State rights on the "Victory" film, in which President Wilson and his cabinet figure, opened their tour of the State with it at their home town, and large audiences did them honor by taking in the show, which proved an immense success.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

PHILADELPHIA.

MOVING pictures will be the means of promoting the early shopping campaign for Christmas if the present plans of the Consumers' League are carried out. Slides of a sympathetic nature will be shown in all theaters throughout the city, and it has been suggested that split-reels be made up also.

The Felt Amusement Company has purchased a plot of ground at the corner of Lehigh avenue and Salmon street, on which a picture theater, having a seating capacity of 1,000, will be built.

The Calehuff Supply Company, Inc., Thirteenth and Race streets, have supplied projecting machines to the following during the week: Cair & Schad, Reading, Pa., two 6-A Power's; E. Holzeman, Pottsville, Pa., one Power's 6-A; C. M. Losch, Schuylkill Haven, Pa., one Power's 6-A; McKenty & McCabe, one Power's 6-A, and Hopkins & Milgram, Broad & Snayder avenue, Philadelphia, one Power's 6-A.

The People's Theater, Kensington avenue and Cumberland street, is undergoing a number of alterations which will add greatly to the beauty of the place. Plans are also under way for an addition to the present building, which will increase the seating capacity.

An amusement company which controls a string of picture theaters in Philadelphia and vicinity, are about to build a theater at Germantown avenue and Oxford street, which will seat about 1,200.

Thomas C. Walsh, who has been prominently identified with the moving picture business in Philadelphia for some time, will operate a new theater upon its completion at Clearfield and Belgrade streets.

E. K. Karver, the well-known booking agent, is representing William H. Irving's features at the Pierce Poster Company.

Ben Abrams, of the Warner's Features, has recovered from his recent illness, and is now back booming things in the office. He states that from indications, the exhibitors are greatly pleased with the three-a-week program, and that they are anxiously awaiting the future releases of the company.

J. Lucchese, of the Magnet Features, has opened fine headquarters at No. 1331 Vine street, and will book some of the most sensational features ever offered to the exhibitors of Philadelphia.

Alexander F. Boyd, promoter of the Regent Theater, Sixteenth and Market streets, states that since the opening of that house, less than a month ago, results have been most satisfactory. It is admitted by many that the location is somewhat out of the way of the general pedestrian traffic on Market street. However, Mr. Boyd seems to have no trouble in keeping the house well filled up during the entire day and evening. One of the strong attractive features of the new theater is the pipe organ.

The Prince Feature Company reports that the first of the Gaumont series, "The Phantom Crook," is much in demand, and that bookings are almost solid.

William S. Crazer is having plans made for a theater which will be erected at Second and Ontario streets. The theater will be the first in that vicinity, and from all indications should be a success.

Application has been made by H. Fitelson, Abraham Press and I. Grossman, to the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, for a charter for an intended corporation which will be known as the Ideal Amusement Company.

Jacob Keisler has let a contract for the erection of a one-story brick and terra cotta motion picture theater, which will occupy a site at Wyoming avenue and A street. The building will be 40 x 120 feet.

If an ordinance introduced in Common Council by Morris Conn, who represents the Eighth Ward in the Chamber, becomes a law, girl ushers and cashiers in local theaters will be in evidence no longer. The measure prohibits their employment and provides that their places be taken by males, more than 21 years old.

Jacob Maschold is preparing revised plans for a two-story motion picture theater, 92 feet by 140 feet, to be erected at Chelten and Germantown avenues, for the Chelten Theater Company, which will cost over $30,000.

The Luzerne Theater, at Old York road and Luzerne street, has been leased by Albert M. Greenfield, for Edward Bonnem, to the theatrical syndicate, which already controls the Plaza, Park, Erie and Imperial Theaters. The theater has been open for about three weeks.

CONGDON.

OHIO.

CLEVELAND theaters and those within a radius of thirty miles suffered from the terrible storm that swept the northern lake regions the week of November 9. Power plants were down all over the city, electric light wires out and business in general demoralized. Those houses able to obtain light and power were unable to obtain current films through inaccessibility of the agencies. Snow three feet deep tied up traffic, put street cars out of commission and kept progress at a standstill for three days.

The Olympia Theater, Cleveland, kept open house for two hundred and fifty people who were snowbound Sunday night, November 9. Most of the people had been on street cars stalled on the East 55th Street line just as the theater was closing. The house was thrown open and heat turned on and the refugees were sheltered until the next morning.

The Casino Theater Company will build a new photoplay house at the corner of Clark and Linn Streets, Cincinnati. It will contain fifteen hundred seats and cost $125,000.

Manager Stearns, of the Queen Theater, Painesville, came to Cleveland Tuesday, November 11, to secure films he could not otherwise secure on account of the storm that stalled interurban cars. He had advertised a feature program for Sunday and Monday nights, but was unable to fulfill them until Tuesday night.

W. H. Wallace, proprietor of the Wallace Theater at Wooster, has purchased a uniphone to furnish music at his house.

The Majestic Theater at Dayton, under the direction of Manager Rudolph, has been specializing in first-run features.

Manager Simeral, of the Palace Theater, Steubenville, was one of the first Ohio managers to sign for the "Princess of Bagdad," which received a great deal of advertising at the big houses over the state.

Louis Mohn and V. M. Mott, of the Wallace and Lyric Theaters at Wooster, were in Cleveland Tuesday, November 11, in an effort to secure films to run their houses the week.

The moving pictures of Steubenville, which played at the Grand Opera House recently, were also shown at the Bijou upon arrangements with the film's sponsors.

To stir up Ohioans to a fight for better schools in conjunction with School Survey Day moving pictures were used. "Charlie's Reform," a motion picture drama of the school house social center, was exhibited in a number of houses through the state on that day, by free distribution from the General Film Company's agencies. Trade topics in general were discussed and the national convention in Dayton in July, 1914, claimed attention at the meeting of the Film Exhibitors' League in Dayton recently.

Dr. H. S. Lehr, 75 years old, president emeritus and founder of Ohio Northern University, has consented to pose for a motion picture film. A number of educators and personal friends over the country asked Dr. Lehr to permit a film to be taken at his home and he consented.

Don Cannady, twenty-one years old, a Cleveland motion picture operator, served his friends as a motorcycle messenger during the snowstorm siege. After making several trips through the deep snow from Lakewood to Cleveland he was forced to abandon his activities through sheer exhaustion.

Cameramen have been at work in Marion in the production of a double reel taking in the life and sights of that thriving Ohio city. W. D. Clark made the arrangements and will show the film at local houses. The reel will take twenty-four minutes to show and will be ready about December 1.

The storm had its effect on the motion picture business at Youngstown. Trains were held up and the films which had been ordered for the Bijou Theater in West Federal Street failed to arrive. Manager Robins contracted with Morris Geiger, owner of the interesting Youngstown films and the local photoplay, "The Fireman's Bride," to show those subjects until new films could arrive.

The motion picture has been adopted as the newest device for advertising Cleveland products. Armed with 2,000 feet of film, represenatives of a dozen local manufacturing plants are now touring the country with facilities for showing buyers just how Cleveland products are made and how they operate. The plan has been found especially adaptable to the demonstration of heavy machinery. Another novel use to which the moving picture has been put is the showing of cloaks and suits on live models. Within the last few weeks pictures have been taken in thirty factories. Many firms are storing the films away as a matter of record and reference. Among the companies which have contracted for pictures are the Printz-Beiderman Co., Mentor Woolen Mills, Ohio Varnish Co., Nela plant of the General Electric Company, H. Black & Co., and Loew Manufacturing Co. The Columbia Film Company, a local concern, is doing the work.

The safety first movement has been taken up by moving pictures. Alhambra Theater, Euclid Avenue and E. 105th Street, Cleveland, showed films depicting the danger to pedestrians at street car crossings. Various houses in the city have contracted for the film, which was taken by the Central Film Company, 1026 Superior Avenue.

Abe Pottiker, of Cleveland, was in New York the first two weeks of November buying up feature films and will soon open his own exchange in Ohio's metropolis. Mr. Pottiker has managed several theaters in Cleveland and just recently sold the Lincoln, in West 25th Street. Among the films secured by Mr. Pottiker are "The Doom of the Ocean" and "Vendetta," both Eclectic Company productions.

E. A. Wheeler, who established the Cleveland branch of the Liberty Features, has resigned his position and expects to engage in the film business on his own account.

The Orpheum, the big motion picture house in East 9th Street, Cleveland, has arranged to exhibit the films of the Famous Players Company in addition to its regular bill of general features.

Charles C. Cochard, formerly manager of the Cameraphone, Cleveland, recently was made manager of the Iris, one of the largest picture houses in Denver.

Many churches are finding the moving picture entertainment a useful adjunct to the business side of the society. Picture shows always attract good crowds and the receipts from such entertainments have helped many Cleveland churches. A. P. Anthony, who makes a business of giving picture shows in churches, clubs and homes, conducted a production at St. Bridget's Church, East 22d Street, Tuesday, November 18, for the school children. The program was selected by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Collins. Mr. Anthony recently put on an entertainment at Elyria.

In the first official report of Ohio's motion picture censors, at work in the Rose building, Columbus, it has been shown that 8,000 reels of film have been censored, increasing the state's exchequer just $8,000. Of these, 62 entire pictures were ordered cut out because of objectionable scenes, 800 were ordered modified, and 50,000 feet of film ordered eliminated from pictures which were proper enough except in parts. The censors have put the taboo on the turkey trot in film and among the other features the board objects to scenes showing a girl thief snatching a purse, thugs tying a victim to the railroad track, a crazy man clubbing an old man, men and women drinking from bottles, a woman putting poison into a decanter to poison her husband, placing a man in a dungeon and turning in water from the sewers upon him, striking a hunckback, putting rat poison on bread, an indiscreet dance done by a woman, crooks cracking a safe, and a muscle dance.

Warren is to have a new theater, modern in every detail, and ranking with the best moving picture houses in the state. It will be erected in East Market street, under the direction of J. A. Reeves.

The Mystic, at Findlay, will contribute the proceeds of its show on Tuesday afternoon, November 13, to the Thursday Conversational Club, a charitable organization. The Royal will contribute its proceeds of Thursday. Both houses will put on special programs.

Plans for the new theater for F. B. and H. B. Stearns, have been completed by Architect Downer at Painesville, and work on the new structure will commence immediately. The Queen Theater, now owned by Stearns Bros., will be enlarged to include the Palm Theater.

Fairyland, West 25th street, is using a 200-ampere dynamo to generate its own power for lighting, fans and machinery.

J. O. Carney, of Pittsburgh, has purchased property in East Liverpool, O., and expects to construct a moving picture theater in the near future.

"The Price of Human Lives," an Edison film used by the Anti-Tuberculosis League to encourage the use of Red Cross Christmas Seals, and to further its campaign against white plague, is going the rounds of fifty-five Cincinnati moving picture houses. Anthony Mees, exhibitor-director, prepared the itinerary for the film and accompanies it with a lecture.

Manager Chakeras plans to remodel the Princess Theater at Springfield. He will install a number of new seats and make other improvements.

George Wahlenmaier, of Columbus, is closing contracts for the erection of a new picture house and apartment building to be located on High street, near Goodale. The cost of the block will be $15,000.

The International Moving Picture Company, new producers at Columbus, staged its first film with nearly 100 amateurs of local talent before the camera. "Amateur Night in the Movies," is the title of the film, relating a story of a group of amateurs who aspire to "put on" a movie, attire themselves in Indian costume and invade the country for a fit place to do a Western drammer. The reel unfolds a number of comedy scenes.

The Utopia Amusement Company, of Painesville, has purchased fifteen additional feet of land adjoining its theater, to permit enlargements that will put the house in the front rank with theaters of its character in this State.

The Germania Theater Company has been chartered to own and operate motion picture houses in this State, with a capital of $12,000. C. H. Briedenbach, Alexander Skilken, S. G. Kusworm, C. W. Dale and M. L. Ferneding are incorporators.

Pictures of the local stone quarries and cement block manufacturing was recently shown at motion picture houses in Sidney.

Paul Panzer, of the Pathe Company, who appeared at the Cameraphone in Cleveland recently, made many friends in the city.

Following a thorough overhauling, the Bijou Theater at Dayton, has been thrown open to the public again. Chester A. Penn is the new manager. Among the photoplay houses of Cleveland, the Majestic, on West 25th street, ranks among the biggest. It is managed by G. Schroeder, and has a seating capacity of 1,300. It has its own orchestra of five members.

Manager W. O. Kasper, of the Fairyland, Cleveland, was in New York recently, making arrangements with the General Film Company for exclusive service.

Rev. F. W. Fraser of Massillon, has opened a picture show in the Presbyterian church. "The trouble with the church is, that it has allowed the devil to get the good things first," said Rev. Fraser. Money to purchase a machine was raised by selling an issue of $300 worth of stock at 10 cents a share, to the children of the Sunday school. Feature reels along the line of religion, education and science, will be shown.

The Exhibitors' League of Dayton, has decided to hold a ball about New Year's eve, and if possible, secure the attendance of moving picture actors and actresses. A committee was named to ask John Bunny to be present.

Pleasing compliments have been passed on the new Victoria Theater, just opened at Springfield. The large auditorium will seat 400. The front of the house is brilliantly lighted with 500 globes and decorated in handsome design of gilded pink and fresco work. Independent films are shown.

Emery Downs, manager of the Knickerbocker Theater, Cleveland, says he has arrived at the conclusion that patrons of moving picture houses are becoming more particular each year, and that the average picture fan is approaching the point where he demands the acting of the very best known people on the stage. Downs has been offering Famous Player films with great success.

The policy of the Alhambra, at East 105th street and Euclid avenue, Cleveland, includes five new photoplays and three acts of novelty vaudeville, with the program changed Monday, Wednesday and Friday. On Sundays six new photoplays are offered.

The Colonial orchestra, at the Colonial Theater, Cincinnati, is making a hit with patrons in furnishing music suitable to the films.

Motion picture houses have been enlisted in Cleveland's crusade against spitting. Copies of the health department's regulation against spitting in public places, with suggestions that it be thrown upon the screen, were sent to the various proprietors of theaters by Miss Mildred Chadsey, chief of sanitary police.

A photoplay theater to be erected by Jacob Babin and S. H. Stecker, at the corner of St. Clair Avenue and East 76th street, has been leased by them to the Universal Amusement Company. The Building will be two stories, of brick and fireproof construction, and besides the theater, will contain several stores and living suites. It will cost $16,000. The Universal Amusement Company is already interested in four Cleveland theaters. George S. Wallace is president, Charles Horner treasurer, and C. G. Thompson, general manager of the company.

The new Diamond Theater, at East Liverpool, is nearly ready for business. Wiring contracts were awarded to the Risinger Manufacturing Company.

W. W. Dunnavant, proprietor of the Dreamland Theater, at Warren, has had plans drawn for another and larger house, to be erected in the rear of the drug store of Webb & Craig. The architect's plans call for a building with a seating capacity of over 600. Dreamland seats 300.

Manager Pitzer, of the Princess, at Youngstown, is having great success with comedy feature films.

Manager Deibel, of the Dome Theater, Youngstown, is now showing the Exclusive Program of the General Film Company.

Members of the Salem Lodge of Moose, attended a meeting at the Opera House, Saturday, November 15, when motion pictures of Mooseheart, the national home of the order, were shown.

W. J. McKinley, agent for "Les Miserables," arranged an exhibition of the film at Wooster.

J. L. Evans, general manager of the Athenian Amusement Company, having a string of theaters through Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio, has arranged some excellent bookings for the Orpheum at Newark.

Louis Abrams has engaged D. A. Reamer, contractor, to build a theater at 1724 St. Clair avenue, Cleveland, of brick and fireproof construction. It will contain nearly 700 seats, and cost $12,000.

Hawkins & Jepson were awarded the contract for the plumbing and heating of the new Utopia Theater, at Painesville.

The support given the charity day program at the Victory, Findlay, was good, despite inclement weather.

Manager Harry Du Rocher, of Gordon Square Theater, Cleveland, arranged a benefit show, the receipts going toward the Leader-News fund for lake disaster victims.

Responding to the appeal of the Associated Charities, at Elyria, E. J. Georgeople, proprietor of the American Theater, turned the proceeds of his house over to the association Monday, November 17. Special films were run.

Work of enlarging the Queen Theater, at Painesville, is progressing. Walls and floors of the Palm Theater, adjoining, have been torn out, so that the two houses may be joined together.

The Chic, in St. Clair avenue, Cleveland, under the management of S. H. Barck, is enjoying an ever increasing business.

Charles Sutton has become manager of the New Colonial, Superior avenue, Cleveland.

The Olympic Film Company has been incorporated at Columbus, for the manufacture of motion picture films. It is capitalized at $10,000, with Charles J. Weintrit, Anabelle Gray, K. C. M. Price, Robert O. Byers and J. O. Gray as incorporators.

William Georgiou, manager of the Arris Theater, at Mansfield, has purchased the Lyric, one of the largest picture houses in Lima. The Lyric will seat 650. Mr. Georgiou will divide his time between Mansfield and Lima.

The new manager of the Liberty Feature Exchange in Cleveland, is S. N. Tichter, formerly of Pittsburgh, who succeeds E. A. Wheeler. Mr. Tichter is an experienced film man and he plans a number of innovations at the exchange which will interest his clients.

F. H. Seliger, of Columbus, has purchased the Exhibit Theater, at Plain City, from E. L. Bechtel, with a view to making it a try-out house for the Royal Film Co. The company is arranging to take pictures of Plain City.

D. G. Martmann, manager of a Lake Brady summer resort, has leased the Kent Opera House until June 1, and will install new equipment to run a straight picture program and no vaudeville. He will purchase a transformer, two Power's 6-A machines, a flexible mirror screen and other accessories.

The Rex Film Renovating Company, of Columbus, has increased its capital from $10,000 at $15,000 in 7 per cent preferred stock.

BUCKEYE.

IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

THE Chicago Amusement Company will open a picture and vaudeville house at 209 North Main Street, Waupaca, Wis.

Seven new picture houses are reported in Grand Rapids, Mich., three in the Burton Heights neighborhood, three under way on Leonard Street and one on Wealthy Street.

Leo Crosdall has opened a moving picture show in the Eagle's Opera House at Chilton, Wis.

J. W. Himbaugh has leased the Knickerbocker Theater at Holland, Mich. A number of improvements have been made, including a new heating system and new projecting apparatus. Pictures will be run where there are no road shows booked

H. [illegible], proprietor of the Olympic Theater at Martinsville, has moved his show to Veedersburg, Ind.

The Imperial Film Manufacturing Company, of St. Louis, Mo., has decreased its capital stock from $30,000 to $2,000.

The Jefferson Theater at Goshen, Ind., has been sublet by Harry G. Sommers to M. G. Dow. Mrs. Lamar Croop will succeed George Krutz as manager. Moving pictures will be the attraction all but one night a week.

J. Arthur Clark, of Terre Haute, Ind., has purchased the Grand Opera House at Linton, Ind.

The Saginaw, Mich., chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution want to improve the tone of pictures in that city and have been seeking some good historical pictures to be shown in the local houses.

Kolb Brothers, who made a famous trip through the Grand Canon of Arizona and got some wonderful still pictures as well as moving pictures, are showing their films in the Middle West, but mainly before church and similar organizations.

J. Makoff, a baker of Cleveland, Ohio, has purchased the old Jewish temple at Scoville Avenue and East Twenty-fifth Street, in that city. The building will be remodeled for use as a moving picture theater.

Governor Major, of Missouri, has announced that his state is going to join the ranks of those commonwealths who will exploit their resources at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915 by means of the motion pictures. His plans at present call for about 100 reels, showing the industries and other attractions of the "Show-me-State."

Elmer R. Pearson, branch manager for the General Film Company at Omaha, Neb., declares in the midst of a censorship agitation that the Social Service Board of Omaha, which is active in the matter, should not pass films already passed by the National Board, but should censor features and wild-cat junk.

Heisterberg & Sherman have sold the Gem Theater at Warrensburg, Mo., to L. J. Scott.

Frank L. Newman will erect a new picture house in Kansas City, Mo.

Paul Guarnieri has opened the Majestic for pictures and vaudeville at Ashtabula, Ohio.

It is clearly an attempt at evasion of the law when moving picture houses which charge admission on week days give shows free on Sunday, Attorney-General Owen, of Wisconsin, has decided. He holds that the Sunday show advertises the week day performances.

The new Lyric Theater at Lafayette, Ind., which has just been remodeled, is running a Mutual program.

E. A. Wheeler, who established the branch of the Liberty Features Company at Cleveland, Ohio, has resigned and expects to engage in the film business for himself

The Victoria Theater, the newest motion picture house in Springfield, Ohio, has been thrown open. It seats 400 persons and is a picture house in every sense of the word, being modernly decorated and equipped.

A Michigan State Association for the legal regulation of motion picture shows has been formed as the result of the address of Miss Kate Davis, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., before the National Florence Crittenton Mission Conference at Detroit, Mich., recently. The league announces that its objects are to maintain supervision of the lighting and ventilation of picture houses in the moral tone of pictures whether recreative, educational, neutral or demoralizing, and the general deportment of audiences. Whenever violations of the law are found they will be prosecuted. The following officers have been elected: President, Mrs. R. H. Ashbaugh, Detroit, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; vice-president, Mrs. Edward S. Leonard, president of the Detroit Review Club, and member of the Executive Committee; Bishop C. D. Williams. "Since the organization of the National Regulation League," declared Miss Davis, "hundreds of thousands of feet of objectionable films have been destroyed and most of the larger cities have adopted the same plan of censorship. Municipal ordinances and state legislation is much to be sought in cities as a means of eliminating the bad features."

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IOWA.

FRIENDS of Frank Loftus and Frank Hoffman, of Dubuque, planned to celebrate the opening of their new theater, the Orpheum, with a torchlight parade ending at the theater. The new house will use licensed service.

The Iowa State Highway Commission has decided to use moving pictures to show the work done by that body in improving the roads of the state. Not only will the building achievements be filmed, but pictures will be taken showing how to and how not to work the roads. The work will be done by a cameraman from the state college at Ames.

Harry Agnew has sold his interest in the Lyric Theater at Newton to his partner, Matt Merritt.

An ordinance prohibiting exhibitions on Sunday evening by picture shows, has been passed by the city council at Maquoketa. The movement was started by the church people of that city.

A. E. Humphrey, who formerly was in the photoplay field at Sioux City, has purchased a show at Roland.

J. A. Meyer has opened a picture show at Paton.

In an address before the Tuesday Club of Davenport, upon "The Educational and Moral Effects of the Motion Picture," Mrs. T. O. Swiney praised the shows given by local exhibitors. She was requested to repeat the paper, which was very friendly to the motion picture industry, before the Friendly Club of East Davenport.

Garry Ackley has sold his show at Marble Rock, to John Jesmore and J. Bucklen.

Eugene Martin, who purchased the Grand Theater, at Lake City, from Ben F. Burns, Jr., will take possession February 1, 1914.

Daniel Emerson has purchased a moving picture show at Sanborn.

The Reil moving picture show at Logan, has been sold to Tupper & Son.

William Werner, Jr., who recently purchased the interest of Conrad Claussen in the Scenic Theater, at Holstein, will erect a new building for the show.

M. M. Moore, of Des Moines, has purchased the Gem Theater, at Corydon.

Mrs. H. B. Storm has sold the equipment and business of the Lyric Theater, at Grinnell, to a Mr. Budd, of that city.

The Palace Theater Company has been formed at Waterloo, with a capital of $35,000, for the purpose of erecting and operating moving picture theaters.

Robert Unger has leased the Grand Opera House at Davenport, and will conduct a moving picture show.

Leo Freymuller is now owner of the Magnolia Theater, at Magnolia.

John Kiessell, for five years operator at the Princess Theater, in Dubuque, recently disappeared and anxious relatives have been seeking trace of him.

Des Moines now has twenty-seven moving picture houses, and another is in course of construction.

The Dahoney Theater, in Council Bluffs, has been leased by Clifford R. Boggs, who will operate it as a picture and vaudeville house.

John A. Meyer will open a moving picture show at Grand Junction.

"The Best," which has been opened on Second street, at Clinton, by Hart Brothers, will be known as "The Home of the Pipe Organ 2."

Charles B. Alexander, manager of the Auditorium at George, announced that he would open a moving picture show at that place.

Glen Whorall, formerly of Eldora, is now engaged in the photoplay business at Union.

Louis Zangmaister has opened the Woodland Theater in the West end of Dubuque, which he recently purchased from James O'Brien and M. J. Fernan.

A. D. Garrett, of Cresco, has leased the Opera House at Lime Springs, and will start a moving picture show.

C. W. Bateman, proprietor of the Royal Theater, at West Union, has installed a new screen, a new machine and new seats.

W. L. Wells has sold his picture house at Nashua to L. P. Lindquist.

W. F. Clarmont is said to be contemplating remodeling the old building of the Iowa Pure Food Company at Cedar Rapids, for a moving picture theater.

The Opera House at Lake View has been leased by Chester A. Shelley, who will give picture shows twice a week.

R. C. Mead has secured a lease on the Opera House at Allison, and will give moving picture shows Wednesday and Saturday nights.

R. O. Otis has sold his moving picture business at Casey, to J. T. Smith, who has taken possession. The management will be in the hands of the owner's sons, Charles and Thomas.

Charles Billow has reopened the Star Theater at Denison.

A. H. Blank, of Des Moines, and S. E. Greenebaum, of Chicago, have secured a long-term lease on the building at 213 West Third street, Davenport, and will open a new moving picture theater, to be called the Casino. Between $15,000 and $20,000 will be spent in remodeling the building, which is expected to be ready for use early in December. Plans for the changes are in the hands of Clausen & Clausen, architects. It will seat from 600 to 700 persons: Greenbaum, formerly general manager for Runkell Brothers, chocolate and cocoa, will be the resident manager. Blank is secretary and treasurer of the Iowa Amusement Company, which has interests in Des Moines, Charles City, Minneapolis, and other places.

The new Fraser Theater has been opened at Spencer as a picture house.

A. R. Bird has re-engaged in the picture business, at Arlington, having purchased the outfit of Milton St. John.

James Varlamos and John Moritsas will conduct a moving picture show in the George Galbraith block, at Algona.

Henry Esdohr has sold the Star Theater at Centerville, to C. C. Dunsmoor, an experienced moving picture man fram Fort Dodge, who took charge at once. Esdohr will retain the management of the Comet in South Centerville.

A. H. Donhowe, of Story City, has leased a room in the new Alderman block at Nevada, now in course of construction and will use it for a moving picture theater.

Guy Carr will open a picture show in Pulaski.

Otto Smallfield, a business man, of Davenport, is said to be contemplating erecting a modern picture theater at Union and Walnut streets, in that city.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA.

ANOTHER large theater and mercantile building adorns the streets of Boston—the Scollay-Square-Olympia—involving an outlay, including the land itself, of "more than $2,000,000," to give the figures as stated by the promoters. The plans were by Clarence H. Blackall, who has designed many of the famous theaters in the United States. The site presented difficulties also on account of the slope. The basement of the theater is about forty feet below the yards of adjoining buildings on Pemberton Square. The theater itself is reached from Scollay Square, by a broad vestibule, approached through a high springing archway of Indiana lime stone, thickly studded with lights. Above the entrance arch, which extends through two stories, the building is carried in limestone to the top, and is crowned by a large clock, with illuminated hands and a dial, above which is an electrical display of announcements,, supported by three tall flagpoles. The outer vestibule is crowned by a round vault decorated with extremely interesting paintings by Emil Pollak-Ottendorf, the talented Vienese artist.

In the center of the outer vestibule is an ornamental ticket booth, and, beyond this, on the left, is the entrance to the moving stairway, from the ground floor to the gallery lobby. The inner vestibule has a handsome dado on each time of antique Breccia Marble, and a ceramic floor. Towards the rear, the balcony stairs are taken off at one side, and the gallery stairs at the other, both leading, by easy ascent, to various parts of the theater. The auditorium is the widest in this country, outside of New York. The balcony and gallery are constructed without columns, the space being spanned by huge steel girders, weighing fifty tons each. The auditorium is finished in mahogany and marble, and the seating is ample in dimensions and arrangement. There are large boxes on each side of the proscenium at the different levels. The decoration of the theater was directed by Mr. Blackall, and is a very carefully studied adaptation of Florentine Renaissance Motifs. The proscenium opening is square, crowned by a low pediment. The box draperies are of deep, rich blue silk, velour, heavily embroidered in gold. The same color is carried around on the top of the box and balcony and gallery railings, and the main curtain is of the same style and color. The main tones on the finish about the boxes are in shades of gray and gold. The stage is fully equipped for modern lighting and operating effects. The span under the auditorium is used for smoking room, lavatories, ushers' rooms, etc., and for the ventilating chambers and dressing rooms. Under the entrance lobby there is a large tea room and cloak rooms. Dean W. C. Sabine, of Harvard College, an expert on acoustics, was adviser in this field. The heating and ventilating was well cared for. An artesian well was sunk nearly 600 feet, to obtain a source of pure, cold water. Fresh air is pressed through a chamber, where it is thoroughly washed, and where in summer time, the air is cooled to a temperature from 10 to 20 degrees below the outside temperature. Beyond this cooling and washing device, the air is reheated, as may be necessary in winter, and enters through mushrooms under each seat on the floor. The ingress and exit is through Tremont Row, but for emergency exits, courts have been left on the sides of the auditorium, which are thirty-three per cent. wider than is required by law, and left open to the sky. Provision against fire is complete. All the windows are of metal, with metal sash glazed with wired glass, the building being equipped with automatic sprinklers and fire alarms. No expense has been spared in devising the best, the safest and most ample accommodations for the public. The Tremont Row Realty Trust, with Gerald G. E. Street and George A. Crocker as the trustees, acquired the property. Max Shoolman was in charge of the development of the enterprise and subsequent construction of the theater. The lease of the theater is now in the hands of the Scollay Square-Olympia Company, a Massachusetts corporation, controlled by Nathan H. Gordon, Max Shollman, Arthur E Lord, Frank J Howard and Ernest H. Horstman, who are identified with Gordon's Olympia, Washington Street, Boston, and a chain of vaudeville and photoplay houses in the East. This theater was built as a means of exploiting vaudeville and photoplays. First run General Film Service is used, about five reels to each change, which is on Monday and Thursday. The theater held a special opening on Sunday, November 16th, admittance to which was by ticket only. The house opened to the public on November 17th, and it is stated that 65,000 people paid admission the first week. One of the features of the house is the mammoth organ, installed at an expense of $50,000, and it is the first of its kind in any theater in the United States. It is of the pipe variety, and is so placed that its tones are heard in pleasing effect throughout the auditorium. Richard Henry Warren, formerly organist of the Church of the Ascension, New York, has charge of the organ. The house is open from 9:30 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. and admission prices range from ten to thirty-five cents. The seating capacity is about 3,200.

Mr Jacob Lourie, general manager of the Beacon Theater, Boston, reports that he has secured the exclusive service of General films for his theater. Mr. Lourie has signed up for about thirteen reels weekly of this high priced service. The Shawmut Theater, Roxbury, managed by Mr. H. A. Chenoweth, and owned by Mr. Lourie and his associates, is also on the Exclusive service. The writer is now at liberty to state that the new theater, about to be built in Washington Street, Boston, opposite the R. H White Company, is a Beacon project, which is to say that Mr. Lourie will soon have another theater on his string. As previously stated, the new house is in the very heart of the retail shopping district, will seat 800, and is to cost $125,000. Work is now being pushed ahead rapidly. General Film Service and vaudeville are the most likely selections for the new house.

The aldermen of the City of Everett, Mass., granted a permit to the Middlesex Amusement Company, composed of Messrs. Murphy and Hyde, to erect a moving picture theater in Chelsea Street, near the old Y M C A. The vote was 3 to 2. Two aldermen objected on the ground that the theater should be a fire-proof building. The new house will seat 800, and the policy of vaudeville and pictures is to be adopted. Manager "Nate" Brown, of the Broadway Theater, Everett, is not worried by the new opposition, as his large programs of Universal pictures and vaudeville are able to withstand competition.

It is stated that the clergy of Worcester are making considerable agitation over Sunday shows.

Manager Berman, of the Empire Theater, Chelsea, Mass., states he has leased the theater to a concern. Mr. Berman has a new project in view, which is getting along nicely, and he will be ready to announce his latest deal shortly.

John L. Sullivan, erstwhile champion of the prize ring, and now a West Abington farmer, after appearing for nearly 20 years before the public, is now appearing in his own theater. John L is a full-fledged manager, having taken a lease of the Empire Theater, Brockton, devoted to photoplays and vaudeville.

Moving pictures are going to supplant the regular sermon at the Maverick Congregational Church, East Boston, Mass., and if this novel departure is as successful as its pastor, Rev. A. R. Williams, anticipates, the largest Protestant Church on Noddle Island will become a moving picture church. Rev. Mr. Williams will allow the picture, "From the Manager to the Cross," to do the talking to the congregation. In speaking of this new line of church endeavor, he told the "World" man that it was his firm belief that the introduction of the picture would have a marvelous attraction to the roving population of his district. He expects the church attendance to double. Rev. Mr. Williams extended invitations to some three hundred odd clergymen to attend the first moving picture service held in this church, and he advertised the service widely in East Boston. If the plan works well he expects to use pictures every Sunday night.

Moving picture shows were the chief bone of contention at the Arlington, Mass., Town Hall meeting this week. Frank E. Hammond and Walter H. Billings, both local Arlington men, want to rent the old Town Hall for moving picture shows, and declare the selectmen have rented the hall to non-residents, at the same price they offered. Herbert W. Rawson, Frank V. Noyes, and Jacob Bitzer are the selectmen, and they are now considering the matter.

The Dankkantas Amusement Company has opened its new 600-seat theater at Brockton, Mass. The theater started out with a rush.

Mr. Roy E. Buzzell, who has been in charge of the National Theater, Winchendon, Mass., has secured a lease on the Opera House, Manville, R. I., and opened the theater this week.

The Waterville, Me., office of the Mutual folks is now in charge of Manager Murphy. Mr. Murphy is back on his old job again, as he formerly was a Waterville manager.

Rev. John T. Sheehan, curate of St. Mary's Church of the Assumption, Brookline, Mass., declared this week that he thought it better to keep moving pictures out of Brookline altogether. Rev. Sheehan appeared before the Brookline selectmen this week, asking the latter to revoke the license granted last week to the Brookline Friendly Society, to give moving picture shows. The clergyman stated that the entertainment offered by the Friendly Society would be free from objectionable features, without doubt, but he feared children would continue to attend shows in Boston and Roxbury, and that entertainment of the kind would be of no benefit. Before the hearing this week, on the petition of the society, notice was given by those who had previously opposed granting such licenses, of whom Rev. Sheehan was one. At that meeting, Rev. Wallace Illiffee stated he had no objections, as the show was not to be for profit.

The evangelistic services that have been carried on in People's Temple, Boston, the past two weeks by Evangelist Gray, are now completed. Moving pictures, showing the story of the prodigal son were the special features.

Manager Hayes, of the Globe Theater, Melrose, Mass., is in receipt of a letter, signed by twenty odd members of the ladies' committee, a civic club, complimenting him on the high moral tone and general superiority of his photoplay programs. Mr. Hayes projects Universal pictures, and is greatly elated over the testimonial, as the club is especially active in censoring films.

It is rumored by men who usually know, that a fourth exchange is soon to be opened in Boston. The new comer is to distribute the program of the Exclusive Supply Corporation. Mr. Hiram Abrams, the well known moving picture man, is mentioned as the one behind the new promotion.

Mr. Bert Garrett, formerly assistant to Manager Eslow, of the Universal's Boston offices, has left, to take up his new duties with the Blache feature people.

"The Land of the Incas" was the subject of an illustrated lecture given at Tremont Temple, Boston, this week, by Melano Rossi. Moving pictures of Peru and Bolivia were the basis of the program.

With the Governor of Connecticut, the mayors of New Haven and of five other of the largest New England cities, the banquet in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of S. Z. Poli's start in the theatrical business, which was held in the Taft Hotel, New Haven, Conn., became a unique and interesting affair. During the dinner it was announced that Mr Poli was soon to be officially honored by the Italian government as a chevalier of the crown. A silver tablet, inscribed, was presented to Mr. Poli by Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, who made a fitting speech. Mr. Poli's theaters, many of which are devoted to vaudeville and pictures, are established in six Connecticut cities, two in Massachusetts, and in other towns not in New England. All told, about 300 were present. Mr. Poli is the active head of all his houses, and directs everything from his home office in New Haven.

Mr. J. S. Kittredge, formerly manager of the Voyons Theater, Lowell, Mass., has resigned, to take charge of the Empire Theater, Chelsea, recently taken over by the Gordon interests. Mr. J. F. Hennessey himself, is now attending to the Voyons.

The Civic Inspection League, up in Toronto, Can., is very much alive and on the job. The League is simply insisting on many improvements in local theaters, and two houses in particular will have to make things right very speedily.

Mr. Steve Hurley, formerly house manager of the Lyric and Unique theaters, St. John, Can., and who was transferred to Trouro, N. S., has been recalled to again take up his old duties at the two St. John theaters.

The Princess Theater, Kingston, Can., a photoplay house, has been renamed, and is now called the Ideal.

Walter J. Linehan, who has been in charge of the Gilmore Theater, Springfield, Mass., since its opening, is to be transferred to another of P. T. Shea's theaters. William Ryan, who formerly managed this house, is scheduled to again handle the Gilmore.

The police commissioners of Woonsocket, R. I., have refused to grant Mr. O. Brunnell a license for a photoplay theater on Social street, in the new De Nevers Building. The commissioners stated that the present condition of the building in prospect to proper fire protection, was not sufficient for a photoplay house.

The Opera House, Milford, Mass., has cut its prices to five and ten from ten and twenty cents. The Opera House seats about 1,200, and, with its present scale of prices should be successful.

The Lyceum Theater continues to do well, with a straight 10-cent price.

P. Brunelle has changed the name of Weseley Theater, Greenfield, Mass., to the Colle Opera House. Under Mr. Brunelle, the house is doing very well.

Jacob Louris, general manager of the Beacon Theater, Boston, and H. A. Chenoweth, of the Shawmut Theater at Roxbury, Mass., report that the new Exclusive service of the General Film Company is highly satisfactory.

The North Shore Amusement Company has incorporated at Revere, Mass., for $30,000, with William E. McGinniss, William McGinniss and Margaret T. Rose as the promoters.

The Eastern Feature Film Company, of Boston, has reorganized, and the new owners are: Herman Rifkin, Morris Sandler, and Jacob Freedman. The company filed its certificate of organization as a $25,000 corporation. Mr. Herman Rifkin formerly was sole owner of the business.

On November 20, Mr. Hiram Abrams opened his new theater at Bath, Me., and business was more than satisfactory. Quite a number of exhibitors made the trip from Boston to Bath, to attend the opening, including Mr. "Cy" Bunce, Harry Asher, and Charlie Stern.

Mr. S. A. Anderson reports that his theater at Harrington, Me., is doing good business, now that the cold weather has settled in. Mr. Anderson uses the Universal program.

Prof. Charles Wellington played an engagement at Tremont Temple, Boston, this week, with moving pictures, illustrating a lecture on "The Great Southern Continent, and Glimpses of Peru." Prices ranged from twenty-five cents to one dollar.

Mr. Harry Asher, general manager of the Famous Players Film Company of New England, is now in his new quarters, occupying the entire fifth floor of the building at 31 Beach Street, Boston. Additional quarters have been leased on Pleasant Street, where films may be viewed by the trade.

One of the most remarkable travel pictures ever shown in Boston was exhibited in Tremont Temple this week, by Emery C. Kolb, who described the Kobb Brothers' trip through the Grand Canyon of Colorado. Mr. Kolb's pictures were unusually interesting, depicting the dangers and hardships of the trip of 101 days, over the route first traveled by Major Powell, but which the Kobb Brothers were the first to make with a moving picture machine. Mr. Kolb showed some remarkable pictures of the Bright Angel Trail and other Canyon views.

A moving picture and vaudeville show was the Thanksgiving entertainment furnished the prisoners confined at the Charlestown, Mass., State Prison. The program was voted a huge success by the inmates.

A corporation was formed at Portland, Me., this week with a capital of $2,000,000. It is called the American Standard Motion Picture Corporation, with the promoters named as follows: Albert F. Jones, J. L. Groteau, Albert A. Richards, B. M. Maxwell and A. B. Farnham, all of Portland.

The experiment of a set of motion pictures in place of the customary evening service, was made for the first time in the Maverick Church, East Boston, on November 23. A large congregation turned out for the innovation, and pronounced the plan a huge success. The pastor, the Rev. Albert R. Williams, acted as master of ceremonies. A five reel feature, "From the Manger to the Cross," was displayed, the pictures being accompanied by scriptural selections that were read by Edward Davis. It is very likely that this idea will become the regular thing at the Maverick Church on Sunday nights.

Mr. Herman Rifkin, president of the Eastern Feature Film Company, Boston, has returned from a trip through Maine, where he finds a brisk demand for feature subjects.

Mr. J. A. Emery, manager of the Star Theater, Bar Harbor, Me., and secretary of the Maine State League, was in Boston this week, as was Manager Allen, of the Palace and New Palace theaters, at Bangor, Me. Warner's Features is the reason. Warner's Features are doing a clean-up business in this territory, due to the efforts of Messrs. Grand and Campbell, the New England managers, who state that the policy of three features weekly has hit the nail on the head.

M. H. Hirsch, New England manager of the World Special Films Corporation, 1974 Boylston Street, Boston, finds business good, and getting better each day.

Boston's City Council voted to petition the Legislature to enact a law which will prohibit the management of theaters and other places of amusement in Boston from increasing the price of seats on holidays and other special occasions. While primarily directed against the "legitimate" theaters, such an action is likely to hit some of the larger vaudeville and picture houses.

Canadian exhibitors are now able to secure Warner's Features without trouble, as the program is now comfortably installed at 360 St. Catherine Street, West. Mr. E. A. Fenton, a former general manager of the Montreal branch of the General Film Company, and the Kinematograph Company, has been secured to handle this office. The next move will be the opening of offices in Toronto, Winnipeg and at Vancouver. Mr. Fenton has already placed his three-a-week program in the Strand and Moulin Rouge theaters, two of the finest photoplay houses in Canada.

The Consolidated Film Exchange, of Montreal, Can., has purchased the rights to the three-reel Ammex feature, "The Barrier of Blood."

The many friends of John F. Dolan, manager of the Lyric Theater, Dover, N. H., were shocked to learn of his recent death. Mr. Dolan made many firm friends while at the Lyric, and ran his house along strictly high class lines.

Mr. Jacob Lourie states that the new theater his corporation is now building on Washington Street, Boston, is to be known as the Modern Theater. Work is going ahead rapidly, and it is hoped that April 1 will see the theater in complete readiness. An artesian well is now being sunk.

Mr. J. E. Campbell, manager of the New Brant Theater, Brantford, Canada, finds business unusually good since opening that house with photoplay programs. Manager Campbell has applied to the city council for a permit to erect a marquee in front of the house, and hopes he will be able to go ahead soon.

On Thanksgiving Day, Mr. George J. Cleveland, formerly the treasurer of the Colonial Theater, Lawrence, Mass., was married to Miss Aida O'Brien. The wedding took place at St. Mary's Church at Lawrence, and was followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland are to take up their home in California, where Mr. Cleveland is to enter into a partnership arrangement with Mr. John Adams, former manager of the Colonial Theater, Lawrence, who now has a vaudeville and photoplay theater in California. Mr. Cleveland at one time was identified with the Colonial Theater, of Haverhill, and was interested in enterprises at Salisbury Beach on several summers.

The Civic Commission of Toronto, Canada, had every intention of forcing the Princess Theater of that city to close until proper fire exits were provided, but Mayor Hockei refused to countenance this proceeding, declaring it was altogether too drastic and also not necessary. The mayor ordered that special firemen be stationed at the Princess until the necessary changes were completed.

Mr. Ray S. Averill, manager of the Poli Theater at Waterbury, Conn., finds trade very good with vaudeville and pictures. A new scheme of Mr. Averill's is Sheriff's Sale Night. Mr. Poli has decided to change the color scheme of this house. At present red is the major color in all decorations, but it is intended to change this to emerald green.

There's quite a yarn to spin, growing out of the purchase of the old Methodist Church, Newmarket, N. H., by Messrs. Edward D. Mayer and Frederick C. Yeaton, of Exeter, who intended to remodel the church into a photoplay theater. Work on the building was started last summer, and the opening performance was held on November 17. The theater is on the upper floors, with stores downstairs. In the mortgage deed, this clause was inserted: "There shall be a board of censorship, composed of three persons, one selected by the Methodist Episcopal Church or Society, one by the Congregational Church or Society, and one by the school board of the town, which shall determine as to the character of the films to be used." Every precaution is to be taken by the managers to show only films of highest moral tone. The house seats 800, and business opened up strong.

Mr. C. W. Currier, manager of the Opera House, Milford, Mass., is now giving photoplay programs from 7:30 to 8:15 each night, with tabloid features from then on.

The Opera House at Woonsocket, R. I., the largest theater in this city, changed its name on November 25 to the Park Theater, having come under the control of the P. F. Shea Theater Company, by virtue of a lease. The Shea folks already operate theaters in Worcester, Taunton, Holyoke, Manchester and Bridgeport. Mr. W. J. Lenehan, formerly in charge of Shea's Theater at Springfield, is now installed at Woonsocket. The house had been carefully repainted and generally improved before its opening under the new policy. The walls were painted old rose, while the woodwork is in white enamel. New carpets, new draperies and new box chairs have been installed. Vaudeville and photoplays are scheduled for five days each week, with a one night stand, to fill out the total. Business opened up strong the opening night, and those in charge feel it will be an other "Shea success."

On November 17 Mr. Moxley Blumenberg, formerly in charge of the Casco Theater, Portland, Me., opened the New Portland Theater, same city, under his personal supervision. Famous Players' features, and Universal service form the programs of the New Portland, and under the very efficient handling of Mr. Blumenberg, the house should meet with even greater success than before.

Mr. R. J. McDonald, for the past twenty years identified with the various P. F. Shea houses in Springfield, Holyoke and elsewhere, tendered his resignation as manager of Sheedy's Opera House, Holyoke, Mass. Mr. McDonald will not divulge his plans just yet, but promises an interesting announcement before long. The employees of Sheedy's Theater presented Manager McDonald with a purse of gold, besides many individual presents. Mr. Fred J. Starr is now handling Sheedy's.

The widening of Avery Street, Boston, which is now a positive fact, will take a slice off from the Pastime Theater, and it is possible that the owners will not continue the theater, in this event.

A new photoplay theater opened on Thanksgiving Day at Brewer, Maine. For a small town, business was good.

Mr. Leslie Davis is building a photoplay house to seat about 800 at Orono, Maine, nearby to Bangor.

The Crescent Theater, St. John, Canada, is about ready to open. HENRY.

IN THE NORTHWEST

PUPILS prefer the moving pictures to the stereopticon in lectures and entertainments, Prin-

The Lake Amusement Company has taken out a permit in Minneapolis, Minn., to erect a brick, reinforced concrete and concrete block moving picture theater at 1537-39 East Lake Street, in that city. It will cost about $15,000.

Cass McAllister will be the manager of the picture house in Sisseton, S. D., which has been purchased by his father, T. E. McAllister, manager of the Madison Opera House at Madison, S. D.

The P. O'Boyle building at Rosalia, Wash., has been leased by I. T. Levy, of Spokane, who will operate a moving picture show.

H. C. Smallfield has sold the Electric Theater at Lyndon, Wash., to Olen Ragen and will devote his time to photographic work.

Moving pictures of the heart beats of a rabbit and of an embryo chick were shown to the students at Agricultural College, University of Minnesota, by Dean E. P. Lyon, of the College of Medicine of the university. The dean announced that the films had been made by friends of his in England and had never been released for general circulation. The effects of various drugs on a rabbit's heart was demonstrated. The views of the embryo chick's heart were so clear that the white blood cells could be seen in motion and the palpitations of the heart counted by the uneven flow of blood through the capillaries.

Frank Scheid contemplates opening a picture house at Easton, Minn.

The high school at Deer Park, Wash., has adopted the use of moving pictures in teaching history and geography.

Steve Roman has retired from the moving picture field at Red Lodge, Mont., having sold the Alcazar and the Royal to L. P. Chapman and H. P. Sandels. The new owners have closed the Alcazar and will devote their time to the Royal. This leaves Red Lodge with two houses instead of three.

It is reported that a new picture house is contemplated for the building at 43 Fourth Street in Minneapolis, Minn., now occupied by Regan Brothers, restaurant.

In direct contrast to the general run of newspaper stories which blame the picture shows for everything, there comes a press dispatch from Seattle, Wash., stating that F. B. Kidney surrendered to the police there and confessed that he committed a crime for which another man was sent to the California State penitentiary. He said he had been going to picture shows and learned that the man who does wrong is always found out.

Charles E. Johnson, assistant in the department of animal biology at the University of Minnesota, has returned from a six-weeks' trip in northern Minnesota, where he secured about 1,600 feet of good film of large and small game. These films will be used in connection with the natural history course at the university.

The city council of Milbank, S. D., has given W. P. O'Heron permission to run picture shows in the Opera House on Sunday afternoons.

John P. Carmichael, of Dows, Iowa, has purchased the Royal Theater at Albert Lea, Minn., from T. C. Thompson. Carmichael operates a number of shows in Iowa.

Bert Laschner has sold the Grand Theater at Biwabik, Minn., to E. T. Sandberg.

William Nelson, a merchant of Albert Lea, Minn., leased a picture house in that city for a week and turned over the receipts to the women of the City Relief Society. In addition he gave away several hundred dollars' worth of merchandise, some at the close of each show. He is a regular contributor to holiday funds, but took an unusual method this year to aid the society.

Ray Vincent, formerly of Luverne, Minn., writes to friends that he has purchased a picture show at Escondido, Cal.

Homer Ellison, manager of the Colonial Theater at Denver, Col., recently read a paper on "The Photoplay, Its Art and Purpose," before the Woman's Club of that city.

C. M. Crum contemplates opening a moving picture show at Hannah, N. D.

Norman & Higman have purchased projecting apparatus and will operate a picture show in the opera house at Winthrop, Minn.

The Scenic Theater at Yankton, S. D., has been sold to Daugherty & Granger.

G. A. Cornell has opened a picture show at Monticello, Minn.

C. Berghuis and Bertus Shamp will open a photoplay house at Clara City, Minn.

B. F. Frazier will engage in the moving picture and vaudeville show business at Hutchinson, Minn.

J. L. Jones, of New Richmond, has leased the Gillis Building, at Waseca, Minn., for a picture show.

A new building will be erected at Anoka, Minn., for the picture show to be operated by H. V. Bartele.

B. F. Ross sold his moving picture show at Slayton, Minn., to H. Johnson, of Lakefield.

V. B. Valleau has succeeded Fred Mallery as manager of the Idle Hour Theater at Albert Lea, Minn.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

PITTSBURG.

THE work of demolishing the old Girard Hotel, at the corner of Isabella and Federal street, Northside, is nearly completed, and the foundations for the new theater to be erected on this site will be laid shortly. The new theater will be built by Harry Davis and John P. Harris, of this city, who have taken a long-term lease on the property. H. E. Kennedy & Company have drawn the plans. The building will be of terra cotta tile, stone and brick, with a steel structural frame. It will probably be called the North Side Theater.

C. E. Glenn will make extensive improvements to his theater on Beaver avenue, Twenty-first ward. The seating capacity will be increased and additional exits constructed. The improvements will cost about $2,000.

A charter has been granted to the American Booking Office, Inc., of this city. The concern has a capital of $25,000, and is composed of Sam M. Reichblum, M. Reichblum, and Alex Reichblum.

The inability to operate a motion picture theater in Pittsburgh with an admission of ten cents while all the other houses are charging but five, was plainly shown recently by the lowering of the admission to the new Harry Davis Theater in Sixth street, opposite the Colonial Hotel. When the house was first opened the admission was placed at ten cents, and it was the plan of the managers to exhibit nothing but feature films, composed of releases from the Famous Players Company, and the All Star Feature Films. The theater was opened with "Arizona," and played this release for three successive days at ten cents admission. The house was filled during the entire run, but the inability of the management to get other feature releases to follow immediately after "Arizona" forced the exhibition of every-day releases. With six other downtown theaters within a few squares showing similar exhibits at an admission of only five cents, the ten cent admission was doomed, and in a few days was reduced to the usual Pittsburgh rate of five cents. Mr. Dennison, the house manager, in speaking of the original plan, said that had they been able to get real feature releases twice a week, the original admission could have been kept up, but with only two or three releases a month from the feature companies, it was impossible to keep up the ten cent price. There have been several propositions taken up at various times by the local exhibitors for a general advance of admission charges, but each time the attempt has fallen through.

The University of Pittsburgh has installed a moving picture machine in its lecture hall as a means of further advancing instructive work. The machine will be used mainly for exhibiting reproductions of great engineering feats, such as the building of the Panama Canal, great bridges, dams, and other structural work. The promoters of the idea intend having pictures of all great future engineering work to use as an aid in instruction for the engineering students.

P. A. Rowland and J. D. Clark, with their associates in the moving picture business here, have secured the present control of the amusement situation in McKeesport by taking over the Altmeyer Theater and White's Hippodrome Theater.

(Continued on page 1310)

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—The Capturing of David Dunne (Drama) | |
| EDISON—The Manicure Girl (Comedy) | 1000 |
| KALEM—The Strike (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—The Smuggler's Daughter (Drama) | 1000 |
| PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 74 (News) | |
| SELIG—The Master of the Garden (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| VITAGRAPH—'Mid Kentucky Hills (Drama) | 1000 |

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| CINES—The Stolen Legacy (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| EDISON—The Stolen Plans (Drama) | 1000 |
| ESSANAY—The Heart of the Law (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—An Enemy's Aid (Drama) | 1000 |
| PATHEPLAY—The Stolen Inheritance (Drama) | |
| SELIG—An Equal Chance (Drama) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—Deception (Comedy) | 1000 |

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| EDISON—The Joining of the Oceans, the Panama Canal, October, 1913 (Topical) | 500 |
| EDISON—Greedy George (Comedy) | 500 |
| ESSANAY—Smithy's Grandma Party (Comedy) | 1000 |
| KALEM—The Chinese Death Thorn (Spec.—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| PATHEPLAY—You've Got to Pay (Drama) | |
| SELIG—Hilda of Heron Cove (Drama) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—That Suit at Ten (Comedy) | 700 |
| VITAGRAPH—Performing Lions (Animal Picture) | 300 |

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—The Troublesome Mole (Comedy) | |
| BIOGRAPH—A Foul and Fearful Plot (Comedy) | |
| ESSANAY—Children of the Forest (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—Hydraulic Works on the Adda (Industrial) | |
| LUBIN—His Best Friend (Special—2 parts—Drama) | |
| MELIES—At Phnom Penh, Cambodia (Scenic) | 750 |
| MELIES—Beautiful Angkor-Wat, Cambonia (Scenic) | 250 |
| PATHEPLAY—A Modern Portia (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 75 (News) | |
| SELIG—Physical Culture on the Quarter Circle V Bar (Comedy) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—Sacrifice (Drama) | |

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| EDISON—Peg o' the Movies (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| ESSANAY—The Three Gamblers (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| KALEM—General Bunko's Victory (Comedy) | |
| KALEM—Piano Manufacturing (Industrial) | |
| LUBIN—Life, Love and Liberty (Drama) | 2000 |
| PATHEPLAY—Birds of the Inland Marsh (Bird Life) | |
| PATHEPLAY—A Journey to the Environs of Naples (Scenic) | |
| SELIG—The Mysterious Way (Drama) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Life Saver (Comedy) | 1000 |

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—The House of Discord (Drama) | |
| EDISON—The First Christmas (Drama) | 1000 |
| ESSANAY—Sophie's New Foreman (Comedy) | 1000 |
| KALEM—The Invisible Foe (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—The Real Impostor (Drama) | 400 |
| LUBIN—A Pill Box Cupid (Comedy) | 600 |
| PATHEPLAY—Uncle John to the Rescue (Comedy) | |
| VITAGRAPH—Love's Sunset (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—Oh, Sammy! (Comedy) | |
| BIOGRAPH—Riley's Decoys (Comedy) | |
| EDISON—A Pious Undertaking (Comedy) | 1000 |
| KALEM—The Hunchback (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| LUBIN—When the Well Went Dry (Comedy) | 400 |
| LUBIN—A Masked Mix-up (Comedy) | 600 |
| PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 76 (News) | |
| SELIG—The Wolf of the City (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Uprising of Ann (Drama) | 1000 |

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| CINES—The Sunken Treasure (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| EDISON—The Actress (Drama) | 1000 |
| ESSANAY—Life's Weaving (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—When He Sees (Drama) | 1000 |
| PATHEPLAY—The Couple Next Door (Comedy) | |
| SELIG—With Eyes So Blue and Tender (Drama) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—Up in a Balloon (Comedy) | |
| VITAGRAPH—Elephants at Work (Edu.) | |

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| EDISON—Falling in Love with Inez (Comedy) | 1000 |
| ESSANAY—Hello Trouble (Comedy) | 1000 |
| KALEM—Uncle Tom's Cabin (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| PATHEPLAY—Insects that Sing (Zoology) | |
| PATHEPLAY—Nice and It's Environs, France (Scenic) | |
| SELIG—Buster's Little Game (Comedy) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—Any Port in a Storm (Comedy) | |

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—Beyond All Law (Drama) | |
| ESSANAY—The Trail of the Snake Band (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—A Son of His Father (Special—2 parts—Dr.) | 2000 |
| MELIES—Cities of Japan (Scenic) | 1000 |
| PATHEPLAY—The Finger of Hate (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 77 (News) | |
| SELIG—Until the Sea — (Drama) | |
| VITAGRAPH—The Face of Fear (Drama) | 1000 |

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| EDISON—Within the Enemy's Lines (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| ESSANAY—The Stigma (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |
| KALEM—Frayed Fagin's Adventures (Comedy) | |
| KALEM—Ulster Day in Belfast (Topical) | |
| LUBIN—Growing and Gathering Cocoa Beans (Indust'l.) | 400 |
| LUBIN—Banty Tim (Drama) | 600 |
| PATHEPLAY—A Scandanavian Scandal (Comedy) | |
| SELIG—The Lure of the Road (Drama) | 1000 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Girl at the Lunchcounter (Comedy) | 1000 |

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

| | |
|---|---|
| BIOGRAPH—The Conscience of Hassan Bey (Drama) | |
| EDISON—The Haunted Bedroom (Drama) | 1000 |
| ESSANAY—Broncho Billy's Christmas Deed (Drama) | 1000 |
| KALEM—The Electrician's Hazard (Drama) | 1000 |
| LUBIN—A Love of '64 (Drama) | 1000 |
| PATHEPLAY—The Fire Bride (Drama) | |
| VITAGRAPH—The Ancient Order of Goodfellows (Special—2 parts—Drama) | 2000 |

WE HAVE THE MOST ATTRACTIVE ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES, ARTISTIC IN EVERY DETAIL, BEAUTIFULLY COLORED, PRICES ARE 35c EACH, THREE FOR $1.00. ALL DIFFERENT STYLES OF WORDING. JUST LET US KNOW WHAT YOU WANT AND WE WILL FILL THE ORDER.

AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO. First National Pank Bldg., Chicago

Coming

The greatest of recent New York theatrical successes

Chas. Klein's gripping drama

The Third Degree

Made by the Lubin Mfg.
Company with a special cast

5 Reels

Controlled exclusively by the
General Film Company (Inc.)

Write your nearest exchange for full particulars

General Film Company (Inc.)
Special Feature Department
71 West 23rd Street, New York

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7th, 1913.

REX—James Lee's Wife (Drama)
CRYSTAL—A Woman's Revenge (Drama)
ECLAIR—Trouble on the Stage (Comedy)
ECLAIR—Magnetism and Magnets (Scientific)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

VICTOR—The Dread Inheritance (2 parts—Drama)
IMP—Return of Tong (Drama)
POWERS—How Freckles Won His Bride (Comedy)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—"Red Margaret"—Moonshiner (2 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—Pearl's Hero (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—Baldy Is a Wise, Old Bird (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

NESTOR—Retribution (Drama)
JOKER—Mike and Jake in Mexico (Comedy)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 92 (News)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

REX—By Fate's Decree (Drama)
IMP—Time Is Money (2 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage (Com.).

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

NESTOR—Her Friend, the Butler (Comedy)
POWERS—His Own Blood (2 parts—Drama)
VICTOR—Hydraulic Mining (Industrial)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

JOKER—The Joy Riders (Comedy)
JOKER—Waterfalls of Yosemite Valley (Scenic)
FRONTIER—Out of His Class (Drama)
101 BISON—The Werewolf (2 parts—Drama)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1913.

REX—The Mask (Drama)
CRYSTAL—First Love (Drama)
ECLAIR—He Likes Things Upside Down (Comedy)
ECLAIR—Mutty Has a Romance (Comedy)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

VICTOR—Incognito (Drama)
IMP—The Story of David Greig (2 parts—Drama)
POWERS—Freckles Fight for His Bride (Comedy)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—Blood-Hounds of the North (2 parts—Drama)
CRYSTAL—The Soubrette (Comedy)
CRYSTAL—The Trained Nurse (Comedy)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

NESTOR—A Woman's Way (Drama)
JOKER—Mike and Jake as Heroes (Comedy)
ECLAIR—The Serpent In Eden (2 parts—Drama)
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 93 (News)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

IMP—Mr. and Mrs. Innocence Abroad (Comedy)
REX—The Jew's Christmas (3 parts—Drama)
FRONTIER—Slim and the Petticoats (Comedy)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

NESTOR—Teaching Dad a Lesson (Comedy)
POWERS—A Cracksman Santa Claus (Drama)
VICTOR—A Girl and Her Money (2 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

JOKER—For Art and Love (Comedy)
JOKER—Impressions of Corsica (Scenic)
FRONTIER—His Better Self (Drama)
101 BISON—The God of Girzah (2 parts—Drama)

---

Mutual Film Corporation

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7th, 1913.

APOLLO—The Rube Detectors (Comedy)
MAJESTIC—Rick's Redemption (Drama)
THANHOUSER—The Milkman's Revenge (Comedy)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Trapped in a Forest Fire (Drama)........1000
KEYSTONE—A Ride for a Bride (Comedy)
RELIANCE—Two Girls of the Hills (Drama)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—Romance and Duty (2 parts—Drama)
THANHOUSER—A Beauty Parlor Graduate (Drama)
KAY-BEE—The Legacy (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Frame-Up (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 50 (News)
RELIANCE—Four $100 Bills (Drama)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

AMERICAN—His First Case (Drama)........1000
DOMINO—Devotion (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—The Horse Thief (Comedy)
KOMIC—How It Worked (Comedy)
KOMIC—The Wild Indian (Comedy)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—Soul of the South (Drama)
PRINCESS—His Imaginary Family (Drama)
THANHOUSER—Uncle's Namesake (Comedy)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Armed Intervention (Comedy)........1000
MAJESTIC—(No Release This Date)
RELIANCE—A Man's a Man (Drama)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1913.

APOLLO—(Title Not Reported)
MAJESTIC—The Rival Pitchers (Comedy)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Where the Road Forks (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—The Gusher (Comedy)
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)
KAY-BEE—(Title Not Reported)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Open Door (2 parts—Drama)
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 51 (News)
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Personal Magnetism (Comedy)........1000
DOMINO—The Curse (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—Fatty's Flirtation (Comedy)
KEYSTONE—Protecting San Francisco From Fire (Topical)
KOMIC—(Title Not Reported)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—The Pitfall (Drama)
PRINCESS—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Fates Round-Up (Drama)........1000
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported)
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported)

---

Exclusive Supply Corporation

MONDAY, DECEMBER 8th, 1913.

AMMEX—Her Brother's Pard (2 parts—Drama)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9th, 1913.

GAUMONT—Dolly Saves Her Grandmother (Drama)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10th, 1913.

RAMO—The Devil Within (3 parts—Drama)
LACLEDE—Pale Face Squaw (3 parts—Drama)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 11th, 1913.

ECLECTIC—His Fateful Passion (5 parts—Drama)
GAUMONT—Ponpette's Mean Revenge (Drama)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12th, 1913.

F. R. A.—Demonyte (3 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13th, 1913.

GAUMONT—Two Christmas Morns (3 parts—Drama)

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

BLACHE-AMERICAN—The Fortune Hunters (4 parts—Drama)
AMMEX—The Lucky Nugget (3 parts—Drama)

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

GAUMONT—A Terrible Dream (Comedy)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

ITALA—Victory or Death (3 parts—Drama)
GAUMONT—Oscar In Search of a Wife (Comedy)

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

F. R. A.—Vengeance Bequeathed (3 parts—Drama)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

LEWIS PENNANT—Taxicab 1098 (3 parts—Drama)
GAUMONT—The Broken Heart (2 parts—Drama)

Confidence in Simplex is its Credit

Business—life itself—would be a failure were it not for confidence. Without it, credit were impossible.

The strongest test—the final analysis—of a film, is applied in its own studio. There it is projected upon the screen and subjected to exhaustive expert criticism before delivery to the trade.

Projection, in its best form must be utilized here, so that every detail in the film may be clearly revealed.

It is to the credit of Simplex (and shows the confidence placed in it) that

IT IS USED IN OVER 90% OF THE FILM STUDIOS.

THEY DEMAND THE BEST

THEY USE

Simplex

THE PEERLESS PROJECTOR

Illustrated Catalogue A gives full details.

Made and Guaranteed by

PRECISION MACHINE CO.

317 East 34th St., New York

State Right Buyers, awake from your reverie!

ORDER NOW!

The Most Spectacular Photo-play Ever Projected

THE HERO OF A NATION

Bar-Cochba

6 REELS

Most Beautiful Assortment of Paper, Heralds and Photos

Special Music

Territory Going Fast

SUPREME FEATURE FILM CO.

Suite 1008-1009
145 West 45th Street
Tel. 6690-6691 Bryant

P. S. Note our new address and phone numbers

---

AMERICAN-ECLAIR

FEATURE FILMS

IT'S AS PLAIN AS THE NOSE ON YOUR FACE

GOOD actors and good directors make good film plays; good film plays bring good audiences, and good audiences bring good receipts; good receipts make prosperous exhibitors, and prosperous exhibitors

Run All Eclair Productions

The Answer is:

Get in touch at once with the nearest Universal Exchange

AND DEMAND EVERY UNIVERSAL-ECLAIR RELEASE!

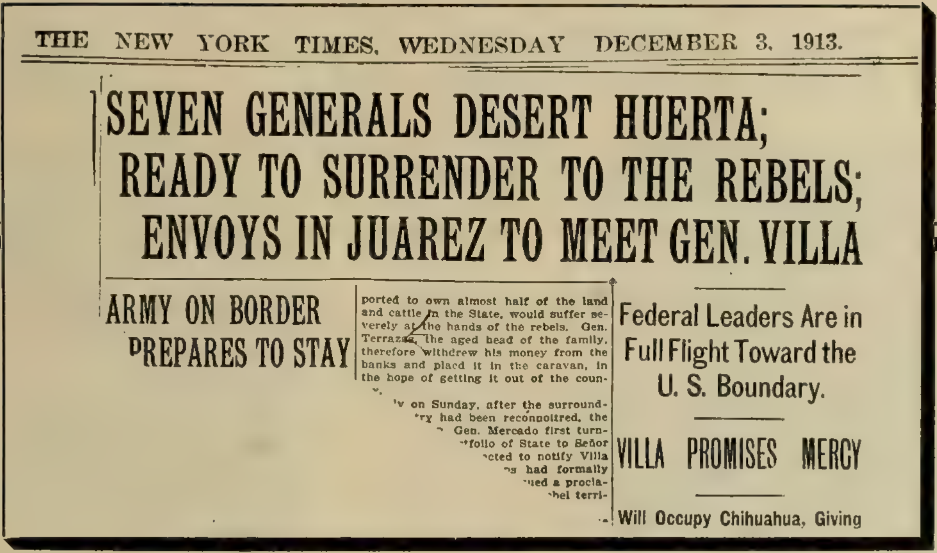
OUR SUNDAY COMEDIES ARE CREATING A SENSATION

225 W. 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY.



THE NEW YORK TIMES, WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 3, 1913.

SEVEN GENERALS DESERT HUERTA; READY TO SURRENDER TO THE REBELS; ENVOYS IN JUAREZ TO MEET GEN. VILLA

ARMY ON BORDER PREPARES TO STAY

ported to own almost half of the land and cattle in the State, would suffer severely at the hands of the rebels. Gen. Terrazas, the aged head of the family, therefore withdrew his money from the banks and placed it in the caravan, in the hope of getting it out of the country.

'v on Sunday, after the surround-ry had been reconnoitred, the
Gen. Mercado first turn-folio of State to Señor
cted to notify Villa
s had formally ued a procla-
hel terri-

Federal Leaders Are in Full Flight Toward the U. S. Boundary.

VILLA PROMISES MERCY

Will Occupy Chihuahua, Giving

MEXICO

The livest subject before the public today. Every newspaper advertises these Mexican War Pictures for you. Every reader of a newspaper WANTS to SEE the news in all its vivid reality.

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE

Purchase State Rights Make your theatre the first and only theatre in your city to show these timely and thrilling pictures, fresh from the field of action.

The Messrs. SHUBERT and WILLIAM A. BRADY are presenting this most wonderful set, 7,000 feet of motion pictures, astounding thousands who have seen them in the Playhouse, New York; Zeigfeld, Chicago, and the Greenwall, New Orleans.

More will follow. Our operators are now with Gen. Villa recording history as it is made. Holders of STATE RIGHTS of our first set have prior call on all films that follow. This makes this the most attractive proposition ever put before state right buyers.

AFTER HUERTA, WHAT?

Mexico has been fighting for four years. She will fight for years to come. Vast armies in vital and bloody conflict are posing for your theatre and patrons.

DON'T WAIT—Wire now your bid for the rights to your state

WILLIAM A. BRADY

The Playhouse 48th Street, East of Broadway

ACES, FOUR OF THEM

Keystone Comedies

DECEMBER 8
Ride for a Bride

DECEMBER 11
The Horse Thief

DECEMBER 15
The Gusher

DECEMBER 18
Fatty's Flirtation — Protecting San Francisco from Fire.

DECEMBER 20
His Sister's Kids

DECEMBER 22
A Bad Game

DECEMBER 25
Some Nerve

Broncho Headliners

DECEMBER 10
The Frame Up

DECEMBER 17
The Open Door

DECEMBER 24
Her Father's Story

DECEMBER 31
The Woman

JANUARY 7
A Military Judas

JANUARY 14
Conscience

Domino Winners

DECEMBER 11
Devotion

DECEMBER 18
The Curse

DECEMBER 25
Eileen of Erin

JANUARY 1
True Irish Hearts

JANUARY 8
Harp of Tara

Kay-Bee Features

DECEMBER 9
Her Legacy

DECEMBER 12
Soul of the South

DECEMBER 19
The Pitfall

DECEMBER 26
Harvest of Sin

JANUARY 2
Prince

JANUARY 9
Kentucky Romance

---

MUTUAL PROGRAM
EXCLUSIVELY
New York Motion Picture
Corporation
Longacre Bldg.
42d Street and B'way
New York City

KEYSTONE
COMEDY
SPECIAL
IN TWO PARTS
ZUZU THE BANDLEADER
ALL STAR CAST WITH MABEL NORMAND
AND FORD STERLING MADE UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF MACK SENNETT
MANAGING DIRECTOR
KEYSTONE FILM CO
MUTUAL FILM CORP
29 WEST 23RD STREET
NEW YORK CITY

VARIETY

…EARED
THEATRE

Theatre, Keith
…arger Capacity.
…han & Harris
the Bridge.

as Yale wouldn't know it
…ould be no [illegible] in that

FOR ASSAULT.

Toronto, Nov. 1[illegible]
…f the [illegible] Co. who
…e with Edward Baker,
Princess theatre, for
…ult [illegible] Charles-
…nd musical critic of
…day Night society
the Princess was
…dge, who said he
[illegible] sufficient to con-
…arge.
…f the conspiracy
$50 on the press

RESIGNS.

…al counsel to the Theatrical [illegible]
past six years
…st week. [illegible]
His successor
…d.
his private
…iway, New

W[illegible]
…lyn, playing
…ctions, held about
…k, [illegible] played the house.
…nge in policy at
is a Columbia

B[illegible]
…s, [illegible]
Blue," play-two weeks
is reported

…B[illegible]N
…in New Christmas
…lyn, under
…m Moore
…of Pitts-
…upport.
Forbes has
…te a new
…obson.

PATENT-MEDICINE "CAMILLE."

New Orleans, Nov. 19.

The Honey-Tar Stock Co. appeared at a suburban theatre last week. During the first act Friday evening, the leading lady coughed through her part. She coughed not at all during the second.

During the intermission between acts two and three a bearded, medical-looking person stepped before the curtain and further impressed on the audience the knowledge the leading lady had coughed during the first act but failed to repeat.

"I administered my Honey-Tar remedy during the first intermission," he said, "and she could not have coughed thereafter had she desired to. The ushers will now pass this celebrated remedy among you."

"To-morrow night," he concluded, "we will present 'Camille.' As you are probably aware, Camille coughs excessively in the last act, prior to her death. Our version is changed in this respect. No member of the Honey-Tar Stock Co. could possibly die of a cough. I thank you!"

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Cincinnati, Nov. [illegible]

Jaspar Orr, who was ahead of Reilly and Woods' "A Night in Paris" musical comedy company, which stranded at Bellefontaine, O., last week, was the only survivor to reach Cincinnati. The others are following the steel trail somewhere.

Heck Brothers, of this city, backed the show and lost $3,000. "A Night in Paris" was out two months. It booked independently in the one nighters. Orr had trouble getting the first class houses. He frequently found the most desirable houses occupied by a cheaper attraction. The Reubens shied at paying $1.50 and $1 to see musical comedy when they could get mellerdramer at half the price. At [illegible], O., one night, Orr's company took in $30.

"We might have done better if we ever got to Paris, Ky.," sighed Orr.

HUSBAND MANAGING WIFE.

Grace George is again under her husband's (William A. Brady) management, as the new show in which she will appear is being promulgated under his direction.

"The Younger Generation" and "Half Hour," which Miss George played at the Lyceum, moved on to Cincinnati Monday, where it opened with Martha Hedman in the former George roles.

Miss Hedman and the two pieces will open an engagement at the Blackstone, Chicago, next Monday.

UNFUNNY "FUNNY" FILMS HURT.

Unfunny "funny" films are to get the gate. Films that are funny only because they are classified as comics are to be sent back to their manufacturers with a protest.

The greater part of 1,500 picture managers in town are a unit in declaring that nine out of ten of the so-called "comics" of the movies are really "chasers."

The exhibitors believe the fault is with the manufacturers and are saying so. Scarcely a day goes by that doesn't bring its quota of jeers from exhibitors leveled at the manufacturers' designed film jokers.

One well-known movie manager, saying he voiced the opinion of more than 500 exhibitor associates, shot a note into a film maker last Tuesday begging that the alleged funny films be suspended, as they are costing him patronage.

The same exhibitor declared every company, save one, that he had done business with during the selection of films for three houses for four years had lost the trick of making movie audiences laugh.

The heads of the film companies he claimed weren't keeping close enough to their scenario departments. Men who hadn't a funny bone in their bodies were passing on submitted comic scenarios. Women, never temperamentally humorists, were judging submitted laughmakers. Editors and directors, refined a thousand miles beyond the degree of the average movie fan, were deciding what was amusing. The laugh bug had been emasculated.

The particular complainant begged the manufacturer, on behalf of himself and his fellow managers, to go back to the old Keystone style of semi-horse play. He cited the Keystone's uproarious pool game film as an illustration of the sort of stuff that made his audiences rock in their chairs. He instanced another comedy release as a recent example of unfunny "funny" film. He said he had handled the output of all the syndicates during his four years' movie management, and that to-day none of the companies save the Keystone was living up to the old laugh standards. He said further that unless exhibitors could count on funny films in funny film deliveries, the exhibitors of which he was a club member, would probably establish a funny film factory of their own.

AUTHOR FORGOT THE $15.

Chicago, Nov. 19.

William Anth…

STRONGER

¶ EACH day sees our liberal offer of a tried and true FEATURE SERVICE accepted by another "live-wire" who has tried out all kinds of so-called features and found them wanting.

¶ EXPERIENCE is an expensive teacher. True; but no Exhibitor has ever lost money showing WARNER'S FEATURES.

A FEATURE PROGRAM

THREE RELEASES EVERY WEEK

THE BRIGHTEST STARS

GRACE OUR PROGRAM

22 Branch Offices to Serve You

WARNER'S FEATURES

INCORPORATED

130 West 46th Street, New York City

WARNER'S FEATURES INC
SELECTED QUALITY

BRANCH OFFICES

ATLANTA, GA.
BOSTON, MASS.
BUFFALO, N. Y.
CHICAGO, ILL.
CINCINNATI, O.
CLEVELAND, O.
DALLAS, TEX.
DENVER, COLO.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
KANSAS CITY, MO.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
(WINNIPEG AND TORONTO OPENING)

THAN EVER

¶ SO positive are we that you need our big, spectacular features of unsurpassed QUALITY, that we are willing to meet you half way with a reasonable short-term contract, granting you an exclusive franchise for your district.

¶ INVESTIGATE the feature film market and you will be convinced that we take our pick.

WITHOUT AN EQUAL

THREE REELS IN LENGTH

THE GREATEST PRODUCERS

FEATURE THEM

A Postal Card Will Bring the Facts

WARNER'S FEATURES

INCORPORATED

130 West 46th Street, New York City

BRANCH OFFICES

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
ST. LOUIS, MO.
NEW YORK CITY.
SEATTLE, WASH.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
PITTSBURGH, PA.
MONTREAL, QUEBEC.
(WINNIPEG AND TORONTO OPENING)

WARNER'S FEATURES INC
SELECTED QUALITY

"Hoodman Blind"

HENRY ARTHUR JONES' Masterpiece as played by WILSON BARRETT
ACTED BY PILOT'S FAMOUS ALL-STAR CAST
DIRECTED BY MR. JAMES GORDON

4—Parts—4 175—Scenes—175

Months ago we purchased at an enormous price the exclusive motion picture rights to the most successful play ever produced in England. This beautiful story abounds with heart throbs that grip. The interest is held from the first scene to the very last. Particular attention has been paid to the minutest details, with the result that we have

A Phenomenal Feature

with a line of advertising matter that reaches the Top-Notch in lithographs, slides, heralds, lobby display photographs, cuts, pennants, streamers, etc.

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

---

Still Some Good Territory Open On

"ACROSS THE CONTINENT"

A four-part feature picturization of Oliver Doud Byron's great play

PILOT FILMS
220 W. 42nd STREET

CORPORATION
NEW YORK CITY

King Ludwig and Wagner

THE MOST DRAMATIC, HEART-THROBBING MOTION-PICTURE EVER SUBMITTED TO THE PUBLIC!

---

NOW in for a Long Run at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, the World's Most Beautiful Theatre!

SUPREME OF ALL PHOTO-DRAMAS!

Thrilling and fascinating not only to that vast clientele of Wagner enthusiasts, but to all with red blood in their veins—the remarkable trials, struggles, romance, and adventure of a Great Genius!

NEW YORK'S PHOTO-PLAY SENSATION!

THE LIFE AND WORKS OF THE IMMORTAL COMPOSER

RICHARD WAGNER

The marvelous triumph of the Messter-Film, Berlin.

(Passed without a dissenting voice and enthusiastically approved by the National Board of Censors, the Press, and Countless Educational Bodies.)

STATE AND TERRITORIAL RIGHTS FOR SALE. WIRE OR WRITE.

SPECIAL POSTERS, LECTURE, MUSIC, ETC.

PAT CASEY

1493 Broadway New York

Liszt and Wagner

COMING! COMING!

PRINCESS ELENA'S PRISONER

4 PARTS 4 PARTS

FEATURING THE DISTINGUISHED TRAGEDIENNE
MISS BETTY NANSEN IN THE TITLE ROLE

The first of an artistic series of remarkable multiple reel Photo Dramas to be known as

PREFERRED FEATURE ATTRACTIONS

Realistic Court Martial Scene

A POWERFULLY DRAMATIC PHOTODRAMA DEPICTING AN ENTRANCING ROMANCE OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE STAGED AMID SURROUNDINGS OF UNUSUAL SCENIC BEAUTY, REGAL SPLENDOR and FASCINATING ATTRACTIVENESS

Elaborate One, Three and Six Sheet Lithographs in 2 Styles are Available. Lobby Photos and Heralds

TERRITORIES NOW NEGOTIABLE!

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO., 110 W. 40th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

Territorial Rights
For Sale

An Old Friend in a New Garb

THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST

Eight Reels of heart gladdening, nerve testing, rib splitting, melodramatic motion photography.

PAPER GALORE

4 Styles of Half Sheets
3 " " One "
6 " " Three "
2 " " Six "
3 " " Eight "
1 sixteen sheet stand
1 twenty " "
1 twenty-four "
heralds, photographs, etc.

Special incidental music by W. W. Newcomer

Brilliant rock-steady photography

---

Massive settings. Superb acting. Entire production Copyrighted and produced by arrangement with Wm. B. Gray, author of the song, play and novel on which this picture is founded.

The safest and best proposition yet offered motion picture renters and exhibitors. Call, write, wire or phone

CRESCENT FILM COMPANY

Columbia Theatre Building
47th Street and 7th Avenue New York
Phone 1620 Bryant

(Continued from page 1295)

The Hippodrome is a modern fireproof building, on a plot 80 by 130 feet and its original cost was $225,000. It has a seating capacity of 2,000. The new owners of the theaters will form a corporation to operate the houses.

D. L. MANLEY.

ILLINOIS.

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S contention that the moving picture show is an enemy of the saloon, and sustained from time to time by illustrations from Illinois, is again supported by the results of the recent wet and dry saloon fight. An exhibitor who has a number of shows in the smaller cities, remarked before the election that he intended to open another in X. "Why, it already has one show and won't support two," he was informed. "Yes, but the town is going to go dry, and if it does, the picture show can get part of the money that went into the saloons."

Frank McGuire has leased the Worley Building in Macomb, and opened the third picture house for that city. The building has been remodeled to make room for 400 seats, and a handsome front has also been installed.

Mrs. Stella Arney and son, Verne, have taken a lease on the opera house at Martinsville, and purchased equipment for conducting a picture show.

Moving picture houses in Moline have reduced their Saturday and Sunday prices from ten to five cents. The Bio and the Lyric, however, have announced that they will give special programs on Wednesday and Friday evenings, when a dime admission will be secured. They believe there is a demand from a certain class of people for a program worth a dime, but agree that Saturday and Sunday, when the laboring people are anxious to patronize the photoplay houses, are not the best times to offer it.

H. A. Fleckles, of Chicago, is in direct charge of the remodeled Norton's house at Lockport, which has been opened under the name of the Majestic—the theater beautiful. The seating capacity has been doubled by a crescent arrangement with three wide aisles. Souvenirs were given both ladies and gentlemen on the opening night. The house will be devoted to the photoplay.

J. G. Berger has sold his interest in the moving picture show at Meredosia, to W. T. Hedenberg and Wilbur Parsons.

A new opera house is almost completed at Elmwood.

L. H. Burkhart, who announced his intention of opening a new picture house at 316 West State street, in Rockford, intends to run Kinemacolor pictures. His house will seat 340.

Moving picture houses in Farmer City, were ordered closed by the Board of Health because of a scarlet fever epidemic. Harry Payne, who had just opened a new show in the Opera House, returned to Springfield.

The Masonic order at Hoopeston, has let a contract for a heating plant for its Opera House, again placing in service an amusement place that has been out of commission.

Luman C. Mann, connected with various moving picture enterprises in Illinois, as lecturer and manager, is playing various cities in the state with a film show entitled "Around the World in 90 Minutes."

O. V. Lyons, who formerly conducted a picture show at Braidwood, has entered into a partnership with James Lyons, of that city, to conduct picture houses in the northern part of the State. One show is being operated at Gardner.

Wallace J. Emery, proprietor of the Star Theater at Galva, has been experimenting with the Sunday show.

Chris Taylor, the moving picture man of Kewanee, is to be the original Good Fellow in that city. He made arrangements with a local cafe to serve dinners to fifty poor children of the city and after the dinner he entertained them at a special show at the Tabard.

Will Dreher has opened the New Palace Theater in the Roy Building, at St. Charles.

John Kilcoin has filed a petition with the city council at Rock Island, asking permission to erect a moving picture theater at Twelfth street and Seventh avenue.

The Clermont Theater Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, to conduct moving picture shows. The incorporators are: Paul G. Hensel, Fred L. Steers and Thomas A. Garibaldi.

Wednesday, November 19, was observed in every Illinois city and village as Gettysburg Day—the fiftieth anniversary of the delivery of Lincoln's famous Gettysburg speech. The Olympia Theater, at Kewanee, showed alertness by booking "The Battle of Gettysburg" for a return date.

Kirby & Agnus have opened a picture house at Palmyra.

Here's another thing to illustrate the regard in which Burr Swan and his picture show are held by the residents of Pittsfield. The program of the Pike County Teachers' Institute lacked a feature for the usual Friday night meeting, and the county superintendent of schools requested Swan to put on a special program of educational subjects.

John Meyer, of Chicago, has accepted a position as operator at the new Park Theater, in Champaign. Miss Louise Hale, of St. Louis, will be in charge of the music, including the new pipe organ.

Edward B. Coddington has been granted permission to open a picture show at Oregon.

The Palace Theater, at Mendota, is being remodeled.

The Neil Theater, at Champaign, has a slogan that attracts attention and ought to attract photoplay patrons: "We run no advertising slides."

Ray Montgomery has purchased the lease on the Lyric Opera House at Mason City, which has been conducted by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ackerman for the last five years. Mr. Ackerman will continue to manage the Prospect Opera House at Greenview, where he has been giving picture shows, as well as at Middletown and San Jose.

John Carpenter and Mose Matone, of Braidwood, have purchased a moving picture show in that city.

Milne & Olmstead have succeeded Al Yeager as manager of the Academy of Music at Sterling. The new managers will run Kinemacolor pictures in connection with vaudeville. Yeager will devote his time to the Dixon Opera House at Dixon.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

HARRY T. LOPER, owner of the Lyric Theater in this city, has gone into the Chicago field, having purchased the Kimbark Theater at Sixty-third Street and Kimbark Avenue, in that city, for $60,000. His son, Russell Loper, will have charge of it. Young Loper has had experience in the moving picture business, but until recently was the London, England, agent for the Appleton publishing firm. Loper's Springfield house has been a highly successful enterprise.

Springfield people have taken kindly to the change to licensed service at the Grand Theater on the north side of the square and that place is enjoying some of the nicest business in its history. The inauguration of the tri-weekly change has proved that pictures advertise themselves and that a daily change is not absolutely necessary. Second day business has been highly gratifying; if a good picture is shown people will tell their neighbors. The Grand has expanded its advertising appropriation in the local newspapers and is getting returns. One effect of the new policy of this house has been to lower the Saturday and Sunday admissions at the Vaudette and Lyric, where week-end patrons were paying ten cents for four reels. These two houses are now giving three for five.

T. C. German, of this city, who is the most conspicuous figure in the Gem Theater Company at Riverton, was a recent visitor in the city. He is running a house which seats 500, has two Power's machines, an orchestra, player and is getting good results with a three-reel licensed show for ten cents. A feature of the interior is illuminated transparencies on the walls. German contemplates installing his own 11 horsepower electric light plant. He also has an inclination toward adding some vaudeville to his show.

The first talking pictures in Springfield—the Edison brand—were shown at the Chatterton Opera House the week of November 10 to a good business.

George Kleine's "Last Days of Pompeii," which was expected to be at the Chatterton, did not get a booking there, as the house does not own a machine, and instead the pictures went to the Savoy, on North Sixth Street. This is the most pretentious offering yet shown by the Savoy. Only a ten-cent admission was secured.

Governor Dunne refused to allow the Industrial Moving Picture Company, of Chicago, to take some interior scenes at the State Penitentiary at Joliet. He declared he did not believe it fair that the convicts should be made objects of curiosity.

Rev. F. W. Burnham, pastor of First Christian church, who has been a strong friend of the moving picture since he used "From the Manger to the Cross" in place of a regular sermon, has resigned the pastorate of that wealthy and large church to build a smaller church in Los Angeles, Cal. It is predicted that he will find use for the photoplay in his new field.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
Moving Picture World
Domestic $3.00 per Year
Canada $3.50 per Year
Foreign $4.00 per Year

A XMAS GIFT SUGGESTION
Richardson's Handbook
For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres
The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid
Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue New York City

ALL STAR Productions

May Be Booked Anywhere In the United States

Augustus Thomas'
"ARIZONA"—6 Parts
With Cyril Scott

Richard Harding Davis'
"SOLDIERS of FORTUNE"
With Dustin Farnum

Henry M. Blossom Jr.'s
"CHECKERS"—5 Parts
With Thomas W. Ross

Augustus Thomas'
"IN MIZZOURA"
With Burr McIntosh

IN PREPARATION

Eugene Walter's "Paid In Full" With Tully Marshall

"The Country Boy"

"The Wolf"

"The Witching Hour"

"The Arab"

"The Traveling Salesman"

"Colorado"

"Shore Acres"

And Others.

All Star Feature Corporation

HARRY RAVER
President

220 West 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

AUGUSTUS THOMAS
Director General

OUR DISTRIBUTORS

ALABAMA—Southern Feature Film Program Assoc., 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
ALASKA—A. R. Thorne, Fairbanks, Alaska.
ARIZONA—Golden Gate Film Exchange, 234 Eddy St., Los Angeles, Cal.
ARKANSAS—Southern Feature Film Program Assoc., 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
CANADA—Feature Film Co., of Canada, 205 St. Catherine St., Montreal
CALIFORNIA—Golden Gate Film Exchange 234 Eddy St., Los Angeles, Cal.
COLORADO—Northwestern Feature Film Co. Denver, Colo.
CONNECTICUT—Famous Players Film Co., N. England, 31 Beach St., Boston, Mass.
DELAWARE—Electric Theater Supply Co. Room 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
DIST. OF COLUMBIA—Electric Theater Supply Co., Room 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
FLORIDA—Southern Feature Film Program Assoc., 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
GEORGIA—Southern Feature Film Prog. Assoc., 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
IOWA—Kansas City Feature Film Co. A. D. Flintom, Pres., Gayety Theater, Kansas City
IDAHO—Northwestern Feature Film Co. 329 Oak St., Portland, Ore.
ILLINOIS—Famous Players Film Service, Inc., Power Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
INDIANA—Famous Players Film Service, Inc, Power Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
KANSAS—Kansas City Feature Film Co. A. D. Flintom, Pres., Gayety Theater, Kansas City, Mo.
KENTUCKY—Famous Players Film Service, Inc. 125 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
LOUISIANA—Southern Feature F. Prog. Assoc. 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
MAINE—Famous Players Film Co., of New England, 228 Tremont Ave., Boston, Mass.
MARYLAND—Electric Theater Supply Co. Room 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
MASSACHUSETTS—Famous Players Film Co., N. E., 31 Beach St., Boston, Mass.
MISSOURI—Dalton & Wolf, Beers Hotel Grand & Olive Sts., St. Louis, Mo.
MONTANA—Northwestern Feature Film Co. 329 Oak St., Portland, Ore.
MICHIGAN—The Casino Co., Detroit
MINNESOTA—Marshall Theater Circuit, Duluth
MISSISSIPPI—Southern Feature F. Prog. Assoc. 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
NEVADA—Golden Gate Film Exchange 234 Eddy St., Los Angeles, Cal.
NEBRASKA—Kansas City Feature Film Co. Gayety Theater, Kansas City, Mo.
NO. CAROLINA—Southern Feat. F. Prog. Assoc. 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
NO. DAKOTA—Marshall Theater Circuit Duluth, Minn.
NEW HAMPSHIRE—Famous Players Film Co., N. E. 31 Beach St., Boston, Mass.
NEW MEXICO—Northwestern Feature Film Co. Denver, Colo.
NO. NEW JERSEY—Modern Film Company 137 Roseville Ave., Newark, N. J.
SO. NEW JERSEY—Electric Theater Sup. Co. Room 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
NEW YORK—All Star Film Rental Co. 126 W. 46th St., New York City
OKLAHOMA—Kansas City Feature Film Co. Gayety Theater, Kansas City, Mo.
OHIO—Famous Players Film Service, Inc. 125 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
OREGON—Northwestern Feature Film Co. 329 Oak St., Portland, Ore.
E. PENNSYLVANIA—Electric Theater Sup. Co. Room 303 Abbott Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
W. PENNSYLVANIA—Famous Players Film Service, Inc., 125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
RHODE ISLAND—Famous Players Film Co., N. E., 31 Beach St., Boston, Mass.
SO. CAROLINA—Southern Feat. F. Prog. Assoc. 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
TENNESSEE—Southern Feature F. Prog. Assoc. 1902 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
TEXAS—All Star Film Service, Dallas.
UTAH—Northwestern Feature Film Co. Denver, Colo.
VIRGINIA—Southern Feature Film Prog. Assoc. 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.
VERMONT—Famous Players Film Co., of N. Eng., 31 Beach St., Boston, Mass.
WASHINGTON—Northwestern Feature F. Co. 329 Oak St., Portland, Ore.
W. VIRGINIA—Famous Players Film Service, Inc., 125 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.
WYOMING—Northwestern Feature Film Co. Denver, Colo.
WISCONSIN—Marshall Theater Circuit Duluth, Minn.

MISSOURI.

BUSINESS has held up nicely in Kansas City, exhibitors in the main doing a brisk business. Despite more than the usual amount of competition on all sides.

The advertising campaign of the Mutual folk has attracted much attention in Kansas City, and exhibitors are awaiting with interest the plans of the Universal. The Mutual ads have been high grade throughout, and it is expected that the Universal methods will be no less striking and intelligent. The new plans, according to many exhibitors, are proving helpful from all standpoints, the public showing much interest in the various angles presented, and also in the films as a whole.

The Lyric Theater, formerly known as the Century, has shifted its policy so often that it is rather a hard matter to keep apace with the changes. After trying moving pictures, Manager Joe Donigan turned back to "legitimate," and ran melodrama for a time The Kansas City public showed no great inclination to exceed the speed limit in getting to the Lyric to see the old-style performances, and Mr. Donigan has again returned to animated pictures. Mutual service is being used, first-run pictures being shown. Mr. Donigan probably will give the motion pictures a thorough trial before changing again, and it is believed that this will mean the permanent use of film at the old amusement house.

J. C. McCandles has taken over the Brooklyn Theater, at Thirty-fifth street and Brooklyn avenue, Mrs. M. M. Ross, one of the few women exhibitors of Kansas City, retiring. The house seats about 300. Mutual service is used.

Frank L. Newman has been granted a permit for the erection of a moving picture house at 1022 24 Main street, after his application had passed through a dozen different channels and been subjected to all sorts of treatment. The permit was issued despite the fact that there is yet a possibility that the ordinance prohibiting motion picture houses in a certain business district, will be upheld by the supreme court. A lower court held it invalid. The ordinance was passed at the instigation of retailers in the business district. It was stated that animated picture theaters interfered with the business of dealers in dry goods and other commodities. It was not stated that the moving picture business itself has reached the stage where it can no longer be regarded as an experiment or a freak. It is stated that the merchants who were back of the ordinance are prepared to fight it to the end. The Kansas City branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, however, is expected to take a stand in the matter in the near future. A very vital principle is involved in the fight and a telling blow would be sustained by the moving picture industry were the ordinance upheld. Present indications are that it will not be, however. In the meanwhile, Mr Newman is proceeding with the razing of the old Main street building, and plans for his new theater. It is to be of all-steel construction, and will seat about 700. Mr. Newman plans to have an orchestra of about fourteen pieces. The theater will be ready for occupancy by April 1, provided no further interference is suffered.

The Standard Amusement Company, operating three theaters in the business district in Kansas City, is now having trouble with the operators' and musicians' unions. The trouble originated when union representatives asked the Standard to discharge its non-union operators, or force them to join the union. Officers of the Standard decided that inasmuch as the operators in their employ are efficient, that it would be unwise to make such a ruling against them. The musicians struck out of sympathy with the operators. The Standard protected itself by filling the places of the union musicians with non-union players. The union men have picketed the Twelfth street, Tenth street and Palace theaters, operated by the Standard. In the main, the strikers have contented themselves with walking back and forth in front of the theaters and warning the public that "this house is unfair to union labor." In other instances, their course has not been so mild. A chemical compound, which forced patrons of two of the Standard's houses to leave was used recently. Several of the strikers were arrested recently, but discharged in the police court. At present, there seems to be little chance of an amicable settlement. The strike is doing no one good and is hurting all to some extent, and it is the general hope that it will soon be adjusted. Most of the Kansas City animated picture theaters are manned by union labor exclusively. The Standard seems to have deserved fairer treatment, especially as its scale of wages was equal to, or above the union rates.

C. C. Ezell, who has been manager of the Kansas City branch of the Mutual Film Corporation for the past six months, has resigned and will enter business in the South in the near future. Mr. Ezell's headquarters will be at Atlanta, Ga. His successor in Kansas City has not yet been announced.

The Kansas City office of the Universal is being equipped with a projection room and all first-run films will be inspected by Manager Joseph Spero before being turned over to exhibitors. A Simplex machine has been installed for the work. Mr. Spero, who has been in Kansas City but a couple of months, plans to carry a stock of machines and other supplies as soon as he has the routine settled.

Kinemacolor, which has proved so popular in other sections of the country, is to get a chance in Kansas City in the immediate future. The Globe, a vaudeville house, is to run Kinemacolor, according to an announcement by Manager Cyrus Jacobs. Those who have noted the success of the "pictures in natural colors" elsewhere, believe it will score in Kansas City, if handled under favorable auspices.

Exhibitors of Topeka, Kans., have secured a little more from the daily newspapers than is true of those of most cities. The dailies at the Kansas capital are not only giving the moving picture performances adequate mention in the advance notices and reviews, but also are running pictures of interesting events in the story. The exhibitors have reciprocated by advertising rather fully and the mutual boosting is working nicely.

The United States War Department is using animated pictures in its work. Lectures were given at Fort Riley, Kans., recently, for the benefit of Uncle Sam's men stationed there. Maneuvers of all descriptions were shown, the soldiers learning quickly under the new plan of instruction.

Recommendations of I. I. Cammack, superintendant of public schools in Kansas City, have been accepted by the Board of Education, which will turn over to each school enough money for the purpose of a moving picture machine and educational film. The type of machines to be purchased has not as yet been determined. A feature worthy of note is found in the fact that Mr. Cammack recommended the use of moving pictures in the schools only after progressive citizens had threatened to work for his dismissal on the ground that the public schools of Kansas City were behind the times. The superintendent, shortly after this incident, found that moving pictures would help out in the schools.

Marvin Tritch, who drew Claim No. 1 at the recent land drawing at North Platte, is the owner of the Gem Theater at Kirksville, Mo. His brother also is an exhibitor, operating a theater at Moberly, Mo. The lucky moving picture man will accept his claim, but will probably continue to devote most of his time to the moving picture business, in which he has proved a distinct success.

Inmates of the Boys' State Industrial School at Topeka, Kans., will no longer have humor or tragedy mixed with their moving picture diet. The boys are treated to a moving picture show weekly. It recently was decided to taboo the varieties stated.

MURRAY.

In Writing to Advertisers, Please Mention Moving Picture World.

EZO
LAMP LUBRICANT

REDUCES THE WEAR
and lubricates all movable parts of any projection machine arc lamp.

Ezo prevents parts breaking from rust, and keeps every part of the lamp working smoothly and evenly.

It permits perfect light and better projection. No monkey wrench is needed to adjust carbons when Ezo is applied.

Ezo is made in convenient sized sticks. It is clean to handle—there is no dirty grease—no dripping—no fire danger. Apply it to the heated parts of any lamp.

One stick—a month's supply—for 25 cents. It will save dollars in repairs.

Wrap a quarter in one of your letterheads and mail to the

EZO MANUFACTURING CO.
220 West Forty-Second Street, New York City
Factory and Laboratory: Archbald, Pa.

$55 FLAMING ARC LAMP
for $20

Would you be interested in buying at a second-hand price a lot or a pair of Brand New Flaming Arc Lamps? 3000 candle power minimum life per trim, 26 hours.

We have quite a good many of these—our Lord Luminator—on hand due to over-production, and in order to realize will sell them for $20.00 each, f. o. b. factory. The regular selling price is from $40.00 to $55.00.

Wire or write us how many you want, and, if not sold out, we will ship C. O. D. Lamps burn two in series on 110 volts D. C. or A. C.

References: Buick Motor Company, Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, Standard Steel Works Company, Coney Island & Brooklyn R. R. Company, Hamburg-American S. S. Line, Keith's Theatre, and the Tennis and Racquet Club of New York.

Lord Manufacturing Company
Bush Terminal No. 7 Brooklyn, N. Y.

A GREAT THREE PART DETECTIVE PLAY

THE HARPER MYSTERY

FEATURING MISS

FLORENCE TURNER

AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR MOVING PICTURE ACTRESS

A Special Line of Publicity Matter for This Feature

ANOTHER GREAT MONEY GETTER!

Three Thrilling Parts

AFTER MANY YEARS

General Film Agency (London)

A Drama of the Sea. Two Lovers are Parted and What Happens Before They Finally Meet Again Makes This a Valuable Feature.

See the Marvelous Cures in
THE FIRST IRISH NATIONAL PILGRIMAGE TO LOURDES
Produced in Two Parts by
THE GENERAL FILM AGENCY, Ltd., London

The Territory for these Productions is Going Fast; Everybody Wants Them. If you Do, Write or Wire.

Oliver Goldsmith's
THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD
A Three-Part Hepworth (London) Production that is sure to please.

ONLY A FEW STATES LEFT OPEN FOR

Seven Parts

DAVID COPPERFIELD

Seven Parts

Charles Dickens' Masterpiece. Produced by Hepworth's (London)

IF YOU WANT A WINNER, PICK

Four Parts

KISSING CUP

Countless Thrills

A Love Story in which Racing Automobiles, an Aeroplane, a Horse Race Hold You Completely Spellbound!

Advertising Matter Includes Lithographs, Heralds, Booklets, Lobby Photos, Cuts, Slides.

I HELP YOU
HELP
THE EXHIBITOR

A. BLINKHORN
Sole American and Canadian Agent
World's Tower Building
110-112 West 40th Street
New York City

I HELP YOU
HELP
THE EXHIBITOR

LICENSED FILM STORIES

VITAGRAPH.

'MID KENTUCKY HILLS (Dec. 8).—Detailed to uncover a suspected still in the hills, Jack Curtiss, a revenue officer, poses as an artist and meanders about the hills in search of the necessary evidence. After wandering from place to place he puts up at the little home of Jabez Morton, who is the owner of the still, and meets his daughter, Melinda, a beautiful young girl. Thinking to help along his search for the illicit still, he pretends to fall in love with the girl and for a while she finds herself really in love with him. She has a mountain sweetheart who suspects the supposed artist and tells Melinda of his suspicions. At first she does not believe that her sweetheart's accusations are justified, but she determines that should they prove correct, she will do all in her power to give Curtiss an opportunity to escape. She sees a love letter he writes to a girl up North, and in jealous indignation tells her sweetheart that she will arrange a meeting with Curtiss, which he must attend, concealed outside the door and, if she waives a handkerchief, to shoot Curtiss as he leaves the house.

When Curtiss and the girl are alone she asks him to tell her the truth regarding his professed love for her. He at first tries to evade an answer, but when she persists he laughs cruelly, mocking her for thinking that he would really love a rough mountain girl like her. He turns coldly and starts from the house. Melinda stands poised an instant with her handkerchief in her hand ready to give the signal, but her love for the man who has treated her so badly is too strong to be overcome and she allows him to depart unharmed, gone forever from her life.

Alone in the room, with a look of despair on her face, she sinks slowly to the floor, and, convulsed with sobs, buries her head in her arms. Her only consolation is in knowing that there is one man who really loves her and will cherish and comfort her.

THE UPRISING OF ANN (Dec. 15).—A good-looking woodsman is Dan. He lives happily with his wife, Ann, an uneducated woman, undemonstrative, but intelligent, and endowed with deep feeling. Their son, Bobby, goes to the country school, the teacher of which, a young and attractive woman, has made up her mind to capture Dan. She comes to the house on the pretext of anxiety on account of Bobby's truancy, but really to start her flirtation with Dan. She makes an appointment to walk with him, sending the note by Bobby. Dan gets the note and goes to meet her, but Ann finds it and deciphers it with the aid of Bobby's spelling book.

The teacher, Kitty, keeps up her efforts until she has infatuated Dan and he plans to elope with her, taking all his small fortune. On the night when they agree to leave, Kitty sends Dan another note, telling him where to meet her, but Bobby drops it in the yard, where Ann finds it, and she gets Bobby to help her read it. She gives Dan and Bobby their supper, then puts Bobby to bed, while Dan, wondering why he does not hear from Kitty, leaves the house to find her. Ann tells Bobby to tell his father when he returns that she has gone to meet Kitty and that if he follows their trail he will find one of them. Dan cannot find Kitty and comes home to ask Bobby if he had any message from her. Bobby gives Dan his mother's message, and Dan rushes away to find the woman. Ann in the meantime meets Kitty and forces her to go into the desert, saying that the one who comes out alive can have the man. Kitty becomes exhausted and Ann leaves her with a canteen of water. Kitty drinks all her water and collapses. Ann goes on for awhile, then relents and goes back to find Kitty. They meet Dan hunting for them, and Ann tells him she took Kitty to the desert to die, but that she has brought her back to him. Dan, filled with remorse, asks Ann's pardon. She forgives him and together they return to their home and Bobby to begin life anew.

UP IN A BALLOON (Dec. 16).—The Simpsons go for a picnic in the woods. After luncheon, while mother and father enjoy a nap, Betty, their beautiful daughter, strolls away, picking flowers. When near a hillside, Betty sees a snake and screams. She starts to run away, but bumps into Billy Gilwater. He kills the snake and Betty calls him a hero. Cupid sends his love-darts into the hearts of his two happy victims. Their happiness is given a severe shock when Mamma and Papa Simpson appear. Betty is taken home immediately and given a severe scolding, which she poutingly resents.

Poor Billy, back on his farm, loses all interest in his work. He sits dreaming of Betty. He finally writes to her and begs her to slip away from her parents when at the county fair the next day. Betty is joyously reading the letter when mamma comes and demands it, but Betty evades her. On the following day the whole Simpson family attend the annual fair and while entering a freak show, Betty slips away and joins Billy. They arrive at a scene of interest, a balloon ascension. Suddenly it occurs to Billy that a good way to elude Betty's parents would be to go up in the balloon. Betty is enthusiastic, and so the two jump into the basket and away they go toward the clouds. But the balloon is held by a windlass, and Father Simpson, seeing his daughter, orders the men at the windlass to haul down the balloon.

Another brilliant thought comes to Billy. "Get a minister and marry us or I'll cut the rope," he writes on a slip of paper and throws down to the irate father. The minister is gotten. He stands on top of a ladder and marries the young couple. As he pronounces the last words, Billy waves goodby to all, and cuts the rope. Higher and higher they go until the balloon fades out of sight, carrying Betty and Billy on their honeymoon voyage through the skies.

ANY PORT IN A STORM (Dec. 17).—Two old sea captains, Captain Judd and his friend, Captain Siles, are retired from active service and spend their contented days spinnin' yarns, smokin' and chawin'. Miss Sally Snooks is an old maid, who sings love songs to the thrum of her guitar. Her sweet young niece, Salina, comes to visit her. Everybody falls in love with Salina, especially Jack, a handsome young sailor; also Captain Judd. The captain coaxes his shipmate, Silas, to propose marriage to his daughter Jessie, hoping that will encourage her and her sweetheart Ben to get married; then Judd himself will be free to make love to Salina. Jessie overhears the old men plotting and she decides to foil them in a counterplot. When Silas proposes to Jessie she accepts him much to his misery and surprise. Judd addresses a note of proposal to Salina, for now that Jessie is engaged he is free; this note the two girls re-direct and send to the old maid Sally, who gladly accepts the marriage offer.

Judd and Silas are now both in the same boat, engaged to women they don't want and each takes similar methods to get out of deep water. Judd bribes "Peg-leg" Dick to marry Sally, and Silas generously bribes Ben to propose to Jessie; Salina in the meanwhile has become engaged to Jack. With these six disposed of, the two old captains meet again at their favorite spot on the beach and in their snug harbor they chuckle contentedly.

THE FACE OF FEAR (Dec. 18).—A couple of ponies are stolen from a settler by Rey Eye and his pal, Sleek Face, two Indians of the Blackfoot tribe. One settler sees the Indians making off with the ponies and notifies the military authorities at the post. Sergeant Colton and Trooper Mulligan, of the cavalry, start after the culprits. They trail them to the Indian village. They are met by the chief and the tribe that swarms out from the tepees and surrounds them. Bear Paw, chief of the Blackfeet, refuses to surrender the horse thieves and intimates that to attempt to take them by force might be fatal or mean war. The chief finally says that Red Eye and Sleek Face shall go up on a nearby cliff and that if the troopers can take them, all will be well. To this the troopers and the tribe agree. The culprits take their positions and on a signal, the troopers start from the Indian encampment, followed by the tribe, to see the battle. The troopers are armed with rifles, revolvers and knives; the Indians with rifles and knives. The tribe stands across the wide divide and sees the two white men struggling over the perilous edges of the cliff, pursuing the fleeing Indians and exchanging rifle shots. Sleek Face is killed. He rolls down the cliff, scattering a great shower of slag and rocks. From where the tribe stands he looks like a tiny fly against the steep sides of nature's towering eminence. Trooper Mulligan gets a bullet in his right wrist and abandons the chase. He lies upon a part of the cliff which commands a range of the course taken by the Indian and when Sergeant Colton is about to be killed by a knife stroke from Red Eye, he disarms the Indian with a rifle shot. Red Eye becomes panic-stricken. As he pears over the precipitous cliff and looks back at his pursuers, he shows the face of fear. He makes his way to the tribe. Instead of being received with open arms he is reviled for his cowardice. He is handed over to the troopers by the chief and his own mother, who praises the two soldiers for their bravery.

THE GIRL AT THE LUNCH COUNTER (Dec. 19).—All the college boys are crazy about Mamie, the pretty little widow, who owns the lunch room. She is very pretty and is the subject of a contest between the boys as to who shall win her favor. She is impartial and gives them all generous helpings.

When Cutey learns of Mamie and the generous lunch counter he decides to investigate for himself. He goes to the lunch room and wins the widow's favor. He is completely captivated by her charming little ways. So attentive is he that he arouses the jealousy of the college boys, who use all their wits to defeat him. They resent being waited on by Susie Finch, a most unattractive waitress, gracious in manner, but not beautiful in looks, and they decide to put a stop to Cutey's little game and telegraph to his stern old uncle that he is about to marry a waitress. Poor Cutey does not know, as he speeds along with Mamie in his fast roadster, that his uncle Van is on his way to the college town.

Uncle Van has been having difficulties with an overbearing housekeeper who wants to run his house and him also. The telegram breaks down all of his patience. He fires the housekeeper and takes the first train for the college. When he arrives he goes straight to the lunch room. After conversing a while with Susie Finch, who embarrasses him by flirting with him, in comes Mamie, who is startled when she sees him. He seems hungry and she gives him lots of good things to eat. Uncle Van is a very portly gentleman and is fond of good eating. He is so tickled with his repast that he falls in love with the little widow and asks her to marry him. She has seen that he has a great lot of money and decides to favor his suit. They go out and get married. When Cutey goes to her house that evening with flowers and presents he is met there by the college boys at the gate, and he completely collapses when he sees his uncle coming from the house with Mamie and is told by the boys that they are married.

THE ANCIENT ORDER OF GOOD FELLOWS (Special—2 parts—Dec. 20).—Detailed to accompany several clubmen, known as The Good Fellows, upon their Christmas rounds, Jerry Monroe, a patrolman, is impressed with the results of the happiness brought into the dreary lives of the tenement children and resolves to become and remain a Good Fellow throughout the year. He becomes interested in Alice, one of the tenement children, who lives alone with her father. He is threatened with dismissal, but on account of his previous record, is given until Christmas to retrieve himself with some deed of valor.

Upon the last day of grace, Christmas Eve, Jerry has accomplished no deed of valor, so goes to his chief to relinquish his star and say good bye. He is given a photograph and description of a counterfeiter and kidnapper wanted by the police. With that proposition, the chief states that should he capture this man, he will be reinstated in the force. Christmas dawns a miserable blue day for Jerry, but he determines to deliver the gifts he has bought and starts out upon his rounds. He discovers Alice in her tenement home with her father. Through a trivial incident, Jerry discovers the father to be Erickson, the counterfeiter. In attempting to arrest him, the lamp is thrown over and the room catches on fire. Jerry handcuffs Erickson, rescues Alice from the fire, and returns to the burning building for his prisoner, who has made a rush for the fire escape. There is a fierce struggle between the two men, on the fire escape, where Erickson misses his footing and is hurled to his death. Jerry is reinstated, having answered the requirements of the provision made in his behalf.

THE WRECK (Special—3 parts—Dec. 2).—Carlyle, the railroad president, visits his old friend, Hamilton, and is so impressed with Richard, his friend's son, that he offers him an opening in the railroad business. Carlyle notes the marked difference between him, a fine, manly young fellow, and Herbert, his own son, a ne'er-do-well at college. Herbert is in debt and writes home for money. The railroad president refuses his request. In desperation the boy writes to Genevieve, his attractive young stepmother. She confides in Richard. Herbert calls home secretly and his stepmother promises to help him. Carlyle comes in and sternly demands to know to whom she was talking. She cannot tell him.

A note arrives for Genevieve. She tells Carlyle it is from a girl. It is from Herbert, who wishes to meet Richard that evening to get the money. Genevieve goes to acquaint Richard of the appointment and is followed by her husband. He witnesses the meeting and hears Genevieve say, "On the bridge tonight at eight." Carlyle meets Richard at the bridge, seizes him by the throat, and pushes him into the water. John Squires, a surly, cowardly bully, who has been discharged from the railroad, sees the deed. As Carlyle sneaks back Squires insolently steps out and points meaningly toward the lake. Carlyle is forced to re-employ him on the railroad. Herbert coming to meet Richard, sees his father. When questioned he tells the truth about his appointment. Carlyle can hardly bear the weight of his sorrow.

Carlyle goes West, away from the scene of his crime. His son Herbert accompanies him. Engineer Squires, driving the Westbound Express, stands intoxicated, swaying from side to side in the cab. Squires attacks the fireman and tries to throw him from the window. While this is happening, the train tears on toward a runaway engine several miles down the track. In the head-on collision which follows, the cars are thrown from the track and splintered into pieces; clinched locomotives are demolished, belching fire and steam, passengers are hurled from seats and crushed in debris. Carlyle searches for his son. He finds him among the dead. Raising his eyes heavenward, his expression tells he realizes that his punishment is the retributive justice, "A Life for a Life."

DEPENDABLE FEATURE SERVICE

TWO GOOD ONES
EVERY WEEK

FEATURE TALKS.

A FOUR REEL MASTERPIECE

"THE LOTUS DANCER."

TALK No. 3

IN the selection of features you are looking for the "best sellers." The big money is all in the "best seller." Dividends on so-called ordinary features are microscopic.

What constitutes a "best seller" among features? Answer: Whatever pleases the greatest proportion of your audience. If you please 900 out of 1000 you are doing as well as can be expected. How can you please the 90% with your features? Your guess is probably as good as ours. How about three reel features with a small cast of well-chosen characters, which your audience can follow without straining or confusion? Add a strong modern plot, not too complicated, and swift as well as simple. With that kind of a feature for a foundation a child can build the rest of your program. TRUE FEATURES will please your 90%. TRUE FEATURES will stand the test of sustained quality. TRUE FEATURES strike a high average.

The cleverest men in the business are puzzled by the present conditions of the industry. There are rumors of accumulated big feature negatives on the shelves of prominent producers. It is said that these negatives are numerous and that they will be marketed in an entirely novel way.

The importations from Europe are constantly increasing. The methods of distribution are likewise undergoing a mighty change.

In this uncertainty and confusion one fact stands out pre-eminently: The good strong feature, averaging between three and four thousand feet, will be the foundation of a new order of things. This means that dependable feature service is the all-important problem of to-day. If you set your sails according to the new wind you will be borne along to success on smooth and pleasant waters. Every exhibitor who represents a solid investment knows that he must have dependable feature service with plenty of variety. TRUE FEATURES will give you this variety.

Do not put your faith in "freak features." You want features that will stand the test of time. "Freak features" will be forgotten when TRUE FEATURES have proven the exhibitor's best friend.

We want you to test the quality of our workmanship. Come and look at "The Lotus Dancer." It is an ideal feature. It fills every requirement.

We have more than a score of features just as good as "The Lotus Dancer." TRUE FEATURES are the best program builders.

The True Feature Co.

110-112 West 40th St., WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING

Telephone 578 Bryant New York City

Sole American Agents for Continental Art Film Society.
Get on our mailing list.

KALEM.

THE HUNCHBACK (Special—2 parts—Dec. 15).—Johnny falls and is seriously injured. Marie, his little playmate, considers herself to blame. A doctor declares that although the boy will recover, he will be a hunchback. Marie becomes melancholy. Her parents take her abroad to make the child forget the incident. Fifteen years later, "Humpty" Johnson, otherwise known as "The Fiend," is the terror of his companions in the underworld. The man is wanted by the police. "Humpty" learns that "Rat" Donovan, his pal, has betrayed him to the officers. He follows the man home and strangles him. The crime is discovered. "The Fiend" resolves to commit one more robbery and escape to other parts. He breaks into a house that promises a rich haul. The man hears voices in the next room. Cautiously approaching the portieres, he listens.

Marie cannot forget the terrible fate of her little playmate. Her sweetheart, David, finds her in a melancholy mood when he calls and learns the story. Marie tells him she is anxious to find her former playmate and do what she can to help him forget his affliction. "Humpty" overhears this with glee. Later, the man appears before Marie. He announces himself as the crippled Johnny and demands assistance. Horrified, Marie empties her purse in his hands. The man leaves. That evening he conceives the idea of compelling her to marry him. The following day, David meets the real Johnny. Despite the doctor's prediction, the boy had regained his health. David breaks the news to Marie, who realizes she has been hoodwinked. Meanwhile, the police run "Humpty" to bay. The man sees them approaching, and shoots at them through his window, until he has but one bullet left. When the officers break into Johnson's room, they find him lying dead.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN (Special—2 parts—Dec. 17).—Uncle Tom and Eliza's child are sold to Haley, a slave dealer. When Eliza learns that her son is to be taken from her, she steals the boy and runs away. Her flight is discovered. The slave crosses the ice-filled river and joins her husband, George Harris, who is also a runaway slave. The two foil their pursuers and get away.

Uncle Tom is placed aboard a steamboat to be taken down the river. Later, he saves the life of little Eva, who has fallen overboard. St. Clare, her father, purchases Uncle Tom in gratitude for the slave's heroism. Uncle Tom and Eva become firm friends. St. Clare, as a joke, presents Aunt Ophelia, his New England relative, with Topsy, a mischievous imp.

Always a delicate child, Eva fades away and dies. Shortly afterward, St. Clare is killed while attempting to stop a saloon brawl. His estate is sold and Uncle Tom is purchased by Simon Legree.

One of the field hands turns in a cotton basket that is short weight. Uncle Tom is ordered to flog the woman. Upon his refusal, Legree orders Tom flogged. Later, Emmaline and Cassie, two slaves, hide themselves in an attempt to escape.

Legree believes that Uncle Tom knows their hiding-place. He orders the old slave to reveal the whereabouts of the two women. When Tom pleads ignorance, Legree has him flogged to death. Young Shelby, the son of Uncle Tom's former master, comes upon the scene just as the faithful old slave dies. The boy turns furiously upon Legree and knocks the man down.

Legree drowns the humiliation of the blow in drink and dies in delirium shortly afterward. Shelby reverently takes Uncle Tom's body back to the old plantation, where it is laid away near the old slave's cabin.

FRAYED FAGIN'S ADVENTURES (Dec. 19).—Frayed Fagin is attacked by a particularly aggressive bulldog. Before the animal's desire for battle is satisfied, the hobo's clothes are in tatters.

A hospital attendant throws some old clothes in the field with the intention of burning them. He has forgotten matches and returns to get some. While the man is gone, Fagin finds the clothes and walks off with them. Later, arrayed in the suit he has found, the hobo peers over a fence and sees a farmer sleeping near some beehives. The hobo accidentally knocks the hives over. The bees emerge and make things hum for the farmer and the hobo. The latter flees, with the former in pursuit.

In the course of his flight, Fagin crashes through a hothouse. The irate gardener also takes up the chase. The flight breaks up a Salvation Army meeting and a picnic party. The participants all go after the hobo's scalp. A lake affords the only means of escape. Fagin dives in and swims under the water until he gains shelter in the overhanging grass on the opposite side of the lake.. His pursuers believe that the hobb has drowned and go to inform the authorities. Waiting until they have disappeared, Fagin climbs out of the water and triumphantly goes on his way.

ULSTER DAY IN BELFAST (Dec. 19).—This feature is of timely interest in view of the present conditions at Ulster, Ireland. The pictures show a number of interesting views taken in Belfast during the celebration of Ulster Day. The climax shows one of the famous leaders of the Ulster men, reviewing the various organizations as they march by.

Other interesting scenes show a thrilling lumber yard fire in London; the Brooklands Race Meeting, an English classic; the Czarevitch Stakes, an exciting English auto race; the annual fair at Stratford-on-Avon, the birthplace of Shakespeare, and other topical views.

THE ELECTRICIAN'S HAZARD (Dec. 20).—Lil, an ignorant mountain girl, is awed by the ease with which Stanley, in charge of the isolated power plant, handles the machinery. She regards him as a person endowed with superhuman powers. Miller, a mountaineer, loves Lil. The girl dislikes the man. The mountaineer seizes her in his arms. Lil's cries bring Stanley to the rescue and he knocks Miller down. The man vows to repay Lil's rescuer for the blow. A break occurs in one of the lines. Stanley shuts off the power and calling one of his assistants, goes to repair it. The break is located. The electrician sends his assistant back to the power house with a note ordering the man left in charge to turn the power on promptly at 2 o'clock.

Lil sees Miller hold up the messenger and take the note from him. The mountaineer reads the message. He changes the hour from 2 o'clock to 1 o'clock. Lil attempts to interfere. Miller disarms the girl, takes the shell out of her gun and hands the weapon back to her. The messenger delivers the altered note. With a blow of her gun, Lil knocks Miller down. The girl runs to warn Stanley of his peril. The mountaineer staggers after her. The electrician is at work and Lil sees she cannot warn him in time. The line runs just above her head. The girl takes a hunting axe from her belt and severs the wire. Miller is just behind Lil. The severed end of the wire hits the man just as the current is turned on. Miller stiffens and falls. Stanley is attracted by Lil's cry of horror. He approaches the stricken man, but Miller is beyond all aid.

EDISON.

A PIOUS UNDERTAKING (Dec. 15).—The policeman had been married for about five months and was very happy. One day his wife made some biscuits and pies, which necessitated the taking of a small bottle of Jamaica ginger. Exhausted Eddy, a hobo, driven almost to the resource of working by the pangs of hunger, happened upon the policeman's wife's pies cooling on the window sill. He appropriated two of them and vanished. The policeman watched this daring robbery without other comment than a happy smile. Exhausted Eddy ate the policeman's wife's pies and composed himself for sleep. While he slept the policeman came upon him, and blessed him silently. Exhausted Eddy, waking in fearful anguish, called loudly for a doctor. Since none came, he staggered forth to find one.

Now, it chanced that a doctor rented the front room of the policeman's house, for an office. Exhausted saw the sign, and beat upon the door. The doctor was out. So was the policeman. Nobody was in except the wife. The tramp tottered about the house with low howls of pain. At last, attracted by the policeman's empty Jamaica ginger bottle, he clambered in the kitchen window. The wife fled in terror, telephoned to her husband, and barricaded herself in the doctor's office.

In search of a doctor or medicine, the tramp went into the pantry, and found another pie. The sight was too much for him. He fainted. At the sound of his fall, the wife, shivering behind her barricade, also fainted, but recovered sufficiently to tell her husband of her terrible adventure. The last scene shows an affecting parting between the policeman and the man who saved his life by eating the pies.

THE ACTRESS (Dec. 16).—From his boyhood, John Hayes had always had the idea that he would one day marry Enid Wilson. When he reached an age of supposed discretion, he became engaged to her as a matter of course. Then, all of a sudden, he met Marian Orme. Marian was a great actress. From the very moment he met her, John Hayes began to love her, not because she was famous, or beautiful, but solely because he could see the finer qualities that lay behind her mask of genius.

Enid, who had long adored Marian Orme from afar, one day wrote her a note begging for an interview. Marian readily consented to her admirer's request, and invited her to come to her dressing room. The wondering Enid came in delighted awe—and found John Hayes' picture. In the tempest of sobbing grief which followed, Marian learned that her little admirer was also her rival. John Hayes, knowing that he had found the only love which could ever count, broke off his engagement with Enid, and asked Marian to marry him, but the actress, pitying the girl's evident distress, refused him. When she found that John was not to be put off with a simple "no," Marian resolved to kill his love for her.

Accordingly, on one occasion she pretended to be intoxicated, and on another, allowed John to overhear a desperate love scene between herself and another man—not advising him that the other man was an actor and that they were only rehearsing.

At last, when she found that John's love was growing stronger despite her subterfuges, Marian, in desperation, wrote him a letter in which she told him plainly that she was not worthy of him. John, heartbroken, went West. A few months later, Marian was disfigured for life in an automobile accident. John, hearing the dreadful news, hurried East, and proved to the despairing woman the true worth of his love.

FALLING IN LOVE WITH INEZ (Dec. 17).—When Inez came home from boarding-school to live with her uncle and aunt, she was distinctly young, charming and graceful. Her uncle, a grossly material person, decreed that she should start in to work at once. So Inez became her uncle's stenographer. In the same office with her, were two young and impressionable clerks. Despite her uncle's warning, Inez could not help occasionally smiling at them. One day, the uncle came in and found one of the clerks proposing to Inez. While he was engaged in throwing the rash young man into the street, the other clerk came in, and finding Inez in tears, essayed to comfort her. Then the uncle came back. After this unfortunate occurrence, the young clerks departed to other fields, and were replaced by two old and hideous men.

Inez's third suitor was a somewhat moony young man, who formed the habit of writing her mushy letters and hanging about the gate when Inez came home at night. The uncle interrupted one of these affecting gate scenes, and promised the young man to tear him limb from limb if he ever caught him about the house again. Then he locked Inez in her room. Inez escaped and climbed down a ladder to the anxious swain, only to be again interrupted by uncle. This time, the suitor barely escaped, and the maddened uncle swore that he would teach the next suitor a lesson.

Uncle's feelings can be imagined, when he came home a day or so later, and was told that Inez was entertaining a young man in the parlor. He rolled up his sleeves in delighted anticipation, and stalked into the room. The room was dusky and the suitor was seated in an armchair, with his back to the door. Uncle rushed forward. As he approached the chair, a huge and massive shape slowly arose from it, and a deep bass voice politely requested uncle's business. Inez's latest suitor was the captain of the football team. Uncle offered him a cigar.

WITHIN THE ENEMY'S LINES (Special—2 parts—Dec. 19).—When the cheerful season of Christmas dawned on the bloody, hopeless years of the Civil War, Colonel Stafford's home lay in the midst of a great Northern army. Colonel Stafford, C.S.A., was a soldier of iron nerves. He had firmly resolved that he would give his children a real Christmas and shrank not at all from the task ahead of him, although he realized the deadly risk, with the few gold pieces he had managed to get in exchange for the paper money in which his salary was paid, he bought the little uniform and doll for which he knew the children longed. Then, attired as a peddler, he started on his difficult way to his home.

Colonel Denby, of the Union army had met Colonel Stafford when the Union colonel had been taken prisoner by the Confederates. He liked and respected Stafford immensely, but when he recognized him in the peddler's garb, his duty forced him to only one action. In personal command of a file of soldiers he entered the Stafford mansion and told Mrs. Stafford that he knew her husband was in the house.

Little Bob Stafford's joy over the arrival of his father with the presents was instantly quieted by the arrival of the soldiers. From harrowing experience, he knew that unless his father were captured in uniform, he would be shot. Without a word to anyone, Bob slipped out of the house, swam the creek and ran over to the Union camp. The soldiers knew the little chap, and made no protest whatsoever when he went over to talk with the Confederate prisoners.

Bob whispered a few words to one of the Confederate officers and the officer slipped off his uniform and put it on the boy, ostensibly on account of the latter's wet clothes. Bob raced back to his home and gave the uniform to his father. Then Colonel Stafford surrendered himself with all the rights of a prisoner of war.

Colonel Denby, overjoyed at the happy outcome of his hateful duty, gladly accepted the Stafford's invitation to Christmas dinner. In the midst of it a message arrived for him and he was able to assure the happy Stafford that he would be exchanged forthwith for a captured Union officer.

A story that is bound to bring a glow of warmth to the hearts of all Americans and to make them remember that there is neither North, South, East or West where brave and loyal men are.

THE HAUNTED BEDROOM (Dec. 20).—When young Jean Germaine's father decreed that his son should not marry Lizette Rouget, unless the girl brought with her the sum of ten thousand francs, Jean, bowing to the inherited custom of generations, would as soon have thought of flying to the moon as of disobeying the parental command. Lizette was somewhat downcast when she learned the size of the required dowry, but soon brightened up and assured Jean that she would surely have it within a year, as a result of her clever embroidery work. But the end of the year found poor Lizette in a sorrowful state. Only a fifth of the required sum had been earned and Moinsieur Germaine was beginning to grow insistent that his son should choose another bride. At her wits' end, Lizette readily accepted the offer of her brother, Paul, to increase the money to the proper amount by means of a certain investment. Unknown to his sister, Paul was an habitue of the gambling dens of Paris.

With his sister's money in his charge, he betook himself to a somewhat shady resort, where, owing to a streak of exceptional luck, he succeeded in winning the required stake within half an hour. But although winning the money was easy, taking it away was attended with serious difficulties. The proprietor of the den was distinctly unwilling to

MAKE TIME MAKE MONEY

Harness the clock! Add a new, absolutely unique and startling money-maker, and a sure-as-fate crowd-puller. Imagine a tremendous clock on your wall or ceiling, with hands seemingly suspended in air, keeping absolutely correct time all the time, while an announcement flares forth from the dial's center.

Be an innovator. Now is the time to take a

WONDER CLOCK

It occupies very little space, and throws stereopticon clock face anywhere you want it. It takes power from ordinary socket. Amazes and amuses audience and always shows correct time. Requires winding only once a week.

Use the space on the dial for announcing features, or sell it to local advertisers and make a handsome profit

Many theatres make the Wonder Clock their best advertising feature, while others make it bring a rich profit. Doesn't interfere with pictures; spreads no light over house and only illuminates exact space occupied by the phantom time-piece.

Write at once for special confidential rate, which is so low that no photoplay proprietor can afford to let it slip by.

General Sales Co. of America
Cameraphone Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

have so much money taken away. Paul escaped after a scuffle, only to be held up on the street and stabbed. Desperately wounded, he took refuge in an inn, staggering up to a room, and died after he had concealed the money in a crevice in the floor. From that date, Paul's ghost kept watch in the room and faithfully guarded the money from unworthy hands. Soon the room acquired the evil reputation of being haunted, and was shunned by all. Poor Lizette's hopes expired with the disappearance of her fortune, and nothing was left for her to look forward to but a life of poverty and despair. One day an Englishman came to the den, and, laughing at the landlord's explanation, engaged the room. The ghost recognized an honest man. Under its mysterious influence the Englishman found the money and the paper with Lizette's address upon it. Still under the ghost's guidance, he carried the money to Lizette and changed her sad despair to hopeful joy.

ESSANAY.

LIFE'S WEAVING (Dec. 16).—Irene Dupont, the pretty little French girl, in which John Braddon, Sr., had placed his affections, tires him and he casts her aside. Thorwald, a member in a political gang of "highbinders," unable to influence John Braddon, arranges with Irene to wreak vengeance upon his head, by making love to John Braddon, Jr. A few months pass and young Braddon becomes engaged to Irene. The father, anxious to meet his son's fiancee, arranges for a meeting. He is nonplussed when he discovers that the girl is none other than his. The son, madly in love with Irene, is willing to marry her anyhow, but she does not love him—it is the father her heart is craving for—and he will have none of her. Irene's heart is stung to the core and she is left alone to weep and sigh over the man she loves.

HELLO TROUBLE (Dec. 17).—Joe Cutup, a stenographer, working for O. U. Grouch, flirts with Bess Busybody, a typist across the court. Joe places a card in the window with his telephone number on it, requesting her to call. She calls him, but is cut very short when it happens to be Grouch that answers the phone. The janitress, a messenger boy and others, seeing the card—fall easy victims, and call the number, and each time Grouch answers the phone, becoming more furious every time it rings. At last he calls the telephone manager and secures the phone number that had caused him so much trouble. He gives the party on the other end of the wire particular "ned." One word leads to another and the two men arrange to fight it out on the roof. O. U. Grouch and I. R. Stern, Miss Busybody's employer, are settling their difficulties, while the two stenographers sit in the office window and watch them. They both lose their positions. Many comical situations are brought about, while the two are looking for employment.

THE TRAIL OF THE SNAKE BAND (Dec. 18).—"Chuck" Peters, a gambler, is in love with Nell Braley, the daughter of the town saloon keeper. Nell, however, loves Bob Coleman, a cattleman. The express messenger is held up in the woods and the bandit escapes, leaving a snake hat band as a clue. Coleman inherits money, and as he is riding to the next town, finds the hat band and buckles it around his sombrero. The cattleman returns to town that afternoon. Nell tells him of the holdup, and recognizing the band on his hat, tells him to make his getaway quick. Fate plays a hand in the game and Coleman captures the real outlaw and turns him over to the authorities—so with his inheritance, he purchases a solitaire engagement ring and Nell is only too willing to accept it.

BRONCHO BILLY'S CHRISTMAS DEED (Dec. 20).—Christmas—the one day in the year when hearts should be free and gay—when life on earth should be heaven. A poor man, the father of a young child, wants his offspring to have a Christmas such as every child is deserving of. He is penniless. For the love of his child he commits burglary. A happy Christmas morn is the result. The father is arrested. Broncho Billy, the sheriff, with a true and loyal Christmas spirit, sends the storekeeper a check for the amount of the goods stolen by the poor man, and frees the father to enjoy the remainder of the holiday with his wife and baby.

Yes: Brass Poster Frames
make your lobby attractive. Before you place your order for lobby displays of any kind, get our catalogue and quotations. They are right. We make lobby and theatre fixtures and brass railings to any specifications. We can prove that our frames are the best in construction and material.

THE THEATRE SPECIALTY MFG. CO.
1232 East 3rd Street
CLEVELAND, OHIO
New York Agents:
Yerkes - Sound - Effect Co., 42d & Broadway.
Virginia & W. Va. Agt.
Theatre Supply Co., Roanoke, Va.

FEATURES FOR SALE

| | |
|---|---|
| Bloody Battles of the Shenandoah, 3 reels; all paper free | $110.00 |
| Spectre of the Sea, 3 reels; all paper free; (as it is) | 50.00 |
| Death, or Which of the Two, 2 reels; 1, 3 and 8 sheets; photos free | 60.00 |
| Led Astray, or The Shoe Clerk; 3 reels; 1, 3 and 8 sheets; photos free | 100.00 |
| The Fall to Death, Circus story, 3 reels; all paper and photos free | 125.00 |
| Reconciled, or The Bajorde Dance, 2 reels; all paper and photos free | 65.00 |
| The Passion Play, 4 reels; hand colored; all paper free | 225.00 |
| Nellie, the Lion Tamer, 2 reels; all paper and photos free | 100.00 |
| In the Bad Lands, 3 reels; big front, paper free | 60.00 |
| Texas Outlaw, 3 reels; big front, paper free | 50.00 |
| Great Fire Show, 3 reels; big front, paper free | 75.00 |
| Only an Actress, 3 reels; all paper and photos free | 115.00 |
| Nursing a Viper, 3 reels; all paper free | 100.00 |
| In the Grip of Alcohol, 3 reels; great subject; all paper free | 120.00 |
| Slaves of Russia, 2 reels; lot paper free | 45.00 |

Express agent's guarantee for expressage both ways if refused; or a deposit of $10.00 to accompany order; balance C. O. D., privilege examination.

ECONOMY FILM CO., 105 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JUNIOR PROFESSIONAL CAMERA
and Film Making Outfit for the Mfg. of STANDARD MOTION PICTURE FILMS
A MASTERPIECE OF CONSTRUCTION AND BEAUTY
200 Feet Capacity, Small, Compact. Weight 9 lb.
THE ONLY CAMERA PATHÉ USES
ALONG SIDE OF THEIR OWN, ORIGINAL CARL ZEISS LENS.
Worlds Greatest Tripods, Tilts, Perforators, Printers, Polishers, Measurers, Projectors, Winders, Rewinders, Finders, Raw Film Stock, Lenses, Special Film Work, Punching, Developing, Printing, Toning, Etc. DEMONSRTATION FREE
ALL WORK GUARANTEED
Whole 6 Story Building in the Trade. Established [illegible]
START A SAFE INVESTMENT
WRITE TO
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 SECOND AVE. NEW YORK

THE STIGMA (Special—2 parts—Dec. 19).—More than six or eight times has life been compared to the sea: both have their storms, their ebb and tide—both have their reefs, and shoals; both have their flotsam. Yet every derelict floating rudderless and aimless on the enchanted sea of life, is human evidence of the dereliction of his fellowmen. Clifford, a young man of a seacoast town, discovers evidence of a wreck, and later a girl, clinging to the wreckage a great distance from shore. She is rescued by him. He carries her to his cottage, where he and his mother resuscitate her. The girl is the girl of his dreams, the incarnation of his ideal, the consummation of vague visions born in fairy wreathes of smoke in the lull of twilight hours. And as time, the greatest of aviators, flies by, he learns to love her as a man loves only once in his life. Day by day she regains more of her health and strength. He proposes,—when a villager and his dad find a chest, washed ashore from the wreck, and brings it at once to the little home. With much excitement and in spite of strong protest by the girl, the folks open it and discover the log of the ill-fated ship. The secret is out—the girl is found to be a leper, who was being transported to an isolated island when the wreck occurred. And—well, if through the ages love were not strong enough to withstand despair, disease and even death, probably we'd not be here today, telling you about a greater picture. The father demands that the girl leave at once, the village is up in anger, she is driven as were those poor unfortunates during the days of witchcraft. But the boy, Clifford, who was a real human man, a lover after God's description, tells of his determination to go with her. In spite of the girl's protestations and her plea for him to remain with his father and mother, he leaves his home and puts out with her in a little boat, headed for an island nearby. For love, love of the girl he gave up his mother and ——

That night, as he is sleeping in the rude temporary camp he had constructed, she weighs in her mind the man's sacrifice for her, and determined to pursue the only course of her disposal to alter this, she goes back to the remorseless sea that had before yielded her up, to be it's own bride forever. He followed—perhaps they're happy in that "forever" life.

MELIES.

AT PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA (Dec. 11).—The city of silver temples. Beautiful temples known as "Phnoms," some of which have floors of solid silver and Buddhas of the same precious metal. Shown also are the Cambodian soldiers in march and Royal Cambodian dancers. Their performances though weird are odd and fascinating.

BEAUTIFUL ANGKOR-WAT, CAMBODIA (Dec. 11).—An historic temple whose ruins are considered one of the great sights of the universe. They are shown here in complete detail.

GEORGE KLEINE.

AT CROSS PURPOSES (Cines—Special—2 parts—Dec. 23).—The Duke of Lanzi is a young man who has gone the pace and exhausted every possible pleasure. He is tired of his useless, gay bachelor life and seeks some more abiding road to happiness. His usual associates bore him, his women acquaintances fail to give him any pleasure by their society, and he is fast becoming a misanthrope. On the other hand, Hesperia, a charming young lady, lives in deadly quietness and monotony with her parents, going through her ordinary duties, day by day, and, although surrounded by every luxury, she has no amusements or gaiety to enliven her existence.

A mutual lady friend determines to bring the two together, believing that the two opposites would make a happy pair. She writes to the duke and piques his curiosity by describing Hesperia as a suitable wife for him. He is charmed by the description and at the first opportunity seeks an introduction. They are mutually pleased with each other, and soon a marriage is arranged.

After the wedding Hesperia finds that she has made a mistake, as her husband will not indulge her in any kind of amusement, but expects her to sit at home and lead a quiet domestic life. They are soon very much at variance and an invitation

Manufacturers of Stereopticons since 1865 and oldest
Moving Picture Supply House
EXPERT MECHANICS AND OPTICIANS Not Mere Dealers
Machines of all makes and accessories. Bargains in rebuilt machines, etc. Original effects. Everything in the Projection Business. Quick Repairs.
HENRY MESTRUM SUCCESSOR TO C. B. KLEINE
385 6th AVE. betw. 23d and 24th STREETS NEW YORK
Send for Catalogue

Book These Now From Your Nearest Exchange!
"THE GREAT LURE of PARIS"
3 PARTS
"SALVATION"
4 PARTS
"JUSTICE OR LOVE?"
3 PARTS
FOR STATE RIGHTS WRITE TO
FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO.
220 W. 42nd Street New York City

FACTS! FACTS! FACTS!

WE CAN PUT YOUR HOUSE IN A CLASS ABOVE THE ORDINARY MOVING PICTURE THEATRE. OUR FILMS WITH THE NEW AND COMPLETE ADVERTISING THEY CARRY WILL PUT IT ON A PLANE NEVER BEFORE DREAMED OF. THIS IS NOT MERE TALK. IT IS A STATEMENT OF ACTUAL FACTS. THESE FIGURES WILL GIVE YOU SOMETHING TO PONDER OVER.

| | RECEIPTS FOR ONE WEEK ON ONE OF OUR SPECIAL FILMS: | RECEIPTS IN THE SAME HOUSE THEIR BIGGEST WEEK WITH WHAT IS CONSIDERED THE BEST FEATURE SERVICE OBTAINABLE OUTSIDE OF OURS: |
|---|---|---|
| MONDAY, | $313.00 | $147.30 |
| TUESDAY, | 411.50 | 223.10 |
| WEDNESDAY, | 499.25 | 135.30 |
| THURSDAY, | 440.25 | 205.35 |
| FRIDAY, | 463.25 | 261.40 |
| SATURDAY, | 561.00 | 156.35 |
| SUNDAY, | 405.75 | 274.25 |
| | $3094.00 | $1403.05 |

AN INCREASE OF 220%

WE ARE NOW READY TO SUPPLY YOU WITH THE FOLLOWING FILMS THAT WILL BRING YOU THE ABOVE RESULTS:

THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII—PASQUALI'S 8-REEL MASTERPIECE.

PROTEA—A SUCCESSION OF THRILLS, SURPRISES AND LIGHTNING COSTUME CHANGES.

JACK—BY ALPHONSE DAUDET, IN WHICH THE HERO OF THE NOVEL AND THE SCREEN ARE TWIN BROTHERS.

SAPHO—DRAMATIZED FROM THE NOVEL WITH ALL OBJECTIONABLE FEATURES ELIMINATED.

THE TWO SERGEANTS—FOUNDED ON A FAMOUS MILITARY DRAMA.

THE BLIND SCULPTOR—A STORY OF LOVE AND DEVOTION.

FATHER JOHN—A RAG-PICKER OF PARIS—"HONEST POVERTY VS. ILL-GOTTEN WEALTH."

THE GOLDEN CROSS—A REAL HEART-INTEREST STORY.

FOR FULL DETAILS WRITE THE HOME OFFICE OR ANY OF OUR BRANCHES LOCATED IN NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, MINNEAPOLIS, BOSTON, INDIANAPOLIS, CHICAGO, KANSAS CITY, CINCINNATI, PITTSBURG, ATLANTA, BUFFAL, ST. LOUIS, DALLAS, NEW ORLEANS AND WASHINGTON.

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORPORATION

110 WEST 40TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

arriving for the two to attend a ball at the Royal Palace, which the duke refuses, causes a bitter quarrel between them and Hesperia tells him that she is sorry she ever married him. They both feel more bored in their married life than formerly, and Hesperia determines to do something to bring the duke to his senses.

She combines with the servants to make the home as uncomfortable as possible without in any way relieving the situation. She writes to her parents regretting her marriage and the old people send a mutual friend in order that he may do his best to place matters on a better footing with the young pair. The intercession at first is of no avail, but ultimately, after many storms, the pair decide that they devotedly love each other and they settle down to mutual happiness with the determination to help each other over any little difficulties that may come up.

---

LUBIN.

WHEN THE WELL WENT DRY (Dec. 15).—Farmer Billings is placed in a serious predicament when his old well goes dry, and finds it necessary to start digging a new one. He hires Zeth, a neighboring farmer lad, to aid him. Zeth is an admirer of Billings' daughter, Dolly, to which farmer Billings greatly approves. Dolly, however, loves Tom, a city chap, and meets him secretly. Zeth detects them together and informs Billings, who, in anger, orders Tom from his place. Tom accepts his dismissal nonchalantly, but with the determination to again return.

The new well progresses and finally a good supply of water is struck. This places Billings in good humor, but the next morning he returns to work to find that it has caved in during the night. Just at this time Tom again returns and Dolly thinking her father is in good humor advises Tom that the opportunity is good to broach their desires to him. They find Billings in a rage, but Tom finally calms him and proposes a scheme whereby Billings can have the well redug quickly and without expense to himself. Billings agrees. His hat and coat are placed on the brink of the caved-in well, and they all hide in the hayloft to await results. Zeth, coming to work, finds the hat and coat, and, imagining that Billings is buried alive, wildly rushes to inform the neighbors, who come post haste with picks and shovels to dig for the supposedly buried Billings. They attack the caved-in well with great energy, quickly reaching the bottom. Billings then shows himself. The neighbors, indignant, then wreck their vengeance on Zeth. Tom broaches his desires to Billings and finds that the old farmer approves most heartily.

A MASKED MIX-UP (Dec. 15).—Charlie Holt, a henpecked husband, hires a clown suit to go to a mask ball, but Mrs. Holt is of a different mind and tears up his card of admission and throws the suit in a corner. Later, while Mrs. Holt is in another room sewing, the boys call for Charlie; he is afraid to leave the house, but loans his suit to Smith. Disgusted, Holt goes to his room where he falls asleep. Mrs. Holt coming into the sitting-room misses her hubby. She calls, but Charlie's slumbers are undisturbed. Furious, Mrs. Holt thinks he has disobeyed her, so putting on her hat and picking up the torn ticket she starts for the ball. The boys are having a lovely time; Smith has won the belle of the ball. Mrs. Holt arrives and sees Smith with his arm around the woman. She mistakes him for her husband and grabbing him by the collar she drags him out of the hall and through the streets to home. Charlie is awakened by the sound of breaking furniture, so hopping out of bed with revolver he starts down stairs. Mrs. Holt has Smith on the floor when Holt appears on the scene. She is horrified and tries to apologize, but Smith is sore and throwing the suit in Holt's face he leaves the house in a rage.

WHEN HE SEES (Dec. 16).—John Taggert, graduated from a mining school, is in love with two sisters, Barbara and Betty Carter. The young man finally marries Barbara, the elder. They go West and make their home in a small village. Through Lem Mathews, a young assayer who has an office in the town, John hears rumors of gold in the mountains. Betty, the younger sister, arrives to visit the newlyweds. There is no one at the depot to meet the girl and she makes the acquaintance of Lem, who takes her to John's house. Betty's greeting of John is shy.

John leaves on a prospecting trip that will take him out of all communication for three or four weeks. Later in the day, Barbara, while getting a meal, attempts to light the stove and the gasoline explodes. She is burned severely, especially her face. When the bandages are removed two weeks later, she finds that her beauty is terribly marred.

Meanwhile, unknown to Barbara, a love affair develops between Betty and Lem. When the time draws near for John's return, Barbara finds Betty primping and looking more or less confused about it when questioned. Made sensitive by her injury, Barbara believes that Betty is preparing to attract John. John strikes some promising ore and returns home. He reaches the village first and goes to Lem's office to deposit his ore for assay. John knows nothing of Barbara's misfortune, and Lem starts to break the news gently to him while the young miner is seated at a table making out his report. John is so startled that in swinging around he knocks out the prop which supports a shelf above the table. Two acid bottles fall, break and splash acid in John's eyes. Barbara is at home torn by conflicting emotions. When John reaches the house escorted by Lem, his eyes are bandaged. The country doctor announces that John will never see Barbara again; he is blind. At the same time, Barbara discovers that Betty is in love with Lem, which clears her feelings of jealousy. The bond of affection between husband and wife is now stronger than ever. Their material wants are cared for when Lem finds that John has staked out a rich gold claim.

A SON OF HIS FATHER (Special—2 parts—Dec. 18).—Will Temple, a gambler, leaves his wife, Mary, alone most of the time with their baby boy, Harry. The night Mary can stand it no longer is the night Will is the heaviest winner. Will decides to leave his home and wife and go his way undisturbed. He leaves a note to her to that effect and that she will be well cared for and also an enclosure to be given the boy when he becomes of age. Then he goes away and eventually becomes proprietor of a gambling joint out West.

Harry grows to manhood and on the day of his majority learns from the note his father had left that there is $1,000 and interest awaiting him in the bank. Inadvertently his father has told him in the letter that it is his poker winnings, and the thing that his mother most fears comes to pass—a desire to gamble. Harry gets his money and very soon finds his way, despite his mother's pleadings, to the gambling table. At first he wins and he lies to his mother about what he is doing, but eventually he loses all and rather than face her he runs away West. He winds up in his father's gambling house and not knowing it is his son the father engages him. The son enters his father's employ unconscious of the fact that it is his father who has given him a helping hand. He becomes dealer through his wonderful and instinctive ability. Later he rescues a Western girl, Jennie, from the insults of a strange gambler and they become sweethearts. The stranger shows up again and in a game sitting opposite Harry, he falsely accuses the boy of cheating. Harry draws first and the gambler falls wounded. The father, thinking the boy wrong, starts with the others to get him, but he holds them all back. Escape is cut off, he sees Jennie coming and retires to the adjoining room. There the fight is kept up with the barricaded door between. The girl learns of the trouble and goes for the sheriff. In front of the saloon the sheriff finds that the gambler is a notorious crook, wanted by the authorities of many States and immediately goes to the rescue of Harry. When they burst into the room they find Harry has fainted from a wound and a scrawled note beside him tells only to advise his mother, Mary Temple, and then is cut short. On the reverse side, however, the father finds his own letter and realizes that he has sent his boy wronk. Later a reconciliation follows and the father puts up his joint for sale and both Harry and the girl go back with him. Back in the East the family is reunited and a daughter added.

GROWING AND GATHERING COCOA BEANS (Dec. 19).—A very interesting educational picture of the cocoa bean industry taken in one of the largest plantations in the West Indies. The first scenes is the picturesque huts of the natives, which are constructed of bamboo, covered with leaves and bushes. The families are just preparing to go to work. At the plantation the negroes are seen cutting the cones from the trees. These cones are rapidly cut open and the beans spread upon the warehouse floors to dry, then bagged and shipped to the market.

BANTY TIM (Dec. 19).—On the street of a little Tennessee town a mob is attacking Banty Tim, a hunch-back negro, with the intent of driving him out of the community. To tne rescue of the poor black comes Tilman Joy, a Union soldier. He places himself in front of Tim and commands the mob to fall back. Two or three times the mob press forward, but Tilman demands that they hear his story. It was at the battle of Vicksburg Heights that he, Tilman Joy, was wounded. Presently he saw a crippled form crawling on hands and knees toward him; it was Banty Tim, who in the past had received some kindness at the hands are acknowledged by the leading expert film producers to be the finest and most accurate Cameras in the world.

AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
We also manufacture a complete line of Studio and Dark Room Equipment.
Distributers for Eastman Raw Film
Send for Catalogues
American Cinematograph Co.
617-631 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Ill.

WANTED—MANAGERS AND PIANISTS
To read the special notice my booklet received in this paper of Nov. 8th in Music Section. I got the same kind of criticism from The Etude, Metronome, Jacob's O. M., Editor of this paper, and several others. All say, "Based on common sense." No hot air. Mr. Manager, get this booklet for the good of your house, or insist on your Pianist getting it. You know about Bill and his Brains. Price, $1.00.
E. A. AHERN
Music Director, Isis Theatre, Twin Falls, Idaho.

PIPE ORGANS FOR THEATRES
Large stock. Prompt delivery.
Write for illustrated Catalogue or telephone Harrison 1476.
T. D. HUME & CO.
Suite 513-522, 608 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

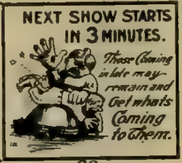
Hepworth Sensation
"KISSING CUP"
FOUR PARTS
Great Racing Melodrama.
Racing Autos, Aeroplane Flight, Horse Race.
All Turner Films, Ltd., Releases with Florence Turner (late of Vitagraph Co.).
General Feature Film Co., Inc.
Power's Bldg. Wabash and Monroe, Chicago

WHEN YOUR PICTURE MACHINE NEEDS REPAIRING
WHY DON'T YOU SEND IT TO US!
We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.
WE BUY SECOND-HAND MACHINES.
GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO.
176 N State St. (bet. Lake and Randolph) Chicago, Ill.

VISCO PICTURE MACHINE OIL
If your dealer will not supply you send us $1.50 and we will send you a 128-ounce can of Visco Picture Machine Oil direct. 6-oz. bottles, 25 cents at your dealer's.
THE VISCO MOTOR OIL CO., Cleveland, O.

LADIES having Wooden Heads should nail on Their Hats.
Others Please Remove Them
85

We are Located in the Centre of the Country
THE MAIN POST OFFICE IS A FEW DOORS AWAY, THE EXPRESS WAGONS CALL AT OUR STORE MORNING AND EVENING. PROMPT SERVICE IS ASSURED. SEND US A TRIAL ORDER AND CONVINCE YOURSELF. DON'T LOSE ANY TIME IN WRITING FOR OUR CATALOGUE. IT'S FREE. SLIDES MADE TO ORDER. STOCK SLIDES, 40 CENTS EACH. (SEE THOSE ILLUSTRATED). ENROLL YOUR NAME WITH US TODAY.
ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO. 608 Olive Street ST. LOUIS, MO.



NEXT SHOW STARTS IN 3 MINUTES.
Those Coming in late may remain and Get whats Coming to them.
88

PUZZLE
THERE'S A REASON FOR ALL THE EXCITEMENT
FIND IT
THE SILENCE of THE DEAD
IN 4 PARTS
GAUMONT

See Review of Subject on Page 1013, Nov. 29

OUR EXCLUSIVE SONG SLIDE SERVICE is Equal to an Extra Reel or Two any Day. So Why Delay?
Use it Now. Write for our big list of 1914 Hits, also Rates.
CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE, 37 So. Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

of Joy. Tim raised the body of the helpless soldier upon his back and with the rebel bullets flying all around him reached the Union lines with his burden. The negro hunch back had saved the soldier's life, and as Joy tells the tale to the infuriated mob reaction takes place. They press upon Banty Tim and in turns grasp his black hands and with many expressions of good wishes resolve that he is a man and a brother and henceforth a good citizen of Spunky Point.

A LOVE OF '64 (Dec. 20).—Virginia Carey, a Southern girl and Confederate spy, in order to facilitate her work and disarm suspicion, pretends blindness when the Union headquarters are established in her house. She is, however, suspected by the Union general, who orders Lieutenant Wilson, of his staff, to watch the girl. A love affair develops between Wilson and Virginia, but each continues to do what appears to be their duty. Virginia obtains a copy of an important despatch, and carries it to the Confederate picket lines. Wilson, scouting at the time, observes the delivery of the paper, follows the officer to whom it was given, and recovers it.

Meanwhile, the Union troops have been engaged in destroying a bridge over which Virginia must pass on her return home. When she comes in sight of the bridge she realizes that she must either continue on her way or by her actions admit that she is not blind, which would be fatally compromising. The Union general, realizing that fate has prepared a test for the girl, arranges for her rescue in case she proves her blindness by plunging through the broken bridge, and allows her to go on. Virginia, trusting that she will be able to survive the plunge, steps through the opening in the bridge floor. At the same moment, the Confederate advance attacks, and the soldier who had been posted to rescue Virginia is killed. Wilson, cut off from his friends and swimming the stream lower down, rescues Virginia. Knowing now that she is a spy, his sense of duty forces him to place her under arrest. Coming in sight of the house they find, however, that the Confederates are triumphantly in possession. Virginia urges Wilson to flee, and guides him to where her horse, a beloved pet, is hidden. She induces him to take the horse and escape, setting the Confederates upon the wrong track. A year later, the war over, Wilson returns and the lovers find happiness.

SELIG.

AN EQUAL CHANCE (Dec. 9).—Donald Worth is a spoiled young wealthy bachelor. Accompanied by his valet, he goes for a week-end to the Barrett's beautiful bungalow in the mountains. He is a welcome guest there, because he is admired by Marie Barrett. They renew their old troth and have a delightful time tramping in the mountains in the neighborhood. On one of these excursions they happen to visit an isolated home of the mountains, where Elise Martin lives. The girl immediately attracts the attention of Donald. Marie Barrett soon perceives a change in her lover, and when he is suddenly called to Europe, she practically gives him a letter of release from his engagement.

Later, the old father of Elise dies and leaves her quite alone; so she is taken to the Barrett home and Marie undertakes her education. These influences so quickly refine and intensify the attractions of the mountain girl that when she makes her debut in society she is the cynosure of all eyes. About this time Donald Worth returns from Europe and promptly visits the Barrett home, and unmistakably shows his love for the undowered mountain lass. The generous Marie Barrett, who has many admirers, finds the object of her charity has an equal chance with her and relinquishes the hand of the man to whom she was once plighted to the lovely but lowly Elise Martin.

HILDA OF HERON COVE (Dec. 10).—Hilda is beloved of Hans, a fisherman. Her father, captain of a tramp schooner, asks her to accompany him on a long cruise, but to gratify Hans, who is extremely jealous, she concludes not to go on the ship. As she is on her way back to tell him this, she stops and speaks with another fisherman, and Hans, seeing her, becomes at once insanely jealous, so that she capriciously reconsiders her plans and goes on the schooner. Her father and his crew are an evil lot, and everything is fish that comes to their nets. A young millionaire whose launch has become disabled drifts their way and they drag him aboard, and, after looting him, hold him up for ransom. His gallantry and his pitiless situation arouses the sympathy of the fair Hilda. She secretly shows him the way of escape and gives him a compass. He tells her he cannot steer by the compass and persuades her to take the boat and go with him. She takes him at his word and embarks in the night.

The young people reach the shore, and the gallant gentleman insists that Hilda go to his home. He explains their adventure to the family, and then is much troubled, telling the father that he will have to marry the girl for saving his life. Hilda, however, is longing for her Hans, and the attraction of her fine environment having worn off, she announces one morning: "If you don't mind, I would like to return to my own home on the seashore." The young man, who thought he was making a sacrifice, is astonished, and his father is much relieved.

PHYSICAL CULTURE ON THE QUARTER CIRCLE V BAR (Dec. 11).—A natty girl from the East, bearing the latest hints from Paris in her costume and get-up, arrives at the Diamond S ranch and immediately becomes the cynosure of all eyes. Three cowpunchers of the wild and woolly order fall desperately in love with her in a minute. They are surprised to find that she is inordinately fond of athletics, and decide to go into training, sending to a mail-order house for a full lot of apparatus. They saw off their pants, make them into athletic costumes, and start madly into muscle-making on hickory horses, Indian clubs and other sweat producers. They meet with many mishaps, but grow strong and eliminate fat. After they think they are very fit, the athletic girl introduces them to a flat-chested, anemic-looking young man, and tells them he is to be her future husband. They sadly go out behind the bunkhouse, build a fire and resignedly consign their training outfits to the flames.

THE MYSTERIOUS WAY (Dec. 12).—Little Isabel Trenton experiences great delight in the presence of an Italian organ grinder and his monkey, and follows them through the winding streets of the town until they reach the railroad yards. The tired Italian climbs into an empty box-car with his monkey for a snooze, and the little girl climbs in after them. She gazes at the monkey so long that she herself falls into a deep sleep. The organ grinder, awakened by the jar of the car as it is coupled, jumps out, but little Isabel sleeps on, and when she awakens is several hundred miles from home. She is discovered by the brakeman and turned over to the Salvation Army for safekeeping. The only distinctive feature of her apparel is a plaid cap of peculiar pattern.

She is adopted by wealthy people, grows up, marries, and eventually goes back to her home city, taking her own little girl with her. This child wanders out of the hotel and becomes lost, as her mother did before her, and, strangely enough, falls into the hands of Isabel's own parents, who still preserve the little coat which matched the plaid cap, a memento of the child they lost so long ago. The old lady generously sacrifices herself by donating the precious relic to the waif they have found. Isabel is finally restored to her mother, who in turn finds her own parents, so that the reunion is doubly happy.

WITH EYES SO BLUE AND TENDER (Dec. 16).—Jim Calvert, a young seaman, is in love with June, the daughter of the lighthouse keeper, Caleb Hauworth, and she reciprocates his affections. Rough-mannered Silas Crag, however, thinks that he can win the girl. Silas, finding June alone one day, makes his usual advances, but Jim comes up and tosses him over the cliff to the sands below. Silas is furious and vows vengeance. Afterward Jim gets a commission and goes to sea, and on the long cruise and visits to other ports for the nonce he forgets the little girl at home, and in a blundering way becomes the victim of an adventuress, Inez Valleau, who marries him when he is half doped. Faithful June has gone into a decline with much waiting. Jim's vessel finally

WHY SHOW A
Jumpy—Flickery—BUSINESS KILLING Picture?
WHEN YOU CAN HAVE YOUR MACHINE FIXED AS GOOD AS NEW, WORK GUARANTEED
We sell all makes of machines, new and second-hand. Also machine parts, supplies, tickets, carbons, etc.
CHICAGO MOVING PICTURE SUPPLY CO.,
538 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois.

The Old Reliable
BULL DOG CEMENT
AND
ONE DROP OIL
At Your Exchange
ONE DROP OIL CO., 15 S. Leavitt St., Chicago. Ill.

The Strelinger catalogue of BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
tells why direct current is very much better than alternating current for moving picture shows.
Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

COMPENSARC
That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our Booklet 15018
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE INDIANA
728

LET US DO YOUR
Developing and Printing
WE WILL DEVELOP YOUR NEGATIVE, MAKE YOU A POSITIVE PRINT AND SHIP WITHIN 24 HOURS FOR 5c PER FOOT COMPLETE.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
BY OUR FIFTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE. EASTMAN STOCK USED ON ALL OUR WORK.
FILM TITLES and ANNOUNCEMENTS
3 Feet for 25 Cents In Any Length
GUNBY BROS. Inc.
145 West 45th Street, New York City

Advance Motion Picture Co.
Commercial, Industrial and Educational Film Mfgrs.
Chicago.
General Offices. 547-549 Peoples Gas Bldg.
Factory and Studio. 950 Edgecomb Place.

A G-E Rectifier
will make your pictures more brilliant and at the same time reduce the cost of electric current.
General Electric Company
General Office Schenectady, N. Y.
4488

ALL MAKES
POWERS SIMPLEX EDISON
MOTIOGRAPH EDENGRAPH
Cash or Time
Bargains in rebuilt machines
Send for new catalogue
Photo and poster frames
CURTAINS AND SCREENS
Write us today what you are interested in
Amusement Supply Co.
Everything from Screen to Booth
160A North Fifth Avenue, Chicago

For FEATURE FILMS
address
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM EXCHANGE
Suite 405 Schiller Building, Chicago
Phone Central 6229
SEND FOR OUR NEW LIST

HIS FATEFUL PASSION

(Copyrighted)

Five Parts Natural Coloring Ready Dec. 11th

This remarkable feature film, produced by the new Eclectic Natural Color Process, is far in advance of anything ever before produced. A gripping photoplay with a strong moral. A gambler resorts to dishonest methods to regain his losses, He is sent to prison and on his release seeks revenge by tying his enemy over the place which is to be blown up by dynamite. His daughter rescues the victim just as the mighty explosion destroys the entire mountain side. A vivid spectacle that is a positive hair-raiser.

Thrilling! Exciting! Sensational!

---

The Lost Diamond

(Copyrighted)

Three Parts Natural Coloring Ready Dec. 20th

Another triumph of the Eclectic Natural Color Process. Most unusual is the plot of this wonderfully interesting photoplay. It features a remarkable pet magpie, which steals a valuable diamond. Suspicion falls on the owner's secretary, who is discharged. He goes to the African jungles with a hunting expedition. To save his master's life he has a terrific and sensational battle with a ferocious leopard and kills it. The magpie is found to be the real thief and the hunter is called home by wireless.

This film is destined to cause a sensation wherever shown.

---

We will shortly release a mammoth six-reel production

Coming! A Man's Shadow Coming!

A powerful detective story by the famous French author, Jules Mary.

Watch for the release date.

---

We Now Make Three Releases a Month

---

We have some territory left—not much, so get busy. Wire us at once!

Send for our attractive contract.

ECLECTIC FILM CO.

110 West 40th St. New York City

"THE CREAM OF THE EUROPEAN MARKET SELECTED FOR AMERICA."

comes home and is shipwrecked on the rocks of his own shore. June, thinking him true to her, frantically tries to reach him and is lost in the undertow. Silas, who has grown gentle in his comforting ministry during her trials, tries to rescue her, but is also drowned. Jim is rescued, but would have preferred death.

BUSTER'S LITTLE GAME (Dec. 17).—Buster Holmes receives a letter from his late uncle's attorney in the East, stating that he has inherited an income for life, if he will take a course through the university. Owning nothing but his spurs, boots and saddle, he concludes to favor the education. Six years after the old spell of the West urges him back again; but the East has so bleached him out that, disguised in store clothes, he goes back to the ranch looking like a true tenderfoot. All the boys naturally take advantage of the callow newcomer, but the ranchman's daughter is much disgusted by what she considers their cruelties, and her interest presently ripens into affection. One day at the corral the boys are saddling up an outlaw, and Buster Holmes manages to get from the girl a promise that she will marry him if he can ride the bad horse. He gets firmly upon the hurricane back of the "bronc," who does all the stiff-legged and bunch-back stunts his wild and vicious brain can conjure, but Buster sticks to his mount like a centaur. This makes the other shame-faced cowboys hide behind the fences of the corral, and the girl is angered because the dude has been deceiving her. Presently she stops her pouting, flaunting and protesting as she finds him, after all, a better man than she thought, and is happy with him heart and hand.

UNTIL THE SEA — (Dec. 18).—Bessie Clark is loved by John Wendle and Jim Hall, sons of the sea. The former is a lifelong friend of her old father, but Bessie, with perverseness of youth, loves the latter. Wendle is a well-to-do individual, who has a good living; but the beloved Jim Hall is poor -far too poor to marry. He finally decides to go to sea in order to overcome the high cost of living and pick up a pittance against the day of his wedding. Bessie is naturally greatly distressed at this, but promises to wait for him until he comes back to claim her. As the weeks drag into months and years, Wendle, who is constantly on the ground, endeavors to influence Bessie favoring his own suit, but she is true to her promise to the absent. Her consistency is unshaken until one day her father is found dead in the surf. This quite breaks her. Fast following, comes a report published in a paper to the effect that Jim Hall, following the way of those who go down to the sea in ships, has been lost. Utterly bereft, Bessie in her bereavement finally yields to the importuning of Wendle, and marries him. Then, alas! one fateful day, as she sits in the shadow of her little porch, making baby clothes, in walks Jim Hall. He meets Wendle as he comes upon the scene, then drags himself away, a broken and desolate man, coming home all too late for happiness.

THE LURE OF THE ROAD (Dec. 19).—Jacques is a merry, good-looking vagabond of southern Italy, who wanders from hamlet to hamlet, charming the villagers with his voice, which attunes well with his guitar. The lure of the road is his dominant passion, until a day comes when he meets Louise, the daughter of Pierre, the vineyardist, and love dulls the desire of wanderlust. For a time the heart holds and he marries the lovely Louise. However, the quiet life of the vineyardist soon grows irksome to the mettlesome, careless traveler. The open road resumes its call insistently. Chafing under some fancied slight from Louise, Jacques picks up his guitar, and is soon lost in the mists of the morning.

Gentle Louise mourns his absence, and after a time Jacques, too, finds that life is not the same for one who has loved and been loved. He joins a caravan of gypsies, and in their company roves onward—travels with them whither he knows not nor cares. In the interim of his absence the old vineyardist dies. His daughter, Louise, takes up the management of the place abandoned by her father, and one afternoon, when preparing to pay off her workers, two desperadoes attack and attempt to rob her. She retreats into the house with her little daughter, Suzanne, and puts up a desperate defense. At this moment the gypsy caravan comes over the hill, and the leader, spying out the land through his glass for a camping site, observes the fight and calls Jacques' attention to it. Suddenly he recognizes the location and realizes that the trouble is at his own house. He and the gypsy leader rush swiftly and valiantly to the rescue and arrive just in time. Again holding Louise in his arms, he realizes that she is more a necessity than ever for his success in life. Then he resigns the road and stays at home, where his heart is.

THE CIPHER MESSAGE (Special—2 parts—Dec. 1).—Two English crooks, Lionel Verker and his sister, Marie, come to America, where at a seaside resort Lionel makes a heroic rescue by saving Bob Kent, the son of a millionaire, from drowning. He is introduced to the Kent family. Learning that there is a position of lady's maid open in the house, he wires his sister to come at once. With the aid of false references she obtains the position. At a lawn fete Muriel, the daughter of the millionaire, wears a lot of jewelry. Lionel notices this and after a dance with him she misses one of her diamonds. Notwithstanding the fact that he does not suspicion any of his guests, Papa Kent advises the famous detective, Donald Bryce, that he had better come. He is introduced as a guest. Bryce perceives Lionel and Marie in secret communication and also perceives Lionel slip Marie a note, which tells her that he is going to the city and that if anything happens, to telegraph him, using the cipher code. Bryce obtains the note and although he cannot read it, he watches Lionel closely and when the crook makes a hurried departure the next morning the detective follows him.

In the city Bryce shadows Lionel. One day he perceives a cipher message from Marie. On his way to the railway station he stops at a cafe, where he eats a light repast. Bryce follows him and does likewise. In his hurry to get out, Lionel takes the coat belonging to Bryce and departs, while the detective takes that of the crook. He finds the cipher message and hurriedly makes a copy of it, and places the coat back on the book. Lionel notes the mistake he has made in taking the wrong coat and rushes back to the cafe with it. He takes his coat, makes a hasty examination of the pockets for the cipher message, finds it and is soon on his way to the seaside. Bryce goes to his office, where, upon deciphering the code, learns that Miss Kent is to wear expensive pearls on Friday. Just before he leaves to go to the Kent mansion, he opens his foreign mail and finds a letter from the English authorities enclosing descriptions and photographs of the notorious crooks, Lionel and Marie. It is not long after that Bryce has the crooks where they belong.

THE MASTER OF THE GARDEN (Special—2 parts—Dec. 8).—As Bessie Harrington sits in the shade of an ancient oak that is in her garden, Herbert Gray, the son of a neighboring estate owner, comes and falls in love with her. Wisdom only comes to their innocent minds after they had fallen from their pedestals of virginity. When her parents learn of her transgression of the straight and narrow path, the father orders her from the house. Early next morning, Bessie leaves, only taking a few of her belongings. As she stops behind the ancient oak, a dissolve shows our Saviour counseling the young girl to put aside the sinful pride that is driving her away from home. But Bessie is too deeply mortified and hurries on her way to the city, where she will try to forget her sinful act.

Years later, Herbert Gray, who has forgotten his "youthful peccadilloes," has married and become a respected lawyer. In the meantime, Bessie, who has drifted steadily downward to the path of the underworld, reads in the papers as she sits in her sin-decked parlors an eulogy of the famous lawyer, Herbert Gray. She thinks in contrast of her own ruined life, when a young girl who has been enticed to enter, puts in an appearance. A stroke of goodness comes over this woman of the scarlet kind, and she determines to save the girl.

Justice finds out the millionaire who brought the innocent girl to this den of vice. He is arrested and indicted, and at the last moment, Herbert Gray is called to handle the case. He determines to fight the prosecution on the grounds that a certain woman of the underworld is trying to blackmail his client. Gray demands that the "woman in black," the chief witness in the case, be brought to the front. The woman who had saved the young girl is brought forward, dressed in black and heavily veiled. The court orders her to lift the veil, and as soon as Gray's eyes fall upon her features he recognizes in her his sweetheart of his boyhood days, and he falls prostrate upon the floor. When questioned as to whether or not she knows the lawyer, Bessie, in order to save the reputation of his wife and child, denies any knowledge of him. The case goes against the millionaire. Leaving her associates, Bessie wanders about the streets and enters a

Greatest of all Features!

"THROUGH THE CLOUDS"

A thrill in every foot of the four reels. Wonderful advertising—ones, threes and nine sheets. Now booking for

OHIO, INDIANA, KENTUCKY

Also many other wonderful features, including

| | |
|---|---|
| *London by Night (Apex) | 4 |
| For High Treason | 4 |
| On the Steps of the Throne | 4 |
| *On the Trail of the Spider Gang (Apex) | 4 |
| The Black 13 (Apex) A sequel to The Spider Gang | 3 |
| *In the Python's Den (Apex) | 3 |
| *Humanity (Apex) | 3 |
| The Power of Innocence | 3 |
| Nemesis (The Railroad Feature) | 3 |
| *Wanted by the Police | 3 |
| The Worker (Ramo) | 3 |
| In Hand With Death | 3 |
| The Great Bullion Robbery (Apex) | 3 |
| *Parsifal (Ambrosio) | 3 |
| In the Claws of the Vulture | 3 |
| Siegfried | 3 |
| Salome (Savoia) | 3 |

The Spectre of the Sea, 2; The Vice, 2; In the Hands of Conspirators, 2; The Human Target, 2; The Airman's Secret, 2, and many, many others.

* Features marked thus we do not own Ohio territory, but can supply Indiana and Kentucky exhibitors. On all others we own the three states. We do not pirate.

ALSO BOOKING FOR INDIANA ONLY
KALEM'S MASTERPIECE

"From the Manger to the Cross"

Wonderful Advertising for All Subjects

Empress Feature Film Co.
1517 Merchants Bank Bldg.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Long Distance-Bell Phone, Main 5951.

MOTION PICTURE EXECUTIVE

CONNECTED WITH ONE OF THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS FOR A NUMBER OF YEARS; A CAPABLE MANAGER KNOWING ALL BRANCHES OF THE BUSINESS; OPEN FOR A PROPOSITION FOR NEW CONNECTION WITH A RESPONSIBLE CONCERN.

ADDRESS M. K.

CARE OF MOVING PICTURE WORLD, N. Y. CITY.

Novelties in Moving Picture Apparatus

A list of moving picture apparatus which is new and will interest you. Kinetoscopes, Radiant Vellum for Screens, Condensers, Fire-Proof Film Rewinders, Electric Stereopticons, Edison Home Kinetoscopes and Educational Films.

We are prepared to furnish every kind of moving picture apparatus and supplies and will gladly give you information on any subject concerning moving picture apparatus.

It means a saving of both time and money. The Lantern Slide Outfit enables you to produce clear, clean-cut slides. An inquiry will bring you full details concerning this outfit.

We have for sale or rent forty thousand slides Around the World and all other subjects.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE, Inc.
MOVING PICTURE APPARATUS AND SUPPLIES
Dept. 61 916-918 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Just ONE Big Thing in Motion Pictures Is Now Talked About All Over the Country

"MUTUAL MOVIES"

Look for the Sign of the Wing-éd Clock

Mutual Movies Make Time Fly

Look for the Sign of the Wing-éd Clock

You've seen the BIG ADVERTISING in the Newspapers, in the Saturday Evening Post, in all the Trade Papers, and

You KNOW What the MUTUAL Is Going to Do

Big Advertising always has one SURE result:

It Makes Everybody Want to See
THE THING ADVERTISED

That's why millions of people, all over this Continent, are now asking where they can see the "MUTUAL MOVIES."

And they are hunting the Theatres that show

"The Sign of the Wing-ed Clock"

They are asking to see the "Funny Fat Man," the "Two Men and a Mule," and they will keep asking for "The Mutual Girl" for months to come.

When EVERYBODY is asking to SEE the "MUTUAL MOVIES" that is the Sign YOU want over your theatre.

Get the MUTUAL Service; hang up the MUTUAL Banner, and "The Sign of the Wing-ed Clock."

And get the CROWDS into YOUR Theatre, with the help of this BIG ADVERTISING, that is yours absolutely free.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

Branches in 49 Cities NEW YORK

church, where, after her prayers, she empties a vial containing laudanum. As the priest lifts her white face to the light there follows in a dissolve, a death dream in which the scarred soul of the erring one is seen fleeing from the cohorts of sin back again to the garden of innocence—the old tree in her earthly home of Paradise.

BIOGRAPH.

THE CAPTURING OF DAVID DUNNE (Dec. 8).—Hard indeed it is to break a bachelor's habit, but this rural comedy proves that persistency must win out if right means be adopted. "You must be tired of your own cooking," said father after church. "Dinner's ready," said Lucy Ann, and—well, she got him.

THE HOUSE OF DISCORD (2 parts—Dec. 13).—In her youth the mother was saved from the fatal mistake by an accident, but it caused her years of separation from child and husband. It had occurred primarily through her self-righteous sister-in-law's domination and interference. A like fate and downfall threatened the daughter, now reaching maturity. The mother's insistence separated the child from her environment. Love and understanding did the rest.

A FOUL AND FEARFUL PLOT (Dec. 11).—That Fernando was a terror no one in Die-by-Night Gulch denied. Foul and wicked were the deeds he perpetrated. But our noble young hero, in the way that heroes have, came out on top and rescued and humbled our proud and haughty heroine. She had come to the shack to get her $40,223,528,923.13, left by her late uncle, Tebbercanzneezer Of course, all that had been the "dirty work" of Fernando.

THE TROUBLESOME MOLE (Dec. 11).—Mrs. Giddy had a mole on the side of her face. That it should no longer stand in the way of her husband's love, she called up Dr. Soakum, by whose treatment blemishes, warts and moles vanished as the clouds before the sun. That was where burglar Pete stepped in, but Mrs. Giddy's maid summoned Giddy. So ended Pete's pose as a burglar, and thus came the end of Dr. Soakum. "Beauty is only skin deep," Giddy said, but his actions might be differently construed.

BEYOND ALL LAW (Dec. 18).—Realizing his neglect the husband sought to be more kind, externalized in a gift of a scarf. It found its way to the rival, thus widening the breach. Two fugitives crept forth into the forest wilderness with the dark, vengeful form of the husband behind. Then came the man chase, but fate intervened, placing the case beyond all law of man.

THE CONSCIENCE OF HASSAN BEY (Dec. 20).—From the dungeon where the lean beasts prowled, Hassan Bey summoned from her young lover's arms the old rug maker's daughter. Still she was obdurate. In his madness, he had poisoned his other love with the deadly sting of a serpent. His fury spent, he fell from bey to man, and sought to atone according to his light.

OH, SAMMY! (Dec. 15).—Love and business do not jibe. Ask Sammy Goldberg. Einstein was his boss and Einstein's old maid daughter was determined to make Sammy's life miserable forever. To cap him Einstein gave a party. By quite an accident a ring was found in Sammy's bouquet. "Diamonds mean love," cried Papa Einstein. Sammy was saved from such direful fate by a sympathetic thief.

RILEY'S DECOYS (Dec. 15).—Hogan's was the popular boarding-house. There was a reason—"skirts." So poor old Riley, of the rival house next door, was put back with the street gang by his relentless wife. Two fair, stranded vaudevillians were Riley's inspiration. Decked in their finest, they sat in front of the Riley boarding-house. "One month in advance, boys,", said Riley, and it was old Hogan next door who took to the shovel.

PATHEPLAY.

THE COUPLE NEXT DOOR (Dec. 16).—Mrs. Smith has a bad cold and calls in Dr. Prentis at the suggestion of a friend, who writes that Prentis is an excellent doctor, but has no use for the women. This latter piece of information excites the interest of the fair and fun loving Gertrude, who straightway sets her cap for the doctor, and wins his love, only to find out that in winning it she has lost her own heart.

INSECTS THAT SING (Dec. 17).—Another very interesting nature study by an expert, showing the life history of the cheerful little cricket and the strident-voiced katydid. It shows them feeding, courting, fighting, and even singing. The latter was the most difficult to get, and is shown in pictures for the first time.

NICE AND ITS ENVIRONS, FRANCE (Dec. 17).—Nice, the charming city on the French Riviera, is one of the oldest cities in France, dating from the 4th Century, A.D. This film shows some of the many attractions which have made it famous as a winter resort the world over. It is a garden spot of beauty on the shores of the blue Mediterranean.

THE FINGER OF FATE (Special—2 parts—Dec. 18).—Through visiting her sick mother in the hospital, Majorie Grayson becomes acquainted with a young doctor, who is in attendance there. An intimate friendship springs up between them and Marjorie's visits to her mother become less frequent as she spends much of the time in the doctor's company. Her mother is released from the hospital at last, and returns to her home. Learning of her daughter's new attachment, she is deeply disturbed by it. Marjorie accepts an invitation to dine with the doctor in his apartment, since love has given her trust in him. The doctor, while waiting for his guest, falls asleep and in his dreams sees vividly pictured the inevitable result if he takes advantage of the girl's innocence, the sorrow and shame which would be her lot. The dream creates so strong an impression upon his mind that when Marjorie comes to his door, he will not admit her to his apartment, but takes her instead to a minister, who marries them.

A SCANDINAVIAN SCANDAL (Dec. 19).—A capital comedy idea has been developed to its fullest extent in this picture, that tells the story of the conventional Mr. and Mrs. Brown, their unconventional domestic, Steena and Lars Larson. Lars has advertised for a wife, stating that applicants should send photographs. In replying to the advertisement, Steena accidentally forwards a picture of her pretty mistress instead of her own. Lars is overjoyed at the prospect of winning such a fetching bride, and writes that he will call the following day. It happens that Steena is sent on an errand by her mistress and Lars mistakes Mrs. Brown for his correspondent. His wooing is more ardent than tactful, and trouble increases with the appearance of Mr. Brown, who is extremely jealous. Lars has a very bad quarter of an hour, during which he is pursued from room to room while the incensed husband empties the contents of a revolver in his wake. It remains for Steena to restore peace by explaining her error in mailing the photograph.

THE FIRE BRIDE (Dec. 20).—Ostrape Kirtchoga, a blacksmith, and Grounia, a peasant girl, are in love with each other, but Grounia's father wishes her to marry a wealthy young peasant, Ivan Debroff. As in Russia the girl's wishes have very little weight in the matter, the girl's father compels her betrothal to Ivan and a little later her marriage to him. The wedding festivities are in full swing when the uninvited Ostrape enters. He drinks, breaks his glass, and when Ivan expostulates with him, hurls him to the floor and flees with the bride. They take refuge in his shop, where the pursuers bar them in and then set fire to the building. The lovers thus perish in each other's arms.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 72 (Dec. 1).—New York, N. Y., Gen. Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, and his sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the American forces, call upon Mayor Kline at City Hall, escorted by 1,000 Salvation Army officers.

Cambridge, Mass.—The Yale football team leaves the Woodland Park Hotel in Auburndale for Cambridge, where it is defeated by Harvard, 15 to 5, in a game viewed by 46,000 people, the largest crowd in the history of football.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Nobles of the Mystic Shrine march to meet the delegation from Hammond, which is to take part in the semi-annual ceremony.

Peekskill, N. Y.—Fast time is made by motorcyclists in the hill-climbing contest conducted by the Riverside Motorcycle Garage of New York City, on a hill with a 25 per cent. incline.

Washington, D. C.—The wedding gift of the House of Representatives to the daughter of President Wilson, now Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, is a diamond pendant on a chain of platinum and small diamonds. The central stone is a canary diamond of more than six carats.

New York, N. Y.—Runners from 12 colleges star in the sixth annual Inter-collegiate cross-country run, which is won by Cornell.

For Better Pictures

It is a well-known fact that direct-current arc lamps are steadier and produce less flicker than alternating-current lamps. They are easier to focus, waste less light, and use less current. They can be run on an alternating-current circuit by aid of a

Westinghouse - Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

Just connect the outfit to the A. C. lighting circuit and use a D. C. arc in the usual way. No moving machinery—no adjustments.

Send for folder 4205.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.
Sales Offices in 45 American Cities.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
Stereopticons, Slides, Accessories
CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St.
KANSAS CITY, MO.
Large Line of Edison Goods. Established 1899.

MAKE YOUR LOBBY DISPLAY ATTRACTIVE

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Write for Catalog.

Don't fail to visit our complete New York showroom, 101-103 4th Ave.

The Newman Mfg Co.
715-721 Sycamore St.
Cincinnati, O.
Established 1882

THE LURE OF NEW YORK IN FOUR PARTS A Great Moral Drama

Depicting life in Chinatown, the Bowery and Coney Island. An extraordinary production. The most talked-of play of the day. With a large variety of posters, photographs, heralds and slides

Now Ready for Booking in Illinois and Wisconsin Write, wire or call

G & G FEATURE FILM CO. 37 South Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

MADAME SATAN

A Powerful Feature with a Powerful Title

(THREE REELS)

DID YOU EVER SEE A RIVER ON FIRE?

MADAME SATAN, with a Field Cannon, Shoots Holes Through Huge Oil Tanks, Explodes the Works, and Sets Fire to the Inflammable Flood as it Flows Down the River.

THE EFFECT IS INDESCRIBABLE!

We undoubtedly will sell out on our regular number of prints on this feature. If you don't want to take chances of having to wait and the greater chance of losing the feature through the quicker action of another buyer

Wire Your Inquiry Now!

STATE RIGHTS

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA

220 West 42nd Street : : : New York City

San Francisco, Cal.—Three accidents provide thrills for 10,000 spectators at the aviation meet on the water front of the exposition grounds.

Cuero, Texas.—The original turkey trotters, many hundreds strong, parade unashamed before the curious populace of this place. They appear in the garb that nature gave them.

Washington, D. C.—Cardinals Gibbons and Farley officiate at the ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the new college of St. Thomas' Aquinas, the novitiate of the Paulist Fathers at the Catholic University.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 73 (Dec. 4).—New York, N. Y.—Mayor Kline reviews the old Guard Veteran Battalion on the 130th anniversary of the evacuation of New York by the British.

Chicago, Ill.—Mary Garden, famous opera star, is greeted by a band of Indians from Glacier Park, when she arrives here for the opening of the grand opera season. The Indians sing tribal songs for Miss Garden's entertainment.

Paris, France.—Remarkable high diving is a feature of the aquatic meet in the Villette canal.

Kiev, Russia.—At the instigation of "The Black Hundred," Beilis is arrested and charged with killing Andrew Yushinsky in accordance with the Jewish ritual. No trial since that of Dreyfus has so stirred the entire civilized world.

San Antonio, Texas.—Competing against some of the fastest drivers in the country, Ralph De Palma, in a Mercer, wins the nine-mile class C event in the annual auto meet at this place.

Bangkok, Siam.—Grandpa and a few of his descendants get up an appetite for dinner by playing ball. These agile sportsmen frequently keep the ball from touching the ground for a full hour.

San Francisco, Cal.—Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, Charge d' Affaires for Persia at Washington, receives the deed to the Persian site on the Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds, from Chas. C. Moore, president of the exposition.

Munich, Bavaria.—Ludwig III passes lines of cheering subjects before he is enthroned King of Bavaria. The throne was left vacant by King Otto.

Editorial Section.—A boon to parents and children alike is "People's Place," located in the center of the congested Italian quarter of San Francisco, Cal. Here the children of the neighborhood are cared for during the day and developed by healthful exercises while the parents are working.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY'S EXCLUSIVE PROGRAM

PATHEPLAY.

ALL ON ACCOUNT OF POLLY.—A talkative parrot, whose language is more forceful than polite, creates complications galore. Sailor Slim, the owner of Polly, finds a ready purchaser in the person of a rejected suitor, who has a mission for the garrulous bird to perform. Polly is to make trouble between a happy pair of lovers that the disgruntled rival may profit by their disagreement. The new owner of the parrot places it in the room in which the girl is entertaining her lover. Soon the young woman hears language not customary in refined society, and her lover is suspected. Vainly he protests his innocence, but appearances are strongly against him and he is in disgrace. Thereafter Polly experiences a varied career, of which a bath in the ocean is a part. The vicissitudes of the lover are numerous before he regains the good graces of his sweetheart.

CONQUERED HATE (2 parts—released week of Dec. 15).—Gina Giovernl, a beautiful operatic star, has but two passions, her mother and her art. Scandal has passed her by and heartfree, she is happy. Her beauty and talents, however, win for her suitors and admirers whom she does not desire. One of them, an English nobleman, writes her saying that he has left wife and children for her. She answers, telling him to return to the wife, to whom he has sworn fidelity. Broken hearted with his hopeless passion, he kills himself. Rene Alexandre, a young artist, hearing of the suicide and the cause, idly dashes off a cartoon depicting Gina sitting on a tombstone in a cemetery, and with the caption, "Another monument to Gina's beauty." The cartoon is published in a newspaper and brings down upon Gina's head a storm of unjust condemnation. At her next performance she is hissed and is carried fainting from the stage. Learning the cause of her sudden unpopularity, she determines upon revenge. She has herself introduced to Alexandre as an artist's model. Struck by her beauty and not recognizing her he hires her to pose for him. His admiration grows as he comes to know her. Later an operatic contract is tendered her, which she accepts. She sends tickets to Alexandre for himself and friends for the opening performance, with her card. The young men go to the performance prepared to hiss the singer from the stage. Alexandre recognizes her, and, dumbfounded, prevents the hostile demonstration. Gina's performance wins the frantic applause of the audience, and flushed with happiness, she greets, later in her dressing room, Alexandre, now repentant, and a tender lover.

VITAGRAPH.

THE BLUE ROSE (2 parts).—After toiling for a lifetime to perform a species of Blue Rose, Matthew Keith, a poor, aged florist, at last achieves his species and looks forward with joyous anticipation to displaying it at the big annual Spring Flower Show. Herman Von Veldt, a rich rival florist, hears of the wonderful flower and exclaims that he would give a thousand dollars to get possession of it. His son, Carl, overhears the exclamation and offers to secure the Blue Rose. Carl is fond of high life and needs money to pay debts. Disguised as an old photographer, Carl goes to Keith's greenhouse. He meets Agnes, the florist's attractive daughter, who with pride shows him the beautiful flower. She is called away for an instant, and Carl cuts off a shoot of the rosebush and sprays the rose with a blighting acid. Von Veldt is delighted. The shrewd florist takes the cutting into one of his greenhouses, where he plants it and gives strict instructions regarding its cultivation. Old Keith is horror-stricken. His health becomes shattered from grieving over his loss and months later, when the sweet spring days are at hand, he lies ill in bed looking forlornly at his flowerless rose-bud. The stolen cutting develops into a sturdy plant and a small bud comes out upon one of its branches. Von Veldt, now sure of his success, telephones to the newspapers about the Blue Rose, which he is going to show at the Spring Exhibit. Agnes, the old florist's daughter, sees the article and decides to investigate. She obtains employment in Von Veldt's flower shop. She and Carl do not recognize each other.

Carl and Agnes fall in love. Through him she gets to see the Blue Rose, a great privilege, contrary to Von Veldt's strict orders. While Agnes looks with wondering eyes at the rose, now full grown, Carl jokingly tells her how he secured it. White with indignation, she turns and says passionately, "I am the girl you tricked, you thief!" Carl is grief-stricken. Agnes rushes off to Von Veldt and begs for the return of the Blue Rose to her stricken father. Carl backs her up by threatening to reveal the theft. The wealthy florist is determined to keep the plant. On the day of the exhibition, Keith at last discovers a new bud on his rose bush. Agnes shares his joy. At the last minute the old florist plans to exhibit the new blossom. When Keith arrives at the great flower exhibit, where over five hundred thousand blossoming plants of all kinds adorn a luxurious Eden of beauty, he recognizes the Blue Rose and claims it as his own. Von Veldt calls him an impostor. Several frock-coated officials push their way through the crowd and see Keith tear the wrapping from the parent plant, revealing the new bud, proving that it has blossomed twice. Keith receives the reward of a life's ambition when he accepts a check for five thousand dollars, a well-merited prize. The second award is realized when, as the old florist looks proudly at his Blue Rose, Agnes and Carl steal a loving kiss.

BIG BOB WAITS.—Desiring to seek a fortune, young Joe Woods leaves his mother and father and goes West. Twenty years later he comes across his mother's picture. It stirs up fond memories and he writes home for the first time. The old folks are overjoyed at hearing from him and reply, begging him to come home. When Joe, better known as "Yellow Joe," gets the letter, he decides to comply with its entreaty, for he is eager to see his parents. On his way home he sits in a faro game at the saloon, and he lays the letter from his old folks on the table with his money. A quarrel arises and Joe is shot and killed by Faro Frank, the gambler. Frank makes a getaway, taking with him the money on the table and Joe's letter. "Big Bob," the sheriff, with a posse chase Frank, but he eludes them and escapes into the hills. When safe in the mountains, Frank counts the money he has taken and reads Joe's letter. He is so touched by the contents of the letter that when he thinks of the poor old father and mother back

NEW YORK
AND NEW JERSEY
EXHIBITORS

Is your theatre a paying proposition? We have made $25.00 to $40.00 a night for many exhibitors.
We have a legitimate and novel plan for influencing this increase.

Write for full information

Metropolitan Premium Co.
Woolworth Building
233 Broadway New York City

WE CAN HURRY
YOUR ORDER OUT
STAFFORD Chairs excel all others.
Heavy Five Ply seats and backs.
The last-forever kind, that you are using long after you have forgotten the price.
STEEL CHAIRS TOO
We carry several kinds of good chairs in stock, all guaranteed.
ASK FOR CATALOG [illegible]

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Indirect Lights for Moving Picture Theatres

No. 51

No. 51.—15" diam., 36" long
$6.00

No. 52.—20" diam., 36" long
$8.00

No. 5
Brackets
$1.65
Complete with green art shade

Cannot be duplicated for double the money in any local chandelier store. We make a specialty of lighting. Write us.

NOTE. Send for circular showing very latest novelties for first class moving picture theatres.

CENERAL SPECIALTY CO.
409 Morgan Street St, Louis, Mo.

SLIDES

The world's best slides are made by us, announcement, player, release and advertising slides. It doesn't make any difference who you have been dealing with, it will pay you to write in for our catalogue and prices.

Niagara Slide Co., Lockport, N.Y.

Moving Picture Theatre Mailing Lists For Sale

20,192, covering United States and Canada, price $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such states as you want.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 670 | Film Exchanges, U. S. | $3.50 |
| 70 | Manufacturers and Studios, U. S. | 1.00 |
| 34 | Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. and Dealers | 1.00 |
| 231 | Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries | 3.00 |
| 520 | Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries | 3.00 |

Ask us for full particulars.

TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO.
166 West Adams Street, Chicago
Established 1880.

The Elbert Friction Speed Controller for Moving Picture Machines

Price
$15.00

SPEED FROM 5 TO 40 MINUTES TO THE REEL

An absolutely reliable mechanical speed regulator for motor driven machines.

Easily applied to any machine and operated by any motor.

Gradual, but quick change of speed while machine is running. Ball bearings. Nickel compression cups, for hard oil. No vibration or noise. Reversible for use in any position.

The only device of this kind that may be used with short belts.

Complete circular for your name and address on a postal.

J. D. ELBERT, Picture Machine Specialist, 2583 Sutter St., San Francisco

THE A. B. WYNNE CURTAIN CO. (Inc)

Theatrical Scenery, Attractive Wall Panels

SOLE PRODUCERS OF THE

CHEMICAL MOTION PICTURE SCREEN

No. 30 FAIRLIE STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

"GET IT FROM WHITE"

Everything for the Photo Play House. Machines, Parts, Tickets, Carbons, Brass Frames, Exit Boxes, Fire Extinguishers and Arc Flame Lamps. Piano Lamps, $2.00 each. OUR "MENISCO CONDENSERS" are a great success, increases the light 40%, and are less liable to break than any other Condenser on the market. Send for a sample pair. Guaranteed not to turn color, $3.00 per pair. Others, $1.50 & $2.00 per pair. Special discount to the trade.

White Specialty Company, 120 - 22 E. 14th Street New York

Branch 71 W. 23rd Street New York

MAKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and anyone can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact, they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address:

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

1733 West 9th St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Man and a Program

What One Man Can Do Another Can Do

It Means You!

SOL LESSER took the Exclusive Program for three Coast states. He opened another exchange farther north and took The Program for three more states. He moved eastward to Denver and took The Program for several more states.

Sol Lesser is twenty-four years old, but he has fifty years' worth of common sense, shrewdness, and a wonderful ability for doing things NOW!

Has he anything on you?

Is it the Program behind the Man or the Man behind the Program, or the combination that has done it? For your own sake find out for yourself.

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

220 West 42d Street New York City

home waiting for their son that he decides to go East and impersonate Joe. He wires the old folks that he is coming home. When he arrives at the little New England cottage, the two old people receive him as their son and show him every mark of their affection. Frank resolves to be a good son to them and to make them as happy as he can. Some time later, a storekeeper finds an old newspaper with the account of the killing of "Yellow Joe" by Faro Frank and writes to "Big Bob," the sheriff, that he believes he has found the criminal. "Big Bob" goes East to get Frank. He is warmly greeted by the old people when he arrives, Frank being away at the time, and is given a hearty greeting as a "friend of the boy's." They tell him of the boy's goodness to them and of their love for him. Realizing that a revelation of the truth might kill the white-haired couple, Bob decides not to wait for Faro's return. He goes back West. When he arrives at his little Western sheriff's office, he writes a letter to the sheriff in the East, enclosing a warrant for the arrest of Faro Frank on the death of the old people. Then "Big Bob" sits back in his chair puffing contentedly at his pipe, and waits.

SELIG.

CUPID MAKES A BULL'S EYE.—It so happens that Widow Jones' daughter is beloved by the son of Widower Brown and the parents in each case who are strangers to each other, strenuously oppose anything that looks like an alliance between the families. One day the widow discovers the young man making love to her daughter and after reproving the girl, she pens a protest to the boy's father in a style that scorches the paper. The young people are not slow in ascertaining the attitude of their parents and put matters in train to outwit them. The son writes a letter to the daughter, informing her that the carriage will be waiting under the old pepper tree in readiness for their elopement and that his face will be curtained by heavy whiskers. She, in response, declares she will be in readiness and disguised by a heavy veil. These letters are then so disposed that quite by accident they will fall into the hands of the bothersome parents.

This all works out as planned and both the widow and the widower conclude each independently to teach their child a lesson and thoroughly discomfit the one of their enemy. He hides himself in whiskers to disguise the briskets of age, assumes a falsetto voice, takes on a springy step and otherwise has the debonair air of youth. The widow, who has lost her waistline, gets all laced up and dolled out with veils and trimmings, so that she looks like a sixteen-year-old Tango girl. Then with impatient eagerness, the widow and widower each finally primed for revenge, keep the appointment under the old pepper tree. The widower cannot resist the temptation to kiss something young and tempting, so he plants a buz that almost starts a tooth in his willing victim. The widow, in turn, finds it to her liking to be squeezed by a boy whom she thinks is very strong for eighteen. The pair depart for the minister's residence, and in the interim the lovers have escaped and follow them in an auto. The widow sees and seizes a triumphant moment when she arrives in the drawing-room of the parson and throws aside her veil to find herself staring in the face of the widower who has discarded his herbivora in the form of those thick-laced whiskers. At this juncture the son and daughter rush into the scene, telling the bewildered fat folks that they have forgotten their marriage license, but they have brought theirs with them. The widow and the widower see the point of the joke and realize that they ought to be good neighbors and good parents, so they give their consent to the union.

ESSANAY.

THE HOUR AND THE MAN (2 parts).—Two brothers loved her—one sincerely, he was a good man; the other loved with a love that was lust—he was not a good man. She, not knowing, not seeing, encouraged the latter. After their marriage, when the child came crying, she forgot the tender tie that bound her to the man-blackguard, and thought only of the little innocent, and the forgotten duty she owed it. Timidly she asked him to right the wrong. He brought her into poverty. Yes, he listened to the whispered pleadings, but masculinity could not hear. Then it was that the woman forgot she was a human mother, and remembered only that she was a mother; her soul wandered back to primitive ages, her heart was conquered and controlled by primeval forces, and her nature became animal. The animal mother kills to protect her young—and so this mother was about to kill the man; but he dies accidentally. And then our law accused her. The judges appointed a lawyer to defend her, and the battle for a human soul was fought. In ringing terms the prosecution demanded her life as forfeit for the life she was supposed to have taken, and the jury listened to the logic of the law. The attorney for the defense spoke of the little life that had created the sin—if, however, the woman was guilty—and the jury listened to a plea of humanity and maternity, and heard the silent voice of right.

In summing up, the woman's lawyer consulted his watch. There in the watch was a portrait of the father of her child and the creation of this misery, the man she had loved and for whom she suffered and sorrowed, the man who was but a man. The woman glanced at it—and with the hopeless cry of an anguished soul, she fainted. When she regained consciousness and learned that the jury had decided not to murder two lives to vindicate one, she went to the advocate of her sorrowful justice, and confessed she had learned it was his brother whom she was accused of killing, his brother who had lived a life of disgrace and with an assumed name. She knew from the picture in the watch marked "brother." The attorney is now the judge—the thirteenth juror. But in her second defense she had another and more eloquent attorney, the new-born grain of innocence. The babe offered its mute evidence and its silent plea, and obtained a second acquittal. The masterful brother took the mother of his brother's child into his arms, and the final pardon was granted.

AMONG THE EXHIBITORS.

Philadelphia, Pa.—J. Rose & Son will convert the property at the northwest corner of Eighth and Filbert Streets into a moving picture theater, with a seating capacity of 500 for A. Panfuan. The improvements will cost $10,000.

Ishpeming, Mich.—Mr. Ed. J. Butler, of Ishpeming, Mich., will soon be the owner of a modern and most up-to-date playhouse nearing completion, which is to be called the Ishpeming Theater.

San Francisco, Cal.—Exhibiting motion pictures on the beach with only the fog banks as a screen was proposed by Curtis P. Upton, secretary of the Ocean Pier Amusement Co. The latter obtained permission to exhibit such pictures as soon as the company's new pier was completed.

Monroe City, Mo.—Messrs. Kirby & Angus have opened a branch house at Palmyra, about twenty miles east of here. A. L. Burch will be in charge.

Joliet, Ill.—A. J. Polcyn and Louis Hassberg, of Joliet, have purchased and will take immediate possession of the Morris Theater, the former owners having conducted a house at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Braidwood, Ill.—The picture theater formerly conducted by O. V. Lyon, of McHenry, was purchased by Matone & Carpenter, of this city, who will continue the business at the old stand.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Directors of the Lam Building Co. are estimating plans for a one-story theater, 43 by 120 feet, to be erected at Wyoming and A Streets for Jacob Keisler.

Philadelphia, Pa.—C. Edwards Swartley is erecting a one-story picture theater at Manayunk Avenue and Canorroe Street for Ed A. Jeffries, 5236 Ridge Avenue. Cost, $10,000.

"HALL-BERG"

TALK No. 5

It is a notable fact that I was the first to appreciate the value of a powerful electric arc, produced by alternating to direct current motor generators, in this country. The European and Australian exhibitor does not hesitate to give his operator from sixty to one hundred amperes direct current to produce a good light with, and that is the reason for the higher admission, ranging from 50c. to $2.00 per seat charged in first-class moving picture shows abroad. A good operator with 30 amperes direct current at the arc might satisfy some American exhibitors, but he cannot satisfy the careful, critical exhibitor who wants to put on a first-class picture—I venture to say that before long we will see as much as 75 amperes direct current at the arc in the high class theatre where good pictures are projected. The "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer was developed four years ago with this heavy ampere output in view, and I am glad to note that the better theatres are now using from 50 to 70 amperes direct current at the arc, producing pictures of which the entire industry might be proud, to the great satisfaction of the public. I sell all makes of arc controllers, Mercury Arc Rectifiers, rotary converters and motor generators, but I am the manufacturer and inventor of the "HALLBERG" A. C. to D. C. Economizer, and while it costs $50 to $100 more to put in, it is worth five times its price to you for the perfect and brilliant picture it projects. To bear out my argument, I herewith quote letter from F. G. Howland, Mechanicsville, N. Y., Proprietor Star Theatre:

MR. J. H. HALLBERG—Dear Sir: Nov. 19, 1913

I saw one of your new adjustable A.C. to D.C. motor generators the other day and it gave the greatest light I ever saw. Now, I would like to have one, but I just installed the latest - - - Rectifier and can't afford to throw it away. The Rectifier is a 40 cycle 30 ampere 110/220 v. and works like a charm, but doesn't throw the light I saw from your motor generator set.

What will you allow me on my Rectifier as part payment for one of your latest motor generator sets (adjustable from 25 to 60 amperes)? How much money will it cost me for your machine? I don't want to sacrifice my Rectifier as it is brand new and there are two bulbs which go with it. The outfit cost me $215.00 cash.

Respectfully yours, (Signed) F. J. HOWLAND.

Factory Selling Headquarters for POWERS, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH and EDISON MACHINES, "HALLBERG" STANDARD A. C. ECONOMIZERS, "HALLBERG" D. C. ECONOMIZERS, MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS, MOVING PICTURE MACHINES and FLAME ARC CARBONS. :: I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY

Free Circular on all makes of M. P. Machines, but Hallberg's Big Catalogue, 100 Pages, Costs you 25c. by mail

J. H. HALLBERG "THE HOUSE OF QUALITY" 36 East 23rd Street, New York

"DEATH'S DOOR"

IN TWO PARTS

A THRILLING story of a girl who emerges from the Valley of the Shadow of Death. Sensational fall from a third story window. Really a four reel feature crowded into two reels.

"VICTORY OR DEATH"

IN FOUR PARTS

A SENSATIONAL melodrama, in which a girl drops from an aeroplane into the ocean, a huge liner is seen to burn and sink, startling flights are made by a girl in airships, and thrilling encounters take place as she pursues the spy who has stolen state secrets from her father. A film costing a fortune to produce, superbly acted, and of perfect photographic quality.

State Rights Now Selling

ITALA FILM CO. OF AMERICA

HARRY R. RAVER, Director General

Candler Building New York City

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES

UNIVERSAL

GOLD SEAL.

FROM RAIL SPLITTER TO PRESIDENT (2 parts—Dec. 16).—Lincoln is first seen as a rail-splitter in the country, and even then, he is a peace-maker. His life as a storekeeper and his meeting with Ann Rutledge follow. He proposes to her, and his suit is unsuccessful. She dies, and Lincoln is seen in his first great sorrow, mourning over her grave. Abe is seen debating with Douglas, and after a lapse of time, he is seen in the presidential chair. The Federal Army under Burnside is retreating towards Washington. Lincoln visits McClellan, and is cheered by the weary soldiers. Grant is placed in command of the Federal Army, and the Confederates are driven back. Many big battle scenes are shown. Lee surrenders, and with the return of the decimated Federal Army, Lincoln's mind goes to the battle field and the army of dead. The story ends when close friends of the martyred statesman read of his death and the country is thrown into mourning.

BISON.

THE GOD OF GIRZAH (2 parts—Dec. 20).—An English colonel steals an idol of Buddah from the temple of Girzah, thinking it will never be missed. However, the result of this act overshadows his entire life. Priests of Girzah demand its return, but the colonel denies that he has it. His servants league themselves with the priests against him. His life is attempted through the agency of the deadly cobra, one of the many unusual and thrilling scenes, and his liquors are poisoned.

Fifteen years later, he comes to the United States with his nephew. One night, his eyes failing him, he sends his valet for a private secretary. A moment befor the secretary -a girl -is ushered into the room, two Hindu priests enter and stab the colonel to death. The girl is accused by the valet, who finds her by the body. She makes her escape by jumping fifteen feet from a window and three months afterward meets the nephew and marries him. When the nephew brings his wife home, the valet recognizes her, threatens her with exposure and succeeds in blackmailing her. Her life is made unbearable until she finds the colonel's diary, which tells of the former attempts upon his life. She confesses everything to her husband and is cleared of suspicion, while the valet is exposed.

ECLAIR.

THE SERPENT IN EDEN (2 parts—Dec. 17).—Daniel Villars has fitted up his studio on the fifth floor of the house he inhabits, in one of the popular sections of Paris. The young man works hard to make a name for himself, but purchasers are few, his pictures sell badly—it is sheer misery. For some time past, the artist's wretched attitude has impressed his neighbors. Father Morel, an old clerk, and his daughter, Denise, not having seen the artist for two days, and not hearing any noise in his studio, inform the janitor of their fears. They open his door and find him lying on his bed unconscious. A doctor, hastily summoned, quickly ascertains that the man is starving. The Morels take care of him. Daniel recovers. Denise is charming and the two young people constantly together soon fall in love and marry. Denise seems to have become a good fairy for her husband. Happiness and success now abide in their home—customers swarm—the celebrated artist Cecile Borel orders Daniel Villars to paint her portrait: it is the first rung of the ladder of fame. They have given up the small studio of yore and entertain widely in the drawing rooms of the noted artist.

Life pours its choicest gifts on the young couple, but unfortunately Villars' rapid and complete success has turned his head. Mrs. Villars, however, remains as timid and unaffected as when she was Denise Morel. Daniel is pained to see his wife persist in attending to menial duties when guests, rich customers and snobs attend his receptions—Cecile Borel has not failed to notice Mrs. Villars' perplexities and awkwardness: she smiles scornfully. Villars has been awarded the Medal of Honor upon his splendid picture of Cecile Borel. Fame is his today, fortune will follow. The artist receives the congratulations of numerous friends; he is lauded, while Denise, secretly conscious that her husband's triumph threatens her happiness, holds aloof. That same evening Daniel attended a dinner given in his honor by a number of his admirers. Alone in their residence, far into the night Denise waits for him, thinking of their early love. Day by day she has noticed her husband's increasing coldness and she suffers in silence.

The artist is smitten with Cecile Borel. Denise finds them one day, locked in each other's arms, in the studio. That same day Daniel abandons his home and follows the enchantress. Denise is heart-broken and returns to her father. He consoles her to the best of his ability. Daniel is now in Cecile Borel's power. She has given him to choose between herself and his wife. A last letter from Denise to Daniel remains unanswered, for the artist is traveling in Italy with Cecile Borel. There, in the soft and warm Venetian twilights, on the lagoons on the blue sea, their days pass as in a dream. It is, however, all but a mirage, a delicious lie, an ephemeral happiness! for, soon Daniel's jealousy is tested. Friends have joined them and Cecile has a host of admirers. A rival, some pretentious snob, soon supplants Daniel. Scenes of jealousy are frequent. Daniel disgusted, tortured by jealousy, sees one evening the two lovers kissing passionately. Heart-broken, he returns to his deserted studio; takes up his palette and brushes and seeks by hard work to forget his mental anguish. It is useless, he is perfectly incapable of doing anything; he is thoroughly disgusted with himself and life.

Denise abides with her father, nursing her sorrow. She has suffered so much that she does not even read the letters, full of pleadings, sent by Daniel, wretched and repentant. It is all over: she will have nothing more to do with him. Villars has not the moral courage to bear the weight of his folly. He starts drinking—at the last moment, on the shores of the lake, the dark waters of which seem to attract him he hesitates. The next morning he is found in a heap on the ground stricken with a serious illness. The police take him home and advise old Morel. At first Denise refuses to accede to the pleadings of her father, but finally she wipes her tears and goes back to Villars. The unfortunate man is very low indeed. Denise seeing him in that wretched condition, abandons all resentments. He is no longer guilty; he is but a victim of a pitiful past, who has broken his fetters. Her love was not dead: it was but slumbering.

SUNSET IN MANY LANDS (Dec. 21).—Artistically delicate in coloring and atmosphere, this film is composed of various scenes showing how the sun sets in different parts of the globe. We are taken to the River Seine and shown beautiful views of Notre Dame; we move down into Mexico and then on to the Indies. There is a sunset scene on Lake Egee, Smyrna and another in Java, in Norway and along the River Nile.

LOADED (Dec. 21).—The story is laid in Redfeet Den. There is a scheme to blow up the Naval Attache of the Fort Lee Embassy. Suspicious-looking dynamite is placed in the "growler" and Starlook, a brave conspirator, is picked to do the dirty work. The can is placed in a friend's stable and "friend" proceeds to gargle the contents. Starlook finds it empty and goes out to find the man who is full of the explosive. The friend blows up several people with his breath and is led home with a sign pinned to him reading "Danger." Dr. Nutto is called in and consulted. He takes a hammer and chisel to him and another explosion results, knocking them down. They turn the hose into the unfortunate man's mouth. What happens—how the Naval Attache mysteriously disappears, and the election of Starlook as the head of the society, is undoubtedly laugh provoking in the extreme.

VICTOR.

INCOGNITO (Dec. 15).—Refusing to marry the woman of his father's choice, Rene, son of the Marquis de Viller, is disinherited and goes to the United States to begin life anew as a plain American citizen. Rene, never having attempted to make a living soon becomes stranded. In a newspaper, he reads an advertisement calling for a competent valet. He knows the duties of a valet and applies to a banker for the position. The banker has just had a portrait painted by a woman artist. During his sittings, he makes overtures to the girl and is scornfully rejected. Thus, when Rene applies for the position of valet, the banker conceives a plan of revenge against the girl. He offers Rene $5,000 and a position if he will pose as a nobleman and wed the artist. Rene visits the artist. It is a case of love at first sight. He returns to the banker and accepts his proposition. Rene wins the artist's hand in marriage. After the wedding, the vindictive banker announces to the girl: "You have married my valet!" However, the banker's eyes are opened when the French consul steps forward with a letter announcing that Rene has been reinstated as the heir of the Marquis de Viller.

A GIRL AND HER MONEY (2 parts—Dec. 19).—Florence is at one of the watering-places in Europe when her maid, to whom Florence has been acting maid, dies. Florence continues the adventure. Her death is cabled to her attorney in New York and he, in turn, advises her next of kin, a cousin and his wife who have an adopted son, Harry. Later Harry meets the girl in her disguise as maid and both are impressed. In a spirit of mischief Florence applies to his parents for a position and secures it. But when Harry shows his preference for the maid while the parents have picked a rich society girl for him, the maid is turned out. The pair elope.

Time passes. Harry's funds run low and work seems hard to get. They secure a place acting for moving pictures. The attorney pays a visit to the cousins and is shown a photograph of the maid that Harry married. He recognizes the face of Florence. After a futile search he sees her face on the screen and then visits the studio. Her adventure is over: and she has married the man who loved her for herself alone. She returns to affluence with him, and the selfish cousins are made to feel regret for having treated her unkindly.

CRYSTAL.

THE TRAINED NURSE (Dec. 16).—The girl and boy are sweethearts. Their fathers meet and have a political argument, which results disastrously for the girl's father. Returning home, he orders the boy from his house. Later, the girl's father is taken sick and a nurse is sent for. The boy, by accident, discovers this and presents himself, disguised as the nurse. Between making love to his girl and attending her father, the boy is kept busy. The doctor orders a starvation diet. After twenty hours of this treatment, the nurse gives him something to eat—and the old man gets well. He attributes this to his nurse and asks to marry him, but when the boy unmasks and asks for his daughter, he hasn't the heart to refuse.

THE SOUBRETTE (Dec. 16).—Hubby is left in charge of the house while Mrs. Hickey goes to visit her sister. During her absence, Hubby takes an auto ride into the country. A soubrette, out of a job and broke, works Hubby for a ride back into the city. Sympathizing with her condition, he takes her into his house to rest up. She is having a splendid time when a telegram falls into her hands, meant for hubby, which says that the wife is returning. When Mrs. Hickey arrives, hubby locks the girl in a room. When questioned, he tells his wife that he has a burglar a prisoner. Sending him out to get a policeman, she goes in to give the burglar battle with a rolling pin. The girl rushes out and locks the Mrs. in and when confronted by the policeman, tells him that a burglar is in the other room. Hubby returns and is surprised to find his wife a prisoner. The girl escapes and explanations are made.

THE HEART OF AN ARTIST (Dec. 21).—Aline Morey, daughter of a wealthy merchant, is loved by Wallace Rand, a poor artist. The father objects to Rand, preferring Ralph Stewart, the scion of another wealthy family. With the hope of getting rid of Wallace, Morey visits his studio and professing to admire his work, offers to send him to Europe to study. Wallace accepts, and as he leaves Aline promises to remain true. The letters that Wallace writes home every week are intercepted by the father and destroyed. Aline, believing that he has forgotten, accepts and marries Stewart. When Wallace returns, he is shocked to find that his sweetheart has married his rival. He visits her in her home and is discovered by the husband in the act of kissing the girl. That evening Stewart starts out for Wallace's house. Aline, fearing trouble, precedes him and hides in the closet. Wallace has gone out to post a letter to her. Hardly has Stewart reached the apartment when Wallace is brought in dead, having been run down by an auto. The letter which reaches Aline is read by the husband and it clears her of suspicion.

POWERS.

FRECKLES' FIGHT FOR HIS BRIDE (Dec. 15).—Having overcome many difficulties, Freckles is about to realize his heart's desire. Freckles and Vera are at the house of the Rev. I. M. Goode. The ceremony is about to be concluded, when Vera's father arrives. The angry parent brings the ceremony to an abrupt conclusion and takes his weeping daughter to the home of his sister. While Vera is packing her trunk, Freckles peeps through the window and is inspired to a last bold stroke. Vera leaves the room. Freckles enters through the window. He empties the trunk and packs himself inside. An expressman arrives and the trunk with its human cargo, is dispatched to Vera's home. After the manner of expressmen, the trunk is ruthlessly banged about. After enduring all the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," the trunk is finally deposited in Vera's room.

In the meantime, the Rev. Goode has fallen in love with Vera. He has followed the father and daughter to their home, and is pressing his suit. Freckles is in the trunk, head downward. His call reaches the ears of the expressman and he concludes that the father is a white slaver. The expressman summons the police. The trunk is opened and Freckles steps smiling forth. The father's anger again descends upon Freckles, who escapes from the room down a dumbwaiter. The father and police pursue him. Freckles traps and locks them all in the kitchen, returns to Vera and compels the Rev. Goode once more to begin the marriage ceremony.

THE CRACKSMAN SANTA CLAUS (Dec. 19).—The cracksman is discouraged and cynical. It is Christmas eve. He takes his revolver and starts out in quest of gain. Dot gets home, tired out and distressed because she has been discharged from the store. Her crippled sister hangs up her stocking and prays for the morrow. It is too much for Dot. She goes out to secure money for a present

THE FALL of FRANCE

A Lesson in History With All the Dramatic Strength of a Made-to-Order Story. Embodying the Final Incidents of the Franco-Prussian War. The triumph of Bismarck and Von Moltke, and the surrender of Napoleon III, marking the end of monarchy in France. A remarkably instructive tale of the Union of Germany in the reign of Wilhelm I. A State Right Feature in 3 Reels.

ALSO A FINE LINE OF POPULAR FEATURES

| | |
|---|---|
| A BARGAIN WITH SATAN, | 5 PARTS |
| THE ENGINE OF DEATH - | 4 PARTS |
| PETER MAKAROFF - - - - | 4 PARTS |
| HARI-KARI - - - - - - - - - - | 3 PARTS |
| THROUGH THE CLOUDS - | 3 PARTS |
| THE BLACK 13 - - - - - - - | 3 PARTS |
| THE BULLION ROBBERY - | 3 PARTS |

APEX FILM CO.

145 WEST 45TH ST. NEW YORK.

P. P. CRAFT, Manager.

HUGH HOFFMAN

at any cost. Passing the window of a mansion, she observes a man give a woman a necklace. In the hurried departure, it is left behind. The temptation is too strong, she gets through the window and secures the necklace, only to be confronted by the cracksman, who has entered another way and pretends to be the owner. She tells her sad tale. The cracksman insists upon her taking money to tide her over. Dot hurries out and buying a doll for her sister, returns home chastened and thankful. The cracksman, on the morrow feels the Christmas spirit. He takes the necklace back to the man's house and throws it through the window. He then goes to the home of the girl and receives his reward from what he sees. He leaves with his better self aroused.

JOKER.

MIKE AND JAKE AS HEROES (Dec. 17).—By deeds of valor both Mike and Jake seek to win the same girl. However, Mike cannot impress his bravery upon her. She imagines Jake the real Jack the Giant Killer, and accepts his invitation to visit Yellowstone Park. Upon the strength of this trip, Mike makes plans to win back all his lost ground. He follows the couple.

In a country town he enlists the services of a bad man. The two place a row of dummies armed with guns along the road. The stage, with Jake and the girl inside, comes in sight. At the first sight of the array of brigands, Jake beats it. Mike appears and opens fire on the dummies. Each time he shoots, the bad man pulls a string and a dummy falls. He slaughters the entire band and moves to pluck the reward of his bravery. In the meantime Jake reaches the sheriff's office and tells of the holdup. A posse accompanies him to the scene. Mike's eulogy of himself is interrupted and the imposition of the dummies is discovered.

FOR ART AND LOVE (Dec. 20).—Mandy is in love with Max, the actor. Willie is in love with Mandy. She prefers Max. Willie decides to go on the stage to please her. He follows Max to the theater and asks for a job. He is thrown out for his pains. Later he signs up for Friday amateur night. Max in the meantime has won Mandy's love. Discovered by Willie, Willie bribes a gang to root for him and to hiss Max. He also buys them vegetables, eggs, etc., to throw at Max. The great night arrives. Willie, through his paid audience, is wildly enchored. Max, however, is greeted with boots and hisses, and a storm of stale vegetables. A riot follows. The manager turns the hose on the audience, and in the melee Willie rescues Mandy, only to be arrested as he is taking her from the theater, along with Max and others.

NESTOR.

A WOMAN'S WAY (Dec. 17).—Ramona arrives from the city to visit her uncle on his Western ranch. She meets and soon learns to love the ranch foreman. Rose, the ranch owner's daughter, also loves the foreman in her silent way. He thinks of her only as a sister.

Ramona's happiness in her new love is shattered by jealousy. She observes the foreman kiss Rose. Ramona returns East, and in the mad whirl of society, tries to forget her rancher-lover. She marries an Eastern man. He contracts consumption. Ramona takes him to her uncle's ranch. When she meets the ranch foreman, old embers again flame up, although he is shortly to marry Rose. Ramona's husband dies. The foreman prevails on Ramona to go away with him and get married. She consents and they plan the elopement. Ramona comes downstairs prepared to leave. Rose calls her aside and shows her all the little bridal fineries so dear to a woman's heart. Ramona realizes that her action will wreck Rose's life. She tells the foreman that she cannot elope with him, and then leaves. Rose and the foreman are married.

TEACHING DAD A LESSON (Dec. 19).—Father, a grievous flirt, believes he is getting away with it. His wife has his number, however. The son returns from college, and with his chum and sweetheart, goes to a cafe. In the next room, the son hears his father making violent love to a young lady. The son rigs up a scheme, in which his sweetheart plays an important part. The sweetheart flirts with father, makes an appointment, and accompanies him to the cafe. In the midst of their love-making, the chum, disguised, breaks into the room. He asks the girl what she means by leaving her little children for "this." Telling the flirtatious father that this is the last home he shall ever wreck, the boy takes a shot at him. Father escapes and beats it home, never again to throw down his wife.

FRONTIER.

SLIM AND THE PETTICOATS (Dec. 18).—When Prof. McNutt, of Cassline College, accepted the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Faxon and sent a half dozen of the flower of his flock to spend a week's vacation on their ranch, he was unacquainted with the mischievous inclinations of the Bar S cow hands. The base of the trouble was innocently occasioned by Mr. and Mrs. Faxon leaving for a visit in a distant city a few hours before the professor decided to accept their invitation. When his telegram arrives it falls into the hands of the boys, who immediately seize the opportunity to turn the boss's absence into a holiday. They appreciate the lack of a chaperon and when at their wits' end finally hit upon the idea of dressing Slim up in Mrs. Tom's clothes. Slim, however, doesn't take kindly to the idea. He objects so strenuously that it takes the combined efforts of all the spare hands to make him see the necessity of the change. The boys attain their desire in the end, however, and they reach Santa Paula depot in time to meet the girls. There was something so ineffably enticing in the kisses of the pseudo Mrs. Tom that the girls freeze to Slim from the jump—as one of them said, "she is such an open-faced old lady." The boys take their medicine as gracefully. Fate treats the boys kindly in the end, with the single exception of Big Bill. Completely snubbed, he tells the girls of the trick Slim has played on them. What the girls do to the poor boob is past description.

HIS BETTER SELF (Dec. 20).—Lucille is lured into a cafe by Joe. Harry, a young man ruined through drink, is in an adjoining booth, where he overhears the pleadings of a girl as she fights away the wine glass proffered her. Recalling his own experience, the little good left in him rises to the surface and asserts itself. Harry appears and knocks the glass from Joe's hand. A terrific fight ensues, during which Harry vanquishes Joe. Leaving him insensible, Harry leads her through the crowded cafe and bids her go home. Six months later we find Harry surrounded by a gang of toughs, who plan to rob the broker's safe. Harry's pleadings to be counted out are useless—they force him to accompany them. Harry is stunned by the sight he has been forced to witness, and although he has taken no direct part in the crime, he fully realies how impossible it would be to convince others of his innocence. Rushing from the place, he boards a freight train and soon is on his way to "don't care where."

Time passes. Joe and Lucille, happily married, leave for the West. Two years later Joe becomes sheriff of his county. Living the life of a hunted criminal, Harry finally succumbs to conscience. In the shadow of a sheriff's office, he concludes to give himself up, regardless of the consequences. He rushes inside, but before he can say a word, finds himself face to face with Joe, who meets him with outstretched hands—grateful for the lesson Harry taught him in the cafe years before. Joe finally makes him his deputy. Just as Harry is sworn in and Joe is congratulating him, a telegram is received from the sheriff at Chicago saying, "Slick Pete, wanted for complicity in diamond robbery two years ago, traced to your locality, etc." Joe hands the telegram to Harry, wishing him success on his first case, and giving him handcuffs to secure his prisoner. An hour later Harry enters with the handcuffs on his own wrists. Joe absolves Harry from all blame, then wires Chicago, "Slick Pete died here yesterday." Joe was right, for his friend was not Harry, the Slick Pete, but his better self.

IMP.

THE STORY OF DAVID GREIG (2 parts—Dec. 15).—A wealthy iron master finds sufficient argument to justify his ill and sometimes inhuman treatment of his men. His daughter, Viola, is a wholesome-spirited girl, whose cosmopolitan training and direct contact with the grosser sides of life counteract the impotent beliefs and principles that have sought to smother her. The professional agitator stirs up discontent among the laborers. David Greig, dreamer and philosopher, imbibes new teachings on the governing principles of love and war. When the strike breaks out, led by the firy agitator, Ben Shoreham, young Greig preaches tolerance to the men. After a physical encounter with Shoreham, Greig takes the deputation of the men to see the iron master. At this psychological moment the iron master is at a crisis in his own business—unable to make delivery on a certain contract and news of the pending strike spells ruin to him. It is during the heated argument that Greig meets Viola. The girl becomes interested in the grievances of the men. Greig takes her into the home of her father's laborers and points out to her the results of cupidity on her father's part. Meanwhile Morton's troubles increase. The date of the forfeit clause in his contract draws near and it is only the ending of the strike that can save him. His daughter, unaware of this, assists the men in their fight by disposing of her jewels. Greig discovers her sacrifice and promises to do what he can to save the father. At this time his great teacher, Rossini, passes away and Greig learns for, the first time his true identity, he was Count Michael de Rossini, of Tuscany. Greig inherits legacy of $250,000. Overcome with the emotion he rushes to the iron master and asks if it is true that, through the action of the strikers, he is ruined. The iron master grimly admits it. Greig shows him Rossini's letter and offers to buy an interest and settle the strike. The iron master consents and the strike is settled by granting the request of the laborers. Later, the spirit of Rossini bring David and Viola into the harbor of sweet content.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 91 (Dec. 3).—Governnor Colquitt Heads Great Turkey Parade.—200,000 birds participate in the second annual turkey trot at Cuero, Texas.

General William Bramwell Booth.—Head of the Salvation Army is greeted by Mayor Kline of New York, upon his first visit to this country.

The Honeymoon Ship.—The thirteenth White House bride and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, depart for Europe on their honeymoon trip.

Unique Procession.—The new Lord Mayor of London is escorted to the Royal Courts of Justice.

Inter-Collegiate Cross-Country Run. — Thirteen leading colleges are represented in the great cross-country run, held at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, won by Boyd, of Cornell.

Weekly Fashion Hints.—Ball dresses and dancing frocks of the latest style. (By courtesy of The Ladies Home Journal.)

Wireless on Train.—The first wireless apparatus is successfully installed on the Lackawanna Limited.

Football at the Polo Grounds.—Carlisle Indians defeat Dartmouth in a hard-fought battle.

Mexican Smugglers Captured.—Fifteen Mexican bandits caught smuggling arms and ammunition across the border after a terrific struggle.

Thrilling Hydro-Aeroplane Flights.—Famous aviators furnish many thrills at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds. Sutro's aeroplane wrecked after a daring dive.

Topical Cartoons by the World-Famous Cartoonist.—Hy. Mayer.

REX.

THE JEW'S CHRISTMAS (3 parts—Dec. 18).—Isaac and his faithful wife, Rachel, deplore that in America their children are forced to work on the Jewish sabbath. Leah and Sam are not so strict as their parents and the old customs pall about their more American spirits. Sam is employed in a cloak house and secretly loves his employer's daughter, but she refuses to recognize him. Leah is loved by the handsome gentile floorwalker, and despite her father's objections, she marries him. Isaac orders Leah from the house,

Later, the daughter of the cloak manufacturer marries an admirer and Sam is invited to the wedding. He drinks and disgraces himself, and returning home, is turned out by the heartbroken rabbi. He leaves, telling the old man that he will return when the father celebrated the Christian Christmas. Two years pass. Leah presents herself at her father's door with a baby in her arms. The old Jew refuses to see, but the mother longs to take the girl to her bosom. Julian falls under a street car—his legs are severed at the knees. Leah visits him at the hospital and is grief stricken.

Ten years later the rabbi and his wife are in poor circumstances, though he is as rigid as ever. Leah and Julian have adopted flower making as a means of livelihood. Without knowing it, the family have taken rooms above those of the rabbi. One afternoon their little girl meets the old man in the yard and assists him. An attachment springs up between the child and the old man and the latter is impressed many times by instances of the kindness of the gentiles towards the Jews in this country. It is this child, on a Christmas night, that finally brings about reconciliation between the girl and the old father.

A WIFE'S DECEIT (Dec. 21).—Phil's birthday is approaching, and his wife determines to buy a bungalow for him as a surprise. He is exceedingly jealous. He comes unexpectedly, and finds a strange man calling on his wife. He is introduced, but the wife appears inordinately anxious to get rid of the stranger, Mr. Marsh. That night the wife asks Phil for a check, but will not confide in him for what purpose she wishes it. This arouses more suspicions in him. He finds Marsh's card in her purse, and the next day is horrified to see her ride past in an auto with the stranger. He follows them and sees them enter a bungalow with drawn blinds.

Wild with rage, he employs a detective to watch his wife. Phil finds a smoking jacket hidden away, a present his wife is keeping for his birthday, and his suspicions are strengthened. Each time his wife goes to the new bungalow the matter is reported to Phil by the detective. The birthday arrives, and in the absence of Phil, his wife moves her trunks to the new bungalow. The detective rushes to Phil and tells him about it. Phil and the detective fly to the strange house, and are just to time to see Marsh enter. In a frenzy, Phil tears into the house, followed by the detective, and his wife makes him a present of the new bungalow, handing him the deeds and introducing Marsh as the real estate agent.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

MAJESTIC.

THE RIVAL PITCHERS (Dec. 14).—Heine and Mike were pitchers on rival baseball nines and also both were rivals for the hand of the widow Murphy. The widow was coy and kept them both in suspense. The widow liked fish and respected a man who could bring in a fine catch after a day at the seashore; so Mike set out to win fame as a fisherman. Heine chanced to be at the shore on the same errand below the dock from which Mike was fishing. Mike had great luck and caught

MOTION PICTURE CLASSICS PORTRAYING THE WEALTH OF MIND, THE DEPTH AND BREADTH OF EXPERIENCE OF AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR AUTHOR

JACK LONDON

JACK LONDON.

First of the Series Now Ready for Delivery

THE SEA WOLF

IN SEVEN REELS

SOME CHOICE TERRITORY STILL OPEN

Wire or write us for particulars of our exclusive territory contract for the first twelve Jack London productions.

BOSWORTH
INC.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
648 South Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

SALES DEPARTMENT
110 West 40th St., New York City

Announcement for Early Production

MARTIN EDEN
THE VALLEY OF THE MOON
SOUTH SEA TALES
THE IRON HEEL
JOHN BARLEYCORN
SMOKE BELLEW SERIES
BURNING DAYLIGHT
SON OF THE WOLF
TALES OF THE FISH PATROL

And all other stories by Mr. London, past, present and to come.

a number of fish, but each time as he pulled them in Heine detached them from his line. Much discouraged, Mike returned home to find Heine displaying a large catch of fish to the smiling widow. Mike, however, learned of Heine's perfidy and denounced him to the widow. Heine was in disgrace, but bided his time waiting for the great baseball game.

The eventful day arrived. Heine pitched a good game for his team, but much to Mike's anguish insisted upon hitting Mike whenever he came to bat. Retaliation was out of the question, for Heine wore a football headpiece. The widow was impartial with her smiles, and the anger of Heine and Mike grew. The game was never finished, for it ended in a free fight. Mike trounced Heine thoroughly, and proudly left the grounds with the widow.

UNCLE'S NAMESAKE (Dec. 12).—The young business man, who lived in a suburban town near New York was not wealthy himself, but had expectations in the shape of a wealthy elder brother, who lived in England. This brother wrote that if the American's first child was a boy, and was named after him, he, the wealthy bachelor uncle, would gladly send $5,000 and make his namesake his heir.

As matters turned out, the American's "first child" was twins and both of them girls, but being resourceful, the happy father cabled his brother, whose name was John Henry Carson, that the twins were boys and he had managed to name both of them after the wealthy bachelor, by calling one John, and the other Henry. He got the $10,000 he asked for, and for years his deception was not discovered, as the ocean divided the two brothers. Then one day the brother in England was enlightened and he determined upon a novel revenge, and sent word that he was coming to America to see his heirs, and what he had expected, happened. The parents to hide the secret, dressed the little girls up as boys and the uncle had a high old time teaching them how to box, play baseball and indulge in other rough sports that boys enjoy. They were such nice little girls, however, that uncle could not really be harsh with them, and in the end they won his love, and he admitted that he was glad after all that his namesakes were little girls instead of rough and rude little boys.

THANHOUSER.

A BEAUTY PARLOR GRADUATE (Dec. 9).—The young lawyer was rising rapidly in his profession, but as he grew more and more prosperous he could not help but be ashamed of his wife. She was a fresh young country girl when he married her, but in the city she did not seem to be able to make anything out of herself. Her dowdiness and utter lack of attraction when strangers were about incensed him, and after a number of "breaks" on her part, there was a quarrel. The husband wanted to know why she could not be stylish, and finally stormed out of the house, leaving her very unhappy indeed. The wife thought the matter over, however, and as she loved her husband, she decided to try and please him. Accordingly she ordered quantities of good clothes, went to a beauty parlor and was beautified within an inch of her life. She even learned how to walk and stand in the new and extremely foolish way, and when her husband returned in the evening, she was prepared to give him the surprise of his life.

It might be added that this was the one evening the husband did not want her to be stylish, for his rich old country uncle was with him, and for several hours the aforesaid uncle had been explaining how glad he was that his nephew's wife was "a sensible woman and not dressed up like a doll." He also intimated that one reason he was making his nephew his heir was because he knew the wife would not waste the money which had been amassed as the result of much toil and privation. Under the circumstances, the "dressed up doll" failed to make a hit, and uncle left after announcing his intention to make a new will. Naturally the husband raged at his wife and the poor woman was brokenhearted, for she found that by trying to please her husband, she had only given him new cause for resentment.

LAWYER, DOG AND BABY (Dec. 14).—Perhaps it was because the prim little lawyer hated children that he became involved in an extraordinary series of mishaps. He was on his way to court, annoying no one, when a woman suddenly rushed up to him, thrust her baby into his arms, and told him to mind it until she could capture her dog. Then she vanished. The lawyer did not know much about children, and the unusual occurrence startled him so much that he was unable to say anything in time to head the woman off. Later he found to his sorrow that it was much easier to take care of children than to get rid of them. Everyone to whom he applied for help gruffly rebuffed him. He was an object of mirth on the streets and in the court, where he finally went because of an important engagement; he was both pitied and scorned. Even the orphan asylums refused to take the child, but in the course of time the mother returned and claimed her offspring. She was not one bit grateful; in fact, she dubbed the poor old lawyer "a miserable kidnapper." Then she went out, and the lawyer was so much interested in noting that she had departed that he forgot to note that she had left her dog behind her. Well, to cut a long story short, the lawyer got rid of the dog, and he never saw the baby or its mother again.

PRINCESS.

HIS IMAGINARY FAMILY (Dec. 12).—Suppose you had led a rich and generous uncle to believe that you were a married man with a wife and child because that uncle was an admirer of family life and very generous with checks to a scapegrace's imaginary family, and that you received word that uncle was about to pay you a visit in order to meet the nephew and the child who was supposed to be named after him.

Boyd Marshall was in just such a predicament. Years before he had needed money badly, and had worked on his kindly uncle's sympathy by writing him that he was about to be married and then later on when the same emergency arose that had confronted him before he wrote uncle that he was the father of a bouncing boy whom he had named in honor of said uncle. Uncle was very generous and sent almost monthly remembrances to his imaginary kin. Then Boyd received a letter one day from uncle, saying that he was called to New York on business and would make his headquarters with his nephew and make the acquaintance of the favorite nephew's wife and his young namesake. In the emergency Boyd hires an actress and a newsboy to impersonate his family and though they succeed in pulling the wool over doting uncle's eyes you cannot help but feel when you have seen the picture that it couldn't have turned out in any better way.

RELIANCE.

TWO GIRLS OF THE HILLS (Dec. 8).—Two sisters, Eve and Edith, are living in the hills with their father, a distiller. Eve is the rebellious one, chafing under the restrictions of her limited surroundings. Edith, the contented daughter, is happy and brave in following her duty to her father and her young sister. The father, notwithstanding the dangers of his calling—which make him an iron-willed, reckless man—is but putty in the hands of his two girls.

Into this little home comes a young, unprincipled adventurer, who turns the head of little Eve, wins her love and for a time wrecks the family ties that have bound the three together. The adventurer learns that there is a reward offered for the father's arrest on the charge of illegal distilling. He induces Eve to get some money from the family hoard, and on the promise of marriage and the big city, she agrees to elope. The adventurer leaves to carry out these plans—which to him are only incidental—his real purpose being to notify the sheriff and secure the reward offered for the arrest of Eve's father. He accomplishes his design, is half thwarted by the other sister, who with her affianced husband carries off jugs of whiskey which constitute the only evidence that could convict the father. The arrest is made and Eve, too weak to resist the blandishment of the adventurer, runs away with him.

A year passes. Eve is cast aside by her husband, the father is pardoned, and Edith is married to her mountaineer sweetheart. The father returns from prison and the outcast, Eve, comes back to the hills to beg forgiveness.

FOUR $100 BILLS (Dec. 10).—As Ralph Hunter and his wife are spending a quiet evening before the blazing logs of an open fire, Hith Hanner is announced. His arrival recalls scenes of twenty years ago and as the trio of old friends talk of their last meeting amid the exciting scenes of life in the gold fields of Nevada, an intensely interesting drama is unfolded upon the screen.

Hunter arrives in a rough mining town where he befriends a stranger and meets his present wife, Helen, who is the daughter of the sheriff. He displays four $100 bills, which are great curiosities in a land where gold is used exclusively as legal tender. It happens that the landlord of the town inn also owns four $100 bills, which are stolen by two bad men of the locality. Hunter is accused of the theft and the bills discovered. In line with the quick justice meted out to mining camp offenders, Hunter is about to be lynched. His only witness, the man he befriended, has departed to a distant settlement. Helen learns of his trouble and by making a supreme effort and overcoming many difficulties finally succeeds in bringing the missing witness to the scene of the lynching, where Hunter is saved and the real culprits brought to justice. A charming romance which results in Hunter's marriage to the girl who saved his life brings this exciting drama to a delightful close.

A MAN'S A MAN (Dec. 13).—Marty, a country boy, associates with a gang of young men of about his own age, who have no ambition whatever, except to loiter on the street corners. As they are standing at the usual place, Elsie, the belle of the village, who lives alone with her widowed father, passes. Some of the members of the gang make remarks about her which Marty resents. He goes to Elsie's assistance and escorts her home, explaining that the boys did not mean to insult her.

He returns to the gang, who immediately proceed to "Beat him up" for what they term his interference. In the fight he receives a black eye. The following day Elsie passes and again meets Marty. She sees his disfigurement and not knowing the cause of it, tells him that she does not approve of fighting. He does not tell her the cause of the fight and that he has determined to make a man of himself for her sake.

The railroad company installs poles in the vicinity of Elsie's home. They attempt to plant a pole in the center of a flower bed on the lawn. The father and daughter try to drive them off, but fail. They decide to seek assistance from the courts in the way of an injunction. While the father is away the surveyors continue their work. Elsie thinks of Marty, as a last resort, to help her. She sends for him, and coming, he holds the men off long enough to allow the father time to return with the injunction. His knowledge of fighting has again enabled him to be of assistance to the girl he loves, and an extremely interesting romance is the result.

DOMINO.

DEVOTION (2 parts—Dec. 11).—Colonel Brush, a staunch Southerner, whose daughter Edith is in love with Walter Boyd, a Northern physician, during an argument strikes the doctor across the face with his whip, leaving a very bad scar. The colonel prepares to join his regiment at the front. Before leaving he hides his wealth in an old well, giving Simon Boldt bonds to cover the mortgage which Boldt holds on the colonel's home. During a retreat, the colonel is cut off from his men and changes clothes with a Northern private, hoping to make his escape. The Northern private is found and buried as the colonel, while the colonel is wounded by an exploding shell, becoming almost an imbecile. He is discovered in a Southern prison by his faithful servant, Pete, and taken home to his daughter, who now that Boldt has foreclosed the mortgage, is forced to live with the negroes. Dr. Boyd is the chief surgeon of the Northerners that take the town in which the colonel lives. He operates upon the colonel and restores his reason.

KAY-BEE.

HER LEGACY (Dec. 9).—Jed Conners, a wealthy but miserly farmer, starves his daughter, Mary, in his greed for gold. A snarling, grouchy lawyer named Caleb Mundy wishes to marry her, but she does not love him, and refuses. Mary falls in love with her father's hired man, Jim Grace. Jed Conners makes his will, with Caleb Mundy as witness. He then hides the will, also some money, in a hollow tree. Conners, being very deaf, fails to hear a runaway horse one day, and as a result loses his life. Mary cannot find his will. This fact gives Mundy the idea that he can forge one successfully. In the forged will Mary is only given the wood lot. She marries Jim Grace and they go to live in a shanty on the wood lot. Mundy is conscience stricken one night, and thinking he sees a ghost, runs, and falling over a cliff, is later found dead. Mary dreams that her father hid the will and some money in the hollow tree and she and Jim find them the next day. The original will bequeaths everything to the daughter Mary.

THE SOUL OF THE SOUTH (2 parts—Dec. 12).—John Page operates a distillery with the aid of his young son, Jim. One day revenue officers discover some jugs of whiskey. They watch them and later follow Jim, who has brought more jugs to the hiding-place. They trail him to the cave, where the distillery is located, and in trying to force an entrance John Page is killed, the boy escaping through an underground passageway. He wanders for some little distance and finally lies down to sleep beside a stream, to be awakened by Betty Adair's cry for help. Jim plunges into the water and rescues the girl just as her brother Bob comes up. Together they carry her to their grandfather's house, with whom they live.

The grandfather has just bade Jeff Davis goodbye. He had come just previous to the children's departure for the fishing expedition and Betty, with true Southern hospitality, had given him a drink of water and invited him to come in the house. She had asked him to write in her autograph album, which he does. Later we find Jim and Betty betrothed. The war is declared and both boys enlist in the Southern army. One night while on picket duty Bob falls asleep and is discovered by a sentinel, who reports him to the office. Jim, always looking out for Bob, has seen the whole action and makes Bob go to his place in camp while he assumed Bob's duty. Jim is arrested and sentenced to death. Bob writes the news home and Betty, donning a Confederate uniform and forging Davis's name to a pardon, rides into camp. It happens that Davis is in the camp and the officer takes Betty to him; she recalls the incident of the album and pleads with him to save her lover. He informs the officer that the pardon is genuine, and Davis takes Betty to her sweetheart, who is now restored to his former rank.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 49 (Dec. 3). Army Versus Navy.—An animated game at New York Polo Grounds in which the soldiers win.

Lord Kelvin Honored.—A statue in his memory is unveiled at the University of Glasgow, Scotland.

Offices in

SAN FRANCISCO
LOS ANGELES
SEATTLE
PORTLAND
DENVER
SPOKANE
SALT LAKE
PHOENIX

THE WORLD'S GREATEST

GOLGATE FEATURE SERVICE

FEATURE PRODUCTIONS.

(Facsimile of above cut appears on all films handled by our house)

Distributing

APEX
G.NORTHERN
GAUMONT
ITALA
SOLAX
BLACHÉ
AMBROSIO
RUBY
RAMO
AM. KINETO
AMMEX
TURNER
ALL STAR PILOT
HEPWORTH

WE desire to announce to the trade that we will open an office in New York City for the purpose of selecting all features for our program.

Our customers are thus assured of the PICK of the World's Greatest Feature Productions.

Exhibitors Know Our Policy
What We Say—We Do

NOW BOOKING—

| | |
|---|---|
| PAUL J. RAINEY, AFRICAN HUNT - - Colorado-Utah Territory Excepted | 6 Reels |
| ARIZONA - - - - - - | 6 Reels |
| CHECKERS - - - - - - | 5 Reels |
| SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE - - | 5 Reels |
| BARGAIN WITH SATAN - - | 5 Reels |

We Buy All the Big Ones——Connect with Our Nearest Office

GOLGATE FEATURE SERVICE

GOLDEN GATE FILM EXCHANGE, INC.

Some Fancy Trapshooting.—Wonderful Topperweins give an interesting exhibition in Chicago

Free Beef in Stratford.—Famous English town holds its annual barbecue.

The Old Guard Review.—New York's famous organization in its annual parade at City Hall.

Up the Mountain High.—Fairfax Manor Incline Railway carrying California society to a favorite resort.

Opening the Los Angeles Aqueduct.—Pacific Coast city now supplied with water from mountain tops.

A Chemical Factory Burns in Brooklyn.—New York City plant totally destroyed by explosions and fire.

Battle Maneuvers in Oregon.—National Guard in field practice for possible early call to arms.

Interstate Athletic Meet.—Champions of Colorado and New Mexico in contest at Rocky Ford, Colo

French Wreck Costs 39 Lives.—Military train in collision with appalling loss.

BRONCHO.

THE WOMAN (2 parts—Dec. 31).—John Walton has contracted consumption and when his wife, Mary, returns from her engagement as singer, the doctor advises that they go to Arizona. Later we find them in a little shack on the desert. Their funds are almost depleted when word comes that a new gold reservation is to be opened. Donning a suit of her husband's, Mary leaves him in charge of an Indian squaw and goes to enter the rush. On the trail she overtakes a couple of men and a woman and she joins them, they thinking that she is a man. When the rush starts, Mary's horse falls and she, unconscious, is taken to the hospital, where her sex is discovered. Later we find her singing in a concert hall. Here she is insulted by a drunken man and Tom Broughton, one of the men she overtook on the trail, comes to her rescue. He later proposes marriage, and she knowing that her husband is in need and having lost her position, consents, not telling him that she is married. They have been happily married for some time when she receives word from the squaw that her husband has died. With nothing in life now to live for, she kills herself, leaving a letter explaining her past.

AMERICAN.

WHERE THE ROAD FORKS (Dec. 15).—Miriam Howell has completed her musical education and her teacher gives a private recital for the benefit of some of the greatest opera managers in the country. The wonderful power and quality of her voice thrills even their critical tastes and a contract with an alluring salary is offered her. Imparting to her professor her contemplated matrimony, she is told that she will have to sacrifice love and marriage on the altar of ambition, if she would succeed in her operatic career. She returns to her home to think it over, when her lover calls and importunes her to marry him. She is undecided and shows him her offer and requests time to think. He tells her he will call for her decision in an hour, and leaves her. Seated in the firelight's glow, she becomes drowsy and soon is fast asleep. The maid enters and softly draws the shades and turns out the light. Ambition, personified, appears to the sleeping girl, and with a majestic wave of her arm bids her look upon her alluring future as an operatic star. She sees herself upon the stage with the sea of faces upturned to her, eagerly listening not to miss one note of her wonderful selection, "The Jewel Song." A thunder of applause is sweetest music to her ears and she is forced before the curtain again and again, before the audience is satisfied. Flowers and favors are showered upon her and she retreats to her dressing-room to find the managers and her teacher there to extend warmest congratulations. She is driven from the theater in her own car and eager people line the drive to throw flowers and bestow praise upon the accomplished vocalist. Miriam stirs in her dream, her hand unconsciously grasps a pen and she is about to sign the contract, but Cupid appears and dashing the pen from her hand bids her wait and he will show her her future as a beloved wife and mother.

Miriam sees herself arrayed in bridal robes and about to become the wife of Ed Templeton. The ceremony is performed and she goes to her new and delightful home. As the years pass by children come to bless their home and she is supremely happy. Cuipd's picture is also alluring. Miriam finds it impossible to choose, but they are awaiting her decision and at last Miriam asks: "Show me my old age." Ambition reluctantly again takes up the thread of the future, and Miriam sees herself in her dressing-room in a desperate attempt to appear young and beautiful. From time to time her hand strays to her throat, for it has troubled her of late. She hears the cue, and appears upon the stage and tries again to face that sea of upturned faces. A hush falls over the vast audience as she begins to sing. Soon a restlessness comes over her auditors, for her voice fails. And then the long dreaded climax comes—the most dreaded and cruel taunt, "the hiss" and she is forced to leave the stage.

She returns to her lonely home and while eating her dinner in solitude she receives the final blow, a letter of dismissal. Ambition gives way to Cupid and he willingly and eagerly takes up the thread of her future under his guidance. She sees herself and her lover, Ed Templeton, grown old, it is true, but the sweet old age that has come with a life of serenity and happiness. Around them are their children, grown to manhood and womanhood, and little grandchildren who worship their grandparents. Miriam awakens from her dream and love to its uttermost has awakened in her heart. When Templeton calls, Miriam gives him her answer without reserve, for after what she has seen, she knows her better future.

EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CORPORATION

GAUMONT.

A TERRIBLE DREAM (Dec. 16).—Baron Herlack entertained some friends to a spiritualistic seance. He jokingly enquired when he was likely to die, and the spirits replied: "This night at 3 o'clock you will die." His friends went and left him alone. He resolved to try to escape, but the doors and windows became solid walls and the furniture disappeared. When 3 o'clock approached, the baron saw three hooded figures beside him, one of whom bore an axe. With the chiming of the clock came the Prince of Darkness. "This man," said he, "wished to raise the curtain of the future; therefore he dies." It was in vain that the baron pleaded for mercy. There was no escape. The table gave place to a block, and terrified, he laid his head upon it. As the axe descended he awoke! It was a dream, but so great were its effects that he ordered the removal of every table in the house and interdicted future seances.

OSCAR IN SEARCH OF A WIFE (Dec. 18).—Oscar advertises for a wife. He stipulates that she must be either a widow or a young girl, also adding that good cooking was essential. The first applicant was Carmen Moulton, who proved to be much too boisterous, and got up to all kinds of pranks. Oscar decided she would not do. He next calls upon Widow Martin, a lady who had buried three husbands. When Oscar saw the lady—well, he fled hastily. Pamela, his cook, then thought she would try her luck, and with the aid of a professional "poet," she addressed Oscar in verse, and her suggestions brought him a vision of true happiness. He wrote, making an appointment, and the following evening Oscar made tracks for the rendezvous, where, to his utter surprise, he met his cook. That decided him; it was no use searching for a wife. Much better to remain a bachelor and enjoy the delicious meals Pamela served. Consequently, he increased her wages by one pound a month and put all thought of a wife behind him.

DOLLY SAVES HER GRANDFATHER (Dec. 9).—Old Foster's son-in-law, Gunn, was a weakling, and unable to resist the bad influence of his brother. He got into difficulties with Mr. Hick, an old miser, who threatened him that he would sell him up if he did not pay him 1,180 pounds within a month. Hick told Gunn that he knew Old Foster had made a will in his favor, and Gunn plotted with his brother to remove the old man. Their plotting was overheard by Dolly, an orphan daughter of a son of Foster. She was the drudge of the farm, but loved the old man, and was very fond of Gunn's wife and the child. She heard the details of the vile plot and resolved to circumvent the two villains. The old man had long before realized that his life was not safe, and had taken the precaution to alter his will. When he returned to the farm in the evening, he left with Dolly.

POUPETTE'S MEAN REVENGE (Dec. 11).—Leonce and Poupette try to buy some freshly-gathered mushrooms, but are outbid by a man, who takes them to a hotel to be cooked. They determine to be revenged. Poupette gains access to the kitchen and succeeds in substituting pieces of sponge for the mushrooms. The unsuspecting diner eats them with a relish. He is seized with an unquenchable thirst. Glass after glass of wine does not appease it, and having half emptied a water butt, he goes to the reservoir. Seizing a rubber tube, he places it in the water, and the level of the water in the reservoir immediately begins to drop. Quenching such an inordinate thirst is bound to result in ill effects, and he begins to visibly swell, and sets off to the hotel in agony, almost bursting. Meeting Leonce and his fellow trickster, the victim seeks their sympathy and aid. Leonce punches him vigorously and the poor man is bewildered when he disgorges a sponge. He cannot understand what can have happened, and the others are too wary to explain.

SUBSCRIBE FOR
Moving Picture World
PER $3 YEAR

FEATURE FILM STORIES

FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA.

DEMONYTE (3 parts).—Lincoln Whatley, a professor of chemistry, after years of experimentation, has discovered a new explosive. Its value as an implement of war causes governments to extend themselves in bidding for its exclusive ownership. The agent of the United States Government negotiates for the purchase.

The higher circle of Anarchists determine to get Demonyte from them by means of money or violence. Lydia, Countess of Orloff, is present and a cast of dice decides that she must do the work, fair or foul. She answers an advertisement for a companion to Professor Whatley's daughter and is engaged. She learns where the Demonyte caps are hidden in the professor's laboratory. Wading through the water, she forces an entrance through the flooring. She finds the Demonyte caps and takes one which is loaded. She has been observed, however, by Lieutenant Turner, fiance of Mary Whatley. When the robbery of Demonyte is discovered, Turner and Whatley seize the spy. Imprisoning her in an X-ray cabinet, the professor turns upon her the powerful light. The Demonyte cap is discovered hidden in her mouth. Foul means having failed, Lydia later confronts Lieutenant Boston, the American agent, and offers double the price paid for the possession of Demonyte. He scornfully refuses. Pursuing him to the railway train, Lydia causes him to seek safety on the roof of the train. Another train approaches from the opposite direction on the adjoining rails. Turner jumps and falls upon the Demonyte caps. He and the pursuer are blown to atoms and both trains are wrecked.

Upon hearing of the terrible effects of his invention, Professor Whatley feels that Demonyte is too wicked a force with which to menace life. Deciding to destroy the secrets of Demonyte's ingredients he blows up the laboratory in which was worked out the master work of his life.

OUTLAWED (3 parts).—Ramirrez, a cowboy, incurs the enmity of Foreman Alvarez by fistically opposing his attentions to Mary Gonzalo, daughter of the sheriff. Alvarez detects Ramirrez in the act of a surreptitious visit to Mary and trumps up against him a charge of stealing ammunition. Ramirrez, compelled by motives of honor to remain silent, is condemned to death by the sheriff. Mary aids him to escape. He falls in with a band of bandits, by whom he is accepted as an ally. A raid is planned upon the bandits. Mary knowing that her beloved is with them, disguises herself in men's clothing and under Ramirrez's wing is also admitted to the band. For some time there they lead the wild life of the mountains as brothers in crime. One night Mary's sex is discovered by the bandits, who, thinking her to be a spy, attack her and Ramirrez. They escape after a battle. Ramirrez is wounded and Mary hides him in a deserted cabin and goes for medicine to the nearby stores. There she is recognized by Alvarez who, after sending for the sheriff, goes alone to track and capture her and the fugitive. He has overpowered her when a shot from within from Ramirrez's rifle kills him. The sheriff and his men arrive and all is explained.

VENGEANCE BEQUEATHED (3 parts).—Their eyes heavy with grief, Edith and Violet, dancers, return from the funeral of their sister, Grace. They find a letter marked "To be opened after my burial," which encloses a photograph. This, the dead sister identifies as the man who has wronged her and through his falseness has brought her to her death. Her request is that her sisters seek him out and avenge her. Strangely enough, she omits to mention his name and address. Conjuring before them the image of the beloved departed, Edith and Violet swear to find the unknown and wreak their worst upon him.

Assuming new names to aid their search, the sisters are engaged to dance in a music hall. Here comes Viscount Henry, and a party of friends. This count is peculiarly attracted by the mysterious masked sisters. He asks the manager to introduce him. Violet's beauty is the source of particular attraction. The other sister fears danger and recalls to her her sister's fate. This count persists, although a likeness to the dead Grace, to whom he once promised marriage, causes him uneasiness.

Edith, calling upon the viscount to learn the purpose of his attentions, accidentally finds her late sister's portrait. Returning with the portrait of the viscount the sisters compare the one which the sister had enclosed in her last letter. They are identical. Edith reminds Violet of their oath of vengeance. It falls to Edith's lot to execute the oath. She goes to the viscount's house and confronts him with his guilt. He orders his servants to arrest her. She escapes.

WAR
ON THE GRIDIRON

A Battle Royal in Which the Army Conquered

PRESIDENT WILSON
Secretary of War Garrison
Secretary of Navy Daniels
Army Maneuvers
Navy Drills
The Forward Pass
Army Jubilees After the Game

Are a few of the wonderful scenes in this 2,000 foot feature ∴ ∴ ∴

Price 12c per foot includes exclusive territory.
Renting direct in territory not sold.
Beautiful one and three sheet lithographs. 10c sheet.
Wire order and deposit or date of booking desired.

Commercial Motion Pictures Co., Inc.
102 West 101st Street New York City

Keenly anxious, the other sister, Violet, comes to the house about this time. She is daunted by the onrush of the pursuers who are chasing her sister. Mistaking Violet for Edith, they pursue the former, and a stern and exciting chase it is. Edith, in the meantime, returns to the house, where she meets the viscount, now unprotected by his servants. A shot from Edith's revolver, and a long fall down a secret passage ends his evil life.

PHOTO DRAMA CO.

TEN NIGHTS IN A BARROOM (Five parts).—At the age of twenty-one, Joe Morgan inherits his father's grist mill. Soon after he weds Fannie Owen. Happy-go-lucky Joe soon feels the responsibility of the mill irksome and he engages his companion, Simon Slade, as manager, leaving Joe free to indulge in his desire for drink and idleness. Joe spends his money freely, but the shrewd business-like Simon Slade saves his and when Joe, who has mortgaged the mill, is unable to meet the note when due, Simon advances the money, thus buying half interest in the business. Having less to do than before, Joe slides the downward path. Through all of these darkening days the ever-loving and devoted Fannie clings to her dissolute husband without a word of reproach; even the birth of a baby girl, whom Joe worshiped, did not stop him from his downward course. Slade has sold his share in the mill to Judge Hammond, and has opened a tavern; Joe became his best customer. Spending his money lavishly, Joe was a welcome visitor at the saloon, and when he lost the mill, he mortgaged his home, the proceeds of which went in the same manner as the rest of his money, "over the bar."

Eventually the time came when he has to meet the mortgage on his home, and being unable to meet the obligation he knows not where to turn for assistance, except to his friend, Simon, with whom he spent his money. When he called upon Simon, he finds no longer the Simon Slade of boyhood days, but a hard-hearted tavern keeper, with no thoughts of the past, who refuses to lend the needed amount, and gives Joe to understand that he was no longer a welcome visitor at the tavern.

Joe awakes to a realization of what a fool he has made of himself, but now it is too late. In a short while his home is sold, he and his wife and child are thrown out in the world, without home and friends. Joe, who now has sunk to the level of the village drunkard, tries to drown his thoughts in drink; his faithful wife is compelled to do washing and other drudgery. She becomes dangerously ill, and instead of going to get Joe, as she has been accustomed to do on other occasions, she sends her child, now a girl of ten, to the saloon to bring her father home. At the time of her entrance into the saloon, Joe is having an altercation with Slade. They come to blows; Slade attempts to strike Morgan with a bottle. Joe's daughter, in an effort to save her father, steps between the two men and receives the fatal blow. Joe, frenzied with grief when he realizes what Slade has done, attempts to strangle him. Joe takes little Mary in his arms, and rushes home with her. His wife realizes what has happened and for the first time since their marriage she upbraids him. The excitement is too much and Joe is seized with delirium tremens. After days of agony and torture, he is brought to a realization of what has happened, but only in time to see little Mary die from the cruel blow of Simon Slade. Before her death, she exacts from her father a solemn vow that he would never drink again.

The wheel of fate turns in Joe's favor, while Simon Slade begins to reap the harvest of his ill-gotten gains. His son becomes addicted to drink and gambling. When his father remonstrates with him for drinking, they quarrel. The father strikes the boy, who being intoxicated and not realizing what he is doing, strikes his father and kills him. Soon after at a mass meeting presided over by Joe Morgan, now a strong temperance advocate, it is decided to do away with the tavern and thus rid Cedarville of the curse of rum. From the day of Mary's death, Joe Morgan resolves to make a man of himself, and after losing his desire for liquor, he is again a respected citizen, regaining possession of the old mill, his home, and the love and respect of his wife and neighbors.

A. BLINKHORN.

AFTER MANY YEARS (General Film Agency, Ltd., 3 parts—Dec. 15).—In a pretty little Danish fishing village, Captain Glask, a young seaman, woos and wins Ella, the daughter of another sea captain. The day comes when the captain has to leave the village to take over the command of a wealthy widow's pleasure yacht. The change from the old to his new environment is a marked one. Mrs. Lytton, his employer, is an elegant and refined though heartless, woman. Glask finds her very fascinating. She eagerly pounces upon the opportunity of adding another to her many victims, and finds zest in playing off Glask as a rival to her cousin, who has long zealously courted her. The game soon develops into earnest, Mrs. Lytton, learning through a ring which Glask wears on his hand that he is engaged to be married. With an inward sneer at the thought of the little fisher girl waiting for the strong man standing so sturdily before her, she negligently draws the ring off the finger of his hand and lightly tosses it into the air again and again, catching it dexterously as it falls.

Glask watches with a half smile as the tiny golden circlet rises and falls. Then an exclamation of dismay breaks from his lips as the ring spins sideways, and drops into the lake by the side of which he and Mrs. Lytton are standing. Half an hour later she is flirting with her cousin, while Glask, raging with jealousy and hating both of them, is about ready to return to Ella before ever having set foot on the yacht.

Lack of decision keeps Captain Glask lingering, and he finally takes over command of the yacht. Here Mrs. Lytton, finding that he refuses to yield one jot or iota of his prerogatives to his rival, falls completely in love with him. There is one passionate scene of love-making on the bridge, and this her cousin secretly snapshots in a mood of bitter revenge, afterward sending the photo to poor little Ella Brandt. The announcement of the coming marriage is made known. Poor Ella sends Glask a line offering him his release, giving him a single reproach.

Time brings many changes. Ella finds comfort in her son, Karl. Elsewhere, Glask, his wife having died, rejoices in a charming little daughter, Doris by name. The morning of Karl's departure for his first fishing voyage, Ella places her locket containing a portrait of the boy's father around his neck. The brutal treatment of the skipper is particularly directed at Karl. One day in a mad desire to get away at all costs, he drops from the rigging into the water, in the hope of keeping afloat until picked up. He is rescued by Glask, who is out cruising with Doris. A gallant rescue is effected, and the lad is given shelter and hospitality until his recovery. Karl speedily acquaints his friends with his whereabouts, and at the same time extends an invitation from his host to his mother and grandfather, to come to him as soon as possible. In the meantime he and Doris become fast friends, and the long days pass all too quickly.

Doris one day discovers the locket around her new chum's neck and, with childish imperiousness, insists upon opening it. To her amazement it contains a photograph, which she recognizes to be that of her father. She carries the locket to him and he, amazed in his turn, questions the lad. Karl's answers lead to the truth: that the boy he has rescued and sheltered is his own son, the living testimony of the romance of fourteen years before. Shame and remorse grip him as he reviews the past, and it is with a heavy heart that he awaits the coming of his old sweetheart in accordance with his own invitation.

That night through some childish folly, Doris causes a fire in her bedroom. The blaze is discovered by Karl, who bravely rescues the child from a veritable furnace of flames, bringing her down an unsafe ladder from the top of the house. He is badly burned and when Ella and her old father arrive they find their boy has just escaped once more from death. The shock to poor Ella is doubly great, for she has recognized Captain Glask at once. He pleads for forgiveness by the bedside of his son, but Ella finds it too hard to pardon. Bitter words pass their lips, and the old wrongs seem as if they cannot be buried, until she suddenly sees Karl and Doris looking wistfully at her with hands held tight in each other's. It is the healing touch, and with tears in her eyes, Ella turns to receive the first embrace of her lover.

WARNER'S FEATURES.

TRAPPED IN THE CASTLE OF MYSTERY (3 parts).—Colonel Barton's automobile breaks down near the quaint old village of Doromy. While talking with the inn keeper he learns that Doromy castle is peopled with ghosts and that travelers who venture within are never seen alive again. In a spirit of adventure the Colonel sets out for the castle, resolved to spend a night there and disprove the villagers' superstitions.

Margaret, the attractive daughter of Gontran, leader of a gang of counterfeiters who have their headquarters in old Doromy castle, is quick to carry word of the Colonel's visit and to warn the counterfeiters of their danger. That night Colonel Barton is intimidated and tortured by Gontran's men dressed as ghosts. He goes mad and the next day is found wandering in the fields.

Then fate takes a hand in the game. The Colonel's son, Charles, falls in love with the counterfeiter's daughter, who saves him from a horrible death at the hands of the counterfeiters. Escaping, he assits the police to break up the gang and takes Margaret to his home when her father is killed. In an intensely dramatic scene, Colonel Barton is confronted with a white veiled figure that the shock may restore his reason. The experiment is successful and Margaret, although the daughter of a counterfeiter, marries Charles.

THE SHADOW OF NAZARETH (3 parts).—Was Judas willing to betray the Master because he believed that Christ could and would deliver Himself from His captors? There are many students of the Bible who contend so and who say that Judas was not wholly bad at heart. The important point is that Jesus of Nazareth would not and did not save Himself from death by a violation of natural laws.

For months Christ had been preaching to the multitudes, healing their afflictions and gaining converts to His cause. One after another, His disciples had been chosen until there were twelve, including the traitor, Judas Iscariot. Barabbas was arrested for the murder of Gabrias, who sneered at Judith whom Barabbas loved. He was imprisoned by Pilate at the command of Caiaphas, who also loved Judith. Later Judith, to satisfy her lover Caiaphas, persuaded Judas to betray the Master. Pilate washed his hands of the affair and Christ was crucified. The people cried aloud for the release of Barabbas, and Pilate obeyed and set him free. Barabbas, having looked upon the face of the Master, was shaken with fear. With Judith, he went to the hill and beheld the sign of the Cross in the heavens. Judas, the traitor, hanged himself. When Judith viewed his body she became insane from grief and terror. Seeking out her lover, Caiaphas, she stabbed him and then turned the dagger upon herself.

A DAUGHTER OF PAN (3 parts).—Before Greece became a government it was divided into many principalities. In our story, Althemus is the king of one of these states. Although his wife, Queen Nethele, is beautiful, he loves Melessa, a wicked designing woman, and it is her purpose to put away the queen and take her place. The king has selected a husband for his daughter, Althea, Diomed, a rich young man. Jestyx, an old philosopher, one day tells the court of a wild people that live back in the forest, who are said to be descendants of the god Pan. Frightus, the wickedest of the tribe, we are told, has eaten all his children, except Dusa, his daughter, because of her extreme ugliness. Diomed at once becomes interested in Dusa and sets out for the forest. Strange as it may seem, Diomed becomes enamoured of her. Dusa, also is charmed in her wild way. Althea, torn with jealousy, follows Diomed and commands him to return to the palace. They are followed by Dusa.

The king sends for Polyclotes, a member of the wild tribe, to abduct Dusa, but he refuses to do so. Thereupon, the king dismisses him. Melessa, taken by his beauty, invites Polyclotes to enter her room. Just then the king appears, takes in the situation at a glance and puts Polyclotes in the dungeon. Dusa flees to the forest. She meets Jestyx, the old philosopher. He persuades her to return to the palace and enter into a growing lily, declaring that she will become beautiful. After many days, she arises radiantly beautiful. A multitude of things happen, as though by magic. She obtains the release of Polyclotes and they return to the forest and live happily.

MOTION DRAMA CO.

THE STRANGLERS OF PARIS (Six Parts).—In a little rose-covered cottage in a village of France lived Simmonet, a respectable citizen, his wife and their little daughter Mathilde.

Their happiness was complete but short-lived, as his wife died after a short illness. Simmonet, nearly insane with grief, takes to drink, neglects his business and sinks to the depths of an outcast of society. He is aroused to a sense of his condition, but fails to regain a foothold—it is too late. He becomes vindicative, hates all mankind, and makes a vow that by no matter what means, he would save his child from the pangs of poverty. He takes his child to Paris, where she grows to womanhood, ignorant of her father's double life. Simmonet loses his identity and assumes the name of Jagon. He soon drifts into the underworld of Paris, and, owing to his superior strength and powerful personality, becomes the leader of the dreaded gang known as "The Stranglers of Paris."

A wealthy, elderly gentleman, Claude Guerin, is attracted by Mathilde's beauty, and asks her hand in marriage. Jagon makes a tool of Mathilde and compels her to accept, provided he makes a will in her favor. This he does and is strangled by Jagon and found dead before the wedding day. For this crime, Blanchard, an innocent man, is convicted on circumstantial evidence. Later, Captain Guerin, a brother of the murdered man, contests the will and obtains a verdict in favor of his daughter, Jeanne. The day the money is paid to him by the court he is followed to his home by Jagon and his accomplice, Lorenz. That night Captain Guerin is strangled by Jargon and the money stolen.

About this time Blanchard had been made a "trusty" of the prison, and succeeded, on the night of the murder, to slip away for a few hours to visit his wife, who is a maid at Captain Guerin's home. He was seen to enter and leave the house by several persons. He was brought back, and, owing to his record, is held for the crime. Jagon, too self-confident, enters the room at this moment, and is recognized by Jeanne as the man who had called on her father prior to his death, and accuses him. He is arrested and convicted of the crime and sentenced with Blanchard as his accomplice, to penal servitude for life. Fearing this, Jagon had previously given Lorenz the money and the family papers of Don Jose the Marquis de Ribas, and instructed him to assume this name, and to take care of his daughter, Mathilde. This Lorenz does, and later marries her.

Jeanne Guerin, believing that Blanchard, the husband of her maid, is innocent of the crime of her father's death, entreats her lover, Robert, an officer in the army, to secure the proofs of his innocence. He meets Mathilde, who becomes infatuated with him, and promises to assist him, Mr. Charles V. Barker presents

MISS MARION # LEONARD

appearing now in

A LEAF IN THE STORM

a powerful dramatic story in three parts splendidly mounted and presented.

READY FOR RELEASE

The Journey's Ending

A romantic story of a young girl's devotion to an old protector with Miss Leonard in one of her happiest roles

All productions written and directed by STANNER E. V. TAYLOR at Miss Leonard's own studio—423 CLASSON AVE., BROOKLYN

COMING SOON

A Magnificent Production in Six Reels

"THE LAND O' DREAMS"

One of the most beautiful and perfect motion pictures yet exhibited and when shown photographs of Jagon and Blanchard, discovers that Jagon is her father. In a scene with Lorenz, who is jealous of Robert, she declares him the real accomplice of her father, and asserts that she will rescue this innocent man and denounce him. Lorenz, fearful of this threat, strangles her.

At this very moment Jagon appears, he and Blanchard having escaped from the convict ship. He springs upon Lorenz and almost strangles him, when he is shot by Lorenz and falls by his daughter's side. Arousing himself to follow Lorenz and kill him, he disappears behind curtains. Lorenz wanders back, half-dazed, and nearing the curtains, is drawn back of them by the powerful grip of Jagon, the strangler, and later found dead. Jagon, semi-conscious from loss of blood, staggers into his daughter's arms, who has recovered. He dies in her arms, but not until he has cleared Blanchard of both crimes, and sees him united to his wife a "free man."

UNITED KINGDOM FILMS, LTD.

A MESSAGE FROM MARS (Four parts).—Ramiel, an inhabitant of Mars, having committed some misdemeanor, the God of Mars commands him to proceed to Earth and reclaim some selfish mortal. By means of a Crystal Globe, which reveals the actions of the happenings on Earth, the God of Mars has noticed one Horace Parker—a selfish person. He sees him pushing his way through a crowd watching a Punch and Judy show. Horace, when solicited to contribute a few pennies by the showman, refuses, shoving his way surlily onward. The God of Mars decrees that Ramiel must cure Horace of his selfishness before regaining favor in Mars.

Horace, at home, settles down for a comfortable evening by the fire. He had promised to take his fianceé, Minnie, to a dance; but when she calls for him en route, she finds him in day clothes. She reproaches him for his thoughtless selfishness, and finally returns him the engagement ring. She goes to the dance with an escort who has called, Horace having failed her. Horace is now left at home, to read and ruminate. A tramp who is looking for work, comes to him with a letter of recommendation; he receives no help or sympathy from Horace, who turns him out of doors.

Here the messenger from Mars appears. He tells Horace that he is going to change his character and make him a better man. Horace demurs, but by a series of arguments and electric shocks, he convinces him that he is in earnest. The messenger orders him out into the night and bids him perform some unselfish act. The Martian messenger, becoming exasperated and furious, strips him of his good clothes and leaves him shivering before the house where Minnie has become the belle of the party. Again the tramp appears upon the scene. This time he offers to help Horace, who stands in rags, starving, and gladly shares the crust that is offered him.

Horace, overcome with emotion, suggests a partnership, and they try and make money opening the doors of the automobiles of the departing guests. Soon the real tramp becomes exhausted. Horace, at last alive to others' wants, picks him up and takes him to his home. The messenger, by this time satisfied that good work has been accomplished, changes him back into his ordinary apparel. Horace settles him in his own armchair, providing him with food and drink. The messenger returns to Mars, telling his Martian brother of the good work done. While Horace is attending to the needs of his new-found friend, the maidservant tells him that a fire has broken out. Horace at once dashes to the scene—the new Horace, not the old selfish one—saves the lives of three youngsters, and insists upon taking the entire homeless family back to his own establishment, treating them with sympathy and kindness. This generous action is witnessed by Ramiel and his brother Martians, who see the mission accomplished. Minnie and Horace once more brought together, and Horace replacing the discarded engagement ring.

TRANS-OCEANIC FILMS.

LIEUTENANT DARING AND THE INTERNATIONAL JEWEL THIEVES (3 parts).—A gang of international jewel thieves, lead by Spider, the Yankee, reads in the "Times" that Lady Grey is to give a garden party and ball, and Lord Robey will be among the guests. The gang decides to kidnap Lord Robey, and Spider, the Yankee, makes a proposition to impersonate Lord Robey by taking the clothes of the lord on that night. When the party takes place, the daughter of Lady Grey introduces Lord Robey to Lieutenant Daring, and a few minutes later Lord Robey wanders off to another part of the garden. There he is captured by the gang, taken into an automobile to the headquarters of the gang and tied hand and foot. Spider dashes into the headquarters and there pulls the clothes off Lord Robey and makes up as the counterfeit of the lord.

Spider is anxious to find out which is Lord Robey's room. By one of his clever tricks he tells one of the servants that he has forgotten which room has been given him, and he is shown into it. While the guests are assembled in the ball-room, the bogus Lord Robey robs them of their jewels, money and other valuables. He then goes into the garden and meets Lady Grey, whom he chloroforms and robs of her jewelry. He then goes to his room, puts all the jewelry into a grip and hoists it down to the gang. He then drives away in their automobile.

Meanwhile, Lieutenant Daring discovers Lady Grey and sees that she is in a swoon. Through a note that Spider has left, Lieutenant Daring finds out where the headquarters of the gang is. There he is made prisoner by the gang, and is tied hand and foot. One of the gangsters takes him out on the bridge and throws him into the river. Bess, the daughter of a captain of a barge, witnesses the act and dives after him, rescuing him just as he is about to go down for the last time. The police are summoned and the gang is captured.

BLACHE FEATURES.

THE STAR OF INDIA (4 parts).—In the secret recesses of the Rajah's palace stood a Buddha, its forehead incrusted with a precious stone of infinite value, called "The Star of India." For centuries this stone has been coveted by all the crowned heads of Europe. According to tradition the stone was gifted with the mysterious power of instilling those who laid their eyes on it with an insane passion to possess it. A military attaché seeing the jewel, laboriously tunnels through the ground to the palace, steals the diamond, but is poisoned by one of the snakes guarding it, and eventually he dies. The diamond falls into the hands of an American surveyor, who almost loses his life getting it, for the stone is also coveted by his Hindu servant, who later follows him across the Atlantic with evil designs. When the surveyor's sweetheart sees the stone, she insanely desires it. His rival undertakes to get it for her on the promise that she would marry him if he succeeded. Both he and the Hindu engage the same gang of crooks as assistants in their attacks on the surveyor. The diamond changes hands several times. Each man who temporarily gets it dies a horrible death. During the days of trial and struggles the lovers unite against the gang. The stone finally is returned to India, where it continues to glitter as "The Guiding Star of India."

KINETO.

THE WATERS OF DEATH (Peerless—3 parts).—Jack Marsh has for some time been working to perfect a new explosive. At last his efforts are rewarded and he makes a remarkable discovery which will have the effect of revolutionizing modern warfare.

A certain Count Navoski and his assistant, Rubinoff, spies of a foreign government, have been secretly making inquiries concerning the young scientist and learn of his discovery. Anxious to obtain the secret, they offer Jack Marsh the sum of $25,000 cash for the option and a further $50,000, if the test proves satisfactory. Jack flatly refuses the offer. Instead of immediately departing, Navoski waits on the veranda, and sees the inventor place his formulas in a secret safe behind the bookcase. Late that same evening, Navoski and Rubinoff return to rob the safe. Their skeleton keys, however, do not fit and force is resorted to. The noise thus caused awakens Jack, who rushes to his study. The spies struggle with him. Suddenly Rubinoff thinking he sees an opening to shoot Jack, whips out a revolver and fires. A dexterous turn, however, brings Navoski within range of the revolver and he falls dead at his confederate's feet. The cowardly Rubinoff beats a hasty retreat. Jack's servants fetch the police, who decide that the dead man has met a deserved fate.

The next day, Rubinoff calls on Vera, Navoski's daughter, and informs her of her father's death, at the same time swearing that it was Jack Marsh who killed him. With Rubinoff and the chauffeur, Paul, she forms a plan to wreak revenge on the inventor and at the same time obtain his secret. Marsh advertises for a chauffeur and Paul applies for and obtains the position. At a prearranged hour, Vera, taking her bicycle, awaits in the road near Jack's house. Presently, she hears Paul's signal and quickly taking her bicycle, lays down in the center of the road and entangles herself in the frame. The auto, taking a quick turn around the corner, is pulled up suddenly in front of the prostrate form and Jack takes the apparently unconscious girl into his house. As time goes on, the plot succeeds and Jack falls in love with Vera. One day he agrees to show her over the house and grounds. While doing so, Paul, the chauffeur, enters Jack's laboratory and starts a fire underneath the experimenting tables. When Jack and Vera return to the library, the chauffeur, apparently badly scared, informs his master that his laboratory is on fire. Jack immediately rushes off to fight the flames. While he is gone, Vera, who has learned the secret of the private safe, obtains the much coveted formulas. The laboratory fire is successfully extinguished and he returns to take Vera for a stroll in his extensive grounds. While there, overcome with emotion, Vera confesses her treachery and returns the papers she has stolen to Jack. A telegram arrives from the Government, informing him that they wish to take up the test of his invention at once, and that Captain Dolan is on his way for an interview. Meanwhile, however, Paul, the chauffeur, has been busy and informed Rubinoff of Vera's deception. When Vera reaches home the infamous cowards gag the defenseless girl, and forge a note to Jack. Luckily Jack receives the note while talking with Captain Dolan. Thinking Vera to be in peril, he dashes off on his bicycle to rescue her. Rubinoff and Paul have anticipated this and attack him from behind, gag him and place him in their waiting automobile. Captain Dolan, surprised at his friend's sudden departure, takes up the note and reads it. He starts off to follow Jack, but is astounded when reaching the road to find Jack's bicycle and hat lying there in mute evidence of foul play. Looking around, he sees the automobile going off at break-neck speed. The chase seems hopeless, but undaunted he follows in its tracks. Vera is bound to the side of a deep canal lock. Jack is brought to the bank and Rubinoff demands that Jack immediately inform him of his deadly secret or he will force him to stay in agony and watch his loved one gradually drown.

At an order from Rubinoff, the chauffeur proceeds to open the flood gates and immediately an enormous volume of water begins to surround the unfortunate Vera. Jack is powerless to save her, but just as he is about to give up his secret, Captain Dolan appears on the scene, and felling the chauffeur, commences to close the flood gates.

Rubinoff, thinking his plans will be frustrated, levels a revolver at Captain Dolan and shouts, "Hands up, or I shoot the girl." This was a fatal move and Jack, seeing his opportunity, swings around and with his bound feet, plants them squarely in the back of Rubinoff and sends him deep into the surging waters. Thus free, the Captain quickly closes the flood gates and proceeds to Jack's assistance, who when free, immediately dives into the lock to rescue his sweetheart. Rubinoff, however, is a good swimmer, and safe but exhausted, manages to get out of the water only to meet the revolver of Captain Dolan, from whom he is only too glad to escape by giving up all the papers in his possession. Jack, meanwhile, has rescued Vera.

AMMEX.

THE FATAL RECKONING (2 parts).—A party of pioneers, among them Farley and Rand with their families, are on their way across the plains. Rand, while stopping at a stream to get a drink for his son, discovers gold. He returns to the camp for paper to stake his claim, and catches Farley in the act of making love to his wife. He overlooks it for the time being, and he and his boy go back to his claim, taking an old letter Farley has given him. From this letter he tears out the blank page to use to stake his claim, putting the letter part in his blouse. Hearing shots he goes to a hill. Indians are fast wiping out their little band.

After the Indians have gone, Rand rescues Farley from the wreck of an old wagon. After burying the dead they start off on the journey. One night Farley and Rand quarrel over a game of cards. In the struggle Rand falls from a cliff to the rocks below, where he lies apparently dead. Farley takes the boy with him, and filing a claim to Rand's mine, they go northward. Rand is picked up by prospectors badly injured about the head—he remembers nothing. They find Farley's ring which he had won in the game and also the letter. He becomes identified as John Farley.

After twenty years of aimless wandering, Rand turns up in Seattle, where the Farleys live. Rand's boy has been raised by Farley as his own son, and is now a physician. Farley's daughter and supposed son are devoted to each other. While automobiling they run down and injure an old man. The young doctor operates on him and his memory is restored. He proves himself to be Rand and confronts Farley, who recognizes him. Rand asks for his son, who overhearing, recalls his childhood and remembers his father. Farley dies from the shock and his daughter restores the mine to its rightful owner. She and young Rand learn that their love is more than that of sister and brother.

ECLECTIC.

TOILS OF VILLAINY (3 parts—Nov. 27).—Richard Marvin, a circus owner, is in love with Alice Simpson, a tight-rope walker. He objects to her receiving attentions from Tom Collins, a jockey. During a performance, Alice falls to the ground and is rendered unconscious. The circus owner attempts to go to her assistance, but is hurled aside by Tom, who carries the girl to her dressing-room. There he revives her and then takes her to her home. Consumed with jealousy, Marvin orders that the jockey be discharged. Dejected, Tom calls on Alice and tells her the bad news. She advises him to answer an advertisement in the newspaper, and he succeeds in securing a position with John Wilson, a noted race-horse owner. He makes rapid progress in his new position, and is selectel by Wilson to ride the favorite in a coming race. The circus owner learns that Tom is to ride and determines to wreak vengeance on him. He goes to see Alice, who has recovered from her injuries, but she refuses to receive him. Furious at being snubbed, he threatens to harm her lover unless she consents to see him. Frightened at his threats, she consents. He attempts to embrace her, but she repulses him. Enraged, he tells her that he is going to kill Tom, and locks her in her room. Alarmed for the safety of her lover, she is powerless to warn him, as she is im-

A BIO BOOSTER

is what every user of the famous

BIO CARBONS

invariably becomes. This is but natural since the admirable results obtained therewith of

MOVING PICTURE PROJECTIONS

are so vastly superior to the use of the common carbons—no matter under what brand.

JUST BECAUSE

They
BURN STEADIER
BURN CLEARER
BURN BRIGHTER
BURN LONGER
AND WITH LESS CURRENT

BIO CARBONS

THEY ARE WHAT YOU WANT.

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

| NEW YORK | MILWAUKEE | SAN FRANCISCO |
|---|---|---|
| 165 Greenwich St. | 114 Huron St. | 143 Second St. |

---

A SHOWMAN—A BARNUM

is as likely to develop in a two hundred seat house as he would be in the New York Hippodrome, which seats five thousand. We have all got to begin somewhere. The development of the Exhibitor to the SHOWMAN is gradual, and it can be RAPID and can only be done through the BOX OFFICE. Give away our Semi-Photo Post Cards of the Popular Photo-Player and your Box Office will show you increased business.

Semi-Photo Post Cards, $3.00 per thousand; formerly sold for $4.00. Over 300 different players.

Hand Colored Post Cards

For the better class of Souvenirs, 30 of the most popular Association players, $10.00 per thousand

Photo Post Cards

for hand coloring. NOTE: The Public buy cards from stationers and color them. It's a new fad—30 Association Players $5.00 per thousand.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, Association and Independent, 300 different names, 20 cents each.

LARGE PICTURE, semi-photo, glazed finish, size 11 x 14, $1 per doz.; 43 prominent players.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, Prominent Association players, $2.00 for set of 12.

Photographs for lobby display of the two and three reel features of Kalem, Lubin and Edison, and also all of the Mutual multiple reels—set of 6, $1.00. Set of 12, $2.00. Always ready 10 days ahead of release.

Lobby frames to hold 12 pictures with necessary cards—$6.00 each.

KRAUS MFG. CO. 14 East 17th St., New York

Send for Catalogue of over 300 players and samples free. All letters answered the same day as received

---

Film Quality

Quality in the film—quality from a technical photographic standpoint is as important to the Exhibitor as is interest in the story that the film tells.

There's one film that's recognized the world over as the standard of quality—that is always used by those whose effort it is to give the Exhibitors the very best goods and the very best service—Eastman film.

And it is identifiable. Look for "Eastman" on the perforated margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

prisoned on the top floor of the house in which she lives. The sight of the umbrella which she uses to balance herself in her circus act, suggests a way of escape, and she decides to take the terrible risk. She crawls along the edge of the house and makes her way to a telegraph wire attached to the corner. Steadying herself for a moment, she begins her desperate trip, while below her the people gasp in horror as they realize her frightful danger. Balancing herself with the aid of the umbrella, she walks along the slender wire to a telegraph pole and climbs down to the street. Frantically she hastens to the race-track and learns that the villain has already arrived. She finds his trail and traces him to a secluded part of the race course, where she perceives him crouching, pistol in hand, ready to shoot down the unsuspecting jockey as he rides by. She throws herself upon the murderous wretch and attempts to wrest the gun from him. Seeing the struggle, an officer comes to her assistance and wrenches the revolver from the villain just as Tom dashes by on his horse. He is overcome and dragged off to jail, while Tom, flushed with victory and amid the plaudits of the spectators, is soon enfolded in the arms of his sweetheart, who had so bravely given her life to save her lover.

RUBY FEATURES.

THE BLACK 107 (3 parts).—The picture opens with a scene in the home of a Russian Jewish family, which develops that the student son is in love with a Gentile girl. In the course of events he finds that his religion stands in the way of his love and he becomes a convert to Christianity. He is cast out by his own people and at the same time the Christians do not accept him wholeheartedly. His treatment at the hands of his people causes him to swear vengeance on them, and he becomes a priest later in life. The story now carries over to a tavern, where a company of thieves is planning the robbery of a farmer, who drives by in his wagon. When they commit the deed, a small boy happens to be in the neighborhood and witnesses it. Frightened, he runs to the very tavern where the crime was planned and tells Vera, who is one of the ringleaders, what he saw. This makes the boy the object of fear on the part of the band and he is locked in a room, from which he never emerges. We now see a session of the "Black 107," the most feared and powerful of Russian anti-Semitic societies. The alarm has been sounded and they have seized upon the murder of the boy as a means for causing further persecution of the Jews. They order the chief of police to find the Jew who committed the crime and when he reports on an investigation of the murder that there are no such indications he is removed from office and cast into prison. His successor is a tool of the "Black 107," however, and this leads to the arrest of Mendel Beliss. All through the story thus far is shown that the converted Jew who has become a priest is the chief council and right arm of the "Black 107." He has taken a terrible means for wreaking his vengeance on the Jews and it is because of the fact that he was himself a Jew earlier in life that the "Black 107" makes great capital of his testimony. When the trial comes on, it is his testimony which is the most damaging and we show how, while the trial is in progress, the Jews throughout the civilized world wait breathlessly for the verdict. When at last it comes and Beliss is acquitted there is great rejoicing and when the picture finishes, the innocent victim with his little family gathered about him, is turning his face toward the golden land of opportunity.

ITALIAN-AMERICAN FILM CO.

THE MAGIC VEIL; or THE LOVE OF A HINDOO (4 parts).—Irma Vallon, an adventuress, entices the high minister of the cabinet, Dauban, to fall in love with her, only to bring about his downfall as the accomplice of Leuvor, his enemy in the cabinet, who promises to pay her a large sum of money if he is successful. Her Hindoo servant, Ali, falls a victim to her charms. At her feet he confesses his love for her. She dismisses him immediately, adding an enemy to her list.

Her co-partner in crime starts a sensational rumor in the newspapers of a notorious actress who has indebted herself to a large sum of money as a guarantee to a note that she has issued to a high minister of the cabinet. Dauban signs his name. At the point of destroying herself, her victim is pressed to do as she wishes. The ruination of Dauban successful, she leaves Paris, and goes to Spain, in search of other victims. She goes under another name and lives as a wealthy widow. The Duke of Gervan, who spends leisure hours driving about in his motor car, has a mishap, and is obliged to beg for hospitality of the nearest house, which is that of the rich widow, Mrs. L. Vernon. Her beauty and her ways seem to attract the duke's attention to such an extent as to invite her to a royal affair one week after the mishap to his motor car. At the ball in the palace, she feigns illness as an excuse to be alone with him.

But her other victims are not dead. Dauban hears of her engagement and sends a message that he will expose her before her marriage as revenge for her sins dealt to him. Ali, her former servant, now selling rugs for a living, is standing down in front of her home selling rugs to some of the peasants. She remembers his love, and sends for him, telling him to go to Paris, and get the letters from Dauban, making him rich if he succeeds. Ali, the Hindoo, offers to go. But once away from her, his mind is set for revenge. He goes to Paris to see Dauban, whose disgrace is now killing him. Ali gets him before his life is extinct, and begs on his knees and to the gods with oaths, that he will get revenge for two, if Dauban will give him the letters. Trusting the Hindoo, he gives them.

Irma, in the meantime, takes no chances and begs the count to marry her before he leaves for the meeting of the high nobility at the king's palace. Irma, now married, waits for Ali's return, and is satisfied that there can be no danger of being exposed. Ali calls to see the duke, hands the letters and the picture and leaves. He now sees that this adventuress has duped him. His mind set, he orders his things packed, and takes her to his ancestors' palace, where there is a dungeon which houses the magic veil that brings revenge to those who have been wronged by a woman.

GAUMONT.

THE FALL OF CONSTANTINOPLE, A. D. 1453—(3 parts).—The whole history of the Ottaman Turks is a romance. The Thirteenth Century had half run its course when a Seljuk Sultan was one day har beset near Angora by a Mongol host. Ertoghrul, a member of the Oghuz family of Turks, was journeying from the banks of the Euphrates, when he unexpectedly came upon the battlefield of Angora. Loving a scrimage and seeing that the weaker side was getting the worst of it, he led his four hundred riders into the fray and won the day.

Thus was the foundation of "Turkey in Europe" laid. Little did the impulsive Turk think that by his chivalrous act he had taken the first step towards founding an empire which in the later centuries, has been, and still is, in an iitense political problem.

In two generations the little body of shepherds had possessed themselves of the whole of the northwest corner of Asia Minor. Before Orkhan, the new Sultan, lay a valuable prize. The wealthy provinces of the Byzantine Empire were falling to pieces. Constantinople was the goal of his ambition, and the value of the firm and equitable government of the Turk was known to the Greeks, who contrasted it with the persistent and perfidious intrigues of the Byzantine Emperor. Good and impartial government under the conditions obtaining, was out of the question. Civil war had reduced the Empire, and the advent of the Turk would have been welcomed.

Slowly but persistently the Turks pushed further into Europe, and by the middle of the Fifteenth Century were masters of all the country round Constantinople save the city itself. All attempts to win it had failed, and this film, "The Fall of Constantinople," beautifully hand-colored, shows how Mohammed II succeeded in wresting the city from Constantine XIII, the last Christian Emperor of Constantinople.

APEX.

PETER MAKAROFF (Four parts).—The highly gifted Peter Makaroff has become poor, wretched and old. Avoided by all people, he lives with his daughter, alone and strange, in a miserable, dilapidated cottage far apart from homes and haunts of human beings. His whole life he haunted a phantom: his secret unfathomable invention with the proud caprice of a great man and the imperturbable belief in his power. One day the unexpected happens. Suddenly the liquid in his crucible lights mysteriously with a greenish tint, and the air is filled with a strange phosphorescent vapor. Peter Makaroff thrusts his tongs into the crucible, lifts up a shining something. It is gold, pure, clean gold, and he has made it. Now fate will compensate him for the days of disappointment, for the mocking of the people, for all disappointments and privations.

But quite different is the effect of the great invention to what he thought it would be. Since gold has depreciated, what is there still of any value? Traffic stops as nobody wants to take gold as a means of payment. The rates of exchange decline to nothing. Every possession is losing its value, all estates have become valueless. Other states are also getting into trouble and uproar. They fear the possibility that a state backed by Peter Makaroff's invention and based on his inexhaustible goldstorm, could gain the sway over the other states Austria and France eagerly request a rejection of the invention and inventor. England is threatened with war; America threatens with boycott. In the interior of the country anarchy and bankruptcy are threatened and the world is in uproar. Peter Mararoff has shaken the foundation of the regulations of the world.

He is imprisoned, but is set free through the ever persevering efforts of his daughter. They fly to another country and into a new life. Peter Makaroff shares his riches with the poor and unfortunate, gives presents and charities. He has not forgotten the days of indigence; he becomes the benefactor of the whole district. At night only, when the world sleeps, he works underground in his secret laboratory, making the riches and his means for his charity. But neither is this life granted him by the world. Peter Makaroff, the inventor of artificial gold, is too dangerous to humanity. He is recognized and turned out of his solitary occupation into desperation and death. One night soldiers arrive to arrest him. The very same people to whom he had been charitable revolt against him. With his daughter he flies to his strong laboratory, but they try to break the iron door. Inside, rush the machines, and the monometer rises; he does not try to stop them. Outside arrest and imprisonment threatens him, inside lurks death. He has his choice and does not hesitate. Better dead with his poor, innocent child, than again fall into the hands of an inexorable state. Better a quick end than a painful death of everlasting imprisonment. The monometer still rises; a last embrace, a kiss; the overheated kettle explodes, the arch moves to and fro, totters and breaks down and covers under its ruins the poorest richest man in the world, together with his poor child and his unfortunate invention.

A BARGAIN WITH SATAN (5 parts).—Balduin, a student of Prague, leaves his roystering companions in the beer garden, when he finds he has reached the end of his resources. He is scarcely seated in a quiet corner when a hideous, shrivelled up old man taps him upon the shoulder and whispers vaguely of a big inheritance for Prague's finest swordsman and wildest student if he will enter into a certain agreement. Balduin rebuffs him, satirically asking his weird companion to procure him "the luckiest ticket in a lottery or a doweried wife."

The old man goes off chuckling and thence onward persistently shadows Balduin, exerting a sinister influence over him, while Balduin is still disconsolate under the frowns of fortune. The Countess Margit Schwarzenberg, hunting with her cousin, to whom her father has betrothed her, meets with an accident. She is thrown over her horse's head into a river, but Balduin, who has been directed to the spot by his evil genius, plunges in and rescues her. Subsequently Balduin calls to inquire as to her condition at the castle of her father, the count, but he makes a hurried departure when Baron Waldis arrives, the contrast in their appearance discrediting him.

His desire to win the countess and to humiliate the baron becomes so pronounced that he readily accedes to the compact suggested by Scapinelli, the old man, who has so pertinaciously dogged his footsteps, particularly when he learns that untold wealth and power will be his when he assigns to the other the right to take from his room whatever he chooses for his own use as he desires. The agreement is signed. Balduin receives a shower of gold and notes as his portion; Scapinelli takes —Balduin's soul exposed in concrete form by his shadow!

Balduin prosecutes his love affair assiduously and with apparent success, till the baron is informed of it by a jealous gipsy girl. He challenges Balduin to a duel, and the latter, assured of his superiority as a fencer, readily agrees. Count Schwarzenberg learns of the impending duel and appeals to Balduin not to kill "my sister's child, my daughter's future husband, and my heir." Balduin gives his promise, but when he goes to the venue of the duel he meets—his own counterpart stalking away derisively wiping his gory sword on his cloak. Balduin turns and in the far distance, sees the dying victim of the deed he sware he would not do. He rushes from the spot horror-stricken.

When he regains sufficient composure he makes his way to the castle of the count, but is refused admission. Determined to explain that he had no complicity in the death of the baron, Balduin climbs into a room in which the countess is seated. She receives him coldly, but soon succumbs to his ardent wooing. Just as he seeks to leave her she notices he has no shadow and that the mirror gives no reflection of him; and she drops back affrighted, the ghastly apparition of himself which takes shape in the corner of the room sends Balduin scuttling away from the castle in a paroxysm of terror.

He makes a frenzied flight through a woodland estate and the streets of Prague, wut wherever he stops to recover his breath he is haunted by the counterpart of himself. He reaches his rooms and draws a murderous looking fire-arm from its case. As the phantasmagorical figure strides towards him with a sinister grin, he fires—and in a few minutes the blood gushes from his own side from a fatal wound.

FAMOUS PLAYERS.

LEAH KLESCHNA (Four parts — Dec. 10.— Leah has been taught by her father from early childhood to steal. In attempting to commit a robbery at the house of Paul Sylvaine, she is caught in the act by Sylvaine, who, instead of treating her as a thief and turning her over to the police, has an extraordinary interview with her. Sylvaine has faith in the innate goodness of human nature, and this faith is strengthened by Leah's confession that her father has taught her to steal, and that she wants to go somewhere to begin life anew, and forget the past. An adroit complication is here introduced that increases the suspense. The brother of the girl that Sylvaine is to marry, returning from a drunken spree, enters Sylvaine's apartments and steals the jewels that Leah was to have taken. Sylvaine believes that he has been duped by Leah, who after all his kindness and forbearance, fulfilled her job before she left. But eventually Sylvaine learns that the theft was committed by his fiancee's brother. Leah is exonerated, and just to help sentimental matters along, the engagement between Sylvaine

"Electra" ## PINK LABEL
Carbons

CONSIDERING the great importance of high grade carbons for projector work there is no argument in favor of inferior carbons.

"Electra" high grade Pink Label carbons have for years been the choice of a large majority of operators on account of their superior quality, and their use is a guarantee of clear, well defined pictures.

ELECTRA

·TRADE MARK·

HUGO REISINGER

11 Broadway

NEW YORK

COUPON

Fill out the blank below and I will be glad to send you samples of "Electra" Pink Label Carbons best suited to your requirements. A trial will convince you of their superiority.

A. C. or D. C. current..............................

Voltage ..............................

Amperage ..............................

Signed ..............................

Address ..............................

---

Cheese is Fine for Mouse Traps

But it is very poor stuff to print moving pictures on, as any exchange man can tell you.

INSIST on LUMIERE FILM in your prints and get durability and photographic quality combined. No other film has this combination in an equal degree. The price is attractive. Write for particulars

DAVID HORSLEY

1600 Broadway, Mecca Building, New York

AMERICAN AGENT FOR LUMIERE FILM

---

SEEING IS BELIEVING!
MAKE US SHOW YOU!

Get our large, free Samples. Test! Compare with any Screen or Curtain in the world.

Surely you have the evidence of your own eyes. Mirroroide is canvas-coated with our world-famous Metalized Glass, in three tints—Silver White, Silver Flesh, Silver Amber (Pale Gold) surface finish. Rough or Matte, insuring perfect projection, regardless of how close or what angle.

Mirroroide is sold under a positive five-year guarantee. It can't crack! peel! or turn black! It insures perfect projection without haze! glare! or eye strain!

What the Management of Wheeling's Large New Photoplay House Has to Say:

Nov. 28, 1913.

We are highly pleased with our Mirroroide Screen, and would state that we had under consideration the installation of a direct current plant, but found that we received most excellent results with A. C. and Mirroroide.

We would advise all exhibitors using alternating current to install your Screen. The results cannot be improved upon, in our estimation.

THE INLAND AMUSEMENT CO.,
Wheeling, W. Va.,
C. M. HUTCHINSON.

For New York City Exhibitors:

Visit America's most costly Photoplay Theatre, The Regent, 116th St. and 7th Ave. This theatre seats 1800; cost $500,000. Pictures are projected on a Mirroroide Screen. Visit The Savoy Theatre, 34th St., near Broadway. They are using a Mirroroide Screen. Visit The Bryant Theatre, 42nd St. See what Mirroroide will do.

If your Dealer or Film Exchange can't supply you, write direct.

The J. H. Genter Co., Inc.

Newburgh, N. Y.

The Largest Screen Manufacturers in the World.

and his fiancee is suddenly terminated. Sylvaine seeks Leah and finds her living far from Paris, a redeemed and regenerated woman. He asks her to marry him; she consents; and the jewels that brought her into Sylvaine's home and into contact with his refining influence are bestowed upon her as a wedding gift.

PAT. CASEY.

THE LIFE AND WORKS OF RICHARD WAGNER (4 parts).—At the age of eight, Wagner plays for his dying step father. When sixteen he studies with Cantor Weinlig. Then follows a period of dissipation. In 1834 he is offered the position of conductor of the Lauchstädt Opera. He first refuses, but, meeting the leading actress, Wilhelmina Planer, he accepts. In 1836 he is conductor at Königsberg, and marries "Minna." They quarrel over his extravagance, but are reconciled in time to greet their friends.

In 1838 Wagner is conductor at Riga,—while rehearsing he is interrupted by his creditors. Assisted by his friend Möller, he eludes them and the Cossack sentries. He reaches a German seaport, where he boards a small sailing vessel and starts for Paris. During the voyage a terrific storm inspires "The Flying Ditchman." Arriving in Paris he calls upon Meyerbeer and plays parts of "Rienzi" for him. Meyerbeer gives him letters, among them one to the director of the Paris Opera, who, however, refuses to do anything. He calls upon Liszt, who receives him cordially. Minna is disheartened by his failures, but when things are at the worst, he receives a letter from his brother-in-law calling him to Dresden to produce "Rienzi."

"Rienzi" is successfully produced in 1842, and at the age of 30 Wagner is appointed conductor of the Dresden Opera. He again extravagantly furnishes a home. "The Flying Dutchman" is produced and fails. His creditors become urgent, and when "Tannhäuser" fails he is dismissed. Bakunin, a Russian revolutionary, persuades him to join the uprising of 1849. He addresses a meeting and arouses great enthusiasm. The insurrection is quelled and Wagner is forced to flee, being aided by Liszt. He goes to Zürich. He reads the liberetto of the "Niebelung's Ring" for a party of friends, among them being von Bülow and his wife, Cosima, the daughter of Liszt. During the reading, scenes from the "Ring" are shown. Inspired by the beautiful Frau Wesendonck, Wagner begins "Tristan and Isolde." Their friendship arouses Minna's jealousy and, after a quarrel, they separate.

King Ludwig of Bavaria, sends for Wagner and establishes him in Münich in the Spring of 1864. The King's ministers seek Wagner's assistance, which he refuses. They manage to have him sent away. He goes to Lucerne, where the King visits him during the composition of "The Master-singers." Cosima, having separated from von Bülow, comes to Wagner and they are married in 1870. Bright days come; the Festspielhaus and Wahnfried are built at Bayreuth. Kaiser Wilhelm attends the opening performance. Ludwig receives Wagner and his family. "Parsifal" is produced July 26, 1882. February 13, 1883, Wagner dies in Venice. The last picture shows the dead master surrounded by the characters he had created.

UNION FEATURES.

CAROUGE THE GHOUL; OR THE AVENGERESS (Three parts).—Mrs. Mallett, the living image of her daughter, Henriette, a talented painter, leaves for Switzerland and stops at the Wolf Inn, where she is welcomed by the proprietor, Ruder, and his daughter, Louisa. In the meantime, Father Gurth, a fox hunter, is mixing some of his poisonous concoctions on a dinner plate in the kitchen. He is ordered away by the cook, who unconsciously places a pile of clean plates upon the one the hunter had been using, and the poisoned plate is given Mrs. Mallett. While at the dinner table, Mrs. Mallett drops her handbag. Louisa picks it up and admires the jewels therein. She is given one. Unknown to any of the other travelers, the eyes of Carouge sparkle with covetousness when he sees the beautiful jewelry carried by Mrs. Mallett, and when the latter retires that night her bedroom door is quietly opened and Carouge takes her jewel bag.

Mrs. Mallett dies the next morning and Henriette is advised of her death. Accompanied by Pierre Dorchain, she starts for Switzerland. Dressed in masculine attire she arrives at the inn,, where she meets Father Gurth mixing his poisonous baits with which to catch foxes, and he tells her how deadly it is to human beings. Later Henriette meets Louisa and learns how she was given the ring which belonged to her (Henriette's) mother. She asks permission to spend the light in the room where her mother had died, and the next morning the inn-keeper is astounded to find what would seem to be the dead person herself. In spite of all the threats, Henriette is unable to have him prove anything but his innocence.

Henriette returns to Paris, where she receives commission to paint the portrait of Countess d'Attili, upon whom she recognizes a cameo as having belonged to her dead mother. Learning that the jewel was purchased at a noted Parisian antiquary, the women go there and obtain that the jewels were purchased some time ago from a man by the name of Carouge, who had established his identity. On the pretense that she, Pierre and Countess d'Attili want to buy jewelry, Henriette requests Carouge to call at her studio. Upon meeting Henriette he imagines that he sees in her the apparition of her mother and asks her pardon. Carouge escapes before the police arrive, but is finally trailed to his haunt, where he climbs to the roof, and in his struggle with Henriette they both fall over. Carouge is killed. Henriette is miraculously saved.

LEWIS PENNANT.

TAXICAB 1098; OR THE MYSTERY OF THE RED SKULL (3 parts—Dec. 20).—Sheridan Keen is addicted to the morphia habit, and his friend, Dr. Watson, after vainly endeavoring by medical warning and friendly expostulations to cure him of the vice which threatens his life and reason, has recourse to a trick and by means of a mysterious telegram sends Keen to a theater where he is the witness of an attempt by the beautiful dancer, Carmen, to escape from the brutality of her partner, Gomez. Keen comes to the girl's rescue and secures her a home in the house of Dr. Watson. Gomez contrives to take the place of the driver, and when Keen re-enters the taxi, he realizes the trick that has been played upon him, and punctures the tire with a shot from his revolver, so bringing the car to a standstill.

Gomez, however, is not done with, and disguised as a gardener, contrives to enter Watson's house and places a drugged bouquet before Carmen. When she is unconscious he is about to carry her off, but Keen again arrives in the nick of time, and defeats him. Later, Keen learns of another plan of Gomez. To frustrate it, he must reach Dr. Watson's house without delay. A motorcycle is requisitioned, and on this Keen rushes through the streets, carries away the gates at a level crossing, and gets over just before a train dashes up. He reaches the house in time to defeat Gomez' plan, for the third and last time, and, with Carmen as his wife, finds life too sweet to be spoiled by his old addiction to morphia, which Dr. Watson is delighted to observe he now avoids altogether.

TRUE FEATURES.

CORSICAN BLOOD (3 parts).—Paolo, a young Corsican, is entangled in a feud and the police of the island are pursuing him with great vigor. He is paying a secret visit to his sweetheart, when he catches sight of an officer disappearing through a window of the house. Paolo suspects that his sweetheart has been flirting with the officer and sets out to capture him. Paolo, however, is a strange composite of revengefulness and good heartedness for, when, in the course of the pursuit he sees his enemy fall into the water, and about to drown, he is touched with pity and swiftly dismounting his horse, saves him from death. This, however, does not abate the fury of other police officers and there ensues a series of thrilling escapes and adventures. He is aided by his brother in whose fishing hut he finds shelter. The officers, however, are soon upon his trail and he hides himself in a stack of hay. The officers make a thorough search of the house without finding any trace of their man, when the captain bribes the young nephew of Paolo, with the gift of a new watch. The little boy points to the hay stack, which is set on fire. Paolo is captured, but there is a most sensational rescue. Paolo is brought to his brother's home mortally wounded. He forgives the little traitor and when the officers surround the house and the captain enters the room, he discovers that Paolo has been summoned before another court.

AMONG THE EXHIBITORS.

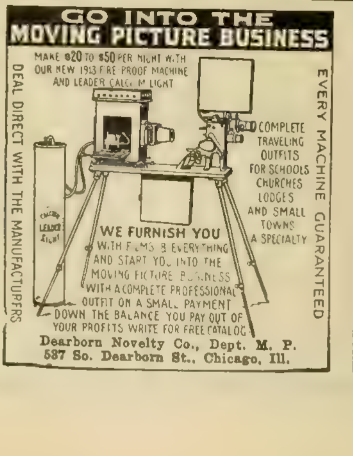
Chicago, Ill.—Harry T. Loper, owner of the Lyric, has purchased the So. Side Theater, and put his son, Russell, in charge.

Maysfield, Ky.—The Pastime Picture Theater will reopen under the management of E. T. Kirk, Stanton Clift and G. S. Jones.

New York, N. Y.—Isaac Silvermann and Benj. Marks, will purchase ground at 2404 Second Ave., for the purpose of building a photoplay house.



GO INTO THE
MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS
MAKE $20 TO $50 PER NIGHT WITH OUR NEW 1913 FIRE PROOF MACHINE AND LEADER CALCIUM LIGHT
DEAL DIRECT WITH THE MANUFACTURERS
EVERY MACHINE GUARANTEED
COMPLETE TRAVELING OUTFITS FOR SCHOOLS CHURCHES LODGES AND SMALL TOWNS A SPECIALTY
WE FURNISH YOU WITH FILMS & EVERYTHING AND START YOU INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS WITH A COMPLETE PROFESSIONAL OUTFIT ON A SMALL PAYMENT DOWN THE BALANCE YOU PAY OUT OF YOUR PROFITS WRITE FOR FREE CATALOG
Dearborn Novelty Co., Dept. M. P.
537 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Plans are being estimated on by Max Goldstein, 901 Moore St., and others, for the erection of a picture house at 8th and Latona Sts.

Tulsa, Okla.—A building, of which part will be used as a picture house, is being built under the direction of A. L. Holton and associates. It is situated at East Second St., in Sand Springs, and the size of building is 48 by 60, of which half is occupied by the theater.

Peoria, Ill.—It is expected that Judge Hilton will build a picture house at Chillicothe, Ill.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Contract has been awarded to Freund & Seidenbach Co., for the building of a moving picture theater.

Bessemer, Ala.—J. A. Snider is having his Grand Theater remodeled.

Waterford, Wis.—In order to afford the people of this town a show, J. E. Williams, of Walworth, will occupy the Amusement Hall for the exhibition of moving pictures.

Ottawa, Ill.—Becoming manager of the Ottawa Theater, Mr. Frank M. Raleigh will make improvements on same.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Samuel Morrison has a permit for a photoplay house, anticipating construction at the corner of 2nd and Ontario streets, the cost of which is estimated at $5,600, for Wm. S. Crager.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Summer-Quincy Amusement Co., Inc., has invested in another picture house, which is soon to be built. Mr. Loeb, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Clark, of White Plains, are interested.

Hampton, Ia.—The Old Foundry Bldg., F. J. Keefe, owner, is the site for a picture theater, and ground may soon be broken for such a building.

Manayunk, Pa.—Jas. E. Doake & Co., has been anticipating the erection of a show house, the name of which is said to be the Empress Theater.

Dewitt, Ia.—Messrs. Lang Bros., proprietors of the Opera House, under management of S. O. Sheldon, are making preparations for having the house remodeled.

Clinton, Ia.—Improvements are being made on the Colonial Theater, under the direction of F. De Lent, of Chicago, who has recently purchased it.

Baltimore, Md.—Theresa D. Marks, having filed application for a picture theater at 719 W. Baltimore St., has given instructions to H. H. MacLellan to start on the building of it.

St. Louis, Mo.—Permission was granted to Albert Seitrich to build a photoplay house at 3702 Minnesota Ave., which will cost $10,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Plans are being estimated on for the building of a new picture theater at 21st St. and Columbia Ave., by the Graham Champion Co.

Jamestown, N. Y.—A lot on the West side of Brooklyn Sq., has been purchased by Harry Griswold and James Carpenter, for the purpose of building a motion picture theater.

Batesville, Ark.—Mosby Bros., have purchased a two thirds interest in the Gem Theater, of this town, and will take management of the place.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Jos. W. Kline, being awarded the contract for the building of a photoplay house, will soon start on it. The owner will be Geo. Schinn. It will be a one-story structure, 44 by 88 feet, and will cost $12,000. Situation of the house is to be 2530 North Broad St.

Albert Lea, Minn.—V. B. Valleau has succeeded Fred Mallery at the Broadway Theater.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Having been awarded the contract, the Lamb Building Co. will start on the construction of a one-story picture theater 32 x 115 feet, for Thomas C. Walsh.

Palmyra, Mo.—In course of construction is a moving picture house, 20 miles East of Monroe City. When completed, it will be the property of Messrs Kirby & Angus.

Wymore, Nebr.—Several local capitalists are anticipating the erection of a photoplay house, with a seating capacity of 500.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John McShain and M. L. Coneen & Co., are looking forward to the building of a moving picture theater at 1528 West York St., which, it is expected, will be a one-story brick building, 40 by 80 feet.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A photoplay house at Oakland Ave., near Folsom Place, is nearing completion. The building is 60 by 120 feet, is of Colonial style, and of fireproof construction. J. H. Stapleton is the owner.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Chelten Theater Company is adding to its list another picture house and hall. The cost of the two-story brick building, which measures 92 by 140 feet, is estimated at about $30,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Frank E. Wallace has plans for the building of a picture house at the corner of 2nd and Ontario Sts., for Wm. S. Crazer.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A one-story brick and terra cotta picture theater, 70 by 1,000 feet, is to be erected at 25th and Allegheny Ave., for M. Selvman.

Stockton, Cal.—The reopening of the Novelty Theater will be greeted by many motion picture fans of this town. When the necessary requirements are finished, it will open as a first class photoplay house. The lessees are Messrs. L. R. Tucker & H. Lighthouse.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Contractor C. J. Reich has started construction on a theater building at Hunting Park and Marshall St., for the Eureka Amusement Co., at a cost of $11,500.

THE FOOS

SPECIAL ELECTRIC, GAS, GASOLINE, AND KEROSENE ENGINES

furnish light equal to the best central station service at less than half the cost. Ask us how we can reduce your charges for current from 25 to 75 per cent. Bulletin S. E. 98.

FOOS GAS ENGINE CO.
809 Linden Ave. Springfield, Ohio

Printing and Developing

We know how and have the finest equipped factory in the United States. Our prices are right. We use any raw stock you wish. -:- -:- -:-

CENTAUR FILM CO.
WM. HORSLEY, President
Avenue E, 42d to 43d St., Bayonne, N. J.

America's Oldest Independent Moving Picture Company

ROBERT RICHTER
Successor to
McIntyre & Richter
MOTION PICTURES
23 E. 14th St.
New York

NEW YORK STATE

FEATURES THAT YOU MUST BOOK EVENTUALLY

| | |
|---|---|
| MYSTERIES OF PARIS | 5 Reels |
| NERO and BRITANNICUS | 3 Reels |
| TIGRIS | 4 Reels |
| PALACE OF FLAMES | 3 Reels |
| BALAOO | 3 Reels |

Many others.

Attractive Slides, Heralds, Photos for Lobby Display. 1, 3, 6-Sheet Posters.

WRITE FOR PRICE LIST

PARSIFAL
Special for Holiday Weeks

AUTOMATIC MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

SIMPLICITY • RELIABILITY • ENDURANCE • SEEBURG

PIANOS AND ORCHESTRIONS

FOR THE MOVING PICTURE THEATRE

The "Seeburg Idea" in connection with automatic pianos and orchestrions means "Simplicity," "Reliability" and "Endurance," giving maximum merit at a minimum price. For further particulars write

J. P. Seeburg Piano Co. MANUFACTURERS
900-902-904 Republic Bldg., Chicago

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

SITUATIONS WANTED.

MANAGER—Of long experience, at liberty, small or large house. Have handled all kinds, been in film business since its birth. Wire or write. 232 Washington St., Williamsport, Pa.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—New York license, wishes position. 4 years' experience. All machines and spot lights. EDWARD RINCHEY, 161 West 15th St., New York City.

A 1 OPERATOR—7 years' experience; Mass. and Conn. License. Strictly sober and reliable. ED. HALL, 50 Columbia St., Swampscott, Mass.

AT LIBERTY—A 1 pianist. A. F. of M., seven years playing to vaudeville and expert picture dramatist. Strictly reliable. PIANIST, care of Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

POSITION WANTED—A 1 operator, 4 years' experience, best references, go anywhere, no place too far or too small. Prefer West or South. State equipment, wages, etc., in first letter. G. H. M., care of Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

"JACK" H. S. FULD—Is open for engagement. Do you want a live manager. Present contract expired Dec. 1st, and before renewing will consider Brooklyn or New York engagement. Personal interview solicited. Address 216 88th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PHOTOGRAPHER—Ten years' experience. Holding responsible positions with two licensed manufacturers within the past three years, desires position. At present engaged. References furnished. Address GEORGE E. KOEHLER, 7612 Edgerton Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

TENOR SINGER—Of ability, will make good anywhere, good sign painter and advertiser wants position as manager of house. Thoroughly understands the business and knows how to get the money. Experience of twelve years has taught me many things which you get the full benefit of. Have complete outfit of picture sound effects. Can furnish best of references from reliable men. Will consider any good proposition anywhere. Address R. B. F., Park Hotel, Lebanon, N. H.

FIRST CLASS MANAGER—For moving picture theater, is now open for position. Had several years' experience. Am a hustler and can show results. Address FIRST CLASS, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

AT LIBERTY—Thoroughly experienced house manager, hustler, wife expert pianist, plays pictures right, would like house in West or Middle West. Address L. F., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

WANTED—Capable manager for new high class moving picture theater. Must have had ample experience and show successful past management. None others need answer. Good salary and opportunities for the right man. Address OPPORTUNITY, care of Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

FOR RENT—Motion picture factory, vacant January 1st, now occupied by the New York Motion Picture Co. Can furnish full space for action if desired. Address A. F. SEXTON, owner, 1717 Allesandro St., Los Angeles, Cal.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Seating capacity 300 to 1,200—some suitable for vaudeville—guaranteed O. K. with Chicago Ventilation ordinance. HUME, Room 513, 608 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

PICTURE THEATER—Located 90 miles from New York City in New York, for sale; 800 capacity, 6-day house, 10c admission, small stage, fully equipped, steam heated building, now doing good business. Owner wishes to go into another line. Price, $9,000, for building and all. Will accept part payment. Address P. N. Y., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—Motion picture theater, capacity 1,000 seats. Net profit from 250 to 300 dollars per week. No opposition. This theater is constructed with large stage, and is fully equipped with scenery. Further particulars will be given by HENRY M. FLATEAU, 51 Chambers St., 10th Floor, New York City.

PICTURE THEATER—In central Pennsylvania. Bargain, if sold immediately. Good reasons for selling. Address REASONS, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six-sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, O.

FOR SALE—Powers 6a Machine, used very little. Also Powers Inductor and asbestos booth. STAR THEATER, Cooperstown, N. Y.

HUNDREDS OF OPERA CHAIRS—For sale cheap, opera house to be converted into an armory. Space needed at once. Will sell cheap for cash any number or all. Take the first train. J. S. ENGELKEN, LeMars, Iowa.

FOR SALE—Hallberg economizer, 220 volts, 60 cycles, $30. Bell & Howell transformer, 220 volts, 60 cycles, $35, both in absolutely first class condition. MARTIN L. FREDERICKS, 2017 North Twelfth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FILMS WANTED.

WILL BUY FEATURE FILMS—And single reels. Give full particulars, condition, lowest price, etc. MARTIN L. FREDERICKS, 2017 North Twelfth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FILMS FOR SALE.

300 COMMERCIAL REELS—With posters, $5 to $10. OMAHA FILM EXCHANGE, Omaha, Nebr.

FOR SALE—50 2, 3, 4-reel features; 500 commercials; write for lists; see ad on page 1347. R. RICHTER, 23 E. 14th St., New York City.

FOR SALE—New copy of Crusaders or Jerusalem, delivered; four reels with two hundred sheets new paper, three hundred dollars, with rights of West Virginia and Kentucky. Single reels slightly used with posters, as many as twelve reels weekly for one dollar per reel. Chance in a lifetime. Address BOX 394, Charleston, W. Va.

FEATURES FOR SALE—"Hunting Game in Large City," 3 reels, lot original paper, $150; "Unlucky Horseshoe," 3 reels, lot original paper, $150; "Marconi Operator," 3 reels, lot original paper, $150; "Tom Butler," 3 reels, lot original paper, $150. S. N. LICHTER, 306 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY—To secure the best feature and money maker, "The Resurrection of Nick Winter," Pathe, three reels, good condition, mounted paper, new mechanical front, recently invented. Feature unrestricted, snap at $300. Write or wire, W. A. ROSCOE, Gilger Theater, Norwalk, Ohio.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INFORMATION—Bright, interesting book on making, taking, finishing of moving pictures. The moving picture camera, its construction; by a cameraman of 20 years' experience, sent postpaid, 25c. FORDS, DENVER, Colo.

I WANT THE ADDRESS—Of every picture man that is playing to only fair or losing business. My system will increase your business from 50 to 100 per cent. COL. FRANK ROBERTSON, Empress Theater, Colorado Springs, Colo.

PHOTOPLAYS—Typewritten, eight cents page; accurately, expediously, through mail order. PUBLIC STENOGRAPHER, 1265 Broadway, New York City. Telephone 5217 Madison Sq.

WANTED—Present address of Ikonograph Co., or any one who has a number of their films for sale. Address IKONOGRAPH, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

TYPEWRITER—For authors, 40 cents per 1,000 words. Special Book rate. JACK LIVERPOOL, 394 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, Mass.

AGENTS WANTED—Flame arc lamp. Our new enclosed, long-burning lamp is ready. Superior to any now on the market. Longer life, more candle power, better distribution, lower price. Attractive proposition to responsible agents in position to properly push the sale of this lamp. Write for exclusive territory. HELOIS, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

ELECTRIC PIANOS—With keyboards, $80 to $125. Orchestrions, pianos with pipes, $240. All guaranteed to be in first-class condition. 44-note electric players, $60. Must be sold to close out business. Send for circular. J. F. HERMAN, 1420 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C.

NEW ORCHESTRA PIANO—For sale cheap, if taken at once. In good condition. Address BOWMAN & DULL, Star Theater, Broken Bow, Nebr.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

PROFESSIONAL MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS—Two sizes. Tripods, Zeiss-Tessar 50M. lenses, $150, $225. Special cameras to order. Repairing all makes. R. W. PITTMAN, 246 Canal St., New York City.

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY

AND

BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE.

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City
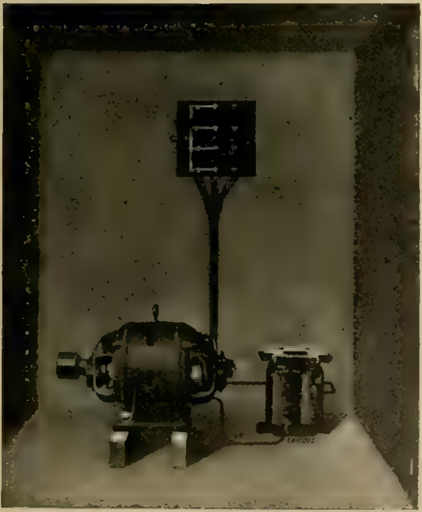
ESTABLISHED 1832

---



BE one of the first to install the most efficient machine on the market for changing

Alternating Current to Direct Current

The Wagner Converter does this and you will be interested sooner or later. Take the "Bull by the Horns" and ask us for details NOW or arrange for a demonstration.

Reasons Why the Wagner Is the BEST

Intense pure white light, true color values, simple to install, easy to handle, cheap to operate, NEVER OUT OF ORDER and reasonable in price.

Also distributors of Power, Simplex, Motiograph and Edison Machines

AVOID ANY DISPUTE OVER PRICES. ORDER WHERE YOU HAVE A "COME-BACK"

Send for our catalog containing a cut and description of the Simplex, Motiograph, Edison and Power's Machines. Also details of the entire equipment of a Motion Picture Theatre. It costs you nothing and may give you a suggestion of something YOU need, and we want your business.

Your Wants Our Specialty—Come In and Have a Chat With Us.

PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT COMPANY
21 East 14th St. New York City

INDEX

TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS .... 1271
AMERICAN FLAG IN CANADA 1259
AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAMING ARCS 1264

"BIG HORN MASSACRE, THE" (Kalem) 1262
BOOSTING OHIO CONVENTION 1283
BUFFALO .... 1291

CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES. ... 1356
CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES. 1358
CHANGE IN GENERAL FILM SERVICE.. 1266
CHICAGO LETTER .... 1281
CHICAGO CENSORSHIP .... 1265
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed) ... 1279
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)... 1280
CORRESPONDENCE .... 1291

"ENGINE OF DEATH, THE" (Apex). 1261

FACTS AND COMMENTS .... 1255
FAMOUS PLAYERS REACHING OUT.. ....1259
FEATURE FILM STORIES .... 1338
FLICKERS .... 1270
FOR THE DEFENSE.... 1266

FOREIGN TRADE NOTES ....1268
FRANK DAYTON ....1270

ILLINOIS ....1310
IN THE MIDDLEWEST ....1295
IN THE NORTHWEST. ....1295
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES .... 1352
INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES ....1332
INQUIRIES ....1274
IOWA ....1293

JOHN HANCOCK COLLINS....1263

LICENSED FILM STORIES ....1314
LICENSED RELEASE DATES....1354
LOUISVILLE ....1291

MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES. ....1287
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE. 1283
MISSOURI ....1312
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURE....1266
MUTUAL STARTS THINGS.. ....1260

NATIONAL LEAGUE DIRECTORY....1286
NEW RELIANCE STUDIO....1266
NEW ENGLAND & CANADA....1293

OHIO CENSORS RESTRAINED....1288
OHIO ....1292

PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT, THE....1273
PHILADELPHIA ....1291
PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED....1284
PITTSBURGH ....1295
PLAYING FAVORITES ....1257
PRINCESS ELENA'S PRISONER (Gt. Northn.).1260
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT ....1275

SPRINGFIELD ....1310
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)....1314
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)....1332
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Features)....1338

TEXAS CONVENTION ....1283
THE TRIUMPH OF THE GALLERY....1256
TWIST GOES TO AUSTRALIA....1262

"VICTORY OR DEATH" (Itala)....1265

"WHEN A WOMAN WILLS" (Cines-Kleine)..1258
WISCONSIN CONVENTION ....1284

"ZU ZU, THE BAND LEADER" (Keystone)...1262

TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.

KIEWERT, C. L., & CO ....1343
REISINGER, HUGO ....1345

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO....1322
BELL & HOWELL....1290
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO....1357
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO....1347
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO. ....1322
GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. .... 1322
HALLBERG, J. H ....1330
HOKE, GEO M., SUPPLY CO.. ....1320
LAVEZZI MACHINE CO....1290
MESTRUM, HENRY ....1318
PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO....1349
STRELINGER, CHAS. A. & CO ....1322
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC MFG. CO....1326

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES.

ALL STAR FEATURE CORP....1311
AMBROSIO AMERICAN CO....1358
AMERICA'S F. F. CO ....1356
APEX FILM CO ....1333
BLINKHORN, ALBERT ....1313
BOSWORTH, INC ....1335
BRADY, WM. A. ....1301
CASEY, PAT ....1307
CURTAIN F. CO ....1347
CHICAGO FEATURE FILM CO....1359
CRESCENT FILM CO.. ....1309
ECLECTIC FILM CO ....1323
EMPRESS THEATRE FILM CO....1324
FAMOUS PLAYERS ....1242-43
FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO. ....1318
FILM RELEASES OF AMERICA....1327
GENERAL FILM CO ....1246-47
GENERAL SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO....1320
GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO....1308
ITALA FILM CO ....1331
ITALIAN AMERICAN FILM CO....1357
JUNGLE FILM CO....1239
MAC LEON F. CO ....1341
SUPREME F. F. CO....1300
TRUE FEATURES ....1315
WARNER'S FEATURES ....1304-5
WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORP....1319

FILM BROKERS.

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS....1359

FILM EXCHANGES.

BRADENBURG, G. W....1356
ECONOMY FILM CO....1318
EXCLUSIVE SUPPLY CO....1329
G. & G. FILM SERVICE ....1326
GOLDEN GATE FILM EXCH ....1337
GREATER N. Y. FILM RENTAL CO....1354
LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE....1359
MUTUAL FILM CORP....1325
NORTHERN FEATURE FILM SERVICE....1322

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN ....1353
ECLAIR ....1300
GAUMONT ....1321
NEW MAJESTIC ....1362
N. Y. M. P. CO....1302-3
PILOT FILM CO....1306
RAMO FILM CO....1351
SOLAX ....1240-41
THANHOUSER .... 1234
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURERS....1236-7-8

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.

EDISON ....1248
ESSANAY ....1235
KALEM ....1254
KLEINE, GEO ....1249
LUBIN ....1251
MELIES ....1351
PATHE FRERES ....1250
SELIG ....1363
VITAGRAPH ....1252-53

LENSE MANUFACTURERS.

GUNDLACH MANHATTAN CO....1357

MISCELLANEOUS.

ADVANCE M. P. CO....1322
AHERN, E. A....1320
BERLINE ANILINE WORKS....1360
BURKE & JAMES....1356
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS ....1348
COMMERCIAL M. P. CO....1339
COUP-TICKET CO. ....1356
CUMMINGS, IRVING ....1290
DEARBORN NOVELTY CO....1346
EASTMAN KODAK CO....1343
ELBERT, J. D. ....1329
EZO MFG. CO....1312
GENERAL SALES CO....1317
GENERAL SPECIALTY CO....1328
GUNBY BROS. ....1322
HORSLEY, D. ....1345
HUME, T. D., & CO....1320
KRAUS MFG. CO....1343
LORD MFG. CO ....1312
M. K., care of M. P. WORLD....1324
METROPOLITAN PREM. CO....1328
M. P. EXHIBITORS' BALL....1355
NATIONAL TICKET CO....1352
NATIONAL X RAY REFLECTOR CO....1357
ONE DROP OIL CO....1322
PARISIAN MFG. & FILM RENOVATING CO..1361
PHANTOSCOPE MFG. CO....1360
PHOTOPLAY CO., INC....1336
RICHTER, R. ....1347
SARGENT, E. W....1361
STEBBINS, C. M....1326
THEATRE BROKERAGE EXCHANGE....1361
THEATRE RECORDS CO ....1346
TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO....1328
VERO EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY....1356
VISCO MOTOR OIL CO....1320
WHITE SPECIALTY CO....1329
WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE....1324
WOODRUFF, ELEANOR ....1290

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS.

AMERICAN CINEMATOGRAPH CO....1320
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA CO....1359
SCHNEIDER, EBERHARD ....1318

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

AMERICAN PHOTOPLAYER SALES CO....1359
DEAGAN, J. C. ....1361
SEEBURG, J. P., PIANO CO....1347
SINN, C. E....1361
WELTE, M., & SON....1349
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH ....1359

PROJECTION MACHINES.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO....1360
KINEMACOLOR CO. ....1358
POWERS ....1364
PRECISION MACHINE CO....1299

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN SEATING CO....1361
BENNETT SEATING CO....1361
HARDESTY MFG. CO....1361
STAFFORD, E. H ....1328
STEEL FURNITURE CO....1361
WISCONSIN SEATING CO....1361

POSTERS AND FRAMES.

A. B. C. CO....1350
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO....1296
GENERAL FILM CO....1297
NEWMAN MFG. CO ....1326
THEATRE SPECIALTY CO....1318

PROJECTION SCREENS.

AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN CO....1357
DAY & NIGHT SCREEN CO....1360
GENTER, J. H....1345
MIRROR SCREEN CO....1359
WYNNE, A. B., CURTAIN CO....1329

SONG AND ADVERTISING SLIDES.

CHICAGO SONG SLIDE CO....1322
ERKER BROS. ....1320
NIAGARA SLIDE CO....1328
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO....1329

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.

DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO....1359

ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEETS NOW READY

For the following MULTIPLE RELEASES:

Kalem's "THE HUNCHBACK" In Two Parts, released Dec. 15th

" "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" In Two Parts, released Dec. 17th

(2 Styles of One Sheets for release Dec. 17th)

Lubin's "A SON OF HIS FATHER" In Two Parts, released Dec. 18th

PLACE YOUR ORDER FOR THESE POSTERS AT ONCE, WITH YOUR EXCHANGE, OR DIRECT WITH US.

A. B. C. COMPANY - - CLEVELAND, OHIO

MÉLIÈS FILMS

Be an early one to book
"Exclusive Service" Release of Dec. 8th

The YELLOW SLAVE

THREE PART FEATURE EXTRAORDINARY

Copyrighted 1913 by G. Melies.

A subject of thrilling interest; produced in beautiful Japan; enacted entirely by Japanese.

---

December 11th

AT PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA

The City of Silver Temples

BEAUTIFUL ANGKOR-WAT, CAMBODIA

Historic Ruins

PRODUCED IN JAPAN.

---

RAMO

TRADE MARK

The Lion is the KING of the Forest

LIKEWISE

A Ramo Feature

IS

The KING of the American Feature Market

---

Our Next Feature ready for the market

December 10th

THE DEVIL WITHIN

In Three Parts

---

If your Exchangeman cannot serve you, get in touch with us direct

---

RAMO FILMS, Inc. Sales Offices, Columbia Theatre Building NEW YORK
C. Lang Cobb, Jr., Manager Sales and Publicity

INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES

AMERICAN.

Dec. 6—A Divorce Scandal (Drama) . . . .1000
Dec. 6—Trapped in a Forest Fire (Drama) .1000
Dec. 11—His First Case (Drama).. ........ 1000
Dec. 13—Armed Intervention (Comedy)........1000
Dec. 15—Where the Road Forks (2 parts—Dr.) 2000
Dec. 18—Personal Magnetism (Comedy)........1000
Dec. 20—Fate's Round Up (Drama)....... .. 1000

AMBROSIO.

Nov. 15—The Sculptor's Masterpiece (2 parts—Drama) ..........
Nov. 22—Griffard's Claw (2 parts—Drama)....
Nov. 29—Goose a la "Colbert" (2 parts—Comedy-Drama) ..........
Dec. 6—A Tragic Experiment (2 parts—Dr.)..

APOLLO.

Nov. 2—His Nobs the Plumber (Comedy).....
Nov. 9—Freddy Loosebelt from Africa (Com.)
Nov. 16—Fred's Waterloo (Comedy)..........
Nov. 23—The Mexican Sleep Producer (Comedy)

BISON.

Nov. 22—Wynona's Vengeance (2 parts—Dr.)..
Nov. 25—The White Vacquero (2 parts—Drama)
Nov. 29—The War of the Cattle Range (2 parts—Drama) ..........
Dec. 6—The White Squaw (2 parts—Drama).
Dec. 13—The Werewolf (2 parts—Drama).....
Dec. 20—The God of Girzah (2 parts—Drama).

BRONCHO.

Dec. 3—The Buried Past (Drama)..........
Dec. 10—The Frame-Up (2 parts—Drama)....
Dec. 17—The Open Door (2 parts—Drama)....
Dec. 24—Her Father's Story (2 parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Woman (2 parts—Drama)........

CRYSTAL.

Dec. 7—A Woman's Revenge (Drama)........
Dec. 9—Pearl's Hero (Comedy)..............
Dec. 9—Baldy Is a Wise Old Bird (Comedy)..
Dec. 14—First Love (Drama).................
Dec. 16—The Soubrette (Comedy).............
Dec. 16—The Trained Nurse (Comedy)........
Dec. 21—The Heart of an Artist (Drama)....

DOMINO.

Nov. 27—Belle of Yorktown (3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 4—The Filly (2 parts—Drama)..........
Dec. 11—Devotion (2 parts—Drama)............
Dec. 18—The Curse (2 parts—Drama).........
Dec. 25—Eileen of Erin (2 parts—Drama) ....

ECLAIR.

Dec. 7—Trouble on the Stage (Comedy)....
Dec. 7—Magnetism and Magnets (Scientific).
Dec. 10—Over the Cliffs (3 parts—Drama)....
Dec. 14—He Likes Things Upside Down (Com.)
Dec. 14—Matty Has a Romance (Comedy) ...
Dec. 17—The Serpent in Eden (2 parts—Drama)
Dec. 21—[illegible] (Comedy)... . . ..
Dec. 21—Sunset in Many Lands (Scenic) .....

FRONTIER.

Dec. 6—The Circuit Rider of the Hills (Dr.)
Dec. 11—When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage (Comedy) ... .......... .....
Dec. 13—Out of His Class (Drama) .. ......
Dec. 18—Slim and the Petticoats (Comedy)...
Dec. 20—His Better Self (Drama)... .......

GAUMONT.

Nov. 27—The Little Peacemaker (Drama).....
Nov. 27—Gymnastics .. .. ............
Dec. 2—The Living Doll (Drama) ..........
Dec. 4—Oscar, the Hermit (Comedy)...... ...
Dec. 9—Dolly Saves Her Grandfather (Drama)
Dec. 11—Pompette's Mean Revenge (Comedy).
Dec. 16—A Terrible Dream (Drama)... ... ...
Dec. 18—Oscar in Search of a Wife (Comedy)

GOLD SEAL.

Dec. 2—Under the Black Flag (3 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 9—"Red Margaret," Moonshiner (2 parts—Drama) ..........
Dec. 16—Blood Hounds of the North (2 parts—Drama) ... ..........

GREAT NORTHERN.

Nov. 1—A Dilemma (Comedy)................
Nov. 1—An Isle in the Baltic Sea (Scenic)..
Nov. 8—A Bogus Hero (Comedy)............

IMP.

Nov. 27—Night Shadows of New York (3 parts—Drama) ..........
Dec. 1—Love vs. Law (2 parts—Drama)......
Dec. 4—Plain Jane (Drama).................
Dec. 8—The Return of Tony (Drama).......
Dec. 11—Time is Money (2 parts—Drama)....
Dec. 15—The Story of David Greig (2 parts—Drama)..........
Dec. 18—Mr. & Mrs. Innocence Abroad (Com.)

JOKER.

Dec. 6—A Pair of Bears (Comedy)..........
Dec. 6—Views of Yellowstone Park (Scenic)..
Dec. 10—Mike and Jake in Mexico (Comedy)..
Dec. 13—The Joy Riders (Comedy)..........
Dec. 13—Waterfalls of Yosemite Valley (Scen.)
Dec. 17—Mike and Jake as Heroes (Comedy)..
Dec. 20—For Art and Love (Comedy)..........
Dec. 20—Impressions of Corsica (Comedy).....

KAY-BEE.

Dec. 2—The Revelation (Drama).............
Dec. 5—The Long Portage (Drama).........
Dec. 9—Her Legacy (Drama).................
Dec. 12—Soul of the South (Drama)..........
Dec. 19—The Pitfall (Drama)................
Dec. 26—Harvest of Sin (Drama).............
Dec. 30—Prince (Drama)....................

KEYSTONE.

Dec. 1—The Woman Haters (Comedy).......
Dec. 4—Rogues' Gallery Portola..............
Dec. 4—San Francisco Celebration (Topical)..
Dec. 8—A Ride for a Bride (Comedy).........
Dec. 11—The Horse Thief (Comedy)...........
Dec. 15—The Gusher (Comedy)...............
Dec. 18—Fatty's Flirtation (Comedy)..........
Dec. 18—Protecting San Francisco from Fire..
Dec. 20—His Sister's Kids (Comedy)..........
Dec. 22—A Bad Game (Comedy) ............
Dec. 25—Some Nerve (Comedy)...............

KOMIC.

Nov. 20—Making Himself a Hero (Comedy)..
Nov. 20—Murphy's New High Hat (Comedy)..
Nov. 27—A Method In His Illness (Comedy)..
Nov. 27—The Man With a Razor (Comedy)....
Dec. 4—How He Won (Comedy)............
Dec. 4—The Actor Book Agent (Comedy)......
Dec. 11—How It Worked (Comedy)........ ..
Dec. 11—The Wild Indian (Comedy).........

LUX.

Nov. 21—Mabel's Rival (Comedy)............ 590
Nov. 21—Gems of Brittany (Scenic).......... 390
Nov. 28—Bill and the Missus (Comedy)...... 460
Nov. 28—How Bob Got Married (Comedy).... 500

MAJESTIC.

Nov. 30—The Hendricks' Divorce (Drama).....
Dec. 2—The Padre's Sacrifice (Drama).......
Dec. 6—The Helping Hand (Drama)..........
Dec. 7—Rick's Redemption (Drama).... .....
Dec. 9—Romance and Duty (2 parts—Dr.)....
Dec. 13—(No Release this date) ..............
Dec. 14—The Rival Pitchers (Comedy).........

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Nov. 3—Mutual Weekly, No. 45 (News)......
Nov. 10—Mutual Weekly, No. 46 (News)......
Nov. 17—Mutual Weekly, No. 47 (News)......

NESTOR.

Dec. 3—The Brothers (Drama)..............
Dec. 5—Locked Out at Twelve (Comedy)......
Dec. 10—Retribution (Drama)..................
Dec. 12—Her Friend the Butler (Comedy)....
Dec. 17—A Woman's Way (Drama)...........
Dec. 19—Teaching Dad a Lesson (Comedy) ...

POWERS.

Dec. 5—Cross Purposes (Drama) ...........
Dec. 8—How Freckles Won His Bride (Com.)
Dec. 12—His Own Blood (2 parts—Drama)..
Dec. 15—Freckles' Fight for His Bride (Com.)
Dec. 19—A Cracksman Santa Claus (Drama)

PRINCESS.

Nov. 28—Her Right to Happiness (Dr.).......
Dec. 5—The Little Church Around The Corner (Comedy-Drama) ..................
Dec. 12—His Imaginary Family (Com.-Dr.)....

RELIANCE.

Dec. 1—Tony's Sacrifice (Drama)............
Dec. 3—A Woman of Sin (Drama)...........
Dec. 6—For Another's Crime (2 parts—Dr.).
Dec. 8—Two Girls of the Hills (Drama) .....
Dec. 10—Four $100 Bills (Drama)... ......
Dec. 13—A Man's a Man (Drama).. ......

RAMO.

Nov. 5—Wives (3 parts—Drama).............
Nov. 26—The Fangs of Hate (3 parts—Dr.)..
Dec. 10—The Devil Within (3 parts—Drama)..

REX.

Dec. 4—Thieves and the Cross (2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 7—James Lee's Wife (Drama)..........
Dec. 11—By Fate's Decree (Drama).........
Dec. 14—The Mask (Drama)..................
Dec. 18—The Jew's Christmas (3 parts—Drama)
Dec. 21—A Wife's Deceit (Comedy-Drama)....

THANHOUSER.

Nov. 25—The Blight of Wealth (2 parts—Dr.)
Nov. 28—Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight (Dr.)
Nov. 30—The Henpecked Hodcarrier (Com.)..
Dec. 2—The Problem Love Solved (Drama)...
Dec. 5—What Might Have Been (Drama).....
Dec. 7—The Milkman's Revenge (Comedy)...
Dec. 9—A Beauty Parlor Graduate (Drama)..
Dec. 12—Uncle's Namesakes (Comedy-Drama)..
Dec. 14—Lawyer, Dog and Baby (Com.-Dr.)..

VICTOR.

Dec. 1—The Barrier of Bars (Drama) ......
Dec. 5—Influence of Sympathy (2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 8—The Dread Inheritance (2 parts—Dr.).
Dec. 12—Hydraulic Mining (Industrial)........
Dec. 15—Incognito (Drama)... .. ..........
Dec. 19—A Girl and Her Money (Drama). ...

FEATURES.

(A. Blinkhorn)

Nov. 10—Kissing Cup (Hepworth—4 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 1—David Copperfield (Hepworth—7 parts)
Dec. 15—After Many Years (Gen. Film Ag.—3 parts—Drama) ..................
Dec. 22—The Harper Mystery (Turner, Ltd.—3 parts—Drama) ..................
Dec. 29—The Vicar of Wakefield (Hepworth—3 parts—Drama) ..................

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES

| | |
|---|---|
| Five Thousand - - | $1.25 |
| Ten Thousand - - | $2.50 |
| Twenty Thousand - - | $4.50 |
| Twenty-five Thousand - | $5.50 |
| Fifty Thousand - - | $6.50 |
| One Hundred Thousand - | $8.00 |

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
SHAMOKIN, PA.

SEE AMERICANS FIRST

FLYING "A" FEATURE FILMS

WHERE THE ROAD FORKS

IN TWO PARTS IN TWO PARTS

AN ALLEGORICAL GEM REPLETE WITH HUMAN INTEREST

FEATURING AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR FEMININE MOVIE STAR — WINIFRED GREENWOOD

One, Three and Six Sheet Four Color Lithographs Release, Monday, Dec. 15, 1913

---

PERSONAL MAGNETISM

A SUMMER BOARDER COMEDY SKETCH

One and Three Sheet Lithographs Release, Thursday, Dec. 18, 1913

---

FATE'S ROUND-UP

A WESTERN DRAMA OF THRILLS AND PATHOS

One and Three Sheet Lithographs Release, Saturday, Dec. 20, 1913

COMING!

Monday, Dec. 22, 1913. A Two Part Society Drama

THE SHRINER'S DAUGHTER

Masonic Orders will want to see this. Do not miss it.

AMERICAN FILM MFG. COMPANY : : CHICAGO

LICENSED RELEASE DATES

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph (Special).

Tuesday—Edison, Essanay, Patheplay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Wednesday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Vitagraph, (Special).

Thursday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Melies, Patheplay, Selig, Vitagraph.

Friday—Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Patheplay, Lubin, Vitagraph (Special).

Saturday— Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Patheplay, Vitagraph, (Special).

BIOGRAPH.

Nov. 27—A Circumstantial Hero (Comedy)....
Nov. 27—The Somnambulists (Comedy)........
Nov. 29—The Blue or the Gray (Drama)......
Dec. 1—How the Day Was Saved (Comedy).
Dec. 1—Bink's Vacation (Comedy)..........
Dec. 4—The Birthday Ring (Drama)..........
Dec. 6—In the Elemental World (Drama)....
Dec. 8—The Capturing of David Dunne (Dr.).
Dec. 11—A Foul and Fearful Plot (Comedy)...
Dec. 11—The Troublesome Mole (Comedy).....
Dec. 13—The House of Discord (2 parts—Dr.).
Dec. 15—Oh, Sammy! (Comedy) ..............
Dec. 15—Riley's Decoys (Comedy)............
Dec. 18—Beyond All Law (Drama)............
Dec. 20—The Conscience of Hassan Bey (Dr.).

EDISON.

Nov. 24—From Durban to Zululand (Scenic).. 500
Nov. 24—Enoch and Eyra's First Smoke (Com.) 500
Nov. 25—The Vanishing Cracksman (Drama)..1000
Nov. 26—A Sense of Humor (Comedy).......1000
Nov. 28—The Gunmaker of Moscow (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..................2000
Nov. 29—A Royal Romance (Drama)........1000
Dec. 1—South African Whaling Industry (Industrial)........................1000
Dec. 2—The Price of Human Lives (Dr.)..1000
Dec. 3—The Thrifty Janitor (Comedy)......1000
Dec. 5—Alexia's Strategy (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..............................2000
Dec. 6—What Shall It Profit a Man? (Dr.)..1000
Dec. 8—The Manicure Girl (Comedy)..........1000
Dec. 9—The Stolen Plans (Drama)............1000
Dec. 10—The Joining of the Oceans, the Panama Canal, October, 1916 (Topical)..... 500
Dec. 10—Greedy George (Comedy).............. 800
Dec. 12—Peg O'the Movies (Special—2 parts—Drama)........ .......................2000
Dec. 13—The First Christmas (Drama).........1000
Dec. 15—A Pious Undertaking (Comedy).......1000
Dec. 16—The Actress (Drama)..................1000
Dec. 17—Falling in Love with Inez (Comedy)..1000
Dec. 19—Within the Enemy's Lines (Special—parts—Drama) ......................2000
Dec. 20—The Haunted Bedroom (Drama).......1000

ESSANAY.

Nov. 25—The Little Substitute (Drama).......1000
Nov. 26—Dollars—Pounds—Sense (Comedy)....1000
Nov. 27—The Naming of the Rawhide Queen (Drama)..............................1000
Nov. 28—The Brand of Evil (Special—2 parts Drama)..............................2000
Dec. 2—Autumn Love (Drama)..............1000
Dec. 3—Kitty's Knight (Comedy).............1000
Dec. 4—A Romance of the Hills (Drama)...1000
Dec. 5—The Pay As You Enter Man (Special—2 parts—Drama ...................2000
Dec. 6—Broncho Billy's Squareness (Dr.).....1000
Dec. 9—The Heart of the Law (Drama)......1000
Dec. 10—Smithy's Grandma Party (Comedy)....1000
Dec. 11—Children of the Forest (Drama).......1000
Dec. 12—The Three Gamblers (Special—3 parts—Drama). ..............................2000
Dec. 13—Sophie's New Foreman (Comedy)......1000
Dec. 16—Life's Weaving (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 17—Hello Trouble (Comedy)..............1000
Dec. 18—The Trail of the Snake Band (Drama).1000
Dec. 19—The Stigma (Special—2 parts—Dr)...2000
Dec. 20—Broncho Billy's Christmas Deed (Dr.) 1000

KALEM.

Nov. 22—Primitive Man (Drama).............1000
Nov. 24—An Indian Maid's Strategy (Dr.)....1000
Nov. 26—The Plot of India's Hillmen (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..................2000
Nov. 28—The Good Old Summer Time (Comedy)
Nov. 28—England's King at Liverpool (Topical)
Nov. 29—On Peril of His Life (Drama).......1000
Dec. 1—The Octoroon (Special—3 parts—Dr.).3000
Dec. 3—The Cave Men's War (Special—2 parts—Drama) .............................2000
Dec. 5—While Father Telephoned (Comedy).
Dec. 5—Andrew Carnegie's Gift to the World (Topical) ..........................
Dec. 6—The Foot Print Clue (Drama).......1000
Dec. 8—The Strike (Drama).................1000
Dec. 10—The Chinese Death Thorn (Special—2 parts—Drama).......................2000
Dec. 12—General Bunko's Victory (Comedy)....
Dec. 12—Piano Manufacturing (Industrial).....
Dec. 13—The Invisible Foe (Drama)............1000
Dec. 15—The Hunchback (Spe.—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
Dec. 17—Uncle Tom's Cabin (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..............................2000
Dec. 19—Frayed Fagin's Adventures (Comedy).
Dec. 19—Ulster Day in Belfast (Topical)......
Dec. 20—The Electrician's Hazard (Drama)....1000

G. KLEINE.

Nov. 11—The Penalty (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama)..............................
Nov. 18—For the Love of a Toreador (Cines—Special—2 parts—Drama) ..........
Nov. 25—The Subterranean City; or Trailing the Jewel Thieves (Eclipse—2 parts—Special—Drama) .................
Dec. 2—Venomous Tongues (Celio Special—2 parts—Drama)......................
Dec. 9—The Stolen Legacy (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) ..................
Dec. 16—The Sunken Treasure (Cines—special—2 parts—Drama)...................
Dec. 23—At Cross Purposes (Cines Special—2 parts—Drama) .......................2000

LUBIN.

Nov. 27—A Waif of the Desert (Special—2 parts—Drama) ......................2000
Nov. 28—The Scapegrace (Drama).............1000
Nov. 29—Turning the Table (Drama)........1000
Dec. 1—Melita's Sacrifice (Drama)..........1000
Dec. 2—The Hazard of Youth (Drama)......1000
Dec. 4—When Mountain and Valley Meet (Special—2 parts—Drama).........1000
Dec. 5—Some Elopers (Comedy)............ 400
Dec. 5—An Interrupted Courtship (Comedy).. 600
Dec. 6—Her Father (Drama)................1000
Dec. 8—The Smuggler's Daughter (Drama)....1000
Dec. 9—An Enemy's Aid (Drama).............1000
Dec. 11—Hydraulic Works on the Adda (Mining) 400
Dec. 11—His best Friend (Special—2 parts—Dr.)
Dec. 12—Life, Love and Liberty (Drama).....2000
Dec. 13—The Real Impostor (Drama).......... 400
Dec. 13—A Pill Box Cupid (Comedy)......... 600
Dec 15—When the Well Went Dry (Comedy).. 400
Dec. 15—A Masked Mix-up (Comedy)......... 600
Dec. 16—When He Sees (Drama)..............1000
Dec. 18—A Son of His Father (Special—2 parts Drama) .............. .........2000
Dec. 19—Growing and Gathering Cocoa Beans (Industrial) . .. ............... 400
Dec. 19—Banty Tim (Drama).................. 600
Dec. 20—A Love of '64 (Drama)...............1000

MELIES.

Oct. 23—Old and New Tahiti (Drama)........ 850
Oct. 23—Grand Opening of the Schichijio Bridge, Kyoto, Japan (Scenic)............. 150
Oct. 30—A Japanese Wedding (Manners and Customs)............................
Oct. 30—A Japanese Shoemaker at Work (Typical)..............................
Nov. 6—Sidney and Its Harbor (Travel).....1000
Nov. 20—Shooting the Famous Hozu Rapids of Japan (Sports)...............
Nov. 20—A Lemon Plantation (Industrial).....
Nov. 27—Japanese "Judo," Commonly Known as Jiu Jitsu (Sports).............1000
Dec. 4—A Woman's Mission (Drama).... .....
Dec 4—A Trip to the Famous Picnic Grounds at Arashyama, Japan (Scenic).....
Dec. 11—At Phnom Penh, Cambodia (Scenic)..
Dec. 11—Beautiful Angkor-Wat, Cambodia (Sc.)

PATHEPLAY.

Nov. 22—Kenton's Heir (Drama)...........
Nov. 24—Pathe's Weekly, No 70 (News).....
Nov 25—The Shadow of Shame (Drama)....
Nov. 26—The Elusive Turkey (Comedy).......
Nov. 27—Pathe's Weekly, No. 71 (News).....
Nov 27—The Faithless Friend (Special—2 parts—Drama).... ..............
Nov. 27—Old Nuremburg (Scenic)...............
Nov. 28—Making Eight Ton Ropes (Industrial)
Nov. 28—The Capital of the Malay States (Scenic)..........................
Nov. 28—Fashion's Law In the Swiss Cantons (Sociological).....................
Nov. 29—The Blight (Drama)..................
Dec. 1—Pathe's Weekly No. 72 (News)....
Dec. 2—A Peasant Marriage in Hungary (Cus.)
Dec. 2—Edible Fish of the Mediterranean (Zoology) .... ...................
Dec. 2—The Geysers of New Zealand (Scen.).
Dec. 3—A Break For Freedom (Drama).....
Dec. 4—Baseball's Peerless Leader (Special—2 parts—Comedy) ................
Dec. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 73 (News)......
Dec. 5—A Bear Escape (Comedy)............
Dec. 6—Col. Heeza Liar in Africa (Novelty)
Dec. 6—Glimpses of Pond Life (Zoology)....
Dec. 8—Pathe's Weekly, No. 74 (News).......
Dec. 9—The Stolen Inheritance (Drama)......
Dec. 10—You've Got to Pay (Drama)..........
Dec. 11—A Modern Portia (Special—2 parts—Drama)...............................
Dec. 11—Pathe's Weekly, No. 75 (News).....
Dec. 12—Birds of the Inland Marsh (Bird Life)
Dec. 12—A Journey to the Environs of Naples (Scenic)...........................
Dec. 13—Uncle John to the Rescue ............
Dec. 15—Pathe's Weekly, No. 76 (News)......
Dec. 16—The Couple Next Door (Comedy)......
Dec. 17—Insects that Sing (Zoology) .........
Dec. 17—Nice and Its Environs (Fr.) (Scenic).
Dec. 18—Pathe's Weekly, No. 77 (News)......
Dec. 18—The Finger of Hate (Special—2 parts—Drama)...........................
Dec. 19—A Scandanavian Scandal (Comedy)....
Dec. 20—The Fire Bride (Drama)................

SELIG.

Nov. 19—The Touch of a Child (Drama)......1000
Nov. 20—An Actor's Romance (Drama)........1000
Nov. 21—Outwitted by Billy (Drama).........1000
Nov. 24—The Quality of Mercy (Special—2 parts—Dr.)........................2000
Nov. 25—Mounted Officer Flynn (Comedy).....1000
Nov. 26—Cupid In the Cow Camp (Comedy)...1000
Nov. 27—A Message From Home (Drama).....1000
Nov. 28—The Supreme Moment (Drama).......1000
Dec. 1—The Cipher Message (Special—2 parts Drama) ..............................2000
Dec. 2—The Rustler's Reformation (Dr.)....1000
Dec. 3—Within the Hour (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 4—Granddaddy's Boy (Drama)..........1000
Dec. 5—Northern Hearts (Drama)............1000
Dec. 8—The Master of the Garden (Special—2 parts—Drama).......................2000
Dec. 9—An Equal Chance (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 10—Hilda of Heron Cove (Drama)........1000
Dec. 11—Physical Culture on the Quarter Circle V Bar (Comedy)..................1000
Dec. 12—The Mysterious Way (Drama).........1000
Dec. 16—The Wolf of the City (Special—2 parts—Drama) ......................2000
Dec. 16—With Eyes So Blue and Tender (Dr.).1000
Dec. 17—Buster's Little Game (Comedy)......1000
Dec. 18—Until the Sea — (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 19—The Lure of the Road (Drama).......1000

VITAGRAPH.

Nov. 21—The Schemers (Comedy)...............1000
Nov. 22—The Whimsical Threads of Destiny (Special—2 parts—Drama)........2000
Nov. 24—The Leading Lady (Drama)........1000
Nov. 25—Little Kaintuck (Drama)............1000
Nov. 26—Fellow Voyagers (Comedy)..........
Nov. 26—Temples and Statues of Rome (Architecture) ..........................
Nov. 27—The Cure (Drama) ...............1000
Nov. 28—Betty in the Lion's Den (Comedy)..1000
Nov. 29—The Golden Pathway (Special—2 parts—Drama) ...........................2000
Dec. 1—A Game of Cards (Drama)..........1000
Dec. 2—The Wreck (Special—3 parts—Dr.)..3000
Dec. 3—A Pair of Prodigals (Comedy).......
Dec. 3—The Coliseum of Rome (Architecture)
Dec. 4—The Swan Girl (Drama)..............1000
Dec. 5—A Lesson in Jealousy (Comedy)....1000
Dec. 6—Beauty Unadorned (Special—2 parts—Comedy) .................................2000
Dec. 8—'Mid Kentucky Hills (Drama).........1000
Dec. 9—Deception (Comedy)....................1000
Dec. 10—That Suit at Ten (Comedy).......... 700
Dec. 10—Performing Lions (Zoological)......... 300
Dec. 11—Sacrifice (Drama)......................1000
Dec. 12—The Life Saver (Comedy)..............1000
Dec. 13—Love's Sunset (Special—2 parts—Dr.).2000
Dec. 15—The Uprising of Ann (drama)........1000
Dec. 16—Up in a Balloon (Comedy)..........
Dec. 16—Elephants At Work (Educational)...
Dec. 17—Any Port In a Storm (Comedy)......1000
Dec. 18—The Face of Fear (Drama)...........1000
Dec. 19—The Girl at the Lunchcounter (Com.).1000
Dec. 20—The Ancient Order of Goodfellows (Special—2 parts—Drama) .........2000

Greater New York Film Rental Company
All Specials Supplied. 116-118 East Fourteenth Street, New York
Licensed Film Supplied to Licensed Exhibitors :-: :-: :-: *Write or Call for Particulars

?

QUESTION

Where can we meet

The Manufacturers
" Distributors
" Photoplayers
" Exhibitors

and 5000 Motion Picture Fans?

ANSWER

At the THIRD ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT AND BALL of the MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREATER NEW YORK, held at TERRACE GARDEN, on Monday Night DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

THE BALL OF THE SEASON

Cast off Business and Dull Care and All Be Happy

---

TICKETS AT ANY MOTION PICTURE THEATRE, OR AT

No. 136 Third Avenue : New York City
Brooklyn Branch : : : : : 1923 Fulton Street

DON'T BE HASTY

State Right Buyers in Purchasing

Mexican War Pictures

Until You Read Our Announcement Next Week

We Have The Only Pictures Showing Actual Warfare and Real Fighting of the Present Rebellion

Now Playing the Principal Cities and Theatres at $1.00 Prices

AMERICA'S FEATURE FILM CO., Inc. NEW YORK CHICAGO

Photoplay Company, Inc.

19 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

The headquarters for all standard projecting machines. Full line of accessories and supplies

Expert Repairing on All Machines

Write us for terms and catalogues.

SPECIAL FILMS FOR EDUCATIONAL AND SUNDAY PROGRAMS

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

THESE PICTURES ARE GUARANTEED EXCLUSIVE

THE VERO EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY

704 WORLD'S TOWER BUILDING, NEW YORK CITY

CHRISTMAS TREE

LOADED WITH BEAUTIFUL, USEFUL

FREE GIFTS

FILLS YOUR THEATRE EVERY NIGHT UNTIL CHRISTMAS. LOTS OF FUN. DELIGHTS YOUNG AND OLD. INEXPENSIVE.

TIME IS SHORT! Send or Call for Plan.

COUP-TICKET CO., Inc.

12 E. 23rd Street NEW YORK

G. W. BRADENBURGH, 802 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Phone-Walnut 534 Cable-Bradfilms-Phila.

| TITLES | Length | Maker | Advertising | Price |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Three Drops of Poison, | 3,800 feet | (Luna) | 1-3-4 sheets | $300 |
| Spanish Blood (Asta Nielsen) | 4,500 feet | (Monopol) | 1-3-4-6-8-12 sheets | 350 |
| By Whose Hand? | 3,000 feet | (Luna) | 1-3 sheets | 240 |
| Falsely Accused (Asta Nielsen) | 2,800 feet | (Monopol) | 1-3-6 sheets | 200 |
| Dance to Death (Asta Nielsen) | 2,700 feet | (Monopol) | 1-3-6 sheets | 175 |
| The Black Viper, | 3,600 feet | (Pyramid) | 1-3-6 sheets | 175 |
| The Torch of War, | 3,000 feet | (Continental) | 1-3-6 sheets | 175 |
| The Brand, | 2,700 feet | (Skand) | 1-3 sheets | 125 |
| Edith, the Manager's Daughter, | 2,750 feet | (Monopol) | 1-3 sheets | 150 |
| On the Steps of the Throne, | 3,000 feet | (Pasquali) | 1-3-6 sheets | 150 |
| The Tarantella, | 2,700 feet | (Deu Bios) | 1-3-6 sheets | 150 |
| The Yellow Peril, | 3,000 feet | (Continental) | 1-3-4-6 sheets | 100 |
| The Minister's Daughter, | 2,500 feet | (Messter) | 1-3-4 sheets | 100 |
| The Scapegrace (Sensational) | 2,000 feet | (Cricks) | 1-3 sheets | 75 |
| Strength and Cunning, | 2,800 feet | (Cines) | 3 sheets | 75 |
| Daughter of the Spy, | 2,000 feet | (Cines) | 1-3 sheets | 50 |
| Faust, | 2,000 feet | (Pathe, Colored) | 1-3-6-8 sheets | 75 |
| Last Days of Pompeii, | 1,350 feet | (Ambrosio) | 1-3 sheets | 75 |
| The Commodore's Daughter, | 2,500 feet | (Gt. Northern) | 1-3-6 sheets | 75 |
| The Smart Lady Detective, | 2,000 feet | (Itala) | 1-3 sheets | 75 |

All films sent C.O.D privilege of examination on receipt of 10% in advance subject to being unsold on receipt of order. Write for list of cheap features and commercial films. All films good condition. Posters free

Save Money on Moving Picture Outfits

Cameras, Lenses and Projectors of latest and most approved type—all of which have been subjected to rigid tests, in actual practice, and are fully guaranteed. We are also for the famous Urban, Bioscope Cameras, Dallmeyer and Voigtlander Lenses, and exclusive Central and Western States Agents for the celebrated Goerz Lenses.

Exclusive American Agents

Write for our new, descriptive money-saving catalog A, listing complete line of Moving Picture Goods.

BURKE & JAMES, INC. 242-254 East Ontario Street CHICAGO, ILL.

A DOUBLE HEADER

Your turn at the Bat, Mr. EXCHANGE MAN!!!

TO BUY THE OPEN TERRITORY FOR

CRIME OF THE CAMORRA

The Magic Veil, or The Love of a Hindoo

WIRE OR WRITE FOR OPEN TERRITORY

ITALIAN AMERICAN FILM CORP. 701 Seventh Avenue
Columbia Theatre Bldg. Room 401-2 NEW YORK

Do You Want

A soft picture
A well lighted picture

bringing out all the details?
If so, look at the

Radium Gold Fibre Screen

Selling on its own merits.

Write for Catalog Ask for Demonstration

Daily demonstrations in our projection room

7th floor Heidelberg Building
Broadway and 42nd St., N. Y. C.

American Theatre Curtain & Supply Company
105 N. Main Street, Sole Manufacturers, ST. LOUIS

G. H. CALLAGHAN, 1465 Broadway, New York
DISTRIBUTOR

SPECIFY

GUNDLACH Projection Lenses

when ordering new machines

You may as well get the best lenses with the machine as to buy them later.

Supplied to order with Powers Cameragraph, Motiograph, Simplex, Standard

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

BARGAIN=MACHINES=BARGAIN

Order one for Emergency. Slightly used machines, in first-class running condition. Powers No. 6, $135.00; Edison Model B, $150.00; Edison Exhibition Models, $50.00, $60.00 and $75.00. All complete with lenses, rheostats. Ticket Choppers, Mirror Screens, Chairs, etc.

Order at once. First come, first served.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO., Inc.
1301 Race St., Philadelphia

EYE COMFORT LIGHTING System

So necessary to the success of every Motion Picture Theatre that we engineer 60 Theatres a month.
This is a free service to Motion Picture Theatre Managers.

Distance Screen to Rear of Auditorium........................................
Ceiling Height........................................................
Width of House........................................................
Name.................................................................

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.
Chicago
229 W. Jackson Blvd.
New York
505 Fifth Ave.

KINEMACOLOR MACHINES

(Which also Project Perfect Black and White Pictures)

——— ARE NOW SOLD ———

ENGLISH-KINEMACOLOR
KINEMACOLOR-SIMPLEX

SERVICE, TWENTY DOLLARS UPWARDS

——— INQUIRE NEAREST OFFICE ———

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

LOUISVILLE, KY.
Majestic Theatre Bldg.

---

THE BELLS OF DEATH

A THRILLING FEATURE IN THREE REELS

STATE RIGHT MEN! Write, Wire, Phone for Particulars NOW

Splendid One, Three, Eight Sheet Posters, Heralds, Cuts, Slides, Beautiful Photos for Lobby Display.

OUR TWO-REEL WEEKLY RELEASES

Nov. 22d. GRIFFARD'S CLAW. (Copyrighted 1913)

This sensational detective drama will keep you on edge from the very start to the finish. See the famous detective in a flying aeroplane follow the movements of the fleeing kidnapper, and the capture at the villain's moment of triumph.

Nov. 29th. THE GOOSE A LA "COLBERT." (Copyrighted 1913)

Yes—it was only the dressing of a goose, but it decided the fate of two young lovers. How the scheming young girl brought this about is the funniest comedy ever witnessed.

Dec. 13th. A TRAGIC EXPERIMENT.

A young aviator whose advances are repulsed by the woman with whom he is infatuated, seeks vengeance in ruining her husband's invention at a critical moment. His base action is discovered, and, fearing arrest, he resolves to attempt the experiment himself, which results in his death.

SPECIAL NOTICE. We sell but one exchange in each territory. Each purchaser has the exclusive for his territory.

*Publicity—*1, 3, 8 sheet posters, heralds, photos and slides.

AMBROSIO AMERICAN CO.

15 EAST 26th STREET - - - - - NEW YORK

JUST PLAIN COMMON SENSE tells you—When you want to SEE yourself you use a Mirror. Because you SEE yourself better with a Mirror than any other means in the world. Now the same thing applies. When you want to SEE motion pictures, use a MIRROR SCREEN. Because you SEE the pictures so much plainer, better and clearer on a Mirror Screen than on any other surface under the sun. Besides it tickles your patrons and makes picture fans. It's a fact. The difference between a motion picture on a MIRROR SCREEN and any other screen of any other kind is the same comparison between seeing your own reflection in a fine French plate glass mirror and in a mud puddle. The "MIRROR SCREEN" is a Mirror. A magnificent mirror made from the finest polished plate glass that the world can produce. Get Right and Write to us to-day for our new Snow White Frosted Finished Surface. Eastern Representative, Frank Manning, 121 W. 48th Street, New York City; 160 Irving Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

F. J. REMBUSCH
President

MIRROR SCREEN COMPANY, SHELBYVILLE, IND.

J. LAW SIPLE, Southern Representative
Atlanta, Ga.

USE 'EM!!!

I don't profess to have any more brains than you have. But I increased my business $200,000 over last year's records. YOU CAN DO PROPORTIONATELY WELL. The only difference between my brains and yours is that I USE MINE. Use yours and the result will be that you will DEMAND THAT UNIVERSAL PROGRAM and BOOST YOUR PROFITS! The Universal program is scoring triumph after triumph everywhere. CLIMB ABOARD!

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

204 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
252-A Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnum Street, Omaha, Neb.
Hubbell Building, Des Moines, Iowa

Agents for All Makes of Machines and Accessories

"The Biggest and Best Film Renter in the World"

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs.

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Ave. and Leo St. :: CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. Commercial Photographer, for best work and rates, send to

The Chicago Feature Film Co.
4108-22 Lincoln Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"FOTOPLAYER"

the instrument that supplies MUSIC FOR THE PICTURES

The American Photo Player Sales Co.
130 Kearny St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE 50 FEATURES First Class Condition

Elegant Advertising Matter. 1000 COMMERCIALS

VERY CHEAP

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS
WEST 14th STREET, NEW YORK

IMPERATOR MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

A Guaranteed Instrument
Producing Pictures of Brilliancy and Detail
Special advantages not offered on any other low priced camera:

Focusing Tube Film Measuring Dial
200 ft. Magazines Large Handle
Pathe Style Take Up
Genuine Morocco Leather Covered

Price $94.00 Complete, including B. & L. Zeiss Tessar 1 C. F 3.5.

Ask your dealer for catalogue, or write to

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA COMPANY
5 WEST 14th STREET INC. NEW YORK

Last Week Again

8 Motion Picture Theatres

in 7 different cities installed Wurlitzer Music.
Why don't you? It pays.

20 BRANCHES WURLITZER 20 BRANCHES

CINCINNATI

IT IS SAID BY MANY WHO KNOW

That the life of the Motion Picture Machine is two years. This may be so with most Machines, but NOT the MOTIOGRAPH.

We are receiving letters daily, telling us of the long life of the MOTIOGRAPH and with a small expense in the Up-Keep.

WHY? QUALITY

All our parts are made in our own factory, by expert mechanics, and with proper care, the MOTIOGRAPH will last ten years instead of two.

Write for Catalogue and Information.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO.

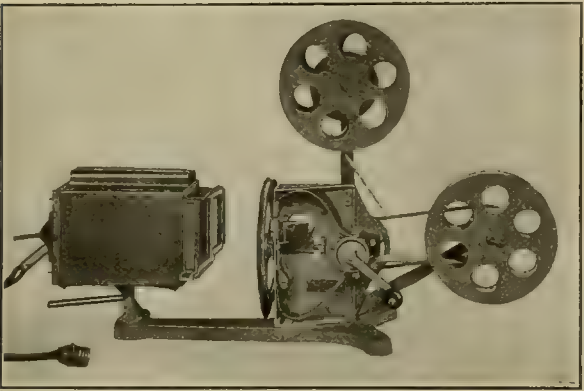
Eastern Office:
21 E. 14th St., New York

564-572 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Western Office:
833 Market St., San Francisco

---



The Phantoscope is a REAL motion picture projector. It is inexpensive and portable only because the new principles involved in its construction permit this.

The Phantoscope has REAL merit. and that is the reason the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia has just awarded it the John Scott Legacy medal. Their awards are not made lightly.

You exchange men ought to have one for home entertainment. You already have the film.

You camera men ought to have one to show your customer with the film you make him. He will buy them of you in dozens for his salesmen. That's what he had the film made for. And you make money both ways—BIG money. Write today. $75 complete; for producing large pictures.

The Phantoscope Mfg. Co.

Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

---

Special Attention

given to the

M. P. Trade

on

Developers

and

Aniline Colors

Write for Shade Card and Prices

Berlin Aniline Works

213 Water Street, New York

---

THE STANDARD SCREEN OF EUROPE

THE DAY AND NIGHT SCREEN

IS NOW OFFERED TO THE AMERICAN EXHIBITOR. It so far surpasses all other screens that a comparative test is the only proof necessary. IT SHOWS AS BEAUTIFUL AND BRILLIANT A PICTURE

OUTDOORS IN THE DAYTIME AS IN A WELL-LIGHTED THEATRE

EVERY SCREEN IS SCIENTIFICALLY ADJUSTED TO ANY ANGLE OR DISTANCE OF PROJECTION.

A 5-YEAR GUARANTEE

NO REFINISHING OR RETOUCHING NECESSARY

A VAST SAVING IN ELECTRIC CONSUMPTION

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

ARRANGE FOR COMPARATIVE TEST

DAY AND NIGHT SCREENS, INC., 291 Broadway, New York

TELEPHONE 1951 WORTH

FACTORIES AND OFFICES: NEW YORK - LONDON - PARIS - BERLIN

ORCHESTRAL MUSIC FOR MOVING PICTURES

The Orpheum Collection of dramatic and descriptive music for Piano and seven orchestra parts. Piano can be used alone. In two series:

No. 1 and No. 2

Piano, 58 cts. each. Both series, $1.15. Violin, 40 cts. each; both 75 cts. Cello-&-Bass same price as violin. Flute 35 cts. each. Both series, 65 cts. Clarinet, Cornet and Trombone same price as Flute. Drums, 30 cts. each. Both series, 55 cts.

Send for free sample page and further discounts. 3d series ready for piano only; 58 cts.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 SEDGWICK ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

OPERA CHAIRS

Latest and Best in Seats

SEND FOR OUR PRICES BEFORE BUYING

BENNETT SEATING CO
127 EAST PEARL ST
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Steel standards will not break

STEEL OR IRON STANDARDS

AGENCIES:

Fletcher W. Dickerman, 61 North Seventh St., Newark, N. J.
California Seating Co., 1110 Van Nuys Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
H. A. Johnson Seating Co., 911 Western Ave. Seattle, Wash.
Feldner-Wagner Co. 500 Marshall Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.
L-B Mfg. Co., S. E. Cor. 6th & Vine Sts., Phila., Pa.

The Wisconsin Seating Company
New London, Wisconsin, U.S.A.

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theaters and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use. Address Dept. W.

STEEL FURNITURE CO
Grand Rapids, Mich. New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburgh: 318 Bissell Blk. Philadelphia: 1943 Market St. Boston: 69 Pearl St.

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. NO. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, [illegible] Mission St.

THE "STANDARDIZED" THEATRE CHAIRS

Do you want a life-saving chair?
Do you want a space-saving chair?
Do you want a sanitary chair?
Do you want a scientifically built, double standard chair?

We operate the largest exclusive theatre chair factory in the world, AND SELL DIRECT TO YOU. WRITE US

THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio

Largest Stock and Quick Deliveries on

Theatre Seating

Pleasing Designs Reasonable Prices. Write for Illustrated Books
V-2, Veneer Seating. V-3, Upholstered Seating.
Send floor sketch for Free Seating Plan

American Seating Company

"Public Seating Exclusively"

218 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago 18 E. 32nd St., New York
BOSTON PHILADELPHIA PITTSBURGH

WE BUY, SELL and RENT

Moving Picture Machines and Films.
Theatre Brokerage Exchange,
440 S. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

Sargent's Photoplay Service

To aid those who wish to guard against the formation of bad writing habits, or who wish to estimate their progress, I offer the following service:

Script Criticism For a fee of two dollars for each reel, I will read your manuscript and write a personal letter, pointing out the faults of plotting, technical development, manuscript preparation, etc. Sometimes I can help you to make the script salable, but I do not guarantee a sale. I do not revise manuscript; I do not typewrite it, nor do I offer it for sale. I simply write you a letter that tells you what the trouble is.

Plot Estimates If your stories do not sell and you want to know why, send me five synopses and one full script. I will criticise the script and tell you whether it is your plot or your development that is wrong. The fee for this service is $5 for the five synopses and additional plot. Synopses must not run more than 300 words each. Send a synopsis of your undeveloped plot and fee of one dollar and you will be advised as to whether it will pay you to develop the same.

Please Note My fees do not include envelopes or return postage. Send prepaid and self addressed return envelope and remit in New York exchange; not local checks. I reserve the right to return unread (with fee) any story or plot that does not warrant treatment. All scripts must be typewritten.

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT
Box 70, Madison Square Station, NEW YORK CITY

MOTION PICTURE FILMS

Get our prices. Quick facilities. We print negatives, develop and print positive. Splendid results assured. Camera men supplied.

Parisian Manufacturing and Film Renovating Co.
37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DEAGAN MUSICAL ELECTRIC BELLS

Played from Piano Keyboard

WRITE FOR CATALOG "F"

J. C. DEAGAN
DEAGAN BUILDING
1776 Berteau Ave.
Chicago, Ill.

Now the Los Angeles TIMES Joins the Tribune and Examiner in Lauding FLORENCE ROBERTS' "SAPHO" to the Very Skies!

Says the Times: "Slipping into the square of light thrown by the big projecting machine at the Majestic Theatre yesterday, Miss Florence Roberts as Sapho in the motion picture production of this famous play added new laurels to her already top-heavy crown. With the same passionate abandon with which she made the role of 'Sapho' famous in the play that took the country by storm a few years ago, Miss Roberts as the pictured Sapho left absolutely nothing to wish for in yesterday's production. Only the voice was lacking, and that was made up for in the wealth of detail that the film allowed. In the play but four scenes are given, and all the earlier scenes of the book are of a necessity omitted on the stage. In the pictures yesterday all this was changed. As there is no limit to the number of scenes to a film drama, the motion picture production of 'Sapho' followed the book in every particular."

"Romance and Duty" Is a Good Deal Like New Majestic's "L'Article 47"—Get It!

It's a great, modern costume piece, laid in a foreign land, with big, sensational moments and stirring heart interest. In these elements "ROMANCE AND DUTY" reminds you of our successful "L'Article 47." Remember the release date of "ROMANCE AND DUTY"—Tuesday, Dec. 9. The list of principals—Ernest Joy, Belle Bennett, Frederick Vroom, Demetrio Mitsoras (the Greek Photoplayer) and Billy Brown—proves that

"There Are No Favorites Like New Majestic Favorites"

SUNDAY, Dec. 7, the release is "RICK'S REDEMPTION," and SATURDAY, Dec. 12, there is NO RELEASE, because of two-reeler of preceding Tuesday.

NEW MAJESTIC

"There Are No Favorites Like New Majestic Favorites"
Business Offices: New Rochelle, N. Y.
All-Round-Studios: Brooklyn Heights, Los Angeles, Cal.

Selig

The Last Month of the Year Finds the Same High Standard of Interest Sustained as the First in the Merit of the Selig Regular Releases

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS"

---

"THE WOLF OF THE CITY"

A peep at the power of the press in making reputations or unmasking villainies in this day and generation, is vividly portrayed in this modern chapter of life in a great city, where so many seem to live half in the light and half in the shadow. "The wolf of the city" is a star reporter whose nerves have never been shaken before this incident of his stormy career.

On the same reel with "WHEN FATHER CRAVED A SMOKE" a capital comedy-drama, showing how the girl treated her hard-working, bucolic suitors and then accepted a dude.

Two Reels --- Released December 15th

---

December 16th. "WITH EYES SO BLUE AND TENDER"

Maibelle Heikes Justice has picturized a story about the old song that has moved so many so long—a beautiful visualization of exquisite sentiment, showing the close alliance of music, emotion and motion.

December 17th "BUSTER'S LITTLE GAME"

The pride of the ranch goes East to school and bleaches out for five years, and returns so dudish that nobody recognizes him. The cowboys put him through "the third degree," but when it comes to do daring stunts he surprises them by eclipsing them and carrying off the girl.

December 18th "UNTIL THE SEA——"

Bessie Clarke, a belle among the fisher folk, is loved by two stalwart sons of the sea. The one she really adores goes on a voyage and is presumably lost; the other, by staying at home, eventually wins her. Then the missing man turns up—but too late. The story of Enoch Arden modernized.

December 19th "THE LURE OF THE ROAD"

A good-looking wanderer, who loves life in the open, concludes to settle down and marry, but cannot stand the restraint of domesticity, and takes up life with the gypsies. How he rescues his wife and saves her life forms the theme of a very attractive little drama of vineland.

---

N. B.—Attention of Exhibitors is particularly called to SELIG'S new line of attractive paper. One sheets for every attraction, three sheets for the two-reel releases, and additional six sheet stands for special releases. Make the lobby of your house attractive with this colorful illumination.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

BRANCH OFFICES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
EXECUTIVE OFFICES 20 E. RANDOLPH ST.
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

Distinctive Projection

FEW motion picture projecting machines are distinctive and few depict the perspective of the picture.

The machine that is not distinctive is lost in the grey mass of mediocrity.

Power's Cameragraph
No. 6A

Meets every requirement, is distinctive in every sense of the word, and noticeably distinctive in the clearness of its projection.

Our projectors have met with such phenomenal success that it would be an injustice to yourself and patrons to think of installing other than the

Power's Perfect Projector

Send for Catalog G

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
88-90 Gold Street :: :: New York City

Vol. 18, No. 12 December 20, 1913 Price 10 Cents

H E HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "A Son of His Father" (Lubin).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

THANHOUSER B I G PRODUCTIONS

THE LEGEND OF PROVENCE.

COME ON NOW, YOU REAL SHOWMEN, WRITE US FOR FREE ORCHESTRATION FOR "THE LEGEND OF PROVENCE"!

THIS and particulars about the "THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS" for the asking. The orchestration is by the master musicians of The Tams Music Library of New York City, and the "THANHOUSER 'BIG' PRODUCTIONS" particulars tell how to get these features for exclusive first-run use in your locality for a full year under an iron-clad contract.

Just Think of Getting 4-Part Productions Like "MOTHS" "ROBIN HOOD," "PROVENCE" and FROU FROU" THAT WAY!

Address for particulars and FREE ORCHESTRATIONS:

THANHOUSER "BIG" PRODUCTIONS, New Rochelle, N. Y.

THE THANHOUSER THREE-A-WEEK

SUNDAY, DEC. 14

Lawyer, Dog and Baby

(With Sidney Bracy as the lawyer, assisted by Carey L. Hastings, the Kidlet and the Twins).

TUESDAY, DEC. 16

Peggy's Invitation

(Welcome Return of Marguerite Snow, after a half year's absence).

FRIDAY, DEC. 19

Jack and the Bean Stalk

(With little Leland Benham as Jack) In Two Reels

(The Bush Leaguer's Dream on last half of second reel).

FIVE-A-WEEK

Essanay

COMING FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th

"THE STIGMA"

(IN TWO PARTS)

AN ABSORBING AND EXTREMELY INTERESTING LOVE DRAMA OF THE SEA. INFINITE LOVE IS THE FOUNDATION OF THE STORY AND EVEN THOUGH JANE IS A VICTIM OF LEPROSY, CLIFFORD CONTINUES TO LOVE HER TO THE END.

---

RELEASED TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th.

"LIFE'S WEAVING"

A drama of a father's false love and the undying efforts of the son to win the woman the father had so unmercifully discarded.

---

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th.

"HELLO TROUBLE"

A comedy that smacks with the ridiculous. Purely a story of laughs and pleasing entertainment. Chas. Stine, "Bobbie" Bolder, Ruth Hennessy and "Smiling Billy" Mason will please you.

---

RELEASED THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th.

"THE TRAIL OF THE SNAKE BAND"

A drama of the plains, interesting throughout. This story is unique and the exciting situations that prevail make it a strong box-office feature.

---

RELEASED SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th.

"BRONCHO BILLY'S CHRISTMAS DEED"

A feature Western dramatic attraction, especially adapted for the HOLIDAYS. MR. G. M. ANDERSON will please your patrons in this superb and heart interest story of Christmas spirit.

---

COMING FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th.

"THE GREAT GAME"

(IN TWO PARTS)

SCENARIO BY MAIBELLE HEIKES JUSTICE

A STARTLING UP-TO-THE-MINUTE POLITICAL DRAMA OF IMPORTANCE. THE POLITICAL MACHINE FAILS TO ACCOMPLISH THEIR PURPOSE—AND THE MAYOR LAUGHS AT THEIR BRIBE. NEW AND NOVEL SITUATIONS IN THIS EXCELLENT STORY MAKE IT A WORTHY FEATURE. HERALDS AND POSTERS NOW READY.

OUR POSTERS ARE DISTINCTIVE. They will boom your business. Lithographs are in full four colors. You can order these from your exchange or direct from Essanay Film Mfg. Co., 521 First National Bank Bldg. Your lobby display will look attractive if you use photographs of ESSANAY PLAYERS, 8 x 10, $3.00 per dozen. You can secure these from the PLAYERS' PHOTO CO., 177 N. STATE ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.

521 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory and Studio, 1333 Argyle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Branch Offices in London, Paris, Berlin, Barcelona

Big News!

UNIVERSAL FILMS TRADE MARK

FILMS BY FAMOUS AUTHORS

To Be Released Under the Eclair-Universal Brand!

| | |
|---|---|
| ARTHUR STRINGER, | Detective Stories |
| HARRIS DICKSON, | Refugee Stories |
| JACQUES FUTRELLE, | Mystery Stories |
| O. HENRY, | Western Stories |
| ELENOR GATES, | Mexican Stories |
| EUGENE MANLOVE RHODES, | Western Stories |

At enormous expense the Eclair Company has completed arrangements whereby it will release features dramatized from stories by some of the world's most famous modern writers. The above list is only a forerunner of a wonderful Eclair-Universal series. Use the brains God gave you and think what this is going to mean to every Universal exhibitor. The first of the series will be

ARTHUR STRINGER'S POWERFUL STORY

"The Case of Cherry Purcelle"

3 Exciting Reels, Released January 7th

The story, which is enacted by THE ECLAIR ALL-STAR CAST, deals with the operations of a band of wire-tappers. The crooks have as their leader "the cleverest woman in the world," and there is never an instant in the three reels when the intense interest can lag. You need this series of famous authors' films! It is going to increase your profits without the shadow of a doubt. WRITE OR WIRE TO THE NEAREST UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE THIS VERY DAY AND MAKE ARRANGEMENTS TO EXHIBIT THAT UNIVERSAL PROGRAM!

Get the Money!

"Ginger up your front"

"Ginger up your front"

This beautiful 6-sheet is a work of art, classy enough to display in front of the finest theatre on earth. It is totally different from the trashy, old-style paper formerly used for picture theatres. It is genuine "theatrical paper" reproduced from paintings executed by the very best artists in the employ of the Morgan Lithograph Co. The Universal is issuing by far the best lithographs in the business. They are a wonderful help to exhibitors. Learn how to use them, and watch your receipts climb week after week!

Order this 6-sheet and also the special 3-sheets and 1-sheets made by the Morgan Lithograph Co. for "Rory of the Bogs" from your exchange! And hurry up a bit, because this feature will be released Dec. 22nd. All early-run houses should begin their advance advertising immediately. If your exchange cannot supply you with enough posters to bill your whole neighborhood, order direct from the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio (not from us), and enclose payment at the rate of ten cents PER SHEET. Don't judge Universal lithographs by any posters you have ever seen in the picture business in the past!

And Still They Come!

Irving Cummings Joins Universal

CARRYING out its policy of having from one to six real stars in every picture, the Universal has added Mr. Irving Cummings to its astounding aggregation of brilliant moving picture stars. Mr. Cummings needs no introduction to moving picture exhibitors, nor to the moving picture "fans" of the world. His name in front of your theatre will draw the people in like a magnet and that's what you're in business for! The Universal never intends to use unknowns in its pictures. It never intends to have good stories and good staging ruined by mediocre acting. That's why it has gathered the greatest collection of stars ever known to the whole world of pictures! Think what it means to the Universal exhibitor. Every day in the week he can advertise the most popular stars in the world. He never gets a Universal film without a great big star in it! Isn't it about time for you to ## Use the Brains God Gave You!

Get Your Advance Stuff
Ready For

Baggot's "Absinthe"

(Made in Paris. Length 3500 feet)

YOU are going to make a killing with this superb feature if you don't let yourself get caught unprepared. Gather all your advance advertising together right away. Buy from your exchange a full supply of Baggot postcards, Baggot photographs, Baggot lobby-displays, special Baggot 1-sheet lithographs and Baggot slides. Also arrange for enough 6-sheets, 3-sheets and 1-sheets to bill your whole neighborhood. If your exchange can't supply you with everything you want write to our own supply department for photos, cards, slides, etc. and to the Morgan Lithograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, for 6-sheets, 3-sheets and 1-sheets. Don't be caught napping!

COMING DECEMBER 18th

"The Jew's Christmas"

(A 3-Reeler by the Smalleys)

Absolutely the finest holiday release you ever saw. Staged in the masterly manner that characterizes all Smalley features. Boost it to the skies.

COMING DECEMBER 23rd

"The Bride of Mystery"

(A Ford-Cunard 3-Reeler)

A feature that grips your interest from the very first and retains it until the drop of the curtain. Accompanied by stunning 6, 3 and 1 sheets.

Universal Film Manufacturing Co.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

Mecca Bldg., Broadway at 48th St., New York, N. Y.

PETER MAKAROFF | THE FALL OF FRANCE | THE ENGINE OF DEATH

THE ENGINE OF DEATH

A THRILLING TALE OF INTERNATIONAL POLITICS--FOUR PARTS

THE FALL OF FRANCE

THE PASSING OF THE BONAPARTES—IN THREE PARTS

PETER MAKAROFF

A MODERN TREASURE STORY—IN FOUR PARTS

ALSO

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| THROUGH THE CLOUDS | 4 PARTS | HARI KARI | 3 PARTS |
| THE GREAT BULLION ROBBERY | 3 PARTS | THE BLACK 13 | 3 PARTS |

APEX FILM COMPANY

145 WEST 45th STREET, NEW YORK P. P. CRAFT, MANAGER

HUGH HOFFMAN

THE STATE RIGHT BONANZA

FEATURES MAY COME AND FEATURES MAY GO, BUT THIS PICTURE GOES RIGHT ON DRAWING THE BEST PEOPLE AND THE BEST MONEY WITHOUT LOSING ONE PARTICLE OF ITS TREMENDOUS POPULARITY

JUNGLE FILM CO.

1600 BROADWAY—NEW YORK

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

DANIEL
FROHMAN
PRESENTS

The Noted Characterist

CECELIA LOFTUS

In The Popular Novel and Famous Play

A LADY of QUALITY

By
Frances Hodgson Burnett

Published by
Chas. Scribners' Sons

An idyllic blending of the romance, beauty and daring of the days of knighthood.
A brilliant reproduction of the warmth and color of a picturesque period.

IN FIVE REELS. RELEASED JANUARY 1st, 1914

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

FAMOUS PLAYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
213-229 W. 26th STREET
NEW YORK

"ALL THE FEATURES FIT TO PRINT"

FAMOUS WEEKLY

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

Vol. 1. No. 2. Saturday, Dec. 13, 1913. Price

EDITORIAL

WHAT THE FORD-STANHOPE-MORANGE ALLIANCE MEANS!

The announcement published during the last week in daily newspapers and trade organs, to the effect that Hugh Ford, Frederick Stanhope and Edward S. Morange, international theatrical authorities, had allied with the Famous Players to co-operate in the production of massive, spectacular photoplays, indicates that the highest development of the motion picture is now assured!

"The Journal," the largest and most powerful newspaper in New York City, so fully appreciated the value of this announcement that it gave the story a two-column heading! These three trained theatrical specialists will undoubtedly attain the greatest heights that the motion picture art can reach.

Has the motion picture already revealed all its treasures, or is it only now on the threshold of its greatness?

"A DAUGHTER OF THE HILLS"

AN UNUSUAL ROMAN SUBJECT

The Famous Players delved far into the past for the release of December 20th—back along the dusty roads of time that lead to ancient Rome and the days of Nero.

The play attempts to show that even then, when savagery was strength and cruelty glory, the love of a man and a maid was a greater force than all the primitive barbarities of the period. With a tranquil simplicity the story relates how a gentle shepherdess, all tenderness and sympathy, wed a brutal gladiator, wrought a reversion in his primitive heart and spiritually conquered his savage impulses. Paul the Apostle, who at the time of the story was a prisoner in Rome, aids in accomplishing this victory.

Paul the Apostle Addressing the Rabble

The spirit of the story will guide the imagination back to the old hills of Bethlehem. It is thoroughly Christmassy, yet a strong story for all times, and a distinct departure from the general trend of Roman subjects. The imperial barbarism of Nero and the sweet gentleness of Paul form an inspiring contrast, heightened by the tenderness of the heroine. "A Daughter of the Hills" was one of the advance agents of civilization!

GOSSIP

Now that the Executive and Sales Departments have moved down to the studio, it is hard to conceive of a greater activity and industry. Nothing like a proximity of art and commerce for interest.

Hal Clarendon, who acquitted himself favorably in "An Hour Before Dawn" and "The Port of Doom," and who portrays the difficult character of Kleschna in "Leah Kleschna," played for Daniel Frohman thirty-one years ago in "May Blossom," and at other times in "Caprice," "In the Bishop's Carriage" and in other Famous Players subjects when they were produced on the stage. He was stage director for Cecil Spooner before he became associated with the Famous Players.

Louis Marcus, President of the Notable Feature Film Co. of Salt Lake City, and A. D. Flintom, of the Kansas City Feature Film Co., report that the "30 Famous Features a Year" are doing record-breaking business in all the theatres in their territories.

FILM COMPANY

ADOLPH ZUKOR PRES.
DANIEL FROHMAN
MANAGING DIRECTOR

"30 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR"

THE SECOND DISASTER IN THE COAL MINE

GERM

6 REELS BY EMI

FOR SUPERB ACTING, ENTHRALLING STORY, DE
THIS FILM IS WITHOUT EQUAL. THE MOST ITS PRODUCTION AND IT HAS BEEN SHOWN A

NOW TO BE SHO

BRINGING OUT THE LIVING AND THE DEAD

INAL

LE ZOLA 6 REELS

PTH OF PATHOS AND THRILLING SITUATIONS,
FAMOUS ACTORS IN FRANCE TOOK PART IN LL OVER EUROPE WITH STUPENDOUS SUCCESS

WN IN AMERICA

$1,000,000.00

spent in advertising will never build up a profitable following for an exhibitor who is not showing good pictures. The higher the claims made for your show the more is expected by your patrons. The one positive requirement for success is satisfactory pictures. "Satisfactory" pictures mean good pictures at every show—day in and day out.

The Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Kleine (Cines-Eclipse), Lubin, Melies, Pathe, Selig and Vitagraph Companies were the pioneers of the Motion Picture industry. From the day when the first picture was marketed until now, vast sums of money have been spent in making these brands famous throughout the world. And back of the advertising there is and has ever been a quality that cannot be surpassed.

A combination of all the great brands makes the strongest and most compelling program that it is possible to throw upon a screen: The General Film Program. Its use is the one sure way to make a picture theatre profitable.

General Film Company (Inc.)
200 Fifth Avenue New York

$1,000,000.00

The Open Door

TWO REELS

Selig. Released December 22nd

A touching story of a lost child and his wanderings, with his ultimate return to the home and the open arms of his parents. Throughout the whole story runs the moral that kindness brings its reward always.

At Cross Purposes

TWO REELS

Kleine-Cines. Released December 23rd

The only too frequent problems of domestic unhappiness are herein solved in a charming manner with pictures made amid wonderful natural scenery.

The Big Horn Massacre

TWO REELS

Kalem. Released December 24th

Three hundred men and two hundred horses help to make this one of the greatest Indian pictures ever made. The massacre of the emigrants and the battles between soldiers and Indians make this picture the last word in realism.

The Parasite

THREE REELS

Lubin. Released December 25th

A strange and dramatic blackmailing story, telling of the fleecing of a society gentleman by a clever pair of crooks. The woman falls in love with him and, unable to continue her criminal practices, later verifies the old adage that "The Wages of Sin is Death."

Lady Madcap's Way

TWO REELS

Pathe. Released December 25th

A comedy-drama that is not only interesting but really laughable as well.

A girl in masculine attire meets with some amusing experiences. Asta Neilsen is at her best in the leading role.

The Great Game

TWO REELS

Essanay. Released December 26th

Politics, the ever interesting game of wit and intrigue, is cleverly played in this great story, in which the president of a railroad tried to bribe the mayor in order to get him to sign a franchise.

A Tudor Princess

TWO REELS

Edison. Released December 26th

A charming love story of the Middle Ages, in which true love eventually triumphs over the tyranny of a king.

A picture of old England which is bound to make its appeal to old and young alike.

The Moth and the Flame

TWO REELS

Pathe. Released December 27th

A strong drama, the story of which is built around the old, but ever new, theme of a foolish woman who is misled by vanity and a love for excitement and fine clothes.

On the same reel is a fine scenic—Corfu, an Island of the Ionian Sea.

Heartsease

TWO REELS

Vitagraph. Released December 27th

A splendid dramatic portrayal of a home in which a wife's heart yearns for the love that understands, and for lack of which she finally dies. Her two sons resemble the father and mother, respectively, in temperament, and the bravery and pathos of the younger lad's life are revealed in a touching climax.

General Film Company (Inc.)
200 Fifth Avenue, New York

Hepworth's, London, Present Oliver Goldsmith's

The Vicar of Wakefield

This famous story by one of the greatest authors that ever lived has been carefully pictured, making this a film that will please wherever shown. A true and exact version in three parts.

Miss Florence Turner in

Turner Films, Ltd.

The Harper Mystery

Three Clever Parts

A three part detective play in which America's most popular motion picture actress assumes four entirely different disguises and hands over to the authorities a notorious band of criminals in a manner that befits the deeds of the world's most famous detectives. Early bookings are advised!

This Feature Is Sure to Please!

General Film Agency, Ltd., London

After Many Years

Three Parts

A thrilling story of love and adventure with most of the action taking place at sea

The story is of a true sea captain, who false to his ideals, comes back to a realization of them. What happened in his wooing and in the days of his maturity. Adventures afloat and ashore. A rescue from the flames. The meeting of the parted lovers.

Charles Dickens'

David Copperfield

Hepworth's. Seven Parts

But Little Territory Remains Unsold

Hepworth's

Kissing Cup

A Racing Melodrama

Four Parts. Countless Thrills

A. BLINKHORN

Sole American and Canadian Agent

World's Tower Building

110-112 West 40th St.

New York City

A Complete Line of Advertising Matter

I Help You Help the Exhibitor

A Delightful Story of a Man, a Girl, the Goddess of Chance, and the Great Italian Lottery

KLEINE-CINES

(In Two Parts)

"WHEN A WOMAN WILLS"

(Copyright, 1913, by George Kleine)

For Release Tuesday, December 30, 1913

Jane Pierce, a charming widow, is bequeathed a fortune of $100,000.00, provided she marry a man possessing an equivalent amount. Otherwise, that legacy goes to a cousin, Daniel Sage. Sage decided that Jane wouldn't be hard to marry off to a poverty-stricken, but good looking adventurer, Osborne by name.

About that time Petro Zante, an amiable and careless Italian, lost a round sum at Monte Carlo and bought a couple of lottery tickets, just to change his luck. And so it fell out that Osborne made poor headway in Jane's affections, while Petro, being sublimely indifferent, got along splendidly.

You should follow the clever, but futile, manipulations of Sage—the dashing theft of Jane's pocketbook and the wild automobile chase that ended so disastrously for Osborne and gave Jane a chance to utilize her wiles on Petro—and above all, you should follow the hand of fate as it transferred the lottery tickets from one to the other.

Such superlatively beautiful interiors we have never before seen in a regular release of any make. Glance at the above photographs and say if even the mighty Cines Company has not outdone itself, in magnificent settings.

See James S. McQuade's Review of this Most Remarkable Subject in Last Week's Issue of the Moving Picture World

Book "WHEN A WOMAN WILLS" and you will have booked a winner

Released through General Film Company

One, three and six sheets with all Kleine subjects

GEORGE KLEINE

166 N. State Street

CHICAGO, ILL.

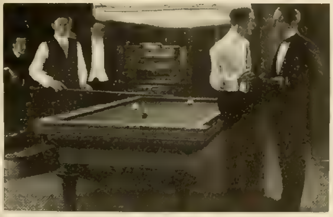
KLEINE



THROUGH THE WINDOW HE SEES THE WIFE HE SUPPOSED TO BE DEAD

PATHEPLAY

¶ A fine story splendidly acted, with Irving Cummings and Pearl Sindelar in leading parts. A man marries a girl at what is supposed to be her death bed, but she lives and brings him happiness after sorrow.

THE RESURRECTION

IN TWO PARTS

RELEASED SATURDAY, JANUARY 3rd

EDISON

A TUDOR PRINCESS

IN TWO PARTS

Released Friday, December 26th

A thrilling romance, the love story of Mary Tudor, the youngest sister of King Henry VIII of England. She is forced to marry Louis of France, despite her love for the Duke of Suffolk, who is sentenced to die by both of these powerful monarchs, but escapes, once through the self-sacrifice of Mary, and then by the sudden death of Louis.

COMING SINGLE REELS

*The Upward Way

The rise of a convict.

Released Tuesday, December 23rd.

Mary's New Hat

She gets it despite hubby.

(On the same reel.)

The Janitor's Quiet Life

Released Wednesday, December 24th.

*A Proposal from Mary

Last of the great "Who Will Marry Mary?" series.

Released Saturday, December 27th.

*Her Face Was Her Fortune

First of Wood B. Wedd's sentimental experiences.

Released Monday, December 29th.

* One sheets.  One and three sheets.  One, three and six sheet posters by the Morgan Lithograph Co.

Four Great Edison Photoplay Series

The Mary pictures were the greatest hits that have ever been made. Many exhibitors had to repeat the entire series! Here are four more money makers for you:

Mary Fuller

in "Dolly of the Dailies," twelve newspaper stories by Acton Davies, released on the last Saturday in month, beginning January 31st.

Ben Wilson

in "The Chronicles of Cleek," twelve detective stories, released the last Tuesday in month, beginning November 25th.

Wm. Wadsworth

in "Wood B. Wedd," comic series by Mark Swan, released the last Monday of month, beginning December 29th in "Andy" comic series, first released Wednesday, December 31st, all others the second Wednesday of month.

Andy Clark

TRADE MARK

Thomas A. Edison

Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

239 Lakeside Ave., Orange, N. J.

Makers of the Edison Kinetoscope, Type "D."

LUBIN·FILMS

LOOK FOR OUR MULTIPLE PICTURE EVERY THURSDAY

"THE PARASITE" Three Reel Thursday, December 25th
A powerful story of blackmailers' operations.

---

"MANUFACTURING PEARL BUTTONS" 300 feet Thursday, January 1st
How the Oyster Shell is modeled for the Notion Counter.

---

"The Inspector's Story"

1700 feet Thursday, January 1st

A beautiful story of a stalwart Police Inspector. Jim Sloane, an ironworker, in a drunken brawl, kills a man, and it becomes the duty of the officer to arrest him and send him up for a life term. Sloane's wife dies, and the Inspector protects the little girl, finally secures a pardon for the father, and eventually set them up in business.

---

"Between Two Fires"

Two Reel Thursday, January 8th

A beautiful War story of Hearts and Arms; very dramatic.

---

Five Releases Each Week

"WHEN HE SEES" 1000 feet Tuesday, December 16th
Two sad accidents secure a lasting happiness.

"A SON OF HIS FATHER" 2000 feet Thursday, December 18th
A dramatic Western story of the gambling rooms.

"GROWING AND GATHERING COCOA BEANS" 400 feet Friday, December 19th
Interesting educational picture taken in Jamaica.

"BANTY TIM" 600 feet Friday, December 19th
Dramatization of John C. Hay's beautiful war poem.

'A LOV OF '64" 1000 feet Saturday, December 20th
A romance of a female Confederate spy; very dramatic.

"THROUGH FLAMING PATHS" 1000 feet Monday, December 22nd
A melodrama of the Forest fires. Intense love interest.

---

LUBIN Five-Color Posters, One, Three and Six Sheets.
From Your Exchange or A. B. C. Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

LUBIN

LUBIN MANUFACTURING CO. PHILADELPHIA U.S.A

LUBIN

VITAGRAPH

"THE UPRISING OF ANN" Western Drama Monday, December 15th

Her husband is infatuated by a pretty school teacher. Ann tells him to make his choice between them. He shamefacedly admits his weakness and pleads forgiveness. Anne Schaefer, George Holt and Myrtle Gonzalez are an excellent cast.

"UP IN A BALLOON"
"ELEPHANTS AT WORK" Comedy and Educational Tuesday, December 16th

1. —The young couple go up in a balloon. Get married up in the air and sail on their honeymoon through the clouds. The old folks are madder than wet hens. 2. —An interesting exhibition of intelligent brute industry.

"ANY PORT IN A STORM" Comedy Wednesday, December 17th

Two old salts contemplate a voyage in matrimony. Their intended wives get married. The old fellows are happily disappointed, and the old maid mourns her lot. George Kunkel and Charles Bennett are the two old salts.

"THE FACE OF FEAR" Drama Thursday, December 18th

In a terrible encounter with two desperate Indians, the two soldiers kill one, and the other flees in terror to his tribe, who hand him over to his pursuers. A strong portrayal by the Vitagraph Western Company.

"THE GIRL AT THE LUNCH COUNTER" Comedy Friday, December 19th

Cutey is in love with the girl. He goes to propose, and finds she is his aunt-in-law. John Bunny, Lillian Walker, Flora Finch, Wallie Van and Kate Price make this a very funny comedy.

"THE ANCIENT ORDER OF GOODFELLOWS" Drama, Special Feature, in Two Parts Saturday, Dec. 20th

Jerry has troubles of his own, but tries to lessen those of others. He comes face to face with a desperate criminal, and lands him in a cell. Christmas day is a day of rejoicing for him and his little protege. Hughie Mack takes the lead with Audrey Berry, William Shea and Mary Maurice.

"THE ANCIENT ORDER OF GOOD FELLOWS"
IN TWO PARTS.
RELEASED SATURDAY, DEC. 20th

SIX A WEEK

| | |
|---|---|
| "A CHRISTMAS STORY"—Drama— | MONDAY, DECEMBER 22nd. |
| "HER FAITH IN THE FLAG"—Drama— | TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd. |
| "THE HONORABLE ALGERNON"—Comedy"— | WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24th. |
| "THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS"—Drama— | THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25th. |
| "THE GOLF GAME AND THE BONNET"—Comedy— | FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th. |
| "HEARTSEASE"—Drama, Special Feature in two Parts— | SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27th. |

The Vitagraph Company releases a special feature in two parts every Saturday, and a comedy every Wednesday and Friday.

Vitagraph one, three and six sheet posters—7 x 9 photos of Vitagraph players.

THE VITAGRAPH CO. OF AMERICA East 15th St. and Locust Ave.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

---

Commencing with the New Year: "THE BROADWAY STAR FEATURES"
Surpassing all previous Vitagraph achievements

A modern Jekyll and Hyde

In Two Parts

This story of a man's dual life will hold your patrons breathless. Regarded as a substantial citizen, Jethro Smith is really the leader of a band of crooks. The gang's discovery of his secret, their desperate battle with the police, and Smith's terrible duel in the dark, are just a few of the exciting incidents.

Released Monday, December 29th

Get the two special 1-sheet and special 3 and 6-sheet posters.

AN UNSEEN TERROR

A Two-Part ALICE JOYCE-TOM MOORE Feature

Tom Moore is "Frank," the criminologist who faces the task of running down his father's slayer, and Alice Joyce is "Anita," the criminologist's sweetheart. The scene showing the conscience-stricken murderer drawn back to the scene of his crime is gripping in intensity. Book this feature.

Released Wednesday, December 31st

Two special 1-sheet posters, also special 3 and 6-sheet posters

BILL'S BOARD BILL

His landlady steals poor Bill's clothes to satisfy a board bill. What happens next is simply great.

(On the same Reel)

CAMBRIDGESHIRE RACE MEET

An exciting view of the great race held at Newmarket, England. Also other interesting topical views taken abroad.

Released Friday, January 2d.

A DREAM OF THE WILD

A most unusual picture of a young man's adventures in dreamland. The fight between white traders and Indians is highly exciting.

Released Saturday, January 3d.

Special 1 and 3-sheet posters.

NOTICE

Commencing January 5th, KALEM will issue a multiple-reel feature on Monday, in addition to the regular Wednesday multiple-reel release. The one-reel feature heretofore issued on Monday will be discontinued.

KALEM

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street

NEW YORK

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the
CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr. .................................President
E. J. Chalmers ........ ..............Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie ...........Vice-President and General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

WESTERN OFFICE—169 West Washington Street (Post Building), Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Main 3145.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands..............................$3.00 per year
Canada ........................................ 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)....................... 4.00 a year

ADVERTISING RATES.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, 50c.

NOTE.—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The index for this issue will be found on page 1482.)

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter.

Saturday, December 20, 1913

Facts and Comments

WHAT, after all, does the motion picture screen reflect more accurately than the thoughts and ideals of the director? The thoughts and ideals of the author count for little while directors continue to hold such large and ill-proportioned power. Any spectator with a little analyzing talent can construct the biography of the average director after seeing a score or two of his pictures. It needs no Sherlock Holmes to deduce the director's taste, his breeding, his views of life and his environments from what he shows us on the screen. If the director is an artist of the highest type his individuality becomes merged in his art. Nothing can be finer than such a merging on the screen, but it is rarer by far than radium. There are directors whose temperamental vanity struts unchecked on the curtain, but even the modest director—assuming such a possibility—is powerless to prevent the revelation of himself and all his characteristics on the screen. The greatest producer of them all is recognized not by a display, conscious or unconscious, of himself but by his blotting out of self in his single-minded devotion to art for the sake of art. Bad pictures may be attributed to a variety of causes, but it may be accepted as an axiom that bad directors make bad pictures.

Some culture and refinement and some education is needed by the director of today. In the early days the director was exalted like an idol. The men, either in the producing branch or eager to enter it, looked upon the director with some of the awe with which the Israelites regarded the golden calf. An appeal from a director's judgment seemed to savor of sacrilege. The director was regarded in the light of a tamer of wild animals. He was the man who could make the beasts go through their paces. All the standards of dramatic art, and indeed all common sense, were flung to the winds. The director demanded that an altar be erected where incense was burned in his honor by day and by night. He is responsible for much of the bad taste that characterized certain film productions, and he might well have been called the master of bad taste.

*

When we think of some of the directors who were then all-powerful in some of the best known studios, it sends a thrill through us to realize that the industry has survived them and that their gospel of cheapness and coarseness is out of date. The writer can never forget with what derisive laughter one of them, not a thousand miles from New York, received the idea of filming Shakespeare. He boasted of his ability to cater to the lowest tastes consistent with the human make-up. A light of pleasure came into his eyes as he dilated upon what he was pleased to call the "fools that went to see moving pictures." The very worst, he thought, was too good for them.

*

There has been a great change for the better, it is true, but we are a long way from the ideal state of affairs. Only recently a prominent director of culture and artistic training was called into conference by a man high in the directing ranks. There was some talk of filming good standard fiction, and some one present at the conference suggested the film possibilities of "She Stoops To Conquer." There was an eager inquiry on the part of the less cultured confrère as to whether there might be any trouble about the copyright, and when informed that Goldsmith was the author, his remark was to the effect that he would have to be paid something. He was greatly relieved, but not a bit abashed, when he found out that the author had been resting in Westminster Abbey for quite some time.

* * *

EXHIBITORS anxious to please their public and willing to accept suggestions from their patrons have an easy way of inviting advice and co-operation on the part of their audiences. They need only the slide to make their wishes known to their patrons. To display a slide, say, once a night, asking for suggestions and criticisms from the audience, not only will now and then produce an excellent improvement but it is certain to gain the good will of every member of the audience. People like to know that their wishes are respected and that their pleasure and comfort are the great objects of the exhibitor's activities.

* * *

AN exhibitor in Philadelphia was asked to display a so-called "fire-notice," which he promptly refused to display because in his judgment it was apt to provoke a panic. He pointed out that in case of injuries following such a panic the court would hold him responsible and would not accept any defense to the effect that "the fire-marshal" had ordered him to display the slide. It is to the credit of the fire-marshals to take all possible precautions against fire, but his zeal ought to be tempered with a little discretion and common sense.

Next Year

By Louis Reeves Harrison

IN the midst of so much clatter of brass and cymbals, it is not easy to hear the deep undertones that tell of what is coming, but it looks as though motion-picture production will soon be squarely up against public demand instead of responding largely to shrewd commercial methods. There will always be a selling end to the business, clever advertising will count more than ever, but present events indicate that future values must be intrinsic ones. The most profitable releases will be those possessing the highest general average of merit.

The principal losers will be those unable to revise their opinions. The winners of 1914 will be those who try intelligently and determinedly to put forth the best that creative, constructive and interpretative talent can provide. The surest way to discover genius is to encourage it. It may take time and the collective taste of many people to sift out the works of genius so that they will stand apart, but a good way to clear a path for screen portrayals of the highest order is to offer generous opportunity to playwrights, directors and actors of proven ability and sincerity.

This is already being done. Actors of personality, directors of imagination plus taste, authors capable and original, nearly all are actively engaged, and the demand for more bids far to exceed the supply. Live manufacturers have grasped the idea that the secret of interest is knowledge. The only wise and effective approach to the greatest joy of the greatest number is to produce what appeals to the finest qualities of mankind and womankind, and to the bright generation of little men and women who throng the picture shows more than ever before.

The most striking feature of recent production is an almost uniform cleanliness of purpose and treatment. No one deeply loving the new art believes in making it a pack horse to carry a weary burden of religious instruction, but a great number of profoundly interesting photodramas radiate a benevolent influence rather than a sinister one. They aim at beauty, itself refining, and the almost unanimous demand for a satisfactory ending to screen stories indicates plainly that there is a deep-seated love of justice, amounting to a moral instinct, in the warm hearts of the people, one of the soundest traits of human nature.

Photodramas of filth emerge from minds of filth; are shown by exhibitors of low taste and betray a weakling's estimate of human kind. It is certain, on the other hand, that the art would be seriously injured if certain dark phases of life could not be held up to view. It is all a question of aim. Strong men and clean women find nothing objectionable in scenes of bitter realism when the author's ideals are lofty and are treated with respect for the spiritual end involved. In writing feature plays, I have been compelled more than once to skate on thin ice, but felt no sense of danger because headed in the right direction from the start.

There is no need of falling back on George Elliot's "Middlemarch" or Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" in order to enforce a point—the author of next year, if his own heart is sound, may go the length of his inspiration. It is the soul of the play that has all to do with its power and artistic effect. The best photodramas of 1914 will be those which, coming from bright minds, will be as rich and strong as the sources from which they flow.

A brilliant writer draws a nice distinction in saying, "what is permissable may fairly be settled by the standard that discriminates between the nude in art and the naked in art." The exhibitor who runs his place as a "peep show" or "chamber of horrors" will only draw primitive shockheads until their curiosity has been whetted and then find himself wondering why other houses are more prosperous than his own. When evil is frankly shown, it must be done with a sense of its bearing on human welfare.

No matter what the incidents of next year's photodramas, the main question is one of refining potency—whether or not they leave a more wholesome or better feeling after the shadowy side of human life is portrayed. Human nature, two-sided, in constant struggle between noble impulse and base impulse, seems to furnish in itself the finest material for screen portrayal. There are no normal men and women who are thoroughly bad, and, if we were all very, very good, there would be no drama. The true artist uses both light and shade to bring out his figures.

The big feature plays of next year will not depend upon action alone. They will delve deep into what quickens human emotion. The tremendous humanitarian feeling which slowly accumulated during the last century is rapidly developing in this one, in which moving pictures seem destined to operate as a transforming agent, is rousing people with new enthusiasm. We are not only growing more generous to one another but to other peoples, inclined to take a broader and more charitable view of their contrasting peculiarities. The pictures of 1914 may boldly deal with political and social life of our time, furnishing us with food for thought and providing an interesting record for future generations.

The letters of our forefathers—how pitiful they seem! How little those men had to live for! How narrow their point of view! What will our descendants think when they come to see how we live? We are very much swelled up at present because a few bright minds in our midst have led us along at what appears to be a lively pace, but what will the people 2014 think of us when the scrolls of our present life are unrolled for inspection? It would be a joke on us if they sized us up by what has been put on the films of 1913.

Is it not possible for us to preserve in the "canned" dramas of 1914 better representation of what is actually passing in our minds and careers? Though the effect on future generations may not be a matter of present consequence, can we not put less of theatricalism and more of sincere self-expression into what we are producing for general entertainment? Would it not be more entertaining to see us as we are in the struggle with inner self and outer influence, strong of intention and weak of performance, than people of other days about whom we know little and care less?

Is there not a rich field of comedy material in the vanity of men who are lucky accidents in the moving picture business, made wealthy before they had time to learn to use their knives and forks, to say nothing of the English language? Is there not a tremendous tragedy going on near our Southern border, the decay and destruction of a Latin nation incapable of self-government? We need the imagination of genius to enable us to see these things. There are powerful pictures to be conjured up before our eyes in 1914. Let us read the stories of real men and women on the screen—we are tired of costumed puppets dangling on strings and long for such truth of representation as may engage our hearts and minds.

The Archenemy

By W. Stephen Bush

THE Moving Picture World does not propose to add to the present censorship agitation. We cannot, however, help regarding the censorship of motion pictures as the archenemy of the industry, and duty compels us to issue another warning against this fatal delusion which threatens irreparable injury to every branch of the motion picture interests.

A notice has been sent out to exhibitors in Wisconsin to organize, and among the topics proposed for discussion is the following:

"A State censor board to protect every exhibitor in Wisconsin." How will censorship of any kind "protect" the exhibitor, whether he carries on his business in Ohio, Wisconsin, or in some other part of the world?

Censorship will annoy him, it will harass him, it will interfere with the orderly and profitable conduct of his business, but censorship will never protect him. He needs to be protected against censorship. It seems to be believed in certain quarters that a board of censors constituted and appointed by the State is inherently better than the censor board of the city or the county. It has been claimed that the State censor has a wider jurisdiction than the city or county censor and that one censor in a State is more apt to be right and more inclined to be fair and just than the censor for a lesser political subdivision within the State. Not a scintilla of evidence has ever been adduced to support this theory.

Censors must all be made out of human clay and are subject to the same human shortcomings and infirmities of judgment whether their appointment comes from the authority of the State or from the authority of the city or the village. Indeed, we believe that even under a system of governmental censorship the benefits of State censorship are altogether questionable. If the State censor makes a foolish decision he can do harm to a thousand exhibitors where the local censor can only harm a few.

Of course, the estimable gentlemen who are now jousting in the arena of censorship discussion miss the real point at issue. The debate as to whether there shall be national or State or city censorship is carried on in sublime ignorance of the real question, and the only question which has any pertinence at all. The fight is not for censorship of any kind, but against censorship of every kind. The problem is not whether we gain most by this or by that variety of censorship, but whether we do not suffer lasting damage from even an attempt of establishing any system of censorship. We are not sure whether the advocates of censorship have finally grasped and absorbed the fact that there cannot be any national governmental censorship. Perhaps we are too sanguine in assuming that even this elementary fact has successfully percolated. The occasional vaporings about a national congress of censors would seem to indicate that large banks of impenetrable fog are still obscuring a vision which mayhap was never very keen at any time. For the sake of argument, however, we will assume that the claim of governmental censorship under federal authority has been abandoned. The Treasury Department at Washington, on which Congress has conferred a discretionary power of censorship applied to imported films, has never made the slightest attempt to enforce such a censorship, and it is altogether likely that this new provision thrown into the film schedules will remain a dead letter.

The only form of censorship that will have to be fought is local censorship, whether its jurisdiction extends over a State or over a part of a State. The place to fight out the question of censorship is the court. The opponents of censorship hold that it is illegal in any form.

We firmly believe with the late William J. Gaynor and with ex-President Taft that censorship violates the constitutional guarantees of freedom of expression. We firmly believe that motion pictures are no more subject to censorship than newspapers are. We firmly believe that the laws now on the statute books are ample to suppress all obscene, indecent and immoral or libelous motion pictures. The cartoon is exempt from censorship, the pictures in the press are exempt from censorship; why should not the pictures on the screen enjoy the same franchise and privilege? Newspapers are often punished for publishing obscene or libelous matter, but that surely is no argument for reintroducing censorship, which at all times in the history of mankind has been used as an engine of tyranny and oppression. Men will make bad and offensive pictures, but that is no excuse for resorting to censorship. The remedy would be a good deal worse than the disease.

Let us remember, too, that the fight for the freedom of the press was not won in a day. The bigots of three centuries fought against the enfranchisement of the press. The freedom of the screen is worth fighting for, and it must be fought for. We cannot expect a big matter like this to be settled in a day or in a month or even in a year. We must expect opposition to the freedom of the screen, though it is strange that the worst opposition is to be encountered at the hands of men who declare themselves the friends of the motion picture and the friends of the exhibitor.

Our hope lies in the very reasons which ultimately achieved the freedom of the press. The one great argument in favor of a free press as eloquently outlined in Milton's Areopagitica was its great usefulness to humanity at large. It was pointed out by the friends of a free press that the newspapers were great mediums of circulating knowledge and information and that in disseminating such knowledge and information they rendered exceptional services to the commonwealth at large. It was justly contended that in view of these extraordinary services the newspapers ought to be independent of all control by the Government and ought to be permitted to print what they like, subject only to punishment for a manifest abuse of their privilege. This has been the fundamental law in our country ever since it achieved its independence, and upon this fundamental law the opponents of censorship for motion pictures will make their stand.

Whatever makes the newspaper of value to the community and confers upon it special privileges applies with even greater force to the motion picture. The motion picture disseminates knowledge and information over as great an area of this world as the newspaper. Every man of intelligence today admits the educative force of the motion picture, its ability not only to delight and entertain but likewise to instruct and enlighten. It is the business of the State to help rather than hinder the development of motion pictures.

The American way of looking at censorship is the common sense, democratic way. We ask, "Who is to censor the censors?" No individual has a right to set himself up as the judge of what another may put on the screen —there is but one arbiter whom we can recognize and that is public opinion, whether it happens to be crystallized into law or not.

"The Awakening at Snakeville"

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

ONE has only to whisper it, that Alkali Ike will be seen shortly in another of his side-splitting slapsticks, in order to awaken widespread interest. This latest goes under the title "The Awakening at Snakeville," and takes two full reels; although, for my part, I would prefer to have the fast and furious fun condensed in one.

There is no use in trying to deny that we all have a hankering, at times, for the broadest and most farcical of subjects. On such occasions we banish not only analysis but sanity itself, and give full sway to Mirth and gambol deliriously with the joyous, chubby-faced attendants in his train. Everyone who sees Alkali Ike and his Sophie in their domestic life, in Snakeville, cannot fail to add to the number of his days and to the strength of his midriff.

Scene from "The Awakening at Snakeville" (Essanay).

There are situations in this ultrafarcical skit that reveal a positive genius in the imagining of unheard of horseplay. Take the case of Sophie when she keeps her scamp of a husband at home by means of a rope, one end of which is knotted around the body of that worthy and the other secured to her wrist, while she does her housework. Then, womanlike, she chases him out to get some cider at the neighboring grocery store, forgetful of the additional bond that unites them. Alkali runs at top speed, with Sophie and her three hundred pounds in close pursuit. The race and the consequences are full of uproarious fun. So also is the climax of the story, where Sophie man-handles three of Alkali's friends in most approved western fashion.

Scene from "The Awakening at Snakeville" (Essanay).

Augustus Carney and Margaret Joslyn (Mrs. Carney in private life), require no introduction in the parts of Alkali and Sophie. They are really in a class by themselves in these widely known characters. There is droll humor alone in the physical contrast which they present. In this instance they are well supported by Slippery Slim, Mustang Pete and Rawhide Bill—surely an appropriate trio of names—in the persons of Victor Potel, Harry Todd and Frederick Church. Nor must the Doctor Killem, of David Kirkland, be lost sight of in the scramble.

As married life advances Alkali Ike grows lazy, and steals frequent naps in an old empty barrel. Sophie sends him to the grocery store for supplies but he is induced by his three pals to join in a poker game, which is rudely interrupted by Sophie, who wields a rolling pin. She leads her husband home by the ear and makes him peel raw potatoes. Alkali attempts to escape through a window, but is ignominiously caught. His friends succeed in providing him with sleeping pills, with the following note: "Give Sofie a pill fer what ails her; then hurry down to the shack. Don't fergit her pocket book."

Alkali vainly tries to get Sophie to drink drugged water and cider. Then the race to the grocery, already referred to, takes place. There Sophie drinks "doped" cider furnished by Alkali and, on the way home, sinks down in deep slumber. How Alkali got her home will be told best by the pictures.

Leaving Sophie in profound sleep on the kitchen floor, Alkali hurries to join his pals, not overlooking the purse which his wife so zealously guarded. Hours afterwards, Sophie awakes and misses the purse. Then she starts on the war path. Her prowess in trimming Slippery Slim, Mustang Pete and Rawhide Bill, whom, in this instance, she blames for Alkali's indiscretion, furnishes a mirthful and exciting episode in the pictured story.

The release date is January 2.

Christmas Pictures.

Never since pictures first began to attract and educate have they fulfilled either of these purposes so much as to-day. Christmas is the picture season of the year. In home, school and church the one great Christmas entertainment is illustrated. A generation ago a Christmas entertainment without the Christmas tree and stereopticon was not only incomplete but lacking in true, attractive and instructive power. We have grown with the times; not away from these things, but to, and with them, in a larger degree. How tremendously the moving picture helps and enlarges the Christmas opportunities. What great pictures are now ready. Never such pictures. Never such projection. The Christmas exhibition can become truly great. The Kalem film "From the Manger to the Cross," is wonderfully timely and for this season may be used without the last reel and so keep within the Christmas spirit. "The Star of Bethlehem" and "Herod the King" must not be forgotten at this season. These pictures were made to last and although good at all times, must especially be used at the right and proper time from which they drew their inspiration. The list is long and good, making it possible for the church and the exhibitor to

Work Together.

Not one church in a thousand can have its own outfit for these exhibitions, but every exhibitor can offer his services to many churches for an evening, with subjects which will harmonize with their objects in Christmas entertainments. What a splendid opportunity for thousands of children to see some of the great pictures and thus have much of their class teaching emphasized and enlarged. Especially in the smaller and suburban towns can the exhibitor make his agreement with the local clergyman and school authorities. Even on his own account the exhibitor who uses these pictures will be serving "his day and generation" profitably rather than if he ran an indiscriminate medley of unsuitables. Make the season and the entertainment harmonize; it increases your profit and reputation; it pleases and educates; it gives greater satisfaction and the remembrances are pleasant ones, and above all, if necessary, give a free exhibition to the children of the poor whose appreciation is of more value than many nickels.

W. H. J.

COMMODORE BLACKTON RE-ELECTED.

J. Stuart Blackton, who has been commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club for the past three years, was re-elected to that office for another year at a meeting of the club held at the Waldorf-Astoria, Monday evening, December 8. Commodore Blackton is immensely popular with the Atlantic Club yachtsmen and the club has been very prosperous under his administration. As a skipper, the Commodore is most enthusiastic and, notwithstanding that he has won greatest renown as a builder and driver of motor boats, he is a skilful sailor of yachts and owns racing craft of several types.

"Absinthe."

Four-Reel Universal Feature.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

CHARACTERIZED by some remarkable acting, realism as bitter as the wormwood of the aromatic liqueur, the skillful use of natural scenery, a distinctive French atmosphere, and a moral earnestness in its brutal truths, it looks as though this photodrama should win on merit. A stern purpose gives direction to its events, but it will be more effective in France than in this country—there the blind and reckless passions aroused by excessive indulgence in the drink will be better understood.

King Baggot's impersonation of the young artist, who becomes an absinthe fiend, is one of tremendous energy and reaches great heights when the hallucinations of the character harden into violent mania. His picture of the morbid conditions arising from the excessive use of intoxicants might apply to alcoholism in general, but it becomes distinctively that of absinthe in the vertigo and epileptiform convulsions. It is a portrayal of horrible truth in the stage of hallucination without other symptom of delirum tremens. It is almost a marvel that he was able to stand such a protracted strain as he must have endured in rehearsals and performance. The role was probably the most difficult he has ever assumed, and I doubt if he would care to attempt it again. It will surely be a long time before another such remarkable piece of acting will be shown on the screen.

Scene from "Absinthe" (Imp).

The manly star was admirably supported by Leah Baird and a company of French actors. Miss Baird made a delightful French grisette, looking the part and acting it with a charm that is decidedly of herself—she has personality of a winning kind. She and King Baggot are the only two Americans in the cast. They and Director Herbert Brennon went to Paris especially for the production of this photodrama, hence the distinctive French atmosphere visible throughout the piece.

The settings are delightful, many of them along the Seine revealing the director's instinctive love of the beautiful, and affording the needed contrast and relief in such a recital. Particularly enjoyable are the views of Paris streets during the chase. There is a chase and one involving some reckless driving and struggle on the part of Baggot and Miss Baird. The young artist, at an acute period of his decadence, attempts to destroy the woman he has loved in primitive fashion, and he barely escapes for a last desperate attempt at redemption. The pursuit is shown in some of the most prominent avenues of the French capital.

The story itself involves a basic clash of character, that of society and the individual, or rather that of the species and the individual. The artist is a typical weakling under the influence of absinthe, one who goes beyond law, custom and the limits of his own being because the physical poison soon becomes a moral one, dragging him down until his soul pleads piteously for the tortured and convulsed frame it habits, while the man who should be the master of that soul is so brutalized by alcoholism that his course of life is directed by primitive instinct and passion rather than his nobler impulses and the power of reason he has acquired. The story pictures a violent transformation in personality and offers something intended to make quite a number of men, actors included, sit up and take notice.

"Snared in the Alps."

Refreshing Alpine Winter Scenes Are One of the Pleasing Things of a New Offering by the Union Features Company.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THE very first glimpse the reviewer got of this picture gave him a distinct uplift of pleasure, due to the charming scene it opened before him. As the story, "Snared in the Alps," begins we find a large party having a good time in Switzerland. The hotel and the village houses are white with snow and the mountains have on their winter robes in the background.

The story is sensational. It has its happy couple, its villain, who poisons the mind of the young wife for his own evil purposes, and, finally, the innocent woman friend whom in time the wife grows to hate. She has listened to the tempter, but him she hates most of all. She tries to get revenge on the other woman and the incident gives the picture its name; but the victim is rescued and, in the end, the friends are reconciled and the villain discredited. Its situation is stated clearly and forcefully at once and the development is, for the most part, natural and fairly convincing—the human motives are clear and vigorously presented all through, even though, here and there, an incident seems somewhat arbitrary. This keeps the picture from impressing us a bit of real life; but we remain deeply interested. The offering will make a strong appeal on account of its atmosphere as much as of the artistic work of players. The part that atmosphere plays in this picture impression is marked. Sledding, skiing and skating, with the swift motion of them, have a subtle effect on the action as it is presented to the mind; they seem to help our idea of motion in the story, as music accompaniment would help our idea of dancing watched in some picture. Then, too, these people are having such a good time that it seems to make our interest in the spoiling of it the more lively. Also the wildness of the country most surely gives punch to the climax, where the strong wife ties the slighter other woman to a sled and sets her sliding down a mountain. It is a picture with a good deal to its credit and one that we can safely commend to exhibitors. The photography is beautiful and the sets for those scenes which had to be taken indoors are all that could be desired.

Scene from "Snared in the Alps" (Union Feature).

VITAGRAPH TWO-PART COMEDY RELEASE EVERY TUESDAY.

Beginning Tuesday, January the 6th, the Vitagraph Company of America will release regularly every Tuesday a two-part, special feature comedy. This will take the place of the one reel regular release. This comedy multiple will be of the same high standard and type as "The Regiment of Two," "Jerry's Mother-in-law," "Beauty Unadorned" and "Women on the Warpath." These set the world to laughing, and the Tuesday Vitagraph comedy releases will keep it in continual good humor.

KLEINE ARRANGES FOR LINE OF BIG SUBJECTS.

George Kleine cables from Rome that he has completed negotiations for a series of 7, 8 and 9-reel subjects, which are due soon in America. These include some of the best known dramas and famous historical incidents.

"Leah Kleschna."

Miss Carlotta Nillson Gives Fine Portrayal in Famous Players' Four-Part Adaptation of Well-Known Drama.

By George Blaisdell.

THE Famous Players added, on December 10, another picture to the lengthening list of its releases the leads in which are played by dramatic stars. Miss Carlotta Nillson is the latest of these, and the play in which she chooses to make her screen bow is "Leah Kleschna," from the pen of C. M. S. McLellan. There was a wealth of appeal in the stage production; it thrilled and it stirred. If in the pictured version there is lacking the same high degree of interest it may without hesitation be ascribed to the large number of principals in the cast; to the greater difficulty of clearly following in the earlier stages of a picture more than four or five principals. Those who sharply watch the introduction of the characters as they appear in their frame of gold at the opening will have no difficulty. Miss Nillson sustains the role of Leah. It is a fine interpretation. Her delineation of the woman who is reared as the daughter of a thief, who aids him in his marauding excursions, and who is brought to see the right through the guidance of the man she loves, alternates with strength and tenderness. Leah is a womanly woman. House Peters is Paul Sylvain, Deputy of France, who first meets Leah at the Charity Bazaar, and who falls in love with her as she also falls in love with him. His work is finished, and will command and hold the sympathy of his audience. Hal Clarendon is Kleschna, the father of Leah; Schram, the accomplice, is portrayed by Alexander Gaden. These two are vigorous and convincing. Vincent Sternroyd, an actor of much stage experience, as General Berton makes his debut in pictures and does well. Frank H. Crane is Raoul Berton, the young blood who turns crook, believing he can fasten his theft on Leah. Madeline Traverse is Claire Berton, Anabel Denison is Charlotte and Elenore Flowers is Sophie. The acting is even and praiseworthy throughout. J. Searle Dawley is the producer.

Scene from "Leah Kleschna" (Famous Players).

There are many strong situations, one of them highly spectacular, some dramatic and several pictorial. The staging of the Charity Bazaar, where the two thieves had gone to rob but remained to rescue when the conflagration started, is realistic. The scenes of panic as the crowds storm the locked door, the final releasing of the imprisoned persons from the smoke-filled rooms, the carrying out of those overcome and the crumbling of the flame-riddled edifice constitute the feature of the first reel. A few of the scenes of dramatic force are the discovery by Paul of Leah in his home, where she has come to rob, and the later entrance of Raoul, where, spurred on by the discovery of a handkerchief, he also finds Leah and denounces Paul, Leah sacrificing herself by admitting that she had come to steal; the flight of Raoul from the presence of his father and sister when Paul intimates that he may be the thief; Leah's declaration to her father that she is leaving him forever, his refusal at first to consent and his later recession from this position on account of the approach of a detective, and Leah's shrewd moves to enable the thieves to escape; best of all, where Leah, having recovered the jewels, goes with them to the home of Paul, and her inability to comprehend that the deputy of France really loves her, a thief and the daughter of a thief.

The settings and backgrounds will charm. The interiors are elaborate and luxurious. Much attention is given to lighting effects. The final scene is of Paul and Leah sitting on the side of a castle-crested hill, in the glow of sunset. They are looking upward. The attitude is significantly prophetic of the future of Leah.

"The Lotus Dancer."

True Feature Four Reel Melodrama.

IT opens with some scenes of beauty, and beauty continues to dominate throughout the play, especially in the person of the Lotus Dancer, very lightly attired as a Priestess of the Temple—she has no more than a lotus flower, but not enough to hide any portion of her figure of September-Morn symmetry. She gathers lotus flowers in "every winding creek" and carries them to the statue of Buddha, whose one eye is made big enough for him to enjoy the dance Miss September Morn does in his honor. He sits watching her graceful posing, a grim smile on his face like that on the beaming countenance of an old gentleman in the front row while a ballet is in progress, until a squad of English soldiers profane the temple with their presence in pursuit of some hostile natives. Then his eye is plucked out, presumably in the interest of morality, by Sir Percy, handsome young officer in charge of the despoiling troops.

Sir Percy is, in truth, inclined to that portion of the Mosaic law relating to idolatrous places of worship, "And thou shalt gather all the spoil thereof," for he makes off with the idol's eye, a precious jewel, and is followed to England by Metta, the Priestess who is so attractive in her native garb of innocent scantiness, and a remarkable Brahmin, both of whom have vowed before the altar to recover the missing optic at any cost. Metta puts on ordinary, much-to-be-regretted habiliments of civilization and, accompanied by the faithful Brahmin, sails on the same ship as Sir Percy. The conspirators contrive to get staterooms either side of that occupied by the English officer, and lively adventures follow.

The Brahmin cuts a hole in the partition of his room and thrusts his arm through to obtain the idol's eye, but Sir Percy discovers the attempted theft, ties the intruding arm and hurries out in search of a ship's officer. Metta to the rescue. She pokes the muzzle of a revolver through a transom and shoots, "Bing! bing! bing!" The third shot cuts the rope and the Brahmin escapes. All is quiet and serene when Sir Percy returns with the ship's officer. He is such an unsuspicious individual that he hires this same Brahmin as his butler on his return to England.

Delicate situations follow. Sir Percy is engaged to a sweet English girl, but he has become infatuated with Metta on board ship and permits her to visit him. The work of enslaving the handsome young English officer becomes so interesting that Metta falls in love with him. Some very pretty scenes are now shown, those of a sailing party being especially attractive. Sir Percy falls overboard and Metta leaps after him. She saves the life of the man she has come all the way from India to trick. It begins to look complicated, but the Brahmin reminds the lovely Metta of her vow and they unite to recover the big jewel at all risk.

There is a poetic beginning to this screen story, and the end is one calculated to stir the soul with its grace of imagery, but the director has not made the most of his fine opportunities. The beautiful ideas and images offered him are treated as though he feared they might not be understood, fatal error directorial that can only be eliminated in the course of time. "The Lotus Dancer" is really a well-constructed story, but its interpretation is far below its intrinsic merits. For all that, it will probably make a hit.

CANADIAN OPENS ST. JOHNS BRANCH.

Phil. Kaufman, general manager of the Canadian Film Co., Limited, visiting in New York this week, announces the opening of a new exchange at St. Johns, Canada, at No. 96 Charlotte St. The company, known throughout Western Canada as the Canadian Film Exchange, is the exclusive distributer of Universal films in Canada. It has offices in every province, from coast to coast, covering more territory than any exchange company in the world.

Mr. Kaufman was in New York partly on pleasure and partly on business. He states that the Universal films are being shown in more houses in Canada than those of any other company. The company, of which he is general manager, owns and operates a string of theaters itself and does a tremendous business.

Recently the company took over, after considerable negotiations, the Strand Theater, the biggest theater in Montreal, which has, heretofore, been devoted to the Mutual films.

A. H. McBeth, lately manager of the Mutual Exchange in St. Johns and Montreal, will be manager of the new exchange.

Foreign Trade Notes

PARIS LETTER.

(Special Correspondence to THE WORLD.)

SOME of the Pathe picture theaters are advertising "only inflammable film used here."

* * *

J. M. Downie, of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, was a caller at my offices the other day. He has come to Paris to superintend the organization of the company's Paris offices. Messrs. Anderson and Zeigler, well known on your side of the Atlantic have secured the agency of the Trans-Atlantic Company, which, of course, is a branch of the Universal.

* * *

I hear that the Edison Company is asking a very large figure for a two years concession of the Kinetophone for France. One stipulation in the proposed contract is that the French company purchase all apparatus from New Jersey laboratories and send all films to be developed and printed there.

* * *

The celebrated Parisian beauty Regina Badet has played in a photoplay for the Azur Company of Nice.

* * *

At a meeting of the French trade it was unanimously decided to accept without demur the ordinance of the Police Prefect on non flam film. Regret, however, was expressed that a further delay had not been granted. There is good reason to believe that M. Hennion will prolong the date of ratification. At the same meeting bitter resentment was expressed at the proposal of the Society of Authors to impose "authors rights" at picture theaters.

* * *

I have had the pleasure of interviewing Maurice Lehmann, Paris representative of the Edison Company. The Edison offices are situated in the rue des Petites Ecuries in close proximity to several other important houses. In Mr. Lehmann's finely appointed private office hang photographs of Thomas A. Edison and of the Edison works and laboratories at Orange, New Jersey. Mr. Lehmann said that he was pleased to say that the sale of Edison photoplays in France is steadily increasing. "Our Mary Stuart"—he said—"was shown at several of the leading Paris picture theaters. Of course, a large proportion of our output is entirely unsuitable for Latin countries, for example, our Dickens series and What Happened to Mary. French audiences could not appreciate such subjects. The reign of the cowboy, I think, is over as far as Europe is concerned. Long dramas are, however, very popular."

* * *

The opening of the Edouard VII theater had to be again postponed. Workmen are now putting the finishing touches to the magnificent building and the "repetition generale" is definitely fixed for Friday, December 12th. The opening program will be composed of a selection of subjects demonstrating the possibilities of natural color cinematography, such as the Kinemacolor Fashion Gazette, Sports in Kinemacolor, Science in Kinemacolor, etc. A lecturer will explain the pictures. There will not be any other attraction on the bill, barring the music which will be featured. As a matter of fact, it is anticipated that the spectators at the Edouard VII will themselves provide an entertainment by being garbed in the latest Parisian fashions, thus "Kinemacoloring" will become a fashionable function. The orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. Baker, who comes from the Scala Theater, London.

* * *

A French daily is holding an inquiry on the question oi the picture theater versus the theater. In his reply, Max Linder says that competition between the two entertainments is growing greater. According to Linder, one day there will be a picture theater without a screen, or in other words a Kinoplastikon show with talking "figures." "I think the picture theater of tomorrow"— he writes—"will be a mixture of cinematograph and theater. I am so confident of this that I have created this kind of show in France and, moreover, toured with it in other countries."

* * *

"To Win the Million," the novel sketch produced by the Eclair Company, has been presented to the public during the past weeks at the Empire Music Hall. The cinematograph musical farce has been considerably improved since the first representation at the Folies Bergere. The star of the piece is Funnicus, the wonderful little comedian of Eclair film fame who seems to be possessed of the energy of ten men. Funnicus is one of the most striking personalities in Parisian filmland.

JOHN CHER.

BRITISH NOTES.

(Special Correspondence to THE WORLD.)

WHAT is believed to be a record run for a single series of moving pictures will terminate at the Holborn Empire at the end of this month. They are the African Hunt pictures of Paul J. Rainey, which, in addition to being exhibited for forty weeks continuous run, were shown to the King, at Buckingham Palace, and to the German Emperor, at Dantyig.

* * *

Mr. Henri de Vries, the well-known European actor, has commenced film manufacturing in London on his own account. His first release, in which he plays seven characters himself, will be "A Case of Arson," in four reels. Another gentleman of distinction to commercially exploit the producing field is Mr. Hudson Maxim, the inventor. Under the name of the "Colonial Motion Picture Corporation," he will stage a number of dramas introducing the sensational effects of powerful explosives.

* * *

Palpably in view of the decree of the French Government, who propose to prohibit the use of ordinary film base next year, Messrs. Pathe Freres announce that all releases controlled by them will, from December 7th, be printed upon safety stock.

* * *

"Kinemapoems" is the newest designation of talking pictures. The Kinemafilm & Theatrical Exchange Co., of London, evidently think there is a future for the moving picture poem with verbal accompaniment, for they are liberating, in the course of a week or two, short films illustrating famous poems. The recital can be made either by a synchronized gramaphone or with a human voice behind the screen.

* * *

The order of the day throughout England's leading moving picture theaters is the educational film. At present the programs at the leading London and provincial halls are constituted in different proportions from one-quarter to two-thirds of educational films. This revival can be directly attributed to a concerted movement between Messrs. Pathe's London depot and the "Evening News," who are promoting a special course of fifteen educational programs for moving picture theaters, schools, technical institutes and other educational organizations. While on this subject I should not omit to mention a novel series of films taken in a tin mine in Cornwall, illustrating the procedure and methods involved in tin mining. They were taken nearly a mile below the surface and expensive and elaborate fittings had to be employed to secure adequate lighting.

* * *

The "Universal" Co.—they are never referred to in the trade by their registered name, the Trans-Atlantic Film Co.—have been getting on the right side of the London press. Last Wednesday over fifty journalists, representing daily newspapers, lunched at Frascatis on the invitation of the "Universal" manager. Happy relations were soon established between the two bodies and it appears very likely that the column of "Universal" paragraphs, fired every week at newspaper editors, may now stand a chance of getting into print.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League

A GREAT RALLY.

Philadelphia Exhibitors Get Together and Strengthen Their Organization.

THE open meeting called by the Philadelphia local organization of motion picture exhibitors took place on the afternoon of Sunday, December 7th. It was well attended despite wet pavements, a grey sky, and a steady down-pour. It was a spirited meeting throughout and it gives promise of great benefits to the exhibitor in the Quaker City and, indeed, the whole state of Pennsylvania.

The meeting was called to order by the Chairman of the Executive Committee, Mr. E. A. Jeffries. He briefly explained the object of the meeting, which was the gaining of new recruits and the general strengthening of the organization. Nothing more was required, he said, than the payment of one dollar and this nominal amount covered the first month's dues.

The meeting took up the general welfare of the organization and there followed a number of speakers who dwelt on the various grievances of which the Philadelphia exhibitor has good cause to complain. Mr. Benn was one of the speakers, who denounced the follies of excessive competition and of giving away prizes and arranging "country stores," etc.

Dr. Christion spoke on the necessity of organizing promptly and of getting every exhibitor to join. Counsellor Samuel F. Wheeler, himself a prominent exhibitor and a member of the organization, made an able, logical and convincing address which was frequently interrupted by applause. He dealt with the persecuting methods of the municipal authorities and mentioned an order of the fire marshal asking exhibitors to throw a "fire-notice" on the screen, which was so designed and so worded as to provoke a panic at any time. Mr. Wheeler said he had not displayed this "fire-notice" in any of his own theaters and he did not believe that any exhibitor could be legally compelled to display it. Mr. Wheeler deplored the small membership of the branch and pointed out that it would be hard to get a respectful hearing from the authorities until the organization represented the majority of the exhibitors in the city. He called attention to the fact that the operators' union, which had a powerful membership, was treated with more respect by the city authorities than the exhibitors. It was necessary, he continued, to demonstrate their power and one way of doing it was by fighting the enemy on the screen. (Applause.) "Our slides," said Mr. Wheeler, "reach a constituency of 500,000 people and we can defeat any man who tries to oppress and persecute the motion picture exhibitors." Mr. Wheeler severely criticised the unfair and partial administration of the law of 1911 and other laws affecting motion picture theaters. He mentioned several instances of unjust discrimination on the part of the Chief of Building Inspectors. He knew, he said, how to defend his rights and how to deal with the police when they over-stepped the bounds of the law, but the small exhibitor was often at the mercy of an arbitrary official. The small exhibitor, he went on, should be the first to join the organization for it would enable him to fight unjust laws or an unfair enforcement of the law. There was long and hearty applause when Mr. Wheeler concluded his remarks.

Chairman Jeffries then called upon W. Stephen Bush, of the Moving Picture World, who had been asked to attend and address the meeting by special resolution. Mr. Bush assured the meeting and all exhibitors generally of the good will and co-operation of the Moving Picture World.

"I must add," Mr. Bush continued, "a message of congratulation upon the splendid type of leadership which the meeting has revealed. With such men as Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Jeffries and others, all of them exhibitors of ability, energy and conscientiousness, your success cannot be in doubt. Your speakers this afternoon have ably dealt with the local difficulties confronting you and I surely could add nothing to what they have said.

"I feel, however, that I may make some return to you for the kind invitation you have extended, by calling your attention to a problem far greater and far more pressing than any other which the industry is called upon to face. I am speaking of censorship and especially of governmental censorship. In the city and the state of New York, censorship by government has received its death blow at the hands of one of the ablest jurists and constitutional lawyers, the late William J. Gaynor. (Applause.) In another state, however, not far from here, as we measure distances, this official censorship has been established and unless the restraining writ, which has been obtained against the enforcement of this crazy law, is sustained by the Federal Court, which issued it, the industry in Ohio will be paralyzed.

"The Moving Picture World has always held the views of the late W. J. Gaynor, i.e., that, under our organic law, there is no room for governmental censorship of motion pictures, that motion pictures are and of right ought to be as free as the newspaper. Why discriminate between the print on the page of the newspaper and the picture on the screen of the motion picture theater. The motion picture renders as great and as valuable a service to the community and to humanity at large as the newspaper, and it must be protected by the same franchise and the same constitutional right.

"We are asking for liberty not for license. We believe that the laws now on the statute books are amply sufficient to deal with any abuse of the motion picture. Do we not know that even the liberty of the press has its conditions and limitations? If an editor prints obscene, or immoral or libelous matter, he is haled to court and punished. We all know that within the last few years the publisher of one of the great metropolitan dailies was heavily fined by the Federal Court because he allowed obscene and immoral matter to be published in his newspaper. Would you argue from this incident that we ought to re-introduce censorship of newspapers as it existed centuries ago? I think a man ought to be as free to publish what he sees fit on the screen as he is free to publish it in the paper. With even the backward countries of Europe struggling heroically to cast off the yoke of governmental censorship it is strange, indeed, to find men in this land of the free, who want to bring back this odious institution of censorship which has always been an instrument of tyranny and oppression.

"Let us fight for the freedom of the screen. We may not be able to achieve our emancipation in a day or a week but no power on earth can prevent our ultimate triumph. It has taken more than three centuries to accomplish the liberty of the press in England which is the home of constitutional liberty and the parent of political enfranchisement the whole world over. The question is: Do we want to be classed with the press or with the saloon? Do we want to feel that our calling in on the ragged edge of the law and that we must always fear and tremble at the approach of official authority.

"You exhibitors, and, indeed, all moving picture men, know that your calling is a noble vocation, that there is none nobler in the whole range of our social order.

"I hope that Philadelphia and Pennsylvania will be heard from on the side of liberty and that you will go on record as everlastingly opposed to governmental censorship."

Mr. Bush was applauded and thanked for his address and after a few remarks by Mr. Rapaport the meeting took a recess until December 12.

A number of new recruits came in and joined the organization and there appeared to be on all sides a decided revival of interest.

---

WARNING FROM PRESIDENT WOLFF.

Owing to the existence of two state organizations of exhibitors in New York State, President A. N. Wolff, of the New York State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, desires to caution exhibitors to be careful in signing applications for membership in the state branch. All applications for membership in the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League Branch of New York should be addressed to Maurice L. Fleischman, Secretary, 2755 Webster Avenue, New York City.

BIG MEETING IN NEW YORK.

Chief Wallace Speaks to the Organized Moving Picture Men.

An enthusiastic and well attended meeting of the organized exhibitors of New York took place on Monday forenoon at the Imperial Hotel. Samuel H. Trigger presided while Mr. A. Bauernfreund acted as secretary. Mr. Trigger had sent out invitations to the chief of the License Bureau, Mr. Wallace, and to one or two other officials whose departments are concerned with motion picture theaters.

W. Stephen Bush of the Moving Picture World had been invited to speak on the follies of the prize package competition and he tried to show the ruinous finish which invariably attended all methods of unfair competition. He pointed out that the distribution of prizes amounted to a lottery which was plainly against the law. Exhibitors, he said, who did not yield to moral suasion, might be proceeded against under the law making a lottery a misdemeanor.

When Chief Wallace arrived in the meeting room he received a great ovation and it was some time before the enthusiasm subsided and he could make himself heard. Mr. Wallace said that this address to the motion picture men of New York might be considered his valedictory, as he had no knowledge as to his continuance in office after the first of January. He said, when he went into office, there was no specific law covering motion picture theaters and under a decision of Judge Crane, the motion picture entertainment was legally classed and defined as a "common show" and the motion picture theater was operated under a "common show license." The new law raising the seating capacity to six hundred had always had his earnest support and he did not think that the law should restrict the seating capacity of motion picture theaters provided the theater was made safe. Mr. Wallace then commented upon the fact that many theaters had sprung up all over the city which compared favorably with the best playhouses. He condemned censorship for motion pictures and called attention to the salacious cheap vaudeville and the disgusting burlesques which were far more in need of reformatory attention than the motion picture.

Mr. Trigger asked the Chief to explain the attitude of his bureau toward temporary licenses and Chief Wallace replied that all temporary licenses would be called in by December 17th, unless there were powerful reasons for prolonging them.

On motion of Mr. Hollender a rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Wallace.

WANT TO GET TOGETHER.

A communication from Samuel H. Trigger, president of the New York State Exhibitors' Association, the organization which seceeded from the National Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, held in New York City last July, intimates that there is a desire on the part of his organization to close the breach in the ranks of the exhibitors of the country caused by that unfortunate action. Mr. Trigger intimates that the good offices of the trade papers should be used to bring about the desired result. While this is a matter for the officials of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League to dispose of, the Moving Picture World feels sure that an expressed desire on the part of the seceding organizations to return to the fold and abide by the decisions of the majority of their associates in convention assembled will meet with approval from the parent organization.

IMPORTANT CANADIAN DECISION.

Magistrate Defines Meaning of "Moving Picture Hall" and Exempts Theaters from Double Tax.

THE case of Boisseau vs. Peoples Amusement Company, decided a few weeks ago by Police Magistrate Lett, of Montreal, under the Quebec law, is of considerable interest to parties engaged in the moving picture business in that province.

The City of Montreal imposes a license fee on all "theaters" in the city, and a Provincial Statute imposes another license fee on "any person who carries on or keeps a moving picture hall." The Peoples Amusement Company put on an entertainment, in Montreal, in a building having all the appointments and appliances of a theater; employed a number of actors and actresses; and about half of the program consisted of vaudeville or theatrical work and the other half of moving pictures. The company had a license as a "theater" under the Montreal by-law, but had no license as a "moving picture hall" under the Provincial Statute.

The question then was whether the building was a "theater" or a "moving picture hall"; and the Police Magistrate held that it fell within the former class, and that no provincial license was necessary.

The following paragraphs from the judgment of the magistrate are interesting and instructive:

> "The only point to decide is whether the premises in question are to be classed as theaters or moving picture halls. The evidence as to the representations shown, is, that about one-half of the evening program is probably a theater and about one-half moving pictures. That the portion of the program, not moving pictures, is vaudeville. It is not shown that the regular dramas with successive acts are shown, but there is no doubt that pure vaudeville representations are classed under theaters, and not under moving pictures.
>
> "It has also been shown that in places of entertainments which are without question classed as theaters, there are sometimes shown stereoptical views and moving pictures. There is evidence also that the establishment in question conforms to the municipal laws as to theaters, which are different from those relating to moving pictures in some respect. They also have the stage appointment of theaters, viz., sceneries and mechanism for moving them.
>
> "It is also shown that, according to the nature of the representations presented, there are from four and five to twelve and fifteen artistes or actors and actresses playing in them, which, of course, would not be necessary for purely moving-picture halls.
>
> "The question is whether on the evidence submitted, these places of entertainment are properly classed as theaters or not.
>
> "In penal actions of this kind, the law must be strictly construed, and the benefit of any ambiguity or inaccuracy must be given to the party charged.
>
> "As it appears clear that the premises have the appointments required for a theater and that at least one-half of their program would properly fall under theatrical representations, and that they have a license from the city as a theater, I come to the conclusion that the places in question are theaters rather than moving picture halls. I therefore dismiss the cases."

FEATURE MEETINGS AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. W. P. Herbst, president of the District of Columbia Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and J. P. Morgan, proprietor of the Princess Theater, of Washington, D. C., were callers at the New York office of the Moving Picture World on Tuesday, December 9. Both Dr. Herbst and Mr. Morgan had been subpœnaed to appear before the master in the suit of the United States against the Motion Picture Patents Co., and others now sitting in New York.

Dr. Herbst said that business at the national capital was progressing favorably and that the District of Columbia League had inaugurated a series of special meetings at which subjects of vital interest to its members were discussed by some one who was able to speak with authority. At the last meeting held at the league rooms, 1101 E Street, N. W., Mr. H. A. Brooks, manager of the Potomac Electric Light and Power Company, talked upon the use and abuse of electric current, pointing out to the members how they could get the best results out of the least current. There was a good attendance at that meeting.

WORKING FOR TEN CENT ADMISSIONS IN OMAHA.

E. C. Preston, secretary of the Nebraska State League, writes that, while there is not much news concerning the Nebraska League, the members of the Omaha local are working hard to establish a ten cent admission price in that city. The movement was temporarily delayed by the action of some exhibitors at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Lincoln, Neb., who had previously charged ten cents, but who returned to five cents at the critical time. A meeting of the board of directors of the state branch was held at Omaha during the first week in November and the next meeting will be held in the same town in February.

PATHE ANNOUNCEMENT.

Beginning with the week of December 22nd, Pathe Freres announce the release of two feature films a week, thereafter, which will eliminate the regular Friday single release.

ESSIE FAY AND "ARABIA"
Will Be Featured in Universal Subjects.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN

THIS department has just passed its third year. Since December 1st, 1910, music for the picture has received more attention from both musicians and exhibitors than during all the years that preceded that date, and, while I am not conceited enough to assert that this department was responsible for what improvement may have taken place, I believe we can claim a modest share in it. The improvement in picture music has not been so marked as it might or should have been. Taking it on the average, a better quality of music is being played. There are considerably fewer of the "Lily Limpwrists" and "Percy Peashaker's" than when Messrs. Harrison and Hoffman gave us their immortal classic entitled "Jackass Music," but music as an accessory to the picture still falls far short of what it should be—what it ultimately must be. Larger theaters are being built which are fit homes for good pictures.

Multiple reel "features" are being produced—many of them are really fine pictures—orchestras are displacing the piano in some places and expensive pipe-organs are being installed in others—but the present trend seems to be toward straight "concert music" regardless of its fitness for the show—i.e.: the picture. It will probably wear out in time.

When music was first introduced in the picture theater any old thing would do—a mechanical instrument playing popular junk or a strong-arm piano player likewise playing popular junk. He was an enterprising manager who installed music of any kind in his house at that time, and he naturally wanted the world to know it. Hence they "whooped 'er up" until the music could be heard out on the street. Drums were introduced to add to the volume of sound. Then the popular demand for more suitable picture music made itself felt and the pianists and drummers began "working up" their pictures; rather crudely in some instances, still a great step forward. The popular taste now demands that the musical accompaniment shall advance as well as the theater and the pictures shown therein. Hence the increasing numbers of orchestras and pipe-organs. Having got them, the managers (and musicians also), naturally want the public to know it, so they are giving the aforesaid public the best music in their repertoire—concert music; nobody seems to care whether it is consistent with the pictured scenes any more than they cared seven or eight years ago when the popular junk was played exclusively. Here and there a few voices are crying out in the wilderness, in protest of the standard overture that ends "slap-bang" in the middle of a pathetic scene. Gradually the public will get used to the novelty of good orchestras and organs in their favorite photoplay theaters, and begin to crave appropriate music. Then they will get it. Some leaders here and there adapt their music to their pictures, and choose numbers in keeping with the show. There are more who do not, if we are to believe what the correspondents tell us. But for all that, it is a great stride forward.

Analyzing the Picture.

Since the inception of this department many new readers have come into the fold—many of them beginners in the business, with the same problems that beset those of three years ago. Many questions are asked today that have been discussed in the back numbers of the Moving Picture World which, while they may be old to some, are new to these new arrivals. The following, signed "Twin Cities," is a case in point:

> I am just breaking into the picture game as pianist and having read a few of your articles I would like some advice on the subject. I am a fair pianist, have a general library of the average class of music, but know nothing of playing for pictures. Just how do you go about it to select appropriate music for pictures; why is one thing more appropriate than another and what makes it so? Of course, I understand that one shouldn't play a "rag" in a death scene nor a slow piece in a lively scene, but some of the finer points are not clear to me. I do not improvise.

To begin with, one must analyze the picture; of course, everybody does this in a general way, but the better you understand the nature of your picture, the better you will be able to accompany it intelligently. It is not enough to know that it is industrial, dramatic, scenic or comedy. One should know what kind of a dramatic, scenic or comedy it is. If you can form an idea in advance of the show (by an advance view or by reading the story), so much the better. Many correspondents write that they read the stories of the films in the Moving Picture World as soon as they learn what their program is to be and derive much help from them. Roughly speaking, the pictures may be divided (so far as the musician is concerned), into "educational" and "dramatic" pictures. The "educational" will include industrial, scenic and scientific pictures. Any picture whose action tells a story would belong to the "dramatic" class, though this term is generally used to designate the more serious stories—distinctive from comedies.

The educational picture offers little in the way of musical interpretation. The scenic pictures may often be accompanied by music of the country shown—"folk-songs," national and patriotic airs, etc., and some industrial pictures will show scenes in foreign lands which may be accompanied in a like manner. Otherwise, play anything. If you wish to give your public an operatic selection or standard overture, and your educational picture gives no opportunity for anything in particular, play them here.

The other class of pictures (those telling a story), nearly always offer some opportunity in the way of incidental music—that is, music appropriate to the different scenes. These pictures may be roughly classified thus:

Farce Comedies—Lively music predominates. Marches, "rags" and quick snappy stuff generally. Popular song choruses can be introduced to advantage, particularly if well known, and the title is suggestive of the action at the time. The principal thing is to keep your music going. A stop—unless a "point" can be made by so doing, will let the interest drop. These pictures are full of action and the music must be of the "slap-bang" order.

Light Comedies—Also lively, though not always boisterous. What is said under Farce Comedy will apply here though in a more modified form.

Drama—(Society drama, "salon" pictures and the better class of dramatic stories generally.) While the action is running along evenly, a waltz or intermezzo, a rondo or caprice—anything of a light and non-committal nature is good; the "Novellettes" so popular a few years ago are good in the lighter scenes. If you find it necessary to play two or more in succession, try to make your change at the end of a scene or when a title is on. Otherwise try to go from one to the other without a break. For pathetic scenes you will find numbers like "Moskowski's Serenade," "Simple Aveu," "Melody in F," and the numerous "Reveries" very useful. End the number when the scene ends for which you are playing that number. When the action calls for a different kind of music, that is the time to change; don't wait until you reach the end of the piece first, and don't think you must always stop merely because you have reached the end of your number. Sometimes the scenes alternate rapidly and to try to change the music with each change of scene would have an absurd effect. Try to find the predominant theme in these scenes. For example, a child is taken suddenly ill at home while the mother is at a ball. The sympathy of the spectator is centered upon the child. You might be playing a waltz for the ball room scene. When the sick room is shown you will change to, say, Massinet's "Elegy;" when the ball room is again shown (if the ensuing scenes be short and rapidly alternating), you will not again revert to the waltz but hold to your pathetic music until some scene of another nature occurs which is long enough to develop another change. Sometimes these pictures may border on the sensational, with scenes calling for music on the melodramatic order, but I have preferred to give the "melodramatic" pictures a class by themselves.

Melodrama—Merely for the sake of musical classification, we will include the plays of a more sensational order under this head. Action is more violent—less of the quiet atmosphere than in the straight "drama" as noted just previously. These are the most common of all pictures and may range the whole gamut of human emotion and call for anything or everything in the shape of music. Generally play waltzes or other non-committal music to "fill in" and work up the more prominent scenes with whatever seems to be called for: Allegros, hurries and agitato music for struggles, combats and violent scenes, pathetic for sad scenes, mysterious and weird for scenes of that nature, or anything suggested by the action. This subject is too long to give more than a bare outline in one letter. Other classes of pictures will include historical, Biblical and others.

Worcester, Mass., writes:

> Am trying to get a position as pianist in a moving picture theater. I am not averse to leaving the city. How shall I go about it? And where can I get some good selections, operatic, etc., for use in this kind of work?

Answer to First—Advertise in The Moving Picture World.
Answer to Second—Ask any music dealer.

Manager J. W. Obernier—I cannot give personal answers unless a stamped envelope accompanies letter. As to your first question, address the Wurlitzer people direct. For the second, address J. C. Deagan. Addresses of both can be found in the advertising pages of this paper and both will mail you full particulars.

Joe Brandt Gets Another Dinner

Indefatigable American Feature Publicity Man Still On the Go.

When Joe Brandt left these hospitable shores for a publicity trip to England and the continent, he had a "lean and hungry look" like Cassius of Shakespearean lore, but if he is eating all the dinners that have been credited or tendered to him since his arrival on the other side, we fear he will be a candidate for the alderman of his ward. It was only the other day that we were called upon to chronicle the fact that Joe was present at a dinner given to the London pressmen at Frascatti's and the menu on that occasion was no idle dream. Now word comes from the offices of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company that another dinner has been given to Joe and eaten by him—with the assistance of the rest of the staff and the members of the trade press, just prior to his departure for Berlin and Paris on another publicity tour.

What are we to understand by this frequent dining of the American Picture Ambassador? Is it that he is still in an emaciated condition and in need of strong nourishment; if so we urge that he be returned to his home and loved ones at once before dire consequences occur. Possibly it is through fear that Joe will not be able to eat in either French or German and his friends have stocked him up so that he will be able to get along until his return to London. However this may be, we hope that nothing serious may happen and that Joe may be returned to "our midst" eventually none the worse for wear—and the dinners.

Others were present at the festive occasion which happened at the Boulogne restaurant on Nov. 19. John D. Tippett was in the chair and was assisted by Mr. J. Avery, Mr. Charles Lane, Exchange Telegraph Co. and Shurey's Publications; Mr. L. Pounds, Evening News; Mr. R. H. Watson, Kinematograph Weekly; Messrs. F. L. Boyce & Parrett, The Bioscope; Mr. E. W. Fredman, The Cinema; Mr. J. H. Davis, Mr. F. W. Taylor, Mr. Clarence Hunt, Mr. F. Catlin, Mr. E. Kennard, Mr. C. B. Botting, Mr. L. A. Harrap, Mr. Lewis Roach, Mr. A. Henderson and Mr. J. E. Pryde-Hughes.

By way of information it should be noted here that the "news" that Joe Brandt is even now on the rolling waves bound to America is a bit premature. Joe was last heard from in Berlin and it is not known when he may return to New York.

FRED MACE BACK IN LOS ANGELES.

A delegation from the Photoplayers was recently at the Los Angeles depot for a "welcome home" to Fred Mace, their president, who got in from New York. Mace had been producing his Apollo comedies there over the summer pending the completion of a studio in Los Angeles. Among the Apolloites that came in with Mace were Marguerite Loveridge, Bud Duncan, Glen Lashus, Violet Fleming, Harry Edwards and George Washington Peters, cameraman. "Fred's I. O. U." is the first picture made by the Apolloites in their new location.

HONGKONG AS A FILM CENTER.

A company has been formed in Hongkong with sufficient capital to furnish the native population in Chinese cities with moving picture entertainments having descriptive matter and other features in Chinese. There are already fairly successful cinematograph establishments in Hongkong, Shanghai, and other Chinese open ports and even in some of the smaller ports, but the films used are foreign with foreign descriptive matter. The new company is establishing its first theater in Yaumati, one of the suburban centers of Hongkong, with two machines, one American and one Italian, and 500 films, most of which are American films with Chinese adaptation. The company has three Chinese and four European directors.

That there is a field for expansion in the cinematograph business seems to be beyond doubt; but because of the necessity of adapting foreign films to Chinese audiences and because of other difficulties, such as transport and theater arrangements in native cities, it is practically necessary to enlist Chinese capital and more or less Chinese management in the business. These are difficult to obtain in connection with an adequate experience in the moving-picture business. American materials and supplies and American machines stand well in this part of the world, and American cinematograph methods are coming more and more into vogue. Continuous-performance establishments are becoming popular.

Hongkong, by reason of its central situation and transportation connections, has come to be quite an exchange center in film distribution. There are several concerns in the port at the present time doing business solely in moving picture films, mostly on an exchange or rental basis; and they serve cities all over this part of the world, notably in the Philippines, Indo-China and the Malay States, Siam, Burma, and North China. (The names of these concerns and that of the new cinematograph company may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.)

ANNA LITTLE.

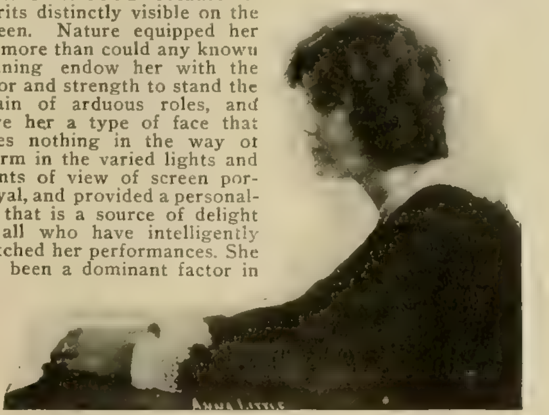
"YEARS of legitimate and stock," the stale old phrase of the press agent, has no bearing on what an actress does in moving pictures. Her former employment may be as much against as for her. Miss Anna Little has been repeatedly noticed in the critical reviews of The Moving Picture World because of merits distinctly visible on the screen. Nature equipped her far more than could any known training endow her with the vigor and strength to stand the strain of arduous roles, and gave her a type of face that loses nothing in the way of charm in the varied lights and points of view of screen portrayal, and provided a personality that is a source of delight to all who have intelligently watched her performances. She has been a dominant factor in the success of many photoplays and saved others from complete failure by the spirited manner in which her roles have been interpreted.



Anna Little.

The poet is in her, celebrating the joys of life and of love eternal, piping her lays from pure love of song. Her connection with the New York Motion Picture Company has not been one of too much opportunity. Like many other organizations in the early state of its evolution, many of its releases were not of the highest order. Some of the comedies were as bright and cheerful as a rainy Sunday in Boston, and there were tragedies as amusing as a Los Angeles director who takes himself seriously, but Miss Little did not sit down and wait for opportunity. She simply undertook the roles assigned to her and made the most of them. She made so much of them that she has won high place in the estimation of observers of critical discrimination as well as endeared herself by sweet womanliness to the spectators universal.

Moving Picture Educator

THE EVOLUTION OF THE EDUCATIONAL PICTURE.

THE evolution of the educational and general high class pictures is more wonderful and abiding than may be ascribed to many other results of the evolutionary process.

In the days when the pictures were passing through their trial stages with as much discredit, those to whom the better side of the picture was only too apparent, made frantic efforts to force to the front the possible advantages which they knew were inherent in the pictures and which, if more widely known, would secure for them that first entrance into the world of "higher things" where everything is "Weighed and measured" and only excluded if "found wanting." Little was it supposed at that time to what extent the pictures possessed within themselves, that evolutionary power which would ultimately place them in the front rank of art and educational possibilities; although it was always felt that they would ultimately indicate every good prediction made on their behalf and grow clear of the crude shell which at that time held them.

External Evidences.

The public appearances of everything is one of paramount importance, advertising has become one of the greatest factors in commercial and industrial pursuits of today. The desire to secure a depth of meaning in a thought, a maximum of power with a minimum of effort, a whole compendium in a word, caused the moving picture enthusiasts of the commoner order to ignore what to them was the meaningless name of "Cinematograph" as its first scientific development demanded. Remembering that they had also reduced to a common level pictures of all classes to a passing and fortunately temporary cheap basis they popularized the "Nickelodeon" as a means of forcing upon the great public the valuable kinematography at its lowest possible level.

For lack of any other single term, "Kinematography" alone has blazed the way whenever the better uses of the moving picture were referred to. In its evolutionary progress this higher spirit has also seized the exhibitor, who, thanks to such occasions as the recent New York Exposition, is also rising with the picture to nobler heights.

Motion Pictures of Art and Education.

Without doubt, at the present standing of moving pictures, no more truthful and dignified sign can appear over the entrance of a moving picture house. This is a special occasion where it is noticeable that in its evolutionary course the pictures educated the exhibitor who improved his place and by his sign bore testimony to the cause besides announcing the fact to the world, and doing his utmost to take the public into his improved confidence.

Royal Uses.

The very latest dignity accorded the moving picture is within but two days of this writing. King George V, of England, seeking to honor his mother, the Dowager Queen Alexandra, on her 69th birthday, had specially prepared a series of moving pictures of a national character. What a change! The magic lantern was for the child's birthday party, the Kinematograph is for the King and Queen of the realm; such is true greatness.

It has been said that the process of evolution can only be ascribed to that which ultimately becomes perfect after a series of incomplete and imperfect changes. Under this claim the moving picture has a right to be classed as in evolution, each new appearance, each new departure, is a distinct advance upon its previous stage.

Universally Accepted.

At the present moment there is not a department of science, art or education in which the moving picture is not accepted, and accepted as a valuable addition.

The daily papers are almost daily making record as suitable items of news the further uses to which the moving picture is applied, thus finding it worthy of notice and of importance to their readers that they should be well informed as to the many and new purposes to which the powers of the Kinematograph are adapted.

In singular and striking contrasts a recent daily on one page recorded that a great religious denomination were using the picture to ### Educate the Heathen.

They announced that their missionaries in future were to include in their equipment a picture outfit, as it had already been proved that not only were they superior in attracting power, but also in abiding results and, of course, continuous and progressive even to the extent of being unending.

A Great Safety Device.

The next notice recorded was that, by means of the picture, children by the millions and industrial workers by the tens of thousands were being taught safety devices and danger avoidance in travel, and manufacture, to an extent that must materially add to their general welfare. A great campaign of "education in precaution" is a possibility only realized by the moving picture.

A Technical Educator.

The third notice made of the moving picture was to the effect that in all manufactures where a technical knowledge meant increased efficiency, moving picture equipments were being installed, securing quicker learning, thoroughness, and profit, at a minimum of time and cost. Manufacturers' associations, chambers of commerce, welfare associations, social and hygienic improvement societies are all opening their doors to the great blessings the evolution of the picture is bringing.

In Religion.

One of the most striking developments of the moving picture here, is found in one of the last issues of the Moving Picture World in which a film is advertised with the picture an endorsement of a clergyman to attract attention. Ten years ago the clergy and the moving pictures were mortal enemies, denunciations were severe and bitter, so much so that the writer often wonders as to the state of mind at this present time of a minister who declared "he had never seen a moving picture and never intended to see one," by this he will prove far more foolish than the man who made a bet that he would never wash his face until his favorite candidate was elected; truly a rash vow in the face of an evolutionary power is the perfection of foolishness.

The One-Lack.

Only in the school-room is the moving picture yet incomplete, this is not because of any inability but rather the necessary delays of adaptability which can only be overcome by time. The film textbook is the greatest undertaking the educational world has ever known. Driven by the moving picture rather than being led by blind anticipation, the experts in Kinematography and pedagogy are joining forces to bring to a conclusion that which is necessary to complete the last great stage to crown in perfection the evolution of the moving picture.

---

WARNER FEATURES ON EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

The Smith Academy, of Passaic, N. J., co-operates with the superintendent of the Passaic schools and with the town's librarian in presenting, each Friday night, a program of educational films. Warner Features' educational subjects have been well represented at these exhibitions with such pictures as: "The Sleeping Beauty" (Grimm's Fairy Tale); "The Heart of a Princess" (Arabian Nights Tale); "The Lady of the Lake" (Sir Walter Scott); "The Taming of the Shrew" (Shakespearean play).

Many children attend these Friday night exhibitions of educational releases who are not permitted to see the ordinary pictures in the five cent theaters.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

THE Keith management devoted the past week to a celebration at all its houses of the thirtieth anniversery of Mr. Keith's inauguration of vaudeville. Congratulations are due Mr. Keith as he has succeeded in terminating thirty years of successful vaudeville management, but it is due posterity that proper qualifications be made in dramatic history, of which the Keith management announcements form a part. In these announcements the management states in a concluding paragraph that Mr. Keith was the first to attract attention to motion pictures as a factor in the amusement field. As a matter of fact, motion pictures were the stepping stones to the establishment of the present circuit of Keith theaters, and not variety acts, which Mr. Keith's management terms "vaudeville," so that an opportunity may be afforded to call Mr. Keith "the father of vaudeville." Mr. Keith was among the foremost to encourage the movement started a year or so ago to cut out motion pictures and try and kill their popularity with the public with the aid of strong vaudeville bills. The Keith management is still doing business and so are the motion pictures. There is but one distinguishing feature; the pictures have outrun vaudeville and have a stronger hold upon the amusement public today than they have held at any other time.

Mr. Keith was quite young in the vaudeville business when battleship and other moving picture scenes attending the Spanish-American war crowded his houses. His management omits mention of this in the thirtieth anniversary announcements. They also fail to state that the establishment of the Biograph pictures on his circuit years ago was an important factor in bringing about the success that has enabled the management to celebrate its much heralded anniversary. The importance of the pictures was so marked that when, for economic reasons, it became necessary to reduce the size of the Biograph films, Mr. Keith secured the services of the Vitagraph Company to keep the pictures going while the Biograph company was making its change in the size of film. After the change was perfected Mr. Keith reinstated the service of the Biograph Company, in which he was interested. There is but one purpose in making these statements, and that is to have theatrical historical records appear as nearly correct as possible.

By its incidental reference to motion pictures in its anniversary announcements it is evident that the Keith management would make vaudeville supreme and shove motion pictures and variety into the discard. Mr. Keith and his managers deserve great credit for what they have achieved, but they should be less selfish in their claims. Motion pictures were the foundation for cheap vaudeville, and it was in that line Mr. Keith got his start and made his money. True, he induced stars from the legitimate stage to become headliners on his bills, thereby giving a great impetus to his pet idea of vaudeville, but his management fails to state that that scheme was part and parcel of the arrangements of recent years for aggressive warfare upon motion pictures. And another item of history is that, were it not for the inroad made by motion pictures upon the regular theatrical field, many of the attractions the Keith management takes credit for having induced to enter vaudeville would not have been secured. After all "vaudeville" is entitled to a place in history only as a modernized term for "variety." That stars have left the legitimate field does not alter the case any more than the fact that hundreds of stars graduated to the legitimate stage from the variety field. One case in point is that of the famous Nat C. Goodwin. He was a variety performer long before Mr. Keith thought of becoming a theatrical manager. To be historically correct in enlightening the public as to the success of its house the Keith management cannot give all credit to vaudeville and ignore the motion pictures.

* * *

No sane man can object to an honest statement of facts and it is hoped that what is about to be stated will not be construed as an effort to influence public opinion on the case now pending between the government and certain motion picture interests. On Saturday, November 29th, last, there was opened a motion picture house at Point Pleasant, N. J., a small town located on the Jersey coast, a few miles south of Asbury Park. The program consisted of ten reels, five licensed and five independent. The price of admission was ten cents. There were less than a hundred people in the house. Before opening the show the manager made an address to the audience and said he intended to give the people their money's worth. He added that the combine had tried to dictate to him what he was to have and what he was not to get and he had found a way by which he could get what he wanted—combination or no combination, therefore he was presenting a program made up of an equal number of licensed and independent reels.

* * *

Anyone who can put ten reels on the screen for total receipts of less than ten dollars is certainly the best witness that can be secured to convince the government that there is no restriction of trade in the motion picture field. It has not been learned where or how this party secured the reels, or what he paid for them. It is claimed he runs two houses, one of them located near the town above referred to, and that he uses one set of reels for both houses. Now let us for a moment disregard what merits may attend the pending government suit, and momentarily forget that there is any feeling on one side or the other regarding it. Let us look the question squarely in the face and consider the question as to whether that is just cause for complaint on the part of the manufacturers—be he licensed or independent. Ten reels for ten cents, and house expenses not considered! Some may say it is all up to the exchange; that so long as that department of the business gets its price it is immaterial whether a manager shows ten reels, or twenty reels, for ten cents, or even a nickel. This argument has been made frequently, but not by sensible and thoughtful people. No sane person will say that manufacturers of films must be content to see the business steadily undermined and ruined by such misdirected enterprise as has been displayed by this exhibitor. No better instance can be cited in favor of combinations of manufacturers for self preservation than that afforded by this would-be exhibitor. The exhibitor, by the way, is not the sole offender. The exchange that supplies him should be called to account. What encouragement is afforded by such transactions to the legitimate people in the business who are spending thousands of dollars every day to advance the standard of the motion picture business and the quality of the films? This gem of the cheap manager brand claimed that the reels he used that night cost him $50—five dollars a reel. There is every reason to believe that the statement was not correct from the standpoint of estimated receipts. If each of his two houses had three hundred paid admissions the exhibitor would have had total receipts of but sixty dollars, leaving him a margin of but ten dollars to cover rent, power, advertising, help, the cost of transporting the films from one town to another, expressage from and to the exchange and an existence for the manager. The largest hall in either of the towns where this manager is operating will not hold an audience of three hundred people. The most natural conclusion to be arrived at is that the manager did not pay fifty dollars for the ten reels. It may be anticipated that the exchange will claim that the reels were very old and fifty cents a night for each of them was like money found. Very well; then the business should not be jeopardized by allowing such reels to remain in use. Exhibitors in the larger towns and cities look to the visitors from the country for a part of the patronage at their houses and that patronage will be lost to these exhibitors through the seed of disgust sown by such interlopers as the Jerseyite who shows ten reels for ten cents. This is a matter that seriously affects the interests of both the licensed and independent people and some action should be taken by both to see that their goods are handled for the best interests of all concerned, even if it be necessary to refuse to supply an exchange that encourages such exhibitors.

---

CAMERA DIFFICULTIES IN THE CANAL ZONE.

H. H. Buckwalter, that grand, old scout, who feels a sense of personal responsibility for the Panama Canal, having followed it faithfully with a moving picture camera ever since the time of its beginning, making a complete picture of the greatest enterprise the world has ever known, is again on the field of operation, grinding away as sunshine and fair weather permit. He writes to the Selig Company from Ancon, Canal Zone: "The rainy season is fierce. We can only get shots between showers and the thing that puts me to the bad is the moisture. An hour after I put in a new velvet it is wet and the next morning it is mildewed. Film taken from the cans is soft, and in a couple of hours from the time it leaves the upper take-up box until it gets to the pressure plate it gathers enough moisture to be sweaty like the outside of a glass of beer on a summer day."

Among the Picture Theaters.

News and Views of Houses Here and There.

IMPERIAL THEATER, ST. JOHN, CANADA.

The Imperial Theater, St. John, Canada, built by Keith & Albee, New York, on the magnificent central park site, King Square, that city, is undoubtedly the finest house of entertainment in the far eastern section of America, equalling the Keith Hippodrome at Portland, Me., and the New Imperial at Montreal, which are sister houses. Nothing has been withheld in making the Imperial at St. John truly metropolitan in appointments and grandeur. The house occupies a lot of land 170 feet deep by 78 feet wide. The frontal effect of the structure is particularly handsome, being of ornate architectural design in terra cotta, polished granite, etc. The street is concreted in front of the building, and ornamental light standards have been erected the full length of the property, giving a colenade effect. On the whole, the Imperial is the keynote of the surrounding park, and the people of St. John are taking great pride in it as an addition to the beauty marks of the city.

Imperial Theater, St. John, Canada.

Indoors, the Keith house is most elaborate. The auditorium has perfect acoustics, and the line of vision is absolutely true from every angle of the seating plan. There are 800 leather upholstered chairs on the parquette floor, six boxes aggregating 100 chairs, and the balcony, which is divided by a cross aisle, seats about 900 more. In all there are 1,800 seats. The general color scheme employed is old rose, old ivory and Moorish tints with gold. An electrolier studded with frosted lamps, drops from the ceiling and is very attractive. The lights in the balcony are affixed to the ceiling, behind opalescent glass. The indirect lighting system is employed.

The stage is 36 feet in depth, with a gridiron sixty-five feet high. The dressing rooms are handsomely furnished and everything to the actor's needs is at the finger's ends. The operating booth is of the Johns-Manville asbestos pattern. Simplex machines are used. The lavatories are furnished in sanitary tile and equipped with liquid soap dispensers, plate glass mirrors, etc. There is a woman's parlor, men's parlor and a rest room for children.

Although the Imperial is equipped for all kinds of modern entertainment, it is as yet a first-class picture house. Walter H. Golding is managing the house.

LEHIGH ORPHEUM OPENS AGAIN.

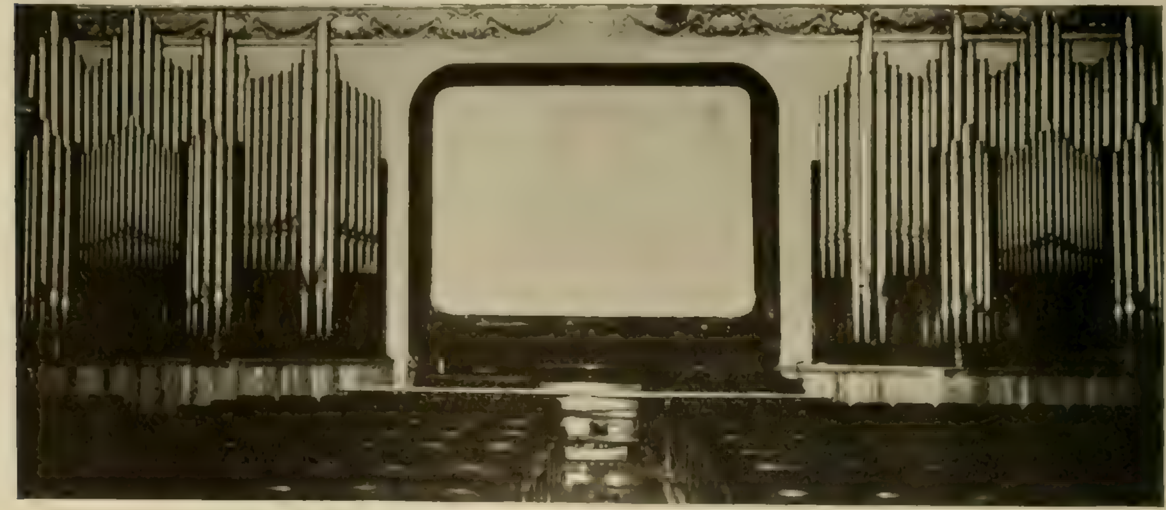
After being closed for two weeks, the Lehigh Orpheum, at South Bethlehem, Pa., was reopened again on November 15 by the owners, the Third Street Theater Company, Inc., of Easton, Pa. This company is now operating three fine picture houses in Pennsylvania, and is getting along nicely on five cent matinees and ten cent evening entertainments. The Third Street Theater, in Easton, Pa., was erected at a cost of $45,000.



Interior of Olympic Theater, Pittsburgh, Pa., Showing Arrangement of Pipe Organ.

UNIQUE ARRANGEMENT OF PIPE ORGAN.

One of the largest pipe organs in the city has been installed in the Olympic Theater, Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., by the managers, Baziotes & Antonoplos, at a cost of $5,000. As can be seen from the accompanying illustration, the instrument has been placed so the pipes are on each side of the screen with the playing board in front of the screen. Three prominent organists of Pittsburgh have been engaged as players, and the organ is utilized for all motion picture plays with the exception of comedies. The music for these latter pictures is furnished by a pianist, as the deep and somewhat solemn tones of the pipe organ is too heavy to properly characterize comedies.

The organ has two special features that appeal especially to the amusement public. A reveille harp, giving the tones of a string harp, and a Vox Humana attachment, which gives an imitation of the human voice are both a part of the organ and are used with splendid effect.

The Olympic Theater is the largest downtown motion picture house in Pittsburgh. On November 17, when the organ was first operated, the house was filled to capacity the entire day with great numbers of people standing.

Regent Theatre, New York City

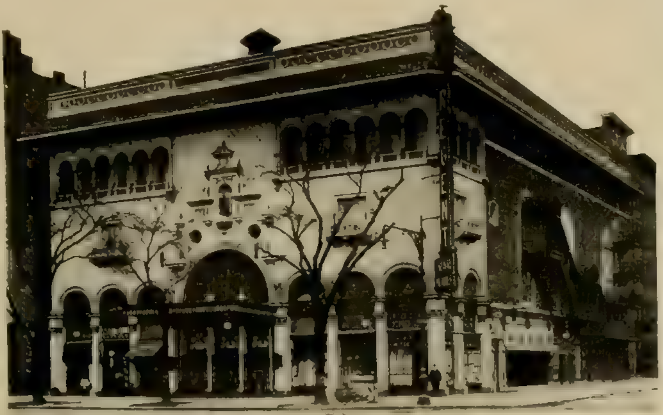
S. L. Rothapfel Gives New York a Picture Theater Beautiful. Innovations Appreciated by the Public.

COINCIDENT with the rapid progress in other branches of the moving picture industry the theater is now forging to the front as one of the most progressive factors.

These pages have recorded the erection and opening of many handsome houses in the West, Northwest and Southwest, but very few in the East. So it is only natural for us to hail with enthusiasm the reopening of the Regent Theater, 116th Street and Seventh Avenue, New York City, as a picture theater marvel. The accompanying illustrations will indicate its general beauty and superior management. This house has recently undergone extensive improvements and a change in management, the new man at the helm being S. L. Rothapfel, who, by hard work and ingenuity has earned the soubriquet of the "Belasco of the Moving Picture."



Regent Theater, New York City.

It is a well-known fact that clear ideas in a person tend to bring to a realization the objects and desires that his mind pictures. Mr. Rothapfel not only thinks about the ideal condition of things, but breathes of it and exudes it. This is one reason why he has such an ideal picture house. Another reason is that he has good imagination backed up by intense inclination to materialize the ideal. There is quite a difference between ambition and ability. If one has ambition to do a thing it doesn't naturally follow that that thing will be executed unless he has ability to put it into effect. Whenever Mr. Rothapfel has a conception he is not handicapped by lack of mental or physical facilities with which to materialize it. Consequence: Success.

Without a doubt the Regent Theater is the best picture house in New York City. New York City has been waiting for just such an establishment and Mr. Rothapfel is the man to give it to us. As the views of the Regent show, the house is impressive in its beautiful lines of architectural skill. It is faced outside with marble. Extending over the sidewalk is a glass canopy, beautifully illuminated with hundreds of electric lights. The lobby, too, is well lighted and the doors leading into the auditorium are paneled with mirrors.

Stage of Regent Theater, New York City, Showing Orchestra.

Passing into the auditorium the visitor is at once impressed with an atmosphere of superior management. The ushers are a distinct credit to the house; orderly, courteous and immaculately uniformed, they have a way of making one feel welcome, without any apparent effort or ultra politeness, all of which is Mr. Rothapfel's idea of what ushers should be.

At each side of the lobby there is a broad staircase leading to the balcony. This is done in white marble, with a central carpet in green of fine quality. This carpeting is used throughout the house. The indirect lighting system is used consistently. In the foyer there are three pendant electroliers bedecked with flowers, all very pleasing to the eye. About the theater there are occasional plants, most of them to be found in the foyer. The seats are of leather; large and comfortable and the distance between the rows of chairs is sufficient to allow of easy coming and going. There are no pillars to hold up the balcony; an unobstructed view may be had of the picture from any angle of the seating plan. The balcony is supported on the cantilever plan.

Of the many features of the house the most striking is the location of the orchestra, which is centered upon the stage. It consists of fifteen pieces; surrounded by a railing which is usually draped with flowers. Directly in front of the orchestra is a miniature fountain upon which are played different colored lights that blend into one another. It is an innovation for the picture theater. On each side of the stage there is a singer's balcony, or box, of romantic suggestion.

The general color scheme is neutral tints and gold, with the gold predominating. An up-to-the-minute heating and ventilating system is employed, and the air is always fresh. Whether one is away up in the balcony, or in the boxes, or in any other part of the house, no foul air can be detected, and the premises are altogether sanitary. No dust can be found on anything, and even the wood carvings, which are deep and massive, are entirely devoid of dust.

Over two thousand persons can be seated in the auditorium. The evening admission prices are fifteen cents for the orchestra and balcony and twenty-five cents for the boxes. Afternoon prices are ten cents for the entire auditorium, except the boxes which are always twenty-five cents. The pictures are projected upon a mirror screen, and the throw from the operating room, which is on the ground floor, is eighty-five feet. Two Simplex machines are used. Projection is excellent. The program averages five reels of licensed pictures: first run and one day old. The program is changed three times a week—Monday, Thursday and Saturday.

Recently Mr. Rothapfel put on Kleine's "The Last Days of Pompeii" to tremendous business. He exhibited the picture for three days and at each exhibition the house was jammed. No advance in price is made for features. The sound effects that Mr. Rothapfel put on with that picture were so realistic that it was almost continually applauded. The audience really went into ecstacies of delight over the show, and Mr. Rothapfel deserves great credit on the way he presents such pictures. The class of people patronizing the Regent is of the more intellectural order: appreciative to a considerable degree. They also appreciate good music, which you are always sure to hear at the Regent. Mr. Rothapfel, besides being a first class manager, is also an accomplished musician; he selects the music to be played for each picture, and occasionally directs the orchestra himself. Besides the orchestra of fifteen pieces, a Wurlitzer organ is used. During the intermission between the shows Mr. Rothapfel has his orchestra give a selection, which is greatly enjoyed by the patrons. Another innovation in the musical line instituted in the Regent theater is the gradual dying away of the singer's voice and the orchestra toward the end of the song, when the next picture is thrown immediately upon the screen. The way "Peg o' My Heart" was sung in this manner went deeply into the hearts of the audience and it received several encores. Truly the Regent is a superb picture house. J. A. A.

---

COLUMBIA THEATER, PORTLAND, ORE.

According to information received, the Columbia Theater, of Portland, Oregon, is without peer. It is strictly a photoplay house.

This magnificent building, which is entirely fireproof with the exception of the carpets and draperies. was built at a cost of $125,000. The building is constructed of concrete and steel and is located in the most central section of the downtown district. The record in construction was broken as shifts were working night and day and within 90 days after the last shovel of dirt was excavated, this building was thrown open, and has ever since been the passing of leisure hours for Portland's most exclusive society people.

The inside is artistically decorated. The entire theater is carpeted. One of the features of this photoplay house is the beautiful ladies' rest room which is carried out in the Louis XV style, and cost about $5,000 to furnish. Nothing takes so well with the ladies as this lovely lounging place where the society ladies gather and then attend the entertainment en masse.

Eleven hundred hidden lights are used inside. An interchangeable air system is employed where the air is changed twelve times an hour by a process that is washed with the famous Bull Run water.

Columbia Theater, Portland, Ore.

The outside is of white terra cotta and brick and has a total outlay of 2000 lights. The seating capacity is 1200. Two No. 6-A Power's machines are used. The operating booth is of steel with cement coating. The theater uses eight pictures a week from the General Film Company.

Interior of Columbia Theater, Portland, Oregon.

The Columbia is owned by W. F. Foster and George W. Kleiser, and is managed by O. F. Bergner, who is a member of the Executive Board of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Portland.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Amateur Nights.

HERE is a letter from Woodburne, Oregon, that perhaps voices the troubles of others. The correspondent simply signs himself the operator of the Cory Theater though we presume that he has a regular name that he uses on occasion. This should have been one of the occasions. He says:

> I have been a reader of the "Moving Picture World" for some time, and somehow you don't hit this spot of the globe much. What I would like to get your advice on is Amateur Night. I tried it but could not get people interested. Last time I only had five school kids. Could you suggest any other stunts to pull off? We have a theater in the main part of the town. Seating capacity, 225. Population, 3,000.

We do not and never did like amateur night. Some years ago the Romans used to turn their captives loose in the arena to have fist fights with a couple of lions. Today a few half-witted, stage struck boys and girls are turned loose before a hostile audience and dared to make good. It is not a pretty sight and from a purely managerial point of view it is a bad idea in that it encourages the audience to guy not alone the amateurs, but everything in sight. Twice we have sat in a New York theater on amateur night when it was necessary to call in the police and even where it does not get to be as bad as that, it always does encourage lawlessness and a spirit of recklessness.

In a small town the amateur night is not possible, because there everyone knows all the others and the fear of ridicule holds back most, if not all, of the aspirants and, as in this case, only the children will come forward.

Substitutes.

If this nameless operator has been reading the paper for "some time," no doubt he has read of the scheme of public appearances of the pupils of a conservatory in a Western town. If he has not, the idea is that the theater announces that it will work with the conservatory to give the advanced pupils a chance to appear in public and get used to stage work under the most favorable circumstances. Where there is a music school the scheme seems to have worked well. Where there is none, the various private music teachers may be appealed to, or a general offer be made. The principle of the scheme is that not the worst, but the best, is demanded and the interest and the draught comes from the friends of the débutant.

Possibly even the private teachers cannot give a sufficient supply of talent in so small a town as Woodburne. In such a case perhaps a school contest would work. Appoint different nights for the different school grades, more than one night to a grade, if necessary. Let the winners of these various contests repeat in an elimination series, the best two from each grade being selected for the finals. Offer some small souvenir for each night and a reasonably liberal prize for the finals and let the audience judge. The moment you have a committee to award, you have trouble on your hands, but if the audience does the awarding the audience cannot kick. The award may follow the applause or be by balloting, one ballot being given with each admission ticket and the collection made following the contest and before the last reel is run, the count being made while that reel is being run off.

Essay contests may be run in conjunction with visualizations of books, the local principals being the judges here, or the scheme lately used of offering a prize for the best rendition of some well-known declamation can be followed. In this latter case it would be better to run the trials in private and only the finals at the public performance.

The baby contest, the voting being done on photo slides and not actual entrants, is a popular idea in many sections, and this may be followed by a beauty contest, a half dozen sorts of popularity contests and even a class or school contest, but for the sake of peace leave the award to the audience and conduct the voting under a committee of unimpeachable probity.

In so small a town nothing should be run that will in any way belittle or ridicule any person. Amateur nights are based on ridicule and ridicule alone, and ridicule will be resented by the friends of the entrants, no matter how the amateurs themselves may take it.

Dramatic Contest.

If the town has two or more dramatic societies or can be coaxed to establish such—and it is not very difficult—let the societies alternately present one-act plays on a stated night each week. Here is a chance to sell tickets in pairs or trios, according to the number of entrants. Say, for example, that there are two clubs competing. Sell pair tickets, with one vote for each ticket, the tickets being good only for the dates given. This does not interfere with the sale of single admissions, which do not carry votes. The first Friday, say, the Clionians give "My Turn Next." The following week the Criterions present "Lend Me Five Shillings." At the end of the evening the votes are cast for the best player in each act. The third week the Clionians present a second one-act play and the week after the Criterions make their second offering. At the end of the season or some stated time the votes are counted and one or more prizes awarded players having the most votes, and one prize or trophy (which sounds better) to the club.

Scuffers.

Perhaps a modified Gymkana would prove popular. Take eight or ten weeks to run off a series of events and give the prize to the winner of the greatest number of events. If there is a tie run it off the week following. Here are some ideas. Others will suggest themselves.

Let the contestants provide themselves with bath slippers or other heelless shoes. The race is backward across the stage. Any competitor stepping out of a slipper to return to the starting point and make a fresh start. A committee to examine the feet before the start, to make certain that no fastening is used.

Roll a bean or an egg across the stage with a toothpick. The object must be pushed, not shot along, and the entrant whose egg or bean gets ahead of the toothpick by more than half an inch must start again.

Harness cockroaches with threads and have the insects driven across the stage. The threads will enable the drivers to keep them in the course. Chalk or paint lanes eighteen inches wide and disqualify any insect that crosses from its own line to another.

A three-legged race, in which the entrants use one foot and two hands, the other foot being tied in the air. A person falling must make a fresh start. A person knocking another down must back up to the starting point on all threes.

Two teams of three or five each are selected and one member of each team is tied back to back with one of the other team. Placed in the center of the stage each tries to cross the line at the side of the stage he faces. The team pulling the greater number of opponents over wins, and for the score the winner of each team is matched against the other. By carefully matching the opponents the ten-foot race may fill in a half hour.

All this may read like the stuff the Ladies' Home Journal prints, but it will make more talk in a small town, where everyone knows everyone else, than eight amateur nights a week, and the local papers can be coaxed to take the matter up as news, giving the best sort of press work.

If this is not enough we'll get busy again, but this is plenty for a man who doesn't sign his name.

Annonymous.

And will correspondents please note that this department has absolutely no use for anonymous "roasts." We have a letter merely signed "An exhibitor of the City of Winnipeg," that doesn't interest us in the least, because the exhibitor does not give his name. We do not use names where we are requested not to, but the man who does not dare sign his name to a statement gives that statement no weight. The present one is in the waste basket.

All But the "Movies."

The Business Men's League, of the City of St Louis, prints an eight-page paper called "Forward St. Louis," with the object of advertising the city. A recent issue leads off with an article "Many millions attend movies." It gives an interesting two-column article on the motion picture theaters in the town on the west end of the Eads bridge, but we wish they would not call motion pictures "movies." It states that 63,000,000 people yearly attend the performances and lists the larger houses. Outside the use of this most objectionable word the article is an interesting one, but a business that in one town alone interests sixty-three million persons annually should not be degraded by the use of this gutter-born word.

Some Theater.

And speaking of motion picture theaters, B. Nichols, of the M. P. Sales Agency, London, writes:

> I was over in Paris last week and had an opportunity of looking over Charles Urban's new theater, which will be opened on the 5th of December. He intends to run Kinemacolor and black and white. The seating capacity of the theater is about 750 and it is undoubtedly the finest theater in Paris. I am not referring now to Picture Theaters; there is nothing in the way of theaters, excepting the Opera, that will compare with them, and it is to my mind, one of the finest Picture Theaters in the world.
>
> He is bidding for a high class business and if he gets it it will be a help to the business all around.

The second finest theater in the second largest city in the world is a motion picture house. That speaks pretty well for the business, doesn't it? A motion picture theater that is second only to the famous Opera, by many considered the handsomest theater in the world, is some photoplay theater. The Scala, the Urban London house, was generally admired, but this seems to be the record breaker. We are sorry that Mr. Nichols did not give the scale of prices.

And while he did not write for publication, he says that he is presently sending to America an Aquila, Prince of Darkness, which he considers one of the finest modern dramas ever filmed. We've never found that Mr. Nichols' judgment was warped by his representation of the subject or otherwise, so make a note to watch for this. If he says it is exceptional, it is.

Coming Edisons.

Looking over the Edison list for the latter part of December shows the final story of the "Who Will Marry Mary" series, "A Proposal from Mary," in which she marries Bradford. With but six in the series, instead of twelve, this is even handier for special work than the "What Happened to Mary."

The Cleek story is "The Mystery of the Dover Express," the story of which offers more than its usual quota of mystery. The Christmas release is "Within the Enemy's Lines," a two-part dramatization of Thomas Nelson Page's story, "A Captured Santa Claus." This has been done by Mr. Seay with unusual sympathy. Other good releases to close the year are "A Tudor Princess," "Andy Gets a Job," and "The Haunted Bedroom," the latter by "Rita."

Two Appeals.

Appeals for sample programs have been received from Ira Toube, 204 West Eighty-fifth Street, New York City, who does not give the name of his theater, and Theodore E. Pennock, The Tivoli Theater, Syracuse, N. Y. Will the program makers please oblige. We are particularly interested in the Tivilo program, because the house stationery suggests an unusually good taste.

We Particularly Want.

We are particularly interested in the advertising done for Edison's Red Cross Seal story, "The Price of Human Lives." Will exhibitors please send in their stuff?

Looking for an Orator.

Truman Y. Brownlow sends in a new scheme with this explanation:

> I am enclosing a little stunt which I pulled off at the Empress Theater yesterday. It worked with good results notwithstanding the fact that it has been raining steady for almost a week. It made quite a hit with parents as well as the school children.
>
> I have been a printer for about ten years and about a year ago I butted into the "movie game." Although Chewelah is a town of about 1,000 people, I have a neat brick show house which cost me $1,500 to equip, and the people seem to appreciate my efforts.
>
> You may expect something more from me from time to time, as I believe your advertising department is a good thing. I know I have copped several good ideas from it which have netted me more than three or four years' subscriptions to the M. P. World.

We believe that Mr. Brownlow rises superior to history when he has Abraham Lincoln making his Gettysburg address, November 19, 1863, but it is a good scheme to run in connection with any of the numerous Lincoln pictures with a slight change in the wording. It is also a violation of the lottery law to draw the name from a hat, for this makes the award dependent upon the element of chance. A better scheme and one that would be safer in every way would be to have one representative from each school or class and give the award to the one receiving the greatest applause. The original wording of the card runs:

> $2.00 REWARD!
>
> To the pupil who will deliver Lincoln's Gettysburg address.
>
> Fifty years ago to-day, Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg address in dedication of the final resting place of the men who lost their lives in that memorable battle. This address, while short, is considered a masterpiece of oratory, and we feel that on this occasion it should be brought forth and refreshed in the minds of all American citizens.
>
> To-night at the Empress Theater, we are going to offer a reward of $2.00 to some school pupil of the first eight grades who will deliver this address from the stage of the theater, and have adopted this method: If you wish to compete, fill out the other side of this card, and present it at the door of the theater to-night. The cards will all be placed in a hat and one drawn therefrom. If the person fails to respond, a second will be called, etc.
>
> The admission for this evening will be 5c. for school children.
>
> The program includes
>
> "THE HIGHER MERCY"
>
> one of Vitagraph's famous Lincoln pictures, on the same order as the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," etc.

We Have Squinted.

M. S. Glenn asks us to "take a squint" at a half-page advertisement of his Candler Opera House, Mountain Grove, Mo. We have squinted and pass along some of the squints. It is not a display advertisement. There is a cut of some road attraction with three lines of black type, but the rest is in the same face as the body of the paper and is headed Opera House Notes. It carries the explanation that it is space bought and paid for by him and that he and not the paper is responsible for anything that appears.

A large part of the space is given to comment on a special Sunday performance, a part of which we clip. There is a running comment on the coming attractions, both dramatic and photoplay, the announcement of a baby beauty contest. We regret that we cannot reproduce the entire page. In a small town, stuff like this works harder for the buyer than the blackest of black type. Here is part of the Sunday story:

> Word was sent to all the churches last Sunday morning asking that special announcement be made of the fact that we were going to give the people a free pictorial sermon, with special sacred music, etc., at the Opera House that afternoon. We are glad to say that our requests were kindly granted, as was fully evidenced by the crowds that poured in from all four churches, filling the house to capacity within twenty minutes after the doors were opened. A remarkable and gratifying feature of this special Sunday event was the fact that several aged men and women of the community saw moving pictures for the first time in their lives. And what else did they see, at this "horrible Sunday show?" They saw themselves and many others over the house weeping like children, during several of the beautiful and pathetic scenes that were thrown upon the screen, accompanied by the sweetest music that ever touched the heart—two violins and piano playing old-time sacred hymns which had been selected especially for the story that was being told in pictures. One old gray-haired gentleman, after the performance was all over, wiped the tears from his face, walked up to us and, extending his hand for a brotherly shake, said: "I have been a member of the church for 53 years—joined the Baptists when a mere boy and expect to die in that good old faith—and I have heard hundreds of good, strong, logical sermons on the subject of Faith, as pictured here today, but never before in all my life did such a thing bring me to tears, as was done here today—and I noticed, sir, that it was the same all over the house; that the old and the young, here and there, gave way to feelings that could not be restrained under the great pressure of truth that was being driven into us from God's own word—something that I had been led to believe was more often desecrated at picture shows than used for good. It was simply grand, sir, and I thank God that I picked up the courage to come out today and learn what I have about this matter."

Of course half pages are denied many exhibitors where space is prohibitively priced, but each can strike the personal note in whatever advertising he does.

Try the free Sunday show if you are located in a town where the pay performance is prohibited and let those who come to denounce remain to praise. The very best "plugger" to be found is the man who came to denounce and found food for praise.

Something New.

E. G. Umholtz, who runs the photoplay page for the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer, has a new idea in his department. Instead of announcing the coming films he tells where the favorites may be seen, the list, in black type, starting off like this:

Julia Gordon, Monday, Grand.
Edgar Jones, Monday, Grand.
Darwin Karr, Thursday, Hippodrome.
Florence LaBadie, Monday and Wednesday, Reno.
Lillie Langtry, Monday, Hippodrome.
Florence Lawrence, Monday, Scenic.
Marion Leonard, Monday, Dreamland.

If the Mutual Company only realized the value of names as pulling business for the exhibitor they would stop that Kay-Bee-Broncho nonsense in a hurry and print more casts in Reel Life. The Universal now gives a majority of casts as do practically all of the licensed companies. The name is what counts.

Star Stuff.

The Star Theater, Chambersburg, Pa., has taken to the time table folder for its program and gives the dates for four weeks at a time, one page to a week. In the outer four, two are taken up by the cover and Mr. Weber uses the other two for a running chat with his patrons.

Six reels for five cents does not win our admiration, but the program itself is attractively done. Possibly the suggestion came from the Essanay folder, but several use the railroad style to good effect, though none can afford Don Meany's use of color printing. An idea of the reading notice is given in this paragraph:

> Now, on the 9th you will get a big treat, "The Diver," in two reels. See the spectacular and daring rescue of the child in the Niagara River, just as it is about to go over Niagara Falls. "Broncho Billy's Secret" is another good one, so are all the rest. "Phantoms," in two parts, will be here on the 10th, also "The Runaway Freight," awful thrilling. Don't miss the other features either. The day following every one is a big feature, including "Movin' Pitchers" and "The Penalty," in two reels. "Our New Minister" moves on the 12th; this comes in three reels and everyone should come with their little five cents' donation and give him a big welcome. Leo Delaney elopes with Norma Talmage, same evening.

Where the tale is told attractively this running story is even better than display, because it is all read. From one of the recent newspaper advertisements we take the following:

> Scientific Motion Pictures properly projected, the stary way. An object photographed by the eye and conveyed to the brain of the average person is retained in the brain one-twenty-fourth of a second after it has vanished from the sight of the eye. A moving picture remains on the screen one-thirty-second part of a second then the screen is darkened for the next one-thirty-second part of a second, which appears so short as not to be worth consideration. Still, it gives us time to remove the one picture and place another picture before the eye one-ninety-sixth of a second quicker than the previous picture can fade from the brain. By our method of darkening the screen while changing pictures we obviate all the flicker and eye strain. If you have any doubts about our having the motion picture down to a science, come in and see what a perfected motion picture looks like.

Mr. Weber has also used the wall paper idea, employing a piece of paper about post card size. It is almost too small to carry out the idea properly unless a strongly marked paper is used. For wall paper the size should be at least six by nine inches.

Two Years Old.

To celebrate its second anniversary, the Pastime Theater, Mankato, Minn., issued a very tasty folder in black on brown with a paster picture of the theater on the front so well done in brown that it suggests a photograph rather than a halftone. Inside is a brief word of thanks, tersely phrased, and a cutting of several frames of films with the usual explanation and the added suggestion that all of the film shown in the house in its two years of existence would stretch 1,520 miles. The back merely carries the Universal trademark. It is an eight-page folder uncut and with only four pages printed. This suggests elegance and still saves binding and permits the form to be printed with one impression. The imprint shows it to be a local production, but it could not have been better done had the work been sent to Chicago. They must have a regular printer in that town; a printer, not merely a man who prints.

The PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by Epes Winthrop Sargent

Thanks.

SEVERAL who have responded to our appeal for correspondence school stuff have contributed anonymously. Will these friends please accept through the department the thanks we are unable to tender personally.

One line in a letter accompanying one batch of advertising is eloquent. The writer says:

> The same led me to enroll with them and on completing the ten lessons I was innocent of the value I had received for my money, but two months of work revealed the fact none too gently
>
> It is true that personal criticism and information were given by the school director, but I consider the two editions of The Technique of the Photoplay and the Photoplaywright of more real value to the beginner.
>
> The school's redeeming feature is recommending the perusal of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, which it wisely does in the last lesson.

In almost the same mail comes a letter from Arthur Leeds telling that he is working seven days a week and giving up his own playwriting to answer properly the letters from his pupils. That is the point we have always made. It is not possible for the schools to give competent instruction at the prices charged. They must resort to generalities and form letters that are of no value, even where the "professor" knows something of what he speaks which is very seldom the case. The majority of the schools are fraudulent on the face of things.

Two things we still want to learn; the wording of the contract of the Associated Motion Picture Schools and the name of the school which advises its pupils to write the studios for information and which gives the form letter to be used. Can anyone tell?

Western Wants.

We do not take very kindly to want lists. They are least reliable when contributed by the editors themselves, and otherwise represent the opinions of but one writer, but here is a list of Los Angeles wants that is more accurate than most.

Checking up on our own information, Majestic should go through New York, Apollo is buying little or nothing from outside writers, and Mr. Melville is not asking many outside contributions, or at least is buying so few that he does not figure in the list.

> Vitagraph, Santa Monica, Cal.—Needs two and three reels badly. Send direct to Santa Monica.
>
> Biograph.—Will be here shortly. Gossip here has it that they need stories badly. Submit here after arrival.
>
> Edison.—No company out here.
>
> Kalem.—Melford with three companies at Glendale needs two and three reels. Blackwell at the old Lubin studio in Hollywood needs two reels featuring himself, and Clements at Santa Monica needs comedies badly for John Brennan and Ruth Roland. All submissions for Kalem must go through the New York office first.
>
> Lubin.—Melville has a company at 4550 Pasadena Avenue and buys for his own needs. Have yet to look him up, but have always understood that he wanted Westerns only.
>
> Selig.—The directors at Eastlake Park and at Edendale do not seem to be over supplied with good stories. All submissions must be through the Chicago office.
>
> Essanay.—Anderson at Niles, near San Francisco, is said to be badly in need of stories.
>
> Pathe and Melies have no companies hereabouts as far as I know at present. Kleine does not buy.
>
> American at Santa Barbara need stories of all descriptions. Submit to Santa Barbara
>
> Majestic at Brooklyn Heights need a few stories, and Lonergan says to submit to him. Understand that all stories will soon be handled through Woods at New York.
>
> Thanhouser and Princess do not buy. Apollo through Majestic.
>
> Reliance has no companies out here. Komic ditto.
>
> Kay-Bee, Broncho, Domino, Keystone, on Allesandro Street, can use stories of any description and are buying a few.
>
> Western Universal at Hollywood are buying a little I understand, and one of the directors tells me that stories—good ones—are mighty scarce.

Top Prices.

Lately we suggested that Mrs. Breuil has the top of the heap with her $200 two-reel story, but James Oliver Curwood certainly seems to hold the record. He shows that since September he has sold 36 reels of stuff for $3,700 to the Selig Company alone. This makes no account of 41 reels sold Essanay and Vitagraph, not within the same limit, but at the same price of one hundred dollars each reel.

Mr. Curwood is still pretty lonesome in the hundred dollar class, but if the companies can pay him that much they will pay others that much in time and with the raise at the top the other prices will be drawn along. Mr. Curwood, of course, is selling his reputation as a fiction writer as a part of the transaction, but what has been done can be done again. Mr. Curwood still makes the novel his first love, but he is a tremendously prolific writer of photoplays as his nineteen subjects in three months proves.

Phil Lang Says:

The other day Phil Lang commented on the lack of continuity in a majority of scripts and he spoke with so much earnestness that we took advantage of his engrossment to coax him to put it on paper.

In the old days follow scenes were considered essential. John left his office, he was seen coming out of the building, walking along the street, entering his home and so, at last, the library, where the next development took place. This took too much time and film and David Griffith invented the cut-back to give continuity without a waste of film. Now John leaves his office. We see Marion on the street where she meets Jack. John comes to the house and presently Marion and Jack enter. While Marion was talking to Jack, John had a chance to get home. Otherwise it would be necessary to run a leader. "Marion tells John of her engagement to Jack," not that the situation is not apparent, but because the abrupt exit from one scene into another must be "broken."

In these days when so many self-sufficient editors and advisors declare that the idea is still the thing, it is pleasant to read Mr. Lang's plea for a decent script from the author. No matter what is said, the idea with perfect technique is worth more to any editor than the faulty development, and will bring more money to the author.

When the author can and does write a practicable working script, we shall hear less about the mutilation of his ideas by editors and directors. Read Mr. Lang's last paragraph over several times. It is worth while to let it sink in.

> One of the shortcomings which I find in scenarios nowadays is the lack of continuity. As the photoplay is essentially a story of continuous action, the importance of proper sequence cannot be emphasized too strongly. I am not certain that I can make my point altogether clear as some of the best scenario writers seem to be decidedly careless in seeing that the continuity is preserved.
>
> Every author doubtless supposes—and not unreasonably so—that the director will make certain changes; that he will in all probability arrange a "working script" and that, therefore, the establishing of proper continuity should rest with the director. But the author should bear in mind the fact that most editors desire to have the scenarios in perfect form before placing them with the producer and if the continuity is not properly developed, the editorial department usually makes a revision, in order that the busy director may not be compelled to change the scenario in making the said "working script."
>
> I do not have reference to beginning a story in the middle and visioning back. That is bad enough. It seems to be generally known that wherever possible the play should be a straightforward one, each scene being the outgrowth of its predecessor. I refer to the basic principle of continuity, which should be apparent to the author who makes a careful study of the best productions as they appear on the screen.
>
> If, for example, John appears in Scene 1 and is discovered in Scene 2, without an exit and entrance having been made, we have a "jump." Perhaps no explanation is necessary and, therefore, the sub-title which is inserted to cover the "jump" must be in the nature of a platitude.
>
> The art of picture production has developed to such an extent that it is no longer realistic to have John leave his office (Scene 1 for example) and enter his parlor (Scene 2) with no intervening sub-title, as there has not been sufficient lapse of time for him to make the trip.
>
> But now the author faces another difficulty. If he endeavors to cover the "jumps" by showing the characters leaving one building and entering another, he is likely to develop a great deal of "going and coming" which, unless handled with care, becomes dull and, consequently, disastrous, as interest in a picture wanes when there is no decisive action.
>
> To cover the "jumps" and also to avoid the platitudinous title, the author should endeavor, whenever possible, to establish important action in different locations—action in which several principals are concerned. Then we can flash from one location to another, steadily advancing the plot. A flash of Mary in the garden will allow time for John to get from his office to his home.
>
> The experienced writer knows that the picture has outgrown the days of the tedious 150-ft. scenes, with the family history of the characters preceding in the form of sub-titles. He needs no advice on the effectiveness of short scenes. But it is amazing to see how these same writers apparently ignore the fact that they hav ecalled for a "jump" when they indicate that Tom is sentenced in Scene 15 and discovered in his cell in Scene 16, with no title between.
>
> Perhaps the author has grown into this indifference because he has observed that the original sub-titles which he indicated were not used in the finished production; that most of his titles were eliminated or, in some cases, many new ones were inserted. The changes that took place in editing, producing and assembling established the necessary continuity.
>
> I, therefore, fear that it will appear that I am making "much ado about nothing." But when we have discussed the scenario pro and con—the plot, the technique, etc.—the scenario is just one thing. It is the manuscript from which the director makes the production. The author, therefore, should do everything possible to minimize the work of the director.
>
> To be perfectly frank, herein lies the basis upon which the value of the scenario is computed in determining the amount to be paid the author. As he comes closer to perfection he will not only have the satisfaction of seeing his original play presented in its entirety, but he will be surprised to discover the difference which it makes in the size of his checks.

Uses Them Himself.

Seeking information a recent writer asks William Lord Wright for a list of the hackneyed themes and a list of really new plots. He expressed a willingness to tell what was old, but he refused to communicate his good new ones, explaining that he put these on paper and sent them out as quickly as possible.

Ball Belongs.

Eustace Hale Ball now belongs to the Society of Authors of Books on Photoplay Writing That red-covered book in his left hand coat pocket is The Art of Photoplay. Mr. Ball advises the director's sheet and one or two other fancy trimmings, but he knows his game and tells well his side of the story.

Better Still.

The December Photoplay Author was out the last week in November, and Arthur Leeds writes that he wants to keep it about that way. The current issue contains an appreciation of Miss Maibelle Heikes Justice by Marc Edmund Jones, an article by A Van Buren Powel on mental coloring, suggestions by Barry Scobee on Self Criticism and the usual departments. There are some good pointers in the Inquiry Department, conducted by Arthur Leeds, and market notes for those who want them. The magazine is bright and helpful and is not used as a house organ. It gives reading and not veiled advertisements.

If You Want to Laugh.

If you want to laugh, get a copy of the Green Book for December and read the article by Hugh C. Weir on "Writing Plays for the Movies." That Mr. Weir calls them "movies" tells its own tale, but we have never seen so much misinformation in any one story since the magazines began to print motion picture stuff.

We do not want to spoil your enjoyment of the article, but as a couple of samples Mr. Weir states that Vitagraph's "Tale of Two Cities" contained 45,000 "scenes," mistaking frames for scenes He also remarks that "few original productions requiring more than one reel in their presentation have been presented on the films." This, with about fifteen or twenty two to four-reel original subjects being released each week. Another gem is the statement that "The Crusaders," "running nearly four reels, is one of the largest moving picture plays ever attempted," when there are at least two twelve-reel subjects on the market. If we had a nice, second-hand gold brick we think we would sell it to the editor of the Green Book, but get the magazine and read the story.

Biograph Earmarks.

Someone wants to know if he is not correct in his belief that the Biograph plots have a certain individuality. Perhaps this has bothered others. as well.

Most Biograph stories are two part plots; that is, there are generally two distinct lines of action running toward the same end, the scenes being cut back from one to the other development. Sometimes this double incident is not strongly marked, but nearly always it is found to be present.

Take as an example An Evening with Wilder Spender. One line of incident concerns Wilder and the girl and the other her uncle and his aunt. This does not become apparent until the close, but the scenes in Spender's room are cut back to the Uncle acquiring a comfortable load. All for Science gives the same idea in another way in that the two stories are the story of the nephew and the story of the detective and his assistant. It all seems one story, but dissection shows the usual dual development working to the common end.

In other words, you stand a better chance with Biograph if you send a dual instead of a single development and yet handle it so that the cutting back is cleverly hidden. It is this which gives distinctiveness to the Biograph stories.

Still More Contented.

Lately we told of a mother of a family who had sold six plots out of twenty-three and whose attitude of contentment probably aided materially in bringing her success.

Now comes another letter to report that two of the four stories out have been sold. These two brought almost as much as the first six, and Frank Woods, in accepting one, wrote:

> The price we are placing on this scenario is higher than the regular rate, because we desire to encourage you to give us more stories of similar strength. The plot permits working up to the climaxes with sustained suspense without becoming illogical and inconsistent.

Six scripts brought $150. The next two brought $125. This was not arrived at through complaint and unrest, but by doing the best possible work and spending time on the work that some spend in complaint.

Need a Governor.

Recently a woman who has been trying to master plotting was told to go ahead and develop a certain idea into a working script of action. At once her depression was changed to elation and she slapped off a story in such a hurry that she wrote one scene that should have carried from six to ten numbers and added three visions to get the story over. For some time she had been disappointed in her efforts to get an approved plot, but the moment she did, instead of working over that plot carefully she walked on air and while in the clouds rushed the script through without proper thought and mature deliberation. She had gone from the extreme of depression to the heights of overconfidence and was worse off than before.

Don't let a little approval turn your head. Let praise cheer you up, but do not regard the first acceptance as the sign that you have arrived and that all else that you write will sell, or else the sale of one script will utterly spoil your chances of selling more, since you will feel that you have passed the study stage.

No one ever passes the study stage, no one ever ceases to learn and the most successful are those who hold this fact most clearly in mind and keep on trying to make each successive script a little better than the last. It is not humanly possible ever to produce an absolutely perfect piece of work; a product that is not susceptible of improvement, and the really clever writer realizes this and is never content with what has been his best. He has the governor of common sense to temper the exuberance of praise and he averages up. The man who eventually gains success is neither unduly elated by praise nor downcast by censure He just keeps on trying to do his best and make that best better than ever.

Better Prices.

Frank S (Spec) Woods, of the Mutual Photoplay Bureau, takes the ground that he does not want to pay five or ten dollars for an idea because he does not want ideas worth no more and is willing to pay the price if he can get what he wants. With George Hennessy and Russell Smith on his staff, both expert writers, he can get a good development of any good idea that he buys, but he is willing to give the author of that idea some of the money. He is not anxious for synopses alone, but he is willing to take these where the author of a good idea cannot supply the proper development.

If Spec will give from $15 to $25 for an idea alone, it will not be long before the other companies get in line. They will be forced to if they wish to get as good material, for they will find that Spec is getting the first pick at the market.

It is only through the production end that prices ever will be raised. Individual or concerted kicks from authors will have no effect. Spec's success in getting a good grade of material by paying a little more for it will do more to put the prices on a proper basis than all of the letters the entire writing body can send to the manufacturers and the papers. Send him your best, and only your best and help him to prove his theory.

Inquiries.

NOTE—No inquiries can be replied to by mail. Look for your answer here. No question can be replied to that necessitates the handling of the manuscript. Always give your name and address. It will not be published. A list of addresses, to which photoplays should be sent, will be supplied on receipt of a STAMPED AND SELF ADDRESSED ENVELOPE. The request should be made to the paper direct and not to this department, nor to the Answers Man.

RUBEENA.—We think you can come down and give New York the "once over" without imperiling your immortal soul, but take it from the Answers Man that New York is lots nicer to visit than to stay and make a living in. Don't think of kicking loose from three square meals a day. Max Linder is with Pathe off and on, mostly off lately.

S. H. F.—We do not know of any company in the market for Mexican War Dramas

O. H.—The best way to enter the moving picture acting business is to point with pride to eight or ten years' experience on the dramatic stage. A diploma from a school of acting, particularly one place in your town, would damn you forevermore In plain English you can't get a job.

N. C.—Twenty pound bond, eight and a half by eleven inches is the standard manuscript paper For preferences read the releases in this paper and see what the companies are doing

H. McG.—Time was when there was but one Biograph company and you saw most of the favorites in every release Now there are several companies and you do not happen to have seen those of the section in which Miss Sweet appears. We do not think you are likely to see Miss Bernard soon. Pictures such as you mention ceased to be when David Griffith gave up personal direction to become general manager of production. We do not get tired of answering questions because we are hardened to it. You can get used to most anything.

P. F. S.—A courteous request for information such as you ask could not be objected to. Explain why you ask and we think you will be told. Judging the length of a reel is like the cook who takes "a pinch of this and a pinch of that." There is no formula. It is an acquired instinct. There are companies working New England now and then, even in Winter. The Edison company generally sends a section up to Maine for snow stuff. Mr. Hotaling was kidding you. The objection is to the static electricity in cold, dry air.

G. T. B. S.—We will not call you Flossie P. M. There is but one Flossie. Miss Frances Nelson was Mrs. Wilson in "Diversion." Rosanna Logan was the child. She has also played for Reliance Miss Logan (not Rosanna) was the mother in "The Girl Across the Way." Edna Foster was one of the newsboys in "Old Coupons" and the Biograph Identifier thinks the other was Marie Newton.

R. V. B.—The stories of the film are done from the copy supplied by the press men of the various companies unless the stuff runs too long, when it is condemned. We do not know who writes the Biograph paragraphs. There seems to be no use trying to form a circle in your city.

UKON KID.—The Board of Censorship would not object to the use of a legless boy in a picture unless they had to cut the boy's legs off to make him fit The Chicago Selig company stays in Chicago. They have coast companies. A Chinatown story might sell.

M. F. H.—Don't buy copyrights unless you know where you can sell them at a profit. Companies prefer to make their own adaptations. If you cannot write original stuff do not write at all.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

☞ Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue - New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE:—Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local No. 302, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

M. O. Ferguson, President, J. W. Bleckley, Vice President, H. K. Porter, Recording Secretary; A. Brown, Financial Secretary; M. O. Ferguson, Business Agent; J. Aaron, Sergeant-at-Arms. Trustees. C. F. Hicklin, J. Gardner, M. O. Ferguson.

Question No. 11.

Best answer will be published and names of others sending in replies of excellence will be published in the Roll of Honor.

> What is the difference between the d. c. and a. c. commutator? Also explain the reasons for this difference.

Answers to Question No. 5.

There have been many correct answers to Question No. 5. In only three instances, however, have the answers attempted any explanation whatever of the phenomenon. They have simply confined their remarks to saying that the voltage dropped "because the generator was overloaded."

Roll of Honor.

C. L. Dowsley, Winnipeg, Canada, sent in what was perhaps, everything considered, the best reply of all, though it is not the one published, for which I trust neighbor Dowsley will forgive me.

John Stone, Albany, N. Y., also sent in a very good reply.

The reply of W. L. Johnston, Toronto, Canada, was selected because it raises some points concerning which the editor himself is not very clear, therefore it may, and I trust will, bring out valuable discussion.

Reply to Question No. 5, by W. L. Johnston, Toronto, Canada.

The Question:

> Suppose you had charge of a projection plant in which current was furnished for the arcs through a motor generator set, the generator of which was a 3½ k.w., 110 volt, shunt wound. Suppose you were using 30 amperes and the manager came up and demanded that you deliver more brilliant projection. Suppose that, in an endeavor to satisfy the manager's demand, you cut out resistance enough to raise the amperage to 35, whereupon the arc suddenly went entirely out. Now suppose, after a few seconds, you brought the carbons together again and the arc struck, only to go out immediately. What would you assume the reason to be, and how would you prove it?

The Answer:

> In the first place you should never have a shunt-wound generator in your theater. You need a compound-wound machine.
>
> What happens is that when you have a shunt-wound dynamo you have a machine which is designed for delivery of a certain amount of current, and not much more, and you will always find the field coils are wound for about one-third of the total output of the generator. What the field resistance does is to adjust the machine to the gradual rise of temperature occuring during a long run, and also to increase the amperage to a limited extent. When you attempt to take 35 amperes you immediately reduce your voltage to zero, because you increase the magnetic polarity of your armature until it counteracts the field poles, and immediately your voltage drops to zero. To prove this, place a voltmeter in the circuit. To remedy this, get some large wire and wind a few turns on top of the field coils. You don't need to wind them all, so long as you wind only poles of opposite polarity and connect this winding in series with the load. You then have a compound-wound machine, which will always keep the magnetic flux in the field stronger than that in the armature, and you cannot create the above situation. Some machines are built so that they have pole pieces in between the regular ones, known as interpoles, on which the series winding is placed. This overcomes the flux in the armature and in addition tends to pull the flux in the fields in a straight line, and not drag it to one side of the poles, as is commonly done when a machine is overloaded. Also, it tends to overcome the sparking at the commutator, which is common in compound machines in which the air gap is not of correct size.

I am not quite sure about some of these things. I could readily find out by consulting authorities here in New York, but would rather have the thing discussed in the department, since I think through such discussion a greater benefit is derived than through a mere statement by the editor. Personally, I do not believe it would be practical to transform a shunt-wound machine into a compound wound in the way neighbor Johnston suggests. Of course that kind of a stunt would compound the machine all right, but I do not think it would be an efficient compound dynamo. How is the average man going to know how many turns to use in making the compound? There are other things in this answer which I believe will probably cause some of our departmentites to rise up and smite brother Johnston with language. On the whole, I think I had better give you friend Dowsley's reply also. It is short, and here it is:

Reply to Question No. 5, by C. L. Dowsley, Winnipeg, Canada.

> If it is attempted to boost the dynamo in question up to 35 amperes the overloading would demagnetize the field, which no longer being excited, could not maintain the voltage which would instantly drop to zero. In Figure A, we see a sketch of the principle of the shunt-wound dynamo, in which part of the current generated passes through field coil X, and it is this current which excites and magnetizes the pole-pieces of the dynamo. The probable cause of demagnetizing this field upon overloading, is that the heavy pull upon the generator steals the current which should pass through the field, and thus deadens it. (You are wrong. See brother Johnston's reply on this phase of the matter.—Ed.) In the characteristic curve shown at B in the sketch, is shown why the arc would be lost, or go out if the dynamo is overloaded. We also see at A that a dynamo of this type can generate full voltage even when carrying no load at all, therefore the characteristic curve shown at B, which started at the 110 volt point (I don't think so. It would start at zero and rise rapidly to 110—so rapidly as to make your curve practically correct, though not exactly so.—Ed.), proceeds straight out to capacity in amperes where it takes a downward sweep to zero. In this sketch let E equal the voltage line and C the amperes. The greatest possible load would be about at point X, but if the load was further increased the voltage would drop and at about Z would demagnetize the field, bringing the pressure to zero.

Disagrees.

James Solar, Watertown, N. Y., disagrees with the editor as follows:

> Regarding article, page 731, November 15th issue, concerning outside shutters, I would like to give my views on the subject. You say the light rays diverge as they leave the lens and, therefore, the shutter should be as close to the lens as possible. My experience is that the light does not diverge as it leaves the lens, but, with a 6-inch, e. f. objective, converges to a point about 8 inches from the lens, and then diverges. To prove this, throw a clear light on the screen and move the shutter slowly. When the shutter blade cuts the light at the bottom of the ray, you will notice that the top part of the screen becomes dark first, and, as the shutter cuts the light from the bottom to the top of the lens (Power's Six A), the light rays must pass through a focusing point afterwards.

Regardless of whether your contention as to the focusing point being beyond the lens is correct or not, the fact remains that the experience of machine manufacturers has been that travel ghost follows where the shutter is set any considerable distance from the lens. What you say concerning the action of the shutter is true, and, at this time, I am not going to dispute the correctness of your position, at least so far as the long focal length objective is concerned. However, as I said, regardless of all this, a shutter which will not produce travel ghost when set close to the lens will usually produce it if set a few inches away, though not beyond the focal point you speak of. That is not theory, but fact. This is a matter which might be discussed by correspondents, since it is one of much importance from several points of view. In fact, I might say of very great importance. I would like to say a good deal more on this topic, but have not the space to spare, this week at least.

From New Orleans.

New Orleans, La., sets forth the following, in bright green ink:

> (a) Would a bent outside shutter give travel ghost? (b) Can one compensarc be used for two machines? If so, how would you connect up? (c) Can an arc be struck on the second lamp while operating one of them? (d) With a rotary converter where the current passes through a transformer and is stepped down to 60 volts, is any other resistance required between the converter and the arc? If not, how could you bring the carbons together and strike an arc without causing a dead short and blowing the fuses? (e) I have a 94-foot throw, using 40 amperes of 110 volt, 60 cycle current through a Fort Wayne compensarc. Use two 7½ condensers. Was getting a fair light, but had to move my lamp (Edison 1913 model) as far back as possible, on the first show. After one and a half hours' run I reset the carbons, and found the spot was smaller, so had to slide the whole lamp, and lamp-house forward to get the proper spot. The next day I set the carbon holders forward as far as the lower one would permit. For two nights everything worked beautifully. I got a larger spot and moved the lamp-house further away from the aperture. This killed the ghost, which was always present in the center of the screen, but the third night things went back to the old condition and I had to move the lamp-house forward again to get the proper spot. The gate only misses the cone of the lamp-house ⅜ of an inch when it is open. (f) Why is the Edison 1913 lamp not more stationary and solid? (g) Why does the lower wire terminal burn off more frequently than the upper?

(a) No. But why have a bent shutter? Take it off and straighten it. (b) Yes, you can either connect the compensarc's secondary leads to the center poles of the D. P. D. T. switch, and one lamp to either end, or you can wire the two lamps in multiple, and steal the current from one to the other. To do this connect one secondary lead to one pole of one of the machine switches, and the other to the other pole. Now branch one of the leads to one of the poles of the other machine switch, and branch the other lead to the other pole. That is all there is to it. When you strike the carbons of one lamp the other lamp will go out, and vice versa. (c) No. (d) I do not understand what you mean when you say that "with a rotary converter where the current passes through a transformer and is stepped down to 60 volts," though probably you intend to convey the idea that the rotary converter has an a. c. input and d. c. output of 60 volts, the original a. c. voltage being reduced to 60 by a transformer, though why this should be I fail to understand. Yes, you would have to use resistance enough to bring the arc voltage down to somewhere between 45 and 55, probably about 48. If you had no resistance you would establish a dead short with the carbons, but that would be all right if the converter capacity was not greater than the capacity of your fuses; if it was there would be trouble. (e) The size of the spot may be increased somewhat by shoving the lamp-house forward, but that is not the way to do it—move your lamp forward in the lamp-house—closer to the condensers. However, you say the lamp was as far forward as you could get it. If that was the fact, and your carbons were set in line with each other, then there is something radically wrong. Better take it up with the Edison Company, to whom I have sent your letter. Just what caused the difference in spot size I cannot say, of course, but it must have been some variation in the set of the carbons. (f) I have not seen one of these lamps named, therefore do not know that they are or are not "stationary and solid." Let us hear from other operators. If anything is wrong we will get after the Edison Company with a sharp stick and most likely can get it remedied. (g) Because ordinarily they are closer to the arc, but you have no business in allowing them to burn off at all. See the Handbook, second paragraph, page 200.

What I Saw.

Saturday, November 15th, I paid ten cents for a ticket to the Loew Theater, Broadway and 41st Street, intent on seeing what Mr. Operator was doing in return for his salary.

This is one of the has-been Broadway legitimate theaters, which, having passed under the control of Marcus Loew, is now devoted entirely to the silent players. The house seats approximately 2,100, and is apparently well managed. And right here let me say that the sixteen-foot picture is ample in size for this large house. It is surrounded by a very wide border of black. In fact, the entire proscenium opening, except for the actual screen, which is located at stage-floor level, is solid black. The effect is splendid. The picture overlaps on the back just a trifle. Whether the idea came from this department or not, it is precisely what it has advocated for this long, long time. The projector, a Power's Six A, was in excellent condition, as evidenced by the steadiness of the picture. The light was white and brilliant, but its handling could have been very considerably improved. Here is what I saw: I entered at 2:50 p.m., Friday, October 14th. The Pathe two-reel "General and His Children" was on. At 3:09 there was a bad shadow at bottom, and another at 3:12. At 3:20 the Vitagraph, "Sandy and Shorty at the Circus," was put on, with the title threaded out of frame. In this film, as well as in the former, there were misframes, though not many. This, however, is very crude work for a Broadway house of such high class to display. I was more than surprised that it was tolerated. The fault lies, presumably, with the exchange. The manager, however, is not blameless for accepting films in such condition. At 3:25 there was a bad shadow at the bottom and a slight misframe. At 3:30 a Lubin came on with title threaded out of frame (crude work on part of operator) and during the running of this film there were four bad discolorations of the light, two at bottom, one on bottom and left and one at top, also when horses were galloping the speed was too slow, producing the well-known floating effect to some extent. The next film was threaded in frame, but the handling of the light was about the same. I do not know who was in charge of the projectors, but the work was, while fair, as New York projection goes, still far from being high class. It is not the kind of work which calls for a forty dollar salary—not by several good, long jumps. It was significant that when I showed the manager the record of the show, as above indicated, he said: "Umph! yes, the boys knew I was out—I just returned." Now if that is the fact, and the faults were in any measure due to knowledge on part of the operator that the manager was absent, then the operator, whoever he was, will never be able to truthfully call himself a good operator, much less a high class one, for the man who only produces excellence when he is watched is—well, I'll leave it to yourselves, and to himself, to fill in the proper words. Now, Mr. Marcus Loew Operator Man, don't get sore at the editor. He only relates what he saw, and if what he saw is not to your credit, why that is no one's fault but your own.

Saturday evening, November 15, I dropped into the Criterion Theater, Bedford Avenue and St. John's Place, Brooklyn, at 9:07 o'clock, while a Selig was in course of projection. The speed was much too fast. At 9:10 an Edison was started with its title threaded out of frame; also the light was in very poor adjustment, causing heavy shadow until it was adjusted—crude work, Mr. Operator man. No possible excuse for it. At 9:15, 9:16 and 9:18 there were shadows, the last one very bad. The manager spied me just then and spoke to the operator, probably putting him wise. Anyhow, the rest of the short time I remained things were noticeably better. Now Mr. Criterion Operator, it is not up to you to get angry at these criticisms. Not at all. But it very decidedly is up to you to improve your work to such an extent that such criticisms will be impossible. There is seldom or never a valid excuse for a shadow on the screen. Excessive speed the operator may not be altogether or at all to blame for, but shadows are something else again, and starting a picture out of frame, while it may have been all right four or five years ago, is crude to the point of rankness now.

The same evening the editor dropped in, for a few moments, at the Fulton Auditorium, on Fulton Street, a little way south of Bedford Avenue. The light here was not as white and brilliant as at the Criterion, but it was somewhat more carefully handled, though an occasional slight shadow appeared. The speed here was better, also. But, taken as a whole, the work was not what could be termed high class. I suspect, also, that the operator knew I was in the house, though this may possibly be an error.

Now please clearly understand that these criticisms are not made with any view of being unkind. I have often said that projection in this city is far from perfect. I am now simply relating precisely what I see, and pointing out exactly the faults which I observe in the projection. If the faults are not there they cannot be pointed out; if they are there they ought to be—and there you are.

Boston Operators' "Schools" Rapped.

Boston, Mass., forwards a clipping from a Boston daily paper, and says:

> As you will observe, someone has made a move against the operators' "schools" of this city. Boston is infested with these sharks (that is a hard word, but it is the only one which fits the case). One Boston evening paper carried ads from eight different "schools." If the victim lost only the $20 or so he pays for tuition it would not be so bad, but to lose this and the time he spends in school, and then, on top of all that, loaf around from two weeks to two months waiting for the promised "job," which does not materialize, is something else again. Many of those poor chaps can by no means afford such a loss. Do you not think it would be a good scheme for our union to use space in the daily papers setting forth the truth as regards the operator situation? The cost would not be large and it would, I should suppose, be very beneficial all around.

From the clipping it seems that there have been a great many complaints coming in to the police lately concerning an alleged scheme to educate young men to handle moving picture machines—to make operators out of them. The complaints finally becoming so numerous, the district attorney placed the matter before the grand jury and secret indictments were returned. Some schools have already been prosecuted, though with what degree of success the clipping does not say. Some of the witnesses claimed they had received but a few lessons, while others were sent to the State House to take the examinations, although they were not only incompetent but under the age limit, and known so to be by the men who sent them.

As to the union paying for space to expose this swindle, it does not seem to me that ought to be necessary. I have not much sympathy with the boob who is such a double distilled A-1 superfine brand that he is willing to put up real money on the promise to teach him a trade in two or three weeks. The man who is that "easy," would probably lose his money some other way if he did not get roped in on that particualr scheme. I believe, however, that it would be entirely feasible and practicable for the Boston Union, without much expense or trouble, to secure evidence and prosecute these alleged schools for obtaining money by false pretenses. It is to be hoped that the present move will be the means of putting some of these men in jail, where, in my humble judgment, they ought to be.

Lens Size.

Mr. P. M. Boothe, Davy, W. Va., writes:

> What focal length lens will it take to make a 14-foot picture on an 81-foot throw? I wrote the company and they shipped me a lens that gave too large a picture, and informed me there were only three sizes of them.

Why don't you send $2.50 to the Moving Picture World and get a Handbook, which will tell you all these things, as well as hundreds of others, the particular information you ask being contained on pages 356 to 363 inclusive. For your benefit I will say: with an inside calliper measure the precise width of the aperture of your machine, in fractions of an inch; multiply your throw, in feet, by the width of the aperture, in fractions of an inch, and divide that product by the width of the picture you want in feet, which in this instance is 14 feet. A six-inch e. f. lens will probably be about as near as you can get to it, but it is possible to get a great many different focal length lenses; they run in half sizes; that is to say, 2½, 3, 3½, 4, etc., up to, I think, 7 inches; beyond that size the lens becomes a special.

Goes Us One Better.

Mr. Ray E. Crockett, Bethel, Maine, replies to the "Puzzle," and says that a sheet of white paper or a piece of tin will reflect the light sufficiently for the purpose, therefore the mirror is not absolutely necessary.

A Few Stunts.

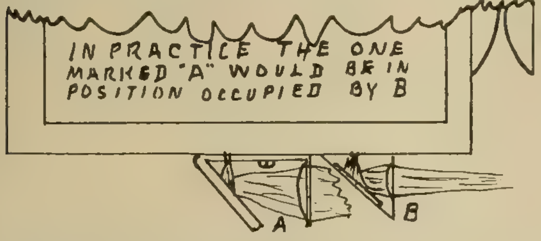
Brother W. S. James, Camden, N. J., has accommodated the editor by sending sketch of his device for writing on the screen, though it is not for publication. He, however, contributes to the department thusly:

> Some of the following suggestions are so simple that you may smile at them, but I have not seen them set forth in your department. (Consider yourself slapped on the wrist, friend W. S. James. It is not "my" department, but "our" department.—Ed.) Some time ago you mentioned tracing cloth as being a good substitute for gelatine in the making of lantern slides. Believe I can go you one better on that. Secure a piece of ground glass, such as is used for focusing a camera, and cut it to slide size. This may be written, or sketched on with pen or pencil and shows up admirably on the screen, yet can readily be wiped off with a wet cloth. You also mention a device for throwing the image of the arc to the front wall of the booth (I didn't do any such thing. I mentioned a device for projecting the arc to the front wall of the operating room.—Ed.), but as a drawing of this little device was not forthcoming, I am enclosing a sketch of one of my own, in which M is a mirror, A a magnifying glass held in place by a piece of tin as shown, and B is a hole in the lamp-house door. In November 15th issue, page 731, you answer W. L. Johnston, of Toronto, concerning good jobs. Where are they? Show 'em to me! I am willing to stand the test for any of them, provided they will agree to pay the price if I produce the goods, on anything they put before me at any time. I have a motor-drive, but have trouble with the large idler gear, 640, plate 4, page 278 of the Handbook (Power's Six.—Ed.), wearing in its bearings; that is to say, not the shaft, but the casting, which necessitates drilling out and putting in a bushing. Could not the Power Company remedy this defect?

Many thanks for the sketch of the screen writer. As to those jobs, I cannot tell you just where they are, but they are in existence all right, and there are some of them right here in New York City, too. But let me tell you one thing, brother James, one of the very best tests of a man's ability is the production of work which attracts attention. Are you producing that kind in your every-day work? I said there was a $35 or $40 job for every man capable and willing, at all times, to deliver the highest class of projection. Yes, I said that, and I repeat it; but I also said you had first to establish a reputation for that kind of work.



IN PRACTICE THE ONE MARKED "A" WOULD BE IN POSITION OCCUPIED BY B A
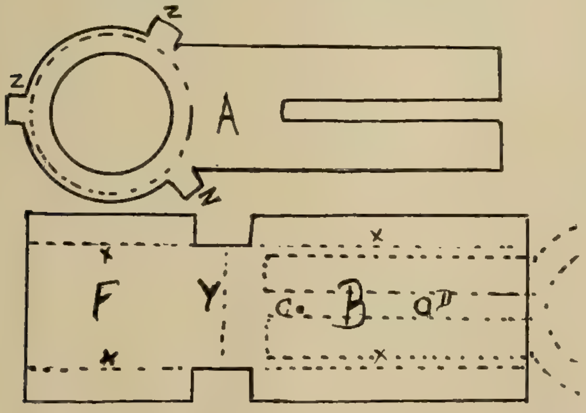
B

Your arc projector is essentially the same I mentioned before. Brother Woods made his holder in a little different form, but otherwise it is precisely the same thing. It is shown in the sketch just back of your own. In practice it would, of course, be placed exactly opposite the arc.



In the last picture the details of brother Woods' projector are given, full size. The device is made of thin sheet brass, cut as shown. The dotted circle on A represents the lens, which is clamped in place by bending over lugs Z, Z, Z. Part B is then folded over on the dotted lines, the small piece of looking glass being held at F in the grooves thus formed. Part A then slips into Part B in the grooves formed by folding the wings at X, as shown by dotted outline, and is held by a small bolt at D, which passes through the lamp-house door. C is the projection hole through which the light passes. B and F are bent at dotted line Y until it stands as shown in A of the upper cut. As to the Power's Six fault, the matter is respectfully referred to that distinguished corporation, and no doubt if the fault exists they will get busy.

From Denver, Colorado.

Brother Andrew G. Herbst, Denver, Colo., after saying that he does not use a mirror to look for screws on the floor, as he has two lamp extensions, but that he does sometimes use it to throw a spotlight on spooning couples in the balcony, continues:

> We have established a system in our operating room by which we hope to stop manufacturing crank turners. We are open 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Equipment includes two Power's Six machines, which are not approved for motor drive, therefore two operators and one apprentice are required. Now, just about the time our Mr. Apprentice would learn to turn the crank and feed the carbons he would apply for and receive a license. How he managed to get by the examination was a mystery, but he would, and then the first thing you knew he was a full-fledged operator in some small house, taking the job for a few dollars less in order to beat a good operator out of a job. To beat this game we extended the crank shaft out on the left of one machine and put a crank on it, so that we could operate from the left side. The machines are close enough together so that you can run one and thread the other at the same time. We have a Motiograph No. 1A arc lamp, so we put a door on the left side of the lamp-house, using an Edison carbon holder, since we could not work the wing-nut of the Motiograph holder from the left side. This, however, won't last long as we expect to get two new machines which will be approved for motor drive.

Well, brother Herbst, I cannot consistently approve of your scheme, and, at the same time I do not blame you, under the circumstances, for adopting it. What kind of an examination board have you got in Denver, for the love of Mike? Why don't you get after that proposition, and pump it into the powers that be that an examination which does not determine the actual practical ability of a man is as bad or worse than none at all?

Slide Coating and Other Things.

Jack Fuld, pianist Bryant Theater, 243 West 42nd Street, New York City, called upon the editor and contributed one or two things, for which he has our thanks. You remember all along I have been expressing my skepticism as to the ability of some of our various artist correspondents to make good their claims of writing and drawing designs in ink on raw glass. The editor has made a few slides himself; in fact, he might say a few hundred without overstepping the bounds of truth, but he has never yet been able to make ink behave itself on plain glass. And now cometh the deponent and gives the whole snap away. If you want to letter or draw designs on glass, first clean the same thoroughly, and then drop the white of an egg on it, after which rub the egg off; enough of the egg will adhere to the glass to do the work. A thin coating of library paste will answer the same purpose. Ha! Ha! discovered! You smarties thought you would put something over on the Old Man, didn't you?

Brother Fuld also put us wise to another stunt. In order to coat a slide so that the design similar to that illustrated on page 865 of November 22nd issue, use one of the patent kalsomines, such as muralite, alabastine, or muresco. Coat the slide and let it dry. That is all there is to it. You can write on this coating or draw designs with any sharp instrument. Use about a spoonful of the preparation to two spoonfuls of water. A little experimenting will show you the right amount of water to use for the best results. You can coat a supply of these glasses and keep them on hand, or you can have a few clean glasses and a bottle of the preparation ready for use at any time. When the glasses are coated they can be laid on top of the lamp-house for a few minutes to dry, and they are then ready to write on. You can use a cover with colored gelatine to produce colored effects.

The thanks of the department readers are due brother Fuld for his kindness in supplying this valuable data. By the way, when you clean them off, just wipe off the coating on the space you write on, leaving the outer border. Repeated coatings will soon form a thick mat which will protect the writing.

A Little Comedy.

At Loew's Theater, Broadway, near 41st Street, New York City, recently they were running a film, one scene of which showed only the feet of the actors. While this scene was on a chap bought a nickel ticket and mounted to the realm of the gallery gods. About two minutes thereafter he came down the stairs three steps at a time, and vociferously demanded a seat lower down where "he could see something besides the actors' feet." The joke was so good that he was let into the orchestra. Another scene was on by then and he exclaimed, "There now, you ought to be ashamed of yourself to swindle people that way, putting them up so high they cannot see anything. This is something like it, I can see all the actors now instead of just their feet." Haw, haw, haw! and likewise he, he, he!—the outburst of amusement being by the editor.

Non-Breakable Slide.

C. J. Kaho, Trinidad, Colo., sends sample of a non-breakable slide which he is manufacturing. As near as I can make it out it is some kind of a sensitized transparent body, upon which the photograph has been made in the usual way. It is then bound between cover glasses. I do not quite understand this, as brother Keho says it cannot be broken by dropping it, and will last a lifetime. If the slide is bound between ordinary cover glasses, the cover glasses would break, would they not?

Simplex Machine.

The Precision Machine Company, manufacturers of the Simplex, have sent to the department a private mailing card, which they are presumably sending to exhibitors. It sets forth, in entertaining and instructive form, details of the manufacture of their projector. The thing is well gotten up and such literature, where it is backed up by the facts, as it is in this case, is of considerable value.

Nuts To Crack.

Br[illegible], N. Y. [illegible]

> [illegible] Can [illegible] n and freeze the [illegible] r or the second- [illegible]

[illegible] and "Searchlight" [illegible] freeze the carb[illegible] r cutting out the resistance of the arc. (e) See [illegible] think it is the [illegible] rks. [illegible]

Lubin Patches.

[illegible]

> [illegible] the department the more anxious I am to get the next number. It is all to the good.

Many thanks for your complimentary words concerning the department. [illegible] ways, as no doubt it will now that the matter has been brought to its attention.

From Wilmington, North Carolina.

[illegible]

> Wilmington is coming to the front, though Mr. Marshall, operator at the Bijou, and myself are the only ones here who keep in [illegible] double-throw switches for projection machines. My employer is [illegible] fine with the exception of the operating room. The plans call for [illegible] spot light will be used on this line by the use of double throw

You are entirely correct, brother Jones, in your belief that two machines operating on a double-throw switch is not good practice. On the contrary, [illegible] necessary. It is not necessary to run but one line of feeders to the operating room, but these feeders should be heavy enough to carry the combined current of all the lamps. Thus: supposing you have two projectors, each one using 40 amperes, and a spot lamp using 12 amperes, you should then [illegible] rheostat, if rheostats are used, or a second economizer, if an economizer is [illegible] fault which is present where the double-throw switch is used, but, even so, it is better than the double throw, since one lamp lights instantly the other goes out, whereas with the double throw you must extinguish one lamp by throwing over the switch and then light the second. To sum up, you [illegible]

Looks Promising.

A [illegible] company producing lubricants, recently sent the editor some oil especially prepared by his company for projecting machines, asking that the same be tested and report made therein in the department.

I requested this manufacturer to send out a dozen pints of oil to various operators that I would name, located in different sections of the country. The oil was sent and reports are beginning to come in. So far three have reached me, and they are, without exception, very enthusiastic. Now, one drop of water does not make an ocean, nor does three. It will take about twelve to make this particular puddle, but the thing certainly looks promising. Further statement will be made in the department when all the reports are in.

A Young Operator.

Cecil Dyke, Webster, S. D., orders a Handbook and makes conversation as f[illegible]

> I find the department to be a great help in many ways. It is a most excellent medium for the exchange of views and ideas among [illegible] will be more profitable [illegible] profession. [illegible] still I think you will agree with me that we have got to start some time, and to my notion the right time is when you are young. But I do claim this: I get just as good results on the screen as many older men in larger cities, and in some instances a whole lot better, too, [illegible] on the wall of my operating room I have the following motto: "Grit and perserverance always win; discouragement is the coward's cloak."

W[illegible] I am not much of a believer in mottos. I have known of happy homes where, in neatly worked worsted, you found on the parlor wall the motto, "God Bless Our Home," but the old man came home full of fire-water, busted the motto over his darling wife's head, and then went out to get another drink. Of course, [illegible] is that the man who is built of the right kind of material is going to get through, motto or no motto. There now, I have got all that out of my system and [illegible] young men level headed enough to handle projection machines, but, taking them as a whole, [illegible] in the world to place in charge of a projection room. There are, of course, ex[illegible] The Handbook has gone forward.

Important Notice.

This department is in receipt of a communication from the Thomas A. Edison Company which will be of vital interest to users of their older type of machine. The letter reads as follows:

> We occasionally receive orders for parts for the old Exhibition, two-pin movement, and the old type of arc lamp which was part of [illegible] to make the few parts that are required on such orders, and, there[illegible] the supply of such parts, except the few we may have on hand.

Users of two-pin machines are deserving of little sympathy in the shutting off of their source of supplies. They should have discarded their old mechanisms long ago, or else have had them changed into a one-pin move[illegible] The Edison Company will [illegible] very reasonable figure, but the editor of this department by all means advises owners of these machines to purchase a new projector of later type.

Power's Five Flicker.

Manhattan, Ill., writes at considerable length. The real heart of the letter, however, is a request that I inform him how he may eliminate the flicker in his Power's Five machine. Before making this request, he states that the mechanism is badly worn, and that the manager does not wish to make repairs, as he intends to buy a new projector.

The only thing you could do to eliminate flicker in Power's Five, or rather to reduce it, would be, I think, to install a three-wing outside shutter, and it [illegible]; therefore, I cannot consume valuable space setting forth the modus operandi of installing such a shutter on the Power's Five. Get a new machine is my advice. The Power's Five is out-of-date anyhow.

Manhattan says he hopes that Chicago will come across with directions for making the Churcher Chemical Cell for rectifying a. c. and that it will be published in the department if it is practicable and efficient. It would have to be shown to the editor of this department that any chemical rectifier would be efficient when it comes to rectifying projection current.

Cleaning Films.

Mortimer, N. C., wants to know if it is necessary to clean films before running them, and, if so, how it should be done. Says he has heard that holding a cloth dampened with alcohol to the film while re-winding would do the trick. Also states he gets a nice, clear, sharp picture and a white light, using 250 volts d. c. He is the owner, operator and janitor of the show, which runs twice a week. Desires to put on the best picture possible, everything considered.

It would not be practicable for you to clean the films, Mortimer. You could clean them with alcohol, all right, but you have to scrub them with it and they would curl up very badly, so, for that reason, it is not a practical proposition. There is a film cleaner that must have been named in anticipation of your letter. It is the Mortimer film cleaner, which cleans by pulling the film between two pieces of dry felt while rewinding. I believe they carry an advertisement in this paper.

Operators Are you perfectly satisfied with the results you get on the screen?

The new second edition of the
MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS
By F. H. Richardson

420 Pages Illustrated

$2.50 Each Postage Paid

will be the standard textbook on the subject for many years
Address all orders and remittances to
MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Comments on the Films

Licensed

"TURNING THE TABLES" (Lubin), November 29.—A Western offering with some pleasant scenes, but lacking a very compelling story. The most original situation is where Bob's sweetheart cuts down the sapling to release him, he being handcuffed around the tree. The roundup and capture of the gang lacked the necessary spirit to make it seem real.

"BLUE OR GRAY" (Biograph), November 29.—A war story in which good photography is the most pleasing feature. The spectacle of the officers and members of an entire company of Union soldiers in a drunken orgy, insulting Southern women, is not in keeping with military traditions. The plot of this film does not arouse the right kind of emotions in the observer and it can hardly be called a success on this account.

"SOPHIE'S HERO" (Essanay), November 29.—This is not an extremely successful comedy, but the audience which saw it sandwiched in between several morbid, down-in-the-mouth offerings, found it a pleasant relief. Margaret Joslyn, Augustus Carney and the other members of this company are putting over some wholesome Western comedies that get many chuckles. The scene in the tree was the most enjoyable feature of this one.

"A ROYAL ROMANCE" (Edison), November 29.—This film story, written by Gladys Hulette, who plays the princess, is very attractive. It pictures the love of Karl, a young musician, portrayed by Barry O'Moore, for a girl of royal birth. He of course cannot wed her, but composes her wedding march before his death. There is a tender pathos in this reminiscent of the situations in Old Heidelberg.

"THE BLIGHT" (Patheplay), November 29.—This story is well put together and nicely pictured, but it leaves a bad impression with the observer. It is hard to believe that a man who had pulled himself up in the world as Joe did should be found an unworthy citizen in spite of his poor ancestry. The suicide at the close gives a morbid touch to the film.

"IN PERIL OF HIS LIFE" (Kalem), November 29.—A Western offering of somewhat conventional tone and yet one that tells an entertaining story. It pictures the efforts of a young man on a ranch to overcome his love for liquor. The mob scene at the jail was not very convincing and the story is too much like many others preceding it to be exceptional in any way.

"AUTUMN LOVE" (Essanay), December 2.—A pretty picture with a love story of a woman who, so the touch of white over her temples tells, has passed her bud age and has become a blossom. Except for the dagger scene (Why are so many knives and pistols used in pictures?), it has been artistically produced and charmingly acted. Irene Warfield as the woman and Bryant Washburn as the man both deserve credit for good work. A charming offering.

"THE RUSTLER'S REFORMATION" (Selig), December 2.—William Duncan, as producer, has put more freshness into this old picture than Cornelius Shea, the author, has put in the script. It is a conventional offering that will be acceptable; but will hardly awaken enthusiasm.

"THE HAZARD OF YOUTH" (Lubin), December 2.—There is an artificial note in the arrangement of little things that hampers this story at first; but there's good stuff in it. The author has recognized a certain savor or taste in life under certain circumstances and has put it on the screen. This concreteness gives a definite and vivid outline to his idea. George Terwilliger, its author and producer, knows how to write; but even he will be a better producer after he has seen a few of his own pictures. Louise Huff, as the girl, is personally charming and has intelligence; she will learn how to act. Eleanor Barry is strong as the mother. Kempton Green, the boy, does very fairly, as does Edwin Barbour, the father, who had a hard part to play convincingly.

"THE PRICE OF HUMAN LIVES" (Edison), December 2.—The yearly Christmas Red Cross Seal offering made under the auspices of the National Organization for the Prevention and Study of Tuberculosis. It is a good offering and works in a good service. The script was written by Epps Winthrop Sargent. For extended review see page 1128, issue of December 6, 1913.

"A PEASANT MARRIAGE IN HUNGARY" (Patheplay), December 2.—A first class offering; it is as interesting as can be and will be sure to please all who see it. The photography and all that goes with making the picture effective are excellent.

"EDIBLE FISH OF THE MEDITERRANEAN" (Patheplay), December 2.—On the same reel, it was photographed for the most part in an aquarium, but interests.

"THE GEYSERS OF NEW ZEALAND" (Patheplay), December 2.—Also on the same reel, a scenic that will be acceptable to many.

"VENOMOUS TONGUES" (Cines), December 2.—The story of this two-part special is rather weak. It is, as a whole, artificial and not convincing; but there are some telling scenes in it. In fact, the picture is as good as careful and artistic staging can make it, and for the acting we have nothing but praise. The story truly interests, but does not deeply impress one.

"THE WRECK" (Vitagraph), December 2.—A three-part picture with an entirely real head-on collision between an engine and a train as its climax. The story is not as strong as it might be, but serves its purpose. Harry Morey plays the leading part with remarkable vigor and is pretty well supported. The producer has done his work well; but that scene in which the drowned boy's father is permitted to get into the room where the body is laid out without seeing any crape on the outside door is not strong. The picture was reviewed at length on page 358 of issue of October 25, 1913.

"THE THRIFTY JANITOR" (Edison), December 3.—A little comedy that seems fresh. There have been plenty of plots like it; but it is lively, bright and is full of that fun-spirit that comes from the players and is contageous. It is a smile-farce, not a laugh-farce, and the players deserve more credit for entertainment than the author, Milton Nobles, but he shows knowledge of photoplay writing and has handled his matter as well as can be.

"KITTY'S KNIGHT" (Essanay), December 3.—The moral of this farce is that, if you are at a fancy-dress ball and your rival is wearing a suit of bright armor, don't try to knock him out; wait and catch him when he climbs out of it. The picture is amusing.

"A PAIR OF PRODIGALS" (Vitagraph), December 3.—The sixth of the "Sandy" and "Shorty" series and in it the two tramps (Robert Thornby and George Stanley) find buried treasure and buy the most comical automobile we have seen on screen or vaudeville stage. It is rough trick-farce on the order of the usual French pattern and made laughter.

"WITHIN THE HOUR" (Selig), December 3.—There is very little to the story and no plot to speak of. A thief gets locked in a room by a little girl who forgets him; but he is safe there and is caught in time. The thief's little girl and his wife also come into the picture; but very casually and not convincingly. E. Lynn Summers wrote the script; Marshall Farnum produced it. It is a pretty picture, light and interesting. William Walcot didn't look like a professional thief, but he acted fairly well.

"A BREAK FOR FREEDOM" (Patheplay), December 3.—A fairy story and good photography make this picture of Indians and one white man an acceptable offering.

"THE CAPTURING OF DAVID DUNNE" (Biograph), December 8.—A worthy picture with many excellent things in it in the way of good, human situations and skilfull acting. David was played with no great feat for character and this is the more noticeable, because the girl who captures him; her father, who helps, and other rural characters, who are friends and neighbors, are acted so naturally. It is a simple love story, but the author deserves credit for working it up in so clean-cut and freshly interesting way.

"A ROMANCE OF THE HILLS" (Essanay), December 4.—This particular Essanay company usually turns out much stronger work than this picture, in which we find not one vigorous line. The story is old fashioned and conventional and it is hard to get interested in the characters who, with the sole exception of the old mother, played by Evelyn Selby, a thoroughly good actress who knows her business, are mere figures with only conventional life.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 73."—December 4.—The recent trial at Kiev, Russia, of Beilis, a Hebrew rabbi, for ritual murder, has attracted worldwide attention. The pictures of the principles in this case and some other details given in this number of the topical will excite interest surely.

"THE BIRTHDAY RING" (Biograph), December 4.—A burglar picture with a rather conventional, but well handled story. It falls naturally among offerings that get by; but there is nothing noteworthy about it.

"A WOMAN'S MISSION" (Melies), December 4.—The story is weak and it is not very well acted. Two-thirds of the reel is taken up with this and there is a very interesting picture of Japan as finishing offering.

"A TRIP TO THE FAMOUS PICNIC GROUNDS, ARASHYMA, JAPAN" (Melies), December 4.—On the same reel with the foregoing is this scenic and travel picture. It shows the Japanese playground among beautiful mountains and set with flowering shrubs and plants. A very interesting picture.

"GRANDDADDY'S BOY" (Selig), December 4.—There is an excellent idea for a picture story in this release; but it fails of being impressive, because the old man is played unconvincingly. This wouldn't have spoiled the offering, if the old man had been a pleasing character. The story turns on his senility, which is made unpleasant in its childishness, and when it is presented conventionally and almost mechanically interest suffers. Most old men in pictures are played this way; it doesn't show lack of intelligence in the actor so much as an unfortunate theatrical grouve. In this case the result is fatal. The script is by J. Edward Hungerford, who deserves some credit, and the producer is N. MacGregor.

"THE SWAN GIRL" (Vitagraph), December 4.—There is one good situation in this picture and it gave the three juvenile players a fine chance to show good acting; but it was wholly missed by them all. The photography is a good way from Vitagraph excellence—in a few scenes the cameraman has got some swans perfectly and left the human figures in these scenes out of focus. We have seen few Vitagraph offerings so poor, all around, as is this. It was written and produced by Ralph Ince.

"AN INTERRUPTED COURTSHIP" (Lubin), December 5.—The attempt to force a father to give over his efforts to win a widow in this instance fails. Father had been in bathing, and as he came out of the water he reaches under the door of the bathing house and throws out his wet suit. His son and daughter grab it. His street clothes had been previously removed from the bathhouse. Mae Hotely, the widow, learning of her lover's distress, gets an outfit that serves while the minister performs a ceremony and thus outwits the plotters. Fair comedy.

"SOME ELOPERS" (Lubin), December 5.—There is laughter in this brief but novel comedy, on the same reel as the foregoing.

"WHILE FATHER TELEPHONES" (Kalem), December 5.—A story of the determination of father to marry daughter to the man of his choice and of the equal certainty of the young woman that she would do just as she pleased. She does. While father is in the telephone booth the favored young man locks him in and cuts the wires; he then releases the girl from the locked room and the two are married. Ruth Roland is the daughter and John Brennan is father. The comedy will please.

"ANDREW CARNEGIE'S GIFT TO THE WORLD" (Kalem), December 5.—On the same reel are interesting views of the great Peace Palace at The Hague and serveal topical scenes in England.

"A LESSON IN JEALOUSY" (Vitagraph), December 5.—Good comedy and excellently played by Sidney Drew, Clara Kimball Young and Harry T. Morey. Sidney Drew is chided by his wife because he is not jealous. In distress Drew appeals to Morey, who does enough to incite some men to near murder, but Drew has hard work even to appear peevish. It is a fine example of a rarely even-dispositioned husband. He succeeds, however, in frightening his wife, who in the end is only too glad to learn that he really has not, as she firmly believed, committed murder. Good stuff.

"NORTHERN HEARTS" (Selig), December 5.—The reviewer was puzzled at times during the running of this picture by reason of the similarity of the two men of the Northwest Mounted. They were almost the same in physique and, of course, they were in uniform. Given a broad-brimmed hat, shading the face from the sun, and the difficulties of identification are increased. Those who "get" the story will be interested.

"A BEAR ESCAPE" (Patheplay), December 5.—Douglas Gerrard, as a professor in a girls' school, and George Gebhard, as a ranch foreman, have the leads in this comedy. The efforts, usually successful, on the part of the men of the ranch to outwit the professor and get possession of the girls will make much fun. The bathing costumes of the girls are those of the burlesque stage or of Manley Beach, Australia, or of Ostend, but not of the United States. This is by no means a note of criticism—merely a recital of fact. There is a bear in the picture, and he trees the nearly bare professor, and laughter follows the bear.

"IN THE ELEMENTAL WORLD" (Biograph), December 6.—An odd story of a business partnership in wwhich one partner swindles the other out except game. The woman plays fast and loose with her husband and the stranger. The situations are new in many respects, particularly in the matter of details. The photography is very pleasing and the entire number is entertaining because of its fresh handling of a familiar theme.

"HER FATHER" (Lubin), December 6.—This film gets an interesting start and maintains its hold on the observer. The young man's parents object to the girl's dissolute father, who finally takes the girl's savings and flees. The later scenes contain considerable drama. The insert did not seem exactly fitting, perhaps because there was too much coincidence in it, but as a whole the film is a strong one.

"WHAT SHALL IT PROFIT A MAN?" (Edison), December 6.—This story of a business partnership in which one partner swindles the other out of valuable mining stock is strongly presented. Good photography and sincere acting are in evidence and the story is interesting, without being especially powerful. Augustus Phillips, Frank McGlynn and Bliss Milford are among the principal performers. Bannister Merwin wrote the scenario.

"BRONCHO BILLY'S SQUARENESS" (Essanay), December 6.—A pleasing outdoor number, containing many picturesque views of a four-horse stage coach in action and the subsequent hunt for Broncho Billy, the holdup. He eventually gives himself up to save the girl's lover. Well pictured and quite entertaining throughout, with G. M. Anderson and Marguerite Clayton in the leads.

"COL. HEEZA LIAR IN AFRICA" (Patheplay), December 6.—This series of animated drawings by J. R. Bray shows the amusing experiences of an adventurer in Africa. A monkey throws stones at him, a young ostrich hatches inside his coat and he has all sorts of amusing experiences. An entertaining half reel.

"GLIMPSES OF POND LIFE" (Patheplay), December 6.—This, on same reel with above, gives some magnified views of the daphnia and other little creatures with long names that inhabit the waters of ponds. The eggs and digestive organs are shown in operation. An instructive number.

"THE FOOTPRINT CLUE" (Kalem), December 6.—This film contains a carefully devised situation and is well put on by a cast which includes Charles Wells, Helen Holmes and Lee D. Maloney. The death of the saloonkeeper and loss of the money brought up an original predicament. The threatened hanging was an old feature and this has somehow lost its element of suspense. But the film is successful and pictures a very entertaining yarn.

"THE MANICURE GIRL" (Edison), December 8.—A thoroughly enjoyable offering, mostly because of the feeling for character shown by the players and the lively way in which they have interpreted the situations. It is especially true of the manicure girl, herself, played by Marjory Ellison. Mrs. C. J. Williams, Gertrude McCoy, Augustus Phillips and William Bechtel, with others, ably help. The story, by George R. Chester, without being strongly convincing as a whole, has several freshly pleasing situations. C. Jay Williams produced it in a lively way. The use of photographs in the boudoir scene is awkward; what the manicure heard was names, she didn't see pictures in that way. Wouldn't subtitles have been better?

"THE STRIKE" (Kalem), December 8.—A melodrama with the mine owner's son as hero and the pretty daughter of a miner as the heroine. The foreman is the villain and the climax is a bomb explosion scene. The Kalem players have put it over well and it has been produced in very commendable backgrounds—a real mine and its buildings.

"THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER" (Lubin), December 8.—A romance of revenue man and smuggler's daughter, set on the border line between New York and Canada. There is some freshness of incident and of general atmosphere and it makes a fair offering. Produced by Harry Myers from a script by Emmett C. Hall.

"'MID KENTUCKY HILLS" (Vitagraph), December 8.—A romantic bit of realism, set in the hills. It has no hero, but a fine heroine, played by Edith Story, as the daughter of a moonshiner. The revenue man comes to spy and makes love to her falsely. She finds this out at a critical time and her struggle to decide whether to betray him or let him go makes a very interesting situation as she pictures it. The story, by Russel E. Smith, is acceptable and it was produced by Ned Finley, who ably takes the role of the girl's mountain lover. An interesting well-staged release.

"PATHE'S WEEKLY NO. 74."—A long series of views of great East Indian Fete, called Muharan, is the notable item in the Monday topical this week.

Licensed Specials.

"THE GOLDEN PATHWAY" (Vitagraph), November 29.—A two-reel feature dealing with the subject of divorce. Maurice Costello and Mary Charlson play the parts of a young married couple whose happiness is disrupted by a designing friend and a scheming lawyer. This is a graphic presentation of the familiar rush to Reno of an unhappy woman, who later repents. The story is as strong and appealing as one can be with this more or less unattractive theme. It is hardly the type of story that pleases the majority.

"THE CAVE MEN'S WAR" (Kalem), December 3.—A good one-reel picture has been lengthened out to two and has tiresome parts. These pictures of prehistoric times are not new. The credit for them belongs first to the Vitagraph Company and then to the Biograph, and the latter put out a picture not long ago with the self same idea as this one uses. That one showed the finding of the first artificial weapon; this pictures the finding of the first bow and arrow. As such, it is distinctly good and it is very sure that the ending of the picture holds well.

"WHEN MOUNTAIN AND VALLEY MEET" (Lubin), December 4.—One expects to find a punch of some fresh description somewhere in any picture by Romain Fielding. In this one is an unexpected and very decided punch; but the story would have been better told in one reel. It has this interesting quality throughout; there are summer scenes and winter scenes neighboring upon each other and the story is at once a winter story and a summer story; the heroine is carried from winter to summer. The heroine's true lover of the wintery hills saves her from her false lover of the summery valley. It is acted well and will interest; but is not the best work its author and producer has done.

"BASEBALL'S PEERLESS LEADER" (Patheplay), December 4.—A cleverly handled story with fun in it of a kind that some may think a trifle suggestive i na harmless way more or less. Gwendoline I. Pates, a petite heiress, has an accident to her motorboat and is cast away on Long Island near the home of Frank Chance, the great baseball leader, played by himself. When he comes home, he finds her asleep by his fire and he takes one room and she the other until next morning, when he fries some eggs for breakfast. The girl's father is wrathy and is going to pack her off to Europe; but she sends a note to Chance to rescue her from watchful grandparents. While he is trying to persuade the old people to let him run off with Gwendoline, his team is losing and Papa, in the bleachers, is shouting "Where is Chance?" A boy is sent to bring Chance back and Gwendoline slips past after dressing behind a screen in the boy's baseball suit. The audience seemed to enjoy it.

"ALEXIA'S STRATEGY" (Edison), December 5.—At the end of this two-reel story the innocent man, who has been imprisoned, is released on bail, pending a new trial as soon as it is discovered that he had nothing to do with the crime for which he was punished. This attention to the formal custom is praiseworthy. Some will wonder, perhaps, how Usakoff avoided going to jail as an accomplice. The story is of an accountant who robs a bank and fastens the crime on the cashier, his rival. The accountant is eventually uncovered through an accessory, after the fact falling in love with the woman the thief was trying to win. The exposure quickly follows. The strategy of the heroine does not seem of a particularly high degree. The production is finely acted and well staged, the court scene especially being worthy of mention.

"THE 'PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER' MAN" (Essanay), December 6.—Here are two reels containing a finish in the true holiday spirit. If in this Thanksgiving story there are times when it does seem as if the action is slow, or might have been improved had there been less footage, the ending atones. The story is of a young man of family, living more than a score of miles from his employment in a department store, plugging along on $20 a week and buying a house. His wife informs him they cannot afford a turkey for the holiday; there are too many payments to meet. Very well, the ultimatum serves until the husband is started home on Thanksgiving Day eve. He meets a friend who has just won a turkey in a raffle and he falls. He wins a live bird just as the police raid the lottery; he is locked up. His employer, whom he has never seen, is located and comes to the jail to find out who is in trouble. He goes on the bond of the young man; he gives him a bunch of violets to take home to his wife; he gives him money to buy a present for the "kiddies," and, best of all, he tells him that on Friday morning he will take up the subject of more salary. It is a human story, a story that will appeal to the million, and it is well acted. Two of the children, however, detract by their large interest in the camera. E. H. Caldren, as the employer, is "great." Richard Travers, as the commutor, does fine work; Irene Warfield, the wife, also interests much by her portrayal of the woman always figuring how to make both ends meet. But why interject the abominable "sissy" in the store—such stuff is not comedy.

"BEAUTY UNADORNED" (Vitagraph), December 6.—This is a genuinely entertaining two-reel comedy, written by Sidney Drew, who also plays the leading part. Clara Kimball Young, Ethel Lloyd and James Young also have good parts. The successful manner in which the older couple show up the bogus prima donna and her scheming partner pleases the audience immensely. The comedy is broad in places, but entirely acceptable. The fake shipwreck in the second reel was extremely amusing.

"THE MASTER OF THE GARDEN" (Selig), December 8.—A picture dealing with the white slave traffic and in which there are several scenes where the Savior appears as a pleader with souls who are on the wrong path and its last scene is a picture of the Savior and Mary Magdelene. It is decidedly an impressive picture and spectators will hardly notice that it is two reels long. But it was made solely for the sake of its story, solely for entertainment and fails to get very deep; in fact, it would have been healthier to have pictured a house of prostitution of the kind where there is less beauty of furniture, dresses and women. The picture has a not altogether healthy appeal.

Independent

"MY BRUDDER SYLVEST" (Crystal), December 23.—This film pictures the adventure of an Italian organ grinder's wife who attracts an artist and calling at his studio to pose for him brings about an interesting lot of trouble, most of it of a humorous character.

"THE BABY QUESTION" (Crystal), December 23.—While a suffragette wife is making a speech in this comedy, which shares the reel with the above, her husband appears on the platform with her baby in his arms and asks her to stop its crying. This is the climax of the story.

"FATTY'S FLIRTATION" (Keystone), December 18.—Fatty flirts with a girl, who slaps him and gets the police after him. A half reel with one or two amusing spots in it.

"PROTECTING SAN FRANCISCO FROM FIRE" (Keystone) December 18.—On same reel with above. Views of the fire-fighting apparatus employed in the Golden Gate city. The view of the fire boat in action was particularly good.

"THE SOUBRETTE" (Crystal), December 16.—A sprained ankle lands a pretty girl, the "soubrette," in the home of a man whose wife is away, but returns before he can get rid of his visitor. This is broad comedy. Pearl White plays the leading part with good effect.

"THE TRAINED NURSE" (Crystal), December 16.—A girl's suitor disguises himself as a trained nurse in this comedy in order to win her father's good will. So he does and all ends well.

"FOR LOVE AND ART" (Joker), December 20.—A low comedy offering, which will meet with great favor in certain quarters. The chief scenes are in a theater on vaudeville night, the performers being treated to a shower of vegetables and bad eggs. Quite funny in places.

"A WIFE'S DECEIT" (Rex), December 21.—Lois Weber renders the lead in this bright comedy of misunderstandings and she is ably seconded by Ruppert Julian as the "wife's friend," a real estate agent who sells her a bungalow which she has planned to give her husband for a birthday present. The latter finding his wife negotiating in great secrecy with the agent grows jealous and out of that situation springs the comedy, a rather good one and making its point clearly and effectively.

"PERSONAL MAGNETISM" (American), December 18.—A foolish little story, in which a farm hand studies love making by mail and tries it upon the summer boarder. The young artist aids in carrying out the joke. The pictures are well taken, but the letter was too briefly shown to give the observer a clear idea of what was going on. The plot is not to be taken seriously and has a number of fairly amusing moments.

"FATE'S ROUNDUP" (American), December 20.—This conventional Western story contains some pleasing scenery and the photography is attractive. It is the story of a young wife who falls in love with a gambler, but returns to her husband when he is injured. The plot is very old in this.

"TWO GIRLS OF THE HILLS" (Reliance), December 8.—This is an out-of-door story, dealing with the love affairs of two young daughters of a whiskey distiller. Eve, portrayed by Anna Laughlin, falls in love with a stranger, who later casts her off; the other marries her country lover. The action in the latter part of the reel was too hurried to carry much feeling. The photography is pleasing.

"UNCLE'S NAMESAKES" (Thanhouser), December 12.— A clever story written about the Thanhouser twins. Uncle John thinks they are boys, but later learns of the deception practiced upon him. The scenes are lightly amusing and the picture will be well received.

"A BEAUTY PARLOR GRADUATE" (Thanhouser), December 9.—The scenes inside the beauty parlor in this film possess quite an interest, particularly for women observers. The plain little wife decides to become beautiful to please the visiting uncle, but later discovers he does not care for frills. The idea is pleasing, but might have been handled a little stronger in some respects.

"RICK'S REDEMPTION" (Majestic), December 7.—The photography and cast of characters in this picture are both unusually pleasing, but the plot is very absurd. William Garwood and Muriel Ostriche have the leading roles. Rick never succeeded in looking like a villain and the casting of the crutches into the sea because the girl would not kiss him was very improbable.

"THE LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER" (Princess), December 5.—The plot of this is simply a unique scheme for giving the young man a chance to show the girl New York sights. She thinks him her brother-in-law, but later discovers he is not and they are married. The scenes include some entertaining views of the metropolis and as a whole this is an agreeable picture.

"SLIM AND THE PETTICOATS" (Frontier), December 18.—A Western offering in which Slim dresses up as a woman to act as chaperone for the visiting bevy of girls. The plot has done yeoman service, but some new fun is gotten out of the situations.

"MR. AND MRS. INNOCENCE ABROAD" (Imp), December 18.—This is an extremely pleasing scenic number, featuring King Baggot and Leah Baird in their travels from London to Paris. The cliffs of Dover, church of Notre Dame, views of Calais, the Concord and Eiffel Tower are shown. The scenes from the tower at the various levels were most interesting. A fine travel number, with a light plot attached.

"HIS BETTER SELF" (Frontier), December 20.—A Western offering with a good idea back of it, which was not fully brought out in certain respects. The young man who played Slick Pete put a lot of effort into his work. The opening scenes took a little too much for granted and were somewhat obscure, but toward the close the story becomes more interesting.

"A CRACKSMAN'S SANTA CLAUS" (Powers), December 19.—This is a cleverly staged production, telling a good story about a gentleman burglar and his meeting with a girl who is stealing for the first time to give her child a merry Christmas.

"TEACHING DAD A LESSON" (Nestor), December 19.—The lesson which is emphatically taught "Dad" in this comedy is that he must not neglect his wife for younger and more flighty women. The humor evoked is broad and will have a wide appeal.

"MIKE AND JAKE AS HEROES" (Joker), December 17.—In this we behold our old friends in the roles of heroes; one hero is pitted against the other to appear the more heroic in the eyes of a pretty girl, and the contest ensuing is very laughable. These "Mike-and-Jake" pictures are always sure of their laugh.

"A WOMAN'S WAY" (Nestor), December 17.—In this well-balanced Western production we meet with a woman who breaks her engagement on account of jealousy, marries another man and finds some years later, after her husband has died, that she is still in love with her first sweetheart. But he has married in the meantime and she is confronted with the alternative of breaking another woman's heart or living unhappily herself. She chooses the latter course.

"LOADED" (Eclair), December 21.—A prominent member of the "Committee of Red Feet," a nihilist society, is the hero of this fantastical farce and we get some genuine laughs out of his strange predicaments following the swallowing of a bucket of dynamite.

"HIS SISTER'S KIDS" (Keystone), December 20.—The doctor's life is made miserable by his sister's children, who put the cat down a manhole. The police force is required to recover it. Some fair amusement in this.

"THE MILKMAN'S REVENGE" (Thanhouser), December 7.—In which Riley Chamberlain appears as an old maid, elected president of the Women's Temperance Organization. Through the milkman's desire for revenge the old maid appears at the meeting in a state of intoxication. This will cause shocks and smiles, depending upon the personal views of the observer, but it will pass safely with most audiences.

"A BAD GAME" (Keystone), December 22.—Ford Sterling plays a rapid-fire game of cards, during which he is accused of cheating. Later he dons female attire and creates an exciting time in the park. This is a characteristic Keystone offering and the latter part is full of funny situations.

"MIKE AND JAKE AS PUGILISTS" (Joker), December 24.—We meet friends Max Asher and Harry MacCoy here in their familiar impersonations of Mike and Jake and their adventures lack none of the fun found in previous productions. A take-off on a prize fight herein contained is as laughable as anybody could imagine.

"THE HEART OF AN ARTIST" (Crystal), December 21.—In this drama of self sacrifice an artist loses a girl to a man who is not exactly worthy of her and, while the story holds the interest throughout, this central idea is hard to make alluring. The photography is very good.

"HYDRAULIC MINING AT THE LA GRANGE MINES" (Victor), December 12.—This film, of an educational nature, shows how gold is mined by the use of powerful streams of water and accessory machinery to separate the metal from the rock.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO FRECKLES" (Powers), December 22.—This film story, with Harry Pollard and Edna Maison in the leads, is very entertaining, but has some drawbacks. Freckles was badly madeup, so much so that he resembled a smallpox patient, which was hardly the thing for polite comedy. The chase in the dairy wagon, handcar and auto was very amusing and well pictured. This will bring out a good deal of laughter in numerous places.

Independent Specials

"THE SOUL OF THE SOUTH" (Kay-Bee), December 12.—A two-reel story beginning before the Civil War and leading up to that conflict. The opening is exciting and shows the son of the moonshiner escaping from his surroundings. He rescues the little girl from drowning and later, of course, they are married. The characterization of Jefferson Davis was interesting and the fighting scenes good. The story, written by William H. Clifford, is better than the ordinary war offering.

"JACK" (World Special Films Corporation).—This is a four-part picture made by the Paris Eclair Company, from the novel of Alphonse Daudet. The production does not make good entertainment for the average house. It will, of course, have greater interest for the comparative few who have read the book. The whole story is submerged in gloom; there is not a light, a sprightly touch throughout the length of the picture. There is a good cast, among the players being Mr. Liable and Miss Sylvaire. The death of Jack was painfully prolonged.

"THE PITFALL" (Kay-Bee), December 19.—This two-reel offering, written by William H. Clifford, tells a story of stage life as it is commonly depicted. The manager engages the young girl for personal reasons and intends luring her to her ruin. In a series of exciting scenes the older girl, already his victim, contrives to save Hazel. The leading parts are well acted and while the story follows familiar lines it possesses a strong interest and works up to a stirring climax.

"THE GIRL AND HER MONEY" (Victor), December 19.—A two-reel offering, by Capt. Leslie T. Peacock. Florence Lawrence appears as a young society girl, surrounded by suitors and fortune hunters. She exchanges places with her maid. The latter's death was rather abruptly shown. Following this the girl keeps up the novel deception, falls in love with the hotel clerk and later, of course, marries him. This is well acted and well pictured. The idea is new to pictures, if not to the legitimate stage, and the release is an entertaining one.

"FOR ANOTHER'S CRIME" (Reliance), December 6.—In this two-reel offering Paul Scardon essays the double role of Jim and Tom, playing both parts by means of double exposure. The story works up in an interesting manner, though it is not notable for its strength of plot. Irene Hunt plays the part of a fast girl, who later brings about a solution of the mystery. Her reformation and marriage were not very convincingly shown. The photography is very good.

"WHERE THE ROAD FORKS" (American), December 15.—This two-reel offering pictures convincingly the difficulties that lie in the path of a young girl who chooses stage life for her vocation. The girl in this case sees her future as an opera singer in a dream and then decides to give up fame for the life of the home. The contrast is well pictured, and the employment of a child cupid to point the way was a pretty touch. This works up an old theme in a pleasing manner and the even, attractive photography helps immensely. Winnifred Greenwood handled the leading role very nicely.

"ROMANCE AND DUTY" (Majestic), December 9.—A very entertaining two-reel romantic number. This follows the line of all that stirring school of fiction which began with "The Prisoner of Zenda." Ernest Joy, playing the Prince of Melvaria, falls in love with an American girl, portrayed by Belle Bennet. He is forbidden to wed her, but escapes and follows her to New York. Later, when his country needs all her soldiers, he makes the supreme sacrifice and returns. Good photography and a pleasing cast of people combine to make this an attractive offering.

"A JEW'S CHRISTMAS" (Rex), December 18.—Phillips Smalley as Rabbi Isaac, and Lois Webber as Leah, his daughter, play the leads in this three-real drama, telling of an aged Rabbi's change of heart toward his children, whom he drives out of his home in the first place because they fall in love with gentiles. The reconciliation occurs at Christmas time when the child of Leah, whose marriage is attended with many troubles, induces the old Rabbi to decorate a Christmas tree for her. The characterizations are all good and the film will win many friends for its admirable presentation.

"THE CURSE" (Domino), December 18.—A Puritan story, written by Richard V. Spencer. The scenes are very similar to those previously depicted in stories of this type. In this instance the girl, Faith, is accused of being a witch. She is to be burned to death at the stake, but the Indians attack the settlement and during the general upheaval in affairs the girl is saved from death. This is not as strong as previous offerings of the kind, but will have quite a strong interest for the average observer.

"THE HIGHWAYMAN'S SHOE" (Eclair), December 24.—The costumes of this two-reel drama of colonial days are very pretty. The story, with a highwayman for a hero, is rather romantic and much duelling appears, but it is all entertaining. The old lord, who hates his second born child enough to make a waif out of it, is guilty in this performance of something so inhuman that he is with difficulty forgiven. On the other hand, the fact that the child, after growing up to live the adventurous life of a highwayman, does in the end forgive the father, gives the finish a rather pleasing flavor.

"RORY OF THE BOGS" (Victor), December 22.—Warren Kerrigan as the hero "Rory of the Bogs"—the rightful heir to the house of Burke, plays with his usual good effect. The story is very charming and is placed in the age of the Fenian riots in Ireland; a background not unfamiliar, but somehow always refreshing. By a chain of circumstances Rory is arrested for the murder of the false heir of Burke and he is about to be executed when the real murderer appears and confesses.

"THE GOD OF GERZAH" (Bison), December 20.—A British colonel, in this two-reel production, steals one of the gods in an East Indian temple for a souvenir and by so doing brings down upon himself the wrath of the priests. They pursue him for a number of years, finally killing him in America under circumstances which fasten the crime on an innocent girl. Instead of taking her chances to prove her innocence, she runs away and manages to elude arrest. She marries a nephew of the murdered man, an old butler of the family recognizes her as the girl accused of the murder and proceeds to blackmail her. Fortunate discovery of the colonel's diary clears the muddle finally. This story is clearly and interestingly presented and we are afforded some good scenes of East Indian life.

"THE OPEN DOOR" (Broncho), December 17.—A two-reel feature by William C. Clifford. This story makes a strong contrast between practical and impractical Christianity. It is sincerely acted and, in spite of numerous hurried scenes, works up a strong heart interest. The father's change of heart when he discovers his son and daughter working with the deposed minister in the slum mission, is nicely presented. The gambling raid was well shown. The photography is pleasing and this makes altogether a strong offering.

"HER FATHER'S STORY" (Broncho), December 24.—A two-reel Western feature, written by William C. Clifford. This is more dramatic than appealing on the whole. The leading male character is a professional bigamist, who runs away with the sheriff's wife. The stage coach attack and the scene on the desert, where the bigamist and his victim die together, wearing handcuffs, were well put on. The acting is very good throughout and the picture holds the interest well, in spite of its rather sordid plot. The dose is pleasing.

"THE STORY OF DAVID GREIG" (Imp), December 15.—David Greig is the adopted son of an old Italian patriot who has fought under Garibaldi. David grows up to be a leader among the employees of a wealthy mill owner. The men go on a strike and out of this situation proceeds an interesting story. It will hold anyone's attention.

"TIME IS MONEY" (Imp), December 11.—Strictly speaking, this two-reel subject, Leah Baird in the lead, does not have the true elements of a story. In the necessity of a man's marrying at a certain hour, the basis of this story, we have a situation which could be developed with good dramatic effect. But not as was done here, by the simple expedient of throwing a succession of obstacles in the way of the man meeting the girl at the appointed time. On the other hand, the film has the merit of good photography; it was produced in Germany and though the story is weak, the interest is in a way sustained. Some views of a Zeppelin airship appear.

"PRINCESS ELENA'S PRISONER" (Great Northern).—A review of this fine four-reel drama appeared in the World last week.

"FOR A KISS TO NINI" (Itala).—In these two reels there is good acting, but the players have been handicapped in their medium. The story lacks literary quality, the power to create strong illusion in the mind of the beholder. It is a story of a good wife of humble origin who, when her husband is ill and they are in want, gives him and their child to her marchioness mother-in-law that her husband may have proper treatment. The wife, three years later, in her eagerness to get a glimpse of her child, falls from the outer wall of a hotel and is hurt. Reconciliation follows. There are good backgrounds and settings and photography.

"THE DEVIL WITHIN" (Ramo).—Three reels of drama that will interest. The story is one of greed and crime. In order to take advantage of a clause in the will of his father-in-law that his son shall not inherit the property in case he is dishonest, Gleason "frames up" his wife's brother so that she may obtain the fortune. In the opening the college atmosphere was well established through the football game. The hotel interiors are deserving of mention. The scenes of the barn dance and the fire that started during the festivities add to the holding power of the picture. Jack Hopkins plays the lead and does good work. Stuart Holmes carries the heavy.

A SUCCESSFUL WOMAN SALES MANAGER.

One of the most important functions in connection with the production of motion pictures is the marketing of them after they have been made. One of the hardest positions to fill is that of sales manager of a manufacturing company and the man who can do so acceptably can earn a very satisfactory salary, and it is not difficult to count the good men filling such positions. It is essentially a man's job so, when we see a woman tackling the selling end of the business and getting away with it our hats must come off to that woman.

Agnes Egan Cobb.

The particular woman who has successfully handled a sales department is Mrs. Agnes Cobb, who handles Union Features, or Parisian Eclair, to be, hereafter, known as the Famous Players of France, and Features Ideal, a new brand which will be a combination of Parisian Eclair and Savoia subjects, the first release of which brand appeared Dec. 5, entitled "The Guerrillas of Algiers," a splendid Algerian war picture. Union Features will be released at the rate of three each month and Features Ideal will release two each month.

In her capacity of sales managers for these feature concerns, Mrs. Cobb has been exceptionally successful. She has been able to hold up the price of the product she handles in a crowded market and to sell a reasonable quantity. So well known is Mrs. Cobb to the trade that further personal remarks here are unnecessary, but our congratulations are for the only woman sales manager.

FRANK MORRIS JOINS CALIFORNIA M. P. CORP.

The services of Frank Morris, one of the oldest camera men in the motion picture business, and for a long time associated with Pathe Freres, have just been secured by the California Motion Picture Corporation and will contribute toward the production of the "Golden Gate Weekly." Past demands on Mr. Morris' services have taken him to many corners of the world and, as a consequence, he has filmed some of the most interesting pictures that have ever been thrown on a screen.

EDISON STARTING SEVERAL NEW SERIES.

In addition to the Cleek series in which Ben Wilson is starring, Edison announces the third series featuring Mary Fuller. It will be called "Dolly of the Dailies," Miss Fuller appearing as a newspaper reporter. She will have many stirring adventures, as she will be assigned to all sorts of difficult cases. Acton Davies will write twelve of these "Dolly" stories, each one to be released on the last Saturday of the month.

"The Bells of Death"

A Three Reel Ambrosio Subject of Rare Merit.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

THIS Ambrosio feature possesses unquestioned merit. It has touches of that fine art which recently gave us "Grandmother's Lamp." The Ambrosio Company has developed a school of motion picture art which is all its own and which is easily recognized by its perfect photography, its expert judgment of lights and shadows, its handling of large crowds, its artistic choice of settings and last but not least, its tone of cleanness and an atmosphere of refinement.

All these characteristics are generously present in "The Bells of Death." Its theme is one of the many deeds of patriotism which are found so frequently in the history of Sicily from the Sicilian Vespers to the Faithful Thousand of Garibaldi. Two young people, a simple shepherd and his sweetheart the daughter of the bellringer, become involved in the movement to free their country from the Bourbon yoke. Both yield themselves freely to the sacrifice which their country demands of them. The final note in the film is intensely tragic.

Scene from "The Bells of Death" (Ambrosio).

The handling of the story, as sublime as it is simple, conforms to the best Ambrosio standards. The action is developed logically and with reasonable swiftness. The cast of characters is small, which is always an advantage on the screen. Every one of the characters is sympathetic and in good hands. The last reel is impressive in its realism. The patriots are summoned to surrender. Though without ammunition and opposed to superior numbers, they spurn the offer of a pardon and defy the hostile general to make good his threat and destroy them and theirs by fire and sword. Assisted by Friar Lawrence, a godly man and an earnest patriot, they melt down the old bells in the village church and convert them into canons. The shepherd's sweetheart volunteers to reconnoitre and find the enemy's stronghold. Passing along a river she sees the reflection of the enemy's troops in the water. She hides behind a bush and when the enemy's train passes she creeps into one of the wagons and is taken into their headquarters. Reaching the roof of the building where the enemy was stationed she waves the flag which is the signal of attack to her countrymen. The attack follows, the soldiers are overpowered but not until, like her lover, the young girl has laid down her life on the altar of her country.

It is greatly to the credit of the Ambrosio Company that it has kept away from the hideous so-called sensationalism which at present seems to be running riot in a good many multiple reel productions advertised as features. While there is splendid dramatic action and a powerful climax in this feature, no trace of scenarioized accidents is discoverable anywhere; the thrills come in the natural development of the story and are in no way forced into the story.

---

JOE SIMMONDS ON A SCOUTING TRIP.

Joseph Simmonds is making a trip this week in the interests of the Apex Film Company. Among other features purchased by the Casino Co., Detroit, for Michigan, from Mr. Simmonds, was the five reel feature "The Battle of Waterloo," which will open at one of the leading Detroit theaters in a few weeks. From Detroit, Mr. Simmonds goes to Chicago.

KATHERINE EGGLESTON, "PICTURE EDITOR."

In line with the present progressive policy pursued by the Mutual Film Corporation, is the engagement of a well known magazine writer to act in the capacity of "Picture Editor" for the new Reliance studios just completed. Miss Katherine Eggleston is the writer selected for this important position which promises to add materially to the dramatic value and artistic finish of the completed picture.

Miss Eggleston is perhaps best remembered as the author of "Misdirected Education given to girls in the public schools," published in series form in the Woman's Home Companion; "Why Should a Man Marry," in Munsey's, and "Loretta's Looking Glass," which ran daily in Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington papers.

As "picture editor," Miss Eggleston views the different scenes of the picture after it is completed and arranges them with an eye to clearness of story-construction and dramatic value, establishing sequence and ridding the picture of all that does not contribute to its effectiveness.

Katherine Eggleston.

---

THE FUTURE OF THE MOVING PICTURE.

Mr. Nicholas Power, president of the Nicholas Power Co., prominent manufacturer of Motion Picture Machines, in an interview a few days ago, said:

"Without a doubt the motion picture business has developed more rapidly within a given period of time than has any other industry in the world's history. Theaters seem to spring up over night, and to-day, in Greater New York alone, we have over 700 picture houses, while in the United States there are about 15,000.

"The one feature that assures a future for the motion picture is its versatility, as there is hardly a line of endeavor in which it has not become a dominant factor. One may well wonder what becomes of the vast number of motion picture machines which constitute our daily output, and yet, if you consider the many fields in which this industry has become a part, it ceases to be a mystery.

"Our Cameragraph No. 6-A is used by nearly all the prominent lecturers, churches, schools, Y. M. C. A.s, and other religious institutions, in commercial houses and factories where they are used to exploit the wares, as well as for surgical operations, and all branches of the arts, etc. These requirements are enormous, and the vast resources of our factory are greatly taxed to keep up with the demands. Their value as an exponent of education is already recognized, and I thoroughly believe that Time itself is bound to render the motion picture more and more indespensable."

---

NEW PHILADELPHIA FEATURE EXCHANGE.

Ben Abrams, for the past year and a half manager of the Philadelphia office of Warner's Features, has left that concern and will start a feature exchange of his own. It will be known as the Ben Abrams Feature Film Company and is to be located on Race Street near 12th, in Philadelphia. Mr. Abrams comes to New York several times a week to buy his stock and has already secured a number of new productions. It is his intention to handle only big subjects of from four to eight reels in length.

---

KLEINE'S NEW YORK THEATER OPENS FEB. 15.

The various contractors having in hand the construction of George Kleine's mammoth picture theater on 42nd Street near Broadway, New York, report that the structure will be ready for occupancy by February 15th. All of the steel work is up for the combination office building and theater which Mr. Kleine proposes to use as the first great experiment of its kind in the country. The theater will have a seating capacity of about 1200.

CHICAGO LETTER

By JAS. S. McQUADE

THE publicity committee of the Business Men's League of St. Louis recently appointed experts to furnish authentic statistics concerning the photoplay houses of Greater St. Louis, and the result of their investigations is given in figures that are really marvelous. No other city, outside of Denver, can show such a striking triumph for the growth of cinematographic presentations.

More than 63,000,000 men, women and children attend the moving picture theaters in Greater St. Louis in a year. Moving pictures, perhaps, are more popular in St. Louis and its suburbs in Missouri and Illinois than in any commercial center in the world. On an average approximately nineteen per cent. of the population goes daily to the photoplay houses.

Talk of New York, Paris, London and Berlin! Of the 900,000 inhabitants of St. Louis itself, 179,539 see the pictures every Sunda-- and 153,891 every day in the week. Every week 1,102,885 St. Louis people visit the 125 licensed theaters, and every year, 57,504,012. The St. Louis district attendance is 199,487 every Sunday, and 170,982 every week day.

Capital investments in the St. Louis moving picture business amount to approximately $6,000,000; and by authorities it is estimated that the operations keep some $8,000,000 in constant circulation during the year. The direct revenue, exclusively at the doors, is about $6,000,000.

The photoplay theaters of St. Louis are renowned for size and architectural beauty. They are famous everywhere. There are fewer houses than there were several years ago, but those now running have large seating capacity. The Hagerman-Fitzsimmons Real Estate Company has eight places, with a normal capacity of 11,000; the Crawford group, eight, with a normal capacity of 9,000, and the Stifel-Koeln Company, two, with a normal capacity of 3,000. These palatial theaters are scattered over the entire city.

For three days last week, we were favored by a visit of the "Big Four," who control the Hagerman-Fitzsimmons associated theaters, viz.: William J. Flynn, Judge Frank M. Kleiber, Arthur J. Fitzsimmons and his brother, John T. Fitzsimmons. Mr. Flynn is general manager of all the theaters involved, which include the Shenandoah, seating 2,000 people; the Juniata, seating 1,500; the Arco, seating 1,800; the Maffitt, seating 800; the Union, seating 1,500; the St. Charles, seating 500, and the Broadway, seating 650.

A new theater, the Park, under the same control, is now under construction and will be ready to open about January 10 next. This house is located in a beautiful residential district, at Delmar and Hamilton Avenues. It is described as the "largest monolithic theater in the world," being constructed throughout of reinforced concrete. The bearing walls, the balcony, roof, stage, floors and boxes are all formed by reinforced concrete, and the architecture is stately and attractive. When completed, the structure with its ornamentation and appointments will represent an outlay of about $130,000. It will seat 2,150 people. The total capital invested in all the theaters mentioned is $450,000.

The houses are conducted on an original plan, each having its own business organization, while all are practically owned by the same people.

John T. Fitzsimmons, a prominent lawyer of St. Louis and the legal arm of the associated houses, when asked about the prevaling condition of the exhibition business in his home city, replied: "The public taste for moving pctures, well selected, is improving all the time, so much so that the public do not want their enjoyment of moving pictures to be interrupted by songs or other musical numbers. In other words, straight pictures, of uniformly good selection, are what the public want and what we are giving the public. In our picture service we use the best product of the Motion Picture Patents Company."

Speaking of the attitude of the St. Louis daily press towards moving picture theaters, Mr. Fitzsimmons said: "In St. Louis, the city press is recognizing moving picture theaters as a proper feature for their amusement columns, both for news and advertising. The exhibitors, in turn, are rising to the importance of their business thus publicly given by the great mediums of public thought, and they are meeting the newspapers in a spirit of cordiality and mutual assistance."

Referring to the progress made by moving pictures in the last year in St. Louis Mr. Fitzsimmons continued: "My observation of the public attitude towards moving pictures in St. Louis shows conclusively that it has been one of uplift, both in the pictures and in the patronage. The pictures disclose that manufacturers are obtaining scenarios from a far better class of writers than the penny-a-liners who thrived in the infancy of the business. The pictures also evidence better photography and a healthy realism in the production of subjects. This uplift on the part of the pictures themselves has brought about an added interest in and respect for moving pictures on the part of the public, especially the critical part of the public, which in the early days held aloof from patronizing moving pictures."

A whole day was spent by the visitors at the plant of the Selig Polyscope Company, where they were personally conducted through every department by William N. Selig. It was the first visit of A. J. Fitzsimmons to a plant of the kind, and he frankly acknowledged that it was a revelation to him. As one of the foremost real estate and business men in St. Louis, his opinion as to the relation which should exist between the exhibitor and the manufacturer should be of value to both these great factors in the business.

"The relations of the manufacturer and the exhibitor should be on a closer basis," said Mr. Fitzsimmons. "In other words, if manufacturers could possibly do it, it would be wise to pay a visit, once in a while, to the various local agencies and tributary territory. So, also, exhibitors should make it a point to see the plants of the various manufacturers, without which they cannot comprehend the great work that is being done by them."

These St. Louis men were a unit in according all praise to Mr. Selig for his work in uplifting the business, and for his large investments in the business, in its pioneer stage, when such a course was greatly needed to create faith in the future of the industry. "Others followed, but he led," said Mr. Flynn laconically.

Moving Picture Mashers Suppressed.

Chief of Police Gleason has indorsed the police campaign against the "mashers" of the moving picture theaters. Second Deputy Funkhouser caused the first arrest about a week ago.

"The moving picture flirt and masher is one of the pests of the city," said the chief. "Orders to suppress all men who take liberties with women in the picture houses have been issued from time to time, and I do not expect to send out any new ones at present. If the department officers do their duty we will soon be rid of the mashers.

"In the summer time these 'fresh' flirts walk the parks and impose their attentions on the young women, and in the winter they gather in the moving picture theaters."

Major Funkhouser asks all women who are annoyed by men in picture houses or elsewhere to report the matter to his office directly and promises to give it his personal attention.

"The police are on the alert," said he, "but if the women will make their complaints the officers will be considerably assisted."

Ordinance Requiring Intermissions Between Reels.

An ordinance requiring five minute intermission between motion picture reels is being championed by Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of Chicago schools. A recommendation favoring the ordinance went to the board of education at its meeting Wednesday, December 10, with the sanction of the school management committee before which it was introduced.

Mrs. Young's recommendation urges the ordinance "in the interest of the sight of the large number of school children visiting motion picture exhibitions," and asks that the ordinance be drafted along the lines of the Massachusetts State law.

Chicago Film Brevities.

A meeting of the Chicago exhibitors' association will be held at the La Salle Hotel, Thursday, December 18th. Officials of the association from other cities will attend. It is understood that the meeting will be more of the character of a "Dutch" lunch than an executive assembly.

George Berg has been appointed Chicago representative for the Middle West of the Continental Feature Film Company, which has offices with the Mutual Film Corporation branch in the new Mallers Building. Mr. Berg is under the supervision of District Manager Willis, of the Mutual. L. A. Gerisch, formerly city representative of the Mutual, with headquarters at the new Mallers Building, has been appointed traveling representative for the Continental Feature Film Company in the Middle West. The Continental handles all special and feature subjects of the Mutual product.

* * *

E. N. Newman's travelogues, with lectures given by himself, are making a big hit at Orchestra Hall, this city. All the leading cities of Europe are included in the series, and Mr. Newman is highly commended for the interesting "talks" given every evening. The city press has bestowed considerable praise on the pictures.

* * *

E. V. Morrison, former Chicago manager of the Billboard, has been appointed city representative of the Mutual Film Corporation in Chicago. Mr. Morrison is a young man and a hustler and should do well in his new line of business, as he has a strong liking for the film game.

* * *

George H. Hines, formerly owner of the Lyda Theater, this city, has leased the Auditorium in South Bend, Ind., from Harry G. Sommers. Mr. Hines will open the Auditorium, January 5th, and will use a high quality licensed service. "No more vaudeville for me," says George. "I am convinced that straight pictures will always get the money." Mr. Hines purchased two Edengraph machines, the latest model, with supplies, etc., for his new house, from the Kleine Optical Company. Mr. and Mrs. Hines will make their home in South Bend henceforth.

* * *

J. A. Berst paid a visit to the city Saturday, December 6.

* * *

J. E. Robin, sales manager for the Simplex machine, was in the city last week. He attended the Iowa State convention at Cedar Rapids, December 2 and 3, where he did considerable business for his company. He left for New York, December 6th.

* * *

Fred A. Clark, of the Kinetograph sales department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., is now traveling over the Middle West in the interests of the Edison latest Model D machine. Mr. Clark is making headquarters in Chicago, where he is well known to the trade, having been connected with the Enterprise Optical Company for over three years.

* * *

B. G. Downer, who manufactures and installs the Peerless screen, with office at 5024 Fulton Street, this city, reports excellent business. Mr. Downer subscribed for the World last week and will become a regular advertiser in its columns in the near future.

* * *

H. B. Fitzpatrick has been appointed general manager of the theaters controlled by the Consolidated Motion Picture Corporation, in this city. This corporation at present owns the Savoy, 44th and Madison Streets; the Florence, 50th and St. Lawrence Avenue; the Violet, 18th Street and Ashland Avenue; the Alpha, 54th and Ashland Avenue, and the New City, at 46th and Ashland Avenue. Mr. Fitzpatrick resigned as manager of the Pastime to accept this position.

* * *

J. C. Kelly, an old moving picture man of this city, who is familiar with the exhibiting and distributing departments, called at the World office last week. Mr. Kelly is at present booking "Satan," "The Battle of Gettysburg" and "Oliver Twist," etc.

* * *

Paul Le Marquand, general manager of the Starland Moving Picture Theater Circuit, arrived in Chicago, Saturday, November 29th, from Winnipeg and St. Paul and remained several days. Mr. Le Marquand reported very good business in all his houses in the Northwest and in this country. He reported that his Omaha House, the Empress, is beating all records. Three reels of pictures and four acts of vaudeville, the latter furnished by the Western Vaudeville Association, form the programs.

* * *

The little steamship Louise, of Cristobal, was the first boat to pass the barrier created by the Cucaracha slide in the Panama Canal, an event that took place November 18th. Among those on board were Joseph Bucklin Bishop, secretary of the Canal Commission, his wife and daughter; Mrs. Mason, wife of Lieutenant Mason, superintendent of the Ancon Hospital; Mrs. Phillips, wife of Lieutenant Phillips, assistant to Colonel Gorgas, and Mrs. H. H. Buckwalter, wife of H. H. Buckwalter, who is representing the Selig Polyscope Company in the Canal Zone at the present time. The passage of the Louise marked one more step toward the final completion of the great work, all the main features of which have been carefully filmed by the Selig Company.

New Feature Company.

Jesse L. Lasky, Vaudeville Producer, Latest to Head Organization for Production of Features.

JESSE L. LASKY, long known to the theatrical world as a producer of big vaudeville acts, has announced his formal entry into the field of motion picture production. For some time it has been rumored that Mr. Lasky contemplated taking this step and his plans have been under consideration for the past six months. These have now matured and the corporation formed to carry them out is called the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Motion Picture Company, formed in compliance with the laws of the State of New York, with offices in the Longacre Theater Building, 220 West 48th Street, New York.

Jesse L. Lasky.

The officers of the company are Jesse L. Lasky, president; Samuel Goldfish, treasurer and business manager; Cecil De Mille, general stage director. Mr. Goldfish will have charge of the entire commercial end of the business and will engage competent assistants to take charge of the various departments.

Cecil De Mille, for several years closely associated with David Belasco, will have charge of productions. He is a playwright and producer of note in the field of the legitimate drama and has made a close study of motion picture production for several years. As assistant to Mr. De Mille, a producer of known ability, Mr. Oscar Apfel, has been engaged. Mr. Apfel was with the Edison Company for some time, afterward with the Reliance and Majestic companies and more lately with Pathe Freres.

It will be the policy of the Lasky company to produce pictures adapted from famous dramatic successes and well-known novels. The first subject announced for production is Edward Milton Royle's drama of the West, "The Squaw Man," in which Dustin Farnum starred. Mr. Farnum and as many of the original cast as can be secured will appear in the picture production. Mr. De Mille, Mr. Royle, Mr. Apfel and other members of the company of players left for the West last week in search of the locations nearest those about which the play was written.

This will give an idea of the class of work to be undertaken by the Lasky Company. In response to the numerous rumors regarding the organization, there have been many inquiries concerning the disposition of the product and offers for territorial rights, so that the outlook for sales is very satisfactory.

POWER MACHINE AT SAFETY EXPOSITION.

The Nicholas Power Company, manufacturers of the Power's Cameragraph No. 6-A projection machines, will have a booth at the International Exposition of Safety and Sanitation to be held at the Grand Central Palace, from December 11th to 20th, inclusive, and will demonstrate the safety appliances of their projection machines in a specially constructed theater on the third floor, where the current releases of the various film companies will be shown from 2 P. M. until 10:30 P. M. each day.

AUGUSTUS CARNEY SIGNS WITH UNIVERSAL.

A cablegram from London, received at the offices of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, in New York, on Wednesday, December 10, announced the acceptance of the offer of the Universal for the services of Augustus Carney, the "Alkali Ike" of the Essanay pictures. The Universal Company's proposition was made to Mr. Carney during his visit in New York and his acceptance was almost a foregone conclusion. Universal has secured a very capable player in Mr. Carney, but just what disposition will be made of him has not been announced.

Christmas Pictures from Vitagraph.

The Holiday Spirit as Seen in Three Offerings, Each Viewing It from a Different Angle.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THERE are three pictures made by the Vitagraph Company with the festival spirit, and each catches it working in the lives of men in, as it were, a different guise. For instance, there is the two-part special offering "The Ancient Order of Good Fellows," which is to be released on Saturday, December 20. The center of interest in it is a policeman who, for his honest performance of duty, gets into trouble with a ward heeler and then, just as he is about to be discharged from the force, captures a desperate criminal whom had long been "wanted," and he is promoted. If he had not been on a mission of Christmas charity, he would not have found his man. There is a great deal of merit in this picture. It is well played by a large cast and has Hughie Mack in the role of Jerry, the charitable officer. Hughie Mack is just the player to waken human sympathies in this situation, and the author of the script, Courtney Ryley Cooper, has been very successful in heightening and intensifying our sympathy for the very human policeman.

Scene from "Ancient Order of Good Fellows" (Vitagraph).

Scene from "The Spirit of Christmas" (Vitagraph).

In the first place, Jerry had conducted the "Order of Good Fellows" through the slums and had seen the faces of many little children brighten on receiving a package of goodies from them. Among these kiddies, the spectator will find more than one good bit of unsimulated gladness. One little girl (Audrey Berry), got no present. She is really a stolen child and her "father" is (we don't yet know it) a criminal. We see him, a very tough character (William Shea), in his rough rooms with the child. Jerry is going to buy her some presents; but in the meanwhile he has the misfortune to arrest a ward heeler and gets a reprimand. Later, in order to get the toys, he telephones that he is going to be off his beat and is then seen by the "spotter" in a store just at a time when a hold-up (an interesting bit of realism) occurs on his beat. For this, he is told that he must do some brilliant work by Christmas or will be dropped. He is taking the toys to the child (a freshly thought up and tensely exciting series of scenes), when he finds his man and gets the handcuffs on him; but is then knocked unconscious and in the struggle the house, a tenement, is set on fire. At the end we have the Christmas scene in the station house the next morning where the child has her tree and toys and the officer his promotion. The producer of it, Captain Henry Lambert, deserves credit. There is coherency in his work and many excellent things like sets that show care and bits of business that hide their skill in perfect naturalness.

"The Christmas Story."

Then there is to be a picture called "The Christmas Story," a one-part offering for Monday, December 22. This might be termed a children's story for grown-ups. It includes a very beautiful scene called "The First Christmas" (the manger in Bethlehem, of course), and it comes in the photoplay as illustrating the story of it told to her children by their mother and is necessary to make natural and clear the children's going out to the barn to see if it would become true again. The children live at their grandfather's house and the old man has disowned one of his daughters for marrying an artist. This other daughter, with her husband and one child, we have been shown as coming home to ask forgiveness on Christmas and as being compelled to walk for the last stages of their journey across fields so that they arrive after everyone at the old home has gone to bed and are waiting in the barn till morning. The children find them still asleep together in the hay and think that it is the Holy Family again. Like the three wise men from the East, they get Christmas offerings from around their tree and bring them.

Scene from "A Christmas Story" (Vitagraph).

This offering, too, is delightful. There are some scenes with snowy fields that, made in the studio, are as lovely as Christmas cards and also, as in the picture just noticed, the ways and the faces of the children—there are three of them—add a good deal. The child-like spirit with which it looks at the Christmas festival will "get across"; the spectator will feel the human pulse of it in his emotions. The author is A. A. Methley and it was produced by James W. Castle and Tefft Johnson, who plays in it the role of the father and grandfather. The acting of the older people in the picture is clear and natural. Carlotta De Felice plays the younger daughter and James Morrison the artist she runs away with. Ethel Lloyd plays the older daughter. Such a picture is sure to please all who have any poetry or humanity in them; a very good Christmas offering.

"The Spirit of Christmas."

The other picture is for Christmas Day and is called, "The Spirit of Christmas," and it gives the season as it comes to city folks of small means and at a time when lack of employment means slim festivities if any celebration at all. The picture is by Elaine Stern and was produced by William Humphrey and Teft Johnson and, though the writer of this article has not seen it as yet, it is included with the others because it promises to be a charming offering.

Lottie Briscoe a Girl of To-Day.

Named as One of the Winners in a Competition Conducted by a Metropolitan Newspaper.

MISS LOTTIE BRISCOE, leading woman of the Lubin Company, has been placed sixteenth in a list of twenty-nine winners of a contest conducted by the New York Times. The Times distinctly declares the competition was not one of beauty. It was more than that. It was a search for the typical American girl, the Girl of To-day, which means, according to the committee of artists which made the selections, the girl of all times. The twenty-nine pictures were printed on December 7, and were chosen from among the many hundreds submitted. The committee was composed of James Montgomery Flagg, Penrhyn Stanlaws, Hamilton King, William L. Jacobs, Clarence F. Underwood, Philip Boileau and C. Allan Gilbert. Miss Briscoe, so far as known, is the only representative of the stage or screen among the successful competitors. The originals of three of the winning photographs live in far-away San Francisco. Others reside in St. Louis, Philadelphia, New Orleans, and Pittsburg. This fact attests the national character of the competition. The committee members admitted the difficulty of their task, which was increased by reason of the unusual quality of the many photographs sent in. All of which should be the more pleasing to Miss Briscoe and her friends. If she comes over to New York on Monday next to attend the Exhibitors' ball—and when was she known to miss one—there will be opportunity for congratulation in person.

Lottie Briscoe.

LESSER OPENS NEW YORK OFFICE.

Sol Lesser, of the Golden Gate Film Exchange and the Golgate Feature Film Company, both concerns of San Francisco, Cal., is in New York to open offices here for the purchase of pictures for his companies. Mr. Lesser's interests cover the eleven States in the Pacific Coast group, and he finds it necessary to have a buyer stationed in New York permanently. Arrangements are said to have been made whereby Mr. Lesser will represent the Exclusive Film Corporation on the coast and in other territory not yet announced. He will remain here until January 1st, when he will return to the coast leaving the New York office at 614 Candler Building in charge of the buyer.

ENTERPRISING CANADIAN EXHIBITOR.

Among the callers at the New York offices of the Moving Picture World last week was Ken E. Finlay, manager of the Family, the Francais and the Imperial theaters of Ottawa, Canada. Mr. Finlay was formerly connected with the Keith Nickel Circuit and has built and managed a number of picture theaters in various parts of Canada. He has been located in Ottawa for some time and has been very successful.

Mr. Finlay operates all his houses along high-class lines, catering to the best people and offering the best quality of pictures. He has made arrangements to take the full General Film program of sixty reels per week for his houses.

FRANK BANNON JOINS EDISON STUDIO FORCES.

Frank Bannon, formerly a New York exhibitor, has taken up his duties as one of Horace G. Plimpton's assistants at the Edison studio. He will be on hand to welcome all visitors to the studio and will preside over the sessions at 10 Fifth Avenue. Knowing the motion picture business as he does from the exhibitor's standpoint, Mr. Bannon will be a valuable addition to the Edison staff.

Last Call for Exhibitors' Ball.

Notice is hereby served on all and sundry motion picture exhibitors of the world that the third annual reception and ball of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Greater New York will be held on Monday evening, December 15, at Terrace Garden, 58th Street near Lexington Avenue, New York City.

All exhibitors are invited from far and near to be present, by such vehicular means as are at their disposal, to join the merry throng and there while away the festive hours, amid the maze of color, the blaze of light, pedal oscillations and sounds of music grand. With the spirit of good-will pervading all, the invitation is of course extended to the trade in general.

A description of the annual ball given by the New York exhibitors would be a waste of space if inserted at this point. The glorious success of the two previous affairs is known so well from coast to coast that it need not be dwelt upon at any length. The recollection is still fresh in the minds of all participants in those two merry meetings of the trade. The only thing to worry about is whether or not Terrace Garden will be large enough to accommodate the crowd. Last year's attendance at the Palm Garden was so overwhelming that the committee was obliged to abandon all idea of holding another racket there. Terrace Garden is some larger than Palm Garden, but whether it will be enough larger to do away with congestion is a point that has added gray hair to the heads of several hard-working committeemen.

The out-of-town attendance at these annual blow-outs increases each year. A larger delegation than ever is expected from many points, some as far away as Chicago. The New York State delegation will be very heavy this year, including Mr. Murphy, of Buffalo. There is to be an executive meeting of the New York State Exhibitors' Association at 11 a.m. on the day of the ball. The session, as usual, will be held at the Imperial Hotel, and will be followed by a banquet.

King Baggot, of the Imp Company, and Miss Mary Fuller, of the Edison Company, will lead the grand march. The usual number of prominent photoplay stars will be on hand, as they have been in the past. Enough of them have volunteered their services to make up a very entertaining olio before the dancing begins. A number of city officials will be present, including Mayor Kleine, after they take their leave of a banquet that is to be given that evening at the Waldorf to the late Mayor Gaynor's secretary, Robert Adamson.

Monday evening, December 15, is the date. One dollar a couple is the price, including wardrobe privilege. This is your summons. No excuses accepted.

NEWSPAPER MAN JOINS PICTURES.

Russell E. Smith, a well known photoplaywright, has just left the New York Sunday World, where he has been doing signed feature stories for the Metropolitan and magazine sections, and joined the scenario bureau of the Mutual Film Corporation, as scenario writer and editor, under Frank E. Woods.

Mr. Smith's experience in theatrical, newspaper and photoplay work has been large. He was business manager and advance man for several road attractions and was press representative and advertising manager for Martin Beck's Orpheum theaters in Spokane, Wash., Winnipeg, Can., and Fargo, N. Dak. He was also connected with several attractions of a theatrical nature in England and on the Continent.

His newspaper experience has embraced a city editorship in Fargo and reportorial experience in Winnipeg, Minneapolis and St. Paul, as well as in New York City. He was also associate editor of one of the Munsey publications and managed the Munsey syndicate.

His photoplay experience has been large, both as a writer and editor, having been photoplay and dramatic editor ot The Magazine Maker. His scenarios have been filmed and released by Vitagraph, Reliance, Selig, Pathe, Kalem, and other companies. His best known photoplays have been "The Master Painter," "The Borrowed Coat Tail," "The Rough Diamond," and numerous others are now in preparation.

He has written articles on the photoplay for The Green Book and other publications and has contributed verse and short stories to many high class publications here and abroad. He is the son of the well known librettist, Edgar Smith, and has himself written vaudeville sketches and two plays which were produced in stock. Another play is soon to be produced. He is a member of the Authors' Club in London, the Screen Club and Playwrights' Club in New York, and the Baltimore Press Club.

At the Sign of the Flaming Arcs

By George Blaisdell.

AND now it is Jane Gail who is leaving us and going to England. She will sail for the land of John Bull probably on December 20. Miss Gail is to be a leading woman in the company of George Tucker, formerly of the Imp, and now producing for the London Film Company. Her departure will be regretted by a host of friends who know her by her work on the screen and also by the many who have been so fortunate as to make her personal acquaintance. Her going also will be regretted by the officers of the Universal Company. Miss Gail has been with the Imp about a year and in that time has done much important work. She has played opposite King Baggot, William E. Shay and Matt Moore. One of her last pictures was "Traffic in Souls," under the direction of Mr. Tucker, a production destined to be known as one of the biggest financial successes ever filmed in this country. It is probably no violation of confidence to state that Miss Gail pleaded for another title for the six-part subject that is drawing crowds to Weber's Theater in Broadway, but without avail. Another recent picture in which she appeared was "His Hour of Triumph," which is still going strongly. She did splendid work in "Who Killed Olga Carew?" and will be remembered for her fine impersonations in the "Jane" series of Imp comedy-dramas.

Jane Gail.

Miss Gail is equally at ease in drama, in comedy or in comedy-drama. It is in the latter department that her versatility shows to best advantage. "Strong mentality is marked in every line of her face," said a recent writer. "But she is bothered with none of the fancies, inconsistencies and follies that beset the average star; and she does not nurse a pet dog or bird. She is simple in tastes, plain in words and direct in action. Her work appeals to her and she goes into it with a joyous heart and receptive mind." Miss Gail is a graduate of Frohman's Dramatic School. Her first appearance on the stage was in the Bush Temple Theater in Chicago, under Barry O'Neill, now directing with the Lubin Company. Then she was understudy to Mary Nash in Clyde Fitch's "The City." The following season she played first part on the road. In Rochester she held an engagement as leading woman with the Shubert stock company. After other work in stock and in a short engagement under Brady management she was for some time with the Lubin Company, coming to New York the first of this year and joining the Imp Company. Miss Gail is Scotch-Irish. This fact may in a measure account for her strength in serious work and for the sparkling quality of her comedy interpretations. If the scene of her activities is to be transferred across the water it does not mean that she is to be lost to us; for of the screen truly it may be said that "all the world's a stage."

* * *

There was a jolly party at the home of Peter Lang, 200 Manhattan Avenue, this city, on the evening of November 29. The occasion was the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lang. Many old friends brought silver mementoes to the host and hostess and wished them many more years of happiness and good health.

* * *

David Horsley has been trying to get away to Los Angeles on a business trip. He got a wire from the Western city on Monday stating that the day before many of his friends had gone to the station expecting to meet him; he was asked to time his arrival for a Sunday. D. H. says he is going to make a stiff attempt to eat his Christmas dinner on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Horsley, by the way, always interested in the cameraman and his work, has prepared a souvenir of ground focusing film, a strip of which he will be glad to forward to any knight of the camera sending his name and address to the Lumiere agency in the Mecca Building.

* * *

It is good to see John Steppling back on the screen. His first release on the Universal program will be "When Ursus Threw the Bull," a two-reel burlesque on "Quo Vadis?" produced by Al Christie's Nestor company on the coast. Mr. Steppling is Ursus, and in his support are many extra players. Ursus is a member of a traveling show, and as he makes his high-hatted appearance in a small town he excites much comment. Even the parson, portrayed by Russell Bassett, the wonderful old man of the screen, gets worked up, and makes arrangements to take all the children. Ursus brings the bull with him. He leads it by a rope, and as he pulls it into the dressing room he hangs on a horn of the aforementioned plug and places large quantities of hay in front of the animal. The fierce creature peacefully munches the fodder. When the animal appears on the stage with the helpless female bound to its back, Ursus easily slings the bull to the floor. The crowd departs satisfied. When pay-day comes around no money is in sight. Ursus takes the bull by the horns, both literally and figuratively, and departs. Later on when the frantic manager has patched up a show, with two men piecing out the bull and the entire fire department of the place worked in as supers, the play begins. Things move badly. When the new Ursus tries to throw the bull the head and forelegs become separated from the remainder of the alleged animal's anatomy, the helpless female meanwhile being suspended in the air on the unthrown portion. The audience is getting peevish. It is about this time that the original Ursus takes a step well calculated to complete the disaster. With two old suitcases thrown saddlebagwise across the shoulders of the bull he goes to the firehouse and begins ringing the alarm bell. The firemen respond. The company, in panic, rush for the open and then the freight yard, with the townspeople in hot pursuit. It is a narrow escape, but a getaway is made. It is intended to show the picture at the Exhibitors' ball on the evening of the 15th, together with King Baggot's "An Actor's Christmas." "Ursus" ought to put the crowd in good humor. We forgot to mention that Ursus' "bull" is a very docile old cow.

John Steppling.

It is something new to see Mr. Steppling as a burlesquer. It must be admitted he seems perfectly at home. This is said without even indirect reference to the particular role he is here called upon to assume. Most of Mr. Steppling's screen work has been in comedy, although his stage training has been mainly in the line of the straight dramatic. In his youth the present Nestor player after taking a course in philosophy, history and literature at "Old Heidelberg" joined the famous old Lyceum stock company under Daniel Frohman. He was with E. H. Sothern in the original "Prisoner of Zenda" company, playing Colonel Sapt. For a season he was with the late Louis James in Shakespearean productions, and was later in the companies of Olga Nethersole and Henrietta Crossman. He was in K. & E. combinations and played in stock from coast to coast, and was with the New Theater company in New York. He is a master of make-up, as witness his John Durbeyfield in "Tess." He delights in mimicry. He is an all-around player, and good in all branches.

* * *

House Peters, leading man of the Famous Players, was telling on Monday of an experience he encountered on Sunday as he came away from seeing "Traffic in Souls." It may be stated by way of explanation that Mr. Peters, in spite of his travels in Africa and South America, has not lost his distinctively English accent. Also for the information of those in whose knowledge the fact may not rest, it may be added that Cyril Maude, now playing "Grumpy" in Wallack's, just opposite Weber's, is an English actor, and making a hit. As Mr. Peters reached the middle of Broadway he was accosted by a middle-aged, prosperous-looking man, who in tones that distinctly reminded him of home inquired:

"I beg your pardon, sir, but could you inform me as to the show across the street?"

"With pleasure," responded Mr. Peters, "I have just spent two solid hours there and it cost me one quarter. I am bound to say that out of it I got more enjoyment than I did from the two dollars I spent to see Cyril Maude."

"What's that?" gasped the amazed Britisher; "and you an Englishman, too! I'll go right in."

* * *

Herbert Brenon, Imp director, sails on Saturday for Bermuda with a large company. Playing the lead in a spectacular aquatic drama will be Annette Kellermann, and she will be supported by young women specially selected to portray mermaids. The opening of the picture will be in the nature of a prologue, in which will be shown President Laemmle and Director Brenon negotiating with the swimming girl for her appearance in pictures. The script has been written by Captain Leslie Peacocke. The story may run six reels, four anyway. Mr. Brenon will play the heavy. One of the scenes will be of a swimming race between the villain and the heroine—the latter, by the way, being handicapped. Among the spectacular factors will be the binding of Miss Kellermann and subsequently casting her from a cliff into the water, the swimmer unaided releasing herself from her bonds. There will be a fight in the water, which will be photographed through the glass bottom of a boat. The swimmer plans to do some novel dancing, in which art she has been taking lessons in Europe, and will have as aids many little children. Edward Mortimer, a professional fencer, goes with the party and will participate in what is expected to be a thrilling duel. Among the players will be William E. Shea, Leah Baird and William Welsh.

TESTIFY FOR GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

A Long Array of Witnesses in Government Suit Tell of Improved Service—Hearings Soon to Conclude.

More witnesses were heard in the course of the week before Special Examiner Edward C. Hacker, who is taking testimony in the suit of the United States against the Motion Picture Patents Company, General Film Company and others. All the testimony was cumulative and there was practically no difference between the nature of the testimony given by the first and the last witness. There was but little cross examination.

Albert J. Gillingham, manager of the Detroit branch of the General Film Company, said he had owned a licensed exchange, which, on the formation of the General Film Company, he had sold to the latter for $60,000. He said no coercion had been used by the General Film Company. Isaac Van Runkle, the Chicago branch manager of the General Film Company, was the next witness and he testified that he had sold his exchange in Chicago to the General Film Company for the sum of $50,000. Alton Tredick, manager of the Oklahoma branch of the General Film Company, testified that conditions in the industry had been much improved by the activities of the General Film Company. W. P. Berbst and others gave similar testimony.

It is expected that the hearings will be concluded before January 1st, 1914, and that the suit will then be brought on for argument in the Federal Court in the Philadelphia district where it originated. A decision may be expected in the early part of next year.

SINCLAIR'S "THE JUNGLE" IN PICTURES.

President Harry R. Raver, of the All Star Feature Corporation, announces that for his company he has completed negotiations with Upton Sinclair and that writer's world famed book of modern literature "The Jungle," will be adapted into scenario form and presented in motion pictures by the All Star Corporation at an early date.

Probably no book has had a more general exploitation or received more comment in later years than this same "The Jungle." Mr. Sinclair's work has been freely discussed and commented upon by the press of the world as well as the pulpit. Men of public note have taken a keen interest in his expose of the beef trust and its methods and seldom has there been more generous feeling of gratitude than that which has been accorded this exceptional writer. "The Jungle" has been translated and printed in seventeen different languages covering almost the entire world.

Through his arrangement with the All Star Feature Corporation, Mr. Sinclair will appear in a five hundred foot prologue to "The Jungle," and portray the various experiences which gave to him inspiration for the writing of the book. It is the plan of the producing company to begin work on this production after the completion of their production of Eugene Walter's great American society drama "Paid in Full."

CLARA LAMBERT.

Clara Lambert.

Playing Arthur Johnson's mother is no doubt the dream of many, but it is the exclusive privilege of Clara Lambert. Everyone knows the sweet-faced woman with the beautiful silver-gray hair in the Lubin pictures, the one who is now the loving, allforgiving mother and another time is the strong, ambitious parent spurring her son to make a man of himself. Clara Lambert can be either in a hundred ways because she is the veteran of more famous stage productions than he can remember. So much of a mother is she that most of the Lubin workers confide their troubles and hopes to her and the young people say that she has the greatest way of patching up quarrels when you swear you'll "never speak to him again." In church circles, Clara Lambert is well known, one of her chief interests being the welfare of a certain congregation in Philadelphia. The minister has on his desk in a frame of silver a likeness of the "Lubin mother."

ROMAINE FIELDING ON DODGER.

"Like master, like servant" is an old and familiar proverb. "Like rider, like horse," however, is not so old, and yet, according to Romaine Fielding, of the Lubin, Las Vegas, New Mexico studio, of which he is director, author, manager and leading man, is just as true. He points to his pet horse Dodger and to himself as illustrating the new adage. Collectively they represent two thousand and fifty pounds. As for Fielding, he has taught Dodger a number of expensive habits. He finds himself obligated to supply him with chicken, ham, cheese sandwiches and pickles and cakes, for Dodger could just as well live off a dairy lunch counter as in a stable on timothy and oats. Incidentally he prefers his sandwiches well buttered and spread with mustard, and plenty of sugar in his tea and coffee, all of which goes to bear out Fielding's adage that a horse becomes like a man who rides him, as in his own case

NEW NATIONAL OPENS IN LOUISVILLE, KY.

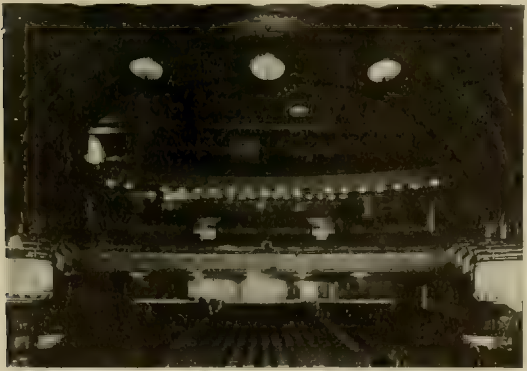
The opening of the new National Theater, in Louisville, Ky., November 24th, was an event of importance in moving picture circles not only because of the fact that the house will show photoplays, but because of the large number of men interested in the moving picture business who are identified with it. The National, which was built by the National Theater Company, a $300,000 corporation, at a cost of $250,000, is easily the handsomest theater in Louisville. It faces on three streets, Walnut, Fifth and Center; and the number of exits and the lighting facilities are thus unusually large. It has been compared in appearance to the Gayety Theater of London.

National Theater, Louisville, Ky.

The building is of the French renaissance design. The exterior facades are of white enamel brick with cream terra cotta, the use of columns, combined with the dome which surmounts the building, and its broad, low type of architecture lending an appearance of beauty and dignity. The walls are of Pewabix tile, and the dome ceiling is finished in ornamental plaster and art glass. The lobby extends entirely across the rear of the auditorium. A similar lobby is behind the balcony, the result being that chowds can enter and leave the building without difficulty. The gallery is reached by a separate stairway from the outside of the building. The lobbies are finished in marble, tile and ornamental plaster. The aisles are covered with a cork tile floor, to reduce the noise of walking to a minimum.



Interior of National Theater, Louisville, Ky.

The stage is unusually large, the proscenium opening being 40 feet wide and 32 feet high, enabling unusually large acts to be presented. The acoustics are unusually good, the proscenium arch extending far enough over the auditorium to insure hearing by every person in the building.

The theater is fireproof, no wood or other inflammable materials being used. Brick, concrete and steel form the frame of the structure. The ventilation is said to be perfect, a modern system of handling the air resulting in a complete change every three minutes, large and powerful fans insuring perfect circulation. The indirect lighting system is used in the theater, a soft and even illumination thus being insured. From this standpoint the theater is the handsomest in Louisville. The seating capacity of the house is 3000.

David King, of Detroit, is president of the National Theater Company; Joseph Selligman, of Louisville, vice-president; Adolph Finsterwald, Detroit, secretary and treasurer, and Lee Goldberg, of Louisville, manager. Mr. King and his associates operate the National Theater in Detroit, and also the remarkably successful moving picture theater in that city conducted under the name of the Calvert. Mr. Goldberg, manager of the Louisville house, has been connected with the moving picture business in Louisville since the industry was established in that city and has had wide theatrical experience.

In conjunction with vaudeville, the National will show for the present one reel of moving pictures at two of its three performances a day. It has contracted for Mutual service, the advertising campaign of the Mutual Corporation having attracted the favorable attention of the company. Keystone comedy films will be run principally. A Power's 6-A machine is used for this work, Edward Whitner being the operator and house electrician. Owing to the restrictions of the operators union in Louisville it is not possible at present to show more than one reel nor to run it more than twice a day with the present force; otherwise a larger picture program would be given than has been announced.

The National will have three performances a day regularly, one in the afternoon and two in the evening. On Saturdays, Sundays and holidays two afternoon shows will be given.

Prices in the afternoon are ten cents all over the house and in the evening twenty cents down-stairs and ten cents up. Box seats are twenty cents in the afternoon and thirty in the evening.

NEW ENGLAND PICTURE PERSONALITIES.

H. A. Chenoweth.

H. A. Chenoweth.

One of the best known of New England exhibitors is H. A. Chenoweth, manager of the Shawmut theater, Boston. Most everybody calls him "Chene," for short. He was born in Lynn, Mass., in 1860. From childhood up, he was connected with things theatrical, and, during the years from 1868 to 1880, he took all the juvenile parts in the various Boston theaters. He was associated with the celebrated actors of those days. Mr. Chenoweth was one of the first ticket takers at Keith's theater, when it was at its original stand. Mr. Chenoweth toured the South in 1881 and 1882 with Savage's English Opera Company, and was associated with enterprises at Revere Beach, and other resorts. Pinehurst Park, at Worcester, and Lashaway Park at Brookfield, Mass., also claimed "Chene" for considerable of his time. He was with the original Scenic Temple Company for several seasons. He's had lots of experience in this end of the theatrical business, having managed several houses on the large Greene & Abrams circuit, in Bath and Gardiner, Me. "Chene" photoplay houses at Marlboro and New Bedford, Mass., and guided the Orpheum at Newburyport and the old Lawrence Opera House, at New London, Conn. In New Bedford, he was at the helm of the Comique, Orpheum and Big Nickle theaters. He is the originator of many novel ideas that mean better box-office totals. He is one of the I. O. O. F. boys, and a member of the Somerville, Mass., Lodge 917, B. P. O. E.

At the Shawmut, a large theater of recent construction, "Chene" has made good. His particular attention to and thorough knowledge of the details which make or mar a house, have won out emphatically. He is one of New England's most successful and best liked exhibitors.

HOTEL CONVERTED INTO PICTURE HOUSE.

The St. Brennen Hotel, located at 103rd Street and Columbus Avenue, New York City, has been converted into a picture house. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 400 persons; 300 of which seat on the parquette floor and the remaining 100 in the balcony. Boxes have been provided. The investment involved an expense of $4,000. The admission prices are 10 cents for the orchestra and balcony and 25 cents for the boxes. The name of the house is the Columbia and it was opened Saturday, November 29, by F. G. Cook, the manager. The theater was designed by architect Wm. H. Gompert, of New York City.

COLONIAL THEATER, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The photoplay houses are rapidly increasing in Grand Rapids, Michigan. No fewer than a dozen "neighborhood" theaters are now operating, or under way, and business with all of them is very encouraging. Perhaps the finest of all the outlying theaters is the Colonial in Wealthy Street; in fact, this house is as complete in appointments and equipment as most of the larger theaters in the state. The structure is absolutely fireproof, steel, concrete and brick being the materials used. The roof is arched and the interior of cement is beautifully tinted in neutral tones.

Indirect illumination is used with direct ventilation. The house is kept warm by its own heating plant. The seating capacity is 408, and the seats are of upholstered leather and are roomy. Excepting on Saturday, when five reels are shown for ten cents, the usual program consists of three reels for an admission price of five cents. The building and equipment cost over $15,000. A Simplex machine is used with a mercury arc rectifier. The house is owned by the Colonial Theater Company, and is under the management of Jay Winchell. The Colonial has a splendid location and caters especially to women and children. Business from the start has more than pleased Mr. Winchell, who is handling the proposition like a veteran. The house was designed by architects Thomas Benjamin & Sons, Frank Van Der Til and Blakslee Bros.

Colonial Theater, Grand Rapids, Mich.

EDISON COMPANY BACK FROM ENGLAND.

Charles Brabin and his company of Edison players have returned from their long campaign of picture making in England and the continent. Under Mr. Brabin's direction were Miss Miriam Nesbitt and Marc MacDermott, familiar to all lovers of the photoplay. Otto Brautigam, cameraman, completed the company, which has been abroad for the past seven months and has visited points of interest in England, Ireland, Wales, Belgium, France, Switzerland and Italy. The return trip was made on the steamship Carpathia, commanded by Captain Rostron, famous as a hero of the sea. Taking advantage of this opportunity, Director Brabin started a sea story on board ship in which the celebrated captain was featured.

Erecting Temple Scene for "Samson."

Big stage being erected at Universal City, Los Angeles, Cal. This setting will be 200 feet deep, 27 feet high and will have room for 1,500 people on it at one time.

SUPPLY BUSINESS LOOKING UP.

A very large proportion of the profits being derived from the exhibiting end of the motion picture business today, is going over to the jobber of machine parts and dealers in general theater supplies and accessories. This supposition is strengthened by the fact that out in Chicago, the Kleine Optical Company recently found it impossible to handle its immense patronage without greatly increasing its facilities, which included an extra thousand square feet of floor space which was sorely needed for an exhibition and demonstrating room. Then again there is Charles Calehuff in Philadelphia. As president of the Calehuff Supply Company, he conducted a general supply business at number 50 North Eighth Street, which until a very short time ago was of ample size to take care of his trade; but he, too, has had to scout around for more space, and finally located in number 1301 Race Street, where, beside the large store floor, he has a basement in which to store his stock of machines and supplies.

In New York there is more evidence of the growing demand for supply houses, and as far as we know, the houses of Hallberg and the Picture Theater Equipment Company are turning the trick and filling the wants of the exhibitors. Of course, you all know Hallberg, the "Economizer Man," and the rapid strides he has made since he entered the game, well, he, too, has taken a few more big steps from the front to the rear of the fourth floor of 36 East 23rd Street, and now he has an entire floor in this building and needs every foot of it. The Picture Theater Equipment Co.; well they haven't had a chance to burn up any trails as yet, they've only been in business about two years, but they, too, are going to it strong, and when a year or two more has passed by they, too, will be in the running as strong as the largest of them.

Doing Water Stuff.

A Vitagraph Western company doing a sea story on a chartered Pacific schooner. The boys slept on deck at night, and had a week's work and play before the mast. This party was under direction of Robt. Thornby.

GREAT NORTHERN PUBLISHES BOOKLET.

The Great Northern Film Co. has issued an artistic eight page brochure exploiting the widely talked about, Betty Nansen series of "Preferred Feature Attractions." The dainty little booklet is printed on heavy tinted stock and the two color combination used in the presswork, is calculated to appeal to the artistic eye at the first glance. The first page is adorned by a portrait and line drawing which shows the famous tragedienne to splendid advantage.

Upon opening the booklet, the next feature to attract the eye is a short sketch of the professional career of Madame Nansen and reviewing her histrionic achievements before she consented to appear before the motion picture camera. A stirring scene is from "The Princess Elena's Prisoner," one of the multiple reel dramas in which she appears. The reverse page is devoted to a remarkable court martial scene from the same production. A synopsis of the latter and portrait of S. Aggerholm in the role of the prime minister occupies the opposite page.

A short review of and a combination scene from "A Paradise Lost" follows with accompanying portraits of Paul Reumert as the chief conspirator and Olaf Fonss as Detective Yorke. A concise reference to lithographs, photographs and heralds especially designed for the Nansen series completes this artistic contribution to feature film publicity.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"THE STORY OF DAVID GREIG" (Imp).

In this two reel play, written and directed by Walter MacNamara, author of many notable Universal film successes, we have pulsating action, wonderful scenes taken in the Balback Smelting Works, at Newark, N. J., where five tons of gold are smelted every day, and a story that treats, from entirely new angles, one of the greatest problems that confronts society today—the struggle between capital and labor.

In the maping out of this remarkable story Mr. MacNamara has refrained from taking sides with either faction; rather has he taken the problem or situation in its entirety and, after a careful process of filtering, brought the deadening errors and dogmas of both to the surface where the intelligent searchlight of reason holds them out in sharp relief. Digesting these points, the spectator learns much aside from the unusual pleasure afforded in witnessing an unusual story of love, adventure and modern romance.

Scene from "The Story of David Greig" (Imp).

There is the wealthy iron master who, like all men of his class, finds sufficient argument to justify his ill and, sometimes, inhuman treatment of his men. And there is his daughter, a wholesome spirited girl whose cosmopolitan training and direct contact with the grosser sides of life counteracts the impotent beliefs and principles that have sought and smothered her. There is the professional agitator who stirs up discontent among the laborers, and last, but first of all, there is young David Greig, dreamer and philosopher, who imbibes new teachings on the governing principle of love and war. There are other minor characters who flash in and out of the swirl and strife that encompasses and changes the whole tenor of some of the persons' lives in this play.

---

A FEATURE BUYER'S BUSY WEEK.

William Hershberg, the president of the General Feature Film Company of Chicago, has just returned to the West, after a week's hard work in this city. Mr. Hershberg's company has absorbed the exchange formerly belonging to Joseph Hopp and has also acquired the M. and F. Feature Agency. He came to New York to look over the market and contract for a steady supply of good features. He has contracted for the Florence Turner pictures and has bought many of the Apex and Blinkhorn pictures. In addition, he will handle the Ruby features for his territory and the Film Releases of America. He is also negotiating for the Solax-Blaché feature output and has signed a contract to take all the releases of the True Feature Company. Mr. Hershberg has been identified with the industry for more than four years and has had great success as an exhibitor in Chicago. He thinks well of the outlook in the Middle West.

SOME ECLECTIC POSTER IDEAS.

The Eclectic Film Company seems to be the first feature firm to break away from the crude way of showing posters to buyers. Heretofore the custom has been to spread the lithographs out on the floor, one over another, by which method they soon became worn with handling. In many cases the posters are hung about the office walls in a haphazard fashion, producing a bewildering clashing of colors. To eliminate the inartistic and jarring effect of such a jumble of posters the Eclectic Company has installed a cabinet in which the posters are mounted on cloth attached to spring rollers. The principle is that of a roller window shade, by which means the posters are kept clean and out of sight when not in use. One of the niceties of this cabinet idea is that it allows the buyer to concentrate his attention on one poster at a time. In this way also the neatness of the office is not impaired by any profuse billboard display.

The Eclectic is becoming very eclectic in the style and finish of its posters. At considerable extra expense the company requires a full color sketch to be submitted before a poster is made. If the preliminary lay-out does not come up to the Eclectic idea of what an artistic and attractive poster should be it goes back for alterations as many times as is necessary until something really worth while has been produced.

---

AMMEX TO DO A PICTURE IN MEXICO.

Although Mexico is hardly a healthy or a restful country at this time, the Ammex Company will produce a three reel Mexican military drama on the dark and bloody ground beyond the Rio Grande. The scenario of this drama was written by Grace Adele Pierce, who has been regularly engaged to write the Ammex scenarios henceforth. Miss Pierce is widely known as a scenario competent. "Judith," the Biograph feature and one of the last masterpieces of D. W. Griffith at the Biograph studio, is a child of her brain.

---

KLEINE'S "POMPEII" AT CLEMMER THEATER.

Just exactly 38,680 persons paid admission to the Clemmer Theater, during the week of November 16-22nd, to see George Kleine's "The Last Days of Pompeii." Gross receipts for the weeks were $5,800.10, which absolutely establishes a record on the Pacific Coast for the six day showing of any motion picture.

"A LEAF IN THE STORM" (Warner's Features).

This is a powerful, dramatic story, featuring Marion Leonard, strong and logical in its plot, vivid in its contrasts of life, running the whole gamut of the emotions. It opens in a New York tenement where Miss Leonard is living in hopes of finding the means to support herself and little baby. A month before, her husband had been killed in a mine accident and Miss Leonard sought the city, leaving her child in the care of a neighbor. She is aroused by a knock on the door. A youth of the underworld, struck with her beauty, has followed her home. He tells her where she can secure work. When he offers her money to pay for a new dress, she understands and drives him from the room. Another knock. It is her landlord. She must pay her rent in the morning.

Scene from "A Leaf In the Storm" (Warner's Features).

Her eye falls on the card left by the "cadet." That night she appears at the dance hall. Once within, her soul revolts. The "cadet" endeavors to restrain her, but the proprietor ejects him. At this moment a woman in evening dress arrives on a slumming tour. There is a pistol duel between two gangsters and the woman is injured, but not seriously. She confides in Miss Leonard that she is married to a young Englishman, heir to his father's fortune, and is on her way abroad. She engages Miss Leonard as nurse companion. On board ship the woman proves to be a drunkard.

A storm arises. The life-boats are wrecked. The two women are washed ashore on a desert island and are sheltered by a sailor, himself a victim of a previous shipwreck. The sailor and the Englishman's wife begin a drunken carouse on rum that has washed ashore. Miss Leonard fails to arouse them from their stupor when a sailing vessel comes to take them off. Swiftly she gathers the woman's proofs together, exchanges wedding rings and a month later lands in England and is accepted as the son's wife. After a time the true wife appears, but is turned away. In the moment of her triumph she realizes the futility of it all and, leaving a note of confession, disappears. A nephew, who has fallen in love with her, follows her to America. Just as she is about to leave with her baby for the city, he finds her and there is a joyful reunion.

THANHOUSER IN LONDON.

C. J. Hite, president of Thanhouser, has hearkened to the European call for his films and established the Thanhouser Films, Ltd., of London. Paul Kimberley is managing director. Pathe and then the Western Import Company handled the New Rochelle pictures in Europe before the establishment of an independent Thanhouser office. Joshua Kimberley has been appointed special advertising representative with instructions to go the limit in publicizing the pictures. The first development is a weekly house organ called "The Thanhouser News" after the original New Rochelle press sheet.

MAJESTIC DOING "RUY BLAS."

The New Majestic Company is producing "Ruy Blas," to be offered on the special plan. This is the Victor Hugo story of the valet who became prime minister. William Garwood is featured in the title role. The author of the "Sapho" picture script, Elmer Harris, did the "Ruy Blas" one. "Ruy Blas" is to be in three reels. Frederic Vroom and Francelia Billington support the lead.

"THE PRICE OF THOUGHTLESSNESS" (Vitagraph).

A short while ago articles appeared in many newspapers and other publications commenting upon the good work being done by the Vitagraph Company in connection with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit as part of the general safety crusade going on in all parts of this country. The first motion picture produced by Vitagraph for this crusade, is called "The Price of Thoughtlessness." It has aroused such interest that hundreds of letters have been pouring in to the company praising the production and urging the quick producing of more pictures of the same order. A newspaper article, commenting upon the work, says: "The dangers of the city streets and country roads are graphically and pointedly brought to the attention of children and grown-ups in the motion picture called 'The Price of Thoughtlessness.' It will be instrumental in preventing many accidents, especially among the children, who only realize danger when it is revealed to them in some strong and startling manner. It is hoped that the valuable medium of the motion picture screen will be more often used to such good advantages as in the humanitarian safety crusade which the Vitagraph Company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company are waging together."

"AT CROSS PURPOSES" (Cines-Kleine).

"At Cross Purposes," the Cines-Kleine release for Tuesday, December 23rd, marks the first two-reel comedy ever released by George Kleine in the United States. It is a pretty story of a society-bored Duke who selects for a wife a young woman who scarcely knew the presence of an occasional friend, to say nothing of the grand state affairs which so bored the Duke.

But time and environment make many changes. Instead of finding the much dreamed of peace, the Duke is startled at the sudden fancy for all society affairs developed by his new wife.

Scene from "At Cross Purposes" (Kleine-Cines).

In an effort to take him into company with her, the pretty Duchess corrupts the servant corps so that home cooking becomes a positive menace, and his imported cigars nauseating cheroots. Thus, fairly driven into society, the Duke acquiesces with much misgiving. Then to his surprise he finds a certain young woman to whom he begins paying assiduous attention.

How the society-loving Duchess suddenly became enamored of long evenings at home, and cozy little tete-a-tetes with the Duke after dinner, makes a pleasing and well-told subject.

UNIVERSAL TO PRODUCE "RICHELIEU."

Bulwer Lytton's great drama "Richelieu" is to be produced in three parts under the Gold Seal brand of the Universal by Director Allan Dwan.

Mr. G. Macquarrie has been cast as Cardinal Richelieu. Pauline Bush will play the role of his protege. James Neill will play the part of the king and Mrs. Neill will play the part of the queen.

NO ADDITIONAL MULTIPLE EDISONS.

The announcement in the Moving Picture World of last week to the effect that the Edison Company proposed to release a multiple reel subject in place of its Tuesday single reel dramatic subject was erroneous. It is the opinion of the Edison management that the multiple reel is being overdone and has decided to adhere to its present program.

"A SON OF HIS FATHER" (Lubin).

A very dramatic story of the gambler's life, with western atmosphere. Fate brings about a recognition between father and son, both returning to the life of honest endeavor and a happy reunion of a family. This photoplay is a powerful lesson against the evil of gambling and the sacrifice of home for the passion of easy money. The cast is an admirable one, presenting many Lubin favorites.

Will Temple, a gambler, neglects his wife and baby boy

Scene from "A Son of His Father" (Lubin).

One night he is a heavy winner and resolves to abandon them and go west. He leaves a note stating that his wife will be well taken care of, also that there is $1,000 in the bank that the boy will receive when of age. Years pass and the son gets his money, which he discovers was won at poker. His father's passion develops and he loses every cent at the gambling table. Rather than face his mother he runs away, and under an assumed name becomes a dealer in a gambling joint, which unbeknown to him is owned by his father. One day he rescues a girl named Jennie from the insults of Graham, a strange gambler, and eventually they become sweethearts. Graham, determined on revenge, goes to the gambling room and accuses Harry of cheating. Pistols are drawn and Graham falls wounded. The father, thinking the boy wrong, starts with others to "get him." Young Temple barricades himself in a room and Jennie goes for the sheriff. Shots are fired through the door and Harry is wounded. He scribbles a note requesting that his mother be informed. When the sheriff arrives he recognizes Graham as a crook wanted in many counties. Harry's father finds the note and discovers that it is his own son he has sent wrong. The boy recovers and the father and son, with his sweetheart, go back east to the mother and a new life.

THE WORLD SPECIAL IDEA.

"I wonder," says M. E. Hoffman, of the World Special Films Corporation, "whether the motion picture exhibitor realizes just what the World Special Films Corporation is trying to do—to put the ordinary moving picture theater on a plane never before attempted. As an example of this: Here are orders for 1,250 frames, ranging in size from the window display frame holding three 8 x 10 pictures to the big lobby frames which are 5 feet high and 5 feet wide. Every film that goes out of this office has a complete display of these frames. In addition to this, we are putting out a herald that is a herald, and while they are more expensive than those that have been used since the beginning of time, they are made so attractive that the patron will take them home with him instead of throwing them out in the street as invariably happens to-day. Then there are four different styles of post cards done in an etching effect, a complete line of cuts and press matter, and advertising novelties, all of which are new in the motion picture game, and all of which tend to put the motion picture theater nearer on the level of a regular theater than has ever before been attempted. Naturally, it is going to take time to educate the managers to these innovations, but you would be surprised to read the reports from our managers throughout the country, telling us how readily and how eager the exhibitor is to make his theater a real theater. There is one other thing that is going to help us accomplish what we have set out to do. Neither Mr. Gleichman nor Mr. Mandelbaum will handle a film of the melodramatic order. While they want a punch in their films, they firmly believe that the audiences are getting to the point where they require drama, not melodrama, and, along these same lines, we are getting out 'art posters,' not cheap, trashy paper with a lot of red splash all over them, depicting sensational scenes. We are trying to show them where an elaborate lobby display, not a gaudy one, will attract the better class of people far quicker than the display now in vogue, where flashy paper is plastered all over the front of their theater. Another big cry of the firm is: 'Stick to the truth in advertising and talk direct to the exhibitor. Don't hand him a lot of buncombe.'"

"A SHOT IN THE NIGHT" (Kalem).

Kalem has selected an excellent subject for the first of the multiple-reel features which it is to release on Mondays, commencing January 5th, in "A Shot in the Night." It is the story of a domestic tragedy. In scenes of wonderful power it portrays the hatred and distrust which exists between Laura, the second wife of Roger Trent, and George, her ten-year-old step-son. This discord is really caused by George, who regards the young wife as an interloper. How this situation is overcome by the love and sympathy which arises when the man whom both love battles with death is shown in a scene which goes straight to the heart.

The principal roles are filled by Stephen Purdee, Anna Nilsson, and young George Stewart. In the hands of such sterling performers it is to be expected that the parts will be splendidly portrayed. The superb settings and the crystal-clear photography all help to raise "A Shot in the Night" far above the average photoplay.

BUCKWALTER FILMS MITCHEL.

Selig Man Gets Some Good Pictures of New York's Mayor-Elect.

H. H. Buckwalter, who has been in Central America for several months making Selig pictures, arrived in New York during the blizzard early in the week on the same ship with Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel. During the trip the next Mayor of Gotham posed for several motion pictures and expressed much interest and friendship for the movies. In Panama he visited several picture shows where French films of doubtful nature were shown, and he proudly boasted that New York was far advanced in the matter of censorship and clean subjects.

In posing for the Selig pictures Mr. Mitchel was extremely enthusiastic, and one of the scenes resulted in rather unexpected developments which necessitated the immediate removal of the film from the camera. Buckwalter's ready willingness to destroy the film created a very favorable impression with the Mayor, who mentioned the willingness of film manufacturers to cut out objectional scenes.

While in Panama, Buckwalter was the recipient of many courtesies from Colonel Goethals and President Powas of the Panamanian Republic. The former furnished every possible facility for making scenes of the canal work and the latter literally opened the gates of the republic to the eye of the Selig camera. In all about 2,000 feet of negative was made, which will probably be released as a special feature subject.

"THE LOST DIAMOND" (Eclectic).

This three-reel feature will be released on December 20th. It features a trained magpie, which rivals in acting its human contemporaries in the photoplay. This bird is almost uncanny in its fulfilling the part which it takes; that of a diamond thief. The reputation of the magpie as a pilferer is universally known. A sensational battle with a savage leopard in the African jungle is another remarkable feature. Wireless telegraphy plays an important part in the photoplay, showing how a message is transmitted from one station to another.

"The Lost Diamond" is produced by the new Eclectic natural color process, which brings out the colors of nature in a most realistic fashion. The numerous exterior settings present many opportunities for showing the beauty and effectiveness of this color work.

"THE OCCULT" (American).

Lorimer Johnston, director of the first company of the American Film Manufacturing Co., at Santa Barbara, California, has a release coming that will cause great comment, that is "The Occult." For beauty of settings, perfect photography, and weirdness of effect, this picture has seldom been equaled. The double exposures mark a new epoch in photography. Mr. Johnston has just finished the first three reels taken by the Flying "A." This will be called "Destinies Fulfilled," and will be scheduled for an early release. This was written by Marc Edmund Jones. Great care was given to the production, and the author was present during a portion of the time.

NOVEL AD FOR MUTUAL EXHIBITORS.

The Mutual arch lamps, widely heralded by the Mutual Film Corporation as "The Sign of the Winged Clock," will be ready for distribution within a week or ten days. They are special arch lamps with two Mutual winged clocks arranged opposite each other so that the rays of light will pass through them and attract attention to their brilliantly lighted faces. The Solar Light Company is manufacturing the lamps and will forward them to the exchanges in lots of ten thousand. They will be distributed immediately to the theaters running the Mutual program, as will also the special banners which are being turned out in large numbers for the use of Mutual exhibitors.

RAYMOND AND CAVELRY WITH UNIVERSAL.

Raymond and Cavelry, famous throughout the United States as two of the foremost Dutch comedians playing in vaudeville, have been secured to play leading roles in a one reel burlesque to be put on by Walter MacNamara. Mr. MacNamara is also the author of the comedy which concerns two Dutch emigrants who, immediately after landing in America, are sent into Mexico as war correspondents.

Mr. MacNamara has written an up-to-the-minute burlesque-satire on Huerta and the trouble in the Southern Republic which affords splendid opportunities for the fun-making abilities of the two artists. Hundreds of "supers" will be used in the battle scenes. An aeroplane will also be one of the features of the play

NEW FAMOUS PLAYERS SCRIPT WRITER.

Miss Eva Unsell, who has until now been a reader with the De Mille play agency, and who is also known as one of the best scenario writers in the country, has joined the scenario department of the Famous Players Film Company. Miss Unsell has written many scenarios for the Kalem Company, the most notable among which is "The Pawnbroker's Daughter." She has made a careful study of the work, and has some original ideas on the technique and construction of film stories. She has had a valuable training as a magazine writer and journalist, having been associated with the Kansas City Post.

IT WAS NOT AS HAD BEEN STATED.

A few weeks ago, in the correspondence columns under the head of New England, it was stated that the Empire Theater, London, Ont., Can., was compelled to close on account of poor business. In a letter of refutation the owner, C. E. Bernard, says that the house was closed only for one week when a new manager was taken on and new equipment and improvements installed.

Scene from "The Silence of Death" (Gaumont). Reviewed in the Issue of November 29—Page 1013.

DUHEM & HARTER'S RODEO.

The California Rodeo 1913, held at Salinas, Cal., is now before the public in a three reel production by Duhem & Harter. It is evident that with the close views obtained the cameraman was in greater danger than the contesting cowboys, for many times he found it necessary to dodge bulls and wild horses.

Aside from the thousands of range riders, in all their gorgeous regalia, the rodeo was visited by C. C. Moore, president of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition; James Rolph, Mayor of San Francisco, and Secretary of War Garrison. The wildest of horses were selected for the broncho busting contest, haltered, saddled and ridden for the first time. This contest was merely to test the strength of the cowboy in subduing the bucking and biting man-killers, for the height of a cowboy's ambition is to find a horse he can't ride. The film shows clearly many ambitions realized.

Scene from Duhem & Harter Feature.

The great wild horse race is full of fun and excitement. Thirty vicious horses are driven into the arena, blindfolded and saddled, and when all are ready the blinds are removed and the race begins. Each horse, as if charged with electricity, leaps into the air, twisting and bucking in every direction.

There is plenty of comedy and many accidents sprinkled throughout the three reels. Over six thousand feet was used in securing all the sensations that happened in the seven days the Rodeo lasted.

RUBY FEATURE FILM CO. REMOVES.

Under the gentle but firm guiding hand of Leon J. Rubenstein, president of the Ruby Feature Film Co., the concern has grown to such a size that it has been obliged to seek larger quarters. In order that Mr. Rubenstein might center all of the various departments under his eye, it was deemed advisable to have the general offices and studios located in the same building. With that object in mind, Mr. Rubenstein took a lease on the premises at 217 East 24th Street, and renovated the place according to the needs of the company. The removal has already taken place and the entire corporation has settled down to hard work on a number of important feature productions.

KALEM TO ISSUE NEW BRAND.

Kalem will shortly issue a new brand of films in addition to the photoplays released in its regular program. The new brand will bear the trademark "Broadway." Announcements concerning the production issued under this trade-mark will be made within a few weeks.

The "Broadway" films will be the Kalem answer to the tremendous demand for feature productions of extraordinary quality. The name was chosen as typifying all that is newest and best in motion picture ideas. Several "Broadway" features are now being produced. It is said that these are of extraordinary interest and will top everything heretofore attempted in the motion picture industry.

It is understood that the "Broadway" films will in no way effect the sterling quality of the productions released in the regular Kalem program.

Notes of the Trade

THE "Around the-World" pictures, which opened at Carnegie Lyceum December 8th, are the product of the Gaumont Company, whose reputation for this class of work is worldwide.

* * *

In Lubin's coming masterpiece, "The Sunken Village," in defiance of the judgments of several photographers, Manager Ira M. Lowry has, for the first time, made a marked success of pictures taken at night. This achievement required the keeping up of the company until four o'clock in the morning under double pay, but the results have proved satisfactory in every way.

* * *

Harold Vosburgh, Selig player, had a close call from severe illness last week in not getting quick reaction from a water scene in a great war drama in which he had to rescue the heroine, Alma Russell. The lake was at the freezing point and the pair were dragged from the water more dead than alive. No wonder actors hate—water stuff.

* * *

One of the many innovations used in advertising George Kleine's "The Last Days of Pompeii" was an especially written 50-page book of music, composed by the famous music writer, Palmer Clark, and furnished to orchestra leaders in the various theaters where "Pompeii" was projected.

* * *

L. J. Rose, Secretary of the Ammex Film Company, has just returned to California after a two-weeks' stay in New York, where he was in conference with F. D. Halliday, general sales manager of the Ammex Company, and Joseph R. Miles, general manager of the Exclusive Supply Corporation. Mr. Rose has not long been in the motion picture business and his horse raising and farming interests still engage part of his time.

* * *

The Poli circuit has installed Kinemacolor in the following houses: Scranton, Pa., Worcester, Mass., New Haven, Conn., Hartford, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., using one reel as a featured "act" at each show. This is quite a feather in the Kinemacolor cap, because Mr. Poli has always opposed "pictorial vaudeville."

* * *

Reaves Eason, of the "Flying A" staff at Santa Barbara has a mania for losing his top coats. He will let one get away from him, buy another, find the first and lose the new one. "Some versatility," but rather expensive for Eason.

* * *

Harry Jackson, one of the famed vaudeville entertainers, has joined the Selig force in Chicago as a producer and will devote his attention exclusively to comedies, commencing his service at once.

* * *

Alamo Film Company is at work on a feature production entitled "Siege and Fall of the Alamo." A very large number of horses and men will participate and Director Horace Vinton is making all preparations to maintain correct historical details.

* * *

United States Senator Swanson, who is at the head of the People's Amusement Company, of Washington, D. C., and who owns several of the finest photoplay houses in the Capital City, has just purchased a new Radium Gold Fibre Screen from the American Theater Curtain & Supply Company, of St. Louis. He reports perfect satisfaction from the use of this screen.

* * *

The Precision Machine Company has greatly increased its factory facilities in its present quarters at 317 East 34th Street, New York, taking over two additional floors, thereby adding about 16,000 square feet floor space. The top floor is to be utilized for the assembling department and the general offices.

* * *

The Thanhouser Kidlet was the main attraction at the bazaar of the exclusive Little Mother's Aid Association at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, Saturday, December 6th. Just prior to the Kidlet's appearance, a film showing her in photoplay was run off. It was "The Children's Hour," a Thanhouser reel based on Longfellow's immortal poem.

* * *

Among the visitors to Albert Blinkhorn's office this week was Mr. Lubin, of Montreal, Canada. He has contracted to take all of the features that Blinkhorn will release. Contracts were also closed for Northern Illinois and Wisconsin, and all of the Southern States.

* * *

Phil Gleichman, of the World Special Films Corporation, is back in New York and is working on a plan for the marketing of two or three exceptionally long reel subjects, which the World Special Films Corporation intend to put out in the near future.

* * *

Arthur V. Johnson, the well-known trap-drummer of Philadelphia and Lubinville, has been annoyed lately by having to stumble over large rolls of carpet placed in his apartment in the dark by volunteer comedians, known as friends, who turn on the lights and give him the laugh. This is lack of respect, and "Li'l Artha" demands respect.

* * *

Oliver Morosco is now considering an offer from Thomas H. Ince, vice-president and general manager of the New York Motion Picture Corporation for the motion picture rights of Mr. Morosco's successful Hawaiian drama, "The Bird of Paradise."

* * *

A three-reel melodramatic romance written by Marc E. Jones, produced by Lorimer Johnston, will soon be announced by the American Film Manufacturing Company. Mr. Jones made a trip from New Orleans to Santa Barbara to pay a visit to the American Studios. He has proven a prolific writer and holds the record of having placed sixty plays in eight months.

* * *

Besides riding horses, sailing deep-sea schooners, and falling over precipices for Vitagraph dramas, Miss Edith Storey, the well-known Vitagraph star, now drives a big six-cylinder touring car, which she bought herself, all with her own money, which deserves great creditable mention when one considers how expensive automobiles are.

* * *

Aaron J. Jones, president of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, is highly pleased with the results of installing Kinemacolor at Chicago's most famous moving picture playhouse, the Orpheum, that he has arranged to receive the first and exclusive service of the natural color pictures at all the houses of this circuit, including McVicker's, the Willard and Wilson in the "Windy City."

* * *

The Princess brand in the Mutual list has a way of garnering bright children. Now it's a two-year-old. Marie Eline, a featured Princess girl, is only eleven and even Muriel Ostriche, the leading woman, hasn't passed seventeen. The two-year-old is Dorothy Benham, and she has a specialty already. It's a "cry" and the most natural you ever saw. At a given signal by her mother, Dorothy will simply cry her eyes out. There's nothing "fakey" or forced about it. See for yourself when Princess "Law of Humanity" is released, Friday, December 19th.

* * *

Midgar Features has finished with the Carnegie Lyceum run of "How Wild Animals Live." This company has some wonderfully strong and sensational dramatic pictures on the way from Europe.

* * *

How would you like to dance bare-footed in an open field with the thermometer below the freezing point and a flurry of snow flakes in the air? A chilly thought, truly, yet it actually happened at Tappan, N. Y., the third week in November, when the Helen Gardner Picture Players were completing "A Daughter of Pan," a beautiful romantic photoplay in three parts, released by Warner's Features, Inc.

We Will Sell the Canadian Rights of the Pasquali Version of

"THE LAST DAYS of POMPEII"

In 8 MAGNIFICENT REELS

The most costly Photo-Drama ever produced.

An opportunity you can't let slip.
Don't Wait! Get in touch with

WORLD SPECIAL FILMS CORPORATION

110 West 40th Street NEW YORK

Moving Picture Theatre Mailing Lists For Sale

20,192, covering United States and Canada, price $40.00, or $3.50 per thousand for such states as you want.

670 Film Exchanges, U. S.......................$3.50
70 Manufacturers and Studios, U. S.................. 1.00
34 Moving Picture Machine Mfrs. and Dealers.............. 2.00
231 Film Exchanges, Foreign Countries.................. 3.00
520 Moving Picture Theatres, Foreign Countries............ 3.00

Ask us for full particulars.

TRADE CIRCULAR ADDRESSING CO.

166 West Adams Street, Chicago
Established 1880.

"THE BROKEN HEART" (Gaumont).

This fine Gaumont two-reel story is woven around the short-lived romance of a young modiste who found that claims of a proud family outweighed those of love's young dream. It shows how the sudden break of her happiness aggravated a girl's weakness and killed her as surely as if she had been shot.

Scene from "The Broken Heart (Gaumont).

Nothing has been overdrawn, and the drama is based upon facts of life. Not in the least exaggerated—full of touching incidents. It gives full testimony to the old adage, "Truth is Stranger than Fiction."

STATE RIGHT PURCHASES.

NOTE.—Exhibitors are requested to keep this list on file or copy from it the names of purchasers in their particular territories. These lists will not be republished and we cannot undertake to furnish back information by mail to those who have neglected to keep a record.

THE GIRL OF THE SUNNY SOUTH (American Kineto—4 reels).—Greater New York, Manufacturers' Film Agency, Candler Building, New York City; New York State, I. Cobe, 222 Salina Street, Syracuse, N. Y.; New Jersey, Progressive F. F. Company, 800 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia, United Features, 15 No. 10th St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Liberty Film Renting Company, 105 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.; Ohio, Buckeye F. F. Service, 737 Prospect Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; Northern Illinois and Wisconsin, Union Film Company, 167 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.; Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, Southern F. F. Prog. Assn., 1920 Main Street, Dallas, Texas; California, Arizona and Nevada, Golgate Feature Service, 234 Eddy Street, San Francisco, Cal.

THE WATERS OF DEATH (American Kineto—3 reels).—Greater New York and New Jersey, J. Weinberg, 145 W. 45th Street, City; Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia, United Features, 15 N. 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Weiland F. F. Company, 212 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.; New England States, Standard F. F. Company, 665 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.; Ohio, Union Film Company, 613 Rose Building, Cleveland, Ohio; Northern Illinois and Wisconsin, Union Film Company, 167 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.; Iowa and Nebraska, Union Film Company, Clapp Building, Des Moines, Ia.; Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, Southern F. F. Prog. Assn., 1920 Main St., Dallas, Tex.; California, Arizona and Nevada, Golgate Feature Service, 234 Eddy Street, San Francisco.

IN A SERPENT'S COILS (American Kineto—3 reels).—Greater New York and New Jersey, same as for Waters of Death; Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia, T. A. Luchesse, 1202 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, same as for Waters of Death; New England, same as for Waters of Death; Ohio, Exhibitors' F. F. Corp., 413 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio; Indiana and Kentucky, Union Film Company, 119 N. Illinois Street, Indianapolis, Ind.; Northern Illinois and Wisconsin, same at Water of Death and Sunny South; Southern Illinois and Missouri, Karl Pickerill; Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, Bee F. F. Company, 407 East Douglas, Wichita, Kan.; Texas, Louisiana, B. F. Brennan, Maison Blanche Building, New Orleans, La.; California, Arizona and Nevada, same as above; Washington and Oregon, Karl Pickerill.

HAGENBECK-WALLACE CIRCUS (4 reels).—For New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania by Trenton Film Exchange, Broad Street Building, Trenton, N. J.

HUMANITY (Apex—3 reels).—For Ohio and Michigan by Exhibitors' Feature Film Company, 413 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio; for Indiana and Kentucky by Empress Feature Film Company, Merchants Bank Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

LONDON BY NIGHT (Apex—4 reels).—Same territory by same purchasers as Humanity.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG (Apex—4 reels).—Same territory by same purchasers as Humanity.

IN THE PYTHON'S DEN (Apex—3 reels).—For Indiana and Kentucky by Empress F. F. Company, Merchants Bank Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO (5 reels).—For Michigan by The Casino Company, Detroit.

FEATURE FILM BUYERS
HERE'S YOUR OPPORTUNITY
"IT'S ALIVE!" Three Reels

Hundreds of Cowboys and "Cowbells" competing in the World's most sensational, comical and thrilling contest ever devised. Cowboys wrestle wild steers to prove that, with bare hands, they can "throw the real bull." No ordinary person could attempt such a feat and escape with his life. You actually see man, horse and steer clash to the ground together seldom escaping without serious injury. Bucking vicious horses and mad bulls are ridden merely to test the strength of the proud cowboy.

Just what the public and exhibitor wants!

An alive, active, stirring feature, better than a special for it crowds their houses and makes bookings easy for YOU and brings TIP TOP prices.

ALL REMAINING TERRITORIES 11c a foot, including liberal lobby display of 1-3-6 sheet, 5 color lithographs, cuts and set of enlarged photographs, slides, etc.

To exhibitors wishing to book this "Mint" we will mail the name and address of the party who has your state.

Act Now! Write, Wire, or Call,

DUHEM & HARTER RODEO CO.
652 OAK STREET SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO.

THE Greater New York Film Service will be established here. I. Schmertz, of New York, representing the concern, has been looking for a location The plans for opening the branch were arranged in New York by A R Sherry, of this city. This service has opened at the Allendale Theater, Buffalo. Mr. Sherry has sold out his interests in the Sherry Feature Film Co. to Henry Peck. His brother, R. L. Sherry, still holds his interests in the concern.

A. R. Sherry is one of the directors of the Sherry-Hunt Enterprises, organized in Canada, with offices in Fort Erie, Ont., located across Niagara River from Buffalo. According to the incorporation paper, the concern will "erect theaters, produce plays, conduct a moving picture exchange in the province, promote baseball, hockey, lacrosse, football and other allied lines "

Manager John Oishei has been featuring on Sundays George Kleine's production of "The Last Days of Pompeii" at the Teck Theater.

To popularize his Sunday shows, Manager Marcus, of the New Lyric Theater, has a symphony orchestra to accompany his feature films.

Manager Newman, of the Allendale Theater, recently had as his attractions, "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp."

The Central Park Moving Picture Theater, Buffalo, was recently opened. Harvey P Kehr designed the house and August Lampke provided the decorating schemes. The ventilating and seating systems are perfect There are girl ushers Music is furnished by a $10,000 Hope-Jones Unit orchestra and organ.

Manager Schlessinger, of the Academy Theater, recently had as a special attraction a performer who escaped from a straitjacket in front of the theater The Academy has a beautiful, new electric sign.

In addition to a strong vaudeville bill and moving pictures furnished by the Victor Film Co., Manager Henry Carr, of Shea's Theater, recently had as an extra feature Eddie Foy, famous comedian, and "The Seven little Foys."

Manager Harold Edel recently showed the film "The Fall of Constantinople, A. D 1453." Much favorable comment has been aroused by the artistic and scenic features of the signs which he used for this and other spectacles.

Lovers of moving pictures are always amused by the arguments offered by the enemies of this popular pastime. In the annual report recently issued at Ottawa, Ont., by the department of Indian affairs, one Indian agent in Canada reports that the advent of moving pictures has had considerable to do with increasing the mortality rate of the race. He points out that young Indians will travel miles to the cities in the evening to see the pictures, often in inclement weather. He recounts numerous deaths which he traced to their having returned home late to damp and unsanitary houses, where conditions were not conducive to health.

A recent report from Chatham, Ont., says in part "Government Inspector Newman is in the city inspecting the various moving picture houses, and giving the operators the necessary examinations He is reported to have said that things are in good condition locally."

In this city recently the Syracuse Strand Theater Co., with a capital of $425,000, filed incorporation papers. It is said the concern will build a theater in Syracuse. The directors are Mitchell H. Mark, John F Burke, Walter Hays and Eugene L. Falk, of Buffalo and William R Rafferty, of Syracuse

"A Boy and the Law " a five-reel moving picture, was recently featured by Manager Foster of the Family Theater According to printed reports, the film "shows the true story of William Eckstein, from Russian law-defier to Mayor The pictures give details of the work of Judge Willis Brown, founder of the Utah Juvenile Court, etc " Judge Brown came to Buffalo to see the films On Sundays Mr. Foster furnishes a pleasing musical program in addition to his pictures

Howard F Brink is meeting with success as traveling representative for the Buffalo branch of the Mutual Film Corporation He covers Western New York and part of Pennsylvania He is one of the pioneers in the moving picture business He formerly managed the Hippodrome, Grand and other houses here. Before coming to Buffalo he had charge of the Princess, of Philadelphia

The Symphony Theater Co., of which A. A Fenyvessy, of Buffalo, is president, recently opened the new Symphony Moving Picture Theater in Binghamton, N. Y. David Cohen is manager. Mr Fenyvessy formerly lived in that city.

A report from Albion, N. Y , says in part "Architect Leon H. Lambert, of Rochester, N. Y., recently came here and made measurements of the property of R. W. Harris, at Orchard and Main Streets. M. M. Gantz, a local business man, is the head of a proposed theater for the site. The house, according to the plans submitted, will cover a plot of ground facing on the two streets. The estimated cost of the location and altering the present brick building is about $16,000. It would have a seating capacity of 900."

BILLY BISON

LOUISVILLE.

THE weather has not been at all propitious for good business with motion picture exhibitors in this part of the country lately, but notwithstanding this, the attendance at most of the houses in Louisville, as well as in other Kentucky cities and towns, seems to be up to the usual volume. The business is in a flourishing state in Kentucky, in fact, and there seems to be no reason why it should not continue so, in the opinion of close observers of conditions.

Edward Wentzell, of Louisville, who was formerly assistant manager at the Norman Theater, Twenty-first Street and Portland Avenue, where his brother, Mont Wentzell, is in charge, has been appointed manager of the recently opened New Grand, in New Albany, which is one of the largest and finest of the Switow Amusement Company's string of theaters in Kentucky and southern Indiana.

Carpenter & Johnston, who have been taking motion pictures of interesting current events in this vicinity, intended covering the Thanksgiving football game between two local schools, but had to give up the idea on account of the extremely bad weather. Films of this game would have been very good property, as much interest is taken in it and probably nearly every theater in Louisville would have been glad to use them.

J. Johnson Musselman, who has been manager of the Clifton for some time, meeting with conspicuous success in the East End house, has resigned, to take a position with the Arcadia dance hall at Fourth and Broadway, in which L. J. Dittmar is interested.

The Louisville Film & Supplies Company has opened offices in the Tyler building, and although a good deal of the stock has not arrived, Manager Charles D. Sinai reports a good business.

Walter Bradford, who has managed the New Grand, of New Albany, since its opening, has taken charge of the Switow Grand at Martinsville, Ind. The new house will be opened in a week or so.

Postmaster E. J. Schmitt showed clearly a few days ago that he is fully abreast of the times, when, in pursuance of a request from the Postmaster-General that he use every means in impressing people with the desirability of mailing their parcels early, he placed slides in all of the leading motion picture theaters, bearing the admonition, "Do Your Christmas Mailing Early." The exhibitors are running these slides free of charge, and Postmaster Schmitt believes that they will go far toward accomplishing the desired result. He thinks so well of the idea, in fact, that he notified the Postmaster-General of it, and suggested that it be used in other cities for the purpose of expediting the movement of Uncle Sam's heavy Christmas business.

Joseph and David Desberger, lessees of the Arcade Theater and roof garden at Paducah, Ky., have sold the lease to the National Moving Picture Company, of Louisville. The purchasers will take possession on January 5, at which time the theater will be closed for repairs, upon which about $12,500 will be expended. The house will be managed, it is announced, by R. H. Yates, of Louisville. The Desberger brothers will continue to operate the Gem and Star Theaters, in Paducah

The Pastime, the newest and prettiest motion picture house in Maysville, Ky., was opened last week with large audiences and great enthusiasm. Messrs. E. T. Kirk, Stanton Clift and G. S. Jones, all of Maysville, are the proprietors of the house, and with assurance that a good program will be presented at all times, the theater seems assured of success.

The Rex Amusement Company, of Hopkinsville, Ky , operating one of the best theaters in Western Kentucky, has had ground broken in Springfield, Tenn., for a new and up-to-date moving picture theater, which, it is hoped, will be completed early in January. The theater will be practically a duplicate of the Rex in Hopkinsville. It will be managed by Robert Waller, who has assisted Manager Shrode at Hopkinsville, for some time.

The Columbia Theater, at Ashland, Ky., recently received an intensifier, which was used for the first time in showing the great Battle of Gettysburg film. The management is much pleased with the effect of the device.

Charles Ryan, of Russellville, Ky., is tearing down a livery stable on a piece of downtown property owned by him in that city, and will erect in its place a modern building containing two ground floor rooms, one of which will be used for the postoffice and the other for a motion picture theater. It has not yet been announced who will secure this room, but it is understood that A. Mitchell, of the Dixie Theater, is after it.

The Scenic Theater, in Ashland, Ky., will occupy a new building in a few months, which is being erected on the site formerly occupied by J. J. Hanshaw & Son's grocery. The building is to be of brick, and will be modern in every respect.

The Gem Theater, of Paducah, Ky., is featuring its music, which is furnished by a six-piece orchestra, said to be one of the best ever heard in that city. It consists of a violin, a piano, a cornet, a saxophone and a drum. Besides the Gem's regular four-reel program, local pictures are being shown, which have proved extremely popular.

The Kinner & Johnson Building, which is being erected in Hazard, Ky., is making good progress, and will be completed before the first of the year. It has not yet been stated who will occupy the room which is being fitted up for a motion picture theater. The Zoeller Building, in the same town, which is rapidly nearing completion, will also house a motion picture theater.

The Idle Hour Theater, of Earlington, Ky., has been sold by J. E. Fawcett, to C. O. Lavelle, who formerly operated a machine there. Mr. Fawcett found that his other interests were demanding too much of his time for him to give any to his theaters, so he has therefore disposed of his Earlington house, and those owned by him in Morton's and Sebree, Ky.

Dr. J. L. McCurry and W. E. McCurry have let to J W. Queen, of Lavonia, Ga., the contract for the construction of a motion picture house for them in Hartwell, Ga. The building will be 25 by 70 feet.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THOUSANDS of miles of moving picture films were exported from the United States during the first nine months of 1913, according to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, which also makes the prediction that before the close of the current year enough films, both exposed and unexposed, will have been shipped to reach the entire 25,000 miles around the earth. Figures produced by this government bureau place the United States right at the head of the column of moving picture film producers. This country manufactures fully three-fourths of the entire production of the world.

So great have become these exports that the foreign and domestic commerce bureau has been forced to establish a separate and detailed record. This record shows a total exportation in the nine months ended with September of 65,500,000 feet of unexposed film to be used in other parts of the world in taking motion pictures, and 23,500,000 feet of exposed film, making a total of 89,000,000 feet during the period. In 1912, the first full calendar year for which figures are shown, the total length of film exported was 62,250,000 feet, or less than half the prospective total of 1913. The stated value of the films exported in the nine months ended with September, 1913, is about $3,500,000, being $1,811,000 for the 65,500,00 feet of unexposed film, and $1,656,000 for the 23,500,000 feet of exposed film or an average of 2¾ cents per foot for the unexposed, and 7 cents per foot for the exposed film.

England is by far the largest purchaser of films from the United States, and this applies especially to the unexposed film. Of the 80,000,000 feet of films of both classes exported in the fiscal year 1912, 70,000,000 feet went to England, five and a third million feet to Canada, a little over one million to France, three-quarters of a million to the Philippines, over a half a million to Brazil, nearly a half million to Newfoundland and Labrador, a quarter of a million to Australia, and slightly less than a quarter of a million to Japan. Most of the films going to Canada, Newfoundland and the Philippines are exposed.

Construction work is about to be begun on a new moving picture theater at 1407 and 1409 Ninth street, northwest, which will be operated by Dr. Louis Kolipinski. The building will be forty-four feet wide and ninety feet in depth, one story in height, and will be of dark gray tapestry brick with a limestone base

At a meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia, held at the Hotel Raleigh last month, a resolution was adopted authorizing the organization to take up the matter of obtaining "better" moving pictures with the large motion picture syndicates. It is possible, as a result of this meeting, that a crusade will be started to obtain the display of pictures more suitable for children, such as "Little Red Riding Hood," "Cinderella," etc., and the discouragement or prohibition of such plays as they may deem not good for young folks. Just how far this organization will go in the matter has not been decided upon. Washington has already certain laws pertaining to motion picture shows and it is not believed that any of the houses would exhibit any pictures that were not up to the standard—immoral plays do not pay in the long run, and certainly cheapen the theater. From what Mrs. Ellis Logan, president of the organization, says, there may be an opportunity for a theater centrally located, showing such films as outlined.

At the Casino Theater, a vaudeville-moving picture house, a number of novelties are being used. On Monday evenings a "Surprise Party" is given, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, the "Country Store" is the feature; Thursdays, much amusement is obtained from the "Dancing Contests," while the "Amateur Carnival" on Fridays brings out a good

(Continued on page 1450)

In Three Reels

"THE SEA WOLF"

By JACK LONDON

conceded to be the finest photography ever produced.

STATE RIGHTS FOR SALE. We guarantee with bond to fully protect our own and your rights.

Also Ready the Production

"A PIECE OF STEAK" [In Two Thousand Feet]

Taken from Jack London's Book, "When God Laughs."

---

Also Ready the Production

"TO KILL A MAN" [In One Thousand Feet]

Taken from Jack London's Book, "The Night Born."

---

IN PREPARATION:

"Martin Eden"
"John Barleycorn"
"The Call of the Wild"
"Smoke Bellew Series"
and His Latest Story
"The Valley of the Moon"

WIRE IMMEDIATELY WHAT STATES AND NUMBER OF PRINTS

THE BALBOA AMUSEMENT PRODUCING CO.

Suite 806, Security Building
Los Angeles, Cal.

H. M. HORKHEIMER, Pres. & Gen. Manager, Member National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Oh, Sammy! (Comedy) ..................
BIOGRAPH—Riley's Decoys (Comedy) ..............
EDISON—A Pious Undertaking (Comedy) ............1000
KALEM—The Hunchback (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
LUBIN—When the Well Went Dry (Comedy) ........ 400
LUBIN—A Masked Mix-up (Comedy) ................ 600
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 76 (News) ........
SELIG—The Wolf of the City (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
VITAGRAPH—The Uprising of Ann (Drama) ........1000

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

CINES—The Sunken Treasure (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
EDISON—The Actress (Drama) ......................1000
ESSANAY—Life's Weaving (Drama) ..................1000
LUBIN—When He Sees (Drama) ......................1000
PATHEPLAY—The Couple Next Door (Comedy).....
SELIG—With Eyes So Blue and Tender (Drama)......1000
VITAGRAPH—Up in a Balloon (Comedy) ............
VITAGRAPH—Elephants at Work (Edu.) ............

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

EDISON—Falling in Love with Inez (Comedy) ........1000
ESSANAY—Hello Trouble (Comedy) ..................1000
KALEM—Uncle Tom's Cabin (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
PATHEPLAY—Insects that Sing (Zoology) ..........
PATHEPLAY—Nice and It's Environs, France (Scenic)
SELIG—Buster's Little Game (Comedy) ..............1000
VITAGRAPH—Any Port in a Storm (Comedy) ........

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Beyond All Law (Drama) ..............
ESSANAY—The Trail of the Snake Band (Drama)....1000
LUBIN—A Son of His Father (Special—2 parts—Dr.)..2000
MELIES—Cities of Japan (Scenic) ....................1000
PATHEPLAY—The Finger of Hate (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..............................................2000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 77 (News) ......
SELIG—Until the Sea — (Drama) ..................
VITAGRAPH—The Face of Fear (Drama) ............1000

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

EDISON—Within the Enemy's Lines (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..............................................2000
ESSANAY—The Stigma (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
KALEM—Frayed Fagin's Adventures (Comedy) .......
KALEM—Ulster Day in Belfast (Topical) ............
LUBIN—Growing and Gathering Cocoa Beans (Indust'l.) 400
LUBIN—Banty Tim (Drama) .......................... 600
PATHEPLAY—A Scandanavian Scandal (Comedy)....
SELIG—The Lure of the Road (Drama) ..............1000
VITAGRAPH—The Girl at the Lunchcounter (Comedy).1000

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Conscience of Hassan Bey (Drama)..
EDISON—The Haunted Bedroom (Drama) ............1000
ESSANAY—Broncho Billy's Christmas Deed (Drama)..1000
KALEM—The Electrician's Hazard (Drama) ..........1000
LUBIN—A Love of '64 (Drama) ......................1000
PATHEPLAY—The Fire Bride (Drama) ..............
VITAGRAPH—The Ancient Order of Goodfellows (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..............................2000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 22nd, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—For Her Government (Drama) ..........
EDISON—Products of the Palm—the Banana Industries, Jamaica, West Indies (Industrial) .................. 350
EDISON—Teaching His wife a Lesson (Comedy) ...... 675
KALEM—Gilt Edge Stocks (Drama) ....................1000
LUBIN—Through Flaming Paths (Drama) ............1000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 78 (News) ......
SELIG—The Open Door (Special—2 parts—Drama)....2000
VITAGRAPH—A Christmas Story (Drama) ..........1000

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, 1913.

CINES—At Cross Purposes (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000
EDISON—The Upward Way (Drama) ................1000
ESSANAY—A Vagabond Cupid (Drama) ..............1000
LUBIN—Between Dances (Comedy) .................. 400
LUBIN—A College Cupid (Comedy) .................. 600
PATHEPLAY—An Indian Don Juan (Drama) ........
SELIG—Mother Love vs. Gold (Drama) ..............1000
VITAGRAPH—Her Faith In the Flag (Drama) ........1000

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24th, 1913.

EDISON—Mary's New Hat (Comedy) ................ 585
EDISON—The Janitor's Quiet Life (Comedy) ........ 415
ESSANAY—At the Old Maid's Call (Comedy) ........
ESSANAY—Glimpses of Rio de Janeiro (Scenic) ......
KALEM—The Big Horn Massacre (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..........................................2000
PATHEPLAY—Two Up a Tree (Comedy) ............
SELIG—A Dip In the Briney (Comedy) ..............1000
VITAGRAPH—The Honorable Algernon (Drama) ....1000

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—Her Wedding Bell (Drama) ............
ESSANAY—That Pair from Thespia (Comedy) ........1000
LUBIN—The Parasite (Special-3 parts-Drama).........3000
MELIES—The Ruins of Angkor-Thof (Scenic) ........1000
PATHEPLAY—Lady Madcap's Way (Special—2 parts—Drama) ..........................................2000
PATHEPLAY—Pathe's Weekly, No. 79 (News) ......
SELIG—Doc. Yak's Christmas (Comedy) ..............1000
VITAGRAPH—The Spirit of Christmas (Drama)........1000

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th, 1913.

EDISON—A Tudor Princess (Special—2 parts—Drama).2000
ESSANAY—The Great Game (Special-2 parts—Drama).2000
KALEM—Talcum Powder (Industrial) ................
KALEM—Emancipated Women (Comedy) ............
LUBIN—The Death Trap (Drama) ......................1000
SELIG—His Sister (Drama) ..........................1000
VITAGRAPH—The Golf Game and the Bonnet (Com.)..1000

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27th, 1913.

BIOGRAPH—The Club Cure (Comedy) ................
BIOGRAPH—The Suicide Pact (Comedy) ............
EDISON—A Proposal from Mary (Being the Sixth Story of "Who Will Marry Mary") ........................1000
ESSANAY—A Snakeville Courtship (Comedy) ........1000
KALEM—Her Indian Brother (Drama) ................1000
LUBIN—The Doctor's Romance (Drama) ..............1000
PATHEPLAY—The Moth and the Flame (Special-2 parts—Drama) ..........................................
PATHEPLAY—Corfu, an Isle of Ionian Sea (Travel)..
VITAGRAPH—Heartease (Special—2 parts—Drama)..2000

WE HAVE THE MOST ATTRACTIVE ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES, ARTISTIC IN EVERY DETAIL, BEAUTIFULLY COLORED, PRICES ARE 35c EACH, THREE FOR $1.00. ALL DIFFERENT STYLES OF WORDING. JUST LET US KNOW WHAT YOU WANT AND WE WILL FILL THE ORDER.

AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO. First National Bank Bldg., Chicago

CHARLES KLEIN'S

The Third Degree

was the surest dramatic hit of recent years in New York and throughout the U. S.

The Third Degree

has been declared by critics to be the most intense, thrilling and sincere play of its important class. With the co-operation of the author, and a remarkable cast of actors and actresses selected for their especial fitness to enact its very exacting characters,

The Third Degree

has been reproduced by the Lubin Company as a

5 REEL FEATURE PHOTOPLAY

No play from the "speaking stage" ever lent itself so perfectly to motion pictures and no finer feature film has ever been turned out.

Full line of advertising matter, heralds, lithographs and lobby displays of the same unusual quality that characterizes all such matter originated by the General Film Company accompanies

The Third Degree

which is exclusively controlled and now being booked by the

GENERAL FILM CO. (Inc.)

71 WEST 23rd STREET SPECIAL FEATURE DEPT. NEW YORK

LOBBY DISPLAY

PHOTOGRAPHS OF FEATURES AND FRAMES FOR THEM

Another detail of the advertising helps we offer exhibitors, and a popular one, too. Striking photographs, 8x10 inches in size, of principal scenes from the film, for practically all multiple-reel features. They are great business-getters, because they show actual scenes in the picture.

Set of eleven, with title cards, $2.00

Mission finish oak frame, with fifteen openings and glass front, made to fold in three parts, like a Japanese screen. Each, $7.00

Everything for Advertising a Picture Show

GENERAL FILM CO. (Inc.)

POSTER DEPARTMENT

(Formerly Photoplay Advertising & Specialty Co.)

71 W. 23rd Street and 440 Fourth Avenue, New York; 121 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 1022 Superior Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio; 7th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio; Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.; 218 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.; 122 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; 737 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.; 921 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

Calendar of Independent Releases

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1913.

REX—The Mask (Drama) ..........
CRYSTAL—First Love (Drama) ..........
ECLAIR—He Likes Things Upside Down (Comedy)....
ECLAIR—Mutty Has a Romance (Comedy) ..........

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

VICTOR—Incognito (Drama) ..........
IMP—The Story of David Greig (2 parts—Drama).....
POWERS—Freckles Fight for His Bride (Comedy)....

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—Blood-Hounds of the North (2 parts—Drama) ..........
CRYSTAL—The Soubrette (Comedy) ..........
CRYSTAL—The Trained Nurse (Comedy) ..........

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

NESTOR—A Woman's Way (Drama) ..........
JOKER—Mike and Jake as Heroes (Comedy)..........
ECLAIR—The Serpent In Eden (2 parts—Drama)......
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly No. 93 (News) ......

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

IMP—Mr. and Mrs. Innocence Abroad (Comedy) ......
REX—The Jew's Christmas (3 parts—Drama) ..........
FRONTIER—Slim and the Petticoats (Comedy) ......

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

NESTOR—Teaching Dad a Lesson (Comedy)..........
POWERS—A Cracksman Santa Claus (Drama) ........
VICTOR—A Girl and Her Money (2 parts—Drama)....

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

JOKER—For Art and Love (Comedy) ..........
JOKER—Impressions of Corsica (Scenic) ..........
FRONTIER—His Better Self (Drama) ..........
101 BISON—The God of Girzah (2 parts—Drama)......

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 21st, 1913.

REX—A Wife's Deceit (Comedy-Drama) ..........
CRYSTAL—The Heart of an Artist (Comedy) ........
ECLAIR—Loaded (Comedy) ..........
ECLAIR—Sunset In Many Lands (Scenic) ..........

MONDAY, DECEMBER 22nd, 1913.

VICTOR—Rory of the Bogs (3 parts—Drama) ......
IMP—The Actor's Christmas (Drama) ..........
POWERS—What Happened to Freckles (Comedy).....

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, 1913.

GOLD SEAL—Bloodhounds of the North (2 parts—Dr.)
CRYSTAL—My Brudder Sylvest (Comedy) ..........
CRYSTAL—The Baby Question (Comedy) ..........

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24th, 1913.

NESTOR—The Lightning Bolt (Drama) ..........
JOKER—Mike and Jake As Pugilists (Comedy) ........
ECLAIR—The Highwayman's Shoes (2 parts—Drama).
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 94 (News) ..

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25th, 1913.

IMP—Love or a Throne (2 parts—Drama)..........
REX—The Dream (Drama) ..........
FRONTIER—Slim and the Bandit (Comedy) ......

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th, 1913.

NESTOR—A Tale of the West (Drama) ..........
POWERS—The Unhappy Pair (Comedy) ..........
VICTOR—Miracle Mary (2 parts—Drama)..........

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27th, 1913.

JOKER—She Should Worry (Comedy) ..........
JOKER—St. Milo To Dinan (Scenic) ..........
FRONTIER—His Father (Drama) ..........
101 BISON—The Water War (2 parts—Drama) ........

Mutual Film Corporation

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 14th, 1913.

APOLLO—The Portola Festival (Topical) ..........
APOLLO—Los Angeles Police Parade (Topical) ......
MAJESTIC—The Rival Pitchers (Comedy)..........
THANHOUSER—Lawyer, Dog and Baby (Com.-Dr.)..

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Where the Road Forks (2 parts—Drama)
KEYSTONE—The Gusher (Comedy) ..........
RELIANCE—The Mighty Atom (Drama) ..........

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

MAJESTIC—The God of To-Morrow (Drama) ........
THANHOUSER—Peggy's Invitation (Drama) ........
KAY-BEE—(Title Not Reported) ..........

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1913.

BRONCHO—The Open Door (2 parts—Drama) ......
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly No. 51 (News) ..........
RELIANCE—The Pseudo Prodigal (Drama) ..........

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Personal Magnetism (Comedy) ........
DOMINO—The Curse (2 parts—Drama) ..........
KEYSTONE—Fatty's Flirtation (Comedy) ..........
KEYSTONE—Protecting San Francisco From Fire (Topical) ..........

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—The Pitfall (Drama) ..........
PRINCESS—The Law of Humanity (Drama) ........
THANHOUSER—Jack and the Bean Stalk (2 parts—Fairy Tale) ..........

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

AMERICAN—Fates Round-Up (Drama) ..........
MAJESTIC—A Man's Awakening (Drama) ..........
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported) ..........

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 21st, 1913.

APOLLO—(Title Not Reported) ..........
MAJESTIC—The Prisoner of the Mountains (Drama)..
THANHOUSER—(No Release this Date) ..........

MONDAY, DECEMBER 22nd, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Shriner's Daughter (2 parts—Dr.)..
KEYSTONE—A Bad Game (Comedy) ..........
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported) ..........

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, 1913.

MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported) ..........
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported) ..........
KAY-BEE—(Title Not Reported) ..........

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24th, 1913.

BRONCHO—Her Father's Story (2 parts—Drama).....
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 52 (News) ..........
RELIANCE—(Title Not Reported) ..........

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25th, 1913.

AMERICAN—(No Release this Date) ..........
DOMINO—Eileen of Erin (2 parts—Drama) ..........
KEYSTONE—Some Nerve (Comedy) ..........

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th, 1913.

KAY-BEE—Harvest of Sin (2 parts—Drama) ........
PRINCESS—(Title Not Reported) ..........
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported) ..........

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27th, 1913.

AMERICAN—The Rose of San Juan (Drama)..........
MAJESTIC—(Title Not Reported) ..........
THANHOUSER—(Title Not Reported) ..........

Exclusive Supply Corporation

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15th, 1913.

BLACHE-AMERICAN—The Fortune Hunters (4 parts—Drama) ..........
AMMEX—The Lucky Nugget (3 parts—Drama) ........

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16th, 1913.

GAUMONT—A Terrible Dream (Comedy) ..........

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18th, 1913.

ITALA—Victory or Death (3 parts—Drama) ..........
GAUMONT—Oscar In Search of a Wife (Comedy)....

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19th, 1913.

F. R. A.—Vengeance Bequeathed (3 parts—Drama)....

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20th, 1913.

LEWIS PENNANT—Taxicab 1098 (3 parts—Drama)..
GAUMONT—The Broken Heart (2 parts—Drama).....

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 23rd, 1913.

GAUMONT—Dollar Bills at a Cent a Piece (Drama)....

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25th, 1913.

GAUMONT—Leonce and His Guardian (Comedy)......

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26th, 1913.

SOLAX—The Shadow of Moulin Rouge (4 parts—Dr.)..

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27th, 1913.

GAUMONT—The Angel of the House (3 parts—Dr.)..

Regarding Simplex

Do you want the very best?
    Buy a Simplex!
Put one in! 'Twill do the rest.
    Buy a Simplex!
Want the best, whate'er you pay,
Want the very best today?
Well, we've got it. So we say,
    Buy a Simplex!

WE'VE got the goods and they are "the very best today."
Money talks, but "Results" make a bigger noise.
We have doubled our output within a year's time, and trebled our factory space.
In quality of material, in standard of workmanship—Brains, in fact—and in results accomplished, the wise ones agree with Mr. M. B. Tritch, of Booneville, Mo., who says that is the best machine on earth."

"Simplex

Illustrated Catalogue A gives full details.

Made and Guaranteed by

PRECISION
MACHINE CO.
317 East 34th St., New York

GAUMONT CO.
1603 World's Tower Bldg.
110 W. 40th St., New York City

"Deeds, Not Words"

To You Gaumont Films Mean Money

TRY THEM

COPYRIGHT 1913

Gaumont

THE WONDER CHILD

A Fine Seasonable Drama.

But Good All The Year Round

Released Dec. 13th

Attractive Posters, Photos, Heralds

Two Christmas Morns (IN THREE PARTS)

Gaumont

THIS FILM HAS BEEN PASSED BY THE NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

---

COPYRIGHT 1913

Gaumont

"FANTOMAS"

THE GREATEST DETECTIVE FEATURE EVER PRODUCED

STATE RIGHTS
BOOKING FAST
RELEASED
JAN. 10
WIRE
AT ONCE

"The Mysterious Finger Prints" (IN FOUR PARTS)

Gaumont

THIS FILM HAS BEEN PASSED BY THE NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

THE AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY LEAGUE

24 East 23rd Street :: NEW YORK

A SOLID, square proposition, backed with ample capital, in strong hands, absolutely independent of any other League or organization and endorsed by all exhibitors.

Although founded only a short time ago, the League is growing rapidly and now has subscribers in every section of the United States.

The League was formed to purchase machines, repair parts, carbons, condensers and other supplies in large quantities and to distribute same direct to subscribers in small lots at wholesale prices.

League price on the celebrated "Baird" Certified Machine Parts is discount of Forty Per Cent. from list price.

League price on the very highest grade imported French condensers, guaranteed not to discolor, usually sold by exchanges at $1.00 to $1.50, $.48 each.

Special figures on any brand or size of carbons.

What's the use of paying an unreasonable amount when you can purchase identically the same goods for half the price? Don't you want to save money and obtain supplies as cheaply as your competitors? All League goods are guaranteed to be of the very highest quality, and in case any item is not entirely satisfactory the purchase price will be promptly refunded.

Shipments Made Immediately on Receipt of Orders

If you have not received our catalogue, write for it and full particulars.

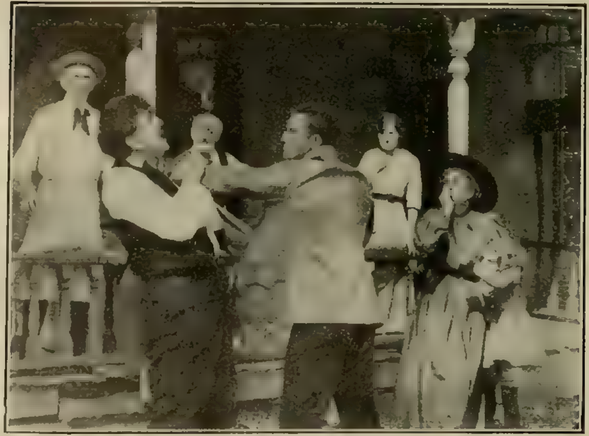
AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE LEAGUE, 24 East 23rd Street, New York

Lack of space prohibits a complete list of Subscribers or the publication of numerous flattering letters, but we pick at random, as shown below, names of subscribers who are effecting large savings by obtaining supplies direct from the League at wholesale prices, and we have no doubt any subscriber will be happy to recommend this League to his fellow exhibitors.

| | |
|---|---|
| Johnson's Opera House | Gardiner, Me. |
| Vaudette Theatre | Ft. Scott, Kan. |
| Star Theatre | Bar Harbor, Me. |
| Royal Theatre | Peoria, Ill. |
| Airdrome Theatre | Mulberry, Fla. |
| Imperial Theatre | Bridgeport, Conn. |
| Grand Theatre | Jacksonville, Fla. |
| Bijou Theatre | Moberly, Mo. |
| Gem Theatre | Baltimore, Md. |
| Wigwam Theatre | Geneseo, Ill. |
| New Palace Theatre | Nokomis, Ill. |
| Coliseum Theatre | Phoenix, Ariz. |
| Lyric Theatre | Wymore, Neb. |
| Bijou Theatre | Escanaba, Mich. |
| Star Theatre | Allegan, Mich. |
| Elkton Opera House | Elkton, Md. |
| Princess Theatre | Beardstown, Ill. |
| Colonial Theatre | Owosso, Mich. |
| Temple Theatre | Jackson, Mich. |
| Diamond Theatre | Duluth, Minn. |
| Star Theatre | Hope, Ind. |
| Jewel Theatre | Tremont, Ohio |
| Pastime Theatre | Columbus, Ohio |
| Auditorium Theatre | Big Timber, Mont. |
| Pastime Theatre | Springfield, Ohio. |
| Dreamland Theatre | Claremont, N. H. |
| Bijou Dream Theatre | Tremont, Ohio |
| Academy of Music | Hagerstown, Md. |
| Hippodrome | Bucyrus, Ohio |
| Star Theatre | Lima, Ohio |
| Miles Theatre | Miles, Mont. |
| Plaza Theatre | Norwood, Ohio |
| Museum Theatre | Dayton, Ohio |
| Lyric Theatre | Lexington, Va. |
| Virginia Theatre | Petersburg, Va. |
| Crystal Theatre | Monroe, Wis. |
| Luna Theatre | Fostoria, Ohio |
| Empire Theatre | Grove City, Pa. |
| Lyric Theatre | Watonga, Okla. |
| Colonial Theatre | Covington, Ky. |
| Fairyland Theatre | Philadelphia, Pa. |
| Rex Theatre | Nowatta, Okla. |
| Palace Theatre | Clintonville, Wis. |
| Star Theatre | Mason City, Neb. |
| Marten Theatre | Hutchinson, Kan. |
| Avenue Theatre | McKeesport, Pa. |
| Cozy Theatre | San Augustine, Texas |
| Seelye Theatre | Abilene, Kas. |
| Elite Theatre | Duluth, Minn. |
| Cozy Theatre | Edna, Texas |
| People's Theatre | Chanute, Kas. |
| Main Street Theatre | Westfield, N. Y. |
| Lyric Theatre | Charlestown, S. C. |
| Fitzhugh Hall Theatre | Rochester, N. Y. |
| Pastime Theatre | Medicine Lodge, Kans. |
| Sparta Theatre | Coney Island, N. Y. |
| Dixie Theatre | Jackson, Miss. |
| Hart Theatre | Toledo, Ohio |
| Princess Theatre | Decorah, Ia. |
| Hippodrome | Springfield, Ohio |
| Hippodrome Theatre | Keokuk, Ia. |
| Iris Theatre | Hutchinson, Kans. |
| Standard Theatre | Steelton, Pa. |
| Westchester Theatre | New York, N. Y. |
| Elektra Theatre | Baltimore, Md. |
| Palace Theatre | Schwano, Wis. |
| Exhibit Theatre | West Union, W. Va. |
| Arcade Theatre | Brownsville, Pa. |
| Auditorium Theatre | Marblehead, Ohio |
| Family Theatre | Sharon, Pa. |
| Riegel & Brown | Frederic, Mich. |
| Happy Hour Theatre | Beeville, Texas |
| Metropole Theatre | Telluride, Colo. |
| Casino Theatre | Oneonta, N. Y. |
| Lyric Theatre | Ennis, Texas |
| Theato Amusement Co | Sheffield, Ala. |
| Yorkville Casino Theatre | New York, N. Y. |
| Majestic Theatre | Rotan, Texas. |
| Opera House | Blossburg, Pa. |
| Grotto Theatre | Reidsville, N. C. |
| Royal Theatre | Andalusia, Ala. |
| Deas Theatre | Asbury Park, N. J. |
| Lyceum Theatre | Dayton, Ohio |
| Electric Theatre | Chelea, Okla. |
| Proctor's Theatre | Mechanicsville, N. Y. |
| Lyric Theatre | Sapulpa, Okla. |
| Electric Theatre | Kingsville, Texas |
| H. M. Wilson | Glasgow, Mont. |
| Acme Theatre | Goldsboro, N. C. |
| Star Theatre | Richmond, Va. |
| Majestic Theatre | Sullivan, Ind. |
| Park Theatre | Moundsville, W. Va. |
| Fairyland Theatre | Bristol, Va. |
| Unique Theatre | Marshfield, Wis. |
| Alhambra Theatre | Perri, N. Y. |
| Cozy Theatre | Marinette, Wis. |
| Pavilion Theatre | Barre, Vt. |
| St. Bernard | St. Bernard, Ohio |
| Wonderland Theatre | Plant City, Fla. |
| Grand Theatre | Galion, Ohio |
| Wonderland Theatre | Norfolk, Va. |
| Virginia Amusement Co | Harrisonburg, Va. |
| C. F. Ruhlman | Trenton, N. J. |
| Gem Theatre | Hamilton, Ill. |
| Lyric Theatre | Wellington, Mich. |
| New Edisonia Theatre | Harriman, Tenn. |
| Orpheum Theatre | Pendleton, Ore. |
| Lyric Theatre | Texarkana, Texas |
| Star Theatre | Williston, N. D. |
| Princess Theatre | West Martinsville, W. Va. |
| Liberty Theatre | American Fork, Utah |
| Bijou Theatre | Browns Valley, Minn. |
| Gem Theatre | Greenville, Tenn. |
| Dixie Theatre | Lander, Wyo. |
| Oak Theatre | Logan, Utah |
| East Side | Detroit, Mich. |
| Electra Theatre | Victoria, Texas. |
| Wilson Theatre | So. Pittsburg, Tenn. |
| Lyric Theatre | Spokane, Wash. |
| Crystal Theatre | Montrose, Colo. |
| Lyric Theatre | Stazelton, Pa. |
| Blisen Opera House | Westerly, R. I. |
| Star Theatre, | New Philadelphia, Ohio |
| Grand Theatre | Roanoke, Va. |
| Dixie Theatre | Baltimore, Md. |
| Blaine Theatre | McAdoo, Pa. |
| Palace Theatre | Memphis, Tenn. |
| Idle Hour Theatre | Fayetteville, Tenn. |
| Crescent Theatre | Houston, Texas. |
| Art Theatre | Staunton, Va. |
| Colonial M. P. Theatre | Blountville, Tenn. |
| Playhouse | Richmond, Texas |
| Colonial Theatre | Keokuk, Ga. |
| It Theatre | Medford, Ore. |
| Wilbur Theatre | Pittsburgh, Pa. |
| Star Theatre | St. Petersburg, Fla. |
| The Pergola Theatre | Allentown, Pa. |
| Franklin Theatre | Astoria, N. Y. |
| Theaterette Theatre | Ft. Scott, Kans. |
| Grand Theatre | Atlanta, Texas |
| Grand Theatre | Washington, D. C. |
| Royal Theatre | Escanaba, Mich. |
| Picture Theatre | Spiro, Okla. |
| Grand Theatre | Austin, Pa. |
| Comique Theatre | Stafford Spr., Conn. |
| E. M. Jones | Crossville, Ill. |
| Lyric Theatre | Honesdale, Pa. |
| Virginia Theatre | Richmond, Va. |
| Magic Theatre | E. Boston, Mass. |
| Fairyland Theatre | Ginton, W. Va. |
| Cortlandt Theatre | No. Bergen, N. J. |
| Hippodrome | Covington, Va. |
| New Kemmerer Theatre | Kemmerer, Wyo. |
| W. H. Royce & Sons | Wilburton, Okla. |
| Colonial Theatre | Saranac Lake, N. Y. |
| Hippodrome Theatre | Wheeling, W. Va. |
| The Air Drome | Bar Harbor, Me. |
| Lyric Theatre | Holidaysburg, Pa. |
| Opera House | Sebring, Ohio |
| Arcana Theatre | Portsmouth, Ohio |
| G. H. Wilkinson | Wallingford, Conn. |
| Ariel Theatre | Buffalo, N. Y. |
| Royal Theatre | Laredo, Texas |
| Plaza Theatre | Baltimore, Md. |
| Royal Theatre | Sandusky, Ohio |
| Grand Theatre | Spartanburg, S. C. |
| Family Theatre | Clifton Forge, Va. |
| Yale Theatre Co | Muskogee, Okla. |
| Opera House | Curivensville, Pa. |
| Meloy Theatre | Lebanon, Ohio |
| Pastime Amusement Co | Tunkhannock, Pa. |
| Pastime Theatre | Edmonds, Wash. |
| Majestic Theatre | Seymour, Texas |
| Theatorium Theatre | Sandusky, Ohio |
| Theatre Comique | Montpelier, Vt. |
| Star Theatre | Mason City, Ia. |
| Gem Theatre | Union City, Tenn. |
| Photoplay Theatre | Blue Rapids, Kans. |
| Star Theatre | Duluth, Minn. |
| Avenel Theatre | Bellevue, Ky. |
| Amaranth Theatre | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| Grand Theatre | Palatka, Fla. |
| Laurel Theatre | Laurel, Del. |
| Family Theatre | Mahonay City, Pa. |
| Orpheum Theater | Dayton, Ohio |
| Masonic Theatre | Covington, Va. |
| The Valley M. P. Theatre | Cincinnati, Ohio |
| Colonial Theatre | Wheeling, W. Va. |
| Lyric Theatre | Tiffin, Ohio |
| Northside Theatre | Watertown, N. Y. |
| Star Theatre | Hackettstown, N. J. |
| Pastime Theatre | Alexandria, La. |
| Star Theatre | Packersburg, W. Va. |
| World in Motion Theatre | Ft. Edward, N. Y. |
| Casino Theatre | Winters, Texas |
| Boston Theatre | Jackson, Mich. |
| Princess Theatre | Weatherford, Okla. |
| Princess Theatre | Wapakoneta, Ohio |
| Royal Theatre | Dayton, Ohio |
| Globe Theatre | Stoughton, Wis. |
| Temple Theatre | Portland, Mich. |
| Martins' Theatre | Willisville, Ill. |
| Virginia Theatre | Wellstown, Ohio |
| Wonderland Theatre | Parsons, W. Va. |
| Biograph (Edgar's) | Vineland, N. J. |
| Casino | Fredericksburg, Va. |
| Casino | Easton, Pa. |
| Pastime Theatre | Jackson, Ohio |
| Happy Hour Theatre, | Wellsville, N. Y. |
| Palace Theatre | Alderson, W. Va. |
| Belle Theatre | Cadillac, Mich. |
| Stewart Bros | Shreveport, La. |
| Walter L. Pasloski | Providence, R. I. |
| Mars Theatre | Midland, Ark. |
| Temple Theatre | Onosso, Mich. |
| Home Theatre | Wheeling, W. Va. |
| Galena Amusement Co | Galena, Kans. |
| Hippodrome | Zanesville, Ohio |
| Airdrome | Columbus, Texas |
| Grand Theatre | Mineral Point, Wis. |
| New Broadway | Jackson, Ohio |
| Palace Theatre | Onarga, Ill. |
| Royal Theatre | Green Bay, Wis. |
| Loebe's Theatre | Charleston, Mo. |
| Star Theatre | Eaton, Ohio |
| Royal Theatre, | Salem, Ohio |
| Bijou Theatre | Bridgeport, Conn. |
| The Gem Theatre | Pinckneyville, Ill. |
| Crescent Theatre | Minster, Ohio |
| Dreamland Theatre | Cadillac, Mich. |
| Dreamland Theatre | Live Oak, Fla. |
| Lyceum Theatre | Syracuse, N. Y. |
| Metropolitan Theatre | Rochester, N. Y. |
| Phoenix Theatre | Jacksonville, Fla. |
| Bijou Theatre | Barre, Vt. |
| Davison Theatre | Beaver Dam, Wis. |
| New Scenic Theatre | Assumption, Ill. |
| Lyric Theatre | Kingsville, Texas |
| Silent Players Theatre | Salem, Va. |
| Opera House | Waterbury, Vt. |
| Clinton Court | New York, N. Y. |
| Princess Theatre | Brattleboro, Vt. |
| Gem Theatre | New York, N. Y. |
| Aurora Theatre | Aurora, Ill. |
| Dixie Theater | Chattanooga, Tenn. |
| Pastime Theatre | Table Grove, Ill. |
| Princess Theatre | No. Topeka, Kans. |
| Diamond Theatre | Duluth, Minn. |
| Lyric Theatre | St. Matthews, S. C. |
| Jewel Theatre | Palmerton, Pa. |
| Spa Theatre | Pittsfield, Mass. |
| Greenpoint Star Theatre | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| Lincoln Theatre | New York, N. Y. |
| Grange Hall | Middlebury, Vt. |
| Tivoli Theatre | Philadelphia, Pa. |
| Prospect Pleasure Palace | Bronx, N. Y. |
| Empress Theatre | Waureka, Okla. |
| Crescent Theatre | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| California Theatre | Chicago, Ill. |
| Pastime Theatre | Mankato, Minn. |
| Bijou Theatre | Newark, N. J. |
| Marinette Bijou Theatre | Marienette, Wis. |
| Garden Theatre, | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| Band Theatre | Charlottsville, Va. |
| Lyric Theatre | Shenandoah, Pa. |
| Bijou Dream Theatre | Chester, Pa. |
| Bijou Theatre | Blackstone, Va. |
| Apollo Theatre | Milwaukee, Wis. |
| Snyder Theatre | Conneautiville, Pa. |
| Clintonia Theatre | Newark, N. J. |
| Photo Play House | Ackley, Ia. |
| Princess Theatre | Humeston, Ia. |
| Grand Theatre | Grand Forks, N. D. |
| Royal Theatre | Columbus, Ohio |
| Star Theatre | Newark, N. J. |
| Willis Twins | New York, N. Y. |
| Broadway Theatre | Springfield, Mass. |
| Scenic Theatre | Washington, D. C. |
| Bijou Theatre | Newport, R. I. |
| Orpheum Theatre | Kenosha, Wis. |
| Star Theatre | Dunkirk, Ohio |
| Lyric Theatre | Indianola, Iowa |
| Orpheum Theatre | Newark, N. J. |
| North End Theatre | Newark, N. J. |
| Pastime Theatre | Lock Haven, Pa. |
| Venice Theatre | Rochester, N. Y. |
| Castle Theatre | Garden Grove, Ia. |
| Theatorium | Brockwayville, Pa. |
| Plaza Theatre | Rochester, N. Y. |
| H. Unglas | The Dallas, Oregon |
| Dreamland Theatre | Olean, N. Y. |
| Keith's Theatre | Troy, N. Y. |
| Gem Theatre | Knoxville, Tenn. |
| Star Theatre | Dover, N. H. |
| Star Theatre | Le Roy, Ill. |
| Scenic Theatre | Manistee, Mich. |
| Odeon Theatre | Clarksburg, W. Va. |
| Idle Hour Theatre | Mahnomen, Minn. |
| Arlington Theatre | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| Orpheum Theatre | Lovelock, Nev. |
| New Liberty Theatre | Cincinnati, Ohio |



Rum Makes a Coward of Sam Yokem

The Organist Who Volunteered to Play.

The Mastodonic Film of all times

The VOLUNTEER ORGANIST

Eight Reels of Sensation, Thrills, Pathos and Laughter. 2000 People in the Cast.

Read the remarkable statement of the author of the famous play, novel and song founded on the powerful incident which inspired them.

> The Volunteer Organist as a picture is eighty per cent. better than the "Volunteer Organist" as a play. —Wm. B. Gray.

The Volunteer Organist as a play scored a record-breaking success in the United States and Canada for ten successive years.

THE FINEST ASSORTMENT OF SHOW PAPER IN AMERICA

Opera House managers, get busy and turn your dark nights into S. R. O. history makers—Wise Moving Picture Exhibitors will not let this "live" one get away—Communicate with us and we will advise you where to secure this picture for your territory.

CRESCENT FILM COMPANY

COLUMBIA THEATRE BLDG., 7th Ave. & 47th St., New York, N.Y.

Telephone 1620 Bryant

Nathaniel Mansfield responds to Lincoln's call for Volunteers

Ebb Utter Objects to "Fake" Prohibition.

KINEMACOLOR MACHINES

(Which also Project Perfect Black and White Pictures)

ARE NOW SOLD

ENGLISH-KINEMACOLOR
KINEMACOLOR-SIMPLEX

SERVICE, TWENTY DOLLARS UPWARDS

INQUIRE NEAREST OFFICE

CHICAGO
538 So. Dearborn St.

NEW YORK
1600 Broadway

LOUISVILLE, KY.
Majestic Theatre Bldg.

EXHIBITORS!

NEW JERSEY, GREATER NEW YORK, NEW YORK STATE

We own the exclusive rights for the above territory and are NOW READY to book

THE SENSATION OF EUROPE

FEDORA

Aquilla's $25,000 Production in Five Parts

A PHOTO DRAMATIC MASTERPIECE

Some of the Thrilling Action

The Dancers of the Cafe Chantant.
The Exciting Horse Racing Scene.
The Climax in the Theatre La Scala.

Some of the Startling Scenes

The Raid on the Anarchists' Den.
The Thrilling Duel in the Forest.
The Sensational Battle with the Police.

Full Line of Artistic Posters, Photos, Heralds, etc.

NEW JERSEY FEATURE FILM CO.
800 BROAD STREET
NEWARK, N. J.

MUSIC — THE VERY LATEST — MUSIC

ORGAN ORCHESTRIONS

PLAYS TWO WAYS

AUTOMATICALLY

AND

BY HAND

MEETS EVERY REQUIREMENT

An instrument of this kind will meet the requirements of any first-class picture theatre. You can play popular, classic, sacred or dance pieces, as the instrument is only limited to the kind of music desired.

BUILT FOR ANY GIVEN SPACE.

THEY REPRODUCE THE PLAYING OF THE GREATEST ORGANISTS

ELIMINATE EXPERIMENTS

When you purchase a WELTE instrument you eliminate experiments. Your value is represented in every detail, as is attested by being in the homes of the wealthiest and most representative people in the world.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

M. WELTE & SONS, Inc., 273 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City

ESTABLISHED 1832

---

A MOTION PICTURE TEN STRIKE

"THE MAKING OF A SCOUT"

AN EIGHT-REEL FEATURE WHICH HAS BIGGER PULLING QUALITIES THAN ANY PICTURE IN EXISTENCE

President Wilson endorsed the picture by posing for it.

Theodore Roosevelt, Judge Ben Lindsey, Gifford Pinchot and some of the most prominent men in the country have written letters commending the picture and urging the public to see it. These letters are available for publication.

The picture has behind it a ticket selling organization of 400,000 Boy Scouts.

It gets first page publicity and plenty of it everywhere.

It is a sure winner as a benefit performance proposition.

Chambers of Commerce, boards of education and large employers of labor have no hesitancy in commending the picture to their communities.

School teachers willingly distribute special matinee tickets and schools adjourn for the show. Return engagements are asked for everywhere.

Rights for England, Ireland, Scotland, Canada, Norway, Sweden and Denmark have been sold.

State rights in this country are now for sale.

For full information write to

THE WEDEPICT MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

115 Broadway - New York City

"Greater opportunity than this hath no playhouse devoted to motion pictures ever had."
--F. E. Sniffen.

America's Most Popular Photoplay Dramatic Actress

MARION LEONARD

In a Quietly Intense and Romantic Story

"THE JOURNEY'S ENDING"

IN THREE PARTS

Written and Produced by STANNER E. V. TAYLOR at Miss Leonard's own Studio, 423 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn.

All Three Part Productions Released By

WARNER'S FEATURES

126 West 46th Street - New York

Business Direction Miss Leonard's Productions Under

CHARLES V. BARKER

472 Fulton Street - Brooklyn

READY SOON "THE LAND O' DREAMS" In Six Superb Reels

"Madam Satan"

A River On Fire!

Can You Imagine Anything More Spectacular?

A Feature on the Screen is worth three in the closet

State Rights 3 Reels

Film Releases of America

220 West 42nd Street N. Y. C.

They Are Here! They Are Here!
They Are Here!

Features Ideal
Two "Honest" Features a Month

Dec. 5th

The Guerrillas of Algiers

or The Mosque in the Desert

IN THREE PARTS

A French Algerian War Picture.

Dec. 25th

The Accursed Drug

IN THREE PARTS

Story with a Strong Moral Punch,
Packed with Sensational Scenes.

Mr. Buyer: If you want Features that will increase your Bank Account and make a Name for you, get in touch at once with

Features Ideal

No. 227 West 42d Street - - New York City

---

THE PHANTOSCOPE

WE produce perhaps a better machine than any other, because we don't make any part of it ourselves.

Each part is made by a specialist in his line, and he makes it better than we could—and cheaper.

There's more than a million dollars of factory equipment behind the Phantoscope. That's why we can sell such an excellent machine for so little money.

Standard film and standard lenses and NEW PRINCIPLES of CONSTRUCTION. This is the secret of large pictures with an eighteen pound Phantoscope, in office, class-room or church.

Mail us a $5 deposit and ask us to send a Phantoscope C.O.D., with privilege of thorough examination. Not one machine so sent has ever yet been returned.

The Phantoscope, completely equipped, $75.00

The Phantoscope Mfg. Co.

WASHINGTON, D. C., U. S. A.

Asleep at The Switch

COME, MY FRIEND, WAKE UP! OPEN YOUR EYES AND SEE WHAT IS BEFORE YOU!

How long are you going to continue in the rut and let competition get ahead of you? Come and get in the lead. Make your competitors sit up and take notice. You can do it with

That Universal Program

The wise exhibitor has realized that he must have a Program of Quality. THE CALIFORNIA FILM EXCHANGE is purchasing every reel manufactured by THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, and releasing a Quality Program of 28 high-class reels including

Six Big Money-Getting Features

with one, three and six-sheet posters and photographs, also

Seven Roaring, Side-Splitting Comedies

Thousands of dollars are being made in the business. You can get your share if you line up with

The California Film Exchange

and take advantage of that $250,000.00 national advertising campaign.

M. L. MARKOWITZ, Pres. and Gen. Mgr. D. BERSHON, Secretary

54 Seventh Street
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
M. L. Markowitz, Mgr.

736 South Olive St.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
D. S. Markowitz, Mgr.

226 W. Washington St.
PHOENIX, ARIZONA
A. B. Knox, Mgr.

JOBBERS FOR SIMPLEX AND POWER'S MACHINES

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted

ATTENTION!
Anyone knowing the whereabouts of William Williams, operator, communicate with his sister, Bertha Olrich, 6926 Yate Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

MANAGER—Years of experience with moving pictures and vaudeville. Also robust baritone, wants position. A-1 Bank references, strong personality. Executive ability. LIVE MANAGER, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

ORGANIST & PIANIST—Of reputation, experienced picture player, familiar with largest Wurlitzer Orchestrian. Excellent references; at liberty. Address G. B., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

PIANIST WANTS POSITION—In theatre whose patronage is sufficiently cultured to appreciate an intelligent, musicianly accompaniment to pictures. Finest reference. Chicago or Middle West. Address PIANIST, care Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

LADY CORNETIST AT LIBERTY—Experienced. Moving picture theater, West preferred. Address J. W. K., care Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill.

OPERATOR AT LIBERTY—Six years' experience, sober, steady, reliable, no break-downs and always on time. Can do repairing. State wages. Address M. P. OPERATOR, Box 44, Oscoda, Mich.

OPERATOR—Reliable, New Jersey license, is open for engagement. Address W. C. care Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR—Wants work. Familiar with Power's and Edison's machines. Will work for $12.50 per week. Address OPERATOR, Box 479, Danville, Va.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Capable booking agents for first-class features, New York City only. Address VERO SOCIETY, Room 704, World's Tower Bldg., 110 W. 40th St., New York City.

CAMERAMAN—Good opportunity for first-class, experienced moving picture man. Give full particulars. Discretion absolutely assured. O. J. R., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—An experienced booking agent to book our features in Greater N. Y: MANUFACTURERS' FILM AGENCY, 220 West 42nd St., New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

FOR RENT—AN IDEAL LOCATION FOR A PICTURE SHOW IN THE HEART OF THE BEST RETAIL BUSINESS DISTRICT OF A CITY OF 100,000. FOR INFORMATION ADDRESS: D. W. HOLLOWAY, CENTRAL SAVINGS & TRUST BLDG., AKRON, OHIO.

THE HAGENBECK WALLACE — Spectacular circus in four reels, now booking in Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania. The biggest box office attraction in years. Fifty styles of paper, from one to twenty-four sheets, shows the circus from the arrival in town, the setting up of the tents, the parade, menagerie and the full three-ring circus from start to finish. Address for booking, THE TRENTON FILM EXCHANGE, Broad-State Bldg., Trenton, N. J.

THEATRE WANTED.

WANTED—Moving picture theatres in N. Y. State or Penn. We have over six hundred customers for live theatre propositions. Write us to-day, giving complete details. HUNT BUSINESS AGENCY, 339 Brisbane Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEATRES FOR SALE.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Seating capacity 300 to 1,200—some suitable for vaudeville—guaranteed O. K., with Chicago Ventilation ordinance. HUME, Room 513, 608 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

PICTURE THEATER—In central Pennsylvania. Bargain, if sold immediately. Good reasons for selling. Address REASONS, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—600-seat theatre in seven-day manufacturing city of 20,000, doing big business, on main street, $25,000, easy payments. CHARLES X. PALMER, Evanston, Ill.

BIGGEST & BEST—Picture theatre in city of 25,000 population. Owner wants to retire. Address WM. HUNT, 727 W. Franklin St., Elkhart, Ind.

NICE LITTLE MONEY IN THIS—First-class, thoroughly equipped moving picture theatre in Alabama city of fourteen thousand population. Weekly net profits, $50 to $60. Price $3,300. Reasons for selling, owner going West. W. CARNOT HOLT, Moving Picture Show Broker, Montgomery, Ala.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—Moving picture machine, in perfect condition. Must be right price for cash. Address FRED WINZEL, Merrill, Mich.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

BRASS POSTER FRAMES—For one, three and six-sheets. Also brass easels, brass railings. Write for complete catalog. THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., Cincinnati, O.

FOR SALE—New Mirroid Screen, 6½ x 9⅓. $12, BARNARD'S THEATRE, Millbrook, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Fine nickle and dime slot cigar machine, holds five boxes; good as new, used only five weeks. Cost $90, would make fine display in lobby or club. No reasonable offer refused. OPERATOR, Nickelet, Stroudsburg, Pa.

FOR SALE—Peerless projector, excellent condition, complete with lenses, stand, rheostat, $45 cash. BOX 399, White Lake, S. Dak.

FOR SALE—Power's 6-A machine, also Power's Inductor for 110 voltage, 60-cycle, A. C. Both articles used few weeks only. Guaranteed good as new. A bargain. Address F. E. LAROCQUE, care J. R. Cook, 106 Ridge St., Sault St. Marie, Mich.

FILMS WANTED.

WE BUY—Feature films for New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Must be strictly up-to-date. TRENTON FILM EXCHANGE, Board-State Bldg., Trenton, N. J.

FILMS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—New copy of Crusaders or Jerusalem, delivered; four reels with two hundred sheets new paper, two hundred dollars, with rights of West Virginia and Kentucky. Single reels slightly used with posters, as many as twelve reels weekly for one dollar per reel. Chance in a lifetime. Address BOX 394, Charleston, W. Va.

FOR SALE—Hand-colored Pathe "Passion Play," 3,114 feet. Four parts, run twice. Bargain. Write J. H. MARTIN, 65 Cartier street, Ottawa, Ontario, Can.

FOR SALE—Three-reel feature "Gypsy Blood," by Asta Neilson, $50; one reel "Italian-Turkish War," $5. Wanted, "Washington Under the American Flag." LEVINE, 58 W. 118th St., New York. City.

FOR SALE—1,000 feet of reels of film for $5, such as Daniel Boone, Great Train Robbery, Kit Carson, Days of '61, Peck's Bad Boys, Runaway Horse, Trip to the Moon, Spirit of '76, Hiawatha, Colonial Days, Washington at Valley Forge, Cleopatra, Bugle Call. H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wis.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

REMOVAL NOTICE.
PROFESSIONAL MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS—Two sizes. Tripods, Zeiss-Tessar 50M. lenses, $150, $225. Special cameras to order. Repairing all makes. R. W. PITTMAN, 50 West St., New York City. Telephone Rector 4092.

CAMERA—Gaumont, beater movement, fitted with Zeiss, Tessar lens, revolving head and tripod, second-hand, a bargain; also new professional bioscope, holds 300 feet of film fitted. 503 Mills Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

ELECTRIC PIANOS — With keyboards, $80 to $125. Orchestrions, pianos with pipes, $240. All guaranteed to be in first-class condition. 44-note electric players, $60. Must be sold to close out business. Send for circular. J. F. HERMAN, 1420 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C.

NEW ORCHESTRA PIANO—For sale cheap, if taken at once. In good condition. Address BOWMAN & DULL, Star Theater, Broken Bow, Nebr.

DEAGAN STEEL MARIMBAPHONE—And fiber case for $35, cost $75. Shop-worn; good as new. No orchestra or drummer outfit complete without one. 27 heavy bars, C to D. Chromatic on floor rack and resonators; adjustable high or low pitch. Big bargain. GEO. PIERSON, 1628 Cold Spring, Milwaukee, Wis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INFORMATION—Bright, interesting book on making, taking, finishing of moving pictures. The moving picture camera, its construction; by a cameraman of 20 years' experience, sent postpaid, 25c. FORDS, DENVER, Colo.

I WANT THE ADDRESS—Of every picture man that is playing to only fair or losing business. My system will increase your business from 50 to 100 per cent. COL. FRANK ROBERTSON, Empress Theater, Colorado Springs, Colo.

AGENTS WANTED—Flame arc lamp. Our new enclosed, long-burning lamp is ready. Superior to any now on the market. Longer life, more candle power, better distribution, lower price. Attractive proposition to responsible agents in position to properly push the sale of this lamp. Write for exclusive territory. HELOIS, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

MAKE MOTION PICTURES—Good opportunity to make money. Small capital required. We sell motion picture cameras, printers, tripods and tilts. SPECIAL EVENT FILM MFG. CO., INC., 248 West 35th St., New York City.

Richardson's Handbook For Managers and Operators of Moving Picture Theatres

The Best Book of the Kind $2.50 per Copy Postage Paid

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Extra! Extra! Extra!

BARBAROUS MEXICO

The only authentic Motion Pictures of the Mexican Rebellion now being exhibited by WM. A. BRADY, MESSRS. SHUBERT and associates, in their principal theatres throughout the country.

Playing
WM. A. BRADY'S Ziegfeld Theatre, Chicago, Ill.
WM. A. BRADY'S Playhouse, New York
MESSRS. SHUBERT, New York Hippodrome, N. Y.
GREENWALL Theatre, New Orleans, La.

Billed as WAR IN MEXICO at $1.00 prices

Three reels of the most marvelous, fascinating war scenes—

Complete in detail with actual fighting in and about the hotbed of the present rebellion.

Storming of Mexico City—hand to hand combat in the trenches—

The last stand before the walls of the National Palace—

Horrible devastation of the city showing the actual dynamiting of buildings and fleeing refugees.

Every foot of this wonderful production taken in Mexico—abounds with local color—sports and pastimes of the natives—bull fighting with all brutality eliminated—steeplechase vividly portrayed—daring maneuvers and thrilling escapes hold the audience spellbound while the famous scenery of the Sister Republic, so beautiful, adds a finish and refinement to the whole.

The support and publicity of the greatest theatrical men in the country is backing this wonderful attraction.

The greatest production of world-wide interest ever presented.

Rush for State Rights is another Klondike. Bids pouring in from all over the world.

Wire Now, if you want to connect

America's Feature Film Co.

406-7-8 Schiller Building CHICAGO, ILL.

(Continued from page 1430)

attendance. On Sundays, exceptionally good pictures and special concerts are the drawing cards.

Many of the Washington exhibitors are expressing themselves as favorable to the standardization of the number of films to be shown for the usual admission, five cents. The Sherman law prohibits the forming of any agreement limiting the number, so that no concerted action looking to the signing up of all houses can be taken. However, there is nothing to prevent an exhibitor agreeing with himself to show no more than three reels for five cents, and this is what a majority are doing. A manager of one of the larger theaters in explaining the situation to the World correspondent, stated that it looked as though some of the exhibitors who were showing more than that number of reels were endeavoring to fill their houses and then keep the people entertained so that they could not patronize any of his competitors in the same evening. In other words, he was trying to "hog" the situation. C. L. LINZ.

PHILADELPHIA.

THE Leader Theater, Forty-first street and Lancaster avenue, one of the most popular of the West Philadelphia Houses, has recently run a series of five and six-reel features, which the management claims are a better receipts "getter" than running a number of two and three reel subjects.

J. M. Solomon, who for several years has been identified with the local theater business, has accepted a position as manager of the Susquehanna Theater, located at Seventeenth street and Susquehanna avenue.

Ben Abrams, who for the past year and a half has been in charge of the Philadelphia office of the Warner's Features, Inc., has severed his connection with that company, and will shortly take a position with one of the large producing companies.

M. Segel, of the Monarch Feature Film Company, has been making a number of trips through the state in the interest of the company, and reports that exhibitors are inclined to book features the same as the regular service, believing that the patrons are more partial to good special productions.

L. H. Howe and Fred W. Herman, who have one of the largest and best equipped studios in central Pennsylvania, located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., have produced a feature taken in the black diamond valley, called "The Perils of the Mine." The picture is of special educational and industrial value, as the many dangers to which a miner is subjected in earning his livelihood from the time he enters the mine until he is carried out after a fearful explosion, are carefully produced and realistically portrayed.

The Liberty Theater, Broad street and Columbia avenue, which is under the management of J. M. Graves, enjoys a reputation for using the utmost care in the selection of films, which fact is proven by the great number of people who patronize the show daily.

G. D. Briggs, of New York City, has taken a position in the office of the Warner's Features in Philadelphia, and will look after the outside bookings.

The Family Theater, Eighth street and Columbia avenue, has been reopened under the management of S. Pierce. Many improvements have been made to the house and the seating capacity increased. A special series of feature films will be shown, along with a comic daily service.

J. L. Warner, who has been connected with the New York office of the Warner's Features, will have charge of the Philadelphia office of that concern.

The Pennsylvania Railroad recently purchased, through the Calehuff Supply Company, Inc., an Edison Type D projecting machine, a mirror screen and booth, which will be used as part of their exhibition at the Panama Pacific Exposition. It is the present plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad to take two of their all steel cars, joining them together, thus making a good-sized room, in which the projection outfit will be installed. Films showing the construction of the railroad, and other important features, will provide a very instructive show.

Captain Frank E. Kleinschmidt, Arctic explorer, journalist, and soldier of fortune, who recently returned from a trip to Alaska and Siberia, has booked several engagements in Philadelphia for lectures on his trip, which are illustrated by motion pictures.

The Park Theater, work upon which was finished recently, was opened on November 29. The theater is located at Ridge avenue and Thirty-third street, and is one of the handsomest in the city. It has a seating capacity of 1,400, and is beautifully decorated and equipped.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League entered protest with Director Porter against the order directing moving picture owners to display a "fire notice" before each performance. "We feel sure," the League says, in a letter, "that you allowed this order to be made without fully considering and realizing what disastrous results may take place if some nervous or ignorant person, misconstruing the purpose of this notice, yells 'fire' and starts a panic in one of the theaters." The notice is designed to prevent panics, by calling attention of patrons to exits and urging them to walk, and not run, in the case of fire.

CONGDON.

ILLINOIS.

J. W. BOYER has purchased the interest of his partner, Charles Nunn, in the Gem Theater at Macomb. The new owner redecorated the interior and made other changes.

Ben Leggett, formerly of Taylorville, and Davis Brothers, of Stonington, have opened the Union Theater at Stonington. A three-reel show is given for five cents.

The Foster Amusement Company, of Chicago, has changed its name to the State Amusement Company.

The Blandinsville Amusement Company, of Blandinsville, has been incorporated to do a general amusement business. The incorporators are William C. Phillips, Charles A. Fischer and Mignon M. Phillips.

The Triangle Theater Company, of Chicago, has increased its capital stock from $7,000 to $30,000.

The Celebrated Players' Film Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,500 to manufacture and deal in motion picture films and machinery therefor. The incorporators are E. S. Hartman, C. E, Morrill and R. Willner.

Paul DeWitt, of Morrisonville, Ill., has leased the opera house at Palmer and will open a picture show, giving exhibitions each Wednesday and Saturday night.

Merchants at Witt have discontinued their practice of sponsoring a Saturday matinee at the Colonial Theater. Manager Thomas O'Dowd has found them so popular, however, that he decided to continue them on his own behalf.

The picture show in the city hall at Geneva has been closed by an assistant state fire marshal. The room was used for both dancing and picture shows and the seats were not stationary.

The Commercial Art Shop, opened by C. C. Linden and L. T. Rider at Rockford was awarded the contract by the Hartley Davidson Motorcycle Company to make a 1,000 foot reel of an endurance contest in Wisconsin.

The opera house at Gilman has been purchased by Paul Kraft.

Frank Lynn and D. J. Jarrett, both of Aurora, have purchased the Iowa rights to the Blache feature, "A Prisoner in the Harem." By special arrangement with the purchaser of the Illinois rights they showed it at the Aurora Theater before beginning their tour of the Hawkeye State.

The S. K. Hadfield building at 707 Main Street, Peoria, is being remodeled into a moving picture theater which will seat between 300 and 400 persons. It will be operated by W. G. Stephens.

The executive staff at the Broadway Theater, in East St. Louis, which is now operating as a photoplay house is as follows: Manager W. H. Newton; assistant manager, R. Murphy; official announcer, A. Wadley; treasurer, Miss Margaret Foley, and operator, Charles Brooks.

William Blankenship will open a picture show at Carrollton, having purchased the Mrs. Ann Vaughn building, which will be remodeled for the purpose.

Samuel Horton has purchased the Majestic Theater at Graryville from Morris Boultinghouse.

Ackley & Brounzel have sold the Princess Theater on West State Street, Rockford, to Mrs. Fahy, of Manhattan, Ill.

Harry Daley, manager of the opera house at Carlinville, has without doubt converted some educators to the cause of the photoplay. He tendered the use of his house for a meeting of the Macoupin County Teachers' Institute and the visitors lingered to see four good reels. Burr Swan, of Pittsfield, who, as mentioned in the World, was requested by the county superintendent of schools to put on a special program during the institute meeting, writes that a list of sixty releases was submitted to the school officials. From this list was selected "The Little Minister," three reels: "Shylock," two reels; and "Along the Nile," one reel.

Morris Boultinghouse, of Albion, Ill., has gone to Marion, Ky., where he has opened a moving picture theater.

The Bijou Theater at Lawrenceville celebrated its second anniversary on Thanksgiving Day. A proclamation was issued signed by all the members of the executive staff stating that the two years had been successful ones for the high class house and inviting old friends and prospective ones to be the guests of the management at the holiday matinee.

A department store in Rockford used moving pictures in its toy department to attract the holiday trade. The program was furnished by Manager Lamb, of the Palm Theater.

Roy R. Reece, former mayor of Springfield, has reopened the Gem Theater on the south side of the square at Jacksonville. Will Gorman, of that city, will act as resident manager. Reece also operates a picture house at Rushville.

Films depicting historical events in northern Illinois will play an important part in the dedication of the Grundy county courthouse at Morris. The committee in charge is planning to secure as many as possible, including a number of subjects which have been made at Starved Rock Park near Ottawa.

Following the adoption of the moving picture as a part of the services at the New England Congregational Church in Aurora, the use of a machine and films at a bazaar given by First Methodist Church is significant. Rev. Mr. O'May, pastor of the church, is quoted as favoring their use for regular church work.

J. W. B. Stewart is now sole owner of the Lyric Theater at Bement, having purchased the interest of E. E. Graham.

McNickle & Coleman will open a picture show in the Grand Opera House at McLeansboro.

T. B. Bennett has sold the old Christian Church building at Flanagan to William Uden, who will convert it into a moving picture theater.

The city council at Macomb has passed an ordinance which will compel moving picture theaters to pay a license fee of $10 a month.

The management of the opera house at Manito has opened a picture show, which will be operated Thursday and Saturday nights.

The Colonial Theater at Monticello has been purchased by Harry Plunk, owner of the Globe.

L. Beebe has opened the Cozy Theater at Twenty-third Street and Lincoln Avenue, in East St. Louis. R. E. Gump is manager. The place seats 500. It is using association service.

James Crichton Company have rented a building in Braidwood to be used for a picture show.

Burr Swan, of the K. of P. Opera House at Pittsfield, was another Illinois exhibitor who saw in the observance of Gettysburg Day throughout the state an excellent opportunity to feature "The Battle of Gettysburg."

Three hundred pupils of a parochial school were the guests of Rev. Father K. Schauerte when the "Last Days of Pompeii" was shown at the Star Theater, in Murphysboro. The priest lectured the film. The Star gives coupons good for a photo at a local studio.

In urging that schoolhouses be made social centers the Civic Department of the Woman's Club at Lawrenceville suggests a strict censorship over pictures. It gives local shows a vague bill of health. "The motion picture show is conducted very satisfactorily so far as the management is concerned."

Charles Moffitt is singing each Sunday night at the Gem Theater in Virden.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

MUNICIPAL picture shows as well as city-owned amusements of other kinds were advocated by Meredith Nicholson, the Indiana novelist in an address before the Palimpest Club at Omaha, Neb.

The Kent Opera House at Kent, Ohio, has been leased for another year by D. G. Hartman, who will operate it as a first class moving picture theater.

G. A. Van Slyck has leased the Majestic Theater at Lake Geneva, Wis., to W. I. Winegar.

A moving picture show has been opened in the Hall restaurant building at Brashear, Mo., which will be operated Monday and Tuesday nights of each week.

K. A. Bechtold, of Sharpsville, has purchased the Lyric Theater at Tipton, Ind.

Jerry Bartholomew expects to open a moving picture theater in the building, which will be erected by A. Ostrom at Orion, Mich.

Rev. John Walton, evangelist at Fort Wayne, Ind., is using moving pictures at his services.

The Michigan State Hospital for Insane at Kalamazoo has installed projecting apparatus and each patient will be allowed to visit the show once each week.

W. C. Aldous, of Chicago, representing the Industrial Moving Picture Company of that city, recently was at Omaha, Neb., where films were made of the United States meat inspection at the Cudahy packing plant.

A. Seitmick will erect a one-story moving picture theater at 3708 Minnesota Avenue and Charles Street, in St. Louis, Mo.

The People's Theater Company, which will operate a vaudeville and picture house, is being organized at Oshkosh, Wis., by W. S. Campbell.

M. L. Henderson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., took a number of subjects in that city.

Benjamin Fay Mills has acquired control of the Broadway Theater, in Detroit, Mich., and December 1 it became the home of high class moving picture features. The Broadway, which has been devoted to vaudeville, was built at a cost of $120,000. The Grand Circus, in which Mr. Mills also is interested, will continue as a feature photoplay house.

"Would it not be well to await the results of the new state board of censorship?" was a question asked in Youngstown, Ohio, in connection with the suggestion to the Central Council of Social Agencies that a moving picture theater especially for children be established. The council also wanted the following information: "Who are the promoters?" "How would the films such as are suggested be secured?" and "How are similar theaters throughout the country operated, and are they meeting the purpose for which they were erected?" The children's theater plan was suggested by Miss Kate Hurd, a kindergarten teacher of the city.

MIDWEST SPECIAL SERVICE.

THE ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

ANNOUNCES ITS NEXT RELEASE

"SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE"

FEATURING
AMERICA'S FAVORITE ACTOR
DUSTIN FARNUM
A FIVE PART
MOTION PICTURE PRESENTATION
ENACTED IN CUBA WITH THE CO-OPERATION AND AID OF
THE U. S. NAVY
AND
CUBAN ARMY
PRODUCED UNDER THE
PERSONAL DIRECTION OF
AUGUSTUS THOMAS
COLLABORATING WITH
RICHARD HARDING DAVIS
THE AUTHOR

IN PREPARATION

BURR McINTOSH
in
AUGUSTUS THOMAS'
"IN MIZZOURA"

TULLY MARSHALL
In
EUGENE WALTER'S
"PAID IN FULL"

EDGAR SELWYN'S
"PIERRE OF THE PLAINS"

UPTON SINCLAIR'S
"THE JUNGLE"

JAMES A. HERNE'S
"SHORE ACRES"

AUGUSTUS THOMAS'
"THE WITCHING HOUR"
and others

ALL STAR FEATURE CORPORATION

HARRY RAVER
President

220 West 42nd St., NEW YORK

AUGUSTUS THOMAS
Director General

IOWA.

THE new owner of the picture show at Ruthven is L. T. Clark, who has purchased the interest of W. J. Willis.

Ernest Krabbenhoff will open a picture house at Preston.

Exhibitors of Davenport were invited to attend the church efficiency congress in that city when Rev. E. E. Hartley, of Danville, Ill., spoke on "Religious Use of Motion Pictures." The work of Mr. Hartley at a chautauqua park near Homer, Ill., recently was outlined by the Illinois correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

W. O. Hartshorn, of Rockwell City, has purchased the Gem Theater at Jefferson.

Jens Peterson has sold the Colonial Theater at Clinton to F. DeLent of Chicago. A number of improvements will be made.

Fred Coskey has purchased the interest of T. O. Higgins in the picture show at Kellerton and the firm name is now Barrett & Coskey.

The Royal Amusement Company, of Sioux City, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 to operate a moving picture theater in the Kleeblatt building. James Burgess is president and Lewis Weil secretary.

Fred C. Furfey will open a picture house at Le Mars.

The Masonic Opera House at Rippey has been leased to Atherton & English, of Churdan. They will run photoplays

William Parker, John Glavin and others are interested in the Lyons Investment Company, which has been formed at Lyons for the purpose of building and operating a moving picture theater.

